All Plans for the Event are now Nearing Completion.

All details are being completed for the coming Carroll County Fair, at Taneytown, September 16, 17, 18 and 19. Give Your Farm a Name!

A movement is on foot in North Carolina, backed by farm agents and county agricultural associations, give names to farms. It is felt by those active in the idea that it will add to the live-on-the-farm home movement, that should be developed everywhere, and that by every farmer having pride enough in his place to give it a name, will encourage making the Farm names will be conspicuously posted along roadsides, used on letter heads and envelopes, and in connection with advertisements and news items in the local papers. The idea is not a new one, by any means, but the new-ness in the North Carolina case is represented by the comprehensive campaign that is being carried on.

Maryland should take the lead in this movement, in which there is something to gain and nothing to lose. Our state road system lends itself admirably to giving farms the publicity that the names will represent, and will help to make the farms match their improved locations. Let Carroll and Frederick counties take up the iead, and boost it.

Assessments on Automobiles.

Assessments on automobiles will be reduced automatically for the year 1925, without the necessity of applying to the Tax Department, according to announcement on Wednesday by H. M. Lucius, secretary of the Automobile Club of Maryland.

The rate of assessment was given as follows: For the first year, 85 per cent. of the list price; second year, 55 percent of list price; third year, 40 percent. of list price; fourth year, 30 percent. of list price; fifth year, 22 percent of list price.

During the season of 1924 the State Game Department of Maryland distributed in the covers of the State for propagation purposes 3465 bobwhite quail, 18,853 cotton-tail rabbits 70 wild turkey, 674 grouse, 5495 pheasant eggs, and 1914 Hungarian partridges. Carroll county received 105 bob-white quail, 3763 cotton-tail rabbits and 215 pheasant eggs.

A demonstration in preparing the farrowing pen for the brood sow, and the washing of the sow, was given by Wilbert Ruby, Ralph Leister and Hubert Null. A demonstration in dusting of poultry for lice was given by Kenneth Kroh and Paul Bankard. We hope to have these teams give demonstrations at our County Fair.

Boys and girls who are working on projects for raising a calf, poultry flock, acre of corn, potatoes, pure bred pigs are eligible to go to the Univer-sity next August. Now is the time to enroll under one of these projects. Give your name to the County Agent.

The cleaning of the county of Bovine tuberculosis has been started. TO STOP PARKING ON STATE ROADS

One of the Chief Dangers in State Highway Travel.

Steps will be taken immediately by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, E. Austin Baughman, and State Roads Chairman Mackall, to remedy the situation with reference to the parking of motor vehicles along the public roadsides, on the roads right of way.

As explained by the two State officials, motorists are in the habit of parking on the road to view the country or to purchase fruit and soda water from stands along the roads. In almost all cases there is parking space off the road, they explained, but the autoists, expecting to remain parked only a short time, choose to park on the road rather than drive to some safe spot off the highway.

The result of this negligence is an unusual congestion of traffic and in some instances the road is blocked to traffic moving in either direction, they

But this is not the worst of the sit-uation, Mr. Mackall and Mr. Baugh-man said. Accidents in this section are more numerous than on other roads of the State, according to the

"The situation now calls for action" Mr. Baughman said. "It was agreed at the conference that Mr. Mackall should send a man along the road as far as Cumberland to advise all owners of stands along the road that they must insist on autoists parking off the road when they stop to make pur-

"Both Mr. Mackall and I feel that the owners of these roadside stands should provide parking space off the road for their patrons. Unless some sort of parking space can be provided, I shall order my men to keep all automobiles moving, with the result that the stand owners would lose all their business.

"I do not believe, however, that such drastic action is necessary. I am confident when the people understand the vital importance of getting motor-ists to park off the road, thus pre-venting accidents, many of which are fatal, they will cooperate with the two State departments."

T. B. Testing of Cattle.

In co-operation with the State and Federal Government, Carroll County is to start testing cattle for T. B. under what is known as the area plan; that is, take a given area and test every cow, whether milk is being sold from that cow or not.

Under this plan the test is given by Veterinarian under the supervision of the Federal and State Department animals, appraisals not to exceed $75 for grade cows or $150.00 for pure breds. However, no indemnity will be paid for grade bulls. It is the plan at present to start the work in the districts of Berrett and Freedom and work north taking everything in those two districts.

There will be a meeting in Sykesville, Thursday night, August 28, at which time we hope to have a pic-ture from the Federal Department entitled "out of the shadows." At this meeting we will be glad to answer all questions asked in regard to this work

All herds tested under this plan, will be retested, free of charge, until they have passed two clean tests, after which the owner is given an accredited herd certificate. Then in order to keep his herd accredited, he must have it tested once a year at his own expense, but if at any time a reactor is found in his herd, it is taken over by the Government again and tested free of charge

Two Deaths in one Family.

Mr. George W. Foreman, formerly of Littlestown, died suddenly, early on Tuesday at the Elk's Home, Hanover, from acute dilation of the heart and his sister, Mrs. Wm. S. Alleman, died several hours later, at her home in Hanover from a heart attack, likely brought on by the news of her brother's death

Both were children of the late Dr. Foreman, of Littlestown. Mr Foreman had been a hotel clerk, for many years, at various places, and was widely known. His age was about 55

Funeral services of both were held in Littlestown, this Friday morning, in St. Aloysius Catholic Church, by Rev. E. O. Flynn, Pastor. Interment in the Catholic cemetery, Littlestown.

Fire Losses and Rates.

In some of the western states, fire losses from preventable causes, causes partly preventable, far exceed losses percapita in eastern states.

This is probably due to a smaller percentage of fire proof construction and also less efficient water supply and fire fighting apparatus.

For instance, in Oregon the losses from fire laid to carelessness and those originating from partly preventable causes, totaled $19,275,000 in 7 years past.

These figures of the State Insurance Commissioner, on basis of 750,-000 population, would indicate over $16, per capita annual fire loss.

In some of the western states, the annual percapita fire loss is shown to be rapidly increasing. Oregon losses aggregating $8,213,532 during 1923 with insurance paid of $5,357,487 during 1923. Complaint is often heard that insurance rates in one section of the country are lower than in another section. The reason for this is shown by the per-capita loss average in Oregon compared with percapita loss in other states. The rates should be highest where the risk is greatest. Otherwise the careful citizen in one state or city pays for the carelessness of the reckless citizen in another state or city. A continued high loss ratio means eventually higher insurance rates, and vice versa.—The Manu-

A National Principle.

In commenting on the tariff question the Manufacturers Record, of "The tariff always has been a political, a partisan, issue; it should not be so. A protective tariff should be a national principle, regardless of party differences on other lines. A protective tariff is a national necessity to the United States, for the maintenance and continuance of the American standard of living. Shall any person, state or section of the country vote for free trade and deterioration to European or Oriental wages and living standards merely pecause, many years ago, certain prac tical politicians sought an "issue" be-tween two great parties and happen-ed to choose the tariff?"

TOBACCO GROWING IN MARYLAND

May Represent Another Crop to help Make Profit.

Tobacco growers of Frederick and Montgomery counties are profiting by the advance in the price of this commodity. The price was formerly from 2 to 10 cents a pound; the market price Saturday was from 10 to 60 cents per pound.

Maryland tobacco is bringing a record price, according to a Baltimore dispatch, due to the demand for it on the part of cigarette manufacturers. One after another of the most popular brands of cigarettes has turned to a larger and larger proportion of the Marvland leaf. Changes to meet the demand have been made in methods of selecting and curing. At the same time there has been an organized effort made to prove to manufacturers that just the flavor, aroma and sure-burning quality now in demand are found in the Maryland product. Ten years ago practically every pound of Maryland tobacco was sent abroad, most of it to France, and now this proportion has dropped to 50 per cent. The Maryland Tobacco Growers' Association, organized in 1919,has had to rebuild the industry on new

Frederick county tobacco is grown altogether by farmers living in sections of Urbana, New Market and Woodville districts. This is known as the tobacco belt of Frederick county.

These tobacco growers, together with those of Montgomery county, have formed an association known as the Upper Counties Tobacco Growers' Association, which co-operates with the Maryland Tobacco Growers' Association.-Frederick News.

I only believe in advocating economy in public expenditure but in its practical application. I believe in reduction and reform of taxation. I am in favor of protection. I favor the Permanent Court of International Justice and further limitation of armament. I am opposed to aggressive war. I want agriculture and industry on a sound basis of prosperity and equality. Is Your Child Ready for School?

Examination of the children who will enter school this fall and who have been brought to the health conferences that are being held in different parts of the State by the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, has revealed conditions that were not suspected but that would handicap the child very seriously in later life if they were not corrected now. The other day, a bright eyed manly little figure came to the door of one of the conferences, looking for the nurse. There she was standing by the scales and in minute he caught her eye. "Why, Jackie," she said, "how you have improved." Quick as a flash, he slipped out of his little suit; held up his chest and drew a long breath while the nurse placed

The question is not a demanded in that city, states very fanciful one, though perhaps not simply the arbitrary position often road employees would necessitate an worth worrying about now.

There are sections of country where farms have simply been abandoned-poor farms, most of them, but they were once farm homes. And now, even in good localities, the least desirable farms are going begging for owners and tenants. An extension of this condition is probable, and it is serious.

The cause of it largely is that the steady drain of the country, citywards, is having its effect. Industrialism of various kinds has taken away from rural sections the young men who would have made farmers; and now, they have either lost inclination to return, or have forgotten what they did return.

Farming districts can not be repeopled in a year or more, even if the tide should turn toward the farm. The apprentice farmers are dying out, to some extent, permanently. The "know how" must attend farming, or any business to make it successful.

So, while it never pays to borrow trouble, nor to seek causes for complaint, it is yet impossible to shut out its case in the hands of a disinterest- with knowledge that those who pay F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio

The "Big Eats" Disease.

Influencing mankind though the medium of the stomach, is a very old expedient, dating back to Esau and Jacob-if not further. In recent years this influence has been restricted to "eats," instead of to "eats" and "drinks," but it still stands as an attractive expedient—as a short cut to "putting over" some favor, or financial project, through tickling the stomach and bringing about the proper psychological condition.

One would think that but few men would fall for such a transparent scheme as a "mess of pottage" that ages, or votes, which they seek. not only camouflages real intentions, but in all probability leaves a case of indigestion the next day. The answer is, there is a large amount of mere animal in the most of us, and the invitation to an "eat" not only arouses pleasurable gastronomic anticipations but tickles as well that other prominent feature of our make-up-our vanity.

We go to a banquet, not to buy stocks, nor to sell our influence, nor to help boost somebody's pet scheme, but, the chances are, we will. The fact is, REP. if we accept the "eats" and do not reciprocate as expected-well, we have gotten something under false away, for to a certain extent we have acted deceitfully.

Of course, there are many legitimate uses for "big eat" functions. Not The first relates to the salary and ex- all are offered for ends that have a question mark attached to them. Unions and Wages.

A New York Journal, "Printing," published in the interest of printtaken by unions with reference to wages, as follows;

"We are not trying to join the ranks of the calamity howlers, and we feel quite certain that in spite of the loss which the New York industry is sustaining, employers and employes will get together and reason will eventually rule. But so far the officials of Big Six have refused to recognize the facts. They insist that pusiness is constantly improving and that they are justified in bringing about a continual increase in the price of printing, through the continual increasing of wages into practice.

Is Big Six afraid of being put in the position of having to arbitrate a decrease? Is the union determined that arbitration can only work one way-that sauce for the goose may not be sauce for the gander? It looks very much that way.

It will be a sorry day for our people if our government is changed so as to launch it into industrial undertakings, rather than confining its functions to purely governmental afpretenses, and had better have staid fairs as the founders of our country

Agitation for government, or state ownership, of various lines of business and industry, is really for the benefit of the office-holding class only as it cuts off the right of the private citizen to do business in every line taken over by government.

In the agitation for state development of water power resources, monopolistic state laws covering insurance under workingmen's compensation laws, and constant agitation for government ownership of railroads, we see the entering wedges which the destroyers of safe and sane government are trying to drive into our solid constitutional form of government.

The farce of the whole proceeding is, that the proponents of all these destructive measures claim to be carrying on their activity in the interest of the "people" by attacking industries and corporations.

They refrain from saying that if they are successful in their plans they will not only destroy the corporations but they will "destroy the right good." Which Will be the Goat?

Railroad employees want more pay and farmers want lower freight rates. The railroad employees propose to accomplish this for both by having the farmers join with them in support of radical candidates for office.

But how may this be done? Wages paid railroad employees are obtained by the railroads by hauling and charging for such service.

Railroad earnings are such that any substantial increase in wages of railincrease in rates.

On the other hand, any substantial reduction in rates would necessitate a reduction in the wages of railroad em-

How, then, is it possible for both to accomplish the desired end? Is it not self-evident that one faction or the other must lose out? Is it not also self-evident that with railroad labor organized, and the farmers unorganized, the big organized vote would take the turkey and the farmer the crow?

But the radical politician and the labor leaders want more—they want government ownership of the railroads They want this in face of the fact that during federal control, with freight and passenger rates the highest ever known, the railroads were operated at a loss running high in the

Who Wants It?

We are at a loss to understand the reason why the makers of the Republican platform favor a "department of education and relief." Why tag on the "relief?" Just what is included

There is a nation-wide demand for a department of education. Educational associations, women's clubs, chambers of commerce, rotary clubs, Masonic Grand Lodges, civic societies, have put themselves on record as favoring a department of education as provided for in the Sterling-Reed education bill now pending before Congress. But we fail to find a demand anywhere for a department of education and relief.

On the contrary, there is a definite opposition to an inclusion of the "relief" features.

If there are any politicians who expect to profit by the establishment of this department, or if there is any noneducational group that hopes to create a loophole whereby they may slip in and attach themselves to the education movement, we cry a word of warning.

The department of education, when created, will have but one purpose,the promotion of popular education. That will be the sole objective of the department, and every bureau and division within the department will conserve that end.

No tail, no matter how altruistic or appealing it may be, will be allowed to wag the dog.-Scottish Rite News Bureau.

Concerning Gossip

The right sort of gossip is a charming and stimulating thing. Men are generally understood to be less given to this amusement than women, and the most ardent lover of her sex must own that no ordinary husband would go home and tell his wife that he had met Brown wearing a fourth new suit since Christmas. The more restricted interests of the vast majority of women do oblige them to seek distraction where they can find it, which is very often next door or down the street; but nobody can see a man devouring the evening paper without suspecting that this taste in him has only found a different outlet, because every newspaper is interesting to the ordinary with gossip.-From "What I Have Gathered," by J. E. Buckrose.

Unexpected Casualties

Phosphorus bombs and grenades used in practice by the army at the proving grounds at Aberdeen, Md., caused heavy mortality in an unexpected source. After the tests large numbers of dead ducks were found in the neighboring waters of Chesapeake bay. Examination showed that the ducks had eaten fragments of unconsumed phosphorus which had fallen in the water of their feeding grounds. Now they are using devices to frighten the birds away before the tests are made, and the bombs are being exploded either over the land or over water so deep that the ducks do not feed in it. Casualties so far are estimated at 500, and it is feared they may be much greater before all the poison is dissipated.

Formed Ages Ago

On view at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, are three locks of limestone from the slopes of Mount Lebanon, near Beirut, Syria. Their age is estimated at a million years. They were taken from limestone which formed the bed of an ocean which once covered that area. They contain the remains of shellfish and other marine organisms which lived at that time, and which were entombed in the mud at the bottom as they died, thus being preserved as the mud hardened into limestone.

Annie Albano, eight years old and a pupil in the East Boston schools, has been absent from school more than 100 sessions since the opening of the school term, which was little more than half over when the record for truancy was announced. SUNLIGHT BIG AID IN CHICKS' GROWTH

Sunlight, as a direct cure for leg weakness, has been proven successful at the poultry department of the Wisconsin college of agriculture.

Experimental work with young chickens has demonstrated that leg weakness can be entirely prevented by exposing chicks to direct sunlight. Leg weakness is caused by lack of normal development of the bones due to lack of the right kind of feed. Another term applied to the disease is rickets and the scientist claims leg weakness is brought about directly by the absence of the anti-rachitic vitamine in the chick's ration, or in the absence of direct sunlight.

"A remarkable development in animal nutrition is the recognition that light is equivalent or supplementary to the anti-rachitic vitamine," declares J. G. Halpin of the poultry depart-

"Since the ever increasing development of artificial incubation and brooding of chicks, considerable loss has resulted from leg weakness. In order to combat this injurious disease. poultry men must feed a ration which contains the necessary vitamine. This vitamine is present in cod liver oil, eggs, and some other materials. Unless the early chicks can get into direct sunlight or are fed material of this nature, they will be seriously handicapped in their development.

If the chicks cannot be placed out of doors or in direct sunshine, as is the case often with early hatched chicks, suitable additions to the rations should be fed to substitute for the necessary sunlight. A very satisfactory ration has been prepared by Halpin, and consists of the following ingredients.

Yellow corn, 80 parts; middlings, 20 parts; bone, 5 parts; lime rock, 5 parts; salt, 1 part; and skim milk to drink.

This ration is very successful when direct sunlight is supplied.

Regularity in Feeding

Helps Prevent Ailments Chickens are subject to two disturbances of the crop-crop bound and pendulous crop. Pendulous crop is usually due to inflammation of the digestive tract which causes distension of the crop with gas or liquid food. Crop bound is caused by an obstruction of the crop from eating long wilted grass, gorging on grain or a clogging of the lower opening of the crop. In either case it is important to clear the crop. This may be done in the crop-bound bird by making the bird swallow a dose of oil, and after working the crop gently to loosen the mass, suspend the bird by the feetdon't hold them tightly together-and removing the mass from the mouth. Several spoonfuls of warm water with a little soda in it will help. Keep the bird without food for a day, then feed sparingly on soft, easily digested foods or give raw eggs in milk. Regularity in feeding will help prevent crop-bound cases.

Weed Seeds in Scratch

Feeds Is Cause of Loss As a result of high percentages of weed seeds found in scratch feeds the Ohio department of agriculture is cautioning purchasers to watch carefully on the labels for the percentage noted. It is declared by the department that this type of feed loses much of its value when more than 5 per cent consists of weeds. One sample of scratch feed recently analyzed which did not contain the analysis as required by law was found to consist of 25.8 per cent weed seed. The law does not limit the amount of weed seed that may be contained in have coconuts, though this fact is hardly known to the general public, and probably not to all botanists. This is no doubt due to the extreme rarity of these vegetable pearls, for inquiry from a coconut plantation where 3,-000,000 coconuts are opened annually has elicited the reply that not a single pearl has ever been found. It is, therefore, no wonder that so rare an object should be highly prized, and it also accounts for the estimation in which coconut pearls are held by eastern rajahs, who wear them as costly gems. Not that they rival ordinary pearls in beauty or luster, of which, indeed, they have little, but they are far more difficult to obtain.

Like the pearls of the oyster, they are probably a pathological phenomenon. In the case of the ordinary pearls a little inconvenient grain of sand, causing irritation to the oyster, stimulates the latter to secrete around this uncomfortable object a coating of mother-of-pearl, which, gradually increasing layer upon layer, causes the development of a pearl. The coconut pearl, which is formed in a similar way by continued deposition of carbonate of lime around some disturbing center, may grow even to the size of a cherry, and possesses the hardness of an opal.

The first mention in scientific literature of such a concretion in a coconut was made in 1741, and more than a hundred years elapsed before such an occurrence was again recorded, and a description and a chemical analysis of the pearl was given.

It has still to be explained whence the carbonate of lime comes, for normally neither the milk nor the nut contains this substance. Perhaps this may account for the rarity of these pearls. -Exchange.

Why Selenium Is to Play Part in World

Because there is such a lot of it in the moon, selenium is called the "moon-element."

The name of selenium is not new. It has been in the chemistry books for at least a century, but chemists gave it little thought.

Fifty years ago a very significant thing happened in Valentia, where the Transatlantic cable touches dry land for the first time after leaving America. The day was hot and the cable apparatus worked badly. Selenium was part of it, and on examination it was found that this element was playing tricks with the sunshine. It is doing the same thing still, but, whilst 50 years ago they were the tricks of a child, today they are becoming an organized and fascinating game of science which will, within a measurable time-some say one year, some much longer-result in television.

Selenium, in short, enables us to translate light into electricity, and thus to make a star ring a bell and a sunbeam talk! That is to say, wherever a beam of light can penetrate in the days when the secret of selenium is fully revealed, it will be able to carry human intelligence and be the rument of the human will.

Why Writing Is Important

Written language, in the words of the learned Webster, "is the representation of significant sounds by letters or characters, single or combined in words, arranged in due order according to usage." The art of writing is the cornerstone on which rests the fabric of education and culture for it is through this medium that ideas, facts, theories, etc., pertaining to all the realms of human knowledge of past ages and past generations are passed along to succeeding generations. Educators long since came to recognize this fact—that is why we find writing a member of the time-honored trio of R's, universally recognized as embracing the indispensable fundamentals of practical education.—Pathfinder Maga-

How to Keep Shoes in Place To keep shoes always neatly lined in their place, instead of helter-skelter on the floor, or cluttered in shoe-bags, boxes, drawers, or other makeshifts, a neat and simple shoe rack has been designed to screw on the back of a closet door.

The rack is of metal and consists of two bars, one above the other. The lower bar protrudes slightly farther than the upper. The heel of the shoe is hooked over the upper bar, while the toe rests on the lower bar. Thus the shoes are held firmly in place, even if the door should be opened or closed abruptly.

How to Interpret Dreams

Dreams figure largely in the lore of popular superstitions, though there is quite a literature of research into the scientific nature of dreams coming into being.

If a rainbow arches a field where a man is plowing.

And the furrows long to reach to the rainbow's end,

Turning their mellow fragrance up to the morning,
There'll be in that field not only crops to tend.

For something shall grope in the one who turns the furrow
Akin to the roots that in the soil are born. And when he comes to gather all the harvest Something in him will be taller than wheat or corn.

But if the rainbow comes where a man

is plowing,
And seach slow furrow ends at the end of the field,
He may have bounteous crops—but after the harvest.
He'll count his gold, complaining of the yield.

To Mine for Bullets in Old Shooting Park

Perhaps the oddest mine in America is operated in a shooting park on the outskirts of one of our large cities. Millions of leaden pellets that have been discharged from guns in this park during the last 20 years are being recovered. For a dozen years or more nine or ten gun clubs have used the park and it is estimated that during that time the contents of four or five million shells have been discharged at clay pigeons in the inclosure. The guns are gauged to carry about 250 yards to the shore line of the river, on the banks of which the mining machinery has been set up.

The soil on the banks of this river is literally filled with the bullets that have fallen here during the last 20 years. Several tons of lead are said to have settled in the soft earth on the river bank. Allowing for a shrinkage of 25 per cent, it is believed that there are from sixty to seventy-five tons of lead which may be recovered. Pig lead can be sold at a price per ton which will yield a handsome profit.

The lead is taken from the soil by the process of placer mining. The outfit for this work consists of a gasoline engine, a pumphouse, force pump and wooden troughs into which the bullet-incrusted earth is thrown. The lead is separated from the soil by means of running water.

Animal Life Under Desert

There is animal life 200 and 300 feet beneath the burning sands of the Sahara desert. This amazing discovery has been made through experiments of sinking artesian wells at various points. Waters drawn from the great depths were found to contain small crabs, fish and shell-fish, all alive. Usually it has been possible to explain the presence of fish in underground waters in the fact that they were locked up during some primeval cataclysm. Those found underneath the Sahara belong to a species inhabiting the lakes of Palestine. Shafts sunk during the last few years in the Sahara prove there are large sheets of water everywhere. Animals found now cause the belief there is a vast underground sea, densely inhabited.

Brazil Has Odd Bird

A bird that barks like a dog was among the interesting discoveries in Brazil revealed by Capt. S. C. Bullock, who surveyed the Tocantins and Araguaya rivers of North Brazil, in 1922. Captain Bullock describes the bird, as large, like a vulture. It has five talons on each foot, and one on the middle joint of the wings, which measure six feet from tip to tip. It is black except on the breast. Locally the bird is called iuma. It is generally found near a lake, and when frightened it takes refuge in a tree.

Fish Carries Lights

A new species of fish that is brilliantly illuminated and that makes a loud shouting noise when chasing smaller fishes has been discovered in the waters of Monterey bay, Calif., according to Dr. C. W. Greene of the University of Missouri.

Its ability to shout is due to the peculiar construction of its swim bladder, he says.

The fish is said to carry 350 phosphorescent lights.

Clock Run by Radium

A clock equipped with $2,000 worth of radium in a tiny brass tube as the motive power, and which it is believed can operate for 2.500 years without winding, was on display at the convention of the American Medical association at Chicago.

Gold Mine Remains Secret

Smith had lost a leg in an Indian fight and in the course of his wandering found himself at Yuma, then a small military post on the lower Colorado river. With a companion he was en route for California and they struck out toward the west through an uncharted region.

As was to have been expected, they lost their way and one day saw in the distance three conical hills, the central one being the loftiest. In order to obtain an idea of the region to the westward and of the best course to be pursued they climbed the loftlest of the hills and, after studying the landscape and deciding in what direction to direct their steps, had their attention attracted by some roughly shaped, blackened fragments of metal, which upon examination proved to be solid gold. The ground was thickly strewed with them. Filling their pockets, they resumed their journey, after having made landmarks that might serve as guides in the future, when they planned to return and make themselves wealthy.

But they never returned. They were in a barren and waterless region, and while staggering over the sands, crazed with thirst, Smith's companion finally gave up the ghost, as have so many others who have in the past essayed to cope, while ill-equipped, with the hardships of the desert. Smith brought up in the Sisters of Mercy hospital in Los Angeles, having been found unconscious by the roadside of some passing Good Samaritans.

The suffering that he had undergone proved too much for him and finally it became the duty of the attending physician to inform him that his days were numbered. When assured of this fact he related the story of the gold discovery to the doctor and gave him the nuggets that remained in his pocket. The doctor and many others later on made several attempts to find the lost mine, but unsuccessfully .- Adventure Maga-

Early Christians Hid in Catacombs of Rome

The catacombs of the early Christians of Rome consisted of long, narrow galleries, usually about eight feet high and five feet wide, branching off in all directions, forming a perfect maze of corridors. When one story was no longer sufficient, staircases were made, and a second line of galleries was dug out beneath. The graves, or loculi, to receive the bodies, were cut into the walls of the gallery, one above another. They were closed laterally by a slab, on which there was occasionally a brief inscription or a symbol, such as a dove, an anchor or a palm branch, and sometimes all of these. Some of the inscriptions and epitaphs were beautifully carved, some merely scratched on the slab, and others were painted in red and black. In later times beautiful frescoes were common, in which were indicated the Christian faith and

It is now regarded as certain that in times of persecution the early Christians frequently took refuge in the catacombs, since burial places had the right of protection by law, and they also gathered there to celebrate in secret the ceremonies of their religion.-Detroit News.

All of the Wheat

Do you know the difference between whole wheat and graham flour? Well, there isn't any. In 1889 Dr. Graham started an agitation for the unbolted whole wheat and gave his name to the product. Graham flour and whole wheat are identically the same product. Both mean the whole of the wheat berry ground up after cleaning it. There may be some difference between various graham flours because they are made from different kinds of wheat, or they may be ground to different degrees of finenesss, but otherwise they are alike. All contain the bran and vitamine that make wheat so valuable a food.

Temperature

A state commission in New York that has been studying the matter of ventilation says that an indoor temperature higher than 67 degrees is prejudicial to health and efficiency. "An increase from 68 to 75 degrees," says the report, "caused a decrease of 15 per cent in the work done by workmen who were stimulated by a cash bonus. An increase of temperature from 68 degrees to 86 degrees when the relative humidity was 80 caused a reduction of 28 per cent in the work done, in spite of the bonus offer."-Youth's Companion.

MELROSE.

A son of Clarence Zepp, of near here, made a curious find last week. His pet dog, "Fannie," was seen to be very busy one day, upon investigation it'was found the dog was carrying hen eggs from a nest in a meadow one by one, in her mouth, to her dog kennel at home.

Truly, all roads led to Wentz's Union Sunday School celebration on Sat-urday the 16th. Although there were several picnics not far away, at least 500 people had gathered to hear the good program of recitations, drills, solos, duets and songs—a regular feature of the school for a half century or more. Three ministers were present, Rev. Reimeyer, pastor of the Emmanuel Lutheran Church, of Manchester; Rev. Reneicke, of the Reformed Church of Krider's and Bachman's; and Rev. Wachter, of the U.B. Churches of Manchester and Bixler's, all of them pleased the audience by their short, helpful and interesting speeches. The Pleasant Hill Cornet Band of 24 pieces furnished excellent music. A young son of Mr. Charles Hersch, member of the school, played some excellent selections on the saxaphone. There were nearly 500 suppers served, truly a large community service, everything salable was sold. Total receipts were $369.99, and af-Total receipts were $369.99, and after all expenses were paid, the sum of $150.00 goes to the credit of the school. The evening program drew even a larger crowd. It was truly an "Old Tyme picnic," pleasing both old and young alike. The committee and school, and all connected, desire to publicly thank all who in any way helped to make this big community affair a great success. There are some dishes at the school-house unclaimed. The owners will please call for them next Sunday, when the school will meet in the afternoon, There were 46 present on the Sunday after

Rev. Paul Horch, once a member of Wentz's Union Sunday School, for the past few years filling the pulpits of several Pennsylvania churches, with his family and a friend, motored to the old-time picnic to meet and greet his many friends of his boyhood days, near Sherman's church.

Many of us look back on some trip we made, perhaps a long time ago, whose impressions remain with us a life-time. There were 211 residents of the sister states, Pennsylvania and Maryland, from the lower part of York County, along the bus line to Hampstead, who filled nine of the McMahon buses, the largest excursion in the history of the company, to visit the world-renouned Mt. Vernon and important places in beautiful Washington, the capital city of our nation, under the able supervision of Messrs John Hundredmark and Walter Sullivan, our regular bus chaueffers, made the trip successfully from 5:30 A. M., to 9:30 P. M., taking the satisfied sight-seeing crowd through the wellplanned program, home through a per-fect moonlight evening to dream of the trip that was impressed on their minds to remain for a life-time. Among many things in historical Mt. Vernon was the Old Grandfather's Clock, belonging to Gen. Washington since the 17th. century, as well as the bullet-holes in the coat of the man who was never hurt during all his struggles to free America from tvrannical foes. The Capitol as well other important buildings, with the aid of competent guides, was enjoyed by the excursionists. Youthful Prodigy Has Temperament of Genius

Nini Rota Rinaldi of Milan is three-in-one prodigy-musician, composer and conductor. When eleven, Nini composed an oratorio-"The Childhood of Saint John the Baptist"-which has been pronounced by those who know a very excellent thing. Be that as it may, the youthful composer came something of a cropper recently at Tourcoing, France, when he attempted to lead an orchestra of 250 musicians in the rendition of his composition. The musicians, at least some of them, did not measure up to Nini's conception of what a musician should be. Perhaps the musicians themselves did not take kindly to the idea that "a little child shall lead them." In any event a false note or two from some careless member of the 250 brought Nini's artistic temperament into play. He criticised and protested, stormed and perhaps cursed. No one knew just what anathemas he was calling down upon the erring orchestra. He quit in a fury after less than five minutes and could not be persuaded to try again. He did finally come before the audience and complain that the orchestra

Pin Holes in Steel

Making an adding machine required the drilling of ten holes in a plate a thirty-second of an inch thick, each hole to be accurate to a thousandth of an inch, yet no bigger than a pin in diameter, says the Detroit News. Such a problem stopped the manufacture of the machine on a commercial basis until the inventor of the calculator could invent a means of solving it. The result was a most ingenious machine that stands about twelve inches high.

The drill which was built carries ten spindles, each holding a drill of No. 6 Morse gauge, which is about the size of the pin of ordinary use. Each little sliver of steel that does the work is driven by a belt operating through a cam head and therefore works at the same speed as that of its neighbors. The actual drilling requires ten

Access to some of the monasteries overlooking the sea is so difficult that visitors have been drawn up in a sack-shaped contrivance oper ated by rope. Caught a Monkey Stealing

One day in 1910 a well-dressed man, wearing a heavy overcoat, entered a Jeweler's shop in London and asked to be shown some valuable rings. Those shown him, he said, were not quite good enough, and he asked to be shown another tray. As the attendant went to get it he glanced in the mirror specially set to show the counter when his back was turned, and, to his amazement, saw a long, hairy arm suddenly come out of the customer's pocket, seize a couple of rings, and vanish.

Assistance was quickly summoned, and the man and monkey arrested. His rooms were found filled with all sorts of valuable objects which had been stolen by this clever monkey.

Lion Lucerne

The Lion of Lucerne is a famous piece of sculpture by Albert Thorwaldsen, commemorating the heroism and devotion of nearly eight hundred Swiss guards, who died to save Louis XVI, in the attack on the Tuileries, August 10, 1792. The colossal figure of the crouching lion, transfixed and dying, but still faithfully defending the shield of France, is carved in a recess in the face of an upright, vine-draped rock in a little park at Lucerne, Switzerland. A commemorative inscription, with the names of the officers killed, is cut in "e redi.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

A FTER all, Heaven is just a vision of the Heart's Desire—and it is pretty safe to judge a man by his idea

The most interesting woman in the world, to a man, is the bad little girl with one virtue or the good little girl with one vice. Very often, the girl who could offer a man "the real goods" in all those him for lack of "good salesmanship." When a married pair reach the quarreling stage, they can't be deterred by a little thing like the lack of a casus belli; if they can think of nothing else, they can scrap quite merrily as to who has the sweeter disposition. A girl doesn't encourage her sultor to ask Father's consent, nowadays; not because she's afraid Father won't be able to control his temper, but because she's afraid he won't be able to restrain his enthusiasm.

It is quite possible that the most persuasive thing the Serpent said to Eve was, "How can you be happy in this place—with nothing to worry about, nobody to make you suffer?"

Somehow, the moment a man has surrendered the key of his heart to a woman, he begins to think about changing the lock.

Alas, why is it that as soon as a man and woman begin to love each other, they begin to think up ways of making each other suffer for it? (© by Helen Rowland.)

Extract From the "Lonely Hearts" Column:

In reply to Melisande, we would advise her to be extremely careful about forming promiscuous acquaint-anceship with strange avieurs. But, as she says, it is extremely difficult to cut a man dead after one has wept on his shoulder. While making all due allowances for a little natural hysteria on the part of an avieuse who has fallen out of her machine, we do not think the man was entirely to blame for thinking she enjoyed the close prox-imity of his shoulder. However, we are sure no gentleman would seek to follow up such an unconventional adventure, uninvited.

From the Same:

No, Joyce, we do not think the avieur in the Gnome machine is in love with you because he waved his goggles to you as you were milking the cows. See first part of answer to Melisande. Urges Smaller Cities to Widen Through Streets

"Widen and open up necessary arterial streets and avenues to handle present and future motor vehicle traffic now," is the recommendation of Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile association.

Mr. Henry feels that one of the most important fields of club activities is to co-operate in every way possible with the traffic authorities of the various cities in the solution of problems relative to handling the constantly increasing traffic. The question, he points out, not only involves expediting traffic but also the saving of lives.

"Practically all of our cities and larger, towns were planned before the days of the motor vehicle," he said in a recent bulletin. "Many cities and towns were developed to their present proportions without any plan. With narrow streets or without an adequate number of connected thoroughfares from the suburbs to the heart of the city, traffic authorities in the majority of our cities are staying awake nights wondering how they are going to handle the present day motor traffic. Temporary expediencies such as more traffic officers and one-way streets are adopted with the realization that these measures are not going to meet the situation a year or two from now with the corresponding increase of traffic which has been noted during the last few years.

"The question of solving local traffic problems can be answered by a scientific study of the needs of a city and how they may be met.

"The lesson which the larger cities are learning from experience, should prompt smaller cities and towns to begin their city planning to take care of future motor vehicle traffic now and not wait until it becomes imperative and the cost of widening and connecting streets becomes almost prohibi-

Clean Up Back Yards

A national movement for cleaning up the unsightly "back yards" of cities, which they exhibit to travelers along railroad rights of way, has been ailed it. The nature of "Zeekoe's" inaugurated by the industrial division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Industrial commissioners of all railroads in the United States will cooperate with the industrial realtors in the clean-up campaign. Commercial associations and civic organizations in the cities will be asked to take an active part in making the right of way outlook represent their cities fairly to the traveling public.

Appalling neglect that industries throughout the country, especially in the smaller communities, give to that part of their properties visible from the right of way, is emphasized by the division in outlining its program. The exposure of piles of ashes, rubbish and junk is no way to build up interest in the community on the part of passers through the town who might become permanent residents, the division contends.

Together with the clean-up campaign, the division calls attention to the desirability of enabling the traveler to identify easily the town through which he is passing.

Intercity exchange of business in industrial real estate is another matter which the division is studying. Joseph Kramer, Dayton, Ohio, is chairman of the committee which is developing the possibilities in such an interchange. The division is also studying the best ways of developing the industrial districts of cities.

Trees to Displace Signs

Trees to beautify the scenery along motor routes in place of billboards is the goal of the Colorado Springs Automobile club, writes a correspondent to the Christian Science Monitor. Threats of the club to tear down all signs persisting in violation of law resulted in removal of many unsightly signs by owners, and the club members themselves removed many from Ute pass, one of the most famed spots in the Rockies, whose disfigurement has been much criticized by citizens and visitors.

The Pikes Peak Ocean-to-Ocean highway and the new motor highway to the summit of Pikes peak both lead to the region beyond the Rockies. The Ute Indian came from the other side of the range through this pass to the famous mineral springs of Manitou, in the olden days.

An order has been placed by the club for 10,000 trees, now seedlings, to be planted in its nurseries and later transplanted along the main roads leading into Colorado Springs. This act alone has won many friends for the club and much co-operation in its activities.

Loss in Home Ownership

Only twenty out of the forty-eight states of the Union showed an increase in home ownership during the years from 1900 to 1920, the leading states being, in order, North Dakota, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, Utah, Maine, New Mexico and Michigan. It is interesting to note that out of the ten leading states, only one, Maine, is located in the extreme eastern part of the country, and Wisconsin and Michigan are the only representatives of the middle western states.

The Reel

MARTIN STATEMENT OF THE We gathered in an ancient house, the folks far and near,

To dance in rooms untenanted for many a lonely year,

And when the hour of midnight struck, paused not for bite or sup,

But bade the fiddler play a reel to wind the revels up the revels up.

As faster o'er the fiddle-strings old

Anson drew the bow,

And up and down the dusty boards our feet went to and fro,

A faint perfume of lavender around us seemed to steal,

We sensed a presence from the past, come out to join the reel.

The candles flared along the wall, and from the shadows grew

A gleam of powder and of pearls, a gown brocaded blue;

The door upon its hinges swung, our very hearts stood still,

For lo! a misty martial form came gliding o'er the sill—

A gallant youth in sword and sash and

A gallant youth in sword and sash and epaulets arrayed, Who stepped in answer to the tune beside the blue brocade.

Was that the tap of little heels, the clank of rusty steel,
The rustle of a silken skirt, as Anson played the reel?

Still dancing down the room they went, and through the portal wide,
The ring of flying hoofs arose and in the distance died.
As when he clasped her waist of yore and swung her to his steed,
And sped to where the parson stayed, the marriage lines to read.
We saw the withered crimson rose that nestled at her throat;
We saw a tarnished cord of gold that once adorned his coat,
The tokens of an old romance of lovers brave and leal, brave and leal, Who once within the ancient house had gayly danced the reel.

Tennis Ball Too Much for Hippo's Digestion

"Zeekoe," a big hippopotamus at the Cincinnati zoo, has a skin that will turn a bullet, but the animal was recently killed by a tennis ball. The animal had acquired the habit of opening its mouth for the reception of peanuts and like dainties hurled through the bars of his cage and some time ago some thoughtless person took a shot at the cavernous opening with a tennis ball.

The animal swallowed it easily, but the ball interfered with the operation of its stomach and for four days it suffered intense agonies and finally died, says the Providence Journal. The attendants of the institution were at a loss in trying to treat the animal for lack of information as to what complaint was not definitely known until revealed by the post-mortem examination.

Legislative Oddities

The French chamber of deputies has two sensational novelties. A deputy who addressed it in German, or the kind of German spoken in Alsace, and a deputy clad in the Breton variety of the garb of old Gaul. The former is M. Hucher, Communist deputy from Alsace, who is obliged to talk German because he cannot talk anything else, and the latter is the Liberal deputy from Mordhan, a farmer named Joseph Cadic, who lives in Pontivy. M. Cadic wears the local festival costume, consisting principally of a kind of eton jacket with a waistcoat of white cloth, both elaborately embroidered in red. The rest of the garments are of black silk.

Monkeys Test Money

Owing to the spread of counterfeit coins in Siam, monkeys are being employed in the banks to test the spurious currency, it is reported. Installed behind the counters, the monkeys test the coins between their teeth. If good, no marks are left on the metal, and the coins are thrown into a box at the animal's side. Should the coins be bad, the metal bears visible marks and is thrown on the floor, later to be swept up and destroyed .- Popular Mechanics Magazine.

FIRE-WALKERS TRAVERSE HOT STONES UNHARMED .-The rite of fire-walking, known among the natives of Tahiti as "umuti," is described and explained in a pamphlet issued by the American Musuem of Natural History.

The ceremony is performed by a priest for the purpose of insuring good crops, and consists of walking several times with naked feet over a bed of stones which have been heated until red by a fire from beneath. A shallow pit, two feet deep, is dug. Wood is placed in the bottom of the pit and on it are arranged about 200 round stones in two or three layers. Wood is lighted and burned about four hours beneath the stones until they are glowing.

The priest appears bearing a large spray of ti leaves in his hands. He passes about the fire, uttering a sort of incantation for protection; then, beating the nearest stones three times with the ti leaves, proceeds with due dignity, but, it must be admitted, rather hurriedly, over the center of the pile. As he walks he is followed by those disciples who have courage to make the attempt under his directions.

The spectacle of the fire-walker is a very interesting one, inasmuch as an apparent impossibility is performed with such evident lack of injury. A close examination, however, showed that the stones used were basalt, of volcanic origin, the most noticeable feature of which is its non-conductibility. It was found that a stone could be heated red-hot at one end while the other end remained comparatively cool. However, this feature does not appear to trouble the native, who regards the ceremony with the greatest reverence.

How Deadly Mosquito Spreads Yellow Fever

Details of the life of the only species of mosquito which has been shown to transmit yellow fever have been bared by a government scientist. It is a small form, well known in the tropics and is strikingly marked. Its long association with man is shown by many of its habits. The insect approaches stealthily from behind, retreats upon the slightest alarm and usually attacks the undersides of the hands or wrists. It gives no warning, whereas other mosquitoes have a piping or humming note. The pest hides wherever it can, concealing itself in garments, working into pockets and under lapels of coats, and crawling up under the clothes to bite its victim .-Popular Mechanics Magazine.

How Oil's Odor Is Removed

Kerosene, as first produced from coal in 1857, was found to be capable of deodorization and decolorization by treatment with concentrated sulphuric acid, and this is the general process in use at the larger refineries. The acid reacts upon the unsaturated compounds, sulphur and nitrogenous compounds, forming substances which dissolve largely in the acid. Shrinkage of the oil treated may vary from almost nothing up to 10 per cent or more, depending on the oil being refined. After treatment with acid, thorough washing and neutralization with caustic soda is always necessary. Other substances for neutralizing the acid sulphonates are soda ash, lime, silicate of soda and sodium plumbite.

How Some Birds "Nest" Martins and wrens, which once made their homes in hollow trees exclusively, now prefer the bird boxes erected by kindly human beings when they can find those that have not been used by the English sparrow.

The whippoorwill, night hawk and all of their family make no nest, but deposit their eggs directly on the ground or upon the dead leaves which cover it.

The little Parula warbler makes its nest almost invisible by placing it in the midst of a bunch of moss, near some tree from which it is practically indistinguishable.—Nature Magazine.

How Clearing House Works

The operations of the New York clearing house are exactly the same in principle as those of a bank clearing house, with the exception that stock certificates are exchanged (cleared), instead of checks and drafts. A sheet is made out by each member and presented to the clearing house every day before 7 p. m. On one side is entered the list of stocks to be delivered and their full market value, and on the other side is entered the list of stocks to be received and their full market

How Dog Aided Criminals

Dogs are easier to teach than most animals, and for that reason are favorites with criminals. A couple of pickpockets owned an enormous mastiff which they trained to dash up to anyone whom they indicated and, apparently with a playful bound, knock him The two would rush up and, with profuse apologies for their dog's carelessness, raise the fallen person from the ground. While they were doing so, the victim's watch and chain and money, and anything else of value, would be skillfully taken.

Countess Introduced

Quinine Into Spain Quinine is obtained from the powdered bark of the cinchona tree. Early in the Seventeenth century the countess of Cinchon and her husband went to live at Lima, in Peru, the count having been appointed viceroy. In one of the provinces grew a tree the bark of which was said to cure fever. The governor of the province, hearing some years later that the countess had contracted the dread disease, sent her a parcel of the bark. It cured her and later, on returning to Spain, she took with her quantities of the drug. In spite of prejudice, its use became popular. The trees from which it was obtained were gradually being used up and the drug became expensive.

In 1860 Sir Clement Markham organized an expedition to Peru to collect plants of the cinchona with the idea of introducing their culture into India, where it was thought they would grow well and where the use of the drug would be beneficial in view of the climatic conditions being so conducive to fever.

Although the plants died on the way to India, the seeds survived and now there are flourishing plantations in Burma and Ceylon; while more recently the tree has been cultivated with success in Jamaica and South Africa.-London Tit-Bits.

Books of Ancient Roman Writers Not Protected

No law of copyright protected the interests of authors; and when the works of Cicero, produced by experienced copyists whom Atticus had purchased, were circulated in Italy and Greece, there was nothing to prevent an enterprising tradesman from employing his own slaves to pirate, with gross blunders, the authorized edition. The booksellers' shops were situated mainly in a street called the Argiletum, which abutted on the north of the Forum, not far from the Rostra. The books were written on papyrus imported from Alexandria, and were mounted on wooden rollers. The titles of new publications were posted upon pillars outside the shops; but their best advertisement, apart from the reputation of the writer, was the praise of his friends, when their judgment was known to be sound. Their prices, considering that they were produced by hand, seem remarkably low; handsome copies of the first book of Martial's epigrams were sold for five denarii—about four shillings—a charge which the author thought excessive.—T. Rice Holmes, in "The Roman Republic and the Founder of the "Wall street" is regarded the world over as a synonym of "high finance"; yet it has been quite as permanently associated in its history with coffee. Wood Duck Leads in Beauty

No duck in America surpasses the wood duck for beauty and variety of color. It loves warm weather and precedes even the teal in its migration to the southland. The female will occupy the discarded nest of any bird in a hollow tree or make a new one in any suitable place near the water. She often returns to the same nest year after year.

The hole which admits her to the nest appears many times too small for a bird of half her diameter, but she enters with ease. When the ducklings are ready to swim they jump instinctively into the water, if the nest be above it, but if it be some distance from the water, she carries them to it in her bill.-Detroit News.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—The New Birth.

The subject of the conversation with Nicodemus was the new birth. This topic had peculiar significance in the light of Nicodemus' station in life. He was a learned rabbi, a doctor of the law and presumably a man of good character. His coming by night indicates his timidity. Like Joseph of Arimathaea he was afraid to openly espouse the cause of the new Teacher of Galilee lest he be put out of the

1. The Necessity of the New Birth (vv. 1-7).

It is not a matter of choice as to whether one is to be born again but of necessity if he is ever to see the Kingdom of God. Regeneration is the first demand the Gospel of Christ makes upon men. The reasons for this

1. The Kingdom of God is a spiritual Kingdom; therefore there must be a spiritual birth in order to enter it. (v. 3). As we enter the physical kingdom by a natural birth, so we enter the Kingdom of God by a supernatural birth.

2. The nature which we get through the natural birth is radically and essentially bad. Christ declares that that which is born of the flesh is flesh (v. 6). In Galatians 5:19-21, Paul gives a catalogue of the works of the flesh. The flesh cannot be improved (Jer. 13:23). Culture and educate, do all you please, and it still remains flesh. Furthermore, in order to enter into the kingdom of heaven there must be a nature fitted for heaven. There is nothing that can be substituted for the new birth. Men are trying to substitute morality and education for the new birth. Nicodemus possessed these; yet Christ declared that he needed something more. Regeneration is the act of God through the Holy Spirit which quickens a man from spiritual death and plants within him God's own nature (II Pet. 1:4).

II. The Mystery of the New Birth

Its process is mysterious, but its results are definite. You may not be able to discern from whence the wind cometh or whither it goeth, but you know that it blows by its effects. The fruit of our lives demonstrates our nature, whether it is heavenly or carnal. We need not be told that we have physical birth for our bodies with their various faculties in exercise prove it. Even so the presence within us of a nature which has no affinity for the things of the world, a strong affection for God and a disposition to yield prompt obedience to His commands, proves that we have been born from above. Galatians 5:22, 23, is an infallible test.

III. The Ground Upon Which the

New Birth Rests (vv. 14-18). Christ's atoning death on the cross makes regeneration possible. He took the place of sinners. His infinite merit was placed to their account. He suffered in the sinners' stead. Just as the Israelites had only to look on the brazen serpent in the wilderness so the sinner must look to Christ uplifted upon the cross. See Num. 21:4-9, John 12:32, II Cor. 5:21, I Pet. 2:24. Our salvation cost on the part of God the giving up of His only begotten Son and on the part of Christ the sufferings and shame of the cross.

IV. For Whom Salvation Was Provided (vv. 16, 17). "Whosoever believeth on Him."

These verses give in a condensed form the whole plan of salvation. Ob-

The Source-God so loved. The Ground—the death of Christ.

3. The Recipients-whosoever. How Appropriated-believing in Him.

6. Results-should not perish; everlasting life.

V. Men's Attitude Toward Christ (vv. 18-21).

1. Some Believe and Are Saved. Those who believe are now free from condemnation (John 5:24).

2. Some Will Not Follow and Are Resting, Therefore, Under the Condemnation of God. The cause of their unbelief in Him is their love of sin.

"Speculation Vs. Certainties"

When they asked the dying Faraday, "what are your speculations?" he replied that he was not "pillowing his head on any speculations." Said he, "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed to Him against that day."-Exchange.

August 24 How Selfishness Shows Itself-How *Overcome It Genesis 13:1-18

Our choices afford a true index to our character. Lot's choice indicates the selfish character of the man. He took advantage of his uncle's generosity. When given the choice of land "he lifted up his eyes and beheld all the plain of Jordan." That was all that he saw—the plain of Jordan, and an opportunity to "get rich quick." He jumped and fell. He chose all the plain of Jordan and pitched his tent towards Sodom, a wicked city. The ultimate result was disaster, and the loss very heavy. In chapter 19, the record tells us that he lost everything coperty, home, wife, daughtersall that he had went down in destruction, death, and moral disaster, and all because of his self-centeredness. While Lot was occupied with the things that are seen, he forgot or ignored "the things not seen as yet." He secured the desire of his heart, but only to see it turn to ashes. He is a picture of the foolish Christian suffering loss, though he himself be saved, yet so as by fire.

The factors contributing to his folly are easily seen. They serve as a warning against selfishness. First, there is limited vision. He saw the plain of Jordan, but not beyond it. He stands as a striking contrast to Abraham, who saw not only earthly things but "the city that hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." In order to overcome selfishness and avoid foolish choices we must look not only at things present, but at things to come, remembering that the things seen are temporal, but the things not seen are eternal.

Again, he chose his abode near to a city fast ripening for judgment and destruction. He chose Sodom, and he had Sodom with all its glitter and glare, and with all its sin and corruption. Doubtless, he protested against its lawlessness and lust, but his testimony was disregarded and even mocked. His daughters married men of Sodom who treated Lot's message of warning and destruction with contempt. Like worldly Christians Lot had neglected prayer. When God's word of judgment and destruction concerning Sodom was uttered, the only man to make intercession was Abraham, who lived not inside, but outside of the city. The separated Christian is the one who has the disposition and heart to pray.

Limited vision, worldliness, lack of fellowship with God, lie behind and account for the selfishness of Lot. The lesson is obvious—overcome these things and selfishness itself is over-

Wide Variation in

Vitality of Seeds

In the past there was perhaps no other trade in which swindling was so rampant as in that of the sale of seeds. The artless dealer of half a century ago adulterated his goods by adding a considerable proportion of

The seed adulteration act put a stop to that practice, but not to the sale of dirty and old seeds. Most seeds are "dirty" when fresh gathered-that is. they contain a considerable percentage of weed seed, and all the great seed houses possess elaborate and costly machinery for cleaning, says London Answers.

Clover seed has to be carefully cleaned. If this is not done the result will be a crop of all kinds of pernicious weeds in the clover field. Some weed seeds, such as those of the dodder, are so tiny that it is almost impossible to detect them except under a strong magnifying glass.

Seeds vary in their powers of retaining life. While those of peas and beans will retain vitality for many years, others, such as those of the parsnip, are useless if kept over one season. Seeds of the willow and the poplar are so short-lived that unless they land at once in a moist place, they die in a few days.

Birds as Prophets

In early days superstitious people paid considerable attention to the birds and their different cries, which were believed to foretell events. Thus comes the old saying: "A little bird told me." Traces of this belief are to be found in our own Old Testament. where verse 20 of chapter 10 of Ecclesiastes speaks of "for a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter." It is generally agreed that it is from this belief in the universal knowledge of birds, which, of course, are supposed to see everything from the sky-that we get this saying.

In the Highlands

Mornings of heavenly freshness on the trail, canyons on canyons, peaks beyond peaks, ridges beyond ridges; sweet scents of balsam and pine; stormy sunrises and wistful sunsets; lakes lying blue in hidden hollows or trembling to sudden silver as the wind went by-quiet lyings awake at night, solemn glories of sunset peaks; communions with friendly trees; chatterings of brooks; singings of creeks, and roaring of rivers; ghostly snow-glimmer by starlight; peaks in solemn ranks against the sky .- J. Smeaton

Smaller Cities Are Now Coming Into Their Own

America is showing a distinct reaction from the tendency toward big cities. The modern methods of telephonic and telegraphic communication, the railways and street cars, the lighting and sewage systems that made great cities possible now are helping the large cities to develop residential and industrial suburbs. The automobile has tended to take the people back to the country. In all our larger cities people who can fight congestion by moving away from the downtown districts are doing so.

The tendency to centralize business and industry and higher education in a few great centers is giving place to the more sensible plan of distribution. New York, for instance, once the clothing center of this country, has strong rivals in Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati and other cities. Shoe manufacturing and other industries also are scattering. Boston as the center of American culture has lost its laurels to a thousand and one cities. But the tendency toward the cities during the last twenty-five years has not halted, though the drift to the few bigger cities has been less pronounced.

The chances of a city the size of Cedar Rapids are better today than ten years ago. The complex social and industrial problems of the metropolitan centers are turning the attention of large business enterprises to small cities. The economic struggle in the great cities tends to make the wage earners look toward the smaller cities, where opportunities for home life and contentment are greater.

The smaller city is coming into its own. The gigantic city has not proved to be the most successful experiment in civilization. The chances of success and happiness in any good city of from fifty to one hundred thousand population are greater than in the very large city.—Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Gazette.

The Home Instinct

The late President Harding frequently emphasized a fine old Amerideal—that every American should have an opportunity to live decently and in comfort in his own

It is a tradition among Anglo-Saxons that a man's home is his castle. And the law recognizes certain definite rights of privacy within the home. The home instinct is one of the soundest safeguards of American democracy.

To those who would like to build a home for themselves, but think it too much of a "task," there are several safe ways to commence. And once started it becomes a fascinating game. (Men have even been known to forsake an occasional game of golf on account of their interest in watching the new home grow.)

Architects offer a wise starting point, whether the home is to be large or small. Reputable contractors have a great deal of experience and helpful advice to offer. Good dealers in lumber and woodwork also prove helpful in the preliminaries—as well as in securing the best material to go into the house at fair prices.

Better Homes

Approximately 1,000 better home demonstrations were held in cities, towns and villages in America in cooperation with the "Better Homes in America" movement, figures compiled by that organization show.

It is estimated that fully 2,000,000 persons attended these demonstrations, in connection with which educational campaigns were conducted in newspapers and magazines.

Ordinarily the committee in charge of the demonstrations was made up of representatives of the leading civic organizations of the community. Architects, realtors, merchants, builders, interior decorators and dealers in each of the articles necessary for the construction or equipment of houses co-operated.

In almost every instance where such expositions have been held, the result has been an organized movement to repeat the better home demonstrations.

Your Value to Community

If you are between the ages of twen ty and forty you have an economic value of from $1,000 to $10,000 to the community in which you live. That value is based on your capacity to add to the wealth of the community.

Of course this takes into consideration the fact that we all live in healthful surroundings.

"These surroundings are not a dream; they can be a reality in your community, and at a very small cost per capita," says L. L. Lumsden in his article, "Bringing Health to the Country Dweller," in Hygeia.

Community Health

Every community has it largely within its power to make its health whatever it wills it to be. Every city in the country that has a low death rate and a good health record has definitely gone after that desirable end. Undesirable health conditions are not due to chance, either. They are due to neglect, indifference and inefficiency. Most of the less serious communicable diseases are subject to control and practical elimination. Selma (Ala.) Times-Journal.

recent visitors to the Solomon islands. in the south Pacific, have brought back a story about the introduction of party politics into a picturesque island called Madang. Under the inspiration of some forward-looking citizens who had acquired contact with American politics during their residence in Hawaii, the population has ranged itself into two parties, designated the republicans and the democrats. The republicans live in the hill country, are unsympathetic to white people, and cling fiercely to their own ancient lights. Undoubtedly, politics and gambling do enter to some extent, into business outlooks and prices. When business becomes suspicious of administrative policies—tariff changes, for instance —there is apt to be a waiting policy, to see what happens; and when in any way public confidence is shaken, future prospects have a depressing effect. But, in the matter of wheat and corn, there is no getting away from the effect of the world's supply, and the world's demand, and "gamb-ling" plays an inconsequential figure in their prices, except for brief peri-ods when "corners" are made.
