

DR. LUTHER KEMP VICTIM OF PARALYSIS

Stricken in His Auto While Returning Home at Night.

Dr. Luther Kemp, of Uniontown, one of the best known of Carroll County's physicians, was found unconscious from a stroke of paralysis, early Monday morning, by William Bowers who was on his way to New Windsor with a load of milk.

Dr. Kemp had been summoned to the home of Pierce Zile, near Marston, on Sunday evening, with Dr. L. K. Woodward, of Westminster, and after treating the case left for his home in Uniontown about 8:30.

Dr. Kemp was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Kemp, of Taneytown. He spent his boyhood days in Taneytown and attended the local schools, afterwards engaging in teaching at Detour, having in view earning money for entering the medical profession.

He was twice married, his first wife who died some years ago having been Miss Sallie Weant, of Detour. His second wife, who survives him, was Miss Alice Lamb, of Uniontown.

Dr. Kemp was not only known as a successful physician with a large practice, but was prominent in other ways in the county. At the time of his death he was vice-president of the Carroll County Savings Bank, and an Elder in Baust Reformed Church, a position in which he had served for 36 years.

He had also at different times been prominent in Republican politics in Carroll County. He was the first president of the State Camp of Maryland, P. O. S. of A., twenty-eight years ago. He was a member of Plymouth Lodge A. F. & A. M., of Union Bridge; also of Camp No. 7, P. O. S. of A., Pleasant Valley, and the Red Men, I. O. M., and Modern Woodmen, of Uniontown.

His age was 62 years, 6 months, 7 days. Funeral services were held this Friday morning, at Baust Reformed Church, in charge of his pastor, Rev. Murray E. Ness.

Why The Record Missed.

Last week, it happened once more. Our "unlimited" mail train missed the Keymar connection last Friday evening, and as a result the Record was not distributed along the W. M. R. R. in time for all the carriers to get it for delivery on Saturday.

We inquired at the R. R. office Friday evening, as we always do, as to how the train was running, and was told that it was 45 minutes late at Spring Grove. As our train can be 48 minutes late at Keymar and still make the connection, we took the chance that it would "make up" some of its lost time, or at least lose no more. But, it did lose more—about 20 minutes.

Four or five times this summer and Fall, we sent the Records to Keymar, by auto, at our expense, to be sure of making the connection when the train was running late, and three of these times the connection would have been made anyway, partly by the aid of the W. M. train being late. Last Friday evening, it was "on time" and we missed out on our guess.

Well, other papers occasionally "miss" getting to Taneytown on time, so we are not more of a "misser" than others; but, we will not take another 45 minute chance, though it does seem to us that our train should not play such tricks with the schedule.

A Curiosity Jug.

Franklin Baumgardner owns a curiosity jug, handed down to him from four generations, dating back over 400 years. A lot of old relics are attached to it, which would be of great value to collectors of antiques. It is perhaps one of the oldest collections of relics owned by anybody in the state. He will be glad to show it to anybody who calls at his residence on Baltimore St.

Wm. Gibbs McAdoo, was operated on at Johns Hopkins, on Monday, for stone in the bladder. The operation was very successful, and the patient is likely to be well soon. He will hardly be able to take active part in the campaign, as expected.

THE BALTIMORE PRESBYTERY.

Met in the Taneytown Church, on Monday and Tuesday.

The 358th. Stated Meeting of the Presbytery of Baltimore was held in the Taneytown Presbyterian Church, October 6 and 7. The session was opened Monday night with an address by Dr. William R. King, Secretary of the Board of National Missions and it was a masterly presentation of the religious needs of our country.

The pastor of the church, Rev. G. Wilbur Shipley, made report for committee on arrangements. Rev. Luther B. Hafer, of Gettysburg, and Rev. Guy P. Bready, pastor of the Reformed Church, Taneytown, were introduced to Presbytery and asked to sit as corresponding members.

There were about 25 members of Presbytery present on Monday, but Tuesday morning cars came from all quarters until the number of persons present had gone to well over a hundred.

Three pastoral relations were dissolved; Rev. Kenneth M. Craig resigned the pastorate of Crisp Memorial, Brooklyn; Rev. J. Russell Gaar resigned the pastorate of the church at Hagerstown; and Rev. E. Glenn Switzer resigned the pastorate of the Calvary Church, Baltimore. A call was presented from the Southminister Church, Cumberland, for the service of Rev. Walter B. Brock, of Union Springs, N. Y., but his letter of dismission not having arrived at the hour of adjournment, his reception and installation was left with the General Council of Presbytery.

A call from the Aberdeen Church was presented for the pastoral services of an ordained minister of the Evangelical Church. He was examined as to his views on theology and was received into the Presbytery and arrangements made for his installation. Rev. James J. Coale, of Baltimore, was dismissed to the Presbytery of Cleveland. Rev. Alfred H. Barr, D. D., formerly pastor of the First Church, Baltimore, and now professor in McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, was dismissed to the Presbytery of Chicago.

Devotional exercises were conducted at noon by Rev. Hugh L. Hodge, D. D., pastor of the First Church, Baltimore. All the overtures sent down by the General Assembly were answered in the affirmative. Presbytery accepted an invitation from the First Church, Baltimore, for the December meeting. Rev. Harry F. Cost, permanent clerk and Dr. John W. Douglas, Moderator, were both forced to leave after the morning session, on account of funerals in their congregations.

The ladies of the Taneytown and Piney Creek Churches served dinner at the Fireman's building for the members of Presbytery and all visitors. The food was prepared with a delicacy and served with an efficiency which gave evidence of their skill in the culinary art. Rev. W. W. Shaw, D. D., of Catonsville, is a most happy manner expressed to the ladies the appreciation of the guests. The Presbytery passed resolutions of thanks to the two congregations.

It was regarded by all as one of the most delightful meetings of the Presbytery that we have had in recent years. Though several very delicate matters required action, the spirit of the Presbytery was without a ripple. The meeting adjourned about four o'clock, and everybody left with most favorable impressions of Taneytown. The following churches of the Presbytery are now vacant; Calvary, Covenant, and Brooklyn, Baltimore, Hagerstown, Havre de Grace and Emmitsburg.

Frederick County Liquor Cases.

At a trial before the Court, Chief Judge Umer and Judge Peter on the bench, last Friday, Robert Roberts was given six months in the Maryland House of Correction on being convicted on five counts of having sold liquor in Frederick county. He was also fined $200, which was later suspended.

James Potts, LeGore, was acquitted by a jury on a charge of having sold liquor to Elmer Hahn. The second count, charging him with having sold liquor to Lee Winebrenner, was held over on an objection by the defendant's counsel, that a wrong name had been used in the indictment, and that his client had not previous knowledge as to whom he was accused of selling the liquor. The name of Lee Duterar appeared on the indictment instead of Lee Duterar Winebrenner.

Robert Eyer, Woodsboro, was found guilty of selling liquor on one count and held under $500 bail on a second count.

As a means of relieving the shortage of pastors in Norway admission of women to the clergy is being advocated by many. Why not in the U. S.?

Statistics show that the world's consumption of timber is doubling every fifty years. Even in countries where wood is scarce it is increasing because the people are learning new uses for wood and becoming acquainted with those known in other countries.

SUNDAY SCHOOL DEMONSTRATION

Fourth Annual Bible Class Rally and Parade, Oct. 26.

The fourth annual adult bible class rally and parade of the Sunday Schools of Carroll County, under the leadership of Rev. M. E. Ness, superintendent of the adult department, will be held Sunday afternoon, October 26, with Westminster as the rallying point.

These occasions have grown in popularity and interest and have drawn to Westminster some of the largest crowds the city has ever seen and the mass meetings have been times of uplift and inspiration.

Letters have been sent to every pastor and Sunday School superintendent and district officer in the county and all schools are urged to co-operate and send as large delegations as possible. Every school is asked to bring a banner with the name of the church or school on it to carry in the procession.

In past years a number of schools have brought their own bands of music with them and it is hoped that this year an even larger number will do so. Rev. Mr. Ness, the newly elected superintendent of the adult department of the county association, is most enthusiastic over this event and has made large plans for its success.

The parade will form on Court House Square, at 1:30 P. M., promptly, and will march to Alumni Hall, Western Maryland College, where the mass meeting for men will be held, starting at 2:30 sharp. The address will be by Dr. Joseph H. Apple, President of Hood College. To hear him is a rare treat. He is a speaker of great force, a most pleasing personality, and has a real message.

The Lehman male quartet, of York will sing, with Rev. Mr. Ness as their leader. This fine quartet will be greatly enjoyed.

At the same hour, 2:30 P. M., there will be held in the Armory, under the leadership of Mrs. Martha Shaw, a mass meeting for women. These meetings in other years have been crowded and have been times of great enthusiasm and this year will certainly be no exception.

Mrs. Shaw has made all her plans very carefully, with the skill of a veteran. Mrs. L. M. DeFilva, travelling secretary of the New York state W. C. T. U. will be the speaker. She comes most highly recommended and is a woman of wide experience and of unusual ability. There will also be music at this meeting.

There will be a free will offering for the county association work and to defray the expenses of the day at both these meetings, but no appeal will be made. It is hoped to adjourn both meetings by 4 o'clock, so that persons from a distance may have ample time to get home before dark. All roads will lead to Westminster, Sunday afternoon, October 26.

Superintendents and pastors are asked to write Mr. Ness of the part they will take, about the size of their delegation, and if they will bring a band, so arrangements can be made to properly place them in the parade. He is pastor of Baust Reformed Church and his address Westminster, Maryland.

Pennsylvania U. B. Conference.

The one hundred and thirty-fifth session of the Pennsylvania conference of the United Brethren in Christ, is being held in St. Paul's United Brethren Church, Wormleysburg, Rev. H. W. Zuse, pastor, October 9-12. Three sessions will be held each day, with two services on Sunday. The conference includes this section of Maryland.

Officers of the conference are: Presiding bishop, Rev. Dr. William M. Bell; conference superintendent, Rev. Dr. Arthur B. Statten; recording secretary, Rev. William M. Beattie; statistical secretary, Rev. Edward W. Leech; treasurer, Rev. Dr. John F. Kleffman.

Important features of the conference sessions will be the nomination of 3 ministers and 8 laymen to represent the Pennsylvania conference at the general conference to be held at Buffalo. Out of the number the various churches of the conference will elect six ministers and six laymen, as representatives to the Buffalo conference.

The endowment fund of the Lebanon Valley college will be another important feature of the conference discussions. The fund has gone "over the top" to the sum of $50,000, and has now reached a total of $350,000. With the addition of the Rockefeller foundation fund of $175,000 the aggregate amount of $525,000 has been reached.

Leatherman Guilty.

Last Friday morning, the jury in the "tar and feather" case returned a verdict of "guilty" against Harry Leatherman, of near Myersville, who was on trial for four days. The verdict was returned after the jury had been out 17 hours. Upon hearing the announcement of the verdict Leatherman was required to post $2,000 bond pending his appearance for sentence, and $1,000 for his appearance to answer the charge of rioting for which he was also indicted.

TRANSPORTATION OF PUPILS.

Becoming a Big Item of Expense for Public Schools.

From an article in the Baltimore Sun, the State Board of Education made public, this week, some facts concerning the transportation of pupils from rural schools to the higher schools. County motor buses transported last year 4832 pupils, an average of 13 miles a day, at a cost of 16 cents for the round trip.

According to the statement, the cost of transportation ranged from $14.11 a year per pupil in Somerset county to $60 a year per pupil in Queen Anne's county. These figures apply only to the transportation of elementary school pupils.

Transportation of high school pupils is being carried on in 15 counties, according to the statement. The average yearly cost of transporting a high school pupil in the counties last year was $28.70, slightly less than the average figure for transporting an elementary pupil. In the case of high school pupils, however, a charge of from 10 to 20 cents a day is made to each pupil to help defray the cost of transportation.

High school pupils are transported from three and a half miles each way, the average distance from the pupil's home to the high school usually being three or four miles greater than in the case of elementary pupils. For this reason, high school pupils are required to pay part of the transportation costs to the county, it was said.

Last year 21 counties participated in the work of transporting 6,500 pupils at a cost of $188,516. Fifty percent more children were transported last year than in the scholastic year 1922-1923. Transportation of pupils moves along hand in hand, of course, with improvement in roads. The good work of the State Roads Commission has been a big factor in the transportation of school pupils in the counties.

Fifty-one small rural schools were abandoned last year, and this was possible in most cases because of transportation. Well-equipped motor buses in many counties are being routed to pass by the inadequate, poorly-lighted little red schoolhouse and carry their loads of happy youngsters to the more modern, well-lighted consolidated schools, with teachers well qualified for their work and teaching fewer grades than in the one-teacher schools.

The Editor's Mistake.

"We made a mistake in last week's issue," says the Editor of a Connecticut weekly. "Several good subscribers told us about it. The same day there was a letter in our P. O. box that didn't belong to us; we called for No. 98 over the telephone and got 198. We asked the storekeeper for a spool of No. 50 thread and found it to be 60 on getting home. The train was reported 30 minutes behind time, and when we got to the station 20 minutes after train time, the train had gone. We got our milk bill and found a mistake of 10c in our favor. We felt sick and the doctor told us we were eating too much meat, but we hadn't tasted meat for two months. The garage man said our "Lizzie" needed a new timer, but we cleaned the spark plug, and it's been going fine ever since. Yes, we did make a mistake in last week's paper."

The slang expression, "I'll tell the world," which is so commonly used today, is not new but had its origin in one of Shakespeare's plays. It was first uttered by Isabella in "Measure for Measure." She says, "With out stretch'd throat, I'll tell the world aloud, What kind of man thou art."

Chewing gum manufactured in 1923, was valued at $40,324,409. Forty-five establishments engaged in the manufacture of this immense output.

MILK REGULATIONS BY STATE BOARD.

Of Special Interest to Producers and Housekeepers.

Some of the most significant features of the milk regulations that have been established by the Bureau of Food and Drugs of the State Department of Health, and the State Board of Agriculture, are of special interest to housekeepers. In general they may be summed up under the three c's—"clean, cool and covered." For instance:

The use of capped bottles is required for all milk or cream sold at retail in all towns or cities in the State.

Milk or cream sold at wholesale must be delivered in the original package, and no milk or cream may be poured from one container to another on public highway or in a public place.

Milk containers must be properly covered or otherwise protected from dirt transit and the milk must be kept cooled to as near 50 degrees as practicable.

Conveyances used in the delivery of milk must be kept clean and the milk must not be exposed unnecessarily to the sun.

Accordingly, cans from which skim milk is sold must be duly labeled plainly and conspicuously, in capital letters not less than an inch square—"Skimmed Milk."

Dealers who have made a practice of buying up junk cans, containing the names of well known dairies, and marked and dated in various ways, and of reusing them to mislead their customers, will have no chance to continue the practice.

Neither will they be able to sell or deliver for consumption as milk or cream to which water or any foreign substance has been added; milk which contains less than 3.5 percent of milk fat, or cream containing less than 18 percent milk fat; milk or cream that has been exposed to any disease producing bacteria; milk or cream that has been manipulated or adulterated by the removal of milk fat, or the addition of preservatives; or that has been made from butter fat or other fat and skimmed milk, powdered milk, or other ingredients.

Regulations of interest to dairy-men cover in detail the conditions under which the milk is produced—care of the buildings and premises where milk and milk products are produced, handled or sold; health and care of the cows; cleanliness and kind of utensils; cleanliness in milking; care in cooling and conditions in transit. The regulations will become effective within thirty days after publication.

Is Your Birth Registered?

Scarcely a week passes without an urgent request being received at the State Department of Health from somebody who is in a great hurry to find out whether his birth was duly registered. The latest call came from a man in Western Maryland who was getting ready to sail for Europe and who needed the information in order to secure his passport. Luckily for his peace of mind, the information was available. But Dr. F. V. Beiler, Chief of the Bureau of Vital Statistics tells of another man, a Baltimorean, who was going on a business trip to China, and who sought similar information without any results.

So far as records were concerned, he had never been born. Both parents were dead, and so was their old family physician, but fortunately for the young man, the testimony of an older brother, given under oath before a notary, was accepted, and the passport was granted.

Every local registrar in the state, could tell similar stories of the requests received each year, for such information, to prove the right to property, to establish inheritances, and for many other purposes.

Whenever a birth is recorded, the State Department of Health sends a card to the parents certifying that fact. These cards should be put away very carefully because they may be needed throughout the entire life of the individual, to establish certain facts.

How about your own birth certificate? Are you sure that your birth was recorded?—State Dep't Health.

Marriage Licenses.

Howard A. Bankert and Rhoda C. Shipley, Westminster.

Francis Gray Debaugh and Emma L. Cross, Stevenson, Md.

Daniel Clotworthy Hill and Martha Clementine Goins, Clear Springs, Md.

Charles T. Gill and Lottie M. Barnes, Finksburg.

Pitcher Walter Johnson, of the Washington team, who has been pitching ball for 18 years, lost two of the World's series games to New York. Although only 38, Walter is an "old man" so far as baseball is concerned. Most men hardly consider themselves "at their best," at 38 years, when engaged in the average employment—and they are right, but, baseball is different.

NATIONAL POLITICAL NOTES.

Main Events of the Week Affecting the Parties.

Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for the vice-presidency, is continuing in the west, his attacks on La Folletteism, the justification given being that the Davis candidacy in the west is secondary importance, the fight there being between the Coolidge and La Follette forces, consequently it is politically proper for him to fight, in the open, the main enemy.

The Republican State Central Committee, of Iowa, last week, declared that Senator Brookhart, of that state, had repudiated the Republican party by denouncing President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes. The statement added that the bolt of the Senator is the result of a conspiracy to defeat the fight of the people to elect a President at the polls, and to force the election into the hands of a House and Senate elected two to six years ago. The statement further goes on to say that the action of Senator Brookhart was inspired by the La Follette party.

The Afro-American, the Negro paper of Baltimore, is earnestly supporting the Democratic candidates for the Presidency. The paper has also supported the Democratic candidates for local and state offices, heretofore. It does not claim to be a Republican paper.

Mr. Davis, in an address at Albany, N. Y., this week, said this country must either arm itself to a point where it need not fear aggression, or join the League of Nations.

Mr. Dawes again invaded Wisconsin, this week, and declared that La Follette is advocating very radical changes in our form of government, under which we have prospered for 135 years.

Bishop John Hurst, a prominent Negro leader, of Washington, opposes President Coolidge, but advises negroes to vote for La Follette. His opposition to Coolidge is based on his not yet having, by name, denounced the Ku Klux.

Ex. Secretary of War, Baker, in Wilson's administration, in an address at Salisbury, Md., this week, said the only way for this country to enter the League of Nations, is through the Democratic party, and that some of the most prominent Republicans are turning toward the League.

Permanent world peace cannot be obtained by "any magic formula," but the abolition of war is coming "because men and women more and more demand it." President Coolidge declared on Monday in an address opening the annual meeting of the American Red Cross. Mr. Coolidge's utterances were generally regarded as a reply to renewed efforts in some quarters, particularly among Democratic stump speakers, to revive the League of Nations issue during the campaign.

The political speeches, so far, have been peculiar, in that Dawes and other Republican speakers have chiefly been fighting La Follette; while Mr. Davis and Democratic speakers, and La Follette and his speakers, fight Coolidge. In the triangular contest, it seems to be two against one, with soft pedaling for Davis by the other two.

As a sample of contradictory newspaper pre-election news, we were told this week, on one day, both that the Republicans were suffering from a lack of campaign funds, and that a big slush fund was being raised to "buy" the election of Coolidge.

While Senator Johnson, of California, has not made any specific announcement, all of the prominent Johnson men and newspapers of the state are for Coolidge.

The "slush fund" charge made by La Follette this week, is denied as a fabrication by Secretary Slemm and Chairman Butler of the Republican Committee, who say it is a desperate effort to create capital against Coolidge.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, who could have had the nomination as Vice-President, and about whom there has been some doubt as to his present stand, will enter the campaign for Coolidge and make addresses in Washington, Oregon and California.

The Baltimore American's state poll, so far, stands 5402 for Davis, 5224 for Coolidge, and 3383 for La Follette.

Judge Kenyon, of Iowa, who has been claimed as being inclined toward La Follette, has announced that he is for the G. O. P. ticket.

Apparently without considering "political" effect in New York, President Coolidge was an enthusiastic "rooter" for the Washington team, and Mrs. Coolidge was equally animated.

The Literary Digest's country-wide straw vote, gives Coolidge 808,340; La Follette 351,178 and Davis 275,674. Attention is called to the fact that the Southern states are not largely represented in this vote, not having accepted the invitation to any great extent.

Now, the next important thing to do, is to vote, and see that your neighbor does likewise.

"God's Acre," a plot of land which received its name because its products will be sold and the proceeds used for the advancement of religion, is without a boll weevil on it. The same is true of the remainder of the ten-acre plot which was planted by Robert Blackwell, of Albany, Georgia, who decided that he would reserve one acre for God.

THE CANDIDATES.

FOR PRESIDENT.

CALVIN COOLIDGE REP.
JOHN W. DAVIS DEM.
ROBT M. LA FOLLETTE IND.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

CHARLES G. DAVES REP.
CHARLES W. BRYAN DEM.
BURTON K. WHEELER IND.

FOR CONGRESS.

E. RIDGELY SIMPSON REP.
MILLARD E. TYDINGS DEM.

There will be two amendments to the State Constitution voted on—

The first relates to the salary and expenses of the State's Attorney of Baltimore City.

The second permits the state to pledge its credit for raising funds with which to pension citizens of the state who served during time of war.

Automobile Road Laws and their Publicity.

The automobile laws, as they refer to "right of way" and the proper use of the highways, should be published in simple form, and be distributed with every license to operate a motor vehicle, as well as be supplied to all newspapers, hotels and garages where they may be distributed liberally.

Too much is taken for granted, it seems to us, in the matter of presumed knowledge of the laws, and especially concerning motorists from other states; and there is not that uniformity in state laws that should prevail. A Pennsylvania, Ohio or New York driver should be as familiar with the "rules of the road" in Maryland as in his own state, and this can be brought about only through the use of uniform interstate laws.

Driver's license are issued with too little inquiry into the fitness of drivers to operate—physically, mentally and otherwise—and a strict examination as to knowledge of the laws, and of the use of machines, should be required. Careless and ignorant drivers, are largely the product of lack of proper examinations and restrictions placed on drivers, before being licensed.

The road laws, like the "Mother Goose Rhymes," are always new to somebody—new auto drivers are using our highways, every day, and they need the fullest possible information concerning the laws, in order that they, and other road users, may have the greatest measure of safety. There is no need more important than this, and none of such vital relation to life and property.

The road laws should be reduced to easily understandable proportions, and be so easy to secure, free of charge, that no one can plead ignorance of the laws. And, as said before, these laws—the main ones regarding traffic and safety—should be uniform in all states. We should say that the very best way to secure this publicity, would be to have the laws provided in plate form, and be published at the expense of the state, in all weekly and daily newspapers, at least four times a year.

Do We Want a Constitution and a Supreme Court?

About the most radical and revolutionary object of the La Follette party, is its attack on the Constitution of the United States by advocating the giving to Congress the power to over-rule decisions of our highest courts; in other words, to make an unconstitutional measure constitutional, through the whim, or political purpose, of Congress, at the behest of perhaps a powerful minority.

It is a bold invitation to Congress to threaten and coerce the courts, and an appeal to the rabble that they are superior to the picked legal minds that almost universally occupy our highest judicial positions—an argument beyond all reasonable foundations, that "the people" should always be in direct power to pass judgment on even the most intricate questions of law, without being hampered with a Supreme Court, even.

If there were no other reasons for opposing La Folletteism, this one would be enough, and that this is "La Folletteism" is proven by the fact that this plank appears in the radical platform; "We favor submitting to the people a constitutional amendment providing that Congress may, by enacting a statute, make it effective over a judicial vote."

It may be argued that safety against this rests in the fact that "the people" of the required number of states would never consent to such an amendment to the Constitution, and that there is nothing to prevent such an effort being made by any Congress, whether a La Follette plank or not.

This may all be true enough, but it uncovers what La Folletteism is, and what he (La Follette) might try to do if elected, with the present statutes of the Supreme Court, in case of vacancies to be filled. And beyond this, it seems to show the trend of mind of the new party relative to the Constitution and Courts in general.

It is a question of whether we really want a constitution, and Supreme Court, and whether they are worth having and obeying, after a trial of over a century and a half. The radical platform evidently thinks these safeguards are not needed.

Further, and much more to the danger point, it is asserted authoritatively that it is not even necessary to amend the Constitution to destroy the power of the Supreme Court, because it can not, of itself, place into effect any power for the enforcement of its own decisions, except by sanction of the President, and Congress. The National Republican has this to say on the subject;

"The Constitution of the United States is a document utterly useless to the people of the nation, in whom it vests the sovereign power, if the people elect a President who is either contemptuous of the Constitution or ignorant of its fundamental meanings; if they elect a Congress, a majority of whom are either contemptuous of the basic law or believe it to be something other than what it really is. The Supreme Court may interpret the Constitution and its application to acts of Congress and decrees of a President until every member of the court is black in the face, yet such interpretation by the Supreme Court would be as futile as a message to Mars if the President, backed by a sympathetic Congress, or vice versa, saw fit to ignore it.

Laws of any kind are utterly worthless, if the administration of such laws is reposed in the keeping of administrators who themselves have a contempt for them. There is no assurance which a people may have that their lawmakers will make just laws or good laws, if the chosen lawmakers are themselves contemptuous of law or do not themselves believe in restraints or guarantees fundamentally founded."

Celebration of Navy Day.

More than a million Americans located in all parts of the United States will take part in the third annual celebration of Navy Day which will be observed all over the country Monday, October 27th. Parades and celebrations will be held in all of the large seacoast cities. There will be meetings of chapters of the Navy League and other organizations in nearly every city and town throughout the land. Lectures and speeches dealing with the Navy will be given and local services held, commemorative of the deeds of American heroes of all periods of our country's history.

Endorsed by the President and the Secretary of the Navy, Navy Day has obtained the support and active cooperation of a very large number of social, business and patriotic bodies which form so large a part of American life. In addition to the Navy League, the American Legion, the Veterans' of Foreign Wars, many Chambers of Commerce, Rotary, Kiwanis and other groups have promised all possible aid, while among the women's societies, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Daughters of 1812 will take an active part in observing the celebration.

The observance of Navy Day originated in 1922 when it was decided that a day should be set apart for the commemoration of the deeds of American sailors in the World War and in our country's other struggles, and also for bringing before the attention of the public the value of the Navy to the nation in peace and in war. Supported by the Navy League and other patriotic societies, and aided by the co-operation and assistance of the Navy Department and the officers and men of the Navy, the celebration proved successful from the start and has become a recognized event in the calendar year.

In addition to parades and memorial ceremonies, every effort is made on Navy Day to familiarize the public throughout the country with the ships and men of the Navy. The battle fleets on both coasts are divided among the principal seaports and other naval vessels are distributed as widely as possible so that every seaport is visited by one or more ships.

During the day "open house" is held at which the Navy officers and men act as hosts to all who care to visit the ships and explain in detail the workings of machinery and guns with which they are equipped. This feature has proved of the greatest interest in past years and in many instances visitors have come from hundreds of miles inland to improve the opportunity to be guests of the Navy on Navy Day.

In anticipation of the present year's celebration, committees have been formed by the Navy League and other patriotic organizations for carrying on the work throughout the United States. Governors of States, members of the Senate and House of Representatives and leaders in both the business and social world of the nation have accepted membership on the national committee in general charge of the work.—U. S. Navy League.

Get out Church Vote.

President Coolidge has approved a nationwide campaign to enlist the 25,000 clergymen of the country in a movement to "get out the Christian vote," according to the Homiletic Review, a magazine devoted to the interests of ministers which started the campaign. In a letter to Funk & Wagnalls, publishers of the Review, made public August 19, the President said:

"The organizers of the movement to induce all the church-going community to go to the polls on election day and perform their full duty of citizenship is certainly deserving of every possible encouragement and I am glad to assure you that it will have mine."

I am gratified to know of the progress this movement has already made. From every possible viewpoint whether it concerns the interest of these individual citizens or the interest of the community as a whole, it is highly desirable that the great Christian community shall always do its full service in the public interest at election time and indeed in every other public relationship. My best wishes go out to all who are interesting themselves in this most praiseworthy campaign.

It was said that signed promises representing a total of more than 200,000 voters had already been received by clergymen. The movement is non-denominational and non-partisan."

Dangers of Home.

Insurance payments help recompense the insured in a financial way but they cannot restore an arm, a leg or a life lost through carelessness. Nor can they replace the great economic loss that results from fire carelessness which destroys $500,000,000 worth of property annually in this nation. Insurance companies cannot give 100% service to persons or property without the hearty co-operation of every individual citizen.

Forty-seven percent of all claims paid by accident insurance companies are on mishaps incurred in the home and incident to recreation, exclusive of motoring.

Once upon a time when Mark Twain was about to take a railroad journey the agent tried to sell him insurance against being killed enroute. "Thank you, no," replied Mark, "I have seen statistics which prove that the vast majority of deaths occur in bed. I will be glad to take a policy insuring me against that."

The files of casualty insurance companies show that the most dangerous place in the world for accidents is in and around home, an especially hazardous place next to polished floors is the family bathtub. The baby's finger pokes lots of eyes out, one company paying 235 claims for damaged eyes. The automobile has the highest individual score. National Safety Council says 75,300 persons were killed by automobiles in 1922.—The Manufacturer.

The Prize Fight Fraud.

Now we can deport Firpo. He has made $750,000 to be distributed among various highly enterprising and exceedingly valuable citizens. He is ready to go home no doubt. So let's deport him.

As for Canon Chase, he made a noble effort. He is an Episcopal clergyman of high standing and a gentleman of the first order. He loves his country and is jealous for its honor, but he was up against 750,000 good reasons why Firpo should not be deported, and they were too many for him. Not that anyone was bribed. The sum was too awe-inspiring.

The fight itself was a complete demonstration of P. T. Barnum's theory. And isn't it queer how these fights always result in a way which contributes directly to the financial interest of another fight? Wills is now entitled to a battle with Dempsey, having whipped a soda clerk who could beat biscuits if a good cook showed him how and it did not require any boxing skill. What a money-maker the Wills-Dempsey fight will be. The prestige of the white race will hang in the balance. If Dempsey loses, all will be lost, including honor. Seats will be at top prices, the sure-thing gamblers will reap an enormous harvest. This prize-fight game certainly beats running a gambling hall in Alaska!—M. E. Church Bulletin.

Amusing Things, Those Very Superior Beings

It is curious how differently people regard human beings. William Lyon Phelps comments in Scribner's Magazine. Some, upon entering a trolley car, hate everyone else in the vehicle; some look upon the crowd at a street corner with disgust; it must be wonderful to have such a sense of superiority, to have such childlike unquestioning faith in one's own splendid intellect.

The most amusing thing is to enter a fashionable hotel, and as you advance to the office desk, followed by your traveling bags, to glance for a moment at those individuals who, having already been there some days, now gaze at you from their settled and comfortable chairs. They look at you as though you were garbage.

In the same way, many people, traveling in foreign lands, hate all their fellow countrymen whom they meet. This scorn used to distress me, just as I used to be disturbed by the contempt of a waiter in a hotel or a butler in a fashionable mansion; now I am only amused; and instead of being sorry for myself, I am sorry for those who sit in the seat of the scornful.

One may have a certain satisfaction in a feeling of complacency or superiority, but such an emotion is not so desirable as the cheerfulness produced by a general sympathy for mankind.

Cow's Milk Largely Used in Manufactures

Should the humble cow ever aspire to trade-mark her products, the average shopper would be amazed at the labels "Made from milk" which would adorn his purchases—purchases ranging from horn-rim spectacles to chessmen, magazines to radio sets.

Three per cent of casein in cow's milk is the raw material for a kaleidoscopic array of manufactured products. Nor does this take into account that at our present rate of consumption every 12 persons consume the milk product of one cow.

Bread has a reputation of being the "staff of life," but milk more nearly fulfills that definition. Substitutes for our customary breads may be had; but there is no substitute for milk. Even the elimination of the casein from milk, the element which provides most of the by-products, would be inconvenient. Chemically, casein is the principal nitrogenous constituent of milk; popularly it is the "curd," and its first and principal use is for cheese.

Expressions That Are Not Household Words

"Yes, mum, one day off each fortnight will suit me nicely."
"I'm returning your umbrella, I took it by mistake."
"Now our honeymoon is over, dearest, you must insist on your mother coming to stay with us for a month or so."
"I regard the payment of income tax as a pleasant and patriotic duty."
"That hair you found on my coat, dear, came from the head of my pretty typist."
"Good afternoon. I was sincerely hoping I shouldn't see you."
"Yes, darling, I've kissed many girls before you."
"She's much prettier than I am."
"Sure, Pat an' ye can call me what ye loike, I won't foight ye. I hate scrappin'."
"Why, yes, dear, I've been enjoying myself thoroughly at the club. I was not detained at the office."
"Your worship, I wish to state that I was driving sixty miles an hour when the constable stopped me."
"Please, sir, may I have the day off? I want to go to a cricket match."
—Passing "How, London.

Concerning Ebony

The deep black heartwood, which is most highly prized in a number of trees of the ebony family, is mentioned in the Bible in Ezekiel, 27:15, in connection with ivory, probably on account of their value and of their contrasting colors. Ebony was once supposed to grow in the ground "without root or leaves" and to it were ascribed many miraculous powers. The chief source of the ebony wood is the island of Ceylon, where huge logs of the pure heartwood are cut and hauled to the coast. For interior decorations and furniture ebony has been superseded by rosewood and mahogany, but for cabinet work it is still widely employed, being exported from Madagascar, Jamaica, India and Egypt. A species of the ebony tree which is used as a veneer also grows in the southern United States.

Buying Phonograph Records

More men than women buy phonograph records, in which an enormous business is done every day, we learn by inquiry. Men enter a music store and order half a dozen of the new releases tied up. When a woman goes a-purchasing, she enters the soundproof cubbyhole and tries out a half dozen records, usually selecting one or two at the end of a half hour's concert. Directors of motion pictures buy a great many records, which they use in working out themes in pictures, we are told, many of them being musicians or artists as well as directors. Musicians who play on the set are, also, generous purchasers, since they must constantly increase their repertoires of tunes which inspire actors.

Irving's Keen Perception

Sir Henry Irving's attention to detail in the production of his plays was proverbial. On one occasion when he was playing "Coriolanus" a scene showed a fishmonger's shop in a Roman thoroughfare. His scene-painter, thinking he had a brain wave, painted a most lifelike representation of a turbot outside the shop. The scene had to be shown twice in the play, near the beginning and near the end. Irving bestowed one glance on the turbot and ordered its removal. "Take that fish out," was his command. "I'm going to the wars, and it won't keep till I get back!"

When Liberty Party Figured in Politics

The Liberty party was organized in 1844, and its candidate for the Presidency in the campaign of that year was James G. Birney, originally of Kentucky, but then of New York. Birney was editor of the Philanthropist, an abolitionist journal of that day, who organized the Liberty party and named himself as its candidate. Like other "personally conducted" parties, its life was brief. In the campaign of 1848 it was merged into the Free Soil party and later that and such remnants of the Whig party as were left were absorbed by the new Republican party says the Detroit News.

The election of 1844 was interesting because of several circumstances. It was a time of violent argument, of high feeling, and was marked by many and strange changes in alignment. It marked, too, the last appearance of Clay as a candidate for the Presidency, when he polled his largest vote and came within 38,000 votes of defeating Polk and achieving his life's ambition. Clay was a candidate in 1820, again in 1832, and for the last time, after twenty years' trying for the unobtainable, in 1844.

How Lawyer Summed Up Town's Officials

There dwelt down East a quaint old character, "Lawyer Hopkins," whose notion of the divine origin and character of justice was certainly modern in its practicality. He occasionally practiced law in a small way and in a manner peculiarly his own.

On one occasion a flock of sheep disappeared and their heads were found in a flour barrel in the barn of a certain man, who was thereupon arrested and tried for sheep stealing. Lawyer Hopkins, in conducting the defense, maintained that the sheep were not stolen, but had strayed away, as was common in the spring.

The prosecuting attorney said: "Yes, I know sheep do stray away this time of year, but they do not usually leave their heads in flour barrels in the haymow."

Hopkins went to a neighboring town to settle the case with the selectman, but failed, and gave this report, characterizing the three town officials:

"Mr. A— will do nothing wrong if he knows it; Mr. B— will do nothing at all if he knows it, and Mr. C— will do nothing right if he knows it."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Cost of Living Brought to Minimum in Ecuador

Eggs in Oriente, a province of Ecuador, cost nominally 10 cents a dozen, which in United States currency would be 2½ cents, but since the producer receives merely a yard of cloth in exchange this barter brings the cost of a dozen of eggs down to 8 mills in American money. A person with a fixed income of $25 a month can live comfortably in Oriente. Almost no one pays house rent. A five-room two-story house costs about $45 to build, writes H. S. Dickey in Current History Magazine.

The Indian boys are quite efficient as house attendants, but their manners vary somewhat from those of the trained servant at home. It is not unusual for one of them to burst into the mater's bedroom at dawn smoking a 4-inch cigarette, and the whole family gathers around to see one shave. Each servant works for one week and receives at the end of that time one yard of cloth, which is enough for a pair of trousers. This satisfies his wants, so he vacates and another takes his place.

Removing Ink Stains

As there are numerous compositions of ink in use, it is advisable to experiment with a small corner of the material first. Soap and cold water will often remove ink stains; if this is ineffective, try fresh milk, or lemon juice and salt. Then stronger solutions may be employed, such as oxalic acid, Javelle water or salts of lemon. If an acid is used, it should be followed immediately by ammonia. Hydrogen peroxide will be the best remover for the white silk and is not injurious. It is more difficult to remove ink stains from colored material without injuring the cloth.

Scriptural Character

Delilah, Biblical character, was the treacherous mistress of Samson, the man of marvelous strength. Desiring to learn wherein Samson's strength lay, the lords of the Philistines bribed Delilah to discover the secret. Loving and trusting her, Samson told Delilah that his strength came from his long, thick hair. While he was asleep Delilah cut off his locks, and he fell into the hands of his enemies.—Kansas City Star.

Our Letter Box

Under this heading we will be glad to publish letters from former Carroll-countians, who are now away from home; and especially letters from those whose home was Taneytown. These letters are very interesting, to many, and we should be glad to publish one or more each week. On account of their length, it is not always convenient to use letters on first page, and will hereafter use the 4th, or 5th, page.

FROM J. J. R., DETROIT, MICH.

The Editor of the Record seems to think that I am an old stand-by in the matter of writing articles for the paper and thus, helping to fill up space. Well, I must confess that I have written quite a few, maybe not as many as I could have had the time for, and so I will try and not fail him in this new venture. Some few years ago, in one of my letters, I proposed that the former residents write an article a-piece for the Record, but the suggestion fell flat—not with the Editor, for he endorsed it—but with the former residents themselves, for I do not remember seeing a single article from any one of them.

I am glad that one of the boys who worked at one time on the Record, has again brought the matter up. I can recall a large number of persons who at this time are living in strange places who could, not doubt, send letters that would be read with delight, by the rest of us, as well as by the folks back home. So all you men and women who have gone away, get your thinking caps on, and let's make this Department a "howling success."

A good many years ago, when I was one of the force of the Record, as was H. Clay Englar, we used the third page of the paper, then a four-page sheet, as a "Home Department." (I am not sure that was the name) and we had a large number of contributors. I wonder how many of them are still in the land of the living. One who was most regular, was Mr. E. O. Garner, who was then at the Maryland Agricultural College Farm; another was a Mrs. Shrinier, of Linwood Farms; a Mrs. Hamilton, of Bark Hill, and quite a large number of others took enough interest in the Department to write nearly every week.

Some of you may ask, "what shall I write about?" Well, I have written so often that I have about run out of material, but you who have not as yet written anything, can certainly find plenty to write about that will be of interest to the rest of us. Let us know where you are, and what you are doing. And as suggested by the Editor, tell of some of the things that happened when you lived in Taneytown.

As for us who are living in Detroit, we are going through the usual Fall slump, so far as business is concerned. Quite a few factories are working only part time, and if a fellow loses his job, he is sure "out of luck." That is the worst part of working in a large city. You may be working overtime one day, and be laid off the next. Presidential year has something to do with it, and all hope that after the election, things will pick up.

We have had an exceptional Fall so far—no frosts of any kind—but the season for them is here, and we look for a "killer" every night. They talk about "Indian Summer" out here, but in the seven years we have been here, we have not noticed anything that resembled our Indian Summer in Maryland.

We have lots of politics—more of the city kind than either State or National. The newspapers have been running the city ever since 1919, and it seems that the people have waked up, for at the recent primaries an Independent candidate came within an ace of winning one of the nominations for Mayor, without any publicity on the part of the papers, who were busy boosting their picked candidates. The same man is running on "stickers," and it looks as if he might win out at the election in November. If he does, there will be a grand clean-up at the City Hall, and no one will be more pleased than I.

All the former Taneytowners are as well as usual, and all that I see frequently, take a great deal of interest in what is going on "back home." The long list of "Locals" struck us fine. Hope you may be able to give us such a large lot quite frequently.

I will endeavor to write more frequently during the winter months, so will not write much more at this time. I hope to see something from each of a large number of old Taneytown boys, and girls—not old as far as years go, but in the number of years they have been away from the old town.

JOHN J. REID,
1617 Dickerson Ave.,
Detroit, Mich.

CARROLL RECORD.

The Telephone Rate Hearings

THE course of the present hearings before the Public Service Commission may have given the public the erroneous impression that this Company is not properly co-operating with the Commission and People's Counsel in providing the information about our operations necessary to the Commission's consideration of the new rates. Nothing in this Company's actions before the Commission justifies such an impression.

☐ The operations of this Company are confined to a State-wide service in Maryland, but our patrons' requirements for communication to and from other parts of the country necessitate our connecting with the lines of other telephone companies. This requires contractual relations for the interchange of telephone traffic with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, which operates the Long Lines system of the country, as well as with other telephone companies in adjoining States with which business is directly interchanged.

☐ Our Company also has other long-established contractual relations with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. These are known to everyone and in all their phases have been considered a number of times by the Maryland Commission in previous cases.

☐ Appreciating that these relationships are properly matters of interest in the present case, we have furnished the Commission all information requested of us in connection with them and have offered to furnish any additional information which the Commission desires to have before it in considering their reasonableness and propriety as affecting our telephone operations in Maryland.

☐ There is no relationship with any other telephone company with which we deal about which all pertinent information cannot be had from our books and records and which will not be reflected through our witnesses. We ask the public to be patient until we have the opportunity to present our case and in the meantime not to believe that we are in any way opposing the Commission's right to have all the facts before it in considering this important matter.

POULTRY FACTS

FLOCK SEGREGATION IS GOOD PRACTICE

Segregating the flock, which means separating the hens according to the approximate time they cease to lay, is advocated as good summer poultry management by the poultry workers at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. After the separation has been made, the different groups should be put on range by themselves for the rest of their "vacation."

This practice, the poultrymen at the college say, should result not only in keeping the egg yield at a uniform level, but also should result in a better quality of birds retained for layers or breeders.

In segregating the hens, "they should be transferred to other buildings, and, if possible, separated from the location of the laying flock, turned free on a good grass or alfalfa range, and fed plenty of hard grain," says R. C. Ogle of the college staff. "After being thus permitted to rest and recuperate for a period of six to eight weeks, they may be returned to the laying house and should produce a good percentage of large-size eggs through the most profitable egg-marketing season of the year."

"This procedure of flock segregation may start in August. Regular selection may be made every 15 days, starting about August 15. By this plan, every opportunity is provided for the birds to recuperate, gain their body weight, and store up a surplus of fat in preparation for the winter laying."

"Selection should of course be continued through September, but then the selection may be for the breeding flock. Each group should be handled similarly while on range. Breeders should not be pushed for production until spring."

"Flock segregation pays well and should be in more common practice."

Roup in Poultry During Bad Weather Is Serious

During bad weather, roup puts in its appearance among many flocks and fowls. Drafts, dampness and filth usually are its main causes. Swelled heads, closed eyes, hoarse breathing, sneezing, canker mouth, drooping without apparent cause and wasting away gradually—all are indications of some form of roup.

Roup is a term applied by some poultry keepers to nearly all diseases of the fowl's lungs and throat, but when considered in this broad manner there are different forms as well as different stages of severity, lumps, abscesses and canker or similar sores following after it. In its contagious forms there is a very foul odor discernible.

There is no cure for some kinds of roup. In severe cases it is cheaper to kill all the afflicted hens, disinfect the whole place or move the coops to new ground and begin anew.

For light cases of roup use a mixture of one part spirits of turpentine and three parts sweet oil, anointing the head and face of each fowl with a few drops daily, with ten drops down the throat. A tablespoonful of potassium chlorate in each quart of drinking water also is a good remedy. Others prefer to use the well-known pink solution of permanganate of potash in all drinking water; it helps cure afflicted fowls and helps prevent well fowls catching the disease.

Breeding Up Hen Flock for Higher Production

If the Oregon experiment station had not bred from their high producing birds, they could not have secured the results they did. As a result they have increased the average of the entire flock.

Not all 300-eggers will reproduce themselves. Heredity does not always pass down to the first generation. Sometimes it skips a generation. High productivity can only be secured in the flock where there is vigor and vitality.

Vigor is not always indicated by the appearance of the bird. Factors which indicate vitality include a heavy production of eggs of good fertility and good hatchability, and the hen's chicks must grow well and develop well.

The average in commercial breeders' flocks over the state of Oregon was about 100 eggs. The college started trapping and selecting their birds. In five years from that time we had increased the production from an average of 100 eggs to 200 eggs, done entirely by selective breeding, eliminating the poor producers. We had jumped from the 200-egg individual to the 300-egg individual. At the present time the 300-egg individual is quite common.—A. G. Lunn, Oregon Agricultural College.

Feed for Molting Hen

Molting hens will need a large supply of protein and phosphorus in order to have the necessary elements for the production of new feathers. Possibly there is nothing so much misunderstood as the extreme necessity of the hens at this time along this line. If they do not have the proper materials the molting period will extend over a time two or three months longer than it should. They may even go until the following spring before resuming laying.

THE THINGS WE LOVE

WE LOVE TO HEAR—
Our baby singing to her elephants and cotton spools; and gurgling in her bath, and whinnying in her sleep like a little colt.

WE LOVE TO TAKE—
The two youngsters from next door to a theatre and give them a scrumptious tea afterwards.

WE LOVE TO MEET—
Our hubby when we are all dolled up for a downtown lunch, and we love to laugh when we shake hands like any correct and proper engaged couple.

WE LOVE TO LISTEN—
When he assures us (in parentheses) that our cooking beats all the cafe dishes ever prepared.

WE LOVE TO SAY—
Good-bye to him at the street corner and see him grin when we tell him just what will happen if he is five seconds late home for dinner.

WE LOVE TO WALK—
Away and glow when we think what a nice man our husband is and how much nicer than anyone else's husband, and how nice he looks in that blue-and-white striped suit (which we chose).

WE LOVE TO BUY—
Our baby a little toy on our way home.

WE LOVE TO HAVE—
A birthday, to find if we have "guessed right" and see our husband's smile of pleasure when we haven't.

WE LOVE TO KISS—
Him twenty times a day and watch him pretend to be horribly bored when we ask him if he loves us as much as on our honeymoon.

WE LOVE TO TELL—
Him that though he may love us no longer, we love him better every day.

WE LOVE TO LET—
Him help us choose our hats even if we make the final choice ourselves.

WE LOVE TO BE—
Jealous of any pretty young thing who looks at our good-looking husband oftener than she should, and we love to see him glare when anyone stares at his good-looking wife.

WE LOVE TO LOVE—
With all the love that's in us the baby in our arms and the other baby who occasionally holds us in his arms, and we love to speculate which of us loves the others most.

Capital Might Well Be Model for All Cities

Nearly every city is a patchwork founded upon an accidental beginning. The city complete has not existed. In view of the rapid strides of science, trade, transportation and the enormous increases in population—all of which this country has experienced simultaneously—the city complete cannot yet be expected, but there are enough facts about cities now in existence to form the basis for a few primitive generalizations.

We at least know that the best laid-out city on earth, either of ancient or modern times, is only 228 miles from New York, and that the plan was made in 1791 by Pierre Charles l'Enfant, a French engineer, who served in the Revolutionary war, and approved by George Washington, writes Felix Isman in the Saturday Evening Post. We know that the city of Washington began as a mere village and that it has grown to one of the foremost cities of the world without altering the truth of the statement that it is the best laid-out city on earth.

The streets vary in width from 80 to 160 feet and are, on the whole, the widest streets of any city in all time. They are adorned with more than 85,000 trees, so that a bird's-eye view of the national capital gives the impression of a beautiful park, with the roofs of buildings showing indistinctly amid a wealth of verdure. The majestic transverse avenues form irregular intersections with the rectangular streets, resulting in 302 squares and circles, comprising 407 acres, the most important of which is the capitol grounds.

The height of buildings in both the residence and the business districts is restricted. The result has been a healthy tendency to spread out rather than to grow perpendicularly, as New York has done with such uncomfortable results for those who must spend their working days in its damp, dark, wind-spread canyons.

If the city plan of Washington has not made the impression it deserves to have had upon other municipalities, it certainly has stood the test of those best qualified to pass upon it—the residents of Washington.

Clean Community Worth All Cost and Trouble

A "clean-up" means hot water and soap and sunshine, perhaps paint and the whitewash brush. It may mean inconvenience while the work is "on," but it is sure to mean satisfaction when it is done.

The dark corners, the closet, the garret and every place where disease germs might live should be thoroughly cleaned.

It is well to plan beforehand; to systematize that time may be saved and effort lessened.

Fresh air is better than disinfectants.

Sunshine is the "blue ribbon" germ killer.

The city, town or village needs a "clean-up" just as much as the individual home. Vacant lots should be put in order, gutters cleaned and all objectionable piles of refuse removed. Once clean, the streets, gutters, lots and all places under community control should be kept in good condition. Stagnant water breeds mosquitoes. Mosquitoes convey malaria. Dump piles breed flies. Flies spread disease germs. Sanitary excellence means co-operation of the householder and authorities.

Paving With Walnuts

A novel plan has been presented to the county supervisors and the Automobile association of San Joaquin as a means of both beautifying new California roads and paying a profit, if not paying the cost of the roads. L. H. Taylor, a walnut grower, makes the suggestion.

The scheme is to plant walnut trees on either side of the roadways at intervals of about 100 feet. The trees are to be cared for as ordinary shade trees, at the expense of the county. At the end of ten years, declares Mr. Taylor, the trees ought to bear about fifty pounds of walnuts each. There are more than 250 miles of roadways already paved, and the walnut trees would occupy about the equivalent of a grove 1,368 acres in extent.

In ten years, at the average of fifty pounds of walnuts from each tree, there would be 13,000,000 pounds of these nuts, which could probably be sold for 15 cents a pound, net, or about $195,000, and this sum would pay a great part of the county's taxes and road upkeep.

Shrubbery

Many home owners have thrown out shrubs which they considered dead this spring, which would, if given the proper chance, have developed into very hardy stock. The cold winter and late spring resulted in holding back the shrubs to a point where the majority of owners had given up all hope of their coming to life. It is well to give your shrubbery sufficient time to come out of its winter sleep, and do not condemn it, for if it comes through now it will result in much harder stock.

WHY

Watches Must Undergo Series of Tests

The modern watch is compelled to go through a most drastic test before it is allowed to enter the pocket or to repose upon the wrist of the purchaser.

One of the most necessary things ascertained is the action which changes of temperature have upon the works. Extremes of heat and cold affect the running of a watch considerably. You may, perhaps, have noticed with your own watch that it cannot be relied upon to keep accurate time if the weather makes a sudden jump from heat to cold, or vice versa.

It will either gain or lose in an extraordinary manner, and you will wonder what is happening. When the weather becomes normal again, the watch will behave properly. Expensive watches are adjusted for temperatures varying between 35 degrees and 95 degrees.

Every watch is put in a tightly-fitting case, and placed in a chamber the temperature of which is slightly above freezing point. Its movement is observed very carefully, and adjusted from time to time, until the watch is going correctly.

The timekeeper is then moved from the cold chamber, and gradually heated in a specially constructed oven, the temperature of which is between 90 and 100 degrees. Here its internal arrangements are still carefully watched and adjusted from time to time. When the watch is going correctly in this temperature it is returned to the cold chamber for further adjustment, if necessary. It spends about a week in each chamber.

By the time a watch has passed the temperature test, it will go correctly in any climate. Chronometers ordered especially by explorers and travelers who are going to places where great extremes of temperature are encountered undergo very searching tests to make them thoroughly reliable.

Why Fuse-Wire Blows Out With Excess Current

When an electric current flows through a wire it makes the wire warm explains Popular Science Monthly. Different materials resist the flow to different degrees. Fuse-wire is made of an alloy containing a large proportion of lead, which gets very warm when large currents pass through it. Furthermore, since this alloy melts easily, the currents, if large enough, may cause the fuse-wire to melt.

Wherever current is being consumed in the house or factory, a piece of fuse-wire is put somewhere in the circuit. If through accident or design too much current should be used, the fuse-wire will melt, or, as it is usually described, "blow," and stop the flow of current before the copper wire inside the walls can heat up and set fire to the house.

Why Cats and Owls Do See Better at Night

It is not true that cats and owls can see better at night than they can in the daytime. No animal or bird can see better in the dark than when it is light. A cat can see better than a human being when it is partly dark, as at dusk, because its eyes are sensitive to the ultra-violet rays of the spectrum and the pupils are capable of great expansion, thus admitting all the light available. But a cat cannot see in absolute darkness. However, with the assistance of its whiskers as feelers and its surefootedness a cat can get around in the dark with considerable agility. It is this fact which has given rise to the erroneous belief that a cat can see better at night than in the daytime.

Why Diamond Is Hard

One of the most simple and beautiful crystals is the diamond. It consists, says Sir William Bragg, only of carbon atoms arranged in a very symmetrical way. Every carbon atom has four others spaced round it. The symmetry of the structure is such that the atoms are most difficult to displace, "for which reason a diamond can be used as a tool to cut any other substance, because the atoms of the other substance give way before the rigidly set atoms of the diamond." In the diamond can be found the rings of benzene, the fundamental structural unit of all the substances included in one great section of organic chemistry.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Why Snow Scared Arabs

Since the young Turks are trampling under foot the injunctions of the Koran by exiling the caliph, removing the women's veils and are preparing to prohibit polygamy and institute the marriage customs of Christian lands, there may be some excuse for a display of wrath from Mahommed. It must surely have been the prophet's anger which, for the first time, sent a white blanket of snow down upon Medina (Mahommed's place of burial) recently. The Arabs, who had never seen snow, fled in terror and public prayers were ordered.—From Le Figaro, Paris.

Why Sawdust Is Poor Feed

Hydrolized sawdust, a byproduct in the manufacture of industrial alcohol, is not a satisfactory feed for dairy cows in view of present prices of feeds and cost of treating sawdust, say government chemists. Though the product contains a large proportion of material of no food value, it can be used in limited quantities for dairy cows when no dairy feeds are very high in price.

THE SERMON ON THE MOUNT

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 6:5-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth, as it is in heaven.—Matt. 6:10.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Prayer That Jesus Taught.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord's Prayer.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Principles of Christian Living.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Sermon on the Mount in Daily Living.

The so called Sermon on the Mount is not indeed a sermon but a proclamation of the principles and laws which shall obtain in Christ's Kingdom when it shall be established on the earth. In applying the teachings of Matthew 5-7 two errors should be avoided, namely, that of the legalist who makes these principles the hard and fast standard of life for the believer today and also that of the one who denies that the principles or laws of the Kingdom are binding upon believers. Believers have practically the same relation to the Sermon on the Mount that they have to the Ten Commandments. While free from their demands as law, they find delight in retaining them as expressions of God's holy law and thus rejoice in the consciousness that Christ has met all the requirements thereof and that their standing before God is in Him.

I. False Prayer (vv. 5-7).
1. This consists in one praying to be seen and heard of men (v. 5). To go through the act of praying with such an object is to play the hypocrite. Many of the prayers uttered in the public sanctuary are false, for there is more consideration of what the people think than of what God thinks. In prayer the soul is dealing with God. Therefore, engaging in it to attract men's attention is blasphemy. Men who thus pray get a reward, but not from God. They pray to get notice from men and they get such notice.

2. Vain Repetition (vv. 7, 8). This does not mean that we should ask but once for the thing desired, for we have examples of Christ and Paul praying three times for the same thing (Matt. 26:39-44; II Cor. 12:7, 8), but rather it means the use of meaningless repetitions, the meaningless reiterations of empty sounds. To pray thus is heathenish. The heathen nations in their worship of idols engage in senseless babble, which we see in the priests of Baal on Mt. Carmel (I Kings 18:26).

II. True Prayer (v. 6).
Since true prayer is a definite transaction of the soul with God, the communion of the human personality with the divine personality, we should have a real desire for fellowship with God and then go and meet Him in secret.

Life for its fullest development needs both solitude and companionship. Solitude alone makes one morose, while constant companionship makes one shallow. God who made us knew what our natures required. Therefore, He commands both public and private prayer (Heb. 10:25; Matt. 6:6).

III. The Model Prayer (vv. 9-13).
This was given in response to the disciples' request that the Lord would teach them how to pray. It is not, therefore, the Lord's prayer, but the model prayer for the disciples which involves:

1. A Right Relationship (v. 9). "Our Father." Only those who have become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ (Gal. 3:26) can pray aright. One must be a child of God before he can be in communion with God.

2. A Right Attitude (vv. 9, 10). "Hallowed be Thy name." When one realizes that he has been delivered from the power of darkness and translated into the Kingdom of His dear Son (Col. 1:13) by being made a child of God, he cannot help pouring out his soul in gratitude and praise, intensely longing for the kingdom, the righteous rule of Christ on the earth.

3. A Right Spirit (vv. 11-13).
(1) That of trust which looks to God for the supply of daily bread. We are dependent upon Him for our daily food.
(2) That of love which results in forgiveness of others. God will not listen to the prayers of one who has an unforgiving spirit.
(3) That of holiness which moves one to pray not to be led into temptation and longs to be delivered from the evil one.

Believe

We are not to keep on looking out for the kingdom of God, but to believe firmly that it is come, and to live and act in that knowledge and assurance. Then will it indeed be come for us.—Hare.

My Denomination—Its History and Teachings
Acts 2:1-22

The history and teachings of any one denomination cannot wisely be presented by a paper or magazine interdenominational in its scope. For an intelligent discussion of this topic, leaders and members of the society should write to their denominational headquarters for information concerning the origin of their denomination and the special teachings it emphasizes. Another good plan for the meeting would be to study some one or more of the leaders in the denomination, and present a brief record of their achievements.

It should be clearly understood that in the midst of many denominations there is but one Church. This one Church is composed of all those who believe in Christ and are thereby saved through faith. In this matter denominationalism counts for nothing. It is not Christ plus the denomination that saves the believer, but Christ alone and apart from everything else. Denominationalism has to do with matters of government and politics. There are in the world different points of view and different types of mind. People differ in temperament and in training, all of which needs consideration in relation to denominationalism.

The Scripture passage in Acts 2 which has been chosen for this topic has no vital connection with it. It is, however, vitally connected with the origin and character of the true Church. In Acts 1:5 there is recorded a promise of the risen Lord concerning the baptism with the Holy Spirit: "John truly baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit." This promise was fulfilled on the day of Pentecost, when believers in Christ were united to Him in a spiritual union and became members of that spiritual body of which He is the head (Eph. 1:22, 23). From that day to the end of this age all true believers are baptized of the Spirit and made members of the one Church of Christ. Let us not confuse the Church with denominations. There is but one Church even as there is but one God and Saviour. Not all denominations belong to the true Church; only those that acknowledge Jesus Christ as God and Saviour. The deity and vicarious atonement of our Lord is the real basis of Christian fellowship.

Goths a Divided Race

The Goths were a warlike race which at one time inhabited the country in the vicinity of the Baltic, and afterward moved toward the Black sea and the lower Danube where, about 250 B. C., it divided into two branches. Those that remained in the eastern part of the Roman empire were termed western (Vlasi) Goths, says the Kansas City Times. The Ostrogoths, after ravaging eastern Europe, established under Theodoric a kingdom in Italy which lasted from 493 to 554 A. D., when the country was recovered by Narses and annexed to the eastern empire. The Visigoths, after various successes against the Romans, sacked Rome under Alaric in 410. They afterward settled in Spain and founded a kingdom that lasted until that country was conquered by the Saracens.

Gibbet Superseded Cross

Crucifixion as a method of punishing criminals remained in force throughout the Roman empire until the early part of the Fourth century. The death by the cross was abolished by the Emperor Constantine and was replaced by the gibbet, which continued as a means of execution until comparatively recent times. It figures frequently in the history of England. It was also used as an instrument of punishment in the British colonies and was so employed in the island of Newfoundland, where there are several "Gibbet Hills," marking the site of hangings.

No Regular Nail Sizes

Up until about the Fifteenth century nails in England were sold by the hundred. Nails which sold for 10 cents a hundred were called 10-penny nails, those which sold for 6 cents, 6-penny nails, etc. When the prices changed the names persisted and, finally, came to be used to designate size, says the Detroit News.

The "d" is used as a sign of penny and is derived from the Latin "denarius." According to Webster's International dictionary, the explanation that "penny" in this connection is a corruption of "pound" is wrong. There are no regular standard sizes for nails by "pennies." For instance, the length of 10-penny nails varies, depending upon the kind of nails and the firm manufacturing them.

Brainy Children Come From Small Families

Do not pity the only child. He has more brains than children with many brothers and sisters, according to conclusions reached by Dr. Hornell Hart as a result of a study of 600 families in a typical Iowa city. The results have been reported to the Iowa child research station at Iowa City, Iowa. Children from large families are handicapped mentally, morally and socially, Doctor Hart declares.

In a representative sample of children from practically completed families in Davenport, Iowa, the ability of the children, as determined by mental tests, was found generally to run higher the fewer the number of surviving children. Children with no living brothers or sisters tend to have mental test quotients about 15 points higher than children with 11 living brothers and sisters, and the average mental test ability decreases fairly steadily as the size of the families increases.

"School progress, that is in excess of the amount to be expected from mental test ability, is at a maximum in families of four or five living children, and at a minimum in families of ten children or over," Doctor Hart says. "The difference between the progress in school of these two groups is such that the average child in the very large family loses about one-third of a year through conditions other than mental test ability associated with large families."

"The larger the family the greater the tendency is for the children to leave school at the earliest possible age."

"Of families with seven or more living children, 14 per cent are chronically dependent, as compared with 3 per cent among families with six children or less."

"As far as can be ascertained from teacher's ratings, children in large families are less energetic, less kind, less sincere and less honest than children from small families. This conclusion is fairly certain for energy, but not so decisive for the other characteristics."

"Contrary to general impression, children without brothers and sisters compare very favorably with children having brothers or sisters. Birth order, as far as it was studied in this inquiry, appears to have very little significance."—Kansas City Times.

Man of Mystery

In Major Beaufort's enforced absence his old black servant Lem was under instructions to welcome the expected guest.

When Mr. Allen was settled comfortably before the library fire, Lem asked as a matter of course, "Can I mix you a highball, sah?"
"No, thanks, Lem."
"Take it straight, sah?"
"No, thanks."

This guest was going to be hard to entertain. Bringing in a humidifier, Lem urged:
"Try one of Mistah Jim's cigars, sah. They's vey fine!"
"No, Lem. Thanks just the same, but I don't smoke."
Lem looked puzzled; then: "Beg yo' pa'don, sah, but would you min' tellin' me what you does to make you smell like a gen'laman?"—Everybody's Magazine.

Took Name From Crow

In using the ordinary crowbar few of us connect that heavy implement with the crow. Dictionary research is needed to explain the relation of the two words. Investigation shows that a crowbar is defined as "a bar with a strong beak, like that of a crow." The beak of a crow is one of the bird's most powerful tools and weapons. When the first crowbars were fashioned it was only natural that the makers should see the resemblance of it prying end to the beak of the bird, and the use of the name "crowbar" was entirely logical. The bird itself, incidentally, took its name from the nature of its cry, suggesting the old Anglo-Saxon word "crawan." In the Anglo-Saxon tongue "crawan" was equivalent to the English verb "to crow."

Famous Work of Art

The victory of Samothrace is a superb fragment of ancient sculpture now in the Louvre at Paris. It consists of a colossal winged statue, without head or arms, carved in commemoration of the naval victory of Demetrius Poliorcetes, 305 B. C. This figure, which is represented as alighting on the prow of a galley, is remarkable for its "noble proportions and grand vitality, making it one of the masterpieces of the majestic style."—Kansas City Star.

Vital Statistics

Among facts regarding health brought out in analysis of recently issued census bureau figures are that cities show a more rapid decline in mortality than do the rural districts; that persons of mature age show an increase in length of life, and that there has been a continuation of the general improvement in the expectation of life at birth, with colored persons showing greater improvement than the whites.

Changed His Mind

Tom—No; when I went to interview her father he was busy with the furnace. He called out to me to come down and after watching his struggles for half an hour and hearing what he said about coal, I decided not to get married.—Boston Transcript.

IN 1832 an author wrote: "Since the first settlement of the regions west of the Appalachian range the hunters and pioneers have been acquainted with this Oil. Rising in a hidden and mysterious manner from the bowels of the earth, it soon arrested their attention and acquired great value in the eyes of the simple sons of the forest. From its success in rheumatism, burns, coughs, sprains, etc., it was justly entitled to its celebrity. . . . It is also well adapted to prevent friction in machinery. This Oil rises in greater or less abundance in most of the salt wells, and collecting where it rises, is removed from time to time with a ladle." Wells sunk hundreds of feet for salt water produced Oil in abundance, yet no one reasoned that, if bored expressly for Oil, it could be found in paying quantity. Hamilton McClintock, owner of the "Oil-spring" that has become famous in history and story, when someone suggested that he dig into the rock a short distance, instead of skimming the Oil from the surface water with a flannel cloth, retorted "I'm no fool to dig a hole for the Oil to get away through the bottom!"

No one now is afraid of digging a hole "for the Oil to get away through the bottom"; but using an inferior Kerosene often puts a hole in the bottom of your purse, losing many dollars and cents of your money during the course of the year. The Red C Oil and The White C Oil, same except in color, gives a purer light, more heat, and it economizes because it burns longer per gallon.

A Statement-Appeal To Whom it May Concern.

As may have been noticed from an article in The Record, Sept. 19, the last legislature failed to appropriate sufficient money for the payment of Teachers' pensions, to cover the increase of such pensions from $200. to $400. a year, and the material increase in the number now entitled to pension. Apparently, there are now 36 such pensioners in the State, who are told that there is "no money" available with which to pay them, and it is strongly intimated that they must wait until the legislature meets again, in two years.

It is not our purpose, at this time, to say what we think of this situation, nor of where the responsibility rests. The matter for immediate consideration, so far as Taneytown is concerned, is the case of MRS. G. MAY FOUKE, who is now on the retired list, entitled by law to the pension, and is in urgent present need of it— who can not wait two years, nor even two months, for money.

Therefore, putting aside all other arguments, we make an appeal in her behalf, to the citizens of the community, and especially to her hundreds of former pupils who have been benefited by her long and excellent services, covering a period of over 35 years, to make such donations for her relief as conscience and liberality may suggest.

In the highest sense, this is not an appeal for charity. Mrs. Fouke—or "Miss May Forrest" as she is familiarly called—taught for many years, at small pay. She not only performed the service of a good teacher, but in addition left an influence for good and uplift, quite out of the ordinary, both on her children and on the community at large—parents, as well as children—not to be estimated in dollars.

We know what the answer will be. Hundreds will respond, willingly and promptly. No other answer will fit the situation, nor reflect credit on this community.

Contributions will be received at this office; or, they may be handed or sent to her, direct. No public announcement will be made of the amount of individual gifts.

An effort is of course being made by her friends to see whether a way can not be found for making her granted pension claim payable in the very near future; but there is no assurance that this can be done, and the case is too urgent to depend on the uncertainties of such involved legislative situations. We therefore repeat our solicitation for immediate response.

Alas, Quite Uncivilized

If there is any doubt that the inhabitants of New Guinea are uncivilized beings, we need cite only their attitude toward paying taxes—which, according to the Argonaut, is as follows:

Travelers in New Guinea occasionally pick up good stories concerning native manners and peculiarities. A tax collector had an amusing experience when he was on his rounds. He had been to one village to collect taxes, and when he left he was met by the people of a neighboring village.

"What wrong have we done that we should be ignored by the government?" they asked. "Come, we have money; we will show it to you. The idea of those Kerepunu people paying taxes and we not! We are just as proud as they."

The tax collector had to pacify them by taking their money.—Youth's Companion.
