SECRETARY HUGHES RETIRES.

Has Given Twenty Years to the Country's Service.

The whole country was given a sur-prise, last Saturday afternoon, when the news of the resignation as Secretary of State, Hon. Charles Evans, Hughes, was made public. The resig-nation will take effect March 4, and his successor will be Hon. Frank B. Kellogg, of Minnesota, now ambassador to Great Britain.

While it has been rumored for some time that Mr. Hughes desired to return to private life, it was also generally understood that he would likely continue in office another year.

Secretary Hughes is regarded by many as the most prominent figure in the affairs of this country, a man of wonderful ability and foresight, and who in all of his many difficult tasks has handled all with the most pronounced skill and success; and public addresses during the recent Presidential campaign, were admit-tedly the strongest and best efforts in support of the administration, and aided materially in the election of his chief.

It is thought by some that the persistent nagging at some of his foreign policies by a few Senators, may have led to his retirement earlier than contemplated by him, and it may be that there were inside reasons that will not be made public; at any rate, it is reasonably sure that President Cool-idge knew of the pending retirement, as he at once made known the ap-considerable experience in foreign affairs, and in complicated world problems.

Cause of New Oxford Fire.

According to the Hanover Record-Herald, inspector Tipton connected with the State Police has decided that the recent big fire in New Oxford was caused by a short circuit in an auto-mobile stored in one of the garages in the case, as well as conducting a systematic and careful investigation of his own, but failed to find any evi-dence that would indicate the fire was of an incendiary origin. His assign-ment took him to New Oxford, Han-over, York and other intermediate towns and every possible angle of the case was carefully probed.

case was carefully probed. The short circuit in an automobile as the origin of the blaze, was arrived at by Inspector Tipton, after every other known source of information had been sifted, and garage men in-terviewed, relative to the short circuit possibility.

Old Clothing for Near East.

Wednesday, January 21, will be Near East Relief Bundle Day. 90,000 refugee children ask, through the Near East Relief, for your old clothing-anything is welcome, just so it is warm and wearable. "These 90.000 children," says Har-old F. Pellegrin, State Director, "are in camps, many of which are in heavy snows, in some places six feet deep. The children have arrived after long journeys, after many hardships and privations. They have only shreds of clothing and between lack of clothing and lack of food, they face death by starvation or freezing, or both, this winter, unless helped by the Near East Relief. We ask old or new clothing and ask it quickly. It is not necessary to wait for Bundle Day. Send your bundle by automobile, freight express, parcel post (prepaid, sent, please, anyway so it reaches Near East Relief, 14 W. Franklin St. (2nd. floor, Baltimore, Md., quickly, Haste is imperative because these chil dren must be helped at once. Send your bundles in, before or by Bundle Day, please. 100,000 orphans also need your clothing; also women and old men in the refugee camps. Maryland is asked for 250.000 pounds as its quota to help these freezing, helpless children; send your bundles at once, everybody, and Maryland will reach quota. Every garment helps. its In Baltimore City, the School Board on Bundle Day, will let the schools be Bundle Stations; Pratt Libraries also are Bundle Stations. The city is ask-ed for 150,000 pounds, and Mr. Pellegrin says he believes the other parts of the state can surely match this figure. Let everybody send in some clothing, and the countes will surely lead Balitmore. Send to Maryland Headquarters on West Franklin St., as directed above, by Mr. Pellegrin.

Finally Disposed of.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was called to order at 10:45, in the office of the Board on January 7, 1925. Commissioner Koons was absent.

The minutes of the previous meetings were approved as read. The list of bills presented to the Board was approved and ordered paid Requests for contributions to local funds raised for school equipment were presented to the Board which contributed $10 to the amount already raised in each case, except in the case of Mt. Airy, it agreed to make the contribution 10% of the amount raised by the school, which amounted to $21.70.

The following letter was sent to Irvin Ruby, U. G. Duvall and Willie Doyle, trustees of Pine Knob school. Westminster, January 7, 1925

"I beg to inform you that at a meet-ing of the Board of Education on Jan. 7, 1925, I was instructed to inform you that in view of the fact that the Pine Knob school has been closed, the positions as trustees of the same have been declared vacant according to the school laws of Maryland, Chapter No. 506, By-Law No. 1, 1916.

"You will kindly take notice of this order and govern yourself accordingly

Very Truly Yours, M. S. H. UNGER, Supt. This action was taken by the Board in order to protect itself from persons who might claim that they were its agents, and also in order that the public may be thoroughly aware that the Board of Education will not be responsible for any action whatsoever undertaken or committed by these persons assuming its authority.

The Superintendent was authorized to write the trustees of Good Hope school informing them that if they were not able to raise their school average to the required legal average (12) by the time of the next Board meeting, the school would have to be closed.

In response to a personal letter addressed to each membert of the Board by Miss Hanna Shunk, with respect to a readjustment of her salary, due to her failure to renew her certificate, the Board authorized the Superintendent to reply, acknowledging receipt of this letter on the part of each member, outlining once more to her the reasons for the action taken.

ROADS TO BE WIDENED. 100 Miles of State Road to be Improved This Year.

With almost twice as much money for maintenance and reconstruction purposes available this year as was used in 1924, the State Road Commission is planning to widen approxi-mately 100 miles of highway to standard 25-foot widths during the year, according to John N. Mackall, chairman and chief engineer of the State Roads Commission.

This will represent a program of road widening almost seven times as great as the program carried out during 1924. This is due to the fact that the 1924 maintenance and construction funds accrued for four months of the last fiscal year from one-cent gasoline tax. The total fund available for all maintenance and construction pur-poses during 1924, Mr. Mackall pointed out, amounted to only $1,900,000, whereas this year the commission will receive a total of $3,297,788.

The commission is expecting $1-500,000 from the State, $600,000 from the counties, $640,000 from the Federal aid fund, and $300,000 from bridges and grade crossings. Chair-man Mackall said that between 100 and 125 miles of new highway will be put under construction.

Special Program at Linwood School.

(For the Record) The Parent-Teacher's and Citizen Association of Linwood school held another very successful meeting on Wednesday night, January 7. when over one hundred men, women and children gathered in costume and masked, as though loath to give up the holiday spirit.

Truly, it was a beautiful and really brilliant scene when the judges called the jolly masqueraders to fall in line and march in review that they might judge who were worthy of the prizes to be awarded. However, after some deliberation it was unanimously decided that "Aunt Jemima" and his more dignified companion. Aunt Dinah, were a tie for honors as the very best so each received a prize, and Bob Etzler and Elmer Pittinger the rest of the evening showed their gratitude by helping to keep the fun going.

Mrs. Calvin' Binkley received prize for the most original costume, representing as she did the little "Dutch Cleanser Girl," and throughout the evening gave evidence of her disapproval of "Charley Chaplins" ardent admiration as too frivolous for one of her domestic tastes. For the most beautiful costume, Miss Louise Engler was chosen.

From the children up were such characters as Red Riding Hood, bathing boys and girls, clowns, farmer boys and girls, clowns, faither boys and girls in overalls, and up-to-date girl in "Daddy's wedding clothes," M. A. C. students, maidens from Turkey, Spain, also peasant and characters as knights and many others too numerous to mention.

The evening was spent in playing old-time games—Bingo,Joggle Along, Jolly Miller, etc. The potato rolling

WHEAT SUPPLY BELOW DEMAND

High Prices Likely to Withhold Sup-plying Market Needs.

Assuming that every farmer in Canada, the United States, Argentina and Australia is willing to market every available bushel of wheat, regardless of his price expectation or his new crop outlook, the stock of wheat available between now and the first of July is such that the world is short by 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels of its minimum food requirements for the remainder of the crop

This is the opinion of Julius H. Barnes, of Chicago, most noted and one of the most competent grain au-thorities in the United States, ex-pressed after a careful survey of the

Against Child Labor Bill.

Adoption of the proposed child la-bor amendment to the Constitution of the United States was opposed, and the amendment itself condemned in a resolution adopted by 800 Pennsylvanians from all classes, who attend-ed a luncheon meeting held under the auspices of Advocates of the Constitution at the Bellevue-Stratford on Wednesday.

"We challenge the so-called child labor amendment as antagonistic to left their home, in Texas, for Grand the wise American plan of Statehood, Rapids, Mich., where they expected self-determination and Government home rule in matters so uniquely and intimately local as the labor forced idleness of persons under 18 years of age," the resolution said. Small Fire, Sunday Night, in Taneytown.

A narrow escape was made from a destructive fire at Ernest Hyser's home, on Frederick Street, on Sunday night, shortly before midnight. Mr. Hyser's daughters were awakened by difficulty in breathing and it was discovered that their room was dense with smoke, which was found to come from the sitting room on first floor. Mr. Hyser, Roy D. Phillips and Samuel Ridinger, other tenants of the building, by prompt work, confined the fire to the one room.

The cause of the fire was likely due to burning soot falling from the chimney to the bottom, setting fire to a wooden fire-board and then communicating to the room—a very common cause of fires. The mantel, carpets. and all of the contents of the room were practically ruined, and had not discovery of the fire been made when it was, the whole house would have burned, as the room was blazing.

The loss is insured in the Taneytown Mutual, on the building, and in the Dug Hill Company on furniture.

Profitable Outlook for Poultry.

A very profitable year for pultrymen is looked forward to the coming season. Reports from many hucks ters are to the effect that the high cost of all feed and the fear of the plague that is sweeping many thousands of fowls away daily in infected areas, are sending so many more fowls to the city markets, mostly to Baltimore, than they have carried for a long time.

Girls on the Farm.

One of the most serious problems facing the world, is that raised in the question-How can we keep the girls on the larm?

It is one ol the hallmarks of civilization that so many girls are forced into the big cities to seek their fortune

Probably no more daughters of the farm come to misfortune in the big cities, than do the city girls, or the girls from the small towns, who work for a living.

It can be set down as a sound proposition that working girls, as a class. are more apt to make a success of life than another large class of girls having more social advantages but seeking the bright lights

It is a great social duty to make the home life on the farms more attractive to the girls. There should be more rural recreation centers under proper supervision.

If the churches and fraternal orders could minister to the social needs of humanity, including the growing young people, we would hear less of farm girls crowding to the cities.

With good roads. cheaper motor cars, the rural mail and telephone. the phonograph, electricity and the radio, life is growing more attractive on the farms.

Individual initiative. energy ambition, the driving force which has built this nation, is the great agency that is today remarking farm life in America, and making it pleasant for both girls and boys to stay on the farm .- The Manufacturer.

What Less Farm Sales Represents.

The extent of public sales in the Spring, of farm personal property, had grown to abnormal proportions, largely because of the inflated prices prevailing just after the war, which caused a good many farmers to think it "a good time to quit." It was, for those who were facing the quitting time, anyway; but it was not a good We do not always agree with the time for the many who quit, actually Baltimore News, but in the matter of before they could afford to do so, its fight for the new city stadium to | many of whom would be better off to-

That there are less sales this year, it should be maintained a whole year, and last, simply means that "selling seem to us to largely represent brute portions, and that the haste to get strength and endurance in man, is away from the farm has ended; and, preposterous. Farmers have been partly to blame for the slump in farming, that has largely been caused by the growth of manufacturing. Many farmers, instead of laying by their war profits, spent them. The automobile has represented the biggest drain from the farmers, not only in cash, but in drawing man help away from country districts-not only farm hands, but possible farm tenants.

Much of the manufacturing prosperity, in recent years, has been financed, directly or indirectly, by farmers, and it is but natural that the amounts, can vote more public expen- hurtful effects of their lavish spending should have its reactionary effect, it as a "right," and demand that such the full measure of which can not be normalized until the movement of We are demanding full steam ahead help toward manufacturing, ends, and in the way of public improvements- turns back to the country where much of it came from.

ought to be honest enough, and liberal enough, to listen to the complainants, and try to see whether we are really invading their "rights."

Somehow, the lop-sidedness of the distribution of prosperity has interfered with our better sense and judgment. We are impatient when asked "to wait awhile" for things we think we need, and must have, now; and we should take more care of how we regard those who disagree with us.

The spirit of reasonable compromise is often arbitrarily refused. We "want what we want" and all who oppose us are "back numbers" and not worthy of consideration-so we think. Sacrifice, when it means losing out on a pet project, is unthinkable to us. "Some way" must be found to gratify our way of thinking, and, possibly without realizing it we act about like spoiled children who are not given the thing they ask for.

We do too much thinking along selfish lines, and not enough along general lines-too much "don't care" what happens, or who is hurt, just so we get what "we" want. that "we' don't help materially to pay for.

Particularly just now, when expenses are running high for all sorts of mechanical work, high wages, high costs everywhere, and low incomes for the bulk of our largest tax-payers, we just must be fair, and if necessary, bear our share of the hardships connected with the waiting for our wants to be supplied, so, this question-this argument-this strong claim-of unequal tax burdens, should have our most serious consideration. Before we demand big expenditures out of the public purse, we must be sure the public is able to fill the purse.

"The Largest in the World."

Hardly a state in the Union but claims some industry, or some natural possession, to be the "largest in the world," and the claim will not always bear close investigation. There are, for instance, a number of "largest hosiery mills" in the world, and "largest factory buildings," and the largest "power plant" the largest "shipping point" etc.

Bribery of the States.

President Coolidge, in discussing the budget, attacked the system of Congress giving federal aid to states, conditioned upon the state legislature or the people voting as much more money for the project.

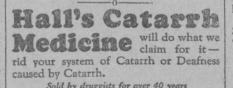

He pointed out that estimates were alled for more than $109,000,000 for highways, boats, naval and harbor improvements, naval bases and even raised as much more money.

As a matter of fact, no more pernicious system of doubling up appropriations and burdening the people with high taxes and bond issues, has ever been invented.

It is employed extensively in framing so-called uplift legislation, agricultural college and state university extension work, giving so much to each state or county if the state or county will raise as much more. It is a system that, once inaugurated. leaves the states and their subdivisions helpless against the pressure and demands of paternalistic officialism that wants to spend the money. President Coolidge spoke of this system of federal subsidies while other authorities use stronger terms such as "bribery" and "political hijacking."

Under one of these laws, the federal government sent the governor of Maine $5,000 to spend on maternity care in one city and he promptly returned the check with a letter that is a classic.

Massachusetts refused similar appropriations from the federal government, showing that for every dollar received, it took $18.00 additional taxes out of the people .- The Manufacturer.

Ducks as a rule are hardy. They do not have gapes. The weakest part of a duck is its legs. Indigestion is apt to show itself in the young, if coarse sand is omitted in the food. It is always best to put a handful of sand in a pail of mash food, mixing it thoroughly. This will aid digestion. The oily nature of the feathers makes the ducklings vermin proof. Exposure to hot suns is fatal. There should always be a partial shade to the runs.

The market term "green duck" is of late innovation. The cognomen is applied for the reason that the bird has not yet matured. It should weigh not less than four pounds, and be not over ten weeks old-eight weeks would be better-and should never be allowed bathing water. As an article of diet, if provided by a competent chef, the green duck resembles the famous and fast disappearing canvasback duck.

The Runner duck is not inclined to fatten so readily as other varieties. Its name originated from the fact that this duck has a running rather than a waddling motion. In color it is a light brown or fawn shade and gray. At the joining of the head and bill there is a narrow band of white. The legs are orange. In carriage it is erect, with a long, narrow body, well elevated in front, and closely feathered. The neck is long and slender, and the head rather flat. The bill is long and broad.

Duck eggs are in demand by confectioners, as they impart a glaze to their icing, which cannot be had with hen eggs. For making plum puddings, duck eggs are more economical than those of fowls, being both larger in size and richer. In the household duck eggs are used in making all kinds of cakes, omelette, cooking generally, and they are also relished fried.

Production of Eggs Is Where Most Profit Made

Probably the greatest hindrance to the profitable keeping of poultry on the ordinary farm is the retention of a lot of fowl that are poor layers, due either to their being too old or of a type to produce meat rather than eggs. The production of eggs is the end of the poultry business in which the most profit can be made, so that a heavy egg producing type is best suited to ordinary farm conditions.

Generally speaking, the pullet year is the most profitable period of a hen's life. It is advisable, therefore, either to mark the chicks when hatched, using a different mark for each year, or to band the pullets when they are put into winter quarters, so that at culling time the age of the different birds can be seen at a glance and only those that are required for breeding purposes retained after the first year's production.

The trap-nest is the most reliable means to use in culling the flock, but

Suggestions on Feeding Forage Mistake to Leave Animals in Fields Until Crops Are Cleaned Up.

A mistake often made when crops are harvested by turning live stock in on them is to turn feeder stock into the fields and to leave the animals there until the fields are entirely cleaned up of all feed. At the beginning of such a feeding period feed is relatively plentiful and the stock makes some gains in weight. Later, when the animals should be on heavier feed, the supply of feed is relatively scarce and it requires a lot of moving around for an animal to get enough feed to continue making a gain. Sometimes animals come to a standstill or even lose weight on this account. Such a loss in weight is a double loss.

Let Stock Clean Up.

A better plan where a whole crop is to be fed to live stock is to harvest the better part of the crop and allow the stock to clean up the remainder; then, when this is gone, feed the harvested part of the crop and avoid losing any of the gains made from the cleanup of the field. Another way of harvesting a crop with live stock is to remove the fattening stock before feed becomes scarce and replace them with other stock to clean up what the fattening stock has left.

Water Is Essential.

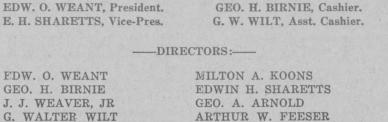

A readily available supply of good drinking water is also essential when stock is used to harvest a crop. When a fattening animal has to walk a mile or so for a drink it won't always drink enough water, especially on cold, windy days. It takes a lot of energy for a fat animal to walk any great distance and to produce this energy it requires feed, so a good water supply will save feed.-E. H. Huelskemper, Extension Service, Colorado Agricultural College.

It's Very Necessary to Supply Egg Ingredients When we realize that a hen makes eggs containing all the twelve elements needed in human nutrition and makes them out of raw material, we see how necessary it is that she be supplied with the needed ingredients for producing eggs. Eggs contain iron, and most of this iron must go into the fowls' systems through the green leaves they eat. That is why poultry must be supplied with clover or alfalfa throughout the winter.

Ground alfalfa is used extensively in poultry rations, both in the dry mash and in wet mash, or sometimes as steamed greens. Greens fed in this way are good, but we find hay preferable. In the first place, the ground alfalfa seems rather heavy and the birds do not relish it as they should. Besides this you will notice that when the birds are fed hay, they leave the hard woody parts and eat only the leaves and tender parts.

A little observation will show you that any animal that is in a reproducing condition will consume more leaves and green food than when it is not reproducing. For this reason, a hen that is laving needs more green food than when she is not laying, as some of these elements used in building eggs are taken out of her system every day.

peel. Ten ounces of bread crumbs, nine ounces of flour, one ounce of preserved ginger chopped, four ounces of chopped apple, one ounce of chopped citron, one teaspoonful of salt, eight ounces of brown sugar, six eggs and a cupful of milk. Mix and steam five hours. This recipe makes seven pounds of pudding.

Plum Pudding.

Put into a bowl one-half pound of finely chopped suet, the same of flour, and brown sugar, one-fourth of a pound of bread crumbs, one-fourth of a teaspoonful each of cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice, cloves and ginger. Feed in Severe Weather.

Many successful poultrymen follow the practice of supplying a little more feed than usual when the weather is unfavorable and some of them change the ration slightly, supplying a little more of the heat and fat producing elements. This is done on the theory that the fowls are warmer and more comfortable when so fed and there is no doubt but that this is the case. In any event special attention when the weather is bad is the best way to avoid the beginning of disease and disorders which may throw the entire flock out of condition for an entire

Clover Hay More Than

Doubles Gain in Lambs A little clover hay and linseed oil cake lowered the feed cost and more than doubled the daily gain in weight when fed to lambs in tests in lambing down corn at the Ohio experiment station.

In a 41-day test 24 lambs turned into standing corn without additional feed made an average daily gain of .16 pounds at a cost of $14.89 per 100 pounds gain. A similar lot receiving three-fourths pound of good clover hay in addition to standing corn made a daily gain of .34 pounds at a cost of $9.45 per 100 pounds.

Linseed oil cake added to the clover hay at the rate of .15 pound per lamb still further increased the daily gain and lowered its cost per hundred.

Kerosene Oil for Roup

Some people have had good results by treating roup with common kerosene oil. Put a spoonful of the oil in a pall of water and dip the heads of the sick birds into it. With a slow, steady motion, draw the bird's head through the film of oil, withdraw slowly, and wipe dry. The oil seems to kill the germs of the local disease and stimulates the mucous membranes to renewed action.

Waste Oil Made Useful

Waste oil removed from the crank case of tractors and automobiles can be put to good use this fall freeing poultry flocks of mites.

An oil spray can be used effectively to kill the mites found on and near roosts. Almost any oil can be used but since many flock owners have automobiles, the waste crank case oil is the most practical material.

When Eggs Are Low

The very low level to which the price of eggs dropped this spring has awakened the country to the fact that if we are to continue to produce eggs in the present quantity at a profit we must produce them cheaper, have less loss between producer and consumer, reduce the cost of handling, and create more market by making eggs more attractive to the housewife.

E VERYTHING beneath the sun is into buttered molds and steam four hours. This keeps indefinitely. Rereach out your hands and help yourself.

To be worthy you should be patient, industrious, persevering, charitable toward the weak, respectful to the strong.

You must overcome foolish pride and envy; be not afraid to soil your hands, but a veritable coward when it comes to the point where you are called upon to smudge your soul. Go forth with a heart full of faith and a joyous countenance. Do not grumble if you happen to be in the lower ranks. Think of the great men of today who came up from humble places and won distinction, whose names are written across the lands and seas in flaming letters.

Hold faith high above your head. Let its unfailing torch illuminate your path all through life, and march on assured that the goal you have set your heart upon is just ahead.

Do not falter if your road should be difficult and your burden wearisome. Difficulties are common obstacles. No one can get anything worth while without overcoming them.

Affluence and power have their beginning in small things, both capable of being won by well-directed thought and effort.

They belong to the capable who are qualified to use them in the right way, not to the doubting, inefficient and wavering, but to the courageous, the steadfast, who never admit defeat nor turn their faces in the darkest hour from the sun of faith, shining always on every cross and care.

If you would help yourself to the best there is, keep track of your faults. If inclined to procrastinate, take a lesson from the tides, the revolving earth, never delaying or hurrying.

Be methodical, even though it may in the present day of haste and confusion be considered old-fashioned.

Train your mind to remember what your eyes see; keep your brain sensitized so that the impressions made upon it shall become permanent pictures to which you can turn when they may be needed.

Only what you can recollect in the vital moment is of any use to you, and in that moment, if you should fail to remember, your whole future might be blighted. (C by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

L ILLIAN is one of the charming flower names which are so popular in the English language. Like all flower names, it is somewhat difficult to trace, but it is known that the name was a favorite with Italian ladies as early as the Fourteenth century, because of its romantic allusion.

Curiously enough, Lillian is not derived from lily as is popularly supposed, though it is called by etymologists a "flower name." The consensus of opinion seems to be that it has the same origin as Cecelia, though the connection seems a trifle difficult to perceive. However, Coeler Vivenna, an Etruscan general, who named the Coelian hill and gens, is the root from which a number of names containing the syllable "lia" is derived.

There was a Liliola Gonzaga in Italy in 1340, and she is considered the first instance of the name. Lilias was another form, which is still in popular use. Lilias Ruthven appears in Scotland in 1557. She was propably so called from the old romantic poem of Roswel and Lillian, which was a great favorite in Scotland. The Lillian of this ballad is the queen of Naples. The English adopted the name as it stood and claim that it comes from lily, using it as such. The Scotch have always preferred Lilias or Lillias, but America adopted both Lilias and Lillian.

Tennyson is responsible for the picture of Lillian as a charming thistledown sort of maid:

Airy, fairy Lillian, Flittering fairy Lillian, When I ask her if she loves me, Clasps her tiny hands above me, Laughing all she can; She'll not tell me if she loves me, Cruel little Lillian.

So innocent, arch, so cunning-simple, From beneath her gathered wimple, Glancing with black-beaded eyes, Till the lightning laughters dimple The baby-roses in her cheeks; Then away she flies.

Lillian's jewel is the lovely lapis lazuli, the oriental gem as blue as the sea with tiny golden flecks like bits of sunshine. It has the power to cure melancholy and is also believed to have medicinal value in allaying intermittent fever. To dream of it means faithful love. Lillian's flower is most fittingly the morning glory, the fairy bloom which scarcely survives the dew that vanishes before the sun's rays. Her lucky day is Thursday and 2 is her mystic number.

The Cup of Paris

Paris, the great gay city, is contained within a cup, says a writer in the Continental edition of the London Daily Mail. You may discover it one day perhaps from a pleasant roof garden and be suddenly surprised to find the city so definitely contained. Wherever you will look there at last appear the soft green hills peeping so serenely down upon the welter of life in the city below. You may even see the trees on the hills, so near are they. We used to think the city was so big and spread so far, and the Place de la Concorde, what a mighty space it was! There even now we see the dome of the Pantheon, the towers of Notre Dame, the sudden smoky shoot of the Eiffel tower. Gigantic things we used to think them. But now how easily they are held in the cup of the laughing hills!

TEDDY BEAR'S ADVICE

UELLA, the doll who lived in the L big doll house in the playroom, was very unhappy when the magic hour came around and the toys could talk, because her husband, Harold Doll, had not come home.

All the toys could hear her softly weeping and Teddy Bear mustered up courage to say to the other playroom folks that he would go and see what was the matter.

"You better mind your own affairs, Teddy Bear," said Calico Cat. "I can tell you what has happened without asking Luella Doll; Harold has not come home and here it is midnight!"

Calico Cat always slept with one eye open and never missed a thing that went on in the playroom. "I saw the little mistress take him out

"Fiddlesticks!" said Calico Cat be fore Teddy could say a comforting word to poor Luella. "Don't waste your pity on Harold. He is having w good time, while you, poor dear, are staying at home alone. That is all that is the matter with him."

"I am sure he will come home just as soon as he can," said Teddy. "Don't you cry, Luella. Harold is staying away on account of business. You can be certain he will come as soon as he is able. Now dry your eyes and sit down on the steps and chat with the rest of us, or the magic hour will soon be over."

Calico Cat laughed and said: "Yes, he will come home, Luella-in the morning."

It was long after the sun was shining in the playroom window that the little mistress opened the door and came in with Harold in her arms, and laced him in his house with Luella Doll. When the hall clock struck the magic hour that night Calico Cat ran to the doll house and sat down close to it with her ears wide open. "What did I tell you?" she loudly whispered to Teddy Bear. "He is telling her that the little mistress left him out in the yard all night under a bush, and that silly Luella Doll believes him. He better not tell me that." In a little while Luella Doll and Harold came out of the doll house. "You were right, Teddy Bear," said Luella. "Harold could not help it. He did not stay away from me because he wanted to." "Oh, dear me !" laughed Calico Cat. 'She has swallowed the whole story, poor thing." "Calico, you are a very unpleasant creature," said Teddy Bear. "Why do you try to make Luella unhappy? Don't you think there are any good gentlemen dolls in the world?"

Nature's Great Gas Tank

A natural gas tank with a greater capacity than any tank that man has ever made is in use at Springfield, N. Y. In fact, it is said to have a capacity 20 times greater than any tank at present in use. It is a big hole in the ground, with some peculiar formations which makes it a very secure holder. It was formerly the center of a natural gas field, but the field was exhausted, but this great holder is now used as a storage tank for the gas from other wells. It is pumped in during the summer months and drawn upon during the winter when the demands for gas are greater. This hole has a storage capacity of 400,000,000 cubic feet.

The Two Sides

John R. Fell, the Philadelphia capitalist, said at a dinner:

"Every story has two sides. I took a friend of mine to task the other day.

Let Local Pride Find

Expression at Home Local pride is based on affection for the place in which you live and is almost as natural a sentiment as family pride, says the Youth's Companion. Like family pride, it may be useful and stimulating, or it may be futile and deadening.

A proper local pride manifests itself in study of the history of the community and its founders, in a desire for a thorough knowledge of the institutions, industries and people of the community, and in acquiring familiarity not only with the topography and the external aspects of the place but also with its spirit. Anyone whose local pride is strong enough to impel him to such study will become imbued with an ambition to contribute to the improvement of the community; he will be in his turn one of the makers of its history

Local pride that finds its expression at home is an admirable trait. There is, however, a kind of local pride that is frequently exhibited only by people who are away from home, and that is not to be commended. It is usually a mark of narrowness and prejudice. A man need not sacrifice or abate his love of home in order to recognize the superior claims to general interest that some other place offers. Provincialism. as local pride is likely to be called when it expresses itself away from home, is usually bumptious, hypercritical and petty. It retards the mental growth of the man who suffers from it, for he is seldom one who at home shows any local pride of a constructive character.

Better Homes Make

for Better Living The Better Homes exposition, which has made the public hall once more the special center of attraction and interest in Cleveland might well be called a "Better Living" show. The home is so much the heart and soul of life that the sum of existence, for the average man or woman, is very nearly the measure of success or failure in homemaking. If the home is happy the world usually looks bright and well worth while. If the home is not cheerful and comfortable life is heavily handicapped.

This is so true and the truth is so vital to the state, the whole nation. that whatever tends to build up and guard, beautify and make more attractive, the homes of a great city or of any large community, is of special importance to the public, near and far. What one city does in that field may well prove the source of similar gains for contentment and happiness in many other places .- Cleveland News-Leader.

Great French Dictator Typical of His Race

Napoleon's character and personality are still under the microscope. One of the best of recent analysis of the great commander is "Napoleon," by Herbert A. L. Fisher, at one time British minister of education. Mr. Fisher has made the French dictator luminous by his phrases. Here, for instance, is a passage on Napoleon as a young man, portraying him as a turbulent example of the people from which he sprang:

"The Corsican bore a character for sobriety, courage and hardihood. Hate was for him a virtue, vengeance a duty, pardon an infamy. He felt the call of the clan like a Highlander, an Albanian or a Zulu, and was full of the pride and self-assurance common to gallant men who have never met a superior.

"Vigilant and astute in his judgment of character, he was a master of dissimulation save where passion broke in and spoiled the reckoning.

"His standard of honor forbade theft, enjoyed hospitality and tolerated woman as the drudge of the household and field. In general his deportment was noted as grave and social. He was sparing of amusement, would sit at cards without a word and suffer torture without a cry; but when the seal of silence was once broken, language would stream from him like a orrent, an index of that uneasy, impatient, quarrelsome energy which was common attribute of the race."

Probably Girl Never Forgot That Lesson

Stories have a way of accumulating bout the memory of famous wits, and Dean Swift was no exception to this general rule, according to the San Francisco Argonaut. A hoard of Swift necdotes recently unearthed includes the illustration of the dean's mania for closed doors. Swift's housekeeper hired his servants, but when they came into his employ he always told them there were only two rules to observe. One was always to shut the door after entering a room, the other, always to close the door after leaving the room.

"On one occasion a maid asked the dean's permission to attend her sister's wedding, when he not only gave his permission, but lent her a horse upon which to make the journey, and another servant to accompany her. In the excitement of the moment the unfortunate girl forgot to close the door after her, and Swift, allowing time for her to get well away upon her journey, sent another servant posthaste to bring her back. In fear and trembling the poor girl presented herself before the dean, asking him what he wanted her for. 'Only to shut the door,' was the reply, 'after which you can resume your journey.'"

The Lasso

Our word lasso is from the Spanish lazo, meaning a snare. The lasso is a rope from 60 to 100 feet in length with a slip-noose at one end. It is used in the Spanish and Portuguese parts of America and in the United States and Canadian West for catching wild horses and cattle. When not in use the lasso, called "rope" in the West, is coiled at the right of the sadmaster. dle in front of the rider. When an animal is to be caught the rider, galloping after it, swings the coiled lasso round his head and casts it straight forward in such a manner that the noose settles over the head or round the legs of the pursued animal, which is speedily brought down. In order to become skillful at throwing the lasso great practice is required, and, if possible, instruction by an expert.

'MESSAGE TO GARCIA' INVOLVED $5,000,000

Ohio Veteran's Heroic Adventure During War.

Pomeroy, Ohio .- Thanks to a facile pen, the man who "carried the message to Garcia" is known wherever the English language is spoken. How much different the fame of John Wolf of Pomeroy who carried "a message to Garcia" when Garcia was running around in knee pants.

One gloomy day in February, 1864, Wolf-he was Corporal Wolf then-sat in his tent cleaning his accoutrements when his captain, Barlow Curtis, opened the flap and entered. Corporal Wolf sprang to his feet, clicked his heels together and saluted. This was at Cumberland, Md.

"You will report at my quarters at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning," said the captain.

"I'll be there," came the reply.

The day before, there had been a consultation among the officers of the English corps, Union forces, as to the best way to get a certain trunk from Cumberland to Harper's Ferry, 95 miles. A paymaster in charge of an armed escort was considered to be too risky. The very show of force would be notice to the enemy, skulking in the mountains, that a fat prize was awaiting the taking. Captain Curtis was present.

Plans Are Discarded. After all the plans of the officers higher up had been discussed and discarded, he said:

"Gentlemen, I have a man in my ompany who can deliver that trunk single-handed and alone. John Wolf can take it through where a whole company would fail."

He detailed his plans and the others agreed with him. That was the cause of the visit to the corporal's tent. At seven o'clock, the morning appointed, the young soldier stood in front of the captain's quarters. The captain dragged out a trunk and said:

"Corporal, you will take this trunk aboard a train, which will leave here in a few minutes, and deliver it to the hotel in Harper's Ferry. Better keep a sharp eye on the trunk, and get a receipt for it. Report to me when you return.'

The corporal picked up the trunk, devoid of label or address, placed it on his shoulder and walked toward the station. He had no written orders, not a scrap of paper in his pockets to identify him and not a weapon except a small revolver in a blouse pocket.

He boarded a Baltimore & Ohio train of four coaches, dumped his trunk into a corner and sat on it. He wore his uniform and was in appearance an ordinary soldier going somewhere with an old trunk. His starting point and destination were within the federal lines at that time, so he needed no pass.

The mountains and rugged scenery slowly unrolled. He pretended to be absorbed in looking out the window. He had not been told what was in the trunk, but he knew that 70,000 soldiers were encamped thereabouts. They had not been paid for six months, and the man to whom he was to deliver the trunk was a government pay-

Gut Mild Intoxicant From "Peyote" Plant

"Peyote" (pronounced "pay-yo-tay," with accent on second syllable) is the lexican form of the Aztec "peyotl," eaning a caterpillar. The Aztecs apolied "peyotl" to a species of compoite plants in southern Mexico because of the downy growth on the roots. A mild intoxicant was made by the Indians from this plant. Later "peyote" came to be applied to a small spineless cactus which grows in northern Mexico and the southwestern part of the United States. This cactus is found in abundance along the Rio Grande. The small tops which barely protrude above the ground are often called "mescal buttons," "mescal" being another name for peyote. From the dried tops is made a medicine used as a remedy for various ailments. But the chief use of peyote is in certain religious ceremonies. It exhilarates the mind, intensifies the imagination and produces a pleasant dreaminess, without, however, any disagreeable effects later. At least this is what the authorities report. The peyote is taken at/intervals during the ceremonies, which last throughout the night. Originally all the redmen in that region chewed mescal. In recent years the peyote religion has spread among the Indians in Oklahoma and farther north. Some tribes look upon the plant as of divine origin and treat it with veneration. There is no English name which we know of for peyote.-Pathfinder Magazine.

Mementoes of Ancient Carthage in England

The ruined temple at Virgina Wetu, Surrey, England, is always somewhat of a mystery to visitors to that beauty spot which was at one time a dreary swamp.

Standing in a romantic glen, its columns look as though they had been undisturbed for 2,000 years. The fact is that the temple has been in its present position about a century. Its original site was ancient Carthage.

On several of the stones are inscriptions. One, in Greek, on an altar stone, tells how Publius Aurelius dedicated it to Jupiter and to the other gods worshiped in the temple. Others are written in Latin. One of these reads: "Marcus Julius erected this to his most beloved wife Domitia Rogata, who lived twenty-three years."

9-12-tf

At one time a fine group of ancient Greek statuary stood near these columns from Carthage. When William IV opened these lovely grounds to the public, however, these statues were so shamefully mutilated by visitors that they were completely ruined, and the public were again excluded until the reign of Queen Victoria.

Go-as-You-Please Spelling

We sometimes fancy that strictly correct spelling has been turned into a fetish. Spelling is largely a knack after the first tearful steps have been taken up the slopes of our English Parnasse. The letters come by a sort of instinct. They dance merrily into the right order of themselves. If some good people never can spell with pedantic accuracy, does it matter so very much? TANEYTOWN SAVINGS BANK

D. M. MYERS, Prop. Local Phone 55-Y - - HANOVER, PA.

TN the spring of 1864 a strikingly handsome, well dressed young man came to Franklin, in the Pennsylvania Oil region. He invested in sixty acres of Oil land; three wells were drilled on the property, each a moderate success. He moved in the best society circles of the district, was well liked by both men and women, and while temperamental was often the "life of the party." ¶One morn-ing in April, 1865, he left Franklin, saying he would return in a few days. He took only a satchel with him; practically all of his clothing and personal effects he left in his room. The next that was heard of John Wilkes Booth was that he had assassinated President Lincoln! ¶ The belief that Booth had not previously planned the dreadful act is supported by the fact that every indication showed that he intended returning to Franklin, resuming his Oil activities, and leading the typical Oil field life. But he never returned. Pursued into Virginia, he was shot by Sergeant Corbett and paid for his deed with his life. LI region. He ested in sixty acres

And thus it has come to pass that Kansas City has made a reputation, in a comparatively few years, for the beauty of its homes and their surroundings. Its example has influenced many other cities. But the greatest force of that example is right here at home.-Kansas City Star.

Serves Double Purpose

In European countries, where forestry is an established department of government, it is a uniform rule that no tree can be cut down unless another one is planted to take its place. That prevents forest depletion, but it does not create new forests. America must repair its prodigious timber wastage of the last half century, besides creating vast areas of timber lands as a counterfoil to nature's own wastage for centuries.

There is no better method of spreading the tree-planting habit, in farming communities, than in bordering all state highways with trees.

Rules for Shrub Planting

There is a great wealth of shrubbery, both native and imported, from which growers may select. Be careful to select shrubs hardy for the locality. For this reason shrubs native to the section are usually planted with less risk. Both evergreen and deciduous shrubs should be used and grouped in such a manner as to make the grounds appear well occupied throughout the year.

Get Ready for Visitors

In the olden days a town was judged by the view from the railroad train. Today the approach to the city on the highways gives the first and usually a lasting impression to the tourist. Special attention should be given the approaches to the city on all main highways with prospects of thousands of tourists visiting northern Minnesota. Nor is it too late to get started on this work, in which the entire community will benefit.-Bemidji Pioneer.

Concerning Parrots

Of the 20 commonly known varieties of parrots, the most talkative ones, according to George Bruce Chapman, head of a London house that has imported and sold the birds for more than a hundred years, are the Brazilian Amazon and the African Gray. The former has bright blue and yellow feathers and red tips to the shoulders and flight wings. The | in that trunk?" he asked. African Gray has a red tail. In Brazil natives watch the nesting places and when the fledglings are a few days old, the feathers of one of the wings are trimmed. Later these birds are easily captured, placed on perches and taken to the nearest village. Fanciers say that the birds should be fed twice a day, and with proper care will live 30 years.

Silk Worms Weave Dyes A French scientist has succeeded in making silkworms weave dress dyes into their own output. He is reported to have injected dyes into the cocoon and the result was colored threads being spun. Not only the ordinary shades, but the tones and hues that are made from combining various tints, are produced by the little workers receiving treatment by this process. Silk is usually dyed after it has been wound and twisted into floss, but the new method is expected to grow it in colors that will not fade.

Trunk Is Dropped.

When the train drew into Harper's Ferry, shortly before noon, he again picked up the trunk and again placed it on his shoulder, walked two blocks and dropped it on the floor of the room of the paymaster, who seemed to be in nowise surprised at the appearance of the trunk, which was old, worn and rusty and looked much like it had been pulled out of a scrapheap. The paymaster scratched off a recelpt for "one trunk and contents," handed it to the corporal, who saluted and retired.

He returned to Cumberland, reached camp at eleven o'clock that night, and the next morning reported to company headquarters, saluted his captain, exhibited his receipt for the safe delivery of the trunk.

Captain Curtis grinned.

"Corporal, do you know what was "I suspect I do," the "non com" admitted

Dog-Day Superstitions

An ancient British calendar dealing with midsummer problems says: Newborn children must on no account, during the dog-days, sleep on bonesnot even when hidden beneath their nurse's lap; and it will bring fatal bad luck if they be set to sleep on graves.

A deal of superstition still clings round the baby. When it takes its first airing abroad, it is of highest importance that it goes upstairs before going down, or it will never rise in the world. In rural cottages, blessed with the old-fashioned wooden cradle, the superstition clings to it that to rock the empty cradle is to rock into it a new baby.

Smoking in Church

The indignant complaint was recently made at a religious conference in England, to the effect that men go to church smoking and only put out their pipes or cigarettes in the church porch. This objection would have astonished Welshmen of an earlier generation. Until little more than half a century ago, in many parts of Wales, the opening of the sermon was the recognized signal for the male part of the congregation to light their pipes, and no one seems then to have seen any irreverence in the custom. LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:7-30. GOLDEN TEXT—"This is My body which is given for you: this do in re-membrance of Me."—Luke 22:19. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Lord's Supper. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC-The Meaning of the Communion Service. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC -Communion With Jesus Christ.

I. The Passover Prepared (vv. 7-13.) 1. The Disciples' Inquiry (vv. 7-9). They inquired of Jesus as to where they should prepare for the Passover. They no doubt were anxious to be of service to Him.

2. The Master's Strange Directions (vv. 10-12). They were to go into the city where they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water. He assured them that they would then be shown a large upper room furnished.

3. The Obedience of the Disciples (v. 13). They did not stop to question the sanity of the command but like true disciples obeyed. Jesus, because He is omniscient, knew just how the matter would turn out.

II. The Passover Eaten (vv. 14-18). 1. By Whom (v. 14)? Those who sat down to this last Passover feast were the Master and the Twelve Apostles.

2. His Words Unto Them (vv. 15-18).

(1) "I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer." How anxious He was to show them the meaning of the passion through which He was to go; also He craved their human sympathy as He passed through this trying ordeal.

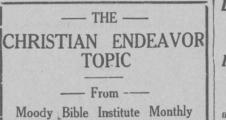

(2) "I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God." His death was the antitypical fulfillment of the passover meal. He looked forward to that time when the process of redemption would have been completed and a perfect union between the disciples and the Lord would be consummated.

(3) "Take this cup and divide it among yourselves." The disciples were now partaking of that symbol of His blood. He assured them that He would not again drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God should come. Drinking anew in the kingdom does not mean that in heaven this service will be renewed; but that this was symbolic of the heavenly reality.

III. The Feast of the New Covenant Instituted (vv. 19-20).

This took place at the close of the paschal supper.

1. The Bread, a Symbol of Christ's Body (v. 19). Christ giving of Himself to them. In order to get benefit from physical bread it is necessary to receive it. In order to get benefit from Christ one must receive Him.

January 18 Friendliness—As Expressed Through Medical Missions

Acts 14:8:18; Matthew 4:23-24 The Scripture verses in Acts 14, do not give the operation or result of medical missions but rather reveal the miraculous power that accompanied the preaching of the gospel in apostimes. It shows the friendly attitude secured by physical benefits conferred and in this sense is closely related to our topic. The other Scripture shows that our Lord Himself never made bodily healing an end in itself, but a means to the preaching of the good news of salvation from sin and of the establishment of the kingdom of God.

One of the most interesting accounts of benefits derived from medical missions will be found in the November issue of the Moody Bible Institute Monthly, on page 107. The work of Dr. H. L. Weber, of Cameroun, Africa, is presented in a most interesting manner. Dr. Weber re-cently visited the Moody Bible Institute and told the story which is reported by Mrs. Newton Wray. As an illustration of the spiritual results of the healing work, the case of Mbonda is presented. "He was a boy who died of pneumonia after having learned the way of life. From his conversion to his death he was instrumental in leading three thousand peo-ple to Christ. His funeral continued from six o'clock in the morning until four in the afternoon and it was a continuous testimony meeting of those who had been helped and saved by his efforts. As a fitting memorial two hundred and fifty of these friends volunteered to give thirty days apiece to evangelizing in their own neigh-boring tribes. At the end of the thirty days the volunteers came in with record of two thousand souls. Thus they came by hundreds and thousands, passing the rigid examination, meeting the tests, living a new life in Christ. There are now thirty thou-sand within the church and forty-three thousand on the waiting list." Leaders of meetings and others interested will find abundant material in the article referred to.

DECLARED MOSQUITO THEIR WORST ENEMY

Report of Lewis and Clark Astonished President.

President Jefferson was astonished at the report made to him by Captains Lewis and Clark.

He had sent them 120 years ago to lead an exploring party up the Missouri river and across the Rocky mountains to the Pacific.

What amazed the President was the thing which they reported as the most formidable foe met in that thrilling survey, says Girard in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Lewis and Clark with their wild west hunters and guides traversed a thousand miles where no whites had gone before. They met hostile Sioux, swarms of deadly rattlesnakes and were the first white men to meet grizzly bears, which the Indians feared very much.

The explorers also faced hunger, steep and high mountains, treacherous river rapids, extreme cold-and Stefanson says Montana is colder than the North pole.

But almost the smallest thing these adventurous men encounterea was the worst-the mosquito. This tiniest foe was hardest to combat and gave trouble more dreaded than Indians, rattlers and grizzlies.

Our city sportsmen invade the Canadian north woods every summer. Wolves live there, but nobody fears them. But no fisherman returns without a tale of hardship imposed by myriads of little flies.

Home from his long wandering through Africa, Colonel Roosevelt, as David Livingstone and Henry M. Stanley had found out before, said the deadliest enemy of man was not the lion, not the fierce rhino, not the wild elephant, not the gorilla, but the tsetse fly.

Rarely have lions in Africa made a village move. An army of ants will often do it. We are reminded of these great dangers in small packages when we read Doctor Krusen's vacation warnings.

What does he designate as the deadliest thing you will meet? Not a locomotive, although grade crossings are bad enough. Not autos, because they are thicker in town than in the country.

Not rattlesnakes, even if our Pennsylvania mountains secrete thousands of them. Upon what, then, does Doctor Krusen hoist the red signal?

A bite so small that 3,000 of them could nestle on the head of a pin. The unseen and unseeable typhoid "bug," which thrives even in apparently the clearest waters, is the enemy you must avoid on a vacation.

Every autumn sees a mild increase in typhoid cases in big cities. Filtered water has practically banished the disease from Philadelphia.

But "vacation typhoid" has become a definite affliction. It comes from two causes: Drinking unfiltered and impregnated water, and as often from swimming in creeks and rivers.

Yes, the "old swimming hole" has become responsible every summer for hundreds of cases of typhoid. The lad who joyfully plunges in doesn't dream he faces more danger than if he had Alexandre Dumas' "The Three Mus- actually invaded a camp of Indians de-

"OLD MAN RATTLER" TELLS LIFE STORY

Feels His Family Has Been Misrepresented.

If you should ever be in a rattlesnake country it is always advisable to remember that there are two ends to a rattlesnake. The rear end speaks in tones all its own. Very much like the rattling of peas in a large dry-pod -once heard and never forgotten.

The threefold rattle is always sounded before the snake strikes, except in the molting season when the rattler is about to discard his old jacket.

Then he is always dopey, miserable, and almost blind. He lies coiled, all ready to strike on the slightest provocation. Therefore the rattle is not heard. The musical rattling noise is made by the threefold movement made in coiling. Until the reptile is coiled -it cannot strike, and in striking it can only spring its own length.

An English writer says:

There are five handsome rattlesnakes at the zoo, each with a stump of rings at the eloquent end, rings like celluloid or bone-shavings; each ring fastened to the next by a tiny button. When a rattler is prepared to discuss business he sends a sort of electrical shiver along his frame, and the rattle starts at once. It is quite loud.

I peeped in through the spyhole at the back of the rattlesnakes' den, and started the music, while the biggest told me interesting facts about his family.

"Such a lot of foolish things have been written about my rattle," he "Some say I lure birds with it, said. the birds thinking it is the hum and What nonsense! buzz of insects. Birds are not such fools.

"Then another says I terrify my prey with it. Wrong again.

"Somebody else is of opinion that it is a love song; my way of going courting. Do I look like a lovelorn snake at this moment?

"As a matter of fact, I am really angry, and I'm doing this to frighten you. Not that I really wish to bite. I'm a bit frightened myself.

"You know, of course, that I love poison fangs in my mouth, and a reserve supply of sprouts waiting to become fangs if one of the two in use gets broken. They are just like hypodermic syringes, and when the fangs strike the poison comes out. That, of course, is well known. Now I will tell you a secret.

"My supply of poison is limited. I have to be careful of it. That is why I do not wish to strike unless necessary. It is better for me to frighten

"So I would rather not bite if you will go away. I feel like the fond father who tells his son: 'My lad, it will hurt me to thrash you as much as it hurts you.' Of course, no son ever believes it. Neither will you about my bite."

Altogether Unflattering

Representative Royal Johnson of South Dakota said in the course of a witty speech at a Washington banquet.

"In the Black hills of South Dakota there is a mine with a peculiar name-a name that has a beautiful story attached to it.

"A prospector and his wife were from a great maker of romances- | strolling in the hills one day when the woman tripped over a stone. The stone, dislodged by her dainty foot, rolled forward five or six yards. When it stopped the prospector noticed a little thread of yellow running across it. It was gold. A gold mine had been discovered.

"When it came to the naming of the new gold mine, the prospector's wife said:

"'Will you name it after me?' "'Yes,' said the prospector, 'I will name it in your honor, my love.'

"And from that day to this, gentlemen, one of the richest gold mines in the West has been known as "The Terror.'

Not Her Fault

At a banquet in Washington, Secretary Mellon told the following story: "Marjorie," said the secretary, "is the only girl among several children, all older than herself. Consequently, when they all go to grandpa's ranch to play, she wants to romp and ride and keep up to the boys in all their activities, but is often restrained by her mother, saying: 'Remember, dear, you're a girl.'

"Finally, one day, Marjorie broke out in rebellion and cried:

It is reported that American capital is interested in transforming Mount Ararat into a pleasure resort. A railroad is to be built to its summit and shelter and entertainment for tourists are to be provided. LAST PAGE EDITORIAL. The Slow Customer.

Lots of good people go shopping, or face other like tasks for that matter, without first having used their brain at home in trying to figure out pretty definitely just what they want. They somehow expect that salespeople will have lots of time to spend, that it is "no trouble to show goods," and that even if one has a mind to buy a new coat, then finally decides to buy an electric sweeper, it is all the same to business people, just as it is proper to spend a half-hour deciding on whether to buy a brown necktie or a blue one, or tan hosiery or gray. The faculty of "making up the mind" with reasonable promptness is a much neglected accomplishment. It explains why some customers are met cheerfully and with real pleasure, and others with mere business politeness. Merchants are glad to help customers; it is not only part of salesmanship,but adds to the good will and mutual satisfaction in trading that is so essen-tial; they also expect a certain amount "looking around" and of indecision; of but there are chronic cases-the constitutionally critical-that severely test patience, and some other virtues. The normal customer, too, always gets the most and best there is, in treatment, information and price, and it is the one who dickers and dallies that gets the least. This is as true when salespeople and customers personally know each other, as when they are strangers. It is simply an illus-tration that fairness and good nature stand back of the counter as well as in front.

Time-killing over trifles is a notor-iously bad habit. If one merely kills his or her own time, that is bad enough, but when the habit encroaches on the more valuable time of oth-ers, there is no excuse for it. Those who engage in it should know that it is as necessary that they should be popular, as those who serve them.

Recent Business Change.

Elsewhere in this week's issue apears the announcement that Doctors Higgins and Heaps have taken over the practice of Doctors Charlesworth in Westminster, and Carroll County. Both Dr. Higgins and Dr. Heaps have returned from Chicago to Maryland, their native state, and are going to make Westminster their perma nent home Doctors Charlesworth came to Westminster during 1923 and opened offices in the Gilbert building, later moving to the Geiman property where the of-fice will be continued as heretofore. Dr. Walter Charlesworth says they will move to Baltimore about the 20th of this month, where they will reside for the present. As soon as winter breaks he will go to Pennsylvania where he and his associates will put down a series of wells on a tract of oil land they now have under option. They plan to begin drilling just as soon as the weather permits the erec tion of the derricks.

ORDINANCE NO. 107. Passed January 5, 1925.

AN ORDINANCE, entitled: An Ordinance to regulate the parking of automobiles and other vehicles on the streets and highways of Taneytown, Carroll County, Maryland.

Section 1. Be it enacted and ordained by the Burgess and Commissioners, of Taneytown, that no person shall park an automobile or other vehicle directly in front of nor nearer than ten feet of a fire plug, nor within fifteen feet from the corner of an intersecting street, nor directly in front of the Firemen's Building so as to hinder the passage of the fire truck to and from the building.

Section 2. And be it enacted and ordained; that any one violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall, upon conviction thereof before the Burgess or a Justice of the Peace within the Corporate limits, be fined not less than ($1.00) One Dollar nor more than Ten ($10.00) Dollars and costs for each offence, and in default of the payment thereof be committed to the town lockup or the jail of Carroll County for a period of not more than fifteen days, or until discharged by due course of law. Section 3. And be it further enacted and ordained; that this ordinance shall take effect from the day and date of its publication.

Miss Percy Adelaide Shriver, who was one of the injured in the coasting accident last Saturday night, on "College Hill," Westminster, was visiting Miss Anna Reifsnider. Fortunately, she was not seriously injured, aside from bruises and shock, and came home on Sunday.

The annual election of officers of Taneytown Vol. Fire Co. No 1, was held last Monday evening, and resulted as follows; Curtis Bowers, Pres.; Roy Baker, Vice-Pres.; Walter A. Bower, Treas; Charles G. Boyd, Sec.; A. G. Rffle, Foreman. The annual supper will be held on Saturday, Feb. 21st.

? The fire at Ernest Hyser's, on Sunday night, is another warning to all homes with chimney places closed with wooden fire boards, and often with wooden floors, or wood and kindling or other inflammable material inside. All fire places should have brick bottom, and all exposed wood be covered with metal, so that falling soot, or sparks, can not cause fire.

Dr. Irving and wife, of Thurmont, on their way to Baltimore in an auto, met with a bad accident at William H. Flickinger's crossing, on Wednesday, about 10 A. M. In trying to go around another car, their car now. reared up and turned over. Both occupants were cut and bruised, and were taken to Frederick Hospital. The other car turned into the Sell's Mill road, without giving any sign of intending to do so, and kept on without stopping. One or both speed.

nuch sickn diseases in the counties of Maryland tered in 1923 was 33,725. In 1924 the total dropped to 14,295.

The greatest decrease was in influenza which was epidemic in 1923, with 13,681 cases reported, but of which only 1,210 cases were listed in 1924. Typhoid fever which is being con-stantly and valiantly fought, dropped from 980 cases in 1923 to 823 in 1924, a decrease of 16%. Diphtheria, which is also fought as typhoid is, both coming and going—that is, by immunization or preventive measures, as well as by care and treatment when cases actually occur, showed a drop of 29% with 1,036 cases in 1923 and 730 last year.

Pneumonia, which always takes an upward turn when influenza is especially prevalent, and a downward one when influenza is not an active factor, show a drop of 46%, with 1,455 fewer cases in 1924 than in 1923. There were 3,155 cases in 1923 and 1,700 cases reported in 1924.

Measles and whooping cough were both on their good behavior in 1924. Of the former 7,242 cases were re-ported in 1923, and over 5,000 less in 1924, or a total of 1,674 cases in 1924, Whooping cough dropped from 1,535 cases in 1923 to 811 in 1924.

On the other hand, scarlet fever and mumps showed an increase, with 1,586 cases of scarlet fever in 1923, and 1,851 in 1924; with 343 cases of mumps in 1923, and 411 in 1924.

There was also an apparent increase in tuberculosis, with 993 cases report-ed in 1923, and 1,718 in 1924. The advance is regarded by Dr. Riley, Chief of the Bureau, as due not to an actual increase in the number of patients, but to the activity of the clinics which have been organized in different parts of the state, and which have discovered cases that have been without medical attention.
