

ATTENDANCE DROPS AT FARM COLLEGES

Importance of Scientific Education on Farm Work.

A Chicago correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, after reciting indications of a better outlook for farming, among which are increased sales of mail order houses largely patronized by farmers, finds one situation that indicates the emigration of the best element of young farmers from the farm, and states it as follows:

"A survey of the thirty-four leading agricultural colleges in this country shows that the average enrollment has decreased from 458 in 1914 to 289 this year. This means that the number of scientific farmers sent back to the soil by our agricultural schools has decreased 34 per cent in the last decade—a decade in which the numbers should have been doubled.

The College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois is one of the largest in the country. Its enrollment in 1914 was 1171. Today it is but 641. The roster has been almost halved. The situation at the University of Wisconsin is even worse. This is one of the best, although not among the largest, of the agricultural schools. Its enrollment has fallen from 616 in 1914 to 207. Twenty-two leading colleges show total enrollment of 7714 today, as compared to 11,901 ten years ago.

There is the Michigan Agricultural College, one of the oldest and finest of farm schools. It fell from 746 to 419 between 1915 and 1924. Cornell University lost 550 student farmers in the ten years. The University of California has but little more than half the farmers attendance of 1914, and so the record goes. The situation is very much the same throughout the country.

The Blue Valley Creamery Institute, dedicated principally to the improvement of conditions in the dairy industry, counts this among the most serious of the present farm problems. In a special report on the subject the institute says:

"Where are our trained agricultural leaders of the future to come from if this decrease continues? That is a vital question in the important development of our Nation's basic industry, upon which prosperity hinges. We need greater efficiency in agricultural production, better feeding, better breeding of our livestock and better farm management. "We need more trained leaders, and the 'junior farmers' are the ones upon whom we have to depend. The college training imparts vision as well as concentrated experience. Subtract it from our national farm equation and we suffer an untold loss.

"The cause for this marked decrease in agricultural college enrollment is probably due to the fact that the farmers did not have the money to send their sons to get this needed training, and because many did not have the vision to see that there is bound to be big improvement in conditions that would make agriculture a more profitable and attractive life work for the younger generation."

There would seem to be another and perhaps a better explanation of this situation. It is not so much what the farmer father thinks and not so much the state of the farm exchequer that determines the future of the farm boy. "What counts most is the opinion held by the boy as to the future prospects of agriculture."

Selling Both Corn and Hogs.

With corn and hog prices out of line, and with western farmers rushing their hogs to market at the rate of more than 1,100,000 per week, there is an interesting feature in the hog and corn situation. Hogs are too low, as compared with corn, although both are higher than a year ago. There is no money at present in feeding corn to hogs and farmers prefer to sell both corn and hogs. They are selling their hogs now and propose to sell corn later and will have more corn to sell next spring by disposing of their hogs now.

SHOP EARLY—MAIL EARLY.

Help the Stores and The Mail Service to Help You.

Last year, through the generous co-operation of the press, the movies and other advertising mediums, Christmas mailers were induced to dispatch their Yuletide presents earlier in the month than ever before in the history of the institution of gift exchanging in the holiday season.

As a result, the spectacle of the last minute rush of former years, with its attendant heartbreaking labor on the part of wearied and nerve worn store clerks and postal employees, was avoided.

This year Postmaster General New and First Assistant Postmaster General John H. Bartlett have determined to make an even better record and to banish for all time the suffering undergone in past years by those engaged in the sale or transportation of gifts. They hope to make "Shop Early" and "Mail Early" a habit with the American people.

Mailing early does not mean December 1 or before, but if everyone could get their holiday tokens in the mail between December 10 and December 20, the postoffice could not ask more.

Particular attention this year will be paid to greeting cards. Despite the success last year it was noted that the last-minute mail consisted largely of cards. Possibly many of them were returned greetings to friends, heard from on a previous mail, but overlooked on the original Christmas list. Unlike parcels and letters containing money orders, cards, of course, can not be marked "Do not open until Christmas." Therefore, it is possible that the many mailers hold them until the last to insure delivery on Christmas eve. This class of mailers '34 year, however, may find their cards undelivered until after Christmas Day.

Believing that the energies of postal employees should not be sapped to the last degree for any avoidable reason, and intent upon securing for them the same Christmas privileges enjoyed by others, Postmaster General New asks the hearty co-operation of the public. The last-minute, or zero hour has been moved up so that all postal employees may eat their Christmas dinners at home. Rural carriers will deliver no mail at all on Christmas day, and clerks and carriers in the city offices will stop work promptly at noon—P. O. Dept. Service.

Turkey and Cranberries.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 10, 1924.—Turkeys are a short crop this winter. Reports from 17 important producing States to the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Department of Agriculture, indicate that the size of the turkey crop in those States this year is about 75 per cent of the 1923 crop, according to a statement given out today by John S. Dennee, Federal crop statistician stationed at Baltimore.

A decided majority of the crop was hatched later than usual, indicating that many of the birds available for the Thanksgiving market would be small and light in weight, or that a larger proportion than usual would be held over to undergo the ax at Christmas.

The general condition of most of the crop ranges from fair to good, with small percentages reported as excellent, and somewhat larger percentages reported as poor. The cold, wet spring was very hard on the young turkeys, growers say, resulting in a heavy mortality. In some of the States reporting, flocks were reduced as a result of the low price last season.

The growing condition of cranberries on October 1, indicated a probable production of 530,000 barrels against 610,000 last year, say 13 per cent less. At that, the crop of 1924 promises to be about 11 per cent better than the average of the preceding ten years.

AID TO AGRICULTURE BY GOVERNMENT.

President is Anxious to Extend All Possible Help.

President Coolidge made two addresses in Chicago, this week, aimed to benefit both business and agriculture, in which he urged the captains of big industry to co-operate with the best interests of agriculture in order that both may be benefitted.

"My pledge is that your Government will do everything possible and proper for Government to do to encourage and direct your strivings toward the goal of prosperity, stability and security," he declared to 500 livestock men at the exposition dinner. "My appeal is that farmers everywhere shall find ways in which to employ effectively every means of improvement that has been placed at their disposal."

Speaking to 300 of the leaders in Chicago's business life at the Commercial Club luncheon, he declared "prosperity cannot be divorced from humanity," and asked business to make itself "an integral part of the life of agriculture, of the life of the country."

Wiser production, more efficient marketing and more intelligent utilization of meat products were laid as a foundation on which the livestock industry might be raised from depression by Mr. Coolidge in his address at the Live Stock Exposition tonight.

In advancing these suggestions after he had detailed what the Government had done and proposed to do for the livestock men and the farmers of the country, Mr. Coolidge declared he desired from the forum provided by the Livestock Exposition to make a pledge and to issue an appeal to the farmers of the nation. He then made the pledge of Federal aid above quoted. With such a pledge arched out and such an appeal heeded, the President foresaw the dawn of a brighter day in the agricultural world.

"Every prospect seems to indicate that we are starting out on a new era," he said. "There will be prosperity enough for all if we are willing to work for it and willing to remain on a sound basis. If we give way to selfishness, if we try to secure what we do not work for, if we adopt unsound financial methods and begin to quarrel over the rewards of industry, we can expect nothing but disaster and distress. I do not believe we are headed in that direction, but we shall be unless we beware, unless we are wise enough to be guided by the experience of other peoples in past history."

Henry Ford, on Taxes.

Mr. Ford, in the last issue of his Dearborn Independent, devotes his one page of the issue to the subject of "Taxes," on which he says in part:

"The worst element of our whole tax situation is that it is never put squarely up to the people, either the proposal to tax, or the tax itself. People are for large income taxes and large inheritance taxes because they think that other people will have to pay them. For centuries governments have successfully concealed from the people the simple fact that the people themselves pay every tax that is levied. The foreign importer, we are told, pays the tariff tax. No, he adds it to his bill; we, the people, pay it. It is the same with every tax that is laid, and it cannot be otherwise, for the public energy is the source of all wealth. If there is a great business, public patronage built it. If taxation cripples that business, public patronage must rebuild it. If taxation prevents expansion, public prosperity suffers. Yet people are constantly being urged to favor this or that form of taxation—urged by politicians who would find means to spend ten times the national income if they could get it—and the reason assigned is that 'other people' will have to pay it. The truth is that every person pays his share of every tax and it is industry that creates the wealth which pays all the taxes.

It is rather significant that the only forms of taxation submitted directly to the people are those from which can be made to appear as payable by someone else. The appeal of class consciousness is largely utilized in such matters. It is right, of course, that the tax burden should be distributed according to the ability to bear it, but it is wrong that the tax function should be used as a propaganda for class feeling, class propaganda. There are no class divisions in the actual workings of any tax—the people all pay it. When the man of large means makes honest returns and pays large taxes, it is the public that has supplied the money. When the dishonest man evades the tax, it is still the public that pays the difference."

The Filipinos, so insistently ambitious to run their own government, have made a disastrous failure of the Philippine National Bank, created in 1916. Through unsound business methods it has been looted of $34,000,000. The story of its existence and wrecking is a good example of child's play, and perhaps of the business qualifications of Filipinos.

Approximately twenty thousand elephants are killed annually for their ivory.

COUNTY AGENT'S OFFICE.

Extension Service News Concerning Poultry and Hog Cholera.

Mr. Rice, Poultry Specialist, University of Maryland, will be in the county December 11-12, inclusive, to put on culling demonstrations. The following schedule has been arranged by the County Agent subject to change. Thursday, 10 A. M., C. H. Norris, Mt. Airy; Thursday, 2:00 P. M., Winfield; Friday, 10 A. M., Miss Shifer, New Windsor; Friday, 2:00 P. M., Berrett; Saturday, 10 A. M., Walter Hape, Hape's Mills, near Middleburg. All persons interested in economic production of eggs should attend one of these demonstrations and learn how to detect the unprofitable hen. It is impossible for the county agent to cull all the flocks of the county or even those asking for the work. So come to one of these meetings, Mr. Rice will answer any question relative to poultry culling.

Dr. I. K. Atherton, Inspector in charge of Hog Cholera work in Maryland ends his summary of hog cholera in the state for November as follows:

"Just give the following a few thoughts. For the first nine months of 1923, Maryland had the smallest number of outbreaks of cholera reported since the work was inaugurated. In the Central States, however, hog cholera was raging, especially during the summer and fall months. When the snappy days of fall arrived and the consumption of fresh pork increased, then the outbreaks of hog cholera in Maryland took a corresponding jump and for the last three months of 1923, and during the entire smoked meat period of the present year, Maryland had a large increase in the number of outbreaks of hog cholera reported. However, this year, if reports can be relied on, there is but little hog cholera in the Central States. It is interesting to note, therefore, that just as soon as the consumption of fresh pork began this fall, the outbreaks of hog cholera in Maryland declined 50% under one year ago. Maybe this is merely a coincidence."

A special five year census of agriculture will be taken during the months of December and January, by this time every farmer has received a copy of the schedule of 158 questions of which he will have about 75 to answer. Enumerators are being appointed now and will start work at once. Every farmer is asked to fill out his sample schedule as much as possible before the enumerators visit him, this will help in getting in the schedules more quickly. Do not mail your schedule as it will be of no value. Give it to the enumerator.

Fight Against Tuberculosis Is On.

Tuberculosis in the United States kills yearly 150,000 persons. Most conservatively estimate, there are 1,000,000 active cases of tuberculosis today in the United States.

According to the best records available, there were 1991 reported deaths in 1923 in the State of Maryland alone. Active cases of tuberculosis in the State totaled approximately 17,000. In Carroll County there were 47 deaths during 1923, and 423 estimated cases of tuberculosis.

A vigorous campaign is now being waged under the leadership of the National and State Tuberculosis Associations. Every county in Maryland is lending its aid in the eradication and prevention of this terrible scourge.

This fight against tuberculosis is your fight. It is being made for you, the disease comes so quietly; gets its hold on its victims so slowly, and is so general that we are apt to neglect it.

In contributing to the work of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, and its county branches, you are not giving to charity, but are helping to prevent the need for charity. You are investing in a protection to yourself and your family, as well as to the community in which you live.

About 95% of the support of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association comes from the proceeds of the sale of the little Tuberculosis Christmas Seals. The larger the returns are for combating this terrible disease, the greater will be the life saving results.

From 70 to 75% of the funds raised from the sale of the little Christmas Seal in each county is spent in this county.

In 1924 the Maryland Tuberculosis Association conducted in Carroll County 5 tuberculosis clinics. In addition to this the State Association maintains the children's preventorium at Claiborne, Md., the Modern Health Crusade Work in the schools, Industrial and Educational Prevention work.

President Practices Economy.

President Coolidge, acting in the belief that economy should begin at home, broke the Presidential record, this week, by making a trip to Chicago as an ordinary passenger on a regular train to Chicago, thereby saving the government about $1700, in expenses, by abandoning the old plans for Presidential travel by special car.

The occasion of his visit to Chicago is an address before the Commercial Club and at the live stock exposition, both important events connected with the business interests of the West.

A shipment of 3,000 tons of corn from Argentina, received in Tacoma, Washington, revealed that corn from the South American Republic could be laid down in Washington cheaper than corn from Iowa.

CONGRESS IS AGAIN AT WORK

Short Session Not Likely to do Much but Mark Time.

The short session of the 68th Congress convened, on Monday, and will spend the time until March 4, as best it can, until the newly elected Congress gets down to what will more truly represent legislation following a National election. It is improbable that any important measures, aside from appropriation bills, will be passed, but there are indications that stormy times are in prospect, especially in the Senate.

President Coolidge pointed out in his budget message that he had recommended tax reduction a year ago, and added that his confidence and that of Congress that revenues could safely be reduced have been fully justified.

"We have now completed five months of the current fiscal year," he said. "This affords an index of the probable reduction in our revenues under the current tax law. It also affords an index of the limits within which our expenditure can be kept under the continuing policy of economy."

"A revision of the estimate of receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925, indicates today that the receipts will be $3,601,968,297, and the expenditures $3,534,083,808. This forecasts a surplus of receipts over expenditures for the current fiscal year of $67,884,489.

"This estimate is most significant. On the one hand, we anticipate receiving this year $400,000,000 less revenue than we had last year, due principally to the reduction in taxes. On the other hand, we must provide $114,000,000 for the extraordinary increase in expenditures made necessary by the World War Adjusted Compensation act. Yet we are confident that the year will be closed with a surplus of more than $67,000,000.

"Our aim should be not only to conserve the prospective surplus but to add to it."

Among the matters to receive first attention will be Muscle Shoals problem that has been under consideration for years, and the Postoffice employment bill which will be re-introduced, and may be passed providing new sources of revenue can be found, but it is not thought that the bill will be passed for action at this session.

The President's message on the state of the Union was largely a plea to Congress to curb expenditures, urging that "the government can do more to remedy the economic ills of the people by a system of rigid economy in public expenditure than can be accomplished through any other action."

The message as a whole related largely to domestic problems the reduction of taxes, and the passage of legislation for the remedy of agricultural ills, such as can be worked out by government agencies with the aim of bringing about normal relations with other activities.

The message as a whole has been well received, not only by his party, but by Democrats and those generally classed as "insurgents" in both parties.

An Old Still Factory Adv.

The Thurmont Clarion, last week, published the following advertisement as it appeared in the Republican Advocate, published in Frederick, Nov. 11, 1803, headed "A New Still Manufacturing," signed, Thomas Johnson and John McBride.

"The subscribers beg leave to inform the public, that they have commenced a still, and other kinds of copper and brass manufactory in the house belonging to Mr. Michael Ollicks opposite Doctor Bogen's, in Patrick Street, Fredericktown, where the public may depend upon being served with Stills upon the newest construction and on the lowest terms for cash only. They make Stills of 100 gallons, that will run from ten to twelve times every 24 hours. They will endeavor by care and attention to business to merit part of the public patronage.

"*The highest price given for old copper, brass, pewter and lead."

Judging from news reports, the art of making stills has not been lost in Frederick county—and other counties too, for that matter.

WONDERFUL CAVERNS.

Located on State Highway near Antietam Battlefield.

The Middletown Valley Register, last week, gave a descriptive article on the recently discovered caverns, near Boonsboro, Washington County, that are on the farm owned by Edw. E. Hutzell, of Hagerstown. The article says in part:

"It is not claimed that the cave is a large one, but the formations inside, formed by water bearing limestone seeping through the roof and sides and there depositing the stone sediment are said to be among the finest to be found anywhere.

Rev. Dr. Simon, of Hagerstown, who has inspected four caverns, stated that he has seen larger caverns, more heavy formations, but said that for beauty the cavern owned by Mr. Hutzell leads them all. He said the Hutzell cavern is what might be described as "dainty," if such a word may be applied to a cave.

Another visitor to the caverns told Mr. Hutzell that he had visited caverns and inspected them all over the United States and some elsewhere, and said that for real beauty the Hutzell cavern is surpassed by only one he has ever seen, and that it is in the Bermudas.

The Washington Crystal Caverns have been lighted by electricity. One passes down a stairway and then begins inspection of the caverns. The passageways are several feet wide and the walls are solid and dry and in only a few places it is necessary to stoop to escape striking the stalactites that hang by hundreds and thousands from the ceiling. At places there are large rooms, with wonderful formations. The stalactites hang like icicles from the ceiling and at other places there are peculiar forms and turkeys, fish, blankets, an eagle, the Tinker, Father Time, Adam and Eve and many other forms can be imagined by the beholder. Immense formations greatly resembling coral are also to be seen at many places.

There are many places where the formations are snow white with glistening specks like diamonds. One probably can now enter about 1,000 feet from the entrance and there are wonders all along the way, and there are unexplored places where persons have entered 100 or more feet and to where these may lead remains to be ascertained.

The formations seem to be without number. Often the whole sides are covered with the coating that almost resembles ice, but which is really limestone, dissolved by water and deposited there. Virtually millions of icicle-like formations hang from the ceilings and there are many exhibits of stalactites and stalagmites uniting. These are said to be very rare and would indicate that the Hutzell caverns are very old.

These caverns are only three miles from Antietam Battlefield and along an excellent State highway and are said to be among the most accessible of any caverns in the nation.

The cavern may be said to be virtually a little gem and exquisite beyond words to describe, and is such that it should be visited by all local people."

No Good Whisky Found these Days.

C. J. West, government analyst recently declared that arsenic appears in 99 percent of bootleg liquors. Mr. West says:

"There is not any good whisky being made in America nowadays. Not one percent of the liquor I have analyzed since pre-prohibition days has been fit to drink. That one percent has been imported Scotch whisky. The American whisky is a very poor quality now and will in time wreck the strongest constitution. It is all raw green made under unsanitary conditions from poor quality of grain and is always sold immediately after manufacture.

"You don't know what to expect, when you analyze hooch except a certainty that it is no good. Ninety-nine percent of it contains arsenic in from small quantities to enough to kill.

"In the last two years that I have analyzed whisky for the five states, Minnesota, Iowa, North and South Dakota and Nebraska, not more than one percent, was clear of poison and fit to drink."

Scarcity of Game.

Shortage of game is reported throughout the state, and this has affected the sale of hunting licenses. Rabbits are especially scarce, and birds only plentiful in certain sections. The only exception to the shortage seems to be opossums and coons, as more of these have been shot this year than usual.

Big New Loan Oversubscribed.

A new long-term U. S. Bond issue of $200,000,000 at four percent, was oversubscribed on Thursday, the second day the bonds were offered. The subscriptions totaled about a half-billion dollars. So, in spite of the "seven percent" propositions by industrial concerns, Uncle Sam still has a popular credit. No doubt some of these bonds may be secured by customers of banks.

So far as is known, the building which really deserves the distinction of being the largest building in the world is the eight-story warehouse of the United States Army base in Brooklyn. It contains fifty-two acres of floor space, nearly twice that of the Equitable Building in New York City.

Four Senators "Outlawed."

In formal caucus, last week, prior to the assembling of Congress, the regular Republicans of the Senate "outlawed" Senators La Follette, of Wisconsin; Brookhart, of Iowa; and Ladd and Frazier, of North Dakota, as being ineligible to represent the Republican party hereafter on committees, or in conferences.

There was some unfavorable comment on the proposition, but the large majority of Senators agreed that it was necessary for a Senator to be Republican in action, as well as in name. The fact is, however, that the action can have no effect during the present Congress, but its enforcement must wait until the newly elected Senate meets, with its clear Republican majority; so, the present action looks very much like inviting trouble between now and March 4, unnecessarily.

As a matter of record, these four Senators have not been Republicans, though using the party name under which to be elected; hence, they have no right to expect to receive honors, or benefits, as Republicans.

Financial Reports from Big Stores.

The papers are more or less full of financial reports of incorporated company stores, both mail order and retail, and some of their announcements are worthwhile considering. The "mail order" stores, for instance, are held to be correct barometers of farmer prosperity, for a large percentage of their trade comes direct from the farmers—cash orders, by the way—and these stores show tremendous sales, and what seems to be very handsome dividends on stock shares in these stores, represented, of course, by profits.

Last week, we noted the report of a big retail corporation, under a well known firm name. This concern has a capital stock of $10,000,000, represented by $10.00 shares. The directors of the store company have just declared an annual dividend of 25 percent on the stock, and in addition presented each holder of 4 shares of stock an additional share of stock from the $2,000,000 of stock authorized, but not issued.

In other words, a 25 percent profit was paid, and in addition, a $1,000,000 "melon" cut and divided up among the fortunate stockholders. There is nothing wrong about this, and it is a more or less common way of dividing profits.

This same store paid 40 percent in 1921, 100 percent in 1922, and in 1923 net earnings applicable to dividends of $2,479,645. In addition to these dividends, the concern maintains a big balance of "undivided" profits.

In all probability, this is merely a statement such as hundreds of like big concerns make, when required to do so. There are larger stores in the city mentioned, than the one quoted. The thought that may properly be extended to such reports, is, that the big stores are evidently making pretty nice profits; and yet, they are very largely patronized through the mails and otherwise, by those from the country who never see bargains in their home stores. Perhaps big profits are made through heavy sales, and not because of big percent of profit?

Are Party Mutineers to go Scot Free

The wandering boy of the Democratic Party who ran off to team with La Follette in his one-ring political circus has returned from the wilderness. Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, so recently vice presidential candidate of a pink third party that the scent of the radical hangs round him still, is knocking at the door of the home he repudiated and begging admittance.

With a delicate disregard of plain facts that will undoubtedly be emulated by certain erring sons of Republicanism, Senator Wheeler, pointing out that he has again turned his coat so that the scarlet lining does not show, firmly denies that he has ever changed his family name, though tacitly admitting with the customary downcast eyes that he may have failed in some measure to live up to it. "I am a Democrat," he avers, "and never have ceased to be a Democrat!"—as one who should say, "My name is still Wheeler."

The renegade Senator from Montana has little to expect of the Democratic Party, for the Democratic Party has little to give. As it happens, however, it has a label that will be useful to him when he goes electioneering in 1928. His experience on the home ground has apparently convinced him that without this label his chances of returning to the Senate four years hence will be slim. He is willing to forget his shady past if his party is.

But those that deserted the Republican ranks to follow false gods are in a different position. To them their inclusion on the party roster means preferences and emoluments of power and value. La Follette, Ladd, Frazier and Norris had a perfect right to read themselves off the list and to snap at the hand that raised them to high estate. They also have a perfect right to repent them of their rashness and return in sackcloth and ashes.

They do not ask, however, mere readmittance to the body of Republicanism they repudiated. They do not ask merely that their heresy be forgiven. They want their mutiny overlooked entirely. They assert a vested right in all party preferences that they were willing to throw overboard when they went on the warpath.

It should be raised and it also should be settled, once and for all, in the only reasonable manner that is possible. These renegades broke the faith. They fought their party, not as members sincerely seeking to swing it in their direction for what they thought was its own good, but as nonmembers who had repudiated all its work. And they fought their party at the crucial juncture of a presidential election.

It is not enough for them to say that they were merely the leaders and spokesmen for insurgency in the ranks of the voters. They could have worked through Republican Party for removal of the causes of the discontent that had arisen. They could, in fine, have remained Republicans, and sought, as the Republican Party is even now seeking, to eliminate those factors of discontent.

They chose otherwise. They walked out. That whipped the insurgent voters into a working organization. They waged an anti-Republican campaign. They should be taken at their word. They should be judged by their actions. They should be stripped of their badges and their service stripes. Any standing that they achieved as Republicans should be taken from them.—Phila. Ledger.

The Game and Fish Laws

If there is any law on the statute books that should be written in plain, concise and unmistakable language, it is a law pertaining to the protection of fish and game. The reason is obvious.

Will it ever be possible to get those who draft our laws in a mood to write in such a way that the average man can read and understand?

Is it necessary in dealing with the protection of game and fish, to use such legal verbiage and involved sentences that the average sportsman, even if he would desire to abide by the law, can not learn the regulations without great difficulty.

The new law, which became effective June 1, 1924, shows considerable ambiguity as a result of its wording. What is the consequence? Those who are opposed to every form of protection lose respect for the law and are encouraged in their desires.

There is a definite work for organizations of true lovers of sport in this State to impress upon all the regulations for the protection of game and fish, and to insist upon their strict enforcement. A campaign of education is needed. Last year when the new fish law went into effect, the general impression in this county was that the bass season opened on July 1. Now it is learned that the season really opened on July 2.

If fish pots are against the law, and are a menace to real sport, why shouldn't our organizations assist the authorities in demanding that the fullest protection that can be secured under the law be obtained? The fact that there is ambiguity in the law is regrettable. But this is an added challenge to the real sportsman to fight for every vestige of protection that can be gotten by the enforcement of the law as it is written. If the law is faulty and cannot bring the results which were hoped for, let the true followers of Izaak Walton start promptly a campaign to improve it at the next session of the General Assembly.—Frederick News.

The Word "Jovial"

The word "jovial" conceals the name of Jupiter, or Jove, according to the Washington Post. A "jovial" person is theoretically, at least, a person born under the influence of the planet Jupiter, or Jove.

The planet was supposed to be the most joyful of all the planets to be born under, just as Saturn is the least joyful.

Gradually the word "jovial" became dissociated from the astrological significance, and was generally applied to persons who indicated the quality of joyfulness ascribed to birth under a joyful planet.

Thus many a word in the English language in common use, traces its origin to mystic beginnings and beliefs in the darkness of the past ages.

Famous Ancient Tapestry

During the year 1748 a quantity of beautifully executed tapestry was discovered in the cathedral of Bayeux, near Cannes, France. It is said to be of the Eleventh century, the work of Matilda, wife of William the Conqueror, and ladies of her court. The tapestry, which is 214 feet long and 20 inches wide, contains 72 sections, each of which represents a scene in the life of the Saxon King Harold from the time of his visit to the Norman court to his tragic death in the battle of Hastings. In these scenes are 1,522 figures. In 1803 Napoleon contemplating an early invasion of England, had the tapestry removed to Paris, where it was exhibited at the National museum. The following year it was returned to Bayeux.

Siberia Huge Gold Mine

Gold—enough to give $100,000 apiece to 60,000 people—lies unmined in Siberia, waiting to be taken out of the ground, says the New York Herald. Six billion dollars is the total value. This is the estimate of American mining engineers who have been looking the country over. And yet this gold is only a shadow of Siberia's greater natural resources—fabulous amounts of coal and oil, metals and farming soil that grows everything from tobacco and cotton to grapes and watermelons.

The electric light for Melrose is being agitated. A representative of the Glen Rock plant claims that it is cheaper than to maintain a plant of your own. After the house is wired the cost per month will be small. Crisis for the Scotchman.

A certain canny Scotchman had carried on a courtship of long duration without definitely committing himself. The girl, if she worried herself at the long probation, gave no sign until one morning her tardy lover, thumbing a small notebook, said:

"Maggie, I have been weighing up your guid points, and I have already gotten ten. When I get a dozen I'm goin' tae ask ye the fatal question."

"Well, I wish ye luck, Jock," answered the maiden. "I hae also gotten a wee book, and I hae been puttin' down your bad points. There are 19 in it already, and when it reaches the score I'm gain accept the blacksmith." —London Mail.

Santa says - Hardware

Santa's long experience has taught him that folks prefer useful gifts—something of everyday usefulness that makes things easier or pleasanter for the owner.

Mother, for Instance.

What would she appreciate more—what would do more to make her daily tasks lighter—than a completely equipped kitchen? She'll welcome any gift along the line. We'd suggest:

WAFFLE IRONS ROASTERS TEA KETTLES DOUBLE BOILERS CASSEROLES ELECTRIC IRONS

PERCOLATORS PYREX FOOD CHOPPERS KNIFE GRINDERS TOASTERS ICY HOT BOTTLES

Dad, Too.

Dad will appreciate a GOOD Saw, a GOOD Hammer, a GOOD pair of Pliers, a GOOD Screw Driver. We emphasize GOOD because most every man has a hammer saw, screw driver and pliers—but rarely GOOD ones.

Something for the Home, Perhaps.

An excellent plan, as many have found, is for father and mother and one or two of the older children as well, perhaps, to chip in together for something for the home. For such we'd suggest:

SILVERWARE ELECTRIC WASHER ELECTRIC SWEEPER

PHONOGRAPH FLORENCE STOVE OIL HEATER

And for the Kids.

ROLLER SKATES SKATES SLEDGES VELOCIPEDS AIR RIFLES

COASTER WAGONS TOY ALUMINUM SETS DOLL CARTS DOLLS GLOVES

Something for Everyone at a Price you can Afford to Pay.

Grandma's Radio.

Go in' to see my Grandma Used to be such heaps of fun; She never cared about the noise, And I could jump and run; Sometimes I'd chase the kitty, Just to see how fast she'd go. But that was all before the days Of Grandma's radio.

My Grandma's cookie jar Was filled up to the brim, But now she hasn't time to bake, Since she's been listenin' in, And all I hear is "Hush, hush, hush, Don't bother people so," Can't have a bit of fun since Grandma Got that radio.

Once I said to Grandma, "Say, what'cha hearin' now?" "Hush, hush," she said, "it's recipes; They're tellin' me just how To bake a pie," and then she wrote it In a little book; Can't see it's done me any good, 'Cause she don't stop to cook.

My Grandma always listens, No matter what she hears, And sometimes she is full of smiles, And sometimes—full of tears; One day she listened fast asleep, I know, 'cause I heard snores; When she waked up, she said "Oh pshaw! I've missed the football scores."

So visitin' at Grandma's Ain't what it used to be; They even put the kitty now Where she can't play with me; And all that I'm allowed to do Is sit and whisper low, Gee! there's no more fun at Grandma's.

Since she got that radio. —Florence Hascall Butler

All the Details.

Young Si had just returned from the city, and his chum was asking him about the experiences in particular how he enjoyed eating an automatic restaurant.

"How do they work?" the friend asked. "Well, you put your nickel in the watchamacallit and press the thing-umbob, and the moohinkus turns around and gives you your food," explained Si.

"Isn't that marvelous?" echoed the chum. "I knew they were wonderful things, but I ain't heard the details before."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Man is like a tack—useful if he has a good head on him and is pointed in the right direction, but even though he is driven, he can only go as far as his head will let him.

Beginning of Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian association was founded in England by Sir George Williams, a London merchant. Williams' organization grew out of meetings he held for prayer and Bible reading among his fellow workers in a dry-goods business in London, and the association was founded in 1844. On the occasion of its jubilee, its originator was knighted. Similar associations had been in existence in Scotland at a much earlier date. In 1824 David Naismith started the Glasgow Young Men's Society for Religious Improvement, a movement which spread to various parts of the United Kingdom, France and America. Later the name was changed to the Glasgow Young Men's Christian association.

His City of Refuge

The train came to a grinding stop at a small town in the South, and the head of a gentleman of color protruded from a window at the end of a car. Seated by his side could be seen a brown-skinned maiden.

"Does yo' know a cullud pusson by de name o' Jim Brown what lives here?" he asked of a station lounge.

"Ain' nevah heerd o' no Jim Brown hyah, an' Ah lived in dis town fo' ten yeahs."

"Is yo' right suth dey ain't nevah been no Jim Brown aroun' hyah?" "Positively."

"Den," announced the arrival, reaching for a suitcase, "dis is whah his new son-in-law gits off."—The Continent.

Lost Talent

A great deal of talent is lost in the world for the want of a little courage. Every day sends to their graves a number of obscure men who have only remained in obscurity because their timidity has prevented them from making a first effort; and who, if they could have been induced to begin, would in all probability have gone great lengths in the career of fame. The fact is that, to do anything in this world worth doing, we must not stand back shrinking and thinking of the cold and danger, but jump in and scramble through as well as we can.—Rev. Sydney Smith.

Boy Phone Operators Prone to Profanity

It is hard for the present generation to imagine a swearing telephone operator, but Miss Mary Beatrice Kennedy, New York's first woman exchange operator, says she got her job because the company was tired of firing its swearing boy operators.

In those days telephones used to come down to the subscriber office to fight the operators who had sworn at them and the company became so tired of the numerous complaints that it finally replaced the boys with young women.

Miss Kennedy recently celebrated her forty-fifth anniversary, she having entered the service in 1878. "In those days," she says, "subscribers had the habit of calling up for all sorts of information. They used to ask: 'How much are eggs selling for?'"

"Calling a number was unheard of. Subscribers would simply ask for Smith's drug store or Jones' grocery, or this or that building, or such and such a lawyer or merchant. I used to work for eight in the morning until six at night. I lived in Jersey City. To get to work I took a horse car to the river, ferried across, took another horse car and then walked up six flights of stairs. It is different now, isn't it?"

Sage Rats of Hawaii Become Coffee Addicts

Thousands and perhaps millions of sage rats in the Kona district of the Hawaiian Islands have become coffee toppers. They subsist wholly upon the ripe coffee berries and cause big losses to the growers annually, it is stated. Although the rats make coffee their sole diet the rodents do not seem to be any the worse off by reason thereof, so far as their physical condition is concerned. They are sleek and fat and scamper about with an undue playfulness, their unusual activity being due to the stimulating character of the food, it is supposed.

Coffee growers have so far been unable to cope with the rat pest. The little animals swarm into the bushes when the berries begin to turn and eat and destroy enormous quantities of the product, it is asserted.

It was not until some time after the growing of coffee in the Kona district was started that the sage rats learned to like the taste of the berries. Gradually the addicts increased until now practically every rodent, young and old, will not eat anything else. They even store away large quantities of the ripe berries, in the same manner as squirrels.

Years Have Brought Changes in Meaning

If we wish to label anything strange or barbarous we say it is "outlandish," but when the Bible speaks of an "outlandish woman" it means a foreigner.

Another curious expression in the authorized version is "The other basket had very naughty figs." That means fruit which was good for naught. Today the word "naughty" means "ill-behaved." In the prayer book the word "presently" means "at the present time," but today it always means a future time, though not far distant, says London Tit-Bits.

When the authorized version of the Scriptures was first printed, the word "careful" meant "full of care and anxiety," as in "careworn," but if a man were said to be careful it would today be a good testimonial. Thus, when the New Testament tells us to "be careful for nothing," it is not enjoining wastefulness and speaking against thrift, but simply telling us not to worry about anything.

Our Letter Box

Under this heading we will be glad to publish letters from former Carroll-countians, who are now away from home; and especially letters from those whose home was Taneytown. These letters are very interesting, to many, and we should be glad to publish one or more each week. On account of their length, it is not always convenient to use letters on first page, and will hereafter use the 4th or 5th page.

Twenty-Five Years Ago.

The Wm. G. Myers dwelling, then Jacob Fleagle's, was being built, on Baltimore St.

James Buffington met with an accident while tying a load of hay, the pole breaking and throwing him to the ground with great force.

The Editor acknowledged the receipt of a present of a pair of jack rabbit ears, from Mrs. J. C. Bair, of Talmage, Kansas.

Chas. A. Elliot, Albert Rapp and S. C. Reaver, were on a hunting trip in the South Mountains.

Rev. Pedro Rioseco, former pastor of the Presbyterian Church, had a letter in the Dec. 2, issue of The Record, from Havana, Cuba, describing conditions there.

Among the marriage notices were those of C. Edgar Myers, and Miss Fannie B. Myers, of Uniontown, and Mr. J. Thomas Wantz and Miss Fannie B. Null, of Taneytown.

The Students of Milton Academy gave a literary program in the Opera House, some of the participants being: Fanny Kiser, Vallie Garner, Warren R. Hill, Thurlow W. Null, Raymond Kephart, Lelia Yount, Beulah Englar, and Nina Crapster.

James A. Reid, Charles G. Brown and John A. Yingling, qualified as carriers on Rural Delivery routes, to go into operation Dec. 15. P. B. Englar was postmaster.

The "Home Circle" department in the Record was flourishing at this time, containing articles on "Christmas Letters," "Encouragement," "Christmas Presents," "Superstitions," etc.

Taneytown markets were as follows: Flour $4.00 and $4.50; Bran andmiddings $18.00; Mixed Hay $7.00; Timothy $10.00; Wheat 65c; Oats 30c; Corn 35c; Potatoes 30c; Butter 15c; Eggs 18c; Hams 10c; Hogs $4.00; Cattle $4.00 to $5.00.

Some old "Improvements" in Taneytown.

Among the "improvements" in Taneytown, some forty or more years ago, was a "board walk" laid on the south side of Baltimore St., that reached from somewhere near the railroad to the old Stone Hotel property. This was when the hotel space and garden occupied all of the space from the present Hesson's store to the alley at Dr. Benner's, there being no buildings on the location except the unsightly old hotel barn, and the whole sidewalk especially in the Spring, was foot-boarded wide, was a big improvement, as long as it was in good condition— which was not many years.

Another improvement at about the same time, was the removal of the old wooden pump in the centre of the square, and its replacement with an iron pump, with corner posts and an iron railing around, which lasted perhaps 20 years, until it was removed and the well closed permanently. The "public well," by the way, was largely depended on for water for household purposes as well as for watering horses, and "Bolivar" made good use of it.

Another of the old "improvements" was the erection of gasoline lamps—some twenty or more—at the square and a few on each street widely spaced. These lamps, in their time, and when in good order, did represent a big modern improvement. They had a vaporizing supply tank on top, and would burn as long as the supply of gasoline lasted, then "go out." Their first cost was paid by subscriptions from the citizens, and the lamp lighting was according to a "moonlight" schedule, and in course of time they gave way to the acetylene lamps, used until quite recently when the present, best of all, electric lighting system was installed.

One of the old-time public conveniences was the "town clock" on the old Lutheran church steeple, which, by the way, was a resurrection of an older clock, used years before, but which had been torn down. A watch and clock repairer, named Kappes, who was located in the town a few years, and who was ingenious and pretty competent, used some of the old works, fashioned others, erected the clock and made it run, the bell of the church being used for the clapper to strike the hours. The clock had two or perhaps three—faces, each about 6 feet in diameter, and kept reasonably good time, but required considerable tinkering to make it go regularly. Mr. Kappes moved away, and the clock died from lack of skilled attention.

More material is needed for the "Letter Box." If you care for it, help to keep it alive, and regularly in operation. We can do no more than offer the opportunity.—Ed. Record.

A Few Good Ones.

An American (in dear old London bragging about his automobile) said: "It runs so smoothly that you can't feel it; so smoothly you can't hear it; has such perfect ignition you can't smell it and as for speed—boy, you can't see it." Englishman: "But, my word, old dear, how do you know the bally thing is there?"

A middleman's wife waking him in the middle of the night told him that there were robbers in the house. "Impossible," said the Congressman. "There may be robbers in the Senate, but not in the House."

Inquiring reporter: "I suppose you are familiar with the ins and outs of political life?" "Only the ins," answered Sorgham. "The outs haven't enough influence to make familiarity worth while."

Virginia Valli

Charming Virginia Valli, the "movie" star, was born and educated in Chicago, where she began her career as an interpretative dancer, later going to Hollywood as a motion picture actress. Her brunette beauty, her acting and her popularity generally brought her rapidly to the fore in Filmland.

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

MR. AND MRS. NICK

EVERYONE who visited Nick and Mrs. Nick came away convinced that their home was a wonderful organization—their household ran on greased wheels. "It is better run than anything I've ever seen," each guest would agree, "but—"

Then Dick suddenly turned up from the West. Dick and Nick had not seen each other since their bachelor days years before when they worked from sunrise to sunset and rested from sunset to sunrise.

Dick just telephoned from the station that he was in town; Mrs. Nick said that, if he'd only written ahead that he would come, they would have been prepared for him more formally than he would find them now. Formally was the last thing Dick wanted from Nick's wife, as he explained, starting to carry his valise upstairs. Nick, who knew his wife pretty well, gently but firmly set the big bag on the floor and said with a laugh that discipline must be preserved. Then he and Dick talked to Dick's room for an old-time talk. They were just well under way when Nick lated up, saying that they would be late for dinner—there was exactly ten minutes to dress.

At the table they decided on a reunion of all the old crowd within halting distance. Monday they would have a stag party. But, "not Monday," put in Mrs. Nick gently. Mrs. Nick was "at home" Monday afternoon, and she always planned not to have guests Monday night.

Half an hour later they were comfortably seated round a blazing fire. Dick had his hand in his pocket on his cigarette case when Nick said, "Sorry, old man; I can't ask you to smoke in here—we keep the little room at the end of the hall for smoking."

Then Mrs. Nick had an emergency schedule to present—not, she repeated, what his entertainment would have been had he "driven ahead" of his coming. And Dick settled down to the real work of visiting in a well-organized household.

Next summer Mr. and Mrs. Dick asked Nick and his wife to their ranch. At breakfast they served themselves; then they were offered their choice of horses or the library for the day; dinner was the only fixed hour, and everyone was so hungry for that that they were all invariably prompt. No planning was obvious; yet there was variety from day to day. And always there were the mountains and the river and the open sky and a sense of freedom.

On their return in the fall, Mrs. Nick said suddenly: "My dear, has it ever occurred to you that in our life here we need more leeway?"

"What do you mean?" asked Nick cautiously.

"I think we have been over-organized, over-organized. Too much routine is a bad habit."

A LINE O' CHEER

By John Kendrick Bangs.

THE GOOD WORD

"WHAT'S the good word?" quoth one to me.
"Well, you can take your choice of three."
Said I, "There's LOVE, and HOPE, and CHEER, and all sounding sweetly on my ear."
"I'll take the first," said he, "and you"
"Can keep yourself the other two, for if I've LOVE it seems to me I hold the substance of the three."
And as I thought it o'er that night,
I found the wise old chap was right.
For he to whom true LOVE doth fall
Hath truly won and garnered all.

Famous Pleasure Spot of English Monarchs

Many kings have done their part to make Hampton court what it is today, asserts a writer in John O'London's Weekly. Wolsey began it all, and it is interesting to learn that when he walked in his park he liked to be left to his meditations. He would allow no servant to come near him; his order was that they should keep as far from him "as one might shoot an arrow." When Henry came into possession he at once extended the gardens, planted quickset hedges, and bought apple and pear saplings. Hentzner described the gardens in Elizabeth's reign as "most pleasant," adding that he "saw rowellary, so planted and nailed to the walls as to cover them entirely, which is a method exceedingly common in England." Charles I formed lakes. Charles II planted more than two hundred elms and many lime trees. William III in his turn, brought in the note of Dutch formality with yew, box, and holly sculptured into bird and animal shapes or arranged to represent his royal initials; he formed rectilinear canals and did strange things with terrace and balcony, and fountains better designed (said Horace Walpole) "to wet the unwary than to refresh the panting spectator." Happily, nearly everything he did was afterwards undone.

Frisky Filly

Miss Sarah is "getting along in years," a fact she is unwilling to admit. She wears very youthful clothes; she has been described by a facetious neighbor as "sheep dressed lamb-fashion." And sometimes when the world pushes her into a niche where it thinks she belongs, Miss Sarah rebels. One day she was talking merrily to a party of young girls. Her cheeks were pink and her little curls fluttering. She laughed a great deal.

"Oh, Miss Sarah," at last exclaimed one of the girls innocently, "how gay you must have been in those days!"

"Have been?" repeated the lady, indignantly. "Have been! Well, I'd have you know I'm not a centurian yet!"—Los Angeles Times.

Church Sittings Sold

In certain sections of England it is still customary to sell by auction, pews in the parish church. The newest bidder secures the use of the pew for a year. On the east coast of Scotland it was quite common 30 or 40 years ago to see an advertisement in the local press offering, say, one or two "bottom breadths" in such-and-such a pew in the parish church. The pews were freehold, and paid taxes in the same way as a freehold dwelling-house. Another reader recalls dwellers of a church pew sale which stated that it "produced so much per ann., free of rates and taxes," and that it was "in a good position," and "rent regularly paid."

Tools of Insect World Surpass Those of Man

Most of the articles in that great chest of tools that man's inventive genius has contrived were invented by the insect world before he fashioned the first, writes Ernest Bate, Ph. D., in Popular Science Monthly. Moreover, man's tools are usually inferior in precision and versatility.

Saw, pliers, brushes, augers, hooks, hammers, knives, lancets—all of these and yet other tools are in the insects' remarkable chest. Nature attached them to the insects' bodies—to the legs, to the head, to the abdomen, wherever they were needed. They are made of chitin, a material that, unlike the metal tools of man, resists the action of water and the mineral acids. The insect tool chest is truly complete, one of its wonders being the closeness of the resemblance of the articles it contains to the tools that man has been so long in fashioning.

Ancient City Dying

Fifteen miles from Laguna, N. M., stands Acoma, the City of the Sky. Not 50 years after Columbus discovered America, Friar Marcos, a Franciscan monk, heard of the Pueblos, "the people of the white rock." There is little reason to doubt that the community came into existence hundreds of years before the white man first saw the plains of our Southwest. It was an independent community then; it is an independent community today.

It is evident that this age-old city is fast approaching its end. The old people cling to the old customs, but they are dying off, and tradition is dying with them. Of late years the younger generation has been going off to surrounding ranches to work for white men. The population is given as 600, but that includes all the Acoma Indians who come back to the parent city for brief visits.—Foster Wright, in Mentor Magazine.

Notions From Novels

"A frustrated love affair in early youth is perhaps the best solution for the romantic. It gives them an illusion to carry intact through life."—"The Fir and the Palm" by Elizabeth Bibesco.

"To be really inquisitive is the one great asset in life. It makes you, confoundedly unpopular sometimes, but it's worth it."—"The Unseemly Adventure," by Ralph Straus.

"A house that is not shared by the right person is as much like a home as a bowl of fresh water is to a whiting."—"Surplus," by Sylvia Stevenson.

"Mr. Wycombe quite upsets me. I always feel as if I had a smut on my nose when he looks at me."—"The Shoreless Sea," by Mollie Downes.

"Why shouldn't women prefer a strong silent man to a weak noisy one? Numbers of men must be wishing they had married strong, silent women."—Marjorie Bowen.

Belated Honor Paid Founder of New York

The city of Avesnes, Belgium, recently was host to a large delegation of Americans, here to pay tribute to the birthplace of Jesse de Forest, founder of New York.

It was just three centuries ago that this son of Avesnes, at the time a refugee at Leyden with other Walloons who were fleeing from Spanish oppression, set sail for America, where he had planned to establish a colony. He died before reaching the shores of the new world, but his sons and son-in-law carried out the plan which he had conceived and perfected during long years.

The Walloon emigrants, landing on Manhattan Island at the mouth of the Hudson river, reared there the foundations of a city which they called Nieuwe Avesnes. A few years later Dutch colonists, more numerous than the Walloons, changed the name to Nieuwe Amsterdam. Still later the English again changed the name to New York.

May 20 a monument recalling the above incident was unveiled in Battery park, New York. This was the gift of the provincial council of Rainaut, Belgium, and was presented to the American metropolis by Baron de Cartier, Belgian ambassador to the United States. The monument was unveiled by eight-year-old Priscilla de Forest, a direct descendant of Jesse de Forest.

The day following the arrival of the American delegation an exact replica of the New York monument was unveiled in the presence of a representative of the United States government.
 On one side it bears a commemorative inscription and on the other an engraving of the vessel in which Jesse de Forest started his long voyage, surrounded by the arms of New York and Avesnes.—From Le Petit Parisien (Translated for the Kansas City Star).

Will-o'-the-Wisp

"Will-o'-the-Wisp" is a popular name for a phenomenon called ignis fatuus, which in Latin means "foolish fire." It is a light which appears floating in the atmosphere a few feet above the ground in marshes or other places where there is decaying animal matter.
 When approached it appears, as a rule, to recede. It has been attributed to phosphorated or carbureted hydrogen escaping from decaying substances.

Origin of "Struck Ile"

Interesting
 Sketches
 in Oil
 No. 9

WHEN James Evans, of Franklin, Pa., discovered the world's best lubricating Oil in his backyard well, in 1859, pandemonium broke loose. Almost at the same time, both illuminating and lubricating Oil had been found in unfathomable abundance. It can readily be imagined that the whole population of Franklin "went crazy" over the wonderful find. Business, school, housekeeping—everything was forgotten in the mad rush to see the well. And the mad rush was not confined to Franklin; all over the world the thought of vast wealth from a hole in the ground was capturing the hearts of the adventurous. ¶ That night a young man stopped at the Evans home. Miss Anna Evans, one of the blacksmith's daughters, met him at the door and cried: "Dad's struck ile!" The expression caught the popular fancy, was printed everywhere, and it will go down as an immortal characteristic of the early days of Oil.

Nowadays when a Kerosene buyer first tries The Red C Oil or The White C Oil, same except in color, he knows that he has "struck ile" better than he ever knew existed. It is beyond question the satisfactory, economical Kerosene you have been looking for, for your Lamps, Stoves and

Lesson for December 7

THE MAN BORN BLIND

LESSON TEXT—John 9:1-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—One thing I know that whereas I was blind now I see.—John 9:25.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Opens a Blind Man's Eyes.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Heals a Man Who Is Blind.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to Our Savior.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Difficulties and Rewards of Confessing Christ.

I. Working the Works of God While It Is Day (vv. 1-5).

1. The Disciples' Problem (vv. 1, 2). In their minds all affliction, negative and positive, was God's retribution for sin. Therefore they argued that this man's blindness proved sin. They recognized, too, that the effect of sin is sometimes hereditary. This they no doubt inferred from the second commandment (Ex. 20:5). The implication is that they held the view that men have a pre-existence, and that suffering in this life may be the result of sins committed in that pre-existent state.

2. The Lord's Answer (vv. 3-5). The Lord avers that in this case there is neither sin on the man's part, nor that of his parents, but that it was an occasion for the display of the works of God, and that He had come to execute this task while it is day, because the night comes when no man can work.

11. The Man's Eyes Opened (vv. 6, 7). Observe that the means used in this miracle were little less than foolish in themselves. How illy adapted naturally to the eye, the most delicate and sensitive of all the organs of the body. What is more to be avoided than sand in touch with the eye? The object must have been to teach this man the utter inadequacy of the means that he might be caused to look from the means to the one who used them, that he might be convinced that the power was of God. Then, too, the washing in the pool would teach him the absolute necessity of immediate and explicit obedience in order to enjoy God's blessings.

III. The Man's Testimony (vv. 18-38). In his testimony we have a fine example of the development of faith. The opening of this man's eyes aroused inquiry among his neighbors. When a man's spiritual eyes are opened there will be a stir among his friends.

1. He testifies to his personal identity (v. 9). This was very easy. His self-consciousness enabled him to know that he was the same man who was born blind.

2. He testifies as to how it was done (vv. 11, 15). So definite was his experience that he was able to tell just how it was done.

3. He testifies that the One who opened his eyes was a prophet (v. 17). 4. He testifies that this healer was no doubt sent of God (vv. 30-35), and is the greatest worker of miracles since the world began.

5. Finally, he worships Him as the Son of God.

IV. The Results of His Confession. 1. As to the people, they were divided in sentiment. Some believed He was from God because of His works; others that He was a sinner because He did His work on the Sabbath day.

2. As to the man, they cast him out. But being cast out by men he found himself in the arms of Jesus. He is led on to a deeper faith. He first saw Him as a miracle worker, then as a prophet, and finally as the Son of God, and when he perceived Him to be the Son of God he worshiped Him.

The whole lesson may be viewed from three angles: 1. As an acted parable of the life that issues in faith in Christ, an illustration of the spiritual sphere in terms of the physical sphere.

2. Testimony to the Deity of our Lord. This testimony is threefold:

(a) The miracle itself, an unheard-of work, that a man born blind should receive his sight; (b) the unwilling admissions of the enemies themselves who made a public and official investigation; (c) the testimony of the man himself and that of his parents.

3. An illuminating example of faith's development.

True Freedom

True freedom has to do with the spiritual part of man, with that principle in him through which he is related to God. That can be free even though the body be loaded with chains. It was so with St. Paul, as with all other good and great men.

Faith

Faith in the holiness of God is the first uplifting force in religion. There is hope for the greatest sinner who can see the immaculate purity of God in contrast with his own sins. The vision of the sinless One reveals to us the sinfulness of our sins.—Christian Standard.

In the Love of God

In His Steps (12)

What Jesus Said About Forgiveness Matthew 6:14, 15; 18:21-35

In Luke 7:40-50 our Lord taught that forgiveness is a matter of grace. The words of verse 42 "nothing to pay" truly describe our condition. Sin is regarded as a debt toward God as well as a departure from God. "All have sinned and fallen short." In the light of this fact read again the words of verse 42, "when they had nothing to pay he freely forgave them." This reminds us of other Scriptures such as Titus 3:5, "Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us," and Ephesians 2:8, "By grace are ye saved through faith."

Our Lord taught that forgiveness was by blood—life poured out unto death (Matt. 26:28). Modernists who talk of blood atonement as having its origin with Paul need to ponder this verse. It harmonizes with and sanctions the oft-repeated statement of Scripture, "Without shedding of blood there is no remission." This truth is so woven into the Scripture that to take it out would be to destroy the very structure of Scripture and deprive it of its chief message.

Again in Luke 24:46-48 our Lord taught that forgiveness is offered to all through Him. The apostle referred to this when he wrote to his converts the words found in 1 John 2:12, "Your sins are forgiven you for his name's sake." In that name there is virtue and value power and authority.

Another plain teaching of our Lord is that it is our duty as Christians to forgive one another even as God for Christ's sake has forgiven us. Any refusal to do this is an indication that one has not received the Spirit of Christ, or is not living a true Christian life. Our forgiveness of others should not only be prompt, but without limit, or, to use the Master's words, "unto seventy times seven." Our disposition and attitude must always be that of willingness to forgive any wrong done against us.

Camphor Mixture Fine for Sore Eyes

It is surprising how QUICK eye inflammation is helped by camphor, hydrastis, witchhazel, etc., as mixed in Lavoptik eye wash. One lady whose eyes were weak and watery for three years reports that Lavoptik helped AT ONCE. One small bottle Lavoptik usually helps ANY CASE sore, weak or inflamed eyes. Aluminum eye cup FREE. "Twilight" of Minds Might Work Wonders

To most grown-ups the child mind is an enigma, and it is reasonable to suppose that the grown-up mind is an enigma to the child. So that, if there be a sudden "twilight" for a few hours, great changes would be apparent in the behavior of the one to the other, a writer in the Westminster Gazette comments.

Take, for instance, meal time—a period when youth and maturity wage eternal warfare—Mary and Bobbie would appreciate mothers' dislike to messy, noisy meals, and mother would realize in a flash how tiresome and dull it is to sit quiet and be careful and clean and good right through all the courses.

Naturally, a compromise would be effected. Mary would only drop her spoon once, and not see how far she could lean over to pick it up, capsizing the chair and herself and knocking her glass of water over at one fell swoop. Bobbie would tip his plate (probably), but not at such an acute angle that the tablecloth would be drenched with rhubarb juice. . . . As for mother, instead of losing herself in gloomy contemplation of the years to pass before she could have her meals in peace, she would chat companionably and limit considerably her number of "don'ts."

Easy to Lose Way in British Guiana Bush

British Guiana bush is a dangerous maze. Savages find their way by means of secret marks, but a tenderfoot enters at great risk. The country is five times the size of England, and there are not more than ten white men who have gone into the wilds of the interior, according to D. Bannerman Clarke, M. A., general manager of the Aranka Gold, Ltd., of Georgetown, British Guiana. "The natives," he says, "have the most marvelous sense of direction and find their way through the jungle with unerring precision. They have a sort of sign language. They make marks on trees which only they understand, and if some one has followed the natives he can always tell how large the party was, whether they went and just when they passed the given spot, by these curious marks on the trees made with cutlasses. They also leave marks for their own guidance when they turn about and start homeward. Once you know the bush and its hidden sign language it is almost as easy to get about as in the open, but if a tenderfoot gets lost he is in a hopeless maze and has very little chance of getting out alive.

U. S. Issues Guide Book on Owning Your Home

A guide book designed for the prospective small-home owner was issued recently by the United States government, the Department of Commerce, Washington, announcing the publication of a handbook setting forth details which assert the steps necessary to acquiring such property.

This aid to home builders is a publication entitled, "How to Own Your Home."

Particular stress is placed by the handbook on the agreements which should be definitely entered into with regard to financing, building and purchasing. The points which should be clearly defined are emphasized. While conceding that the great majority of individuals and companies with which the home seekers deal are honest and wish to do business honorably, the handbook insists that "no good business man should object to having his obligations, as he understands them, set down in writing and in accordance with legal procedure."

As for the financing of home building, the handbook gives sound information.

"Borrowing money to buy a home is no disgrace," it declares. "On the contrary, it is normal and in many ways desirable. Many families in meeting payments on a loan have learned the habit of saving, and have continued it as a step toward financial independence."

It is desirable, the book points out, for a family about to buy a home to possess a minimum of 20 per cent of the value of the house in cash, even though arrangements are often made for a purchase with a lesser amount. The advantage of a larger cash payment is found in the fact that it helps to insure a loan at a low rate of interest and one that can be paid off comfortably.

In the selection of a home site, requirements are carefully discussed from the standpoint of family life, neighborhood, education, transportation to work and to shopping centers, low or high land values, protection of zoning to home by private restrictions, ferred, ordinances and city planning.

Unbroken Lawn Pleasing

Don't plant flower beds in the middle of a lawn. It makes the lawn appear "lumpy." A broad, unbroken expanse of well-kept lawn is as beautiful in its way as the finest rug. Don't forget that successful home gardening aims to tie the house and landscape. Think of your yard as an out-of-door room. A decorator does not begin by first providing something for the center of the room. He uses the walls, doors, windows and other architectural features as the basis for his scheme of decoration. Treat your yard as you would a room. Shrubbery and flowers, being considered ornaments and not furniture, look best when they serve as decoration against the house and along the boundary line. Shrubbery and vines about a house tie it to the ground and soften the edges. Windows should not be shaded. The blank and open spaces of the house are best suited for the planting of shrubbery and flowers. Plant next to a walk or property line should never impede travel. Make the approach to your home easy and direct. Accent your walk with proper shrubs. Don't forget that flowers pass quickly, whereas shrubs and hardy trees live on constantly.

Garden Furniture

Appropriateness of garden furniture, requires attention. Elaborately modeled sun-dials and bird-baths, and furniture with delicate and refined lines would be at home only in a garden sophisticated and formal in design; while pottery and furniture in primitive patterns should be reserved for gardens modest and deliberately unpretentious in feeling.

The placing of these things is of the utmost importance. Some garden ornaments serve as accents and others as climaxes. Sun-dials and bird-baths, and sometimes furniture, fall into the latter class and should accordingly be set at the ends of paths or open spaces where they will end a vista. That is not an unbreakable rule, however; for the intersection of two paths is very often the ideal location for a sun-dial or a bird-bath, or they may be nicely used to mark the center of an open space in the garden. Their decorative value in the garden scheme must be sufficiently emphasized so that they will not seem an incidental and haphazard ornamental detail. A small bit of ornament, like a sun-dial or bird-bath, may seem rather ridiculous if it is set in a large open space. It is absolutely necessary that it should fit into the scale of its surroundings.

Plans Beauty Campaign

The first campaign inaugurated by A. E. Van Petten, the newly-elected president of the Topeka chamber of commerce, who is totally blind, was one for the beautification of that city.

Each school child has been presented with a red tag bearing the pledge:

"I won't pick flowers or break off branches.

"I won't cut across lawns because it kills the grass.

"I want Topeka to be more beautiful."

Did you ever stop to think that what you get in the milk pail you must first put into the feed box?

When production falls off it's easy to blame the cow. But she isn't a magician. She can't make something out of nothing.

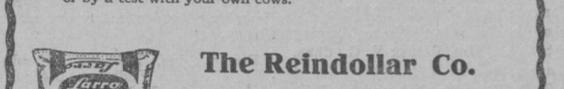

A good cow, rightly fed, will pay for herself over and over, year in and year out.

But no cow, wrongly fed, will produce milk profitably for any length of time.

That's why it pays to feed Larro. Larro will produce more profit, dollar for dollar, than any other feed, however little you pay for it.

Generates Fierce Heat

What is declared to be the hottest flame known to man has been produced by artificial means in experiments held to study the form of atoms. An electric blast, lasting for only a small part of a second, occurring on a charged wire, seemed to explode, creating heat so intense that it could not be measured, although estimates put it at as high as 80,000 degrees. Pictures taken as the explosions occur are expected to aid astronomers in solving the causes for different kinds of light thrown off by many of the planets.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

"There Was a Time."

Of course there was—but in most cases we don't want it back again, if we tell the whole truth about it. Some days, when real worth while talk runs out and we are lazy enough, and conceited enough to think we are very wise, we dig up this old "There was a time" and elaborate on the great things we did then, and how much better the "was" times were than the present variety, and we enjoy quite a satisfying talk-fest, especially if we have a "me too" audience.

Well, there were a lot of good things years ago, and perhaps a lot of customs and habits have deteriorated since; but, all times have their good things, and it is altogether foolish to argue that just because a thing was "old," it was good. If we doubt this, all we need to do is read up about the happenings when Adam and Noah were young.

The chief value of "There was a time" speculations is to pick the good out, and to estimate it properly, by comparison with the present; at the same time taking thought of the rather serious fact that because we had so much experience with the various periods of time, we ought now to be very wise men, indeed. If people of the present lack this teaching experience, how can we expect them to be better than they are?

The good old country school, when we were boys and girls, with many teachers and "the rod" a necessary part of disciplinary equipment, did excellent work in "the three R's" and perhaps laid better real foundations than are laid now; and it is just possible that the minds of the young were more receptive, than now, to acquiring a schooling. At any rate, young folks did not have the diversions and many tricks for their time and thought that they have now; so, we must not blame too strongly the "fads and frills" of public education these days, because the curriculum of "there was a time" would not answer the demands, at all, of the present; besides, it is just possible that we do not know as much as we think we do, of what is actually being done in our modern schools.

As in school matters, so in many other directions are we too one-sidedly wily in our reminiscent moods. There is plenty of good all about us, if we use the right sort of spectacles, and we are living in the most wonderful age the old world has ever seen. The most of us, in fact, would like to start all over again, right now, and not back in "there was a time."

America Leads the World in the Use of Telephones.

A close to home comparison between telephone conditions in this country and abroad is brought out in a recent compilation of telephone statistics for all countries of the world.

According to this survey there are more telephones in Maryland than are in service in a great many foreign countries. This State with a population of approximately 1,500,000 and an area of 9,941 square miles has more than 162,500 telephones in service, one telephone for every nine inhabitants. Countries which have less telephones than Maryland are, Central America, Argentina, Austria, Hungary, Norway, Portugal, Spain, India, Roumania, Switzerland, Belgium, China, and the entire continent of Africa.

There are in use in this state 500,236 miles of telephone wire, enough to girdle the globe twenty times, and poles enough if laid end to end to reach from Baltimore to Denver, Colorado.

In comparison with the rest of the world, America is shown to be far ahead in telephone facilities. The United States has 63 percent of all the telephones. In proportion to population this country has ten times as many telephones as the world at large. The average American uses the telephone nine times as much as the average Englishman, and ten times as much as the average Frenchman. There are more telephones in New York City than in the whole of Great Britain and Northern Ireland; more in the city of Chicago than in all of France; more in Baltimore than Spain or Belgium. In rural telephone development, America stands head and shoulders above the rest of the world.

Masonic Lodge in Jerusalem.

Each of the 4,000 lodges under the jurisdiction of the United Grand Lodge of England has some special feature or characteristic which endears it to its members; some have attractions which make their proceedings of interest to others whose names are not upon their register; and a few, though very few, possess a history and constitution which create not only a national, but a universal interest, says Dudley Wright. The lodge of King Solomon's Temple, No. 8464, falls within this last category. Although it is only 14 years old, it has already created Masonic history, aided by the recent war.

When it was founded on Oct. 19, 1910, it was stated that one of its objects was one day to transfer its locale from Chester to Jerusalem. This has not been possible, but within 14 years it has sponsored a lodge of the same name, which does meet on a site adjacent to the ancient temple in the holy city.

Cherokee Myth Tells of Bravery of Spider

Lucky was it for all the animals that there are spiders that have egg sacs resembling bows, for otherwise all the creatures of the forest would have had to go without fire, the Youth's Companion remarks. At least so we are assured in a Cherokee myth. Natural History thus tells the pretty story in which a spider played the part of Prometheus:

In the beginning there was no fire, and the world was cold. In time, however, the thunders placed fire in a hollow tree on an island. The animals gazed enviously at the smoke that curled upward from the concealed bonfire, knowing that there was warmth there, yet at a loss how to obtain it. So they held a council, and as a result the raven set out on the quest. He reached the island and the tree, but all that he bore back with him as a result of his adventure was scorched and blackened feathers. The little screech owl next made the trial. He reached the tree, but while he was hesitating what to do next a blast of fiery air arose and nearly burned out his eyes, which are red to this day. Other owls tried in their turn, but with no better success. Then the black snake tried, and today he bears a covering of sooty scales as a badge of his ineffectual hardihood.

Daunted by the failure of their fellows, the remaining animals managed to find the weightiest of reasons for not venturing to go. Not so the spider, however. She wove a little tustle-bowl of her silk and, fastening it to her back, set forth on her adventure. Reaching the island, she crept through the grass to the tree and snatched up a little ember of fire, which she placed in her bowl and returned with it to the expectant animals.

Easily Proved

At a mill in Boston the workers were having a discussion about who was the quietest man they knew.

They got a minder to act as judge. Then they got their thinking apparatus to work, to think who was the quietest man they knew. Many hundred names were mentioned. The judge was about to give his decision when he saw a minder who had never mentioned one.

The judge then said: "Neaw, Jack, does that not know any quiet man?"

"Well," said the minder, "I think I know just one."

"Well, out with it," said the judge. "Well, I think owd Bill Kite the quietest mon I know."

The minder looked surprised and then they all exclaimed at once: "Why, mon, he's dead!"

"I know that. I think he's the quietest mon I know. He's never spoken to me for nearly twenty years!"—London Tit-Bits.

Columbus was seventy days coming to America in a ship weighing 100 tons and carrying a crew of fifty-two. Dr. Hugo Eckener in eighty hours came to America in an airship weighing ninety tons and capable of carrying a crew of eighty-three.
