NEW RULES ON INTOXICANTS

Regulation No. 60, that Becomes Effective on May 1.

The Baltimore American, of Thursday, contained the following on Regulations No. 60, just issued;

"Farmers have no advantage over other folks in the manufacture of non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices under new regulations of the Federal prohibition unit, effective May 1, copies of which were widely distributed yesterday by Edmund Budnitz, prohibition director for Ma-

"Regulation 60," as the 255-page volume is called, is a complete revision of rules relating to alcoholic liquors. On the point about which Representative John Phillip Hill has long maintained an active controversy with the prohibition unit, the text

"Any person, for use exclusively in his home, may manufacture cider and fruit juices which are non-intoxicating without obtaining a permit. Fruit juices may not lawfully be used for beverage purposes after becoming in-

In another place the word "intoxicating" is said to be defined by the national prohibition act—that is, anything is intoxicating that contains more than one-half of 1 percent by volume of alcohol. The person who wishes to make cider or fruit juice under this rule may have the fruit pressed out by anyone equipped with the propes machinery, but must take the product home immediately.

If it goes sour he may sell it to a licensed manufacturer of vinegar. But if it is intended for other than immediate beverage use, or for other than home use, fresh cider and fruit juices must be immediately sterilized and sealed or otherwise preserved.

Dried fruits, dandelions and rhubarb may not be lawfully used for the production of "non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices."

The advertisement and sale of all apparatus and materials for the manufacture of liquor for use in the home or elsewhere for beverage purposes are forbidden.

Beer, ale and porter, without regard to alcoholic content, may not be manufactured in the home or elsewhere except under severe conditions which only manufacture on a commercial scale can meet.

The sale of malt extract with hops and clarifier to other than permit-tees is not permissible, notwithstand-ing the fact that the vendor may furnish the purchaser of such materials with recipes containing a warning or caution not to do certain things as thereby the product will develop a high alcoholic content."

Taneytown Baseball, this Year.

Nobody seems to be talking much about local baseball this year, perhaps due to the fact that County League last year, was a too expensive proposition to be kept up, as it was then conducted. But, this is no reason why Taneytown should not have a team again this year, constructed on less "professional" lines, more with the object in view of developing local players, and less of "winning the

Whether there is a County League, or not. Taneytown ought to be able to present a pretty fair team, possibly with the addition of two or three outside players—or even none. The only way to have local players is to develop them by playing practice. A PROCLAMATION.

By the President of the United States of America.

Whereas, it is essential to the continued comfort, welfare, and prosper-ity of the people of the United States that abundant forests, widely distributed and maintained in a condition of high productiveness, be forever wisely conserved as one of our greatest natural resources: and

Whereas, because of our constantly increasing need for wood and other forest products, together with our past failure to provide for reforestation, we are drawing upon our sup-plies of timber four tiues as fast as they are renewed through growth; and

Whereas, the most formidable agency of forest destruction and prevention of reforestation is fire and, of the fires which annually devastate vast areas, four-fifths are ascribed in origin to human agencies and virtually all may be controlled and made innocuous through prudence, care and

Therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge,President of the United States, do urge upon the Governors of the various States to designate and set apart the week of April 21-27, 1924, as Forest Protection Week, and, wherever practicable and not in conflict with State law or accepted customs, to celebrate Arbor Day within that week. I also urge all citizens, either in association or as individuals, all schools, and the press of the land to give common thought to the protection of our forests from fire, to the end that, in the future as in the past, these forests may supply us with wood, protect the purity of our streams, and otherwise serve the people of the United States. SMITH AND M'ADOO LEADING CANDIDATES

John W. Davis Claimed to be Strenger than present Leaders.

The Democratic nomination for the Presidency, at present, seems to rest between William Gibbs McAdoo and Governor Smith, of New York. Senator Underwood, of Georgia, is still in the running, but has dropped back, hardly with any apparent likelihood of getting in the front rank.

The race between the two leaders, at present, seems about equal, and political prophets are assured that the contest is going to be a hot one in the convention that meets in New York City. McAdoo will have the "oil" connection against him while the "wetness" of Gov. Smith will be his handicap; but, unless another Moses appears, it looks now as though one or the other will be the party's standard bearer. Some hold to the opinion that the fight will be so strong that one will eventually kill off the other, and that a "dark horse" will win in the end, but just now this opinion is in the back-

"John W. Davis is now definitely the leading candidate for the Democratic nomination. He is not, course, the outstanding candidate of his party that President Coolidge is of the Republicans, but he has pulled far enough in front of the crowd of aspirants for the nomination to be easily distinguishable as the leader.

Until the publication of his now famous letter refusing to sever his New York legal connections, Mr. Davis was certainly in the van of the Democratic aspirants, but more because of the disabilities of his competitors than for any positive qualities of his own. His letter, however, has thrown a strong affirmative reflection on the public screen and serves to make him the leading candidate more because of himself than because of his rivals.

The general public sizes the various candidates up something like this: Mr. McAdoo is unavailable because who are not in his camp. Senator The following boys and girls received eggs from the B. & O. Fifty suburban-type passenger lo-comotives will be built by the Penn-sylvania Railroad at its Altoona shops They will cost approximately $2,500, 000. Work on the engines, together with the building of twelve standard all-steel dining cars, was ordered started by the management. These orders bring the total value of additional equipment contracted for or being constructed in the shops of the railroad so far this year to $30,000,-000. In the first quarter of 1924 the road started erection of fifty locomotives at the Altoona shops and awarded contracts for 12,000 freight-car

The locomotives ordered are known as the "G-5s." They are of a comparatively recent design and will be utilized for heavy local and suburban train service. In full working order, with tender attached, they will weigh 413,500 pounds each.

The all-steel dining cars will be a little more than eighty-two feet long and, fully equipped, will weigh 160,000 pounds. Upon their completion system will have in operation 140 din-

AUTOMOBILE RECIPROCITY.

Now Awaits only the Signature of the President.

Automobile reciprocity between Maryland and Washington was ap-proved by Congress, on Monday, with the acceptance of a bill in which the District levies a two-cent tax on gasoline. The fight between the state and District has been of long standing, and the agreement will be generally pleasing to motorists.

The fight for passage was led by Representative Zihlman of Maryland, acting chairman of the District Committee and author of the measure. E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Automotive Vehicles of Maryland, comments that wiping out the double license will meet with general satisfaction. He says 12,000 Washington motorists last year paid $300,-000 for Maryland licenses, but that the loss of revenue will not be regretted by the 220,000 Maryland automobie drivers who now can drive at will within the District of Columbia without having to have the foreign license John N. Mackall, State Roads Commissioner, called the action the triumph of a 16-year fight.

John E. Raine, executive secretary of the Automobile Trades Association declared it is the most progressive automobile legislation for Maryland in a long time.

Latest Weather Forecast.

The necessity of obtaining the latest weather forecast cannot be too strongly emphasized. In a climate where weather changes are as rapid as in Maryland, the entire outlook may change in a few hours. Forecasts are issued by the weather bureau every 12 hours. The morning forecast, issued at about 10 A. M. Eastern tiue, is broadcast by many radio stations at noon or even before that hour. This is the forecast that appears in the afternoon edition of the newspapers. The evening forecast, issued at about 9:30 P. M., is broadcast at about 10 P. M., of the Radio is an excellent way for farmers, fruit growers, and others living in rural districts to obtain the forecast, although it may be necessary for you to bring this matter to your nearest broadcast station, requesting that the weather forecast be sent out at stated intervals.

In Maryland nearly every county agent receives the morning forecast at about 10:30 A. M., and it may be obtained from his office by telephone immediately after that hour. In some towns and cities the postmaster allso receives the morning forecast soon after 10 A. M., and sends it out by the next carrier. If, however, rural carriers leave the postoffice only in the morning before 11 o'clock this

Look Over Your Insurance.

There are two important personal questions—to you—connected with fire insurance—do you carry insurance? and, do you have as much as you ought to have? Most property owners can say "yes" to the first, but are compelled to say "no" to the last. none; but, why not go the whole way as a good business man, and carry all of the insurance you are justly en-

Many property owners are simply renewing the policies taken out ten or more years ago, and even at that time they were insured too low. How many realize that $1000., on the basis of values ten or more years ago, will not go over half as far now, to replace property loss?

No person should carry too much insurance, but all should have honest coverage. A policy of $1000., on a building that would cost $4000. to $5000 now to build—even allowing for depreciation—is merely playing

Take a business-like look over your insurance, before the lightning and storm season, and protect yourself properly. Be sure, too, that your policies cover your property as they ought, on both building and contents; and also see whether you have made any changes affecting the risk, since the insurance was taken, that needs mention on the policy. An insurance policy, with violated provisions, is no insurance at all.

Walkersville Church Dedication.

The dedication of the enlarged and beautified Lutheran Church, at Walkersville, will be held Sunday, May 11, at a morning and evening service. A fine program is being arranged pre-liminary to the dedication and including the dedication itself. It will include some of the outstanding leaders, preachers and educators in the Lutheran church.

The old original church has undergone a complete renovation. To the east side of the church there has been added a Sunday School room, 19x63 feet, a new vestry room, a deeper chancel, new organ room. An entirely new front has been added, including 50 foot tower.

JAPAN ANGRY OVER EXCLUSION ACT

War-like Talk by Newspapers in Japanese Nation.

Congress has passed an act excluding Japanese immigrants from the United States, the Senate having acted, on Monday, by a vote of 76 to 2 to abrogate the present "gentleman's agreement" to ignore present exclusion laws. Japanese Ambassador Hanihara had protested the proposed act in a sharp letter to the State Department which was virtually threat to the United States, and the answer by the Senate, is as direct a reply that Japan can not dictate to us in the matter. The Senate's action was intended as a direct rebuke to Ambassador Hanihara for the tone of his protest against American immigration "discrimination" against the Japanese. It was an unequivocal repudiation of Secretary of State Hughes, who opposed exclusion. It put up to President Coolidge an international no less important than a domestic political policy.

The position of Secretary Hughes was viewed as one of undoubted embarrassment. Not only did he, on his own intitiative, protest to Congress against the proposed exclusion amendment, but he forwarded to both Houses the extraordinary note presented to the State Department on Thursday last by Ambassador Hanihara on behalf of the Japanese Government, declaring that the adoption of the amendment would cause grave consequences."

For having transmitted that note to Congress, presumably without having registered a remonstrance against the language employed by the Japanese Ambassador, Secretary Hughes brought down upon his own head a storm of indignation from Senators. In a brief executive session preceding the public debate, Mr. Hughes came in for bitter criticism, especially at the hands of Senators Hiram Johnson, of California, who, it was reported, made frequent use of the word "supine" in characterizing Mr. Hughes' foreign policies.

The Japanese press is very indig-nant and war-like in its tone over the action of the Senate, one paper going so far as to say: "A clash between races sooner or later is inevitable. American apparently wants it now and all races opposed to the whites should rise up."

At the very least, the situation is bound to result in 'strained relations' between the two governments. Just what the President may do in the situation, remains to be seen. A veto would cost his party the Pacific Coast states; but it is not believed, by those who know the President best, this fact.

Middletown Pastor Resigns.

half years pastor of the Middletown, Frederick county, Lutheran charge, announced his resignation on Sunday, April 6th., to accept a position as Secretary-manager of the Teacher's Protective Union, at Lancaster, Pa. His resignation takes effect June 1. Rev. Cooper has been a very popular and successful pastor at Middletown.

In addition to caring for his large congregation, he is president of the Public Library Association and of the Chautauqua Association of Middle-town; president of the Frederick County Sunday School Association and has served as president of the County Ministerial Association. He is a hymn writer of note, and is author of the Brotherhood and Missionary hymns of the United Lutheran Church.

Pick Your Eggs.

The time of hatching, in the average flock, is an important factor in limiting the income from the flock. Hatching at the right time is a vital point, but other points such as feeding and general management are equally essential. It is practically impossible to list all factors bearing upon the best possible results in rearing a flock of chicks, but the following are vital to good results. Hatch eggs from hens that have been selected, and do not set eggs from poor and undesirable hens.

Select the eggs to be set, and set only the kind of eggs you wish your hens to lay. Bear in mind that "like begets like." Select well-shaped, full-sized, but not too large eggs, with sound shells. Do not keep them more than two weeks.

The first hens to go broody in the spring are often the best winter layers. It is better not to set these good eggs from the "lay when the robins lay" type of hens. Put them back to laying and incubate their eggs under other hens or in an incubator. Hatch eggs from your best birds.-Md. Extension Service.

Powerful electric locomotives operating in the Rocky and Cascade mountains pull the train up the grade of the Continental Divide. In their descent these same locomotives electrically brace the descent, and in so doing generate additional power which is returned to the line, making rp in part that which is lost in ascending. Electrification does away with dirt, smoke and noise, doubles the capacity of a line, speeds up service, saves hauling immense quantities of coal, and is advantageous in every respect.

PRIMARIES MUST BE HELD.

The Law Clearly Covers the Present Situation.

President Coolidge is the only candidate who has filed in Maryland for the Presidential nomination, and because of this, Republican primaries must be held, according to a ruling of Attorney General Robinson. The law says; "The Board of Supervisors Elections in each county of the State and of Baltimore city shall cause to be printed upon the Presidential primary election ballots in each of said counties and in each legislative district of Baltimore city, and beneath the name or group of names of any qualified candidate or candidates for the nomination of President of any of such parties and distinctly separated by appropriate lines from the name or names of such qualified candidates and in plainly legible type the words "For An Uninstructed Delegation" and to the right thereof a square for the cross-mark of the voter in the same manner and relative location as the square for the cross-mark printed to the right of the name of any candidate upon the primary elec-tion ballots as in this sub-title provided, so that such voters of the party who wish to vote for an uninstructed delegation to the national convention of their party may do so."

Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, said the ruling is no surprise. In a statement two weeks ago he said Republicans would have the choice between voting for President Coolidge, the only candidate filed, and an unin-structed delegation."

Carroll Co. Society of Baltimore.

The annual meeting of the Carroll County Society of Baltimore was held April 10. The following officers were elected: J. Hampton Baumgartner, president; Dr. Edwin B. Fenby and Mrs. P. C. Kennedy, vice-presidents; George R. Babylon, recording secretary; Miss Carrie E. Green, corresponding secretary: A. Guy Buffington, treasurer, and Philip M. Lemmon, board of governors.

Appropriate action upon the recent death of Dr. Joseph T. Hering, a former officer of the Society, was taken. Preliminary plans were made looking to an excursion to Carroll County during the summer. The tour will include stops at a number of

A collection of valuable historical records, incident to the formation of Carroll County was presented to the Society by Edwin Wilmer Shriver, formerly of Westminster.

Mr. Shriver, the originator of the rural free delivery system, explained its development. Mr. Shriver said the idea of rural free delivery occurred to him while driving along the Deer Park road, in August 1898, when re-quested to mail a letter addressed to a person whose home he would pass. He delivered the letter in person 42 minutes later although it would not have been delivered by mail until the second morning, 42 hours later.

Mr. Shriver laid his plan before Rev. A. E. Cooper, for three and a the postal authorities and was authorized to have the wagon built, contract for its hauling and start the service. He was the first mail clerk on the route, from Westminster to Warfieldsburg, Taylorsville, Denning and intermediate towns. Herr Brothers built the wagon, Harry Harbaugh received the livery contract, Horace Reese was deputy clerk and Clayton Babylon drove.

The first trip was made Easter Monday, April 3, 1898. It was a gala event in the county. The postal wagon was accompanied by high officials of the postoffice department and a party of newspaper correspondents and photographers. A banquet was held that night at the Westminster Hotel to celebrate the event. On the trip 2,700 pieces of mail, a pig and two chickens were handled on the wagon. The first money order was issued to the Postmaster General, the first letter registered was addressed to Mr. Shriver's son.

Mr. Shriver said he later worked out the plan of rural carrier service, which abolished 63 fourth-class postoffices and several star routes. Bitter opposition to establishing the service was encountered in many sections of the county. Mr. Shriver later helped to estab-

Big Percent Hunters.

No matter if it does happen pretty frequently that investors in stocks promising from 7 to 15 percent interest "get bit," there will always be a new crop of suckers coming along, just as The Mother Goose rhymes, Robinson Cruso and the Arabian Nights are new to a crop of youngsters, coming along every year. When people go open-eyed into a gamble, and are willing to take the chance, there isn't much to be said about it.

The Dollings smash-up will not stop the business. The many equally disastrous investments in oil stocks will not stop it. The four perecent paid on bank certificates, and the low rate on government and municipal bonds, is not making money fast enough; and naturally, the 7 percent proposition is attractive because it has a very plausible sound. If banks can grasp on mental conclusions, that pay 4 percent, then reinvest the money and make more, the private capitalist his relations with his fellow man of is apt to wonder why he can't do the

It is a seriously regretable fact, and one not pleasant to think of, but it is nevertheless true that a large portion of our taxes are squandered by officials high and low: that our country has lost untold wealth by the barter of privieges by those on the inside, and that, our contract system is full of the rottenest sort of graft.

As long as we must have men to let contracts and control valuable privileges, and as long as there are dishonest men ready to buy influence, there will also be men who will sell their influence and official sanction.

It has been considered, and is, perfectly legitimate, to convict dishonest government officials. It ought to be equally right for the government officials to look into the acts of their investigators. But, in the Wheeler case, an effort appears to be underway to discount the charges because they are brought by a Federal Grand Jury, and by the Department of Justice.

The Abuse of Mind.

Some men live as though they never expected to die, or as though they have no belief in future reward or punishment. True, this is a condition as old the creation, and it must mean that, after all, the improvement in the minds of men-their greater wisdom, and their wonderful advance in the sciences does not seem to have extended as far as an increased fear of eternal punishment.

Aside from questions of religious belief and interpretations of God's word; and aside from the discussion of such questions as have to do with the future after death, it would seem that there should be such an extended one's life should be a proper one, and such a character that no matter what | from hundreds of like cases; happens in the after world, it is entirely worth while, for the present, to live good lives.

A Weak Spot in the Movies.

It is a foregone conclusion among fair-minded, not to say reverent-mind- will induce you to try Rein-o-la Layed observers, that the movie-makers are consistently overshooting their mark in caricaturing the profession of the Christian minister. Granted that there may be occasional quacks in medical and educational and other circles, why tar all the representatives of the profession with the same stick? Why permit a few insincere particular instances to assume the porportions of a damaging generalization?

There is still more to it. The times are more sadly out of joint than Shakespeare ever dreamed. It is bad enough that any number of adults could get the consent of their own minds to buffoon and belittle such an institution. It is incalculably worse that children, many of whom have seldom seen the inside of a place of worship, should be given a burlesque upon which to base their first impressions. Such a condition of affairs is not only sacrilegious, it is an unforbecause of activity, in that direction givable offense against childhood here and now and a spiritual disability to be entailed upon the generations yet unborn.

A Moral Issue Involved.

Recently a suit was started by the government against the Radio Corpor-these firms were maintained a monopoly in radio matters in conflict with the Sherman anti-trust law.

Now a suit has been started against General Electric Company and Westinghouse interests on the ground that their business is in violation of Sherman anti-trust law due to their system of manufacturing and distributing electric light bulbs. A moral issue is involved in suits such as these, the ultimate effect of which cannot be estimated.

Is an inventor or manufacturer of radio apparatus or electric equipment who has spent much time and large sums of money to develop a great convenience, to be protected in his patent rights as a reward for his inventive genius and initiative in putting such a product on the market?

If a man is allowed the rewards due for his inventions in the public interest, his buisness naturally must be in the nature of a monopoly for the seventeen-year period that he is protected by his patent rights.

Take the electric light bulb as an illustration. Indisputable figures show that the perfection of this present day household necessity has given the public much more light for the The public can have exactly what it same amount of money than it could secure ten years ago or it can get the same amount of light that it had ten years ago at a saving of many millions of dollars annually in electric

The same thing can take place with radio. The patents and manufactured products of present producers, while they may be considered as a monopoy so far as patent rights go, can be made worthless over night by the discovery of some other inventor, and millions invested in present equipment would be lost.

It is not claimed in these suits that the pubic interest has been poorly old so had stolen his mother's gold served or that the consumer has been overcharged. As a matter of fact, service given by the corranies involved could not be dup cated by smaller concerns.

PACK EGGS TO SHIP IN STANDARD CASES

Eggs for shipment should be packed. in new standard thirty-dozen cases with new fillers and flats and six excelsior pads. The fillers should weigh not less than 31/2 pounds to the set. No claim for breakage will be paid by the express company for eggs packed in second-hand brown fillers. Careful grading, good fillers and good cases will pay. Most breakage is due to the use of bad fillers and poor packing. The use of excelsior pads has reduced breakage 75 per cent.

In packing the eggs first place an excelsior pad in the bottom of the case, then place a filler on this. It will be noted in the honeycomb fillers that two opposite sides of the walls surrounding the eggs are firm and the other two opposite sides are flexible. The sides of the filler that are flexible should run parallel to the sides of the case. This lessens chance for breakage on the cars, since the egg cases are piled in the cars with the sides of the cases parallel to the sides of the car. This method allows the firm part of the filler to hold eggs against the sudden jars caused by stopping and starting of the train. Place the eggs in this filler with the small ends down, imbedding themselves in the excelsior pad. On top of the first layer of eggs place a flat followed by a filler, again placing eggs small ends down. Pack the third and fourth layers the same as the second. Directly on the fourth layer place another excelsior pad, packing the fifth layer of eggs directly on this pad, in the same manner as the first layer. On this top layer place another excelsior pad. The cover should be nailed on with five threepenny large-headed nails at each end, but none in the middle. This leaves a bulge in the center of the case that absorbs shocks, yet holding the con-

Turkey Success Depends

Greatly on Free Range "Turkeys cannot be raised in brooders nor in the back yard with chick-ens," says H. B. Landsen of the University of Arkansas extension service. "Turkey hens are more successful with young turkeys than are chicken hens. Let them forage all they wish. They require some wild variety of feed which they find when at liberty.

"The dread disease known as blackhead destroys more than 60 per cent of all turkeys hatched," says Landsen. "The only preventive and remedy that has been discovered so far is ipecac. As a preventive, begin with the turkeys when they are two or three weeks old, giving a teaspoonful of powdered ipecac to each unit of ten turkeys, twice a week, until they are ten weeks old. Those visibly sick may be treated fairly successfully with five drops of tincture ipecac three times a day, but sick birds should be removed from the flock while being

Several Kinds of Feed

Good for Laying Fowls "To feed nothing but whole grain is one of the common mistakes in poultry feeding," says Prof. L. E. Card, University of Illinois. "A complete ration for laying hens must contain not only scratch feed, or whole grain, but also ground feeds, animal protein, green feed, mineral feed, and water. The omission of any one of these is certain to result in lower production than would otherwise be possible. When hens can be allowed to range, especially during the spring and summer months, they obtain a variety of feeds for themselves. During the winter, however, when there is little to be picked up, care must be taken to supply everything needed.

When the chickens sneeze, look for germs, not fleas.

Mash is all right, but "slop" should never be tolerated.

The best hens in the turkey flock should be kept as breeders. In cases of soft crop, a gill of strong vinegar in a quart of drinking water is recommended.

Almost any kind of litter is good so long as it is clean and dry; but don't let the fowls work in damp scratching material.

Select breeders that are nearest standard of perfection and have health, vigor and egg-laying capacity.

The hen has not yet been invented that can make eggs without shell material to work on. Oyster shell or broken limestone will supply the

Nose Dive Not Serious With Enough Altitude

What is known as a "nose dive" is the evolution an obsolete plane makes when out of control, when it has lost flying speed. This is not always done intentionally by the pilot, although it is a favorite stunt performance of exhibition pilots. In a nose dive a plane is falling out of control because the elevators, ailerons and rudder are in such a position with respect to the slip-stream that they are inoperative.

This condition, however, is easily overcome, provided the pilot has sufficient altitude, for with ease he can regain a renewed grip of his controls on the slip-stream and regain his normal flying position. However, with obsolete planes the pilot is often forgetful near the ground, or his controls are not as sensitive as they should be. and he unfortunately fails to recognize the fact that he is losing his vitesse. A plane stalls at the beginning of a nose dive and hits the ground before the pilot is able to recover. Most accidents, as you have probably observed, are what might be termed "100-foot accidents," and in almost every case where the pilot had an altitude of over 300 feet, he would recover before hitting the ground, perhaps lighting with only minor breakages, if any.-Maj. W. G. Schauffler, in Advertising Magazine.

Commercial Wax Obtained From Numerous Sources

The list of things for which wax is used is long and constantly increasing. In the main, commercial wax is obtained from plants, from mineral oils, such as petroleum, and from bees. But there are some other sources. Many plants have a thin film of waxy material that covers the leaves and seems to protect them from too rapid evapo-

The paraffin of commerce, so widely used, is obtained from petroleum, shale oil and lignite, says the Detroit News. Today petroleum is the chief source, although only certain kinds of oil produce marketable quantities.

In obtaining paraffin from petroleum a freezing mixture is applied, which reduces the temperature of the oil sufficiently to separate it into crystals. Ozocerite is an interesting wax, found in a solid state in beds of coal or associated bituminous deposits. It is related to paraffin and when pure is of similar color and texture.

New Use for Cigarettes

Mexicans working in a lead mine in Chihuahua have found a new use for cigarettes. The mine consists of a series of caves along the sides and bottoms of which lead and silver ore in paying quantities is found. The miners have noticed that smoke from their cigarettes is sucked through cracks in the rocks at certain points. By drilling in the wake of the smoke, they break through into another cave. This method of tracing ore has been followed through a series of caves and still the smoke passes out at the end of the last cave discovered, indicating that there are other caves ahead.

Lights to Test the Dye Of foreign origin a new machine called a fadeometer is used for testing the fastness of dyes. Violet carbon arc lights are used, 40 samples being tested at one time if necessary. Half the sample is exposed to the light, and the other half protected by a metal shade, so that after test an exact comparison can be made. Special carbon rods, impregnated with a secret chemical formula, give the light of this arc fading qualities exactly similar to daylight, although greatly intensified.

Has Odd Leap-Year Watch John J. Kingsley of Boston, a jeweler, has what is known as a leap-year watch. It contains a wheel, very tiny in proportions, that makes a complete circuit only once in four years, although it is "running" constantly. This watch also strikes the hour regularly. The cost of making it was $10,000.

"Wanted" Men Hard to Find in the Far East

Major Bailey is wanted, the notice on the boarding told me; and instantly my mind flew back to a land where boardings are heavy with notices of wanted men who are never found. Every town in the East has a lengthy list of men who are wanted for crimes. The natives affirm that no true criminal is ever brought to book, but that the police, to justify themselves, from time to time, make an innocent man pay the penalty of another's sin. The fact is, of course, that the ordinary methods of detection as we know them in the West are useless in the East. Few there can read notices, even though they be printed in the vernaculars of the populace, and so a crier parades the streets with a little drum (followed by a rabble of urchins) to tell them of the latest man who is wanted by the police.

The people come to their doors, and when the crier has passed and the taps of his drum have grown faint | they whisper among themselves. The chances are that they all know where the wanted man is hiding, but they are all resolved never to give him up.

Not all rewards in the world will make them tell the crier what they know; for the East is a land where vendettas still prevail and every native is aware that a man possesses power to strike even after he is dead. So, after the crier has passed, the criminal leaves his hiding place and moves on to the next township, toward the frontier where also he is sure of shelter and security.

Across the line he will be one of a hundred brigand bands that rove among the hills from Kashmir to Chinese Turkestan. There every criminal is beyond the arm of the law .-R. J. Minney in the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

California Utopia Has Turned Out a Failure

Dreams of another Utopia were shattered recently when the majority of stockholders of the Santa Barbara Fellowship Colony filed a petition for dissolution of their corporation in the Superior court in Santa Barbara.

The colony was organized June 9, 1921, as a nonprofit corporation to purchase homes and the necessities of life on a co-operative basis.

Socialists and other "fadists," to-gether with a number of more conservative citizens, purchased land with the intent of building a colony "conceding freedom of opinion" with indorsing any "religious, metaphysical or political doctrine," but "to encourage the spirit of good will and mutual service at all times," says the Los Angeles Times.

The petitioners give the following reasons for dissolution:

"The objects for which said corporation was organized have not been ful-

"There appears to be no possibility of accomplishing the ideals and purposes of incorporation.

Machines Aid Surgery

At the recent convention of the American College of Surgeons at Chicago, Dr. Fred H. Albee of New York, an authority on reconstructional surgery, in telling about machine-driven surgical instruments, said:

"One of the best points about automatic machine-driven surgical tools is that they reduce the shock of operation, because of the speed. This may be exemplified by the fact that a man when shot with a steel-jacketed, swiftly moving bullet, often does not realize he is shot until the blood begins to flow. But when a man is shot with a slowly moving, soft-nosed bullet, he is knocked down, so violent is the

"The same thing applies in operations when mallet and chisel are used. There the shock is vastly greater than when the cutting instruments work swiftly and surely, cutting the bones to a true size. Holes are cut to the right size and dowels of living bone are made to fit exactly."

Mars Coming Close

The most important astronomical event scheduled for 1924 is the near opposition of Mars next August. Every fifteen or seventeen years the opposition of Mars occurs when the planet is not far from perihelion, or the point in its orbit nearest the sun. The planet is then about 26,000,000 miles nearer to the earth than it is at its most distant opposition, which occurs when it is near aphelion, or the point farthest from the sun. The last close opposition of Mars occurred in September, 1909, when Mars came within 36,-180,000 miles of the earth. On August 22 of this year, a few hours before it comes into opposition with the sun, Mars will be at a distance of 34,630,-000 miles from the earth, which is very nearly, if not quite, as close as it can ever come to the earth, and about one and a half million miles nearer than it was fifteen years ago.

Planes to Spot Fish

The fishing banks off the Japanese prefectures of Kogoshima, Kumamoto and Kyushu are to be exploited by the use of airplanes. The high view will make it possible to spot schools of fish not otherwise visible and by reporting the finds by wireless a new era is likely to break in the industry.

HARD TO TELL

Mrs. Evans, the vicar's wife, was interested in the well-being of those under her husband's care. She knew evvery family in the village and most of their illnesses as well, which is saying a good deal.

One morning she met Mrs. Fogarty in the main street.

"Well, and how is your husband getting on now?" asked Mrs. Evans, with a kindly smile at the old woman.

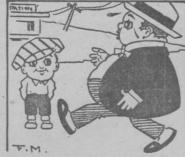

"Well, replied Mrs. Fogarty, shaking her head, "sometimes he's better and sometimes he's worse, but from the way he growls and takes on when he's better Oi think he's better when

Smoking Introduced in America by the Chinese

The Indian long has enjoyed the reputation of having invented the pipe and bequeathed to white men the joys of tobacco. Recent discoveries in the West indicate, however, that the Indian in turn may have inherited the smoking habit from a much earlier period, and that smoking was introduced into America by the Chinese at some remote time. It is certain that the East Indians have been smoking for some two thousand years.

Long before tobacco was discovered smoking had become a fine art. Babylon doubtless had many smokers who were as particular about their pipes and brands as any one today. They smoked different woods and herbs and paid special attention to blending them to get the desired flavor. A piece of wood was burned to a charcoal, and smoked in an ornamented pipe. When the charcoal was red hot a powder was dropped on it and the resulting smoke was inhaled. Throughout Central Asia in remote times smokers were common and were exacting about the "tobacco," or whatever it was they smoked. They used the gum from trees, bark and many aromatic herbs and smoked various kinds of flowers.

Soldiers have been smokers from remote antiquity. The Russian military camps still yield pipes. The ruins of Roman cities, notably Pompeii, show that smoking must have been common. Many of the pipe designs were most elaborate.-New York Times.

Yankee Genius Floods World With Everything

I make bold to believe that in the United States today at the close of this first quarter of this Twentieth century there can be seen an ingenuity in plot-making and a fertility in devising situations recalling that which was to be observed in France in the days of Scribe and Dennery and Sardou and in Spain in the days of Lope de Vega and Calderon, two periods of dramaturgic dexterity and of abundant productivity. The American faculty of invention, which has filled the world with Yankee contrivances, seems to have been directed suddenly to the construction of plays, says Brander Matthews in Scribner's. I am aware that to say this is to lay myself open to the retort that our plays are as machine-made as our Yankee contrivances, and even that we are engaged in quantity production rather than quality production. If thus cornered I should have to confess that there may be more than a little truth in the charge; but I should proffer as my rejoinder the statement that not a few of the American plays of this century are as interesting in the library as they are in the theater.

Declares Ants Are Topers

Ants consume more alcohol in proportion to their body weight than does the most accomplished "old soak," asserts Prof. Paul Lindner, chief of the Fermenting Industry institute in Berlin, Germany. The industrious insects manufacture their own home-brew in their digestive canal by the action of yeasts on the milky juices that they extract from aphids, or plant lice, which they keep for that purpose.

Other insects have similar homemade home-brew outfits that they use to capacity, Doctor Lindner stated. Wasps are accomplished bootleggers .-Popular Science Monthly,

Have You This Habit? By Margaret Morison

MISS STAR

"HAT a charming person Miss Star is, and what interesting things she has done!" one of her guests said to Mrs. George the day after her dinner party.

"Miss Star told me all about knowing this explorer who's just come back from Greenland, and described some of the things he told her. I've never enjoyed a dinner more.'

Mrs. George of course repeated this conversation to Miss Star on their next meeting. Miss Star looked confused. "Oh, ah, yes," she said vaguely, "I went to the illustrated lecture the other night."

Then Mrs. George forgot her impression of discrepancy. It was a month before she saw Miss Star again. Miss Star was drooping about, decoratively watching a tennis tournament. Mrs. George asked why she wasn't playing, and Miss Star replied, "I don't wish to alarm my friends; but the doctor as good as told me this morning that I could never play again. Heart," she whispered mysteriously. "I've got to be very careful for a long while!"

Mrs. George was really concerned. She spent the afternoon making herself useful and delightful to poor Miss Star, who was so good-looking. She was surprised, therefore, the following day to find Miss Star out on the courts as usual.

"Oh, I guess the doctor was mistaken," was Miss Star's somewhat unconvincing explanation.

A month later Miss Star was asked to come informally to family supper with the Georges. The evening passed pleasantly and quietly. Not long afterward an acquaintance asked Mrs. George about her banquet for a certain feted foreigner-Miss Star, who had been present, had described the occasion to the acquaintance as very brilliant. And Miss Star's subsequent explanation to Mrs. George that the acquaintance must have misunderstood somehow didn't hold water.

After that, when Miss Star talked about her admirers and her engagements and her adventures, Mrs. George deducted a large percentage, and then accepted the remainder tentatively. So she got on with a good deal of amusement and no disillusionments.

Then one day Miss Star told her that she was going away to live, that she was leaving in a week, and that probably they would not see her again. No one believed the news, Mrs. George least of all. She felt a good deal of attachment for Miss Star, and was glad that she did not have to accept this announcement for fact. Having forgotten the incident she stopped one day to call. Miss Star's house was empty. Her habit of so dramatizing every situation that people discounted everything she said, had left her farewell performance without an au-

MR. COON'S TRICK

WHEN Mr. Coon came to the woods to live, none of the woods dwellers had ever met any of his family, so, of course, they knew nothing about the curious habit the Raccoon has of washing all meat before eat-

One day as Reddy Fox was trotting through the woods he spied Mr. Coon with a basket on his arm going toward the river that runs through the woods.

He did not see Reddy, and as Reddy dearly loves to watch when he is not seen, he quickly hid himself behind some bushes to see what Mr. Coon was going to do, and, to his astonishment, he saw him take from the basket some meat and, holding it in his forepaws, souse it about in the water and then eat it.

"That is the funniest thing I ever saw," thought Reddy Fox. "I must tell all the woods folk about this, and we will all come down and watch

Badger was prevailed upon to break his habit of staying at home in the daytime, and all of them followed Reddy Fox down by the river and hid behind the bushes near by.

Mr. Coon, of course, knew they were all there and he did not hurry a bit. After he removed the cover he reached slowly into the basket, looking across the river for a minute, and then when he felt sure they were all stretching their necks and watching, he suddenly tipped the basket.

But instead of the pieces of meat Reddy Fox had told them he had in the basket, Mr. Coon rolled into the river a rock that struck the bottom with such force that the muddy water splashed all around and covered the watchers from head to toes.

Mr. Coon looked very innocent as he picked up the cover and placed it on the basket and then walked away. He could hear the woods folks scrambling about trying to rub the mud from their coats, and he had hard work to wait until he was out of sound and

TABLE ETIQUETTE

Always act in such a way as to secure the love of your neighbor.—Pliny the Elder.

E ATING at a boarding-house table can be so gloomy and unpleasant that it makes of eating three meals a day a very irksome necessity. Or it may be a real pleasure so that we look forward to meal time with anticipatory pleasure. And the difference doesn't entirely depend on the way the food is cooked in the kitchen or served in the dining room. Something depends on the manners of those who assemble in the same dining room, perhaps around a single long table. When you eat at a boarding-house table the possession of good table manners becomes not something that you acquire for your own satisfaction, but almost a social necessity. If you dine in a restaurant you can usually sit alone and endure your bad table manners alone, and at home-well, it is bad enough to inflict them on your family. But when it comes to making a whole tableful of other people witness your lack of good breeding, then you ought truly to be banished from

But good table manners are the same everywhere. There are some little points of etiquette that arise only at the boarding-house table. If you are a stranger at the table it is usual for some one to introduce you to the others at the table, but if there is no one to do this then you may and should regard the fact that you are eating with the others sufficient introduction at least for conversational purposes. You need not, of course, indulge very freely in conversation with strangers at table, but you can at least say enough to save the situation from becoming awkward. Women usually have the privilege of opening a conversation and older persons speak first to younger persons. Thus if a young man and woman chanced to meet at a boarding-house table and there was no introduction, it would be the privilege of the young woman to speak the first words, although if her table associate were an older woman she should wait for her.

He Had a Knack.

Mending the Broken Heart

By HARRIET BRUNKHURST $

Lucille was puzzled, not to say worried. Her heart was broken, of course. That was why she was in New York, studying violin.

Now every one knows that to become a great musician one's heart must be broken. It works out very nicely, too, because if one's heart isn't broken generally one doesn't care about a musician's career. But no one has explained what happens if one's heart doesn't stay broken. And Lucille was aware that her own heart was displaying distinctly robust symptoms.

"Just the same," Lucille thought resentfully, "it serves Merton right if I do forget him. He might try to see me. He could write. And he needn't have gone in such a huff even if daddy was unreasonable."

Lucille had thought she could never forgive her father, either, when he had emphatically refused his consent to her marriage, or even to an engage-

"I won't have it!" he had stormed. "A man has no right to marry or think of marrying until he is in a position to support a wife. I won't hear a word of it!"

Merton didn't stay to proffer more words. He left town next day, and he obeyed the parental injunction to remain unheard.

Lucille thought then that she could never forgive her father. But when he came around so handsomely about her studying the violin, let her go to New York, rented attractive rooms for her in a better class boarding house, arranged for her lessons with a thoroughly investigated instructorwhy, patently, it wasn't easy to feel very hard toward dad.

Lucille liked New York, with its lights, its music, its crowds and its shops; she made friends easily; she really possessed talent, and was willing to work, so that her lessons were a pleasure. she had a generous allowance, pretty clothes, youth and good looks. It wasn't strange that her heart began to perk up a little in spite of its owner's stern resolution.

She had her most engaging snapshot of Harry copied and enlarged and most beautifully framed in silver for her dressing table—but satisfactory though it was in appearance, it was just one more pleasant thing in

There came a gorgeous spring morning during Lucille's second year in New York when she walked down Fifth avenue and admitted that her heart was completely mended.

Regretfully Lucille turned westward at Forty-second street and took her way to the Sixth avenue elevated station for there were two hours of study yet remaining on her day's program. She took a cross seat beside an open window, looked out over the platform and found herself staring straight into Merton Leslie's eyes.

And for a heart completely mended Lucille's acted most singularly. It's owner sprang hastily to her feet, but the train started at the same instant. Lucille was conscious of just one thing -she must let Merton know where she lived. There was no time to get a card from her case and Lucille did the only thing that occurred to her-flung her gold handbag through the open window and, with a sigh of relief, saw Merton catch it.

She got off at the next station on the chance that Merton might take the next train with the idea of overtaking her, but no Merton alighted from the next train nor from the one following.

"He isn't familiar with New York," she reasoned. "Of course it wouldn't occur to him to try to overtake me that way. He might wait there on the Forty-second street platform thinking that I would return," she reflected.

Forgotten her father's strictures against Merton, forgotten her own injured indictment of her too-easily discouraged lover. Nor did it occur to her that Merton was in New York for any reason except to find her. Had she not seen him, met his eyes?

Lucille descended the stairs of the elevated station, crossed Sixth avenue and climbed to the downtown platform, boarded her train and was soon again crossing the street to reach the platform upon which she had last seen

Merton. But there was no Merton on the platform. Lucille checked the sinking of her heart. It was all right. Naturally he would think she had gone straight home. Her address was in the bag, and he would knew that it was to give him the address that she had thrown the bag to him.

"He would never dream of my re-turning," she suddenly realized. "My purse was in the bag and he wouldn't know that I carry change in my pocket-such a masculine habit. Well, at least he'll wait at the house until I arrive."

But the ticket chopper accosted her as she passed him.

"You are the young lady that had the gold bag pinched, aren't you?" he asked. "Well, the thief didn't get away. Happened to be a policeman right behind him and seen him grab the bag out of your hand. You'll find it all safe over to the police station,

"Police station!" gasped Lucille in dismay and fled down the stairs, her heart pounding with appropriate speed. She had to stop until the traffic policeman was able to direct her to do we? We know you."

New York, but police stations were not of her New York. She secured the direction, hailed a taxicab-not because of the distance, but because she felt that she wouldn't be quite so alone in arriving at that awesome place to which her impulsive action had consigned Merton.

"You'll wait," she directed as she left the cab, then hesitated. "Would you mind coming in with me? Or shall I get you arrested for leaving your cab here?"

"I'll take a chance, miss," said the chauffeur.

But Lucille found the ordeal not so trying as she had fancied. Even a police station has its sensibilities and remains not unmoved at the apparition of a charming young lady. She did not require a lawyer, as she had feared, nor was it necessary to secure identification for the officer who had made the arrest had seen her board the train and had noticed her bag. And Merton was not in a cell. The twenty minutes which had elapsed since Lucille had flung her bag had not sufficed to gain attention for Merton. So it was all utterly simple, and Merton presently emerged with Lucille from the police station and entered the waiting taxicab.

Lucille rather regretted her impress ment of the chauffeur into her service. It would have been less embarrassing with a driver less well informed. But she speedily forgot him. "When are we going to get married, Lucille?" Merton came to the point without delay.

· I wouldn't marry any one that almost got me into jail," shuddered Lucille. "Can you ever forgive me?" "Not if you won't hurry up and answer me," retorted Merton. 'Well, I suppose dad will be furious, but I owe you some amends. Any time, Merton, and I'll make dad come around peaceably, too.' "Oh, that's all right," said Merton cheerfully. "I'm a great little old dadtamer. In fact, I brought him and your mother to town with me. They're going to see that we do it with a proper minister instead of one of those combination four-dollar affairs down at City Hall." "Dad and mother here!" cried Lu-

"Sure! You ought to see how proud he is of my job. Say, Lucille," softly, "have you missed me?"

"I've been simply broken-hearted." declared Lucille.

OLD SHOES PUT TO GOOD USE

Value of Foot Coverings by No Means Ended When Wearers Have Discarded Them.

Collecting old shoes for a living is hardly the choice for anyone out to become rich quickly, observes a London Answers writer.

Judging by the number of people engaged in this business, however, there must be more than a bare subsistence in it and many find it if not a genteel calling, at least a lucrative one.

When collected these old cast-offs find their way to the wallpaper manufacturer, who allows from 10 cents to a quarter per pair. Calfskin shoes fetch the best prices, while cowhide footwear is not accepted at any price.

These old shoes are first soaked in water to get rid of the dirt. The nails and thread are removed and the leather ground into fine pulp. It is then pressed out into molds of various patterns and finds its way into the market as "embossed leather."

Well-to-do people think they are going back to medieval times when they have the walls of their libraries and dining rooms covered with this material. It may be just as well that they remain in blissful ignorance that the boots and shoes which their neighbors have thrown away now adorn their walls and hang on the screens which protect their eyes from the fire.

Carriage body builders, as well as bookbinders also use large quantities of this pulped leather. It is made into carriage coverings, while the cheapest grades of modern books are bound with leather thus treated.

There is an unlimited demand for the material, as it serves many purposes where a certain amount of durability is required.

The Robins' Job.

It was a pretty bright February day with everything to indicate an early spring.

"The robins soon will be singing again," a man remarked to the druggist who had waited on him. "They sang in Indianapolis in February last

"Well, it won't be long, that's sure," the druggist acquiesced.

"You're right, they'll be singing," a five-year-old boy said sagely. He was the druggist's son. "They won't do anything else but sing. They won't work for a livin' like the rest of us have to,"

What Did Grandma Say?

When Dorothy was five years old, she felt that she had reached that stage in life when every action taken by her mother called for comment or approbation. She had watched her mother pay the washerwoman every Tuesday for a long time, and it perplexed her that her mother permitted grandma to work in the kitchen, making pies and dressings, without recompense, although she worked harder than the washerwoman.

So it happened that on Tuesday last, when mother had paid the woman for the washing and she had left, Doro-

IMPORTANT FACTORS IN CARE OF CHICKS

The care of the baby chick is of greatest importance during the early part of the chick's life. Careless handling often results in loss of chicks and stunted growth, points out D. H. Hall, extension poultry specialist at Clemson college, who adds the following suggestions.

In caring for the baby chicks the first thing that should be done is to see that they have a good place to sleep at night. The coops or the house where the baby chicks sleep should be kept clean, dry, and sanitary, should be free from lice and mites, and should afford protection from cats and nocturnal vermin, such as rats which prey upon chicks.

The mother of the baby chicks should be confined in a coop or house, and the baby chicks should be allowed free range. If the mother is confined, the baby chicks will range around the mother, but will remain within a limited area of her. In case of rain or hawks, the mother can call the baby chicks to her and protect them in the coop. When the mother is allowed free range, the weaker baby chicks will be lost or become so weak that they will die on the range. The mother will take the baby chicks out through damp grass and early morning dew, thereby chilling them and weakening their bodies down to where disease may easily overcome them. The baby chicks should be confined in early morning, while the mother hen should be confined at all times, tf best results are to be obtained from the care of the baby chick, and the house should be kept dry and clean.

Proper Amount of Feed

for Flock of Chickens As to how much to feed, a question frequently asked, we can do no better than refer to the advice offered by the United States Department of Agriculture; "The feeder must use his own judgment in deciding how much grain to give the hens, as the amount of feed which they will eat varies with the different pens and at different seasons of the year. They will eat more feed in the spring while laying heavily than in the summer and fall when laying fewer eggs. A fair general estimate is to feed about one quart of scratch grains and an equal weight of mash (about 11/2 quarts) daily to 13 hens of the general purpose breeds, such as the Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds or Wyandottes, or to 16 hens of the smaller or egg breeds. This would be about 71/2 pounds of scratch grains and mash daily to 100 Leghorns and about 91/2 pounds each to general purpose fowls. If hens have free range or large runs containing green food a general purpose hen will eat about 75 pounds of feed a year and a Leghorn will eat about 55 pounds, in addition to the green stuff consumed.'

Preventive Measures to Guard Against Diseases

Early in the spring, when everything else around the farm is being cleaned and put in shape for the summer, a coat of whitewash will add greatly to the appearance and sanitation of the interior of the poultry house. It is the cheapest of all paints and may be used on the exterior of the building, too, if so desired.

Whitewash is made by slaking about ten pounds of quicklime in a pail with two gallons of water, covering the pail with cloth or burlap and allowing it to slake for one hour. Water is then added to bring the whitewash to a consistency which may be applied

A weatherproof whitewash for exterior surfaces may be made as follows: (1) Slake one bushel of quicklime in twelve gallons of hot water; (2) dissolve two pounds of common salt and one pound of sulphate of zinc in two gallons of boiling water; pour (2) into (1), then add two gallons of skim milk and mix thoroughly. Whitewash is spread lightly over the surface with a broad brush.

Many Changes Made in

American Architecture

American architecture has gone through a good many phases since the original log huts were built by the early settlers in Virginia and Massachusetts. Present-day home building, however, is far advanced in point of beauty over any period in the country's history.

In the beginning of the Eighteenth century the general rule was for unpretentious houses, and there are many survivors today of the early homes that were put up in this period all over the New England landscape. During the Revolution there was a general lull in building, with a great revival immediately after the war. The post-Revolutionary period is distinguished by the increase in the number of pretentious homes. The country was growing richer and people were able to put more money into their homes.

With the general activity in building that came with the end of the Revolution there grew up a demand for information regarding architecture. This was met by the publication of a number of books concerning architectural forms and details, one of the chief of which was Asher Benjamin's "Country Builder's Assistant," published in 1797. These books gave details of classic and Renaissance architecture, and actually started the study of architecture in this country. Architects soon began to appear, men whose individuality marked their work, bringing their names, with their designs, down to the present time.

The study of classic forms soon started the Greek revival, the next step in our architectural development, which in turn was followed by the "Queen Anne" cottages and the Victorian era. Organized architectural education freed us somewhat from these styles, took us through the French influence of the nineties and brought us to the present period of such complete information that we are now able to design in any style a client wants with fairly complete

Through all this confusion there persists a very genuine interest and appreciation of our first periods and the simple colonial house of the Eighteenth century will continue to be an inspiration.

Cheering the North Room

That bugaboo of the household, the tiny north bedroom, which always seems cold and cheerless, finds its space increased and the light doubled when the proper furnishings are placed within. There is no better furniture for this purpose than ivory

With ivory walls and a plain mauve rug the walls of the room seem to be fairly swept give all the room one could wish. To keep the room from having the white look of a hospital operating room, however, warm colors, such as red, yellow, orange or red violet, should be introduced in the upholstery of the little chair, in the window hangings and in the little accessories such as vase and lights.

The vanity dresser is doubly welcome in the small bedroom for the sake of its ample stowaway room in the deep drawers. This addition was made to the suite when an original French model was copied, for milady of America must keep her pretty veils and gloves in more restricted Ivory enameled furniture is practical, for it is cleaned easily.

"What Is Life of City?"

"In a community in the East, a group of men were met together to consider the menace to the health and enjoyment of the citizens by the smoke nuisance. One business man was opposed to regulation, and put his objection in a single revealing sentence: The smoke may be the death of the people, but it is the life of the city.' The life of the city' and by that he meant the only kind of city he could think of, a city of commercial enterprise, of hasty methods of getting rich, of bank balances built up at no matter what impoverishment of finer things. For the real city, the city of the inner values of men's souls, of beauty and spaciousness and joy, he had no conception. When men begin to love beauty and become sensitive to the fine ideals which a desire for beauty creates, they will not tolerate the stupid perversion of reality, which would find 'the life of the city' in the 'death of the people.' They will insist that whatever advantage be held in abeyance, light and life and cleanness for men and women shall be pre-

Built-In Furniture

At a slight increase in first cost the installation of built-in furniture will add much to the comfort, convenience and value of any small house. Such attractive features as built-in china closets, bookcases, mantelpieces, breakfast nook furniture, tables and benches, closet shelves and drawers, medicine cases, ironing boards, kitchen dressers or cabinets and refrigerator compartments are included. Careful consideration should be given to practical built-in furniture.

ELISHA: TEACHER AND STATES-MAN

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 6:15-23.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with Good."

PRIMARY TOPIC-God Caring for

JUNIOR TOPIC-Elisha's Goodness to His Enemies.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—How to Turn Enemies Into Friends.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—What Elisha Meant to His Nation.

I. Elisha, Elijah's Successor (I Kings 19:15-21; II Kings 2:2-15.)

1. His Anointing (I Kings 19:15-21). In obedience to the Lord's command, Elijah went forth from his hiding place in Horeb to anoint Elisha as prophet. While Elisha was plowing with oxen Elijah passed by and cast his mantle upon him.

2. His Training (II Kings 2:2-8). Elisha came into the life of Elijah in the field, where he called him forth from the plow, and there was thenceforth real friendship between them, such that Elisha clung to his master to the very last, in spite of three urgent requests for him to remain behind.

3. Elisha's Double Portion (II Kings

(1) Elisha's cry (v. 12). "The chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof." This implies that Elijah was the true national defense

(2) Elisha takes his place (v. 13). The taking of Elijah's mantle indicates his assumption of his place as a

(3) Elijah's spirit upon Elisha (vv. 14, 15). This is proven by the use of his power to divide the Jordan. Also it is proven by the testimony of the sons of the prophets.

II. Elisha's Ministry (II Kings 3:10). 1. The Trenches Filled With Water (Chap. 3;16-20). Jehoram, in alliance with the king of Judah, went against the Moabites. His army was in great straits for lack of water. When they appealed to Elisha, he bade them show their faith by digging trenches in desert soil. The Lord sent water to fill the

2. Increase of the Widow's Oil (Chap. 4:1-7). This woman's husband had died, leaving a debt, and the creditor was about to make bondmen of her two sons. Elisha caused the scant supply of the widow's oil to be so increased that she sold enough to pay the debt.

3. The Shunamite's Son Restored (Chap. 4:8-37). Because of hospitality shown Elisha, he sought to help his hostess by promising that the Lord would give her a child. The joy brought by the fulfillment of the prophet's announcement was shortlived, for while yet but a lad he was taken away by death. In her sorrow she went to Elisha and he restored the

4. Heals Deadly Pottage (Chap. 4: 38-41). In time of famine they made a vegetable soup from whatever growing plants they could find. By mistake a poisonous plant had been gathered. By putting meal into the pot, the soup was made healthful.

5. Fed One Hundred Men (Chap 4: 42-44). To the astonishment of his attendant, he fed one hundred men with twenty barley cakes and a sack of uncooked grain. 6. He Healed Naaman, the Leper (Chap. 5:1-19). At the instance of a captive Jewish maid, Naaman, the great Syrian general, was brought into touch with Elisha. Without even coming to see Naaman Elisha, through his servant, bade him dip seven times in the Jordan. He obeyed and was instantly healed.

7. Recovers the Lost Axe (Chap. 6:1-7). While the sons of the prophets were cutting timber to enlarge their quarters, the head of a borrowed axe flew from the handle and was lost in the muddy waters. When shown the place Elisha cast a stick into the water and the axe floated to the sur-

III. Elisha's Heavenly Defenders (II Kings 6:8-23).

This shows the secret of Elisha's power. 1. The Syrian King Sorely Troubled

(vv. 8-12). The king directing warfare against Israel. He located camps so as to intercept Israel's army. Through Elisha God made known the enemy's movements (v. 9).

2. The Syrian King Tries to Trap Elisha, but, though surrounded by the Syrian army, a mightier host of heavenly defenders were round about him.

3. The Syrian Army Trapped. Elisha led the Syrian army into Samaria. He ordered that they should be fed and sent back to their land.

He Came to Save Sinners

When a prominent man dies, we are anxious to get his last words and acts. The last act of the Son of God was to save a sinner. That was a part of the glory of His death. He commenced His ministry by saving sinners, and ended it by saving this poor thief .-D. L. Moody.

THE -CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

--- From ---Moody Bible Institute Monthly

April 20 Easter, A Time of Joy 1 Corinthians 15:1-8, 51-55

Chicago, Ill.

Anyone who will take the time and make the effort to enter into the truth presented in 1 Corinthians will have a time of joy at the Easter son, and at all other seasons, too In this chapter the apostle shows the historical certainty and the vital im-Lord. The resurrection should be considered first as a historical fact, and second in its spiritual meaning.

"The fact of the actual and literal resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead cannot be denied by any man who will study the evidence in the case." These are the words of Dr. R. A. Torrey, who has made a very extended study of this matter. Dr. Arnold of Rugby gives his testimony in the following words: "I have been used for many years to study the his-tory of other times and to examine and weigh the evidence of those who have written about them, and I know of no fact in the history of mankind which is proved by better and fuller evidence of every sort to the understanding of a fair inquirer, than the great sign which God has given us that Christ died and rose again from

The spiritual meaning of the resurrection may be seen by following the writer's argument in this chapter. "If Christ be not raised," then according to verse 14, "preaching is vain" and all the preaching of the ages has only been a matter of beating the air; but, he asserts Christ is raised therefore he asserts, Christ is raised, therefore, preaching is not vain, but God's appointed means for reaching the unsaved and bringing them into saving relationships to Himself. Again, "if Christ be not raised," faith is vain: but Christ is raised, therefore, faith in Him brings forgiveness, peace, and Furthermore, "if Christ be not raised" ye are yet in your sins (v. 17): but Christ is risen, therefore, those who believe in Him are justified from all things. See Romans 4:25. Once more, "if Christ be not raised," then the dead have perished and we who have believed are "of all men most miserable": but Christ is risen, therefore, the loved ones who have gone on before have not perished, but are living with Him, and instead of believers being most miserable, they are the most joyful people on the earth.

It was the rule at the vicarage that every one should repeat a chosen text of Scripture before breakfast every Sunday morning.

It came to the turn of a very timid little housemaid to repeat the chosen text, which was, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made."

In her nervousness the poor girl blurted out, "I am a fearful and wonderful maid."

Building Your Home Starts Thrift Habit

Home building is an ideal plan for saving and earning money. Financial obligations, like insurance premiums and home building payment, must be met, and consequently a determined effort will be made to meet them once they are incurred.

Plainly speaking, home building is a business. It is a business of saving and investing money for safe, sure returns. It does not involve risks if you go at it in a businesslike way. And home building will net you a profit just as any other business should, depending upon the good judgment and sound management you use in conducting your home building op-

Once you satisfy yourself that home building and owning is the logical and economical thing to do, you should not hesitate to take the step because of the financial obligations home building requires.

It is wrong to believe that home financing is a yoke of everlasting indebtedness. It is really the beginning of a savings and thrift campaign. Home building has started thousands of people with limited incomes on the road to independence-people who under ordinary circumstances might never have built a bank account or accumulated enough savings to make any substantial investment.

Aside from the real joy and satisfaction that come from building and owning a home of your own, there is the added profit which comes through acquiring the thrift habita money-saving habit to meet home financing payments.

Few people are infallible when it comes to habits. Suppose you start a bank account with no stated obligation to meet; you grow careless and use your money for other and immediate purposes. On the other hand, payments on a home must be met at a stipulated time, and the home owner takes every means to meet them.

Study School Health

Parents and teachers are beginning to realize the importance of attending to health needs of children before they are old enough to go to school. They are learning that if the foundations of physical and mental health are laid during the preschool period, much of the remedial work that now constitutes the major part of school health work in many localities will be unnecessary, says the United States bureau of education, announcing a reading course for parents, entitled "Pathways to Health." This course suggests about 40 recent books covering a few of the fundamentals of child health in a form easily understood. Among the topics treated are: "How to Judge the Child's Physical Condition," "The School Lunch," "The Preschool Child," "Sex and Health" and 'Community Responsibility." cations for this course should be addressed to the United States Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C.

Dental Clinic in School

Pupils of the public schools of Mont clair, N. J., may receive dental treatment at a clinic which is open every school day from 9 to 11:30 a. m. To pay the running expenses of the clinic, a flat rate of 25 cents is collected from each child. The dentist, who has his own city practice outside of clinic hours, receives a salary of $1,800 a year for his work at the clinic. In the course of a survey of 2,710 children it was found that more than half of them required no dental work. Of the 1,034 who needed treatment, 496 were sent to the clinic. Most of the others were taken by their parents to their own dentists. The school nurses. principals and room teachers follow up the work closely to see that the children take care of their teeth.

"Smith and Jones, you know, had a talk over the telephone. It went like this:

City Has Natural Sewers

Bowling Green, Ky., which is built on a limestone formation that includes countless connected subterranean passages, has no trouble or expense in the upkeep of sewers. When a man with a new house wishes to connect with a sewer he merely digs down a few feet until be finds a fissure, turns a stream of water into the opening to clear it of obstructions, and then joins his waste pipe to it. The sewage finds an outlet in the river .-Youth's Companion.

What Insulin Is.

Much has been said in the newspapers lately about "insulin," the new remedy for diabetis discovered by Dr. F. G. Banting, of Toronto University, but few people know exactly what it

Insulin is an extract of fresh, healthy beef pancreas, a solution of the internal secretion of the pancreas of the ox. The extract is made by soaking the fresh organ in a mixture of alcohol and diluted hydrochloric acid. One reason for choosing this solvent is that while it dissolves the internal secretion, the external secretion (whose chief constituent is trypsin and which is of no value in the present connection) is left undissolved. The solution so made is sterilized. Insulin has caused sugar varying in quantities from 2 to 7 grammes to be utilized in various patients per diem. The effect, apparently, is evanescent and lasts only eight or nine hours, so that injections are necessary every

1,970,000,000 Feet of Telephone Wire

REFORE the War, this company installed about 127,000,000 feet of wire each year. Because of the abnormal demands for service during the past several years, it has, during that period, installed an annual average of about 209,000,000 feet of wire. For 1924 it is estimated that 384,100,000 feet will be required, and during the next five year period 1,970,000,000 feet of wire.

Most of this wire is in cables. These cables vary in size from 50 to 2400 wires. The establishment of such cables requires careful surveys and accurate advance planning. Otherwise certain localities where future demands may not be great might be supplied with cable far in excess of their requirements. In such cases valuable plant might continue to lie idle for years. And this idle investment would necessarily place additional costs upon the users of the service.

This necessary preliminary work takes time and involves certain unavoidable delays in the establishment of service. But it is through this procedure that the company is able to operate economically and keep its charges for service at the lowest possible amount.

Ourand, visited ter receiving surgical attention by Hanover and McSherrystown surgeons, he was brought to his home by Upton H. Myers and wife, of near Paul Eline and J. T. Kernan, of Mc-Sherrystown.

> We have a copy of The Memphis Appeal, from W. W. Sweigart, of Laurel, Miss., representing a "booster" issue for Laurel, which is called "the Pasadena of the South." It is profusely illustrated, and especially shows up the great lumber industry of Laurel, "the world's greatest producer of long leaf yellow pine."

Free Copies of The Constitution.

We have about forty pamphlet copies of the Constitution of the United States, for free delivery. Many do not have this important document, and some who may have it "in a book, somewhere," do not know where to find it, when wanted. Call at our office and get a copy, free, or send 2c stamp if you desire one mailed to you.

Are You a Business Man?

Many people have the mistaken idea that to be a "business man" one must run a store, or shop of some kind. The truth is, every man who works for a living, is in "business" of some sort, even if he merely markets his own labor a day at a time. Sometimes a stock in trade is represented by merchandise of some kind, plus selling effort; but it may be selling effort alone, represented only by labor. All of us, in one way or another, are "business" men.

This question settled, a still more important one arises. What kind of Perhaps you may call it "management," instead of "business," but we think it well to stick to the "business man" idea—it is more comprehensive. Of course, we mean "business wo-men," too, for an unbusiness like woman can easily lose, or waste, all her husband makes.

Get the idea of what a good business man is. Perhaps we can get it best by telling what he is not. Among what not to be, is, too trickery in bargaining, too suspicious of the honesty of others, too much impressed with the idea that everybody is trying to "beat" you, too confident that everybody is making profit at your ex-

Among what you should be, is, reasonably intelligent along most lines, industrious, economical, stantly trying to know more of right ways to do your work, to keep out of unnecessary debt, and not to buy anything not absolutely needed merely in order to keep up with your neighbors who may be more able to buy than

The good business man is a pretty good all-around fellow—a good neighbor, one fully trustworthy as to both word and act, and who doesn't get scared when somebody suddenly touches him on the back. It is good business, most times, not to get all you can, merely because you can get it—there are more valuable things in this world than a little more money. The best business man is the one with lots of real friends; and, to get them, he must deserve them. A good general reputation is about the most valuable possession one can have.
