CARROLL COUNTY SCHOOL PROBLEMS.

Taneytown and Sykesville Demand New School Buildings.

For quite a while there has been a controversy in this county between the School Board and the County Commissioners over school appropriations, both for school maintenance and new school buildings; the former insisting on certain demands as advanced by the State School Board, involving the expenditure of large sums of money; and the latter confronted with the problem of raising it without greatly increasing the tax rate, which would be a very unpopular procedure.

Other matters of lesser importance, such as the closing of a few schools, have entered into the controversy, while urgent demands from Taneytown and Sykesville for large new buildings contributed very materially toward a strained situation between the two Boards. In Taneytown, the old school building was condemned as unsafe by several architects, and since the first of this year the building has been abandoned, and school work is now being conducted in rented rooms, under serious handicaps, in an effort to complete the course of the present school year.

At a joint meeting of the two Boards, on Monday, the Taneytown situation was amicably gone over, public or professional life, or in some and while no definite conclusion was reached, it seems probably that the differences between the Boards will be ironed out, and the Taneytown building constructed, as the need there is an imperative emergency that with what he has. can not be disregarded.

It is reported that the situation at Sykesville is only a little less urgent, but there is a complication there over the division of local sentiment as to the location of the needed building. Taken as a whole, the situation is a complex one, but the county must have proper school accommodations, and ways and means must be found to finance them.

It is current report that citizens of Sykesville have agreed to finance the major portion of the debt for a new building there, at a low rate of interest, nntil the Commissioners can include the sum in an annual budget.

The Baltimore Sun, this Friday morning, contains some further comment on the subject from its Westminster correspondent, containing reference to a situation at Pleas-ant Gap, and other matters pertaining to the general subject.

Prayer for those in Authority.

Editor Carroll Record :-

Today marks the beginning of a new administration. President Coolidge and a Congress recently elected make solemn covenant with God and the American people to conscientiously enact and enforce such laws as are by them deemed best to effectuate the perpetuity of our nation. This is a soul-stirring respon-sibility for men who take their duty seriously. Unaided by the citizenry the best efforts of these officials will be abortive. At all times, therefore, it is incumbent on each of us to bear our share of the burden of Government by properly, exercising our franchise at the polls and carefully observing, not merely the laws that we are interested in seeing observed. but all laws that are not in conflict with the Divine law and the Constitution, the fundamental law of the land. At present time, because they are on the threshold of their tenure of office, to my thinking, we are under serious obligation of commending our Chief Executive and our National legislators to the God of Wisdom, that He may guide their deliberations and direct their activities to the greater glory of God and the best interests of the country. To this end, the Prayer for authorities, composed by Archbishop Car-roll, will be recited at the Holy Hour service to be held in St. Joseph's Church Sunday afternoon, at three o'clock. May I respectfully suggest, Mr. Editor, that at our orisons on Sunday next, in our respective places of worship all of us of the Taneytown district remember the officials newly inducted into office?

DEATH ANNOUNCEMENTS. How Should they be Handled as News Items?

and as in a great many other directions, he is compelled to have a more or less established code of ethics in handling them, in order to come some-thing near all-around fairness and impartiality very much along the line of "births," as considered on this page last week

In this connection, as in many others, newspaper customs have changed. There was a time when it seemed the chief object of the publisher to make death announcements as long as possible; and some papers seemed-and a few do yet—to specialize both in the large number, and the length, of these obituaries. Within the past 20 years, this tendency toward effusiveness like the average funeral sermon-has changed to more moderate proportions and statements, until it is now the almost universal rule of newspapers to confine their write-ups to name, age, date and cause of death, the surviv ing relatives, time and place of burial, and the minister in charge, taking up in all an average of not over four or five inches of space.

There are, of course, some excep-tions to this rule; when the death was a violent one—the result of an accident, perhaps-or when the deceased public or professional life, or in some way was conspicuous—as we say a "very prominent" citizen more space is apt to be taken. There are also cases in which the Editor has only the barest of facts, and does the best

Perhaps economy in space, too, has had something to do with the modern style; and besides, there was always the chance for comparisons, that might appear to show favoritism on the part of the publisher; hence, the long notice for one death, and the short notice for another, was difficult to explain away, and self-defense and safety seemed to rest in close confinement to bare news facts. In these former long write-ups, no death notice was complete without including the names of bearers and the undertaker, often the donors of "floral tributes" and not infrequently the name of the attending physician, and incidents of the last hours on the death bed. A week in September last, and a more recent week, were used for making a survey of the weekly papers coming into our office as exchanges, in order to see in what proportion of deaths the names of undertakers and bearers were givenin neither case counting those ap-pearing in The Record. The result was, 183 deaths reported, in which 48 were accompanied by the name of undertaker, and 10 with the names of the bearers. These notices, in some cases, were sent in by regular correspondents, others by special contribu-tors, while most of them were writ-

COOLIDGE, AND DAWES INAUGURATED As there is nothing more certain than "death and taxes," naturally every weekly newspaper publisher handles a great many death notices; A Very Simple But an Impressive National Event National Event.

The inauguration of Coolidge and Dawes as President and Vice-President, passed off quietly and formally, as had been planned, and as another evidence of the President's economy. The scenes at the Capital were strictly regular and formal, limited to the installation of the Vice-President elect, his brief inaugural address, and to the closing incidents of Congress on such occasions.

An innovation, this year, was the radio-casting of descriptive scenes, as well as of actual occurrences, through which millions of listeners-in were informed of the event from the Atlantic to Pacific, this service beginning at about 11:30 and closing shortly after 2 o'clock, when the parade to the White House had gotten well under

The oath to President Coolidge, as administered by Chief Justice Taft, was clearly heard, and immediately thereafter the inaugural address of the President, that lasted 38 minutes. The Bible used on the occasion was the one given Mr. Coolidge by his grand-mother, when he was five years of age, and was the book from which he learned to read. The Bible was opened at the first chapter of St. John, that being the President's favorite chapter. There was a noticable absence lavish decorations, apart from the public buildings, banks. and a few others, and the long rows of stands for spectators, the refreshment booths and many street money-making activities, were largely absent.

A large portion of the President's address was devoted to the peace of the world and to our Foreign relations. He emphasized the need for a strong American policy—almost strong enough to suit the exclusionists -yet before he ended he as strongly urged that America can not maintain a policy of aloofness, but must have leading part in maintaining world peace by participation in the adjustment of world problems. He also pledged himself to national economy and the lightning of tax bur-dens; that it was the duty of legislators to forget partisanship and to hear the voice of public sentiment; that wise legislation is all that is needed to bring about a return to equalized prosperity.

Vice-President Dawes, in his brief inaugural, surprised his hearers by departing from the platitudes common on such occasions, by stating that re-form in the rules of the Senate were demanded by public sentiment; referring to the common practice in the Senate of a single member holding the floor indefinitely against the will of two-thirds of the members who want to bring a question to a vote.

HOME FOR INCURABLES. A Most Worthy Institution Makes Appeals for Help.

The Home for Incurables, Baltimore, has issued an appeal for help, through the press,that we gladly give space. It is an institution, as its name implies, that takes in all kinds Maryland Taxpayers and Roads Greatly Interested. of incurables, to the extent of its ca-pacity—all denominations—Gentiles, Jews, Catholic, Protestant, from all Supreme Court, in the case of the State of Maryland vs Geo. W. Bush over the state; crippled, rheumatic, paralyzed. About 200 cases were turned away, last year. At present, the Public Service Commission of the it can accommodate only 54.

It is conducting a campaign now to raise $300,000 with which to increase its capacity and equipment, of which amount less than one-third has been subscribed. The appeal sent out, and not subject to regulation charges imposed by states. The decision is regarded by Mr. Mackall, State Roads Commissioner, says in part; "This is a frank appeal for finan-cial aid. But, in the name of humanity, will you read it through and consider it? It is not an appeal for citizens of a far-off country; it is an ap-peal in behalf of our own neighbors throughout Maryland, of all denominations, suffering from incurable diseases

We are indeed blessed who know that in time of illness those near and dear to us are given every possible attention. But let your thoughts dwell a moment on the pathetic help-lessness, the infinite misery, and the abject helplessness of hundreds of incurables who are denied even the privilege of comfort and good care. The Board of Directors and the Board of Managers and a few friends who are interested in the Home have already contributed $50,000.

In closing, may we remind you that time passes slowly to those poor souls waiting for admission to the Home. Won't you give this appeal your immediate consideration and help us get under way without any unnecessary loss of time?

Contributions should be directed to Mr. George S. Jackson, Treasurer, Chamber of Commerce Building, Bal-timore. Appreciating your assist-ance and thanking you for copies of your paper containing anything you may be good enough to say to your readers, we are Eastern United States and Canada was visited on Saturday night, before midnight, by a slight earthquake. Only a comparatively few persons notic-ed the disturbance, and gained their in-formation through the newspapers. The shock was distinct in New York City, and was felt in 13 states from Massachusetts to South Carolina. The tremors lasted from 30 seconds to two minutes.

Since the newspapers and scientists told about it, imagination has helped to make interesting stories of exper-iences. There are reports from Canada that buildings were cracked, and a number of plate glass windows brok-en. It was the most pronounced "quake" ever recorded for the east, the last of which was in 1914.

Later reports from Canada give three deaths due to the earthquake, one church collapsed and scores of homes damaged. The severity was greatest in the province of Quebec, where numerous fissures in the ground were discovered.

Moonshine and Insanity.

Dr. Gerty, of the Cook County Psychopathic Hospital, of Chicago, in writing the American Journal of Pubin lic Health, calls attention to many interesting features of the moonshine problem. He points out the fact that because of poor control of fermenta-tion and faulty distilling methods the raw whiskey and moonshine now pro-duced is highly poisonous and causes a specific form of alcoholic insanity.

On questioning some of the patients in the hospitals it developed that nearly all of them had used some of this raw illicitly distilled liquor. Wood alcohol, denatured alcohol, synthetic gin and toilet waters, sup-posed to have an intoxicating effect, ĥad also been used.

For practical purposes we must consider moonshine poisoning as alco-holism now encountered clinically is of the moonshine type. It is a very prevalent form of poisoning at present, and is more prevalent than alco-holism was in pre-prohibition times. Physical and mental disturbances due to moonshine whiskey are fre-quent. This type of poisoning differs from ordinary alcoholic poisoning in that the poison takes effect more rapidly and the patient is brought to the hospital sooner because of the gravity of his symptoms.

Only a small amount of the prevailing type of illicit liquor is required to incapacitate. The effect is more pro-found and more fatal than that of pure alcoholic products. Mental deterioration is a common sequel after even a few sprees. Male alcoholic addicts outnumber the female addicts to a greater extent than ever.

Telephones in Japan.

Any person who complains if he to wait several day telephone installed, should read the experience of an American woman who has gone to Japan to live. In Japan, the telephone system is owned by the government. She writes: "I have given up hope of having a telephone. That utility, deemed a necessity in America, is a luxury in Japan that only the rich can afford. In Tokio telephone subscribers must buy the instrument itself, paying for it all the way from one thousand to four or five thousand yen. And after one has bought a telephone and paid for it, one must pay the usual monthly fee for service. Of course, telephone owners may sell their phones just as they sell any other article of furniture. However, very few tele-phone owners seem to want to sell. An applicant waits years sometimes to get an instrument in his home. It is common to see an advertisement for a telephone run for months."-The Manufacturer.

Wm. A. Golden Witnesses Hold-up.

Boyhood-Taneytowner Wm. Golden, Esq., Pittsburgh. attorney for the generation-old Marion Building & Loan Association there, was present at a 1-minute, revolver-fusillade holdup robbery, by three (escaping) young fellows, of its counter-exposed ($600) currency late last Tuesday; the loss by the $2,000,000 corporation being covered by the theft-insurance, however.

Admittedly an unusual sight in real life, he says 'twas n't any thriller, after all, because of the instantaneous job and (According to The Gazette-Times' main headline-featuring report), all at first taking the matter as the prank of practical jokers, strangers only to some observers while prehaps not so to others there, with blank cartridges instead of the loaded ones used.

Singularly enough, at the moment aside he had been commenting on the ten up in the office. In line with the shortening-up of death announcements, we now have less tolling of church bells, more private house funerals, and but few invitations to "return to the house" after the burial. And yet, with it all, while there is less display perhaps, there are no indications of less real love and respect shown; in fact, if the better care of cemeteries, and more expensive grave stones' are indications, there is greatly more of both shown than ever. However, deaths and funeral customs, in their news treatment, are still to some extent very largely regulated by community customs, and by no widely established fixed rule.

Fined for Selling Cider.

Reuben Saylor, of Johnsville dis-trict, near Union Bridge, and son, Isaac, were before Judge Worthington, of Frederick, on Monday, on the charge of selling intoxicating liquors. Both were found guilty, and each was fined $100. and costs. The witness testified that they had purchas-ed cider at Saylor's, and felt intoxicating effects from it.

Mr. Saylor testified that he made cider and sold it, and that it was not intoxicating as it was sold soon after it was made. He testified that he did not sell his apples, as they were made unsalable by the cement plant, owing to the dust, and that washing made considerable work.

Saylor was indicted on four charges but was found guilty on one. On ac-count of the high standing of the Saylors, the trial was largely attended. One of the witnesses, Elgin Boone, On of Union Bridge, who was a very reluctant witness, will likely face charges of perjury, as his testimony before the Grand Jury and the Court was so conflicting that the court instructed the State's Attorney to present him at the next session of the Grand Jury.

Lady Drops Whiskey Permit.

The Frederick News, of Tuesday, contained the following—a "lost and found" case;

"A real authentic prescription for one quart of whiskey, is in the hands of the local police awaiting the owner to claim it. It is the result of an unusual incident that occurred on the Square Corner during the busy noon hour Friday.

A dainty pink powder puff, and a little white slip of paper were seen to fall from the pocket of a passing miss. The polite officer on duty at the corner tipped his hat and informed the young lady that she had drop ped something, but before he could recover the lost property and return them, the owner hustled off hurriedly, disregarding the effort of the of Congress Has Adjourned.

A do little, but talk much, Congress has ended. It especially did very little that the President asked it to do, the most important things accomplished were passage of the appropriation bills, the increase in postal rates and postal employees' pay, and in-crease in pay for themselves. The President is not worrying about calls for a special session, and it is quite probable that none will be called.

The National Democratic Committee announces that it has liquidated its debt, and will be ready for the next campaign with a clean slate.

because it did not provide increased revenue to meet the salary payments. He also objected to the fixed amount of increase to all employees, urging that the same need did not apply equally throughout the service.

The new rates, as summarized in the Record of last week, will therefore become effective, April 15; to which must be added private mailing cards, and various souvenir and greeting cards, increased from 1 cent to 2 cents

Several defects have been found in the bill, the most serious of which is that Rural Carriers who use horsedrawn vehicles are specially named for the increase, while carriers using motor vehicles are not named. It is elieved that a strict interpretation of the law would cut out about 75 per cent of the entire Rural Carrier force. The other defects relate to the railway service.

Telephone Company Given a Partial Rate Increase.

The U. S. Statutory Court, Judge John C. Rose presiding, has granted the C. & P. Telephone Company the right to increase its rates in Maryand to the extent of $336,134, slightly more than one-third of the amount asked by the Company, the basis of the decision being that the Company was entitled to a return of 6 percent on the valuation of its property, the amount of which the Court decided to be about $4,500,000 more than the valuation fixed by the Public Service Commission.

The Court announced that it was not a rate-fixing body, which seems to mean that the P. S. Commission will be required to call another meeting, and reach an agreement on rates high enough to meet the amount of increase granted.

Government, and Economy.

Is our government, National, State, or County, run along economical, or practical business, lines? Yes, and no-mostly no. As a rule, laws and appropriations are wasteful, while the administration of them is economical. In other words, Congress-for instance-increases offices and salaries greatly beyond the economical, or needed requirements, while the de- his stern application of it in the partments carrying out orders may be White House. the East.

If we judge the success of the law, from Baltimore, for instance, we make a big mistake. When we think of the "police raids" and various "bootlegging" experiences filling the newspapers, as occurring in New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore, and in smaller cities, we are apt to weaken in our faith in the law, and say "it can't be done."

But, even here, the law is slowly but surely winning. The reason why 'slowly" must be used, is largely because political power protests law violators, at least to the extent of not energetically forcing trials and prosecutions; and because state officials do not lend strong aid to Federal officials. That prohibition is gaining in both public confidence and actual performance, is shown in the fact that within the past few months a reversal of public opinion has manifest itself in the facts that ridicule of liquor laws has largely disappeared from the big "wet" newspapers, and anti-prohibition jokes are seldom cracked on the stages of the better theatres.

There is also a movement on foot, in Washington, to compel members of "borer" from within, and seems able | Congress to enforce the laws in their own individual cases-those who vote "dry" and practice "wet." That Washington should be classed almost as a daily paper, last Friday, attracted ' "wet" as New York, is practically a weather accelerates trade," and the tion that is proposed should not be a fraudulent "white-washing" affair. Making light of prohibition-treating it as a part of the Constitution that ought to be, or will be, repealed -will continue as long as members of Congress themselves violate the Volstead act. And it is worth while considering, how far members of Congress who violate the law will go to- of our present ways of living and a ward selecting Federal officials who are really in earnest to stop violations?

Just now, prohibition is suffering from "weak links" in the chain, and the chain of law itself will never be strong until these links are removedsome of them in the Capital City.

more complete everywhere, than in year of the great influenza epidemic, influenza, pneumonia, organic heart disease, tuberculosis, and Bright's disease, occupied first, second, third, fourth and fifth places, respectively, as causes of death.

In 1919 when conditions were more normal, organic heart disease with 1106 deaths, or one-tenth of the total mortality during the year, exceeded all other single causes of death, and gained first place, which it has held ever since. In 1920, the number of deaths from this cause was 1128; in 1921 there were 1182 deaths from organic heart disease; in 1922, the number was 1143; in 1923-the last year for which itemized tables have been !

with 1919, are equally interesting. Tuberculosis, which was the leading cause of death previous to that time, has gone down to third place, and Bright's disease now ranks' second among the causes of death.

Commenting on these changes, Dr. R. H. Riley, Chief of the Bureau of Communicable Diseases, said "the decrease in tuberculosis can justly be attributed to the educational and preventive work that has been carried on for nearly twenty years in connection with that one disease.

"But when you realize that that single disease carries off between 800 and 900 people every year in the counties of Maryland, you have to admit that we still have a huge fight on our hands before we will get rid of the dragon of tuberculosis.

"The increase in organic heart dis- | laying hens ease and in Bright's disease may both be attributed to the rush and hurry warning against such rush and hurry -and likewise worry-could well be issued to each of us.

"But medical science has shown conclusively that much of the heart disease and also of the diseases of the kidneys which now figure so largely in the total causes of death, are the by-products of some infection. Very often they have been found to be the after effects of some well-known disease, such as typhoid fever, for instance; or even of the so-called diseases of childhood-measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria.

"Accordingly, outstanding service is rendered by the forces that are organized to protect the health of the public, quite as much by the prevention of the infectious diseases, with their damaging after effects, as by the actual saving of human life."-Md. Dep't Health.

Helping the President.

Senator Edge, of New Jersey, recently suggested that a commission should be appointed to see if the burdens resting upon the President could be made lighter. President Coolidge has let it be known that he does not feel in need of such relief. However, it will not soon be forgotten that two recent Presidents broke in health as the result of this strain. If the politicians are constantly running to the President for appointments for themselves and their friends, such demands are likely to cause any occupant of that office more worry than comes from the study of the real problems of the nation. The best way to help the President is to stop pestering him to help build up political machines, and give him his time free to study the big questions on which his wisdom is needed for the guidance of Congress. -Frederick News.

Continue Search for "Lost" Arizona Mines

Of all the legends of buried treasure the most persistent is the one about lost gold mines of Arizona. Only the Indians are supposed to possess the secret of this baffling mystery, although the story has been circulated for more than a century.

That there once were mines in the region is indicated by references found in early Spanish diaries and by the tales passed down through several generations of natives who were compelled to dig the ore as slaves of their conquerors. The chief evidence in support of the tradition is the altar of the San Xavier mission, not far from Tucson. It is described as being "inlaid with virgin gold." Mission records show that the precious metal was brought from Canada del Oro where it was mined by Indians under the direction of Spanish priests.

But no trace now exists of the diggings, and the old trail over which the gold is said to have been carried by pack mules disappears abruptly in the sands .-- Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Evolution of Trade Mark and Advertising

The trade mark was invented during a time of grand colonization. A business house in Cathago Nova (Carthagena), which manufactured a delicious fish sauce and sent it to all parts of the world in hermetically sealed pitchers, burnt nine stars into the containers. The nine stars were the emblem of the sacred fish, the dolphins. A big lamp factory in the Roman Rhineland adorned all its lamps with the utensils of eye specialists-which those people who used the lamps should ever come to know!

Advertising, of course, grew more 4 and more luxurious. It was a favorite child of commerce in imperial Rome. Dozens of the best painters and sculptors worked for the wool kings, silk houses, and the big weapon factories which grew up like mushrooms where ever the Roman armies advanced.

People vied with one another in erecting altars to the protectors of trade and navigation; but on these altars they inscribed the names and trade of the donors, as a means of er, is organizing a new expedition in advertising. The Roman business men search of the live dinosaur which was were as though seized by a fever of competition. Eels Not Sectional

East is East and West is West, but eels are all the same, according to Professor Schmidt of Copenhagen, who, in lecturing before the Academy of Science, said the European eel and the American eel go to the same spot to reproduce.

This spot, says Professor Schmidt, is northwest of the Antilles, between the forty-eighth and sixtieth degrees longitude, in the middle of the Atlantic ocean.

Years of close study of the eel has convinced the professor that it takes the average eel three years to make the journey from the hatching grounds to the American or European shores, and that a European eel may continue on its voyage, crossing to America or vice ver

Effective Maybe, but Price "Done Tuk 'Em"

Gen. Sterling Price of Missouri was one of the best fighters in the Confederate army, but he was a scholar in inverse radio. Complex tactical movements in practice did not stagger him, but tradition has it that the simplest problem on paper was beyond his power.

During the early days of the Civit war he visited General Beauregard, who was a graduate of West Point, an expert mathematician, a civil engineer and an authority on military tactics and strategy.

At Corinth, Miss., Beauregard had opportunity to put his theory into practice, and had placed about the city what he termed "a series of impregnable fortifications." He took General Price in his carriage to view | But de lates' is dat he's up an' gone these fortifications, carefully explaining their merits. Then he asked Price what he thought of the system.

Price straightened himself up and said thoughtfully: "Well, hain't never seen one like 'er but onct before." "They were pretty effective, weren't they?"

"Yep, fine. I done tuk 'er."-Kansas City Times.

Softening Ermine Skin

If ermine skins have become stiff, they may be rendered pliable by the following method: Place the hair side of the skin downward on a board and tack it smoothly and tightly by the edges. Rub in plenty of chalk on the skin side, and when it begins to fall off take the skin off the board. Then rub in plenty of powdered alum on the skin side, wrap up securely and keep for some days in a dry place.

Mandy Had Had Enough of "Tant'lizin'" Husband

"Am dis Misto Gibbs, de lawyer what handles divo'ce cases?" inquired a buxom-looking colored woman, opening the door of an attorney's office. "I handle some divorce cases," admitted the lawyer. "Do you want one?"

"Ah suttinly does. Mah name am Mrs. Mandy Purdin, an Ah wants to sot mahse'f shet of dat good-fo'nothin' husban' o' mine, Lysander Purdin." "On what grounds?"

"Groun's? Says which, groun's? Why, right heah in Houston."

"What is your complaint against him? What has he done?"

"Complaints, Misto Gibbs, is somethin' Ah ain't got nothin' alse but. An' dat low-life he's done ever'thin'. an' went an' insured his life fo' five thousand dollars! Kin yo' imagine dat?'

"But my good woman, his insuring himself is no grounds for complaint." "'Tain't, huh? Looky here, suh. Dat man done tuk out all dat insurance when he ain't got no idea a-tall o' dying. He done it jes' to tant'lize me! Yassuh, jes' to tant'lize me!"--Cravens, Dargan Company Review.

MILKMAN'S ALIBI

A milkman was charged with selling milk that had been watered. "What have you to say in your defense?" asked the magistrate. "Well, your honor," answered the man, "the only explanation I can offer is that the cow was left outside in the meadow all night, and as it rained hard she must have got wet through.'

Put Her Foot in It

I went to a small town to teach school, and found that every one seemed to be related to every one else. That cut me off from all chance for friendly gossip, for one could never tell when she would be gossiping in front of some adoring aunt or cousin. I was explaining this, laughingly, to a girl in the town who had been nice to me.

She remarked. "Yes, that is so, but I am one exception-we have no relatives here outside our immediate family-you may gossip to me about anyone."

"Well, the people I want most to gossip about are some newlywedsdon't know their name, but she calls him 'darling Donnie dear,' and they are too silly to be around sane peo-

"Oh," replied my friend. "I had forgotten about my brother Don and his wife-they've been married about a month, but we don't think they are sillier than anybody else."-Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Multiplication Feat

The following method is generally used in the multiplication of Roman numerals: It is necessary to remember that half of C is L, half of L is XXV, half of VI is III and half of V is II and I remainder. Write the numbers to be multiplied side by side. Double the first one and take half of the second, putting down an O Ir there is no remainder and an I if the remainder is one. The two numbers thus obtained are set down under the original numbers, and the process is repeated until the second column ends in I. Then cross out the lines that end in O and the sum of what remains in the first column will be the product.

(CTRANGER, ain't you?" the stagecoach driver asked of the gray-haired man who sat beside him. "I thought I hadn't seen you in these parts before. Yes, I know most of the passengers; we have the same lot going up to Acacia year after year-mining men mostly, with a farmer or two coming into town now that the new irrigation dam has been opened.

"But that lady you asked me about," he continued, pointing with his whip toward the inside of the coach, where a little frail, gray-haired woman was seated, "I shouldn't be surprised at your saying you knew her face if you were a regular passenger, but since you've never traveled by this coach before, I guess you must be mistaken. That's Molly Deering."

He paused and looked at the other man's face to see the effect of his words, but the gray-haired traveler did not betray the least sign of surprise.

"Molly Deering, I said," repeated the "You mean to say you never driver. heard of her? Well, I'll tell you, to begin with, that she ain't right in her head. Leastways, she is right, and everybody knows that, because she's the woman who cleaned up Acacia. Yes, sir, cleaned up this little burg by sheer force of goodness, she did. Used to walk into the gambling dens and the saloons and pray. Pray with the boys, not at them. I guess Molly Deering's right enough, except in one thing. Four times a year she travels up to Acacia and gets off at Fox Lane, where we're coming to now. Sort of waits around a little, and then comes back on the coach, when I start the return journey, a couple of hours later. She thinks she's going to meet Jim Burnett there and be married to him.

"You don't know who Jim Burnett was, I can see. Well, friend, I'll tell you the story, then. It was just about 20 years ago that Jim was to marry Molly, and he would have done so if the sheriff hadn't been on hand with a posse and taken Jim away. He got a life sentence instead of Molly, and I guess he's in the Fort Leavenworth penitentiary yet, unless the government has let him out, which sometimes happens, I understand.

"Jim Burnett wasn't a bad sort of young fellow, only wild, and as for Molly, she was the daughter of old Abe Deering, the stock-raiser, who left her a fortune in cattle. Acacia was just beginning to get on the map in them days. It was a little frontier settlement, and there was a pretty rough set of gamblers and miners and cattle rustlers who made it their headquarters.

"Jim Burnett wasn't a bad fellow, as I was saying, but he was wild. He punched cattle for Abe Deering, and most of his money went into the gambling hells. But that was before he met Molly, who'd just come back from school in the East. Jim and Molly other the minute it each of years. Poor thing, she's waited twenty! She's hardly more than a young woman now-can't be turned forty, as you'll see for yourself if you look at her close-but her hair turned gray very soon after the sentence. Jim was put in for life, as I told you.

"So that's why Molly Deering comes, to Fox Lane four times a year. She's as sane as you or I, except for this one queer little twist in her brain. Every now and again she forgets all that has passed and thinks she is going to Fox Lane to marry Jim. Then she dresses up in her best, and when I see her waiting for the coach I know what's happening. Quiet and gentle as a lamb she is, but she thinks she's a young girl again and that Jim Burnett will be waiting for her with the spare horse. If you'll notice her, friend, you'll see that she's wearing a riding skirt under her cloak.

"When I pick her up on the return journey she never says anything, but I can see that her memory has come back to her. And so it goes. It's pitiful-but everybody loves Molly Deering, and it would go hard with anyone who didn't treat her respectful. And here we are at Fox Lane. You getting off here, too? Then perhaps you'll have a chance to look at her."

The driver pulled in his horses and the gray-haired traveler descended slowly. The driver jumped from the box, throwing the reins loosely over the horses' heads. He opened the coach door, and the traveler could see him handing out the frail little lady.

"Here we are at Fox Lane, Miss Deering," he said. "Anything I can do for you today? Not coming back by the coach? Pshaw! I'm sorry to hear that. Expecting to meet a friend? Sure now, Miss Molly, I wish I wasn't a married man. It's me that would be your friend if you would let me."

He placed the woman's handbag upon the ground beside her and, waving good-by to the traveler, jumped on the box again, took the reins, and clicked to the horses. Off went the stage pell-mell, un'il it rolled into Acacia.

"Poor thing ! Poor thing !" exclaimed. the driver, wiping his eyes. "If Uncle Sam knew, maybe he'd let Jim out again."

He took on his passengers, but he reserved a vacant seat inside the

"No, sir, that seat's taken," he said." Must go? Well, friend, you can ride on the box but you can't have that seat-not if it costs me my job. Who's bribing me? It's being held for Molly Deering. Certainly, no offense, friend. I knew you would understand. Yes, sir, she came up to Fox Lane today as, usual, poor thing !"

The stage coach rattled and rumbled back until Fox Lane was reached. Then the driver pulled in.

"Glad to see you, Miss Deering," he called cheerily to the little figure that was waiting for him. "I didn't know you was up in these parts. I guess I've got a seat for you inside. How do you do, sir?"

He was certainly surprised to see the stranger, but more so to see Miss Deering clinging to his arm.

"Come down, Jim!" called the man. "Toss down the reins and jump. See here! Don't you know me, you old rascal? And me sitting at your side all the way to Fox Lane!"

"Jim Burnett!" yelled the driver in amazement. "Jim! It's you! And let you "Hush, Jim !" said the other, holding up a warning finger. "Take care what words you use in the presence of my wife. Molly, dear, this is Jim, who I, was telling you about."

Weather Experts to Make Study of Ocean

The influence which the ocean has upon the weather is very great. "The study of the waters of the oceans," declares Lieutenant Commander George E. Brandt of the United States navy, "will yield results worth millions of dollars to the agriculture and industry of the nation, because from this study we can get a better understanding of the weather, and will probably be able to predict the weather a year in advance, especially the periods of rainfall and drouth and their duration." Commander Brandt says that the waters of the ocean are a great reservoir for storing and distributing the heat which comes from solar radiation. During each hour of sunshine more heat is being added to this great reservoir. This heat in turn is given off again by the ocean, influencing very materially the weather over land and Observations made by the Smithsonian institution show that the radiation of the sun varies considerably from time to time. It is this variation, says Commander Brandt, which makes the study of weather so complicated. "Since the waters of the ocean act as an intermediate reservoir," he says, "the full effect of a change in solar radiation is not felt until some years after the change

Porcelain Has Long

Been Known to World Porcelain factories and stores are mentioned in Arabia in writing of the period of 800 A. D. The Arabian geographer, Mohammed-el-Efridi, who lived in Sicily at the court of Roger II, published, about 1154, a geographic work in which he told of the town of troit News. Toward the middle of the Fourteenth century, Ibn Batuta, the Arabian traveler, described Chinese ceramic as the most beautiful in the world. The Chinese manufactured dishes and porcelain ware for a very long time.

In the history of the great Chinese empire, one reads that only certain towns and villages went in for porcelain industry. The finest chinaware was made in the province of Saxij. It was so beautiful and so much like the finest crystal that it never was exported, but was exclusively reserved for the use of the Chinese emperors.

Italian Lazzaroni

The name "Lazzaroni" was given to a class of vagabonds in Naples, Italy, which, in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries, formed a distinct caste. They annually elected a chief, called Capo Lazzaro, who was recognized by the authorities and frequently took an active part in political affairs. In 1647, headed by Masaniello, they overthrew the government and for a few days held possession of the city. In 1798, instigated by Cardinal Ruffo, and led by Michele Sforza, they successfully resisted the attacks of the French. The Lazzaroni had no homes not regular occupations. They wore ragged clothes, were filthy in their habits, and slept in the open air. They were so-called either from Lazarus, the beggar, or more probably from the hospital of St. Lazarus, which served as a place of refuge for the destitute of the city.-Kansas City Star.

Mistaken Atmosphere

The pastor had been holding revival services for some time. Much interest had been taken in them, but on this particular evening the meeting had been more than usually interesting. As the service drew to a close the pastor said in his concluding remarks, "What a heavenly atmosphere there is here this evening." Happening to glance, as he said it, at the pew where his wife and sister sat, he saw a broad smile overspread their faces.

When the congregation had gone, he said to them, "What made you girls smile so when I was speaking?" "Oh," said his wife, "we couldn't help it. Jack Smith (a noted village character) had been out hunting skunks and he came into the meeting without changing his clothes and sat down right behind us, and when you spoke of the heavenly atmosphere it was too much."-Harding Herald.

Our Debt to Children

Better teachers, fuller school equipment, it matters not what they cost. We owe them to our children, And we owe them more. We owe them our own example. What we do, and the lives they live with us, will affect them most. Give them a chance to be useful in their childhood, to practice economy, to do for themselves. If the greatest men have usually been born in the country and later gone to the city, there is a reason. Huxley warns us not to let a child's schooling interfere with its education. It ought to have the best schooling our brains and our purses can procure. But its deepest education is in the hands of its parents. -Norman Hapgood, in Hearst's International.

Patriotic Organization

The Army and Navy Union of the United States was organized on March 31, 1888. Peter Lacher of Cincinnati, Ohio, on February 5, 1888, received the response and co-operation of 30 men, through a notice in the press. On that date a temporary organization was formed and adjourned to meet later in the month, February 19, when a permanent organization was effected and styled as "The Regular Soldiers' Union."

Postal Service Growth

The United States postal service really began in 1639 when an office was set up in Boston tavern to receive letters from Europe. The growth has been steady ever since. High lights in its course were the appointment of Benjamin Franklin as first postmaster general in 1775, adoption of gummed stamps in 1847, free city delivery in 1863, railway post office service in 1864, rural service in 1896, postal savings banks in 1911, parcel post in 1913, airplane mail service in 1918, and daily transcontinental air-mail service in 1924.

"Well, they were to be married in a month's time, and then Jim fell in with some of his old pals and they urged him to celebrate with them in Acacia for the last time. Jim was as weak as water and he didn't need too much persuading. He rode into Acacia with seven hundred dollars, and about midnight that same seven hundred was reposing in Ike White's pocket and Jim was staring down at the rottenest poker hand he'd ever drawn.

"Suddenly something made him lean over the table and look down where Ike had been setting. There, wedged tight under the table top, was an ace and two kings of spades and diamonds, and there was two aces and three kings upon the table, the last having been Ike's winning hand.

"Ike got wise to the situation about the same time as Jim, and both drew. Jim got a bullet through the shoulders, and Ike fell dead with a ball in the brain. Then Jim was staring down. at the dead man in terror and not understanding what is was all about.

"The boys bound up Jim's wound and hustled him on his horse. 'If you ride all night you'll come to Mexico, Jim,' they told him. Jim started out, still in a daze, and by daybreak everybody supposed that he was far away.

"Well, Ike White had some powerful friends here, and they organized a posse. They meant to start after him, but one of them-a man who's dead now, so I won't tell you his namehit on a better plan to get him. Molly had borne the news like an angel, and this man, pretending to have a message from Jim, told Molly he'd be at Fox Lane on a certain day with a spare horse, to take her away to Mexico. Then he got in touch with Jim and told him Molly would be waiting for him on the same day at the same place, and he was to be there with a spare horse for her. Well, sir, the plan worked all right. Jim came to Fox Lane and found Molly waiting; only the sheriff was there, too, as well as the posse, and in a twinkling they had Jim disarmed.

"Jim might have made a fight for it, but Molly begged him to go with the sheriff. Nobody thought he'd get more than a year or two in prison, and Molly promised to wait for him any number 000,000.

Ancient Bookplates of Peculiar Interest Now

The greatest of colonial book-plate engravers was Nathaniel Hurd. There exist thirty signed designs of his and fourteen more which are attributed to him. Paul Revere is better known as a patriot than as a silversmith and engraver, but he has four signed bookplates, which may seem quaint and amusing, but which are interesting as the colonial interpretations of the armorial designs of the mother country, says the Detroit News.

Charles Dexter Allen has found and numbered 995 plates used in this country before 1800. Eleven of the signers of the Declaration of Independence have left bookplates in precious old volumes. William Penn, George Washington, Paul Revere, John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Daniel Webster, Samuel Chase-all left bookplates. The southern colonies apparently felt the bond of the mother country for a longer time more intimately than the northern. The aristocratic Virginians brought over their books and bookplates containing armorial bearings from home. The northern colonists relied more upon their own inventive powers, and so it was that the first bookplates to be used in the northern colonies came from their own engravers.

It's a Problem, Indeed

Having attended a Valentino matinee, a wife asked, that evening, of her husband: "Why can't all husbands be as adept at making love as Valentino is?" To which he replied: "If all husbands were adept at making love instead of making money and could only earn money by making love like Valentino for women whose husbands couldn't make love like Valentino but could make money for their wives to go and see Valentino make love, where would those wives find any such husbands?"-Life.

Planes Spread Terror

The terrifying effect of airplanes upon wild fowl is so great that if any general use should be made of them in hunting, the result would be exceedingly disastrous, according to a bulletin of the biological survey of the Department of Agriculture. Probably no other single method of pursuit of and can usually deliver all work, free wild ducks and other game birds could parallel their deadly effect in reducing the number of wild fowl.

It is for this reason that the biological survey has called upon all sportsmen and conservationists interested in the maintenance of this country's supply of wild fowl to gather and forward to it in Washington accurate information concerning such violations of law.

Weights and Figures

The grain is the one unit which is the same in troy and avoirdupois weight. An avoirdupois pound is 7,000 grains, a troy pound 5,760. The avoirdupois ounce is 437.5 grains, and the troy 480 grains. A hundred avoirdupois pounds of gold would be worth $29,166.67.

The American billion is expressed by a unit and nine ciphers-1,000,000,-000. In Germany, France and elsewhere in Europe the same figure is called a milliard. The British billion and the German, too, is expressed by a unit and 12 ciphers-1,000,000,-000,000.

Weather and Health

Different kinds of weather affect different people in different ways, but as a rule we feel better when the sun is shining. Damp is an enemy of health; a cool, bracing day a friend. Doctors frequently order their patients a "change of scene," and they are now learning that the benefits of such a change are greater even than they had thought, because a change of scene usually means a change of climate as well. Temperature, the amount of moisture in the air, the height above sea-level — all these things can affect our health.

GGS...Incubators...Hatching. Baby Chicks---Pullets and Cockerels... and then Chickens, full-grown Hens and Roosters. You are right in the midst of the annual process now. You are using your Incubator with one view in mind--to get the maximum results from your eggs. And when the process is completed, next fall when those chickens have come to maturity, will you have a few or a flock?

Kerosene can make the difference. Of course, Kerosene is only one factor, but it is the most neglected really important feature in hatching. Too many Incubator operators believe that "any Kerosene will do", and then wonder why their results were not 100% better. Many do not realize that baby chicks are seriously weakend by improper hatching due to poor Kerosene.

The Red C Oil and The White C Oil, same except in color, famous for over a generation and a half as the quality Kerosene, is your guarantee of better hatch-ing. It burns with steady, even Heat; it gives off no smoke, no odor. It is really a safeguard to the health of your baby chicks.

And it is more economical because it burns longer! Use The Red C Oil or The White C Oil consistently in your Incubator, and you will take a big, import-ant step toward having not a few---but a flock!

Parsi Put Their Dead on Towers of Silence

It was a terrifying sight and I was the first European to see it. I had to camouflage myself and to dress and act like a native of India in order to visit the sacred burial places of the Parsi, says a writer in "Deutsche Medlzinsche Wochenschrift."

The burial places, or rather the storing places, of the dead are the Towers of Silence. Foreigners can never get there, dead or alive. All photographs Only by special influ are prohibited. ence was it possible for me to get near these strange towers. A Parsi to whom I had been recommended by a friend agreed to guide me. On Malabar hill there is a grove, surrounded by a high wall. A road takes one up to the house of the guards. We happened to see the burlal of a rich Parsi. The body was dressed in white linen and lay on a network of strong linen straps held up by 12 carriers The entire mourning crowd, dressed in white instead of black, followed the corpse two and two. Each couple was tied together by a white linen ribbon. Eagles and hawks circled about in the air. I was unable to get to the Towers of Silence proper, but my companion described the burial procedure. The corpse is laid on the platform of one of the towers by men who are employed for their whole lifetime in this work. As the body begins to decay the eagles come down. The skeleton remains for about three months and then is buried in a valley.

(1) The rulers reviled Him for His claim to be the Savior. They wanted a Savior, but not a crucified Savior. Many today are religious, but have only contempt for a salvation which centers in an atonement made by blood.

(2) The soldiers reviled Him for claiming to be a king. The title, "King of the Jews," had been placed over Him in bitter irony, but it was true for, by right of the Davidic covenant, He shall be one day King over Israel (II Sam. 7:8-16). The fact that the superscription was in Greek, Hebrew and Latin shows that he was to be king over all the world.

(3) The Impenitent Malefactor (v. 39)

This brutal man joined in reviling the Savior, even though he was under condemnation.

4. The Penitent Malefactor (vv. 40-43).

The conscious sinner who discerned the heart of the Savior prayed for mercy. The man confessed his sin against God and cried to Jesus for salvation. He saw that the dying One was the forgiving God. The fact that he acknowledged his sin showed that he was penitent. His request that Christ remember him when He came into His kingdom shows that he recognized that the One who was dying on the cross was making atonement for sin, and that He would come to reign as King. His salvation was immediate. Christ said, "Today shalt thou be with me in Paradise."

V. The Death of Christ (vv. 44-46). So shocking was the crime that nature herself threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide Him from the godless crowd. When the price of sin was paid He cried with a loud voice, showing that He still had vitality, that His death was not through exhaustion, but by His sovereign will.

Yard Distance From Royal Nose to Thumb

More than eight hundred years ago there lived a king-an English king, one Henry, surnamed Beauclerc, Alexander McAdie relates in the Atlantic Monthly. Early in his reign graybearded councilors declared that in their opinion it would be nice to have a measure of length called a yard; and this should be the distance between the tip of royal Henry's nose and the end of the royal thumb.

The king's nose may have been large or small or tilted upward. Moreover, the distance may have been measured when the king's nose was swollen, for royal noses can hit a doorpost in the dark just like common noses. And the royal thumb may have been stubby or spatulate. Henry, too, might have playfully extended his fingers and wiggled them with his thumb not quite at, but very near, the end of his royal nose; or he might have wiggled eight fingers with the thumb of one hand touching the little finger of the other. Twirling his fingers thus he could delicately convey to the court scientists who were conducting the royal triangulation just what he thought of them. But at all costs the deed was done and the Englishmen of the Twelfth century achieved a yard.

Dog Carried Danger Signal

A motorist who was driving through a small town in Canada one night was astonished to see a little red light dancing about close to the ground on the road ahead. As he drew nearer he saw that it was an electric bulb er, a woman who was walking nearby, explained that the dog refused to stay off the streets at night, and that to keep him from being run over she had contrived the canine tail light, so to speak. No doubt the dog will soon become familiar with the rules of the road-will slow down and bark at all crossings, keep always on the proper side of the highway and never go more than 40 miles an hour except when he sees a cat ahead .-- Youth's Companion.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

Our First Page.

The Record has had some commendation for a "good first page," and as we exercise considerable effort to make this particular page of interest, we of course feel gratified when at times we receive some indication that our efforts meet with notice and approval; though we of course do the best we can to make all of the pages worth while.

But, our purpose it to give the above only passing note, and to emphasize the fact that all of us are-perhaps are being estimated each week, while to a lesser extent our "inside" pages are passing the same trial.

No man can live in a community without having some influence on it for good or bad, or very little influ-ence of any sort. The more promi-nent folks are, the more their acts are passing through this public reading process, because more is expected of them in the way of guidance.

Even the pupils in our schoolspecially now that schools are so expensive to taxpayers—are being crit-icised as never before. Very properly the public wonders whether our schools are worth their cost; and the pupils are furnishing the evidence, which brings before us our responsi-bility for the sort of influence we are broadcasting for the institutions of which we are part. Church members are creating public sentiment through their "first page" announcements, as to the worth of the churches to which they belong. Men in public, professional, or private life, are writing up "first pages" every week, even if they manage to keep inner pages less public.

So, as people are said to read as they run, it is of more importance than we sometimes think, to make the reading of our pages, not only easy, but free from mistakes and wrong— or the appearance of wrong, in the headlines that are so easy to read.

Why He Needs a Wife.

Miss Antique was one of those dear old creatures who never lost Her motto was try, try and hope. try again, and she entered time af-ter time for the matrimonial stakes, but never succeeded in landing a husband.

One day she was attending an "at home" and was introduced to an elderly gentleman, Mr. Dandegrass by

"You ought to get married, Mr. Dandegrass," gurgled Miss Antique during the course of their conversation

"Yes," replied Mr. Dandegrass earnestly, "I have wished many times lately that I had a wife." "Have you, really?" she asked soulfully. "Yes," was the answer. "If I had a wife she would probably have a sewing machine, and the sewing machine would have an oil can, and I could take it up and oil my office door. It squeaks horribly."—Pittsburg Sun

Woman Married 91 Years, to Mark 107th. Birthday.

They've been married 91 years. Perhaps that is why this silvery-hair-ed wife, who will celebrate her one hundred and seventh birthday Satur-day doesn't believe in divorce and thinks a girl shouldn't bob her hair. In a room at the Hebrew Home for Incurables, Mrs. Sarah Eshaefski,who married Isaac Eshaefski, her 109year-old companion, when she was 16, will celebrate, with those of her five living children who can attend her birthday.

Yesterday she was the cheerful "dear little old lady" of song fame. "Bobbed hair is just something the girls nowadays do to show off be-fore the men," she said. With her youthful spirits Mrs. Eshaefiski retains good health. Her day is well laid out and she follows her program faithfully. Rising at 6:30 she attends religious services and breakfast at 8. Then follows her morning "consitutional" of several blocks, not matter the weather. Another in the afternoon.

Both she and her husband read without glasses and she still has all her teeth.

An Easy Winner.

The elderly woman was timidly in-specting the stock of spectacles. "How much are these?" she asked, selecting a pair.

"A dollar and a half, madam." "And how much without the case?" "Well, the case makes little differ-nce. Suppose we say $1.45."

"What? Is the case worth only five cents?"

"Yes, madam," firmly. "Well, I'm very glad to hear it; it's the case, I want."

And, placing a nickel on the count-

Drums, which constitute the wireless news broadcasting system of the native African blacks, can be heard sixteen miles.

"The use of the motor truck has grown faster than the facilities with which to use it efficiently. In most cities there is so much street congestion that motor trucks are being throttled out of existence.

"The cost of trucking is measured by the time taken, rather than dist-ance. It costs six cents a minute just to keep a truck on the street, and half that much to maintain a horse truck there "Street delays and time consumed in loading and unloading trucks are so great that the motor often gets no op-portunity to justify itself. Conse-quently the horse is actually coming back

"But apart from business there has never been so much need for the horse in our national life as in the present. The horse can help the moral and physical development of our people as nothing else can.

"No boy grows up properly unless he associates with horses and dogs. Too many young people have automobiles and too few have horses. The increasing strain of city life makes it necessary for the business man to keep fit, and no exercise equals horseback riding."

Reason tor Nicknames During the contest between Charles

I and his parliament it was fashionable among the church people to give Scripture names to their children, and sometimes the name would consist of a phrase, or even an entire verse. One child was actually named "Who Comforteth Us in All Our Tribulation, That We May Be Able to Comfort Them Which Are in Any Trouble With the Comfort Wherewith We Ourselves Are Comforted," Tichbourne. And what do you suppose the kids dubbed him when he started to school? "Trib."-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"From Pillar to Post"

"From pillar to post" means from one thing to another without any definite purpose, hither and thither, to and fro, from one court of appeal to another without any decision. The origin of the expression is somewhat obscure. Some authorities say it refers to the tennis court. Others believe it to be an allusion to the schools of horsemanship in France before the Revolution. The pillar was the center of the riding ground and the posts were the columns around the circumference of the ring. -Pathfinder Magazine.
