SOLDIER BONUS BILL IS PASSED.

dowment insurance policy feature. A previous vote of 47 to 30 defeated giving the soldiers the option of accepting a cash bonus, in lieu of the insurance. On the final vote, the bill was supported by 33 Republicans, 32 Democrats and 2 Farmer-Laborites, and opposed by 8 Republicans and 9

Democrats.
Senator Bruce, of Maryland, voted against the bill, and Senator Weller was paired against it. It is thought that the President may veto the measure, in which case the vote indicates that it can be passed over a veto. The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says of the bill;

"Probably never in the history of Congress was a bill enacted into a law which so few seemed to want. It was berated by those who opposed and finally voted for it and received few encomiums from its friends.

The charge against ran all the way from a "deception of the taxpayer," a "gold brick" for the soldier, a cowardly abandonment both of principle and of sanity, and economic offense against the country. It was handled as a political measure, which few had the courage to regard frankly on the eve of a general election."

Without a record vote an amendment by Senator Walsh, Massachusetts, to hold up the issuance of insurance certificates until July 1, 1925, was approved. Senator Walsh said the object of this was to delay the insurance until after the next session of Congress, when an effort will be made to amend the law and author-ize an all-cash bonus instead of insurance. The Massachusetts Senator intimated that the next Congress will be controlled by the Democrats, who will put through a cash bill.

If we understand the bill, twenty year endowment insurance is provided for all entitled to over $50.00 at the rate of $1.00 a day for service in this country, and $1.25 per day for Campaign, pay or no pay.

Waiting for costs to come down, in this or any other line, does not pay.

When a building needs paint, it ought to have it, and it is up to the owner, if he would serve his own best interests, to find the way of raising the cash with which to save his property. Not doing so, is equivalent to argument that when one gets sick he will not have a doctor, on account of the cost: for next to saving one's health, is saving one's property.

No matter whether buildings are located in towns, or in the open country, the "clean up and paint up" slogan applies. Ruin should be stopped, and nothing does it so well as proper care—both of the body and of buildings—property of any sort. Neglect of either, convicts the owner of bad management. It may not always be true—as there are exceptions to all rules—but in most cases those who can not afford to keep up their properties, should not own them. In a way, one can do as he pleases with a property—even to letting it run down, or actually go to ruin—but we doubt whether, in most cases, such treatment is absolutely forced. It is more

FARMERS CUTTING A Slogan that is now Seasonable in WHEAT ACREAGE

Decided Change being made in Farming Operations.

Washington, April 20—Farmers in the Middle West and Northwestern States are guiding their production program, reducing the output of com-modities hit by price slumps and in-creasing those where market values have been consistently profitable, said a statement issued today by the Agriculture Department, based on a study of crops in nine States.

A great reduction in the acreage of wheat and other small grains and in beef cattle production had been noticed, the statement said, while in-creases have been shown in dairying, poultry, swine, corn, alfalfa, seed clover, soy beans and feed crops.

The statement was prepared from reports received by the department from 302 county agents in Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington. "In the nine States covered," it said, "205 of the reporting counties showed expansion in dairying and only seven showed contraction, indi-cating that industry has made the greatest gain of all other farm enter-

"As a whole," it added, "the survey shows a drift out of wheat into live-stock, a trend away from beef cattle to dairy cattle, a big increase in poultry in the production of field crops and a general movement to-ward diversification in localities where diversification has not been common heretofore. Farm management experts in the Department of Agriculture say the survey indicates a decided turn toward livestock production in region formerly considered one crop areas.

"Generally speaking, the changes indicated are said to be those which the farmer should have made in view of the economic situation."

Open Season for Bass.

As the State Game Department is receiving numerous inquiries with regard to the open seasons for the catching of Trout and Bass by means of hook and line in the waters of this State above tidewater, it would be appreciated if you would publish the following article for the benefit of those persons who might be interested in this matter.

"Section 78 of Article 39 provided for an open season on Bass June 15 to April 1, and Section 72 of the same Article provided for an open season on Trout between April 1 and August 15. During the session of the General Assembly of Maryland, 1924, the above sections were repealled and a new law enacted Chapter 340, Acts of 1924, effective June 1, which provides for an open season on Bass between July 1 and December 1, and on Trout between April 1 and July 1.

The new law applies to all points above tidewater, therefore, it includes all mill ponds and lakes, in which the tide does not ebb and flow.

This law also provides that Bass, Trout and Pike and all other fresh water fishes can only be taken during the respective open seasons by means of rod, hook and line.

It is very essential that the public should co-operate with the State Game Department in enforcing the law, relative to the taking of fresh water fishes, as the closed seasons mentioned herein will protect our fresh water fishes during the spawning season which is very necessary it expensive to reach him. "Farm electrification is not the idea of dreamers and in time we shall see farms lighted and their machinery turned by a purring motor supplied with power from rtansmission lines. Yes, and country roads, too, will sometime be lighted up at niht."

Fire Insurance Conducted at a Loss

New Yorg, April 23—Although the volume of fire-insurance business was the greatest in the history of the United States during 1923, underwriting was transacted at a loss, accordind to the annual report of the Spectator, official insurance journal.

Premium income of the 249 stock companies which report to the New York Insurance Department, and which transact about 90 per-cent of the country's business, amounted to $845,641,391, or $8,000,000 more than for the similar group in the peak year of 1920. To offset this gain, there was net loss in surplus of almost $7,000,000, with a large decrease in dividend payments.

Pinchot Beaten in Penna.

Gov. Pinchot, considered by some as Presidential timber was defeated in the state primaries, on Tuesday for delegate-at-large to the National Convention by about 2 to 1. The Governor ascribes his defeat to the activity of the "wets," and there was some feeling that he was not a loyal supporter of President Coolidge. The Governor did not make an active campaign, and the vote cast was very light throughout the state. His antagonism of Secretary Mellon unquestionably aided in his defeat.

Leading Republicans state that the result is merely a vote of confidence in President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon, and nothing else: and that it is not a "wet" victory, nor antagonism to the Governor.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE IN NEW YORK,

Delivers Masterful Address on Big Problems in Legislation.

President Coolidge, on Tuesday afternoon, delivered an address at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press, in New York, in which he covered many of the leading questions before the country; an address that was placed by Radio throughout the country before many thousands of widely separated listeners.

He emphasized the need for another world conference looking to the er world conference looking to the further limitation of armed prepara-tion for war, and that the United States should take the lead in such an effort.

While emphasizing that Europe must first set her economic house in order, Mr. Coolidge declared there appeared to be every reason to hope that the report of the reparation committees of experts "offers a basis for a practical solution of the reparations problem." He noted that "the Allies are looking upon it with full sympathy and Germany has expressed a willingness to co-operate in the execution of the plan."

The President declared that while

The President declared that while America had determined to maintain her political independence, the country's economic independence would be "strengthened and increased when the economic stability of Europe is restored." America already had done much toward such restoration by the work of the three American experts on the Reparation Commission's committees, he added. As a further step he proposed that private American capital participate in the loan to Germany contemplated in the committee's report. Such participation, he suggested, would benefit American trade and commerce and provide a market for American agricultural production.

While not specifically mentioning the investigations of the Senate in official corruption concerning leases and other charges, he declared that all who are guilty of official wrong-doing, should be punishtd. He "Fundamentally, America is sound.

It has both the power and disposi-tion to maintain itself in a healthy economic and moral condition. But it can not do this by turning all its thoughts in on itself, or by making its material prosperity its supreme choice. Selfishness is only another name for suicide. A nation that is morally dead will soon be financially dead. The progress of the world rests on courage, honor and faith. If America wishes to maintain its prosperity, it must maintain its ideals. Our first duty is to ourselves. American standards must be maintained, American institutions must of the must continue to be advanced. This is not a matter of a day or a year. It may be of generations, it may be of an era. It is for us here and now to keep in the right direction to remain constant to the right ideals. We need a faith that is broad enough to let the people make their own mis-takes. Let them come into knowledge and understanding by their own experience. Little progress can be made by merely attempting to repress what is evil, our great hope lies in developing what is good.'

His speech occupied forty-one minutes, and in general was well received, and was largely free from any partisan coloring. Largely, it covered our foreign relations and the big problems of legislation.

NAILS MONEY IN SHOES.

Auctioneer's $50 Bills Like Sieves When Shoemaker Finishes Job.

John Markle, Pleasant Hill auctioneer, put several $50 bills in a pair of shoes for safe-keeping. The day he did this he came to Hanover, but as the day wore along he thought of the money in its none-to-secure place and, when he got home dashed up the stairs to reassure himself. The shoes were missing. "Where's my Sunday shoes?" John shouted to his wife. She had sent them to the shoemaker. Dashing across the road to the shoe shop, John found the leather worker just finishing putting on a pair of soles. John grabbed the shoes and found the money snugly fastened to the bottom, nailed fast with a hundred pegs. He detached them and was relieved, but the bills looked like colanders. John recently acquired a dog. This dog one day had a ride in a machine. Since then he has become an ardent motorist. As the family left one day for a ride the dog, which had been penned in the house, leaped through a closed window, carrying along with him sash and glass. John's third misfortune came to his notice today when he found strangers peaching his leaded dandelien patch. At Pleasant Hill farmers are in the habit of leasing fields to families who gather the dandelion plants for market. John's field was stripped when he discovered the trespassers who leaped in a car and drove away. -Hanover Record.

Charles G. Dawes.

One of the most prominent men before the public today is Charles G. Dawes who has just completed what is generally regarded as the most comprehensive and workable plan for the financing of German obligations resulting from the world war; a plan that is generally accepted by all of the foreign powers, including even Germany.

His work has been very exhaustive, covering a tremendously big program and a thorough knowledge of finance on the largest possible scale. Many felt that it was a problem too difficult to work out, but Mr. Dawes with his remarkable energy and almost inhuman skill, has accomplished the task as nearly as it can be done.

He had able assistants, of course, but his was the guiding master hand. The whole scheme will have to be worked out, as to details, by a joint commission, but credit for the framework and many of the complete details, is generally credited to this one indefatigable man.

Alrealy, he is practically assured the nomination for vice-President, should he care to accept it. Indeed, some go so far as to say that he should have the nomination for the Presidency itself, and it is only the present situation that points so strongly to the renomination of Coolidge, that prevents the probability of the major nomination going to Mr.

When Money is Unfair.

Usually, we think, big capital is properly employed, or at least does no real harm; but, there are times when capital is used to put competitors out of business, or perhaps just to show what can be done in the way of buying a mere object of pride, or for gaining an end that is discredit-

We can easily imagine a case in which capital can be employed to bring about the possession of what is little more than a personal fadyet perhaps one that is beneficial to the public as well. At any rate, the possession and direction of great wealth is a tremendous resopnsibility, and may also represent a tremendous temptation.

The use of money, discreditably, may ruin an enemy, and debauch the morals of a community. It may injure more deserving honest people than the average person, not interested, can know about. Certainly, the big headlines so common in our daily papers tell plainly the hideous story of dissipation and immorality, due entirely to the influence of great wealth, where homes are disrupted and children and friends made ashamed.

And, even the expenditure of vast sums for the accomplishment of some big institution, or business, for a town, has its disagreeable side, when it puts others out of business. As a rule, we think, the investment of money merely to gain an end, with notoriety as the chief aim, does more harm than good.

Influence of the Radio.

The wide spread use of Radio sets is bound to have considerable influence on the general public, and public opinions, aside from the mere enjoyment of "listening in." We are apt to regard the invention largely as an entertainment, and the temptation is strong to "tune in" for the musical and entertainment programs that are provided each day; but there is another feature to the invention that sooner or later will have on influence wholly new, and its own.

The recent debate in Washington for instance, between two members of Congress, one taking the side of in public life. strict enforcement of the Volstead act, as it now exists, and the other for its modification. Thousands of peoguments, and were asked to send in has been made to believe is the one This is not merely a plea for neat-published.

At other broadcasting stations, various questions are being asked, and answers solicited from the listeners. In numerous cases, information as to robberies, and individual disappearances, have been sent over the wires in every direction, and these may help in eatching criminals and in solving

Just how far the radio may invade the field of public sentiment, and in educating the public along many lines, remains to be seen. Of course, market reports and conditions, are an everyday feature. There are also wonderful possibilities involved in the use of the Radio in the coming Presidential campaign, that just now can only be imagined, and not estimated. Taken as a whole, the future possible development of the use-and perhaps abuse-of the Radio, offers a very wide field for speculation considering the hundreds of thousands of the outfits in use, and as yet hardly a beginning has been made. On account of the expense, the Radio will hardly ever be anything like as generally installed as the telephone, but it is bound to spread far and wide, and to become a powerful factor in influencing public sentiment.

Wet Candidates an Expense on Taxpayers.

Under our primary election laws there is nothing to prevent "wet" candidates from leading forlorn hopes and ambitions, and forcing the expense of primary elections when there would otherwise be none. It is bad enough that the law can be used for no better ambition, but it is doubly bad when the use calls for a heavy expense on the taxpayers, that they would avoid if left to their option in

Dictation through party organizations is often bad enough, but it may easily be infinitely worse through the crankiness of individuals. The organizations may represent nine-tenths of the voters and taxpayers, and agree not to have a contest, but the other tenth may easily "spill the beans," practically representing rule by the

It may be a good thing to have illustrations of this sort brought pointedly before us, in order to compel the powers that be to plug up the holes in laws—and this primary law of ours is full of them. Sometimes we learn wisdom at a pretty high cost.

President Makers.

President Coolidge is slowly but surely establishing a reputation for back-bone" and "policies," which many of his political enemies, and some of his friends have been in the habit of saying he does not possess. Already, it is becoming a slogan that "He is his own platform" and the opposition in the Senate has very recently had occasion to accuse him of boldly assailing the "dignity of the Sen-

Mr. Coolidge no doubt has the cold New England temperament that we sometimes apply to "down easters," but there is no evidence that he is supine. Certainly he is not a man of great personal magnetism, of the character easily recognizable as such; but, he thinks straight, and when occasion demands, speaks the same way.

We are so constructed, politically, that we are almost blind to the good qualities of our political opponentsuntil after they are dead. We make an issue against them, when none exists, and consider it fair, in the war. If Mr. Coolidge was on the eve of going out of office, instead of on the eve of trying to get in again, we would view his qualifications differently.

And this is just as true of "those mentioned" on the other side of the fence. Republicans magnlify the "objections" to McAdoo, Gov. Smith, Senator Underwood, and Attorney Davis; not because real objections attach to them, so much as they would make the objections appear very real to voters. We are all President makersfor our side.

The California people seemed to figure they would rather run the chance of the disease threatened than to be saddled with the remedy proposed, namely, a $500,000,000 state debt. They voted the measure down over two to one.

The political doctors are trying to work up another scare in that state this year but are meeting with poor success because they can find no symptoms of an unhealthy condition in the power industry there.

Finding California a rather skeptical patient, they have moved their activities to the state of Washington where the stage is being prepared and the remedy will be up for the people to "buy" at the next November election. It is doubtful if they will fall for the public ownership cure-alls that are proposed and it is going to be hard to make them believe that their electrical power industry is in unhealthy condition which threatens the state. Down in Georgia, the pollitical doctors are working up to their final scare talk in a little more gradual manner. They wish to amend the constitution of that state and enlarge its bonding limit in order that the people may, if they wish, enter into gigantic state industrial undertakings. Naturally, if they could get the constitution amended, they would all flock there with their bottles of political remedies and the first dose they would propose to Georgia citizens would be bond issues aggregating hundreds of millions of dollars to finance political industrial schemes to cure imaginary evils threatening the Medical science has shown that many of our ills are imaginary and that cleanliness is the best preventive against contamination. The same thing applies in our political life. As the average man has a good constitution, so has the average state. The less it is tampered with, the better off it is. Quack doctors can ruin the physical structure of either a man or a state constitution.-Manufacturer and Industrial News.

Ocean Keeps Tragic ? cret. Disappearing in the Bradway of the Atlantic ocean, extending from the eastern end of the Panama canal toward New York city, the 7,000-ton oil tanker Swiftstar added to maritime history another incident of mystery. Loaded wth 77,000 barrels of oil and manned by a crew of 28 officers and men, it recently left Los Angeles bound for a Massachusetts port. It was last heard from when entering the sea lane along the east coast, but no vessel sighted it there, and no word came from its wireless. In those same waters the collier Cyclops vanished some time ago as completely as if a giant monster of the deep had stretched forth a huge hand and pulled the craft beneath the water. Evidence that disaster befell the Swiftstar was found by a schooner captain after several electric storms. The sea all about was littered with splintered wood, a floating chest yielded the charred, unidentified body of a man, and for miles the surface was covered with a heavy film of oil-Popular Mechanics Magazine.

HOW =

TREES PRODUCE PONGEE .-"What makes pongee, pongee?" A riddle that probably not one out of a score of the wearers of the cool summer silk can answer is tied up in a way with Wei-hai-wei, one of the halfdozen or so patches of China that have been under foreign control, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society. The region's two bids to fame economically are ground nutsof which considerable quantities are produced in the valleysand pongee sllk.

To most persons, no doubt, silk means a fiber spun by domesticated silkworms fed on mulberry leaves. But the silk industry is different in the Weihai-wei neighborhood. The pongee-by which name their silk is known-unbleached and in its natural color, is the product not of domestic but of "wild" silkworms. And they do not eat mulberry leaves, but browse, so to speak, on the leaves of the scrub oak trees of the hills. Their cocoons are gathered in large quantities and so the otherwise waste hill lands are made to yield a relatively rich harvest.

Wei-hai-wei is near the tip of Shantung's principal peninsula, which, with what may be called for American ears the "Port Arthur peninsula" to the north, almost closes the entrance to the Gulf of Chihli from the Yellow sea. With Port Arthur, this British territory dominates the water road to Peking and Tien-

How Sea Level Is Made

All elevations determined by the United States geological survey and the United States coast and geodetic survey are referred to as mean sea level, which is the level that the sea would assume if the influence of winds and tides were eliminated. This level is not the elevation determined from the mean of the highest and lowest tides, nor is it the half sum of the mean of all the high tides and the mean of all the low tides which is called the half-tide level. Mean sea level is the average height of the water, all stages of the tide being considered. It is determined from observations made by means of tidal gauges placed at stations where local conditions, such as long, narrow bays, rivers and like features, will not affect the height of water. To obtain even approximately correct results these observations must extend over at least one lunar month, and if accuracy is desired they must extend over several years. At ocean stations the half-tide level and the mean sea level usually differ but little. It is assumed that there is no difference between the mean sea level as determined from observations in the Atlantic ocean, the Gulf of Mexico or the Pacific ocean.

How to Candy Lemon Peel Scrub lemons, cut into quarters, re move and cut peel into one-eighth-inch strips and place in saucepan. For each pound of peel add three pints of cold water, boil ten minutes. Pour water off and repeat five times, or until all the bitter flavor has been removed from the peel. Dissolve onehalf pound of sugar in two ounces of water, and cook to a thick sirup. Dry peel in the folds of a towel, place in sirup and cook until sirup is all absorbed by the peel. While hot roll in dry sugar. Orange peel may be prepared in the same fashion, except the water need be changed only twice.

How Do Sponges Eat? Fisheries experts and scientists have been unable to ascertain accurately how sponges feed. An ordinary sponge will grow from one to one and onehalf inches or more a year. The portion of the sponge with which we are familiar is the skeleton or framework of the sea product as it exists in the briny deep. The slimy, gelatinous substance is decomposed by wind, weather and sunshine and subsequent soaking in sea water cures out any gelatinous materials which still adhere to

How Wealth Is Distributed

The wealth of the United States is distributed as follows: Recently published figures of a statistician of conservative views show that the "rich," 2 per cent of the people, own about 60 per cent of the wealth; the "middle class," 33 per cent, own 35 per cent, and the "poor" own 5 per cent.

How Fourpenny Originated

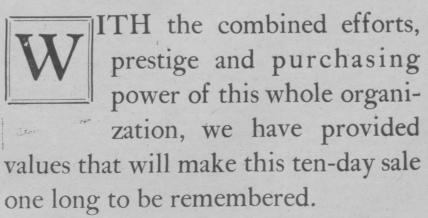

"Penny" did not mean penny at all, but pound. This meant that a thousand of these nails would weigh four pounds, and so on. Carpenters and other artisans got into the habit of slurring these terms so as to give them the sound of fourpen, and this in turn was modified by turning the shortened suffix into penny

Care and Repair of Machinery.

Much valuable time is lost every season because of machi es breaking down while in use. to a large extent this can be avoid ! by stor-ing each machine when is work is finished, oiling it, tightening the nuts, and inspecting it for worn or broken parts. Such repair as this inspection shows to be necessary can be ordered and installed during the winter months. This is far better than to wait until the breakdown

It Takes More Than

Cleverness to Succeed

Success is not easy to define. It may mean the utmost development of one's talents and capacities. It may mean the attainment of specific ends and the achievement of specific tasks. Not uncommonly it means simply acquisition—the collection of property and the gathering of riches or the gaining of some other prominence.

Frequently when we speak of success we have in mind the success of a man of business who has climbed to a position of eminence and responsibility and who has as a consequence come into the possession of some measure of wealth.

Pluck is an element of success which may be possessed to a remarkable degree by one whose responses to a lot of puzzling questions might even put him in the moron class. The same is true of the element of perseverance which explains why a good many plodding workers finally get ahead in the world. Perseverance implies patience and patience is not much of an asset when it comes to making instantaneous replies to a stop-watch questionnaire. In the same category of qualities that are helpful in pushing to the front is tact, and tact has no quotient in the unintelligent intelligent tests. About all that these tests reveal is the relative degree of one's cleverness, and it takes a whole lot besides cleverness to succeed .-Philadelphia Bulletin.

THAT QUESTION OF AGE

A pretty sixteen-year-old flapper attended a dance the other night and while taking lunch afterward at a cafe saw one of the leading citizens of the town in the cafe.

"I never was so shocked in my life," she said in recounting the experience, "as when I went into the restaurant and saw him there. Think of him being there at 1 o'clock in the morning."

Seasonal Cheer. "What you need, man," said the doctor, "is a complete rest." "What!" The busy patient sat up agitatedly. "Why, I can't go away, doctor; it is impossible." "I didn't suggest it," said the medico. "What I said is that you need a complete rest. Send your family to Europe, sell your car and burn your golf sticks."

AND MAYBE ALL SLATE

"That dealer has me on the slate for five tons of coal, but I haven't gotten it yet.'

"Oh, you'll get it-slate and all!"

But Not Already. Some day a paper scarcity
Will cause the world to fret.

Of some slight value yet.

Restraint.

"Before we were married you called me an angel!" "I know it."

"And now you don't call me any-

"You ought to be sincerely glad that I possess such self-control."

Would Cheer Him Up. Daughter-Pa, when I promise to marry Jack do you want him to come and ask your consent? Father (of seven girls)-No, not my consent, but I'd appreciate it if he came and broke the good news.

anchorite swamps? Native-Yea; dere's twelve wot went in dere in er year, who never came out. If yer see any of 'em, give 'em fair warning.

AFTER THE SHOW

"His voice has remarkable timbre." "I've always wondered why it reminded me of a sawmill."

The Best of All. The joy that lifts life higher,
With fairer scenes in sight:
A book; a friendly fire;
Home's world, of pure delight.

A Wonderful Scene. Producer-I have enough chorus girls hired to make the big centipede scene a hit.

Author-The centipede scene? Producer—Yes, 100 limbs.

"It surprised me that Ed married Nell. He hardly knew her." "It would have surprised me more if he had married her, knowing her as she really is."

WITH KIPLING IN VERMONT

Famous Writer Enjoyed the Deep Snow and the Society of His Farmhand Companions.

The recent heavy snows in Vermont recall to a correspondent of the Springfield Republican the big snows of 1895-96 in which Kipling delighted. "This was the winter in which Rudyard Kipling found so much recreation and sport in helping the farmhands 'plow out' and when he was often seen in town on a sled to which two plows were attached and one and often two pairs of horses furnished motive power. The busy author was a real sport and liked nothing better than to challenge the elements in his goloshes and long-legged stockings when he dived into the deepest snowdrifts, wallowing through until he looked more like a man of snow than a human helper. Kipling in his associations with the farmers and the hired man never let any droll expression or action pass his notice. He would, in order not to forget it, dive into his pockets for a bit of paper and a pencil and quickly jot down unique expressions and funny sayings of his plow companions, and nobody can tell how many of these odd remarks found use in his many folklore

COMBINES PROFIT AND SPORT

Maine Man Has Found That Hedgehog Hunting Has Two Sides to It, Both Good.

A man in Maine has found hedgehog hunting to be a profitable business, as well as one that has an element of danger, and therefore offers excitement in excess of that which comes to a rabbit or fox hunter, writes Sam E. Conner, in Popular Mechanics Magazine. While it is not generally known, there is a steady demand for these ugly-looking creatures from all sections of America and Europe. They are desired for zoos and menageries, both private and public, and country fair and street venders, who use them to aid in selling preparations, disposed of under the name of hedgehog oil, hedgehog liniment, and Ike titles.

The trapping is all done in the summer and at night. There is no better hunting ground than an apple orchard. The outfit consists of a long pole to dislodge the hedgehog from the apple tree, and an old washboiler.

Game That Was Lucky for Milo

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(®, 1924, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Selden V. Paige sent his only son to college, he did so with high hopes that were not, however, concerned with scholastic achievement. He himself had been a popular gridiron star, and he cherished a fond ambition that Milo would develop a simllar bent. To be sure, there had been no signs along the way indicative of such leanings. Leadership of his prep school debating society and appointment as class valedictorian did not necessarily imply a capacity for expert tackling or 90-yard runs.

Therefore, having dropped in on his son expectedly shortly after his entrance to his own alma mater, Paige was perhaps unjustifiably disappointed that Milo had not even tried out for the freshman team.

"You know my wishes in this matter," he fumed. "Heaven knows I've brought you up with the football idea. Football is the finest-"

Milo, sprawled disrespectfully on a couch, held up a deprecating hand. "Don't get started, dad. Don't get started. I'll grant you have a football complex. But, really, I've a right to my own inhibitions. Say, have you read that last poem by-

It was his father's turn to interrupt. "Poem? Poem? Do I look like a man that reads poems? And what's the matter with your eyes? I detest those black goggles!"

Milo touched them affectionately. "They add distinction, dad. I'm sorry not to attain your ideal of a collegian, but just at present I am much more interested in 'vers libres' than in the vaunted pigskin."

Paige rose, glanced at his son, grabbed his hat from the table, and stalked to the door. In the act of passing out, he paused, turned, and flung back a few last words. "Re-nounce football if you like. Wear a contraption on your face that hides what little individuality you have. Even go out for Phi Beta Kappa. But, for the love of heaven, don't go to the dogs on poetry!" The door slammed. The battle between father and son waged intermittently for the next three years. The older man made no effort to conceal the fact that he was keenly disappointed in his son, while the younger one withdrew into a protective reserve and never made a conwin him over.

The autumn of his son's last year, Paige made a point of running down for each week-end game, but made no effort to obtain his son's company to the field. Occasionally, however, he went around afterwards and bored him to death rehashing plays and mis-

It was well along toward the end of the season that he once again, so said scornfully, "a hard-boiled business man like myself having for a son a man that has no use for athletics. For that matter, have you ever mixed up in anything really redblooded? Gosh, Milo, don't you ever break loose? Get out with the boys and kick up your heels! Queer advice from father to son, but, honest, it wouldn't hurt me to see you cut up and do something really wild, you know!

Left alone, Milo chuckled. The old man had played into his hands. Wanted him to do something out of the ordinary, did he? Suppose he really did. Well, his rash parent would have only himself to blame. He wondered if he could persuade Marjorie to cooperate!

Marjorie had been playing a large part in Milo's young life recently, but as she not only read but wrote poetry he had not mentioned her existence to his father. Sooner or later, of course, he would know, as there could be but one outcome of the affair, and that a matrimonial one, if Milo had the say.

But now his father had given him an idea. True, Marjorie was more or less busy rehearsing for a society charity play in which she had a small singing part in one of the groups. Could she be won over to his little scheme? He arose and went to find

The following Saturday was scheduled the big game of the year. There was a tacit understanding that Milo would meet his father afterwards at his hotel room and go out to dinner with him.

At the end of the first half, Paige slumped back in his seat in disgust. Three to nothing in favor of the visitors. Fumbles, misplays, stupidity. He'd like to wring the neck of Stafford, the new coach. In the midst of his grumblings, an usher appeared with a note. Detaching his mind with difficulty from the game, he opened it. Having read it twice, he swore silently.

"Dear Dad-Am eloping with the pippin who sings third from the end front row-Milo."

Its brevity was brutal. And, worst of all, he saw it as a boomerang in which his ill-chosen words came home to roost. Not that he would bear any responsibility. From now on, his son, who had done this thing, should be as dead to him. Yes sir!

When Paige finally crumpled the note and thrust it in his pocket, the second half of the game was in full swing. Little by little his attention came back to the struggle before him. Gosh, that was a great pass! The team was showing pep now. That's right! Hold 'em! Hold 'em! Wow! When the opposing team was tied then scored against again and ther beaten to a standstill with yet a third touchdown, and the stands were resounding with cheers for the men and for Stafford, who had uncovered a new system of plays, Paige, thumping his neighbor's shoulder, had forgotten to wonder just how dreadful his new daughter-in-law might be. But back in the hotel he sank into gloom. What was the glory of football compared to the ignominy of an only son's elopement with a nobody? When his room telephone rang he braced himself for further bad news.

A gentleman downstairs to see him? He didn't quite catch the name, but directed him sent up.

As the door opened and his caller entered, Paige started in surprise. Was it possible-Stafford? Stafford, the football coach, whom the signal victory had made a hero?

Unmistakably it was Stafford who was advancing with outstretched hand. "I'm mighty sorry the way it was done," he said. "I just read the kid's note. I don't blame him any more than Marge. Girls these dayshe caught the other's puzzled look. "Why, haven't you heard? My sister's eloped with your son!"

Paige was silent a moment not as the other supposed, in consternation, but in sheer bewilderment. Stafford's sister. He hadn't known the Stafford's personally, but had always known who they were. Not so dusty being connected with the man who might be coach for an indefinite period.

List of Vitamines You

Need for Good Health Malnutrition is a subject that has received a great deal of attention recently since the discovery of vitamines or the vitamine theory has been expounded. It has been discovered that while there may be a sufficient quantity of food it is quite possible to be undernourished with a full stomach three times a day. The reason is the absence of vitamines, according to the vitamine theory and the other end of the argument is the absence of mineral salts necessary for the proper nutrition of the body. Whichever it may be vegetables furnish the needed factor in proper nutrition.

The vitamines which are classified as A, B, C and D, are contained in milk and leaf vegetables, particularly the leaf vegetables or those the leaves of which are food articles. It is also known that the vitamine content and value is greater when they are eaten

The A vitamine is a promoter of growth and its absence is the frequent causes of malnutrition, particularly in children who are backward in growth and subject to various ailments. Vegetables furnishing this element are string beans, cabbages, carrots, corn, Swiss chard, beet greens, lettuce, green peas, spinach and tomatoes.

The B vitamine is important in that its absence from the diet induces stomach and intestinal troubles, neuritis and other ailments. It is supplied by cooked vegetables as well as raw, beans, beets, cooked cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, raw onions, peas, potatoes, in short, most of the cooked root Vitamine C has considerable to do with the temper. Its absence leads to irritability and in extreme cases leads to scurvy. Cabbage and the cooked root crops also furnish this vitamine. The vitamine D is a yeast growth.

Green and cooked vegetables if eaten as a regular part of the diet will furnish the vitamines necessary for good health and development. If the vitamine theory is not accepted they furnish the mineral salts which are equally essential and without which the human machine cannot be kept in repair and in efficient working order.

AMOS AND HOSEA PLEADING FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS (Temperance Lesson.)

LESSON TEXT—Amos 6:1-6; Hosea 6:1-6. GOLDEN TEXT-"Hate the evil, and love the good."—Amos 5:15. PRIMARY TOPIC—How Daniel Became Strong.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Amos Denounces Drunken Revelers.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP--The Sins Denounced by Amos and Hosea.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Sins That Destroyed Israel. The kingdom of Israel reached a high state of prosperity in the time of Jeroboam II, and with it came a condition of luxury, corruption and wickedness. Our lesson is a temperance lesson and applies to other things as well as indulgence in intoxicating liquor. Our age and nation are intoxicated with pleasure, pursuit of gain and selfish ambition.

I. The Sins Which Ruined Israel (Amos 6:1-6).

1. Reckless Security (vv. 1.3). They were blind to the evils that surrounded them. They were living in a fool's paradise, closing their eyes to the approaching storm of judgment as predicted by Amos. They trusted in the mountains of Samaria for their protection. They regarded their city as impregnable. They no doubt regarded the utterances of Amos as the dreams of a fanatic. The chief ones of the nation were so puffed up with pride that they failed to read the signs of the times in the light of history (v. 2). To disregard the lessons of history by dismissing the thought of impending judgment is to bring near the seat of violence" (v. 3).

2. Luxury (vv. 4-6). Periods of prosperity are always characterized by corruption and luxury. The luxury of Samaria expressed itself in

(1) Extravagant Furniture (v. 4). They had beds of ivory, perhaps wood inlaid with ivory.

(2) Laziness (v. 4). They stretched themselves upon their couches-living lives of indolence,

(3) Feasted on delicacies (v. 4). The implication here is that they had their dainties out of season. This is what many pride themselves in. They buy what they desire regardless of what it costs. In many instances men and women are living in gluttony while others are destitute.

(4) Adorned their feasts with music (v. 5). They sang idle songs, even invented musical instruments for this purpose. They prostituted the noble art of music to their sensual feasts. How like the times in which we live.

(5) They drank wine (v. 6). They were not content with ordinary drinking vessels. They drank from bowls, indicating excessive drinking. They were so mastered by the intoxicating cup that their feasts, which were adorned with the refinements of music, ended in drunkenness.

3. Failure to Grieve for Joseph (v. 6). Joseph here stands for Ephraim and Manasseh, his two sons. Ephraim became the principal tribe of the northern kingdom, so Joseph is used as a synonym for the nation. Many are indulging in infamous luxury, entirely indifferent to the groanings of others. There is need of a modern Amos to thunder God's judgment upon all those who are living in luxury and who are at ease in Zionthe inevitable issue of such living, the prophet assures them, would be that they should go into captivity (v. 7) and their proud city be delivered up to their enemies (v. 8).

II. The Remedy Proposed (Hosea

1. Turn Back to God (v. 1). The only way for sinning individuals and nations to escape the judgment of God is with heartbreaking sorrow to repent and return to God. Hosea assures them that though God had torn and smitten them He will heal and bind up if they repent.

2. Believe in His Power to Restore (v. 2). This power even extends to a national resurrection for Israel.

3. Obedience (v. 3). It is through the obedient walk and communication with the Lord that they were to know His forgiving mercy.

4. The Issue (vv. 3-6). Such penitence would make restoration absolutely certain. Grace is even more certain than the laws of nature. Just as showers result in fruitfulness in nature, conformity with the righteous commands of the Lord will result in blessings from Him, for His Supreme desire is not for man to bring offerings of sacrifice but to walk in the knowledge of God.

The Bondage of Fear

Like the cellar-growing vine is the Christian who lives in the darkness and bondage of fear. But let him go forth, with the liberty of God, into the light of love, and he will be like the plant in the field, healthy, robust, and joyful.-W. H. Beacher.

Moody Bible Institute Monthly Chicago, Ill.

April 27 What Opportunities do Missions offer for Life Service?

Acts 13:1-3; 16:9-10; Mark 6:7-13

In the first place, missionary work offers the opportunity of a good investment. In the financial world men are looking for investments that shall yield large returns through which they expect to become rich. So is it with missions as a life service. One becomes rich in moral and spiritual values. This enrichment consists largely in the realization of the divine companionship, the fulfilment of the Lord's promise, "I am with you al-ways." An experience like this enables one to appropriate all that heaven can impart to a human heart.

Missions as a life service presents the opportunity of meeting a great

The non-Christian world is without God and without hope. There are problems of poverty, disease, hunger, social evils, ignorance, illiter-acy, which can be solved only by the knowledge of Christ and His salvation. Darkness still abides over the vast multitudes living in non-Chris-tian lands. In some of these countries girls are sometimes traded for cattle In Africa some of the tribes kill infants that are weak or deformed. In the Moslem world womanhood is degraded. The condition of Hindoo widows is the last word in that degadation. It is reported that over three thousand slaves are imported into Morocco every year. Back of all the problems and needs of the non-Christian nations there is a moral and spiritual problem which the gospel alone can meet and settle

As in the church at Antioch long ago, so now the Spirit of God is still saying, "Separate unto me one and another for the work whereunto I have called them." Blessed is the church that hears the voice of Spirit and sends forth the best they have to the vast multitude of the un-evangelized world that have not yet heard the gospel of salvation. There are opportunities for life service in missions for those who are ready to give and to pray and to go.

Oldest Bird Drawings Found in Spanish Cities

The oldest known figures of birds were discovered a few years ago on the walls of some of the limestone caverns in southern Spain, the work of men of the Stone age who lived in these shelters some 25,000 years ago. There are, among the drawings some obvious flamingos and others that may be geese or ducks. In the new world the ancient Mayas of Central America had a very highly developed civilization when the white men arrived and had reached a high pitch of skill in drawing and carving in wood or stone. Some of their figures of the great horned owl are remarkably skillful and lifelike.

The Egyptians, in their heiroglyphic writing, used many figures of birds that were familiar to them. These figures were, of course, much conventionalized, but many can be identified. Some of these are the vulture, swallow, sparrow, sparrow hawk, pintail duck, ibis-all familiar species in the Nile delta to this day.—Detroit News.

Submarine Thawing

The use of electricity for thawing frozen water pipes in city houses is no longer uncommon, but an unusual undertaking in this relation was the application not so long ago of the process to a six-inch submarine main, 1,700 feet in length, connecting North Brother Island with New York city. When an ordinary water pipe is to be thawed both ends are cut and the passage of a comparatively small electric current through the resistant pipe metal generates sufficient heat to melt the ice in the pipe. Although the same general plan was followed with the frozen submarine main, all the conditions were so difficult that it took five days of applying powerful electric currents and of a constant pumping with a pressure of eighty pounds to do the work.

Noted Pirate Besieged

Cities of West Indies Henry Morgan, one of the most famous of buccaneers, when a young boy was kidnaped in the streets of Bristol-it is claimed that he came of a good English family-and was sold as an indentured servant to some colonists in Barbados. When his time had expired he made his way to Jamaica and soon fell in with the buccaneers who infested that island. Before very long he became the captain of a ship. At first he seems to have had but moderate fortune. He took part in several raids, but did not rise to prominence until he joined forces with Mansfield-the first of the buccaneers who succeeded in rallying enough pirates under one command to make himself formidable to fortified coast towns. Morgan became his principal lieutenant and when his chief died he became the acknowledged leader of the buccaneers

In June, 1568, when he was thirtythree years old, Morgan collected a fleet of nine or ten small ships and perhaps 400 men. With them he attacked Puerto Bello and wrote his name alongside that of Sir Francis Drake in the records of Englishmen whom the Spaniards feared and hated. -Detroit News.

Prehistoric Canals Found in Meade County, Kansas

Digging away with gouges and paddles, probably made of buffalo bones, prehistoric men, who lived in Meade and Clark counties, Kansas, skillfully constructed great artificial embankments which diverted the waters of Four Mile creek through an ancient

That's the conclusion of a field party that spent several days in the late spring of 1920 examining one of the ancient channels. The builders of these ancient artificial waterways evidently possessed engineering skill of no mean order, as some of their cuts, fills and meanders on sloping ground abundantly prove.

When running along the face of a declivity at right angles to the slope they invariably piled the excavated dirt on the lower side. The earth doubtless was transported by means of wicker baskets or in sacks made of rawhide, The ruins antedate the coming of the Spaniards by hundreds of years, possibly a thousand or more, Those canal builders probably lived in low, one-story peublos. Moundlike ruins still are visible in Beaver county, Oklahoma, just across the state line, and in the vicinity of the canals in Kansas.-Detroit News.

Aerial Forest Patrol

Many persons will remember when the pilot and passenger on an airplane were obliged to sit on the edge of a wing with their feet hanging in space. The newest form of cabin is luxurious, both in the machines for passenger travel and those flown for scientific work. The entire forward end of the cabin is enclosed in glass, with broad windows reaching to the floor, so that the pilot and others can look out in all directions while seated in comfortable chairs. This form of airplane is used by the government in forest patrol work and for aerial photography. The camera or instruments used are mounted in this bay window, so that they can command an uninterrupted sweep of the horizon. From any seat in the cabin of such an airplane a marvelous view of the landscape may be en-

REFORE the War, this company installed about 127,000,000 feet of wire each year. Because of the abnormal demands for service during the past several years, it has, during that period, installed an annual average of about 209,000,000 feet of wire. For 1924 it is estimated that 384,100,000 feet will be required, and during the next five year period 1,970,000,000 feet of wire.

Most of this wire is in cables. These cables vary in size from 50 to 2400 wires. The establishment of such cables requires careful surveys and accurate advance planning. Otherwise certain localities where future demands may not be great might be supplied with cable far in excess of their requirements. In such cases valuable plant might continue to lie idle for years. And this idle investment would necessarily place additional costs upon the users of the service.

This necessary preliminary work takes time and involves certain unavoidable delays in the establishment of service. But it is through this procedure that the company is able to operate economically and keep its charges for service at the lowest possible amount.

One of the most prevalent prac tices in this world, is a man "taking his stand" then straining to find evi-dence "to back himself up". In other words, he first does as he pleases, then tries every means of justifying himself. The more prudent and hon-est way, is to first be reasonably sure of being right, before going ahead, but so often the plan does not Many of us have big heads too scantily furnished, in which the contents rattle around, making noise, but little besides. The little genuine gray matter we have has solidified, but we try to pass it off on those about us as genuine heavy intelligence—and sometimes we succeed, in our own household, or in our very limited sphere.

Lots of people have lived too much at home. Travel is what we need-knocking about in the great outside, instead of knocking the things about

As falls and bumps are sometimes good for little children, so are the harder bumps we get after maturity -providing we have not so hardened week, to Detroit, have returned home. our gumption by long practice as not It is reported that they did not like to realize a healthful bump when we

The Wise Young Man.

"Yes," said the old man to his young visitor, "I am proud of my girls, and would like to see them com-fortably married, and as I have made a little money they will not go penni-less to their husbands. There is Mary, twenty-five years old, and a really good girl. I shall give her $1,000 when she marries. Then comes Bet, who won't see thirty-five again, and I shall give her $3,000, and the man who takes Eliza, who is forty, will have $5,000 with her

The young man reflected for a moment and then inquired: "You haven't one about fifty, have you?"

Grammatical, But Untrue.

An Alabama negro, who had spent several years as a servant in New York family, returning to his home, attempted to instruct members of his family in correct usage, especially in their language.

One day at the table his brother said to him:

"Gimme some 'lasses, Sam."
"You musn't say 'lasses," correctl Sam. "You must say molasses." "What is you talkin' bout?" grunted his brother. "How's I gwine to say mo' lasses when I ain't had none yet?"

knocking about in the great outside, instead of knocking the things about in our little world nearby—we hear too much of our own noise.

The thing that best takes the conceit out of one, is to get away from too great familiarity with what we think, and we want. The only help for such cases is to have a head-on collision, occasionally, with those who are unkind enolgh to size us up for our right weight—taking our measure.
