No. 41

FINISHES UP THE LEGISLATIVE JOB

The Governor Approves 604 Bills, and Makes 65 Vetees,

Governor Ritchie has finished work on the bills left for his signature, and approved 604 and vetoed 65. Among those vetoed were, exempting mortgage certificates from taxation, exempting mortgage loan companies, providing $50,000 for jetties at Ocean City, providing $75,000 for flood damage at Cumberland, exempting Fair Association properties from taxation, a number of special pension bills, bills providing that certain appointments by the Governor be approved by the Senate, the appropriation of $32,000 to purchase the Catoctin Furnace tract and a number of purely local bills.

He signed only one measure affecting the State tax rate that was not in his original program. This provides $25,000 a year for temporary relief of indigent World War veterans and adds one-seventh of 1 cent to the tax rate. The State tax rate as finally fixed follows:

For the year 1925—27 12-35 cents.

For the year 1926—27 12-35 cents. For the year 1927—27 11-28 cents. The Governor approved the measure exempting ocean-going ships from taxation. This was the only tax exemption measure he did not veto. He said the loss of revenue will be $3600 to the State and $43,000 to the city, but with Baltimore authorized to spend $52,000,000 on port development, it is essential, he said, that everything be done to encourage registration of ships in the State.

He also signed the bills providing State loans of $110,000 for St. John's College, $100,000 for Washington College and $125,000 for West-ern Maryland College, in an effort to make these institutions self-support-

Among the important bills signed were the Constitutional amendment paving the way for a soldier bonus in paying the way for a soldier bonus in 1927; the Constitutional amendment to authorize Baltimore to raise the pay of city judges and a similar measure to increase judge's pay in Western Maryland; the six city loan bills aggregating $27,500,000; the Constitutional amendment to raise the pay of the Strate's Attanway of Balti pay of the State's Attorney of Baltimore and his assistants; the measure reorganizing the Traffic Court: the metropolitan sanitary district bill for Baltimore and Anne Arundel counties, and the measure providing equal pay for women teachers.

Reception to Rev. W. V. Garrett.

The Lutheran congregation of Taneytown held a social and reception, on Monday night, in honor of the coming to the charge of Rev. and Mrs. W. V. Garrett. While the rain and bad tion, the first alleging unlawful, negligent and careless obstruction of a large attendance in the Sunday School rooms, and a very enjoyable time was spent. The rooms were tastefully decorated with plants and flowers and crepe paper. Refreshments were served. The program in charge of Merwyn C. Fuss, secretary of the church council, was as follows: Piano duet, and Mrs. H. I. Reindollar; address Rev. C. F. Sanders, D. D., Gettysburg vocal solo, Miss Leah Catharine Rein-dollar; reading by Miss Ethel Sau-ble: address, Rev. Wm. Charles Day, of Emmitsburg: male quartet, C. Hesson, Wilbur Hess, Wallace Reindollar and Loy Hess; reading, Mrs. Charles E. Roop: address of welcome P. B. Englar; vocal duet, Misses Edith and Dorothy Hess: address by the pastor, Rev. W. V. Garrett.

The event also marked the ending of the longest term-8 months-that the congregation has been without a pastor in over 100 years, during which time extensive improvements were made to both church and parsonage, involving a cost of over $5000.00.

Quick Trip to Philadelphia.

Rev. G. Wilbur Shipley, in response to a subpoena of the U. S. District Court, was in Philadelphia last week to testify in the case of the Remington Phonograph Corporation, but the had not advanced far enough for his testimony. He returned and went back again on Tuesday. Mr. Shipley left here at 5 o'clock in the morning and drove to Baltimore, where he took the 7:55 train, arriving in Philadelphia at 10:23. He reached the Court at 10:35, and was called to testify a little before noon. He was discharged in time to take the 1:20 train, arriving in Baltimore at 3:30. He spent several hours in Baltimore and reached home in time for late supper. Taneytown is not far from Methodists Stick to Anderson.

A message of sympathy and pledge of abiding friendship was sent William H. Anderson, former State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, by the Troy N. Y., Methodist Conference last Saturday, as follows: "Your hosts of friends in the Troy Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church appreciate your achievements while superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York State. We sincerely hope your moral integrity will be vindicated. We suffer together with you and your family. We wish to assure you of our deep sympathy and to renew our FIRE IN TANEYTOWN.

A Small one that Might have been More Serious.

Last Sunday morning, about 7 o'clock, the fire bell sounded an alarm for a fire in the incubator building of Reindollar Bros. & Co., on the alley south of Baltimore St. The fortunate discovery of the fire, and the prompt response of the Fire Company, prevented the destruction of the plant, and perhaps a very disastrous fire in what is the most dangerous section of the town for fires, due to the many frame buildings closely built together.

The fire was confined largely to one end of the building, only slight damage being done to the incubators and other contents. At the time of the fire there were about 13,000 eggs in the plant undergoing various stages of incubation, but they are thought to be uninjured. The ceiling was also pretty badly charred. The damage to building and incubators is covered by insurance.

The exact cause of the fire is unknown, but may have been due to some defect in the wiring. Current was installed both from the town system, and an emergency Delco plant.

Important Damage Suit.

Suit for $15,000 damages was filed in Circuit Court Monday by Clifford H. Doll against the Mayor and Aldermen of Frederick, Schloss Brothers and Company, the Frank Realty and Investment Company, of Baltimore, and the Muse Tailoring Company through Attorneys Alban M. Wood and E. Austin James and E. Austin James.

On April 10, 1923, the declaration alleges, while Mr. Doll was on his way to his home on South Market St., he was injured through the alleged negligence of the defendants. Iron girders were placed near the building of the Muse Tailoring Company,it was said, and these were elevated from the sidewalk by pieces of two by four timber, which it is alleged, projected onto the sidewalk, causing Mr. Doll to fall and break a leg. He was confin-ed to the City Hospital for weeks and it is said is yet unable to walk without assistance.

The plaintiff claims that it was the duty of the city to keep the streets and sidewalks in a safe condition. He says he was using due care on his part while going to his home.

Four defendants are included in the suit on the following theories, it was suit on the following theories, it was explained: That the city is responsible for the condition of the streets and their safe upkeep; that the Frank Realty and Investment Company owns the premises occupied by the Muse Tailoring Company; that the Muse Tailoring Company is the lessee and that the Muse Tailoring Company while a separate corporation, is in reality the Schloss Brothers Com-

There are two counts in the declarathe sidewalk in that, the plaintiff claims, the improvements at the Muse plant at the time of the accident were being made without a building permit from the rity, and the second charging negligent and careless obstruction of the sidewalk.

COOLIDGE WILL BE NOMINATED.

Senator Johnson no longer has any Chance of Winning.

President Coolidge carried Illinois, Michigan and Nebraska, this week, in the primaries. His managers claim enough votes either elected, or in sight, to guarantee his nomination. Senator Hiram Johnson, of Califorpia, is reported to be on the verge of withdrawing from the race for the Presidential nomination, following the long list of successes for President Coolidge. His candidacy never had a boom, as it was not popular with the element that leans third-partywards, and the regulars, except in a few states, never became enthused over the Johnson ideas.

It is pretty authoritatively stated that while he will not wholly retire as a candidate before the convention, he will not hereafter make an active fight in the states in which primaries have not been held, as it seems a sure thing that Coolidge has the nomina-tion practically safe in hand.

Johnson made a bitter speech in the Senate, on Thursday, assailing party management, and denying that he is "quitting" in what he is attempting to do, politically; but he is nevertheless considered "out of it" as a successful candidate.

A Champion Heifer.

It took a Maryland agricultural club boy to bring into the limelight a new State champion in milk and butterfat production for junior three year old Holstein dairy cows.

The new claimant for State honors is Bess Clothilde Pontiac Burke whose new record of 606.1 pounds of milk and 26.6 pounds of butterfat in a sevand 26.6 pounds of butterfat in a seven day advanced registry test, is the best ever made by a junior three year old Holstein in Maryland. Her fourteen day test, completed in March, showed a total production of 1222.5 pounds of milk and 52.026 pounds of butterfat. Her best seven days of milk production during the test total. milk production during the test totaled 646 pounds of milk.

The owner of he new title-holder is Norman E. Pennington, of Kent County, who purchased her in May, 1921, as a seven month's old heifer. Norman paid $65.00 for his little treasure and made the money raising tomatoes. In the fall of the same year, however, he had the pleasure of winning back the entire purchase price of the heifer on prizes which he was awarded when Bess was exhibited in the club class at the Timonium State Fair. His premiums consisted of a first prize of $40 and an additional $25 presented by the Maryland State Holstein Association.

The following year Bess Clothilde Pontiac Burke, as a senior heifer, again won a blue ribbon in the club took second prize in her class among all the Holsteins at the Timonium Her winnings at that time totaled $110. In the spring of 1923 she freshened and on advanced registry test made a production of 460 pounds of milk and 20.25 pounds of butterfat in seven days.

At the Timonium Fair in 1923 Bess had the pleasure of seeing her daughter duplicate her own previous per-formance by winning the blue ribbon in the calf club class. Later her calf went to the National Dairy Show at Syracuse and placed seventh in the strong competition of the junior club show ring.

Water Bond Issues.

Municipal bond issues for water and sewerage systems ,totaling $18,-850,000 were passed by the legislature and approved by the Governor. Two of these apply to Carroll County -$60,000 for a water system for Manchester, and -15,000 for water operation at Mt. Airy, both of which are subject to a referendum.

Commenting on the passage of these bills, Mr. Wolman Engineer of State Health Department says; "The large total amount of these bond issues is due principally to the long recess between the last Legislature and the next General Assembly. It was necessary to provide for as many communities as possible at this

"These issues will make possible an enormous amount of progress throughout the State in the extension and construction of water-supply systems and sewerage and drainage systems. Because of the method of financing under which the bills were passed, these health facilities have been made possible without imposing excessive burdens on individual taxpayers."

Drop in Price of Coal.

For the first time since the World War anthracite coal prices have been cut. In the old days it was always customary to offer reductions beginning April first, but with strikes and coal shortages the prices have not changed for years. Now, with the supply exceeding thee demand, th price cut has come. Taneytown dealers have made a drop in price of 75 cents a ton, covering all sizes.

Odorless fertilizer is produced in large quantities but the farmers will have none of it, so the manufacturers have to "sweeten" it with strongsmelling material, so that it will be considered effective. The ruse does deep sympathy and to renew our pledge of abiding friendship and good real estate and received order to sell the former and stocks and bonds.

SHOE BURST INTO FLAMES. Sheppard & Myers Defendants in

Suit Brought at Wilmington.

Wilmington, Del., April 4.—Mrs. Elsie M. Baker seeks to recover $5,000 damages from Sheppard & Myers, shoe dealers, for burns to her feet, due, she says, to a pair of shoes catching fire while she had them on. The case was heard before Judge Hugh M. Morris in the United States district court this afternoon in an argument of demurrer.

Counsel for the complainant was Miss Sybil M. Ward, recently admitted to the state bar, who made her de-but in this case. Mrs. Baker thru her attorney claimed she bought the shoes from the defendants and wore them in a storm. Retruning home she placed her feet in a kitchen range oven to dry, whereupon the shoes burst into flames, severely injuring her feet, she charged.—Philada, North American.

The Tooth Brush Condemned.

Not so long ago, there were medical Scientists blaming bad teeth for many of the ills of the flesh—especially gold crowned teeth—and as a result, many thousands of teeth have been yanked: sometimes with apparently beneficial results, but hardly to the extent to prove the theory that the road to health lies in the direction of wholesale extractions.

Now, we have another noted expert who comes to the front with the bold assertion that the tooth brush is the arch enemy of good teeth and good health. He is Sir James Cantile, of the Institute of Hygiene, London, England who said in a recent address that all teeth troubles are due to the fallacy that they ought to be scrubbed with a brush. He claimed that the toothbrush invariably pierced the gums, thus allowing poison to enter the system. The teeth when the human being was born were protected with a fine skin and the toothbrush destroyed this deli-cate skin. He drew attention to the perfect set of teeth usually possessed by a negro until he was introduced to toothbrush. Sir James said we erred in the heat of our food. The natural temperature of a baby's blood was 98.4 degrees and the temperature of the milk given to a baby in a bottle was about 120 degrees. In this way the hot milk attracted the blood to the surface of the infant's gums. The growing teeth were left to look after themselves. As a consequence their growth was stunt-ed and they came through eventually in a weak condition.

The same was true of adults who sipped tea and other drinks at a temperature of 140 degrees. What the people need, he says, is a little more old-fashioned stuff and then they wouldn't need a toothbrush at all.

Making reference to baldness, the speaker said most of it was caused by wearing tight hats, as the whole nourishment of the hair depended upon the freedom of the blood vessels of

One child is dead and three others are badly injured as a result of the discharge of a double-barreled shotgun in the hands of Earl Deardorff, seven years old, who picked up the heavy weapon and pulled the trigger in a room in which eight children were playing. Ethel Shults, nine, died two hours later. Margaret Deardorff, seven; Minta, four, and Warren, three,were wounded seriously. The tragedy oc-curred at the home of Hanson C. Deardorff, a short distance west of Cashtown, Pa.

Mr. Deardorff said he had used the shotgun fox hunting the day before and thought he had removed the shells from the weapon when he returned home.

Newspapers Help to Make the Roads Safe.

Newspaper publicity of fatal automobile crashes is one of the most effective means of making the highways of America safe, in the opinion of an official of the Automobile Club of Maryland. He said:

"Statistics have been compiled by newspapers in 47 of the 48 States. Death by automobiles has been kept constantly before the eyes of the reading public.

"Motorists have their attention constantly drawn to the danger of operating their machines recklessly Soon they begin to take pride in cutting down the death toll of the automobile. They drive more carefully and become active workers for safer roads for both motorists and pedes-

"When there is an auto crash, full facts should be furnished the press. The papers can be counted upon to display it prominently. Many papers note the number of deaths by autos during the year as they print the details of the latest fatal crash.

"Publication of the data affords an excellent basis on which to form intelligent public opinion. Means of remedying the unsafe elements highway traffic can be studied with all the facts in hand.

"To obtain the best results, a statistical table for each section should be printed each month in the news-papers in the various cities."

SENATOR WHEELER UNDER CHARGES

Oil Lease Prosecutor Charged With Accepting Fees Unlawfully.

A big sensation in the already notorious oil lease cases, is the arrest of Senator Wheeler, democrat, of Mon-tana, under the charge that he accepted fees to influence the issue of oil and gas prospecting permits, af-ter he had been elected Senator, but before he qualified for office. With Senator Wheeler, Gordon Campbell, oil geologist, and L. C. Stevenson, oil promoter, are also indicted.

The indictment was made by a Fedral Grand Jury at Great Falls, Montana, Senator Wheeler's own state.

The Montana junior Senator is accused in the indictment of having taken money from Cambell and others to secure for them oil and gas prospecting leases giving to them the exclusive right to develop oil on Government lands for a period of two years. The money is alleged to have been paid to Senator Wheeler as a member of the law firm of Wheeler & Baldwin, of Butte, and not as an Stripped of its legal verbiage, the indictment against Senator Wheeler, which is divided into three counts, charges that Senator Wheeler, after he had been elected Senator but before he had qualified for office, accepted money for his services to influence the granting of oil and gas prospecting permits in matters pending before the Department of the Interior and Commissioner of the General Land Office.

The technical charge is violation of Section 113 of the United States penal codes.

This section prohibits any Senator, member of or Delegate to Congress, or resident Commissioner from accepting during his continuance in office any compensation whatever for any services rendered to any person in relation to any proceeding, contract, claim, charge or other matter to which the United States is a party before any department, court-martial or bureau. The section provides for a fine of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment on conviction of not more than two years. Conviction also carries with it the ineligibility of the person convicted to hold in the future any United States office of Senator Wheeler charges that the attack on him is a "political frame-up," and that he wants the Senate to investigate the evidence fully, which will be done by a special committee of five. He denies having accepted money, as charged, from Campbell, since old-fashioned stuff and then they wouldn't need a toothbrush at all.

Another thing that we of the modern world ought to take up again, he has been senator. Incidentally, he says the foreman of the Federal Grand Jury presenting the charges is his bitterest political enemy.

A New Form of "Jag."

A news dispatch from New Orleans tells of a plant called "Marihuana" the every-day name being "loco weed" that formerly grew wild on the deserts of Northern Mexico. now is being cultivated on thousands of acres in that country for sale to addicts of the plant in this country, according to Valdo Santos, who was arrested with five pounds of it in his possession. Santos was charged with violating a city ordinance against the sale and possession of the product.
The weed, which Santos said is being sent from Mexico to agents in all parts of the United States for distribution, is smoked in the form of cigarettes and, according to Santos, "the business beats bootlegging because the fines are smaller and I sell it for 35 cents a cigarette."

Authorities say the stuff has almost every known effect upon persons who use it. In some it produces a feeling of exhilaration or grandeur, but instances have been known where crazed addicts have committed mur-

The Paige being the lighter vehicle was knocked from the crossing some distance and Mr. Ridenour stuck to the wheel until the car landed.

It is stated that the car can scarcely be classed as junk, so badly was it demolished. Strange enough, Mr. Ridenour received only a few minor bruises—a miraculous escape.

The accident happened at the only grade crossing of the Western Mary-land between Thurmont and Blue Ridge Summit.—Thurmont Clarion.

THE HAMPSTEAD SCHOOL.

More Ground Wanted that will Cost $1800 for 3 Acres.

The committee on grounds repre-senting three organizations of the town met last evening to inspect the land coninguous to the school property with a view of purchasing additional land for the school athletics and other school purposes. Mr. Kelbaugh reported to the committee his willingness to sell the land but stated that he perferred not to sell it. He named a price to the committee. It is hoped that in some way this deal can be arranged for. The Hampstead school building is easily the first in the county, and it ranks well with the best in the states. The amount of land between is greatly restricted land, however, is greatly restricted.

Athletics will never be developed as they should be with the plot of ground now at the disposal of the ground now at the disposal of the school. Many people fail to see the strides that have been taken in recent years in the physical training of the children in schools. Only a few years ago but few schools took into accounts supervised physical training. Today every school emphasizes this new line of school activity. It is being seen that a good physical holy. being seen that a good physical body is the foundation of a good mind and absolutely essential to a high degree of success. The men and women who are making good everywhere are those who are well. Then from the standpoint of physical safety the pur-chase of more land is imperative. There is danger that some small child may be injured possibly fatally if all the school must be accommodated on so small a lot as the present school property. The front lawn will soon be decorated by shrubbary and trees that will prevent any playing in the front of the building. It is hoped that the purchase of the additional school the purchase of the additional school ground will be consummated at a very early date.—Hampstead Enterprise.

Drop in Wheat Forecast. Washington, April 9.—A winter wheat crop of 549,415,000 bushels this year was forecast today by the Department of Agriculture, assuming average abandonment of acreage and average influences to harvest. Lar year's crop was 572,340,000 bushels.

The average condition of winter wheat on April 1 was 83 percent of a normal, compared with 75.2 on that date last year and 82.5 the ten-year average. There was a decrease of 5 points in the condition between December 1 last year and April 1 this year, compared with an average decline of 4 points in the last ten years.

A production of 59,135,000 bushels of rye was forecast, compared with 63,023,000 last year. Rye condition was 83.5 percent of a normal on April 1, compared with 81.8 on April 1 last year and a ten-year average of 87.9.

The condition of winter wheat on April 1 in Pennsylvania was 83.

Automobiles by the Millions.

Automobile production in the United States, for the first three months, is at the rate of over 5,000,000 for the year, the highest mark so far reached—in other words, during Jan-uary, February and March, over 1,000,000 were sold, with sales practically up to production.

The closed car is being made in increasing numbers, indicating its still growing popularity. About 4,000,-000 automobiles were sold in 1923. Spring weather is anxiously being looked for by sales agents, to put on a drive for increased sales.

What Is Manufacturing?

The question is important, especially considering the recent decision ir the case of the County Commissoners vs. The B. F. Shriver Canning Company. The provision, by law, exempting "Manufacturing plants" from taxation at any time or place, naturally involves a clear definition of such plants, just as prohibition laws require a definition of intoxicants.

Entirely aside from the Shriver may have in other possible cases in this county, it seems clear to us that the point at issue is easily susceptible of many varying opinions. Several years ago, The Record Company claimed exemption from the State Tax Commission on its machinery, on the ground that it is used for "manufacturing" purposes; as it seemed to us that any plant that used certain items in its business and by machinery transformed them into entirely different products, was a "manufacturing" concern.

The application was denied, the decision being that a printing office is not a manufacturing business; nevertheless, the fact remains that printed matter must be made by machinery, and there must be a distinction between making or producing, and manufacturing, that needs defining.

A cannery may not manufacture canned goods; a cement plant may not manufacture cement; a mill may not manufacture flour; a cigar shop may not manufacture cigars: but, we should like to know when a thing is but you are really asking still more. manufactured, and when it is simply made, or produced. Webster's International Dictionary defines the word "Manufacture" as "To make (wares or other products) by hand, by machinery, or by cloth, nails, glass, etc.: to produce by labor, and usually with machinery. To work, as partly raw or partly wrought materials into suitable forms for use."

Taking the above in its broadest sense there are but few articles in use, not in some degree manufactured. The farmer is not usually regarded as a manufacturer (and some do not even consider him a "business" man) but just the same the farmer, by "hand or machinery" transforms "materials into suitable form for sue and never won an argument. use." Washington's Favorite Horse Was a Dapple Gray.

Writer Says Mount Vernon Had Black Fox Which Was Never Caught.

Washington was a renowned fox hunter. Mrs. Washington's grandson left in an old magazine a vivid picture of the "Colonel," as he named him, in hunting garb.

A blue coat, bright red waistcoat, buckskin knee breeches and a closely fitting black velvet cap—that was Washington as a fox hunter.

His favorite horse for the sport was a dark dapple gray called Blueskin. Custis wrote that no horse could dismount Washington, so long and strong were his legs, says Girard.

Carrying that fine figure, six feet two, and then weighing 190 pounds, was no easy job for Blueskin, yet he did it a couple of times a week and occasionally as far as 30 miles in a

At Mount Vernon was a black fox routed out frequently and chased for leagues, but never caught, said Mr.

"How often do they catch a fox?" I asked J. Charles Murtagh, for whom the back of a fleet horse has the cushions of a limousine beaten ten lengths at the first quarter.

"Never, or at least rarely," said he, "unless they cheat the fox. Caged too long, or set down in a strange country, he may lose his brush. Given a fair show a fox will outwit almost any pack of hounds and the best hunters." Of course, there are hounds and then again just hounds. Those fine packs of English hounds kept by Charles T. Mathers and Plunkett Stewart can run the legs off any thoroughbreds.

But the S. P. C. A. would pounce upon sportsmen today who should indulge in the cruelties practiced a hundred years ago by horsemen and hunters. On the Philadelphia race track heats of four miles were run and repeated. To decide whether the horse could outdo the hounds a race was arranged.

Sixty thoroughbreds started with a small pack of hounds over a given The hounds won, only 12 horses finished and one of them, a valuable racer, was thereafter stone blind from

MAKE SUCCESS WITH GEESE

Goslings Month Old Are Hardiest of Fowls-Grass in Ration Is Most Important.

After goslings are a month old they are among the hardiest of fowls, but they are rather delicate at first and should have careful attention. The main thing is to keep them warm and dry the first few weeks, feeding them a little at a time and often-say four or five times a day. One of the best rations on which to start goslings is a mixture of corn meal and shorts, mixed with bread or cracker crumbs. hard boiled eggs chopped fine, etc.

It is also a good plan to provide some tender grass as a relish right from the start. The goose is essentially a grazing bird, hence grass in its ration is quite important at all times. Other grain food, along with meat scraps, should be added to the ration gradually as the goslings grow.

Most people keep goslings in small movable runs for the first two weeks, so they can't run wild but can be moved to fresh ground each day where they can pick grass and bugs. The extent of this ranging space can be gradually increased until the goslings are a month old, then they should be turned out on free range where they will find lots of pasturage to make rapid growth.

Geese do not have to have water to swim in, but at the same time they get lots of enjoyment from it. If a small stream or pond cannot be provided, then it is quite essential that the fowls have an abundant supply of good drinking water, which they consume freely,

After goslings are turned on pasture, if the grass is in good condition, it is not necessary to feed them grain more than twice a day at first and later once a day. The first object should be to get as large a growth of frame as possible. Let fat come last. To build frame requires lots of grass, bugs and worms, and grains like oats and buckwheat that are not especially

As fall approaches and the grass begins to fail, corn should be substituted for one of the other grains as it is more fattening. Starting at least a month before the holiday selling season, the geese we want to sell on market are fed all they will eat of a mixture of corn and oats at first and corn alone later. In fitting geese for market it is hardly possible to make them too fat, as extreme fatness has no bad effect upon their table qualities and therefore most people want lots of it.-Farm Life.

GEESE AND CHICKENS MIXED

Fowls Do Not Breed Very Well Together-Supply of Clean Water ls Important.

Geese and chickens do not breed very successfully together. As is well known, geese like to dig around in the dirt and then wash their faces in every pail of water that is placed in the yard for the poultry. The geese will soon empty the pails by dipping their heads deeply in the water and throwing it over their backs until the pails contain only a few inches of dirty water. A steady supply of clean water is important for growing chickens so the geese become a nuisance in the enclosure.

Geese will often drive the poultry away from the dry mash hoppers. As the profit in geese depends on raising them on a cheap ration largely composed of grass it does not pay to feed them much mash during the summer.

The best place for geese is a field near a pond. This gives the birds plenty of water. They do not need a body of water but it saves the work of carrying a lot of drinking water if the geese have their own supply for washing in.

POULTRY POINTS

Cull your flocks as many times as possible during the year.

Drafts in the poultry houses mean colds and colds mean less eggs.

Chicks in the habit of receiving good, fresh milk each day, are very apt to develop some digestive troubles if old milk-milk that is beginning to turn-is given them.

Americans are eating more poultry every year. Farmers may yet find that the hennery department is among the most profitable. Start with a standard breed rooster and breed up the flock.

Lack of suitable equipment is one of the main reasons why mediocre success is experienced in raising

Newly-hatched chicks should not have any feed for 36 hours after hatching, and in most cases 48 hours

To get eggs in abundance, it is necessary not only to place feed in the hen house but to get it into the hen's crop in the right proportion for man ufacture of eggs.

CANADA'S FLOATING CITY STILL THRIVES

Citizens of Simoon Engage in Lumbering Along Coast.

In the Inside Passage of the Pacific ocean on the British Columbia coast is Canada's only floating city-Simoon City. It is now seventeen years old. It has no need for fire or police departments and its citizens pay no

This novel town was formed to meet the needs of its residents. Along the British Columbia coast are many mountains the sides of which dip into the ocean. These mountains are covered with rich timber growths. As it is a difficult matter to establish camps for those working these timber tracts, big operators have passed them by, and as a consequence the citizen of Simoon City is enabled to obtain many valuable timber holdings.

When permission to cut the timber has been obtained, explains the Canadian Pacific railway in a bulletin describing the floating town, the citizen attaches his floating house to a rowboat or a motorboat and moves it to the scene of his intended operations. Often two or three will band together and take up a concession. When the logs are cut they are shot into the water by chutes, or sometimes, if the mountainside is particularly steep, by gravity. The logs are then put together in the form of a raft and towed to the nearest lumber mill.

When operations have been discontinued the loggers tow their houses to Simoon City, where there are now eight permanent dwellings. There is no lack of entertainment. There are parties, dances, hunting and other forms of amusements to interest the citizens until they again start out to their concessions. If the dweller tires of local entertainment it is only a short distance to Vancouver.

There is one store in the city. About seventeen years ago a business man of Vancouver, realizing the need of a general store to cater to the wants of these floating homes, fitted up an old floating house, which he moved up and down the coast supplying the wants of the logger. With the establishment of permanent dwellings at Simoon City, he anchored his boat there, and, according to latest reports, is doing a thriving business. In addition, the city also boasts a post office, and a letter addressed to Simoon City is handled with the same dispatch as that addressed to one of the larger and more populous centers on the

Prince of Wales

The title of prince of Wales, bestowed on the male heir first in line to succession to the throne of Great Britain, originated in the Fourteenth century. Edward I, king of England, who accomplished the conquest of Wales, created the title in 1301.

Tradition has it that when a baby prince was born in one of the castles newly built in Wales by the victorious monarch, the baby was presented to the Welsh people as a prince "who could not speak English." When the boy was seventeen, according to the story, his father formally made him prince of Wales. He later became King Edward II. His son, Edward III. was known as Edward of Windsor and was never made prince of Wales. But it has since become an invariable custom to honor the heir to the throne in this way.

The title is not hereditary, but must be created for each prince so honored. Being purely honorary, no power or authority is attached to it, although parliament votes a yearly sum for the support of its holder.—Detroit News.

Paying Him Off

A certain man in this city is inclined to be pompous and obstinate. A little while ago he visited the navy yard in Charlestown, and somehow he managed to get aboard a vessel from which visitors were at the time excluded. An officer encountered him upon the deck and told him that he could not remain. The visitor swelled up and said that he was a citizen of the United States, that as such he owned part of the warship upon which he was standing, and that he had a full right to be aboard and would not depart.

The officer looked at bim a moment. Then he walked over to an anchor chain and with his pocket knife scraped a bit of rust from it. Returning to the visitor, he extended the flake of rust to him and said:

"Here is your share of this ship. Take it and get out, or I'll put you in chains."-Boston Herald.

Hopeless

A Sheffield man, thinking his sight was failing, went into an optician's shop for advice.

"Can you read that?" asked the optician, pointing to a card on the wall. "No," replied the man.

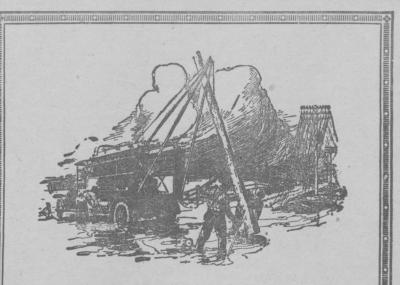

The optician accordingly gave him stronger glasses. "Well," he inquired, "can you read it now?"

The man shook his head. "No, not a word," he replied. After repeating the performance several times the optician was about to give him up in despair, when the man explained: "You see, sir, I never learned to read."-Tattler.

Of Course Not

"Can't you wait on me?" asked the impatient customer. "Two pounds of liver. I'm in a hurry." "Sorry, madam," said the butcher, "but two or three are ahead of you. You surely don't want your liver out of order."

Maintenance and National Service

ATURE is both the ally and the enemy of the telephone. One of her forces, electricity, carries the voice of man afar. Others, as flood, tornado or sleet storm, can cripple communications in a large area through their devastating might.

Each pair of telephone wires in the Bell System is a pathway for reciprocal speech. When beaten down by the uncontrollable forces of nature, that pathway to fifteen million telephones is blocked, and none of the nation's voices can pass that way.

Reserve materials must be on hand, that storm damage may be repaired without delay. Adequate funds must be made available so that the cost of restoration may be met.

National telephone service is only possible through an organization capable of handling, on a nation-wide basis, the problem of maintenance as well as of operation.

ENGLAND MANUFACTURES MILLIONS OF NEEDLES .-There are many huge factories in such towns as Birmingham, Redditch and Studley where needles are manufactured in millions of millions. Process after process is carried through with infinite care and trouble before bulk metal is transformed into highly-polished needles. Briefly

First the metal is "pulled" into wire varying in thickness according to the needles requiredvery thin wire for beading needles and thick wire for tapestry needles. The wire is cut into lengths equaling the length of two finished needles.

the method is as follows:

Then the center of each length is pressed flat to the extent of one-sixteenth of an inch or more. This process is governed by the kind of needles in course of manufacture, as the flattened parts will eventually be the heads of the completed articles.

The "eyes" are made next, holes being punched on either side of the pressed portions. The lengths are pointed at the ends and are then cut into halves; thus two needles are made from each piece of wire.

Heat is applied to temper the steel, after which the needles are somewhat blackened. To clean them they are placed in large drums containing gritty substances. The drums revolve and the metal is rubbed free from impurities by friction. The needles are removed from one drum and replaced in another containing a much finer grit, until eventually they merge highly polished.-London Tit-Bits.

How Steel Is Joined The man with the mask whom you occasionally see beside the tracks is melting a stick of the hardest kind of Bessemer steel down into the crack formed by the ends of the rails made of manganese steel. He is employing the electric current secured from the overhead trolley (or the underground one, as the case may be) and the rail. As the steel rod he holds is brought in contact with the rail, the result is that the two grades of steel, in the rail and the melted rod, are combined in a perfect weld.

The rail is then ground off to smooth the joint and the work is complete. The operator wears a pair of heavy rubber gloves and dry shoes to prevent the current from passing through his arms and body to the ground. In order to protect his eyes he wears a mask fitted with orange-colored win-

Rails may be welded by this process in less than five minutes and without the necessity of tearing up the pavement around the rails and stopping traffic-New York Herald.

How Word Loafer Originated It is said that an old Dutchman settled in New York and acquired a large fortune. A young American fell in love with the old man's only daughter. but her father forbade him the house. Nevertheless, encouraged by the daughter, the young man continued to frequent the premises. Whenever the father would see him he would say to his daughter: "There is that 'lofer' of yours, the idle, good-for-nothing, etc." From this, any idle man, hanging about, came to be called a "loafer." How the letter "a" got into the word is not known.

How Lanes Became Alleys

After the Civil war it was necessary to house the great number of soldiers left in Washington. The system of city squares, with lanes veining the center of each square between the back yards, made it possible for wooden barracks to be built in the back-yard space. When the soldiers left the barracks were taken over by thousands of negroes, who had come to Washington to seek government aid. As domestic servants were in demand, many of the negroes stayed. Small houses soon replaced the barracks and the lanes became alleys.

How to Get Rid of Glue In regluing joints that have been previously glued, a good job cannot be done unless the old, hardened glue is removed entirely. In many cases it is extremely difficult to scrape off the glue. For instance, a piece often is split so that the surface presents an intricate series of ridges and hollows, which must fit together accurately. To clean off the glue on such a joint use a stiff brush—an old nail-brush will do -and hot water. This will do the work effectively and leave the surface in the best possible condition for rejoining. Allow the wood to become thoroughly dry before making new joint.—Popular Mechanics.

Knot and Mile

The statute knot contains 6,082.66 feet, the British admiralty knot, 6,080; while a mile contains 5,280 feet. The statute knot is determined as follows: The circumference of the earth is divided into 360 degrees, each degree containing sixty knots; therefore, there are 360 by 60 or 21,600 knots to the circumference. Twenty-one thousand six hundred divided into 131,-385,456, the number of feet in the earth's circumference, gives 6,082.60

WHY =

Magnetic Machine Is Used to Pack Nails.

It is reported that a Swiss inventor has produced a machine that by magnetism arranges nails in parallel layers ready for packing. It works on the principle that all linear iron objects in a magnetic field arrange themselves automatically in the direction of the lines of force. The machine can also be used to arrange wire rods, hairpins, knife blades, pens and fishhooks. The packages to be filled by the machine may be the standard type of nail keg, wooden boxes or paper cartons. It is probable that the ten-pound cardboard package will supersede the old-fashioned nail keg, because it costs less, weighs less and is more convenient.

The machine consists of two partsparalleling platform and a feed trough above it, which is fitted with a shaking mechanism. The articles to be packed are poured into the feed trough in lots of about 1,000 pounds, and, by the action of the shaking mechanism, are moved to the front of the trough, whence they drop into the paralleling platform. That consists of a tray, each side of which forms one pole of an electromagnet. The articles as they fall are drawn into the direction of the magnetic lines of force, which adjust them at once in parallel lines.

Book Tells How to Break Monte Carlo

Seton Roberts Beresford, brother of Lord Decies, is the author of a book of 60 pages, only one-third of an inch thick. The price is 21 shillings, which is at the rate of 63 shillings an inch. Its title is "The Future at Monte Carlo. A Method Explaining Whereby the Bank Must Fail." "The intention," he writes, "is not to put forward a new system in opposition to the bank, but to invert all that has gone before in so far as to compel the bank to take the place of the system monger."

He showed how a number of players working in concert, may force the bank to play one of the famous systems, such as that devised by Labou-

The Beresford system, he declares, may be played by people with as little as £30 or £40 apiece, for "with so small a reserve many would lose their all! A few, however, would probably win heavily. One solitary winner could easily win an amount in excess of the losses of all the others." He claims that if every one followed the Beresford method Monte Carlo would be out of business in six months.

Hon. S. R. Beresford is manager of two shipping associations and a famous swimmer and trap shooter. He lives in New York and London and has played cricket for Middlesex .- London Tit-Bits.

Why Soiled Clothing Harms The skin acts as a heat regulating apparatus through evaporation of perspiration, and thus reduces body heat. It also serves in some measure to eliminate the wastes of the body in the form of secretions. Perspiration and secretions are absorbed by clothing, and bits of dead skin are continually being rubbed off, to find their way into the meshes of the fabric. After a time the limit of absorption by the clothing is reached; its pores become clogged. The clothing begins to have a damp, sticky, oily feeling. If it has been starched the garment becomes limp. In this condition if clothing is not actually dirty it is at least unwholesome to wear, for it prevents proper absorption and evaporation of moisture from the body and thus actually increases its warmth in summer and its cold in winter. It is a matter of common experience to moth-

The typewriter record for speed maintained for an hour is 131 words a minute, which amounts to 7.860 words per hour. On linotype machines engaged in newspaper work, the amount would be anywhere between 3,500 and 4,000 ems per hour, but be less on book work, or work involving foreign languages. The word average might be estimated at 750 to 800 words per

Origin of "Baker's Dozen"

The reason 13 is called a "baker's dozen" is as follows: In medieval times bakers were kept under the vigilant eye of the law, and severe penalties were provided for any shortage in weight or measure. In order to avoid any possibility of falling below the standard, the bakers got into the way of allowing an extra loaf with every dozen.

Why Grains in Wood Vary

The grain in wood depends upon the width and density of the rings formed in the growth of the tree. Where the rings are wide the wood is coarse grained. Fine grained woods ordinarily are capable of taking a high polish.

How Many Miles of Rivers?

It is estimated that there are on the mainland of the United States about 25,000 miles of navigated rivers, 2,500 miles of canals, many thousands of miles of regularly navigated waters in lakes and bays and more than 2,500 miles of sounds, bays and bayous.

MRS. LAURA REINDOLLAR.

Printer Wanted in Arkansas.

The following is rather out of harmony with our usual run of "clip-pings" but we take the chance of giving the following as a specimen of what is occasionally found in papers "out west."—Ed. Record.

"The England Democrat, England, Ark., twenty-five miles southeast of Little Rock, Ark., wants a printer who knows the difference between an italic shooting stick and a quad-splitter; who can set straight type if necessary in a no-machine plant; who can take a piece of average copy and carry it through all of the necessary operations into a decent piece of country commercial job printing, including starting the gasoline engine and keeping the damned thing running; who can feed a cylinder press: who can make up a newspaper form in such manner that it will lift without having to use a box of matches as dutchmen therein; who can set a clean, clear ad out of the world of material that is available for such use; who will not imitate a phonograph by talking all the time.

Who will appreciate decent hours, pleasant surroundings where he can chew, smoke and "cuss" to his hearts content and take a drink if he can find it and is willing to take a chance.

We don't give a tinker's dam if he is Jew, German, Hottentot, Irish, French or Scandinavian, Methodist Baptist or Holy Roller—what we want is a Printer who can print anything from a one-line calling card to 20x26 sale bill and get any or all of it out like hell beating tanbark. Is there such a man left in the world? If so, if he will get in touch with us it is more than likely he will find a that will last from now until Uncle Gabriel sounds "time" on his bugle.

The only restriction to this plea is this: We do not want any editor or journalist or student or wind-jammer or know-it-all or has-been or neverwill-be. Don't crowd-form a line Mrs. Julia Trite and daughter, on the right and pass in review. Don't send photographs—we don't give dam if you part your hair in the middle or don't part it at all—just keep the cooties off yourself and print is the chief requirement on this jobit's not a situation."

No Ear for Music. "Has your daughter finished her musical education?"

"I suppose so," answered Mr. Twobble, "but sometimes when she is playing one of those classical pieces it seems to me that she is starting to learn all over again."

Answer, Short and Snappy.

HABITS OF FALL WEBWORM

Explained by Official of United States Bureau of Entomology-Question of "Intelligence."

The familiar ugly brown patches which appear on trees in the city, orchard and forest in the fall are the work of the fall webworm, whose habits and life history have been thoroughly studied by R. E. Snodgrass of the United States bureau of entomology. These little worms, which are the progeny of a small, night-flying white moth, construct bags of glistening silk among the foliage in the spring and begin to eat the leaves inclosed in their houses. As the leaves are consumed, the houses must be expanded to cover more food, until at length brown patches of several feet in extent appear in the trees. The author gives many interesting details of the life cycle of this little creature from the time the moth lays its eggs on a leaf, through its various stages of development as a worm, until it spins a cocoon and goes into confinement only to change to a pupa, then a chrysalis and finally emerges a full-fledged moth.

In concluding, the author speculates as to whether or not such insects have any so-called intelligence. "Can the caterpillars have appetites, a sense of touch, fear of danger, and show resentment at an interference with their natural rights without some consciousness at least of their own existence?"

Elusive Street Sounds.

It was in Rue Montmartre I heard it, and the sound of it could not have surprised me more had it been the note of the nightingale or the song of the lark. It was at the busiest part of the day I heard it in the gloom of the late winter afternoon when the lights in the shop windows are lit and the street lamps begin to twinkle in the evening mist.

In the narrow thoroughfare the motor omnibuses were throbbing, thundering in the early throes of the city's homeward rush, taxicabs were bustling, buzzing in an almost ceaseless stream, motor horns were sounding in discordant chorus, heavy drays were rumbling, clanking, with the clip-clop of the hoofs of heavy horses, raucous voices were shouting the evening papers. The pavement was a torrent of human kind, two torrents, in fact that battled in opposite directions, and the human units had to struggle to keep their course on the narrow footway. It was then I heard it, amid the jostling and the tumult, above the din of the motor omnibuses, taxicabs and heavy draws, in this, the paroxysmal climax of the city's busy day—the sound of a long-drawn lovers' kiss .- G. H., in ition of Lor Mail.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"FRANK"

WHEN we say that a person is "frank" we are understood as meaning that he is candid, open in his manner and straightforward in his dealings, a meaning which, at least, in its metaphorical sense, goes back to the powerful German tribe of the Franks, the word meaning

"free" or "unconquered." The Franks were the ruling people, honorably distinguished from the Gauls and the degenerate Romans of their time by their independence, their love of freedom and their scorn of duplicity. In short, they possessed the virtues which belong to a conquering and dominant race in the midst of an inferior and conquered one. It was for this reason that the word "frank" came by degrees to mean not merely a national but a moral distinction. A man who was frank did not necessarily belong to the Teutonic tribes bearing : that name, but he was one who possessed certain moral qualities -the words "franchise" and "enfranchisement" being derived from the same root, as is the verb "to frank," meaning to send matter through the mail free of charge.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

WOMAN would rather have you A assure her that her eyes were like "twin stars" than tell her of the discovery of seven new planets.

Alas, when did a bald spot, or a lean purse, or a tendency to embonpoint ever deter any man from seeking a perfect woman for his mate?

No matter how a wife may long to see her husband "well-groomed," somehow, it always gives her a cold shock of suspicion when he comes home with a bright, new, pink polish on his finger nails.

A man who can remark in an abstract way that he "loves the beautiful" and at the same time gaze into a woman's eyes with such concrete significance that it gives her a little stition and one which would appear thrill, has mastered the art that conceals art-to say nothing of the first law of nature.

"Beware of the Greeks when they offer gifts"-and beware of a woman when she ceases arguing and begins smiling at a man's deflections.

A bachelor's feeling toward a married man is something like that of the homeless stray, who gazes with mingled scorn, pity, amusement and envy at the pampered, overfed pet Pom straining at his leash.

Sudden shock has been known to turn a woman's hair white in a night -but then, sudden determination will always turn it dark, again, in a day. Isn't nature wonderful?

man's pity for the woman he has just escaped is a blood relative to ennui. Bachelors are like barges without tugs; they may carry a lot of weight,

FOOLING REDDY FOX

MR. COON had many scores to set-tle with Reddy Fox, but as he was not as clever or sly as Reddy it was seldom he had a chance to play of it.

But one day as he was looking down from a tree where he was flattened along one of its branches he saw an old log and when he saw Mr. Rabbit run into one end and come out of the going to talk the rest of the day inother he knew very well it was hollow without anyone telling him.

Then Mr. Coon began to think, and the more he thought the broader was his smile, until at last he laughed right out loud. "If I could get him in there I would give him one good beating," he said, and then Mr. Coon came down from the tree and went to the log.

"Yes, I do believe it can be done," he said, and off he ran for home, and when he returned he brought some hen feathers that came from the tail of one of Mr. Man's fat hens. Mr. Coon tied a piece of twine to these feathers and laid them on the ground at one end of the hollow log, and with the other end in one paw he ran through the log and along the leafcovered ground to a tree not far away, still carrying the twine in his paw. Up the tree he climbed and fastened the twine to a branch; then down he came and went to the log again and, tucking the hen feathers in the opening so they could just be seen, he stood off a little distance and looked. "Yes, sir." he said, "I do believe I can fool him."

Mr. Coon was careful to see that the twine running from the log to the tree was hidden under bushes that grew close to the ground, that would keep it from being seen and yet did not hold it fast, so that he could pull it by the end he had fastened in the tree.

Reddy Fox could not resist chicken, and thinking he was going to have a fine dinner started to crawl into the hollow log, when he became fastened.

After a while down from the tree came Mr. Coon. Picking up a good strong stick, he ran to the end of the and gave him two or three good hard cuts. Mr. Reddy Fox howled and wriggled, him one more thump for good measure, Mr. Coon dropped the stick and ran off into the woods. In a few minutes he came down the fled tone. "Help! help! I can't get pocket.

The Why Superstitions

IVY

By H. IRVING KING

IN NEW ENGLAND there is a popular superstition that it is unlucky to keep ivy in the house and that ivy is unlucky as a gift. At first it seems strange to see the idea of bad luck associated with ivy, which plant decorated the thyrsus of Pacchus and the leaves of which the Romans mingled with the laurel in their victors' crowns.

All popular superstitions have an origin, which origin must be searched for in remote past almost without exception. They are inheritances. Those which at first glance appear to be modern will, upon investigation, generally be found to be most ancient in their roots. Thus the idea that the eating of tomatoes produces cancer, a few years ago a most common superto date only from the comparatively recent time when tomatoes were first used as food, is, in reality, merely an application of one of man's earliest conceptions, that of the primitive magic which is known as homeopathic -like producing like.

So there is some ancient cause for the ivy superstition. It would appear to be a lingering echo of an historical incident which rendered at the time the generally esteemed and venerated ivy a most unsafe and unlucky plant to have in one's possession. About two hundred years before the Chris-

"Surely you did not let your head run away with your good sense, Mr. Fox? You are in a terrible any tricks without getting the worst plight, I must admit. Why, you might have died in there if I had not happened along."

"Mr. Coon, won't you please pull me out? I am smothering in here," said Reddy Fox, wondering if Mr. Coon was stead of helping him to get free.

"Why, of course, of course," said Mr. Coon, taking Reddy by the hind feet and pulling with all his might.

Reddy wriggled and Mr. Coon pulled. and after a while out he came, looking very much the worse for the struggle. As they sat on the ground getting their breath Reddy asked. as he rubbed his back, "Did you see any one running through the woods as you came along, Mr. Coon?"

Mr. Coon shook his head and looked very innocent. "No. Did you see anyone?"

"No, but I felt-I mean, I thought I heard some one just before you came along. By the way, Mr. Coon, I want (©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) Eunice Cameron and her married sister, Stella Young, were sewing one pleasant morning. Stella was hemming napkins, while Eunice was embroidering a bit of dainty lingerie. Eunice was engaged to be married, but the day was not set. Her flance, Dr. Vincent Carter, was building up a practice and he hoped, before long, to be able to support a wife comfortably.

The sisters were both beautiful girls whose parents had died a short time before, leaving them barely enough to make ends meet. Stella had married a poor clerk who might else do something better if he had any ambition, but Stella was learning, much to her sorrow, that he would never be anything else. It made her bitter and she was jealous of her sister's better prospects, for Doctor Carter was not only hard-working but ambitious.

"There's one thng," asid Stella, "about being a doctor's wife; you never know where your husband is. Now I can get Rufus at any time, for he is always at the office except at lunch time and I even know where he

"Of course," replied Eunice, "one has to expect a different life. I've thought about it and I intend to go on with my music so as to have a distinct work of my own."

"You know that handsome doctors are always popular with women. How will you know you can always hold

"I won't know, in fact," replied Eunice, "but I love Vincent too much ever to doubt him. Love is trust!"

The front doorbell rang and Stella opened it to Clarissa Garten, a neigh-

"I'm glad to find you in, Eunice," she said with a tightening of the lips and an "I'll do it if it kills me," air. "Did you see Doctor Carter last night?"

"No," replied Eunice, "he was busy." "Yes, he was busy, all right, and I think you ought to know how.'

"What do you mean?" asked Eunice in surprise.

Stella drew her chair up closer. "Well, I was waiting for my husband on the mezzanine floor of the Faxon hotel last night about ten o'clock when Doctor Carter got out of the elevator. He had gone only a few steps when just about the prettiest girl I ever saw-and beautifully dressed-rushed up to him and I never saw anyone so glad to see a man as she was to see him. I couldn't get a look at his face as his back was turned to me, but—they shook hands longer than people usually do. Everybody noticed them. It was almost a scene. "Then they went over and sat down on a settee and talked together in the most animated way for all of ten min-Then Jim came for me and we left, but just as I stepped in the elevator I looked at them again, and this time I saw Doctor Carter right in the face and he was the happiest-looking man I ever saw. He was beaming. There, now! I decided it was my duty to tell you, and I've done it."

"I always expected it," declared

For a few moments Eunice was crushed. She was thinking of the hurried talk over the telephone with Vincent. She had expected him as usual in the evening. He had a call, he said, a case that would take some time. She had given it no further concern, but had stayed at home with her sewing and her loving thoughts of him. Now she said: "Whoever she was-it must be all right. A doctor necessarily meets lots of people. I trust Vincent!"

"Very well, I've done my duty," said Mrs. Garten. "Eunice, dear, Clarissa is right in telling you. You can't trust an attractive man," said Stella.

They heard the ring of the telephone and Stella answered it. "Doctor Carter to speak to you, Eunice." Tremblingly Eunice took the receiver from her sister's hand. "Dear," she heard the beloved voice, "I am called to Chicago, suddenly. I won't have a minute's time to see you. I shall be gone for three or four days. I have arranged to leave my patients. I'll be at the Stonewall hotel."

"Yes-yes, of course."

"Anything the matter, dear?" "No-oh, no; good-by." She hung up the receiver and with dragging footsteps started to leave the room.

"What did he say?" asked Stella. "He's going to Chicago for a few "That's strange—after last night.

Eunice, too unhappy for words, went to her room. She was crushed, her sister and Clarissa Garten, women write him now." It was unlike Eunice to let pride and self-pity get the upper hand, but the constant stings of her sister had | Transcript.

In the heat of passion she wrote demanding an explanation of his conduct with a woman so lost to all sense of propriety as to make a display of her love for him. Stella mailed the letter for her and she went to bed in a darkened room.

The next morning Doctor Carter found the letter awaiting him. How sweet of Eunice to think of having a note there the minute he arrived! Then-his spirits sank. He dropped Into a seat and stared blankly ahead. He re-read the letter and tore it into bits. He did not answer it.

Hopefully Eunice waited to hear from him. The postman's ring made her heart beat near to smothering her. Then Stella's look of pitying understanding stabbed her as though needles had been driven into her heart.

Several days had elapsed and then the morning paper published the fol-

"Dr. Vincent Carter, brilliant young surgeon of Omaha, assists the famous French surgeon, Dr. Henri La Chapelle, in operating on Miss Frances Bowen, the young heiress of the Bowen millions. Miss Bowen had suffered from hip disease ever since babyhood and the great surgeon came to Chicago expressly to perform this most delicate operation. Doctor Carter had studied with Doctor La Chapelle six years ago in Paris and had assisted him in operations of a similar nature. Doctor La Chapelle had asked to have the young surgeon assist him, but the Bowens did not know where to find him.

"The strange part of the story is that Miss Evelyn Saxton, Mrs. Bowen's sister, who is the fiancee of James Rogers, famous football star, and who had been up in the mountains, was on her way to Chicago. Spending a few hours in the Faxon hotel while waiting for her train, she found Doctor Carter, whom she had met a number of times at some of the hops of the University of Chicago. She told him of the family's search for him. Doctor Carter immediately telegraphed Doctor La Chapelle and left the next day.

"The operation has proved successful, and Doctor La Chapelle has been persuaded to perform his wonderful operation in several of the large cities of the United States. Doctor Carter will be his assistant."

The sisters looked dazedly at each

"Oh, Eunice, I'm so sorry. It's all my fault. I see now that I was jealous. I had been comparing Rufus with the doctor, and I said a lot of bitter things-catty things. Write and explain, dear."

"It's too late. You see, he is big and I am small-pitifully small."

Stella, all remorse, went out to a public telephone and got the doctor on the wire. She explained and took all the blame.

"I'll telephone Eunice at once," he When Stella arrived home she found

Eunice at the telephone. "Can you forgive me?" asked Eunice of her delighted flance. "Yes, dear, yes. It's all forgotten, too. We can be married right away, and you can go with me on my trip with Doctor La Chapelle."

The money damage by rats here is no less than in England, and it is the part of plain common sense to make well-considered warfare upon the lives of these wholly destructive creatures, which, as disease carriers, are clearly forfeit to human comfort and convenience, and whose hides have a commercial value. SCHOOL DAYS

"CABAL"

In PRACTICALLY every work on etymology and in a number of dictionaries which are supposed to give expert information upon the history of the language one will find that the word "cabal," meaning a number of persons secretly united for some private purpose, is made up from the initials of the British ministry consisting of Sir Thomas Clifford, Lord Ashley, the Duke of Buckingham, Lord Arlington and the Duke of Lauer-

The history of the time indicates very clearly that these five men certainly formed what has come to be known as a "cabal" but, unfortunately for the truth of the story that it was on account of their initials that the word was born, at least two dates in connection with the word do not bear out this contention. In the first place, this ministry was not formed until 1670 and, on December 21, 1667, three years before, Pepys wrote in his diary: "The Archbishop of Canterbury is called no more to the Cabal, nor, by the way, Sir W. Coventry, which I am sorry for, the Cabal at present being-the King and Duke of Buckingham, and Lord Keeper, the Duke of Albemarle, and

Even if Pepys coined the word, which is doubtful because of the sure manner in which he uses it, it antedates by nearly three full years the formation of the C-A-B-A-L ministry. The name appears to have been first given as a soubriquet to the English ministry after the restoration and was probably a British form of the Hebrew Cab-

CARRIAGE AND MOTIONS OF THE HANDS

PROBABLY everyone has seen the person who carries the left hand and forearm across the front of the body, with the hand drooping at the wrist, while the right forearm is carried vertically and doubled back on the biceps. The right hand droops at the wrist and frequently carries some trifle, such as a pair of eyeglasses, whirled or twirled gently as the person walks. This is the "Miss Nancy" type, with an excess of femininity, in either the male or female. Such a person may be efficient if fitted in the proper sphere, but the world of great deeds is probably not for him or her.

The restless person, uncertain in purpose, with emotions that vary rapidly, seems to find no resting place for his or her hands. They are always in motion, fingering the watch chain, or a button, or something else. "These people are very often very strong characters, but need directing," says one well-known writer on the hand. IT IS easy enough to make some elaborate dish for an occasion, but it takes real brain work to keep up a daily menu without monotony.

Liver is one of our good foods, but is served so few ways. Here are a few changes which will be enjoyed by those who like liver:

Stuffed Liver.

Slice liver and parboil it in boiling water to cover. Soak six slices of bread in hot water for twenty minutes, then squeeze dry. Mix the soaked bread with one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoonfuls of sage, two teaspoonfuls of bacon fat and a few dashes of cayenne. Place a spoonful of the stuffing on each slice, roll and fasten with toothpicks for skewers. Place the rolls in a buttered baking dish, add a cupful of boiling water and a spoonful of bacon fat. Baste occasionally and bake forty-five minutes.

Liver oHt Pot.

Cut liver into slices one-half-inch thick, soak in cold water for ten minutes, then dry thoroughly; dredge with seasoned flour. Lay in a buttered saucepan, cover with thin slices of bacon and sprinkle with chopped onion and a tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Cook at the simmering point well covered for one and one-half hours. Serve garnished with rolls of fried

ELIJAH AND THE STRUGGLE WITH BAAL

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 18:17-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—"No man can serve two masters * * Ye cannot serve God and mammon."—Matt. 6:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Hears Elijah's Prayer.
JUNIOR TOPIC-Elijah on Mt. Car-

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-C—The Conflict between Jezebel and YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—How Elijah Won the Victory.

I. Elijah's Message to Ahab (vv.

When Jezebel became the wife of King Ahab, she waged a savage warfare against God's prophets, killing all she could find, thus seeking to abolish the true religion and set up idolatry instead. Elijah suddenly appeared, announcing the suspension of moisture (I Kings 17:1) as a judgment upon the people for their idolatry. He sounded three striking notes in his message:

(1) "As the Lord God of Israel liveth"-He knew that he represented the living God, therefore did not fear. (2) "Before whom I stand"-Because Elijah stood before God, he could stand before Ahab. (3) "There shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word."

-Drought was the punishment for idolatry (Deut. 11:16, 17). II. A Challenge to Baal Worship (I Kings 18:17-46)

As soon as Elijah had delivered his message concerning the drought, he retired from the king's sight, while the penalty of the king's sins should be visited upon the land.

1. Elijah Shows Himself to Ahab

(1) Ahab's question (v. 17). His aim in this question was no doubt to intimidate Elijah, to awe him into submission. The devil goes about as a roaring lion (I Pet. 5:8).

(2) Elijah's answer (v. 18). He denied the charge and boldly declared that the calamity which had befallen the nation was caused by the idolatry of Ahab and his family.

2. The Bold Challenge (vv. 19-24). (1) The people assemble (vv. 19, 20). At the urgent request of Elijah the king convened the people. (2) The ringing call to decision (vv.

a. The question asked (v. 21). Many of the people had not wholly forsaken

God. They attempted to worship both God and Baal. b. The silence of the people (v. 21). This may have been because of fear of the king, or ignorance, for many were of the opinion that to be religious was

The method of decision (vv. 22-24). Two sacrifices were to be provided, one to be offered to Baal, the other to God. The one who answered by fire was to be the God. 3. The Test Applied (vv. 25-39). (1) Offering by the prophets of Baal (vv. 25-29). Elijah gave the prophets of Baal the first opportunity to prove to the people as to whether Baal was a real god. (2) The offering by Elijah (vv. 30-a. People invited near (v. 30). There are no secrets in God's worship.

b. The altar repaired (vv. 30-32). Elijah took twelve stones representing the united nation.

c. The offering on the altar (vv. 33-35). After the bullock was in place he had four barrels of water three times emptied upon the sacrifice and the wood so as to fill the trench about the altar.

d. Elijah's prayer (vv. 36, 37). This was a model prayer. (a) It was based upon covenants

(v. 36). All real prayer rests upon covenant relationships.

(b) Its object was God's exaltation (v. 36). Elijah was jealous for God's glory, but the only thing that he asked for himself was to be known as God's servant.

(c) It was for the salvation of the people (v. 37). His heart yearned after Israel. He wanted them to come to know God.

e. The result (vv. 38, 39). (a) The fire of the Lord fell and consumed, not only the sacrifice, but the wood, stones and dust, even licking up the water in the trenches.

(b) The people fell on their faces and confessed that the Lord was the

4. The Execution of Baal's Prophets (v. 40). Israel's government was a theocracy. God was their King. Idolatry was treason against the King.

April 13 My Decisions and What They Have Meant to Me Luke 15:18; 10:42

Two decisions are recorded in the two Scripture references suggested for this topic. In both cases the con-text should be studied. The first decision is that of the prodigal which finds expression in the words, "I will arise and go to my father." This cry can be applied to the backslider or to those who, like the people referred to in 1 Thessalonians 1.9, have "turned to God" from the things that formerly occupied their hearts.

The necessity for a decision like this is seen in such a Scripture as Isaiah 53:6—"All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way." This is the very essence of sin. It implies a false independence. It is the assertion of independence. It is the assertion of self to the exclusion of God, and may e regarded as idolatry of the worst kind. Out of this evil root of sin comes the whole catalogue of sins. Decision to turn to God from all this false independence is necessary and imperative. The greatest force impelling us to turn to God is the ap-peal of the Cross. "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself," bridging the distance that sin had created and overcoming the estrangenent of the natural heart. In view of that Cross and because of its pow-er, thousands have said as did the prodigal, "I will arise and go."

The other necessary and wise decision concerns Mary of Bethany who chose to sit at Jesus' feet and hear His word. For this decision she is commended by the Lord as having "chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her."

The first decision is between the good and the bad; the second is between the good and the best. Similar issues confront us continually and similar decisions ought to be made constantly. Our choices reveal what we are and determine what we are to be. The decision of the prodigal intimately gave him the place and privileges of a son in the father's house, with the accompanying blessings of fellowship, service, and a part in the father's estate. "If children, then heirs: heirs of God and joint heirs with Jesus Christ."

"I guess I was the most miserable woman in the state when I started taking Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup," said Mrs. L. B. Hodges, Route 1, Box 98, Altavista, Va.

"Ten years ago I was a nervous the only thing necessary, irrespective wreck. I could hardly sleep and was so weak and rundown I could hardly put one foot before the other and simply dragged myself around more dead than alive. I ached all over. My arms and feet would swell and seemed to get worse.

Dutch Historian Explains Why He Has Undertaken the Task-Makes Appeal to the Masses.

-Advertisement

Fancy the nerve a man must have to suggest that our grand old Bible should be rewritten.

And yet Dr. Hedrick Willem van Loon, famous Dutch United States historian, has undertaken this task, very seriously and reverently indeed.

He explains: "I firmly believe that 90 per cent of the world's Christian population never look at the Bible. After all, it contains nearly two million words, and much of it is written in a language which only the educated man can understand.

"My book, which I have called 'The Story of the Bible,' only contains 120,-000 words, and the whole of it is written in the simplest language. "In the States, and probably the whole world over, there are a large number of the working classes who want to learn. But until they find something that they can easily understand they are at a loss where to

"It is true that my way of retelling the old story may rob it of some of its charm, but I have tried to be reverent throughout, while all the time speaking in a language that is easily understandable.

"This work has taken me nearly two years and I have spent much labor and thought on it. I feel confident that the result will not only appeal to the masses, but it may induce them to study the Bible for themselves."-Ex-

Managed With Wisdom

At the present time the national forests are harvesting about 2 per cent of the lumber used in this country. Yet they are producing roughly 10 per cent of the annual effective timber growth. This is merely another way of saying that on the national forests timber is being grown more rapidly than it is being harvested, while in practically all other forest areas it is being cut very much faster than it is being produced, says Frank A. Waugh in the North American Review.

That portion of the forest timber which is being harvested is sold on the stump to contractors, who cut it, under careful regulations, and manufacture it into lumber and other commodities. Sales are made to the highest bidders and the money received is deposited in the United States treasury. These sales now produce a revenue of about $2,000,000 a year.

This does not seem a very large amount when compared with the enormous sums paid for lumber by ultimate consumers, but in this field more than in most others the cost of manufacture, transportation and selling are many times as great as the initial cost of production, and that even though it may take one hundred years to grow a tree and only a day to cut it down. For the sake, therefore, of shifting this comparison to more familiar grounds, we may say that the present timber cut of the national forests averages about 800,000,000 board feet, worth about $20,000,000 in its final markets.

Great Oil Shale Bed Is Found in England

What is claimed to be one of the greatest and richest oil-bearing shale beds ever discovered has been found in West Somerset, according to the Evening Star, says a London dispatch to the New York Times.

The bed, covering a large area, is said to have been a mining surface of 600 to 700 feet, which the experts here say is unprecedented. The beds, it is declared, contain the highest qualities of oils, compared only with the hitherto an unparalleled example of oil-shale wealth.

The newspaper quotes Larrette Larkin, an English engineer, as reporting that it was safe to base the commercial production of the beds at 9,-000,000,000 tons of oil shale, with an oil content of more than 1,000,000,000 tons, valued at £3,000,000,000. He estimated the shale could be quarried for three shillings per ton.

It also quotes Dr. W. Forbes Leslie, geologist, as saying the beds were a source of power from which we could draw for our industries without spending money on foreign oil. The magnitude of this discovery means that we can supply all our needs for cheap power, light and heat for centuries." He claims the beds will make England independent of foreign supplies in time of war.

Blast Was Silent One

The street was crowded with traffic: the sidewalks filled with children returning from school; and a contracting mpany was busy digging foundation for a new apartment house, says the New York Sun and Globe. Suddenly the drills ceased their noisy work. Laborers and diggers dispersed at a shouted command. Six with red flags shooed away pedestrians, stopped impatient traffic with high pitched commands and then took up posts of warning. A blast was about to be set off.

Silence settled over the place and interest and excitement ran high. It was going to be a big blast. The operatorhe whose duty is was to fire the charge -approached the detonator and waited the signal of the foreman. It camea sharp command in Italian. The operator depressed the detonator. Every one waited, some with fingers to their ears. But nothing happened. Again he tried. There was no explosion. A titter among the crowd of watchers was followed by shouts of laughter as examination of the wires leading from the detonator to the charge of dynamite showed they had not been at-

Systematic Co-operation.

The reason why we often fail to get the best possible results in many lines of work, is because we fail to work co-operatively. That which we call "system"—the one thing absolutely essential to all success-requires cooperation; and co-operation is no more nor less than a lot of people pooling issues and all working together along the same lines. It is not enough for a lot of people to agree to the desirability of a certain thing, but these same people must adopt a lot of methods and regulations, and all use them, as nearly exactly allike as possible. If a system is faulty, do not throw it away, nor use it in part, but amend it. Keep on perfecting a system, and using it-
