CARROLL COUNTY FAIR NEXT WEEK

Enlarged and Improved Attractions Each Day and Night.

The big Carroll County Fair will open next Tuesday, Sept. 15, for four days and nights. The attractions this year will be equal to, or better than other years, in all departments. At night, the lighting of the grounds has been greatly improved, and in other ways the experience of past years will be used to advantage.

Tuesday will be Farm Bureau day, Wednesday and Thursday the big days, with full attractions. Friday will be school day, when school children are admitted free until 4 o'clock, P. M. Fire works or Wednesday. P. M. Fire works on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Every day there will be free performances before the Grand-stand, and racing at 1:30 P. M., and special attractions at 8:15 P. M. Dancing every evening. On each day there will be something different from the preceding day. The races scheduled

County Agent.

The gates will open to the public at 7:00 A. M., and close at 11:30 P. M. each day, and no person will be allowed on the ground at night except those specially authorized.

This is Carroll County's big week, and will continue to grow bigger each year until it reaches the full standard of what a County Fair—largely a Farmers' Fair—should be for prosperous Carroll County, The people have their part in this growth, and it should be a prideful part—pride in the county's products and industries —a boosting, helpful part. Attend the Fair next week, and help to make it still bigger and better—this year and next year-and in so doing, help

P. O. S. of A. Anniversary.

Camp No. 2, Taneytown, Celebrates its 35th. Birthday.

The celebration of the 35th. Anniversary of Washington Camp No. 2, P. O. S. of A., at the Fair Ground, last Saturday, was a success. The at-tendance was not up to expectations in the afternoon, but made up for it at night, when the crowd was about three times as large. The afternoon program consisted of appropriate selections by the excellent P. O. S. of A. Band, of Hanover; Prayer by Rev. J. W. Reinecke, Westminster; fine address by Wm. L. Seabrook, Past State President, Westminster; W. H. Long, State Master of Forms, Pennsylvavania State Camp, Hanover, Pa.; J. Calvin Strayer, Past National President, York, Pa.; and Wm. James Heaps, Secretary Md. State Camp. A game of baseball followed, between the Reese team and Taneytown, that was much enjoyed, the result being 7 to 2 in favor of Taneytown.

During the program, the following facts were given concerning the history of Camp No. 2. Instituted July 23, 1890 through the efforts of E. C. Sauerhammer, member of Camp No. 386, Littlestown, Pa. There were 36 names of members on the charter, of whom 7 have died, 16 transferred or dropped, and 13 still living as foldropped, and 13 still fiving as Tollows; Charles O. Fuss, John J. Reid, P. B. Englar, John N. Shriner, Geo. E. Koutz, B. O. Slonaker, Charles E. H. Shriner, G. F. Sherman Gilds, Oliver M. Crouse, Levi Flickinger, M. Dille Beid Theo. G. Shomaker and Dallas Reid, Thos. G. Shoemaker and Thos. W. Reindollar. The present cash value of the Camp is near $6000, with about $4800. invested. Number of members at present 182. Paid out in sick and death benefits, near $20,000. A number of local activities were also mentioned.

Members were present from other Camps, during the afternoon and evening, notably the Hanover Commandery and other Hanover members; from Littlestown, Baltimore, and Camps in Littlestown, Parametric and Camps in Littlestown, Baltimore, the county. Among the prominent members of the order present, not appearing on the program, were Jos. S. Robinson, Past State President; William J. Carter, State Treasurer; Chas. F. Yeager and Dr. H. Ross

Coppage, Baltimore.
At night, the program was continued with addresses by Chas. W. Schmidt, State President of Maryland and William James Heaps. As a last feature, a cake-walk was given, during which about 40 cakes were disposed of, the feature being one of considerable interest and enjoyment to the younger portion of the crowd, and to others who had never seen a cake-

OF COURSE NOT!!

Of course, building "out the state road" will not go on forever, without said building getting into, and being credited to, the population of Taney-

The town will hardly just follow this concrete strip, and not widen out any, and keep on building-up, down as far as Westminster? Would it be strange, if the building of the new High School should popularize the extension of George St., and the making of a highway connection with Fairview Ave? It would not be impossible to imagine the building of a dwelling on the rear of the old school lot, which might lead to the widening and use of Cemetery Street for dwellings.

There is no law against making the street that leads to the Tomato factory a very handy street for dwellings that might be rented at low cost, .to provide homes for employees in that big manufacturing plant" that we will have-some time.

It wouldn't be impossible, would it. to make Taneytown twice its present size, within the next ten years? We don't want to stop at "about 1000" population, do we using the present limits of the town?

PRESIDENT RETURNS TO WHITE HOUSE.

Important Matters Coming Now, and When Congress Meets.

The President returned to Washington, on Thursday. His vacation was pretty full of considerations of important matters of state, visits that represented conferences, and a more or less general survey of public questions leading up to decisions, or to tentative plans.

Among the many questions that will soon occupy both the executive and legislative branches of government may be mentioned.

The settlement of foreign debt claims and obligations. The Army and Navy air service, and charges against it by Col. Mit-

The reduction of Federal taxation. The Anthracite coal strike.

Railroad rate legislation. Partial revision of tariff rates. Further consideration of postal Reorganization of departments, for the continuance of the Coolidge economy plans. Perhaps the largest of these questions are, investigation of air service, and the reduction of Federal taxes, as Congress is apt to go deeply into both, and stormy times are looming up, likely to be very much mixed with National politics.

It has been predicted for some time that Secretary Mellon's proposed tax cut of some $350,000,000 will be taken up by Democrats and Republican insurgents, as not enough, nor far enough, and intimations have been made that this sum will be largely added to, if the administration forces can be overcome. This will be for effect on the Congressional and other elections of next year. Both parties will want credit for tax reduction, and as the Demo-cratic leaders are not hampered by responsibility for the conduct of the government, their aim may be to out-do the Republicans, some fear to the point of danger to National finances.

I have better looking stuff at home than that" is a common expression one hears at the Fair. It may be so, but who is going to take your word for it? There is only one way to find out if it is better than the other fellow's, and that is by putting it into competition with his or her product and let the judge decide. Be a good sport! Too Much Corn.

The farmers of Sykesville and vicinity raised so much sugar corn this year that the Shriver Canning Company at this place was unable to take care of it, even though contracted for. THE TESTING OF CATTLE.

A Slightly Larger Percentage of Reactors, last Week.

The testing of cattle in this district is now fully three-fourths over, and as stated last week, will be completed the week after the County Fair. The result of the tests last week were, 365 tested and 84 reactors, showing the highest percentage of reactors in any one week's work so far in the

The same plan of testing is now in operation in most of the states, and before it is over will be country wide. The testing of "feeders" is carried, on along with dairy cattle, wherever there are "feeders," as it is the plan of the government to have a general clean-up, covering all kinds of cattle for food or dairy purposes.

The test that is applied is not an experiment recently invented, but is the result of years of expert study in all of its phases by the U. S. governance of the phase of the pass of ment. It is believed to be as near a perfect test as can be found, and that the percentage of mistakes is extremely small. At any rate, the testing is fully backed by the U.S. authorities, and the results are open to rigid investigation and inspection by all state authorities, Dairy or-ganizations, or individuals personally interested, who care to follow up the cases to the slaughter houses.

Civil War Veterans Passing.

An article by the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, gives the following information concerning the rapid passing of the Civil War veterans.

The survivors are dying at the approximate rate of 2500 per month. On June 30, this year, there were only 126,566 veterans on the pension rolls. Of this number, about 45,000 were drawing the maximum allowance $72.00 per month. The average age of survivors at present is 83 years, which means that in a comparatively short time, all will have answered the final roll call. It is thought that the same figures approximately represent the confederate survivors, of which no records are kept at Washington, but who are also provided for by state pension

Only about 2000 veterans attended the annual reunion just held in Grand Rapids, Mich., and a year hence when the reunion is held in Des Moines, State Police also closed the Cata, sauqua Brewery, at Allentown, Pa., seized a carload of alleged beer, and seized a carload of alleged beer, and er still.

LABOR DAY A BIG HOLIDAY

The Developments from Miner's Strike Anxiously Watched.

Labor Day, this year, was a real vacation day, wherever the day was observed at all. Taking the country as a whole, labor is well satisfied, as it well ought to be, as it has never been so well paid, and there were no ugly demonstrations this year on Labor Day, as there has been in the past, and no discontent gatherings.

The coal strike is the only discordant note, at present, and at this particular stage it is yet largely a local affair. The men are contentedly taking a vacation, and some are taking other employment, perhaps temporarily, perhaps permanently. At any rate, the miners are making no trouble, but seem perfectly contented as the union treasury is full, and strike payments continue from that source in part at least. The business men in the mining centres, however, are not so contented. The purchasing power of the miners has been greatly curtailed. When mining stopped, a lot of railroading stopped, as well as shop work, and to a lesser extent the influence of no mine working extends to many classes of business.

On the whole, before the winter is over, the present peacable situation may radically change, all over the country. Nobody knows what the outcome may be.

Typhoid Cases Near Westminster.

The Baltimore American, of Thursday, says;

"Grave concern was expressed last night by Carroll county health authorities when Miss Helen Manger, eighteen, living across the road from the convict camp near Westminster, where a typhoid fever epidemic is prevailing, was reported stricken.

Since Sunday seven typhoid cases and one death at the camp were reand one death at the camp were reported. All prisoners in the camp have been inoculated against the disease. As a result of the epidemic, Dr. N. B. Steward, physician for the Maryland House of Correction, issued orders yesterday to the con-tractors calling for removal of the camp. According to reports from Westminster, the contractors in charge had decided to move the camp to their own property on John St., near the railroad tracks, but citizens

Fatal Auto Accident.

Lester H. Singer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Singer, of Johnsville, died at Frederick Hospital, on Saturday morning, after having his skull fractured in an automobile accident early in the morning, near Middleburg.

With several others in the machine Singer was on his way home when he discovered a motorcycle parked in the road in front of him. He turned out to keep from hitting the motorcycle and his machine upset with him turning completely over and then righting itself.

In the car also was Mervin Harmon, Union Bridge. The latter was removed to his home where he is said to be in serious condition. The car belonging to Harmon was completely demolished.

Singer was thrown upon the steering wheel, his chest crushed and skull fractured. Several other persons escaped with minor injuries. Singer was rushed to the Frederick City Hospital, but died shortly after being admitted without regaining conscious-

He was aged 22 years, 5 months and 20 days. Besides his parents he is survived by the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Carroll Hartsock, Red Level; Louise, Catherine and Élmer Singer, all at home.

Increase in Stolen Autos.

Increased automobile thefts of 35 per month have been reported to the Baltimore police. Since Jan. 1, the number reported stolen is 1378 an increase of 278 over the first eight months of last year, and of this number 69 have not been recovered. This is a considerable number unrecovered as only 56 were not located for the entire year of 1924.

More than 90 percent of the machines were stolen for joy rides, or by persons who wanted to move more rapidly than they could otherwise do, and had no intention of permanently stealing them. Such machines are generally used only a few hours, some times as a "get away" from the scene of some other kind of theft.

BUSHEY FAMILY REUNION.

Hess and Bushey Reunions Likely to Unite Next Year.

The first reunion of the Bushey family was held on Monday, Sept. 14, at the home of John S. Bushey, in Freedom district. Mr. Bushey and helpers had been busy removing the bushes and hed prepared a place in helpers had been busy removing the bushes and had prepared a place, in the grove opposite his residence, for the reception of the Busheys and their descendants. There were only six persons present whose last name was Bushey. They were: John S. Bushey, wife and son, Frank; Harry L. Bushey and wife, Mt. Airy, Md., and Miss Mary Bushey, Stafford Hotel, Baltimore. One hundred were seated at the table at one time, and while they were enjoying their lunch, about 25 more arrived and the table provided, more arrived and the table provided, could accommodate them also.

At 2:30, all gathered on the spa-cious lawn in front of the house and an interesting impromptu program was rendered, which showed conclusively that there is considerable musical talent in the family as well as the ability to speak when called upon.

Farm Wagons Must Have Lights.

Farm wagons on the road after nightfall must be equipped with lights. State laws provide for this, and public safety demands it, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles E. Austin Baugh-man said Tuesday evening.

The practice has become general during the peak of the corn packing season, many large farm wagens being on the road late at night without lights. Several narrow escapes from serious accident have been reported, and the commissioner has been forced to insist again that all vehicles using the highways at night wast carry lights.

"I don't want to work a hardship," Commissioner Baughman said. "I understand that it is necessary for farmers often to be on the road late, returning from the factory. But public safety requires that these wagons must carry lights.

"If it becomes necessary we will begin a drive in order to make this regulation effective. Wagons will be taken off the road and held until either equipped with lights or until daylight." The commissioner said he would regret to take such extreme steps but he felt the conditions justified it.—Frederick News.

Sales of Cattle Hereafter.

We can see, as a result of the T. B. testing of cattle, the likelihood of some new laws with reference to the private and public sales of cattle, hereafter, and some penalties provided for untrue statements concerning cattle, on their sale. Heretofore, in the purchase of both horses and cattle, a purchaser had to use his eyes and judgment, very largely, and then take chances. Quite a bit of trading has been done in the past, in which seller matched wits with the buyer, and it was considered "all in the deal" for one to "put off" a defective animal on another.

Those who have clean herds will want to keep them clean, and there who have a surplus to dispose of. In spirit. other words, there must be laws of a protective character, so that purchasers are reasonably guaranteed against false statements.

It seems too, that advanced stages detected by competent veterinarians, and that cases developing in tested herds should be made, by law, unsalable. No doubt the present clean-up will be followed as it should be, with such measures as will prevent recurrence of the disease, in as far as such measuoes are humanly possible.

United States Senator William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland in an interview with a reporter of the Baltimore News, last week, said; has been kept up. Likewise, one may apparently have a loss for a year, due to heavy expenses for betterments, or addition of increased facilities, yet have a good year.

Dividends are usually rated as of first importance in a business, but as a matter of fact it is the physical and managerial health of a business that stands first—the right kind of a boss, and the right kind of equipment

Spending money in sight, thinking it to be profit, is a very serious common mistake, for not only replacement and overhead costs must be looked after, but a "rainy day" fund -an emergency reserve-must be provided if a business is to be properly safeguarded. The banks call it have proof of the untrustworthy "undivided profits" and the Fire Insurance Companies call it "conflagration reserve."

He is a wise man who knows how he stands, financially, at the close of each year, and it requires very honest and very careful scrutiny of the condition of assets, and a proper inventory of working tools and stock on hand. How fit a man is to make this inventory, is the supreme test of a man's business ability-and something more than that—his ability to resist temptation to spend money.

Labor's Day.

Labor organizations in America have come a long way from the friendly and benevolent societies of Colonial mechanics and journeymen to this Labor Day of 1925. Those little groups of shoemakers, printers, smiths and carpenters, growing into true trade unionism after the Revolution, have grown and merged into the most powerful of the world's labor armies. They passed through industrial panics, smashed themselves from time to time in political movements and were misled by divers and sundry Utopias. There was a time after the must be more protection than the Civil War when trade unionism was mere say-so of dealers, or of those demoralized in both organization and Everybody a Law-breaker.

Sunset magazine posses the question: "Are you a laws-breaker? Of course you are! How could you hope to obey all the laws passed by your city, your state, and your national congress? If you should employ the most able lawyer in the land to guide you he could not read fast enough to keep informed as to the new legislation and multiplicity of court decisions." * * * Since we can't even hope to know what all the laws are it follows that we must violate many of them (says the magazine).

Charles Alexander, editor of the Albany, Oregon, Democrat, poet, novelist, critic literary editor, says the truth is quite as Sunset has stated it. we have reached a state of mind where we must, by the terms of necessity, use our own discretion and be our own judges of what is proper and what is wrong. The fact that a thing is law no longer impresses us. * * * "The man who craves a zine, "feels no moral restraint. Tell him that he is a law-breaker and he will laugh and cite instances to prove

ROUTE TAKEN BY PILGRIM FATHERS

Sailing From Plymouth Was Merely Incident.

The building of a Pilgrim monument by the side of Immingham (England) creek is a most praiseworthy undertaking, both to mark a spot of peculiar historic significance and to remind Americans of some too little remembered details of that Puritan migration which meant so much to this country. It is to be feared that many Americans of generally good information share the error which Mrs. Wintringham, M. P., in her address at the cornerstone laying charged against Lady Astor, of supposing that the Pilgrim fathers belonged at Plymouth and sailed from that port on their departure from England. The Immingham monument should teach them better, and remind them of the fact that the Pilgrims had nothing whatever to do with Plymouth, save to be, much against their will, driven into harbor there by stress of weather and need of repairs to their ship, declares a writer in the Washington Post.

It was in a very different and remote part of England that they originated, in Nottinghamshire, Lincolnshire and Yorkshire, with headquarters at Scrooby in the first-named county. It was from an unfrequented and desolate spot in the fens of Lincolnshire, where Immingham creek flows into the estuary of the Humber. that they took ship for Holland. That was early in 1608, their first attempt at flight in the fall of 1607 having been frustrated by the authorities. After a dozen years at Leyden they embarked at Delfthaven for Virginia, in the rickety ship Speedwell, stopping at Southampton to be joined by friends from London on the Mayflower. Next, because the Speedwell was leaking, they were forced to put in at Dartmouth. Finally, after coming several hundred miles west of the British isles, they were forced to put back to save the Speedwell from foundering. They made Plymouth their port of refuge, whence as quickly as possible they set out again, all in the Mayflower, the Speedwell being unfit for further service.

The Pilgrim way begins, then, at Scrooby, in Nottinghamshire. The second spot worthy of marking is where this monument is being built at Immingham creek. The third is Leyden, the fourth Delfthaven, the fifth Southampton. So far as their intention was concerned, those five places should have comprised their entire European pilgrimage. But grave mishaps compelled them to add Dartmouth and Plymouth to the list, and all seven may well be commemorated. As for the Plymouth in New England where they finally settled, after first landing on Cape Cod, it had been thus named long before by Capt. John Smith. and they retained that name on finding that they were within the domains of the North Virginia or Plymouth company, instead of those of the Virginia or London company, as they had intended.

Fame

Lady Crusher's reception was crowded to suffocation, for the word had gone forth that she was exhibiting a new lion that evening.

Several castoff lions, including artists from Chelsea, complete with whiskers; long-haired musicians, and actors with blue chins hung about gloomily on the outskirts of the crowd. The rest of the throng surged wildly round a harmless-looking individual standing beside the triumphant Lady Crusher in the middle of the room. They shoved one another about, and even jumped up on silkcovered chairs to obtain a better view of the hero.

"Who is he, my dear?" panted a late-arrived dowager to a friend. "Oh, really, don't you know? He is Henry Higgs, the champion cross-word puzzler of Lower Tooting."-Windsor

Tire Prices Are LOW-CRUDE RUBBER HIGHEST IN YEARS

Buy Now and Save Money!

The unprecedented demand for Firestone quality and mileage has more than doubled the sales of Gum-Dipped Cords to car owners so far this year, enabling us - because of this tremendous volume-to keep prices low.

Experienced car owners insist on tires that deliver the greatest mileage at the lowest cost per mile, because such tires last longer-make the restricted rubber supply go further—reduce crude rubber costs-and help maintain the present low tire prices.

Gum-Dipping, the of Quality

Firestone extra process, is also one of the biggest and most important economy factors in tire performance. This method of treating cord fabric, developed by Firestone tire chemists and engineers, insulates every fiber of every cord with rubber, and gives the sidewalls the extra strength to withstand the extra flexing strain — insuring maximum safety, comfort and economy.

Buy now-make sure of economical transportation by obtaining these outstanding Firestone superiorities at present low prices.

OLDEST DOMESTIC ANIMAL IS DOG

Man's Faithful Companion for Centuries.

Domesticated animals appear for the first time in the Neolithic age, and the dog is known from the kitchen middens of Denmark, dating from the Maglemose, which is contemporaneous with the Azilian transition between the Paleolithic and the Neolithic. Thus the dog is the oldest domestic animal and, it may be remarked, the most thoroughly domesticated animal. The extraordinary sympathy which exists today between the dog and man is to a large extent due to the ten thousand or twelve thousand years of intimacy between them. The wild ancestors of the dog had certain favorable predispositions in this direction, since he was a member of a hunting pack. The hunting efficiency of any pack depends directly on the complete obedience and subjection of each of its members to the leader, so that it was a small step for the puppy of the wolf, or wild dog, to transfer his alleglance from the pack master to the new human master. Even today we see that a masterless dog is utterly lost and helpless.

Long after the dog became associated with man as a valuable ally, the cow, sheep, goat and hog were domesticated. The remains of these animals are found in the lake dwellings of Switzerland and probably were introduced from the East. The chicken also was brought in from the East much later, while the cat was first domesticated in Egypt.

The horse was tamed and used in the steppes and grasslands of southwestern Asia and was long associated with the Nordic race before it was introduced in Babylonian and Mesopotamian countries by the Kassites about 2100 B. C. The horse did not appear in Egypt until about the Sixteenth century B. C. The plants known from the Swiss lake dwellings in the order of their importance are: Barley, millet, rye, wheat and oats. Also the grape, apple and pear.

When we read over the list of the plants and animals domesticated by Neolithic man, we are astonished to find that there have been very few additions since that time in either of these classes. Down to the discovery of the New world no domesticated animals had been added in the six or eight thousand years since the lake villages of Switzerland were constructed.

Flax was the commonest known textile and was used in the manufacture of clothing, gradually taking the place of skin garments. Wool was also used; in fact, it was the chief dress material used down through the classic into medieval times. Linen was much later in the North and came into use there in relatively recent times, while silk first appeared in Europe during the Roman empire.-Madison Grant in the Literary Digest International Book

Right to Salute Bride

Kissing the bride appears to have been an old Scottish custom, according over the marriage ceremony uniformly claimed it as his inalienable privilege to have a smack at the lips of the bride immediately after the performance of his official duties," for it was cannily believed that the happiness of every bride lay involved in the pastoral kiss -- Doris Blake in Baltimore Sun.

By ANDREW F. CURRIER, M. D. ADENOIDS

THE number of children afflicted with this disease is so great that I have no doubt the question is often asked by anxious mothers: "Is there any child that is free from them?" Yes, there are those who haven't got them, and others who have very little trouble from them and who will get over them if they are properly brought up and have good food and good surroundings. But other children are so handicapped by them and made so ill, that their removal is the only proper course, and this may be very easily done in most cases.

What are adenoids? The mucous membrane of the throat and nose normally contains what is called "lymphoid tissue," which means tissue resembling lymph glands and lymph tubes.

When this is increased and forms lumps which project into the nostrils or the cavity of the throat, such lumps are called adenoids. They may be no larger than a pea, or they may be of greater size and in bunches, like small grapes. The larger they are, the more they will obstruct the air passage in the nose and throat, one who has them being compelled to breathe through his mouth instead of his nose, as he ought to. The result will be that the mucous membrane will constantly be dry; dust and germs will find easy entrance to the mouth; and the development of the child thus afflicted will be hindered. Nobody has any monopoly of adenoids; they occur at all ages, to the infant and the old man or woman, but they are most common and troublesome in children from eight to twelve.

In children, they are soft; they absorb poisons readily and furnish an excellent medium for the culture and development of disease germs. In adults, they are harder, and bacteria cannot grow so readily upon them. Remember that children suffer most frequently from infectious diseases, and then you can understand how easy it is to catch them by means of adenoids and through the constantly open mouth. When a baby has adenoids, he cannot breathe freely and has to stop nursing, frequently, in order to catch his breath. So it often happens that such babies do not get air enough and their blood is not properly aerated. Very likely they do not get food enough, either-hence their digestion suffers, their sleep is disturbed, and their entire nutrition is affected. Older children with adenoids are also unable to breathe properly while eating; their food is not thoroughly masticated and they, too, will suffer with imperfect digestion and poor nutrition. Waking and sleeping, they are mouth breathers, they snore, they have bad dreams, and they have no control over the bladder.

Frequently there is a nasal catarrh, in such cases, the discharge running down upon the lips and into the throat and stomach; the appetite disappears, and anybody can see that the children are unhealthy and in bad condition.

Last Name

IS IT WHISTLER?

WHISTLER, by some thought to be the greatest name among all American artists, is in reality a name of Irish origin. That is to say the first Whistler in this country was Maj. John Whistler, who was born in Ireland in 1756.

Coming here when a young man he served in the Revolution and retired after the war to Hagerstown, Md., with his wife. He was breveted major. His son, George Washington Whistler, was grandson, through his mother, of Sir Edward Bishop of England. He was born in 1800, and was educated at the United States Military college. His wife was Mary Fisher, and his second Anna Matilda McNeill, and it was by her that he had a son named James Abbott McNeill Whistler, who was destined to bring the name into lasting prominence in the history of American art. James Abbott McNeill Whistler was born in Russia, where his father was engaged as consulting engineer. It is an interesting thing that Whistler was not married until he was fifty-four.

WHO SAID

"The man whose purse is empty can sing before the robber."

THIS bit of philosophizing on the advantages of being poor was uttered by Decimus Junius Juvenalis, the great Latin writer of poetical satires, whose sayings are best known as the work of "Juvenal"—the popular form in which his name has been handed down through the ages.

Facts concerning the birth, life and death of this famous personage of antiquity are very obscure and are of doubtful authenticity. He is supposed to have been born at Aquinum, a Volscian town in Italy, about forty-two years after the birth of Christ. Who his parents were is not known, but history relates that he was the adopted child of a wealthy freedman. This man furnished the funds with which Juvenal was enabled to support himself while studying with the philosophers at Rome. By profession Juvenal was a pleader, or, as we would say today, a lawyer.

History further relates that he was exiled from his native land and took up his residence in Egypt. Just why he was forced to leave Rome is not stated, but it is a safe assumption that a man of Juvenal's discernment soon saw much to condemn in Rome and did not hesitate to criticize. Such being the case, Juvenal was fortunate that exile was his fate for many others of his time suffered execution for the same offense. No detailed account of Juvenal's life in Egypt can be found other than that he was put in charge of a cohort of infantry and died while in the discharge of his duty. The only works of this writer and poet that are in existence are 16 satires, composed in hexameters which give a powerful and somber picture of the corrupt condition of the Roman society of his day. It is likely Juvenal's indignation, expressed so forcefully in these satires, was responsible for his exile.

Translations of his works have been made by Gifford and by Dryden, the English poet.-Wayne D. McMurray. (@ by George Matthew Adams.)

GRAIN PROPORTION LOWER IN SUMMER

Although equal parts of mash and grain are often recommended, it is not desirable to hold to any such arbitrary figures. It is desirable, however, to know what proportion is being consumed so that production may be somewhat regulated. During warm seasons the proportion of grain should naturally be lower than in winter as less sugars, starches and fat are needed for body warmth.

When egg production and health are satisfactory it is wise to let well enough alone regardless of whether more grain or more mash is being consumed. If production and consumption of mash are both low, the trouble may lay in too much grain being fed, or in an unappetizing mash. If the birds are poor in flesh and subject to colds, the feeding of more grain is usually the correct procedure.

Feeding wet mash instead of dry mash is occasionally practiced with success by skilled feeders. Because there is considerable risk of overfeeding by this method, and because no better results are secured for the time expended, wet-mash feeding is not recommended as a substitute for hopper feeding of dry mash.

Wet mash in addition to hopper feeding throughout the year is usually unnecessary and dangerous in the hands of the average feeder. This practice is probably desirable and to be advocated from July 1 to September 1 to postpone the moult, and on slow-maturing pullets in the fall. Three quarts before wetting to 100 birds is sufficient. Feed mash at noon, so that it can be gradually discontinued when the desired results have been secured without upsetting the regular feeding schedule.—O. C. Promoting Chick Growth by the Use of Sunlight Direct sunlight as an essential in promoting growth in chicks and in preventing the development of leg weakness has been proved by recent experiments just announced by the poultry department of the State College of Agriculture, New Brunswick, N. J.

One thousand chicks kept under glass weighed only one-fourth pound at the end of 12 weeks, whereas 200 chicks of the same age, but kept outdoors in direct sunlight averaged one and one-half pounds each.

Cod liver oil has for some time been considered an effective growth stimulator and preventive of leg weakness so the truth of this was also investigated by the experimenters. Of the chicks under glass 800 were fed varying amounts of the oil. At the end of 12 weeks they were no more thrifty than those receiving no oil. After the fifth week leg weakness began to appear among all of the birds under glass, whether they were being fed cod liver oil or not. In contrast with this the chicks kept in direct sunlight showed no leg weakness at all.

The combination of direct sunlight and cod liver also was tried by the experiment station. Using 200 chicks and feeding oil equivalent in weight to 1 per cent of the ration, it found that an average weight of one and three-fourths pounds per chick had been attained. This was one-fourthpound more than the weight of the chicks getting sunlight but no oil.

It was found that chicks kept behind glass and developing leg weakness could be cured by a half-hour exposure to sunlight on four days.

Value of Limestone and Ovster Shell for Hens

According to Maryland Bulletin 244, 'a crushing test of eggs laid by oystershell-fed and limestone-fed hens showed no appreciable difference in the strength of shell. "There was practically no difference in the thickness of shell of production in the limestone pen.

"The consumption of limestone per bird was much less than the consumption of oyster shell even though there was a greater egg production in the limestone pen.

"This test would indicate that limestone can be safely used as the sole source of supply of material for eggshell making with laying hens."

When to Fatten Turkeys

During the summer and early fall turkeys can find an abundance of feed on the average farm. About October 1, it is advisable to begin fattening them for market, giving only a little feed at first and gradually increasing this until the birds are marketed. The marketing season for turkeys is very short, running only from the middle of November to the latter part of De-

NATIONAL BODY TO WAR ON CRIMINALS

Score of Influential Men to Push Fight.

New York.—War has been declared against the growing cohorts of crime. A score of influential men pledged themselves at a meeting in the office of Elbert H. Gary to do their utmost to stem the tide of lawlessness now sweeping the country. Their efforts will be exerted through the national crime commission, which, instead of a temporary body as at first planned, is to be organized permanently with nation-wide affiliations, Headquarters will be opened in New York and crimes of violence will be the first to come under attack. Mr. Gary promised assistance, financial and otherwise. He has been asked to head the commission, but his decision is not yet known.

An executive committee of five or six members, representative of the entire country, is planned. The work of drawing up the nominating slate is in the hands of a committee headed by George W. Wickersham, former attorney general of the United States.

Others taking part in the preliminary work include Richard Washburn Child, former ambassador to Italy; former Gov. Charles S. Whitman, Gov. George S. Silzer of New Jersey, George Gordon Battle and John W.

New Railroad Connects South American Countries

Washington.-Recent completion of a 124-mile railroad line connecting Bolivia and Argentina was hailed in a statement by the National Geographic society as bringing "the longcherished dream of uniting the republics of North and South America with bonds of steel another step nearer

In addition to providing a new outlet for Bolivia, which has no seacoast, the new line connects with the railway systems of Argentina at its southern terminal and through them, with the lines of Uruguay and Brazil, while at Atocha it is possible to make connections with Pacific coast ports and to continue as far north as Cuzco, Peru.

"More than half of the 10,211 miles separating Washington and Buenos Aires have already been 'paved with steel," the statement said.

Lack of Tourists Arouses the Irish

Dublin.-At the Rotary club in Dublin complaint was made that the tourist traffic, particularly from America, had not reached expectations this year.

One member who had returned from America said he was humiliated there by the questions asked regarding Ireland, by the doubts expressed as to whether the country was safe for travelers, and by the impression that Ireland was in a backward state of civilization, "with pigs in the drawing room."

P. J. O'Brien, secretary of the Irish Tourist Development association, answering these statements, said that, while there had not been anything in the nature of an American invasion, the arrivals at Cobh totaled more than 1,000 a week, and the traffic between Ireland and England on one of the most important services was practically double what it was last year. The transportation companies concerned were satisfied with both results and prospects. In Ulster, the tourist traffic is reported in excess of previous years and in several districts has reached the pre-war stand-

QUEST OF BEAUTY AS OLD AS RACE

Odd Appliances Used by Ancient Peoples.

From the South African tribes who practice distortion of features to the exponents of art in Europe and America; from the prim acidity of "Pretty is as pretty does" to the beautiful bit of hyperbole, "Her brow is like the snowdrift, her throat is like the swan," run the world's ideals of feminine Poets of nowadays generally have other matters of importance to treat of than the charms of some Maid of Athens or Lady of the Lake. Besides, in order to adhere to the truth, which is often considered the basis of art, the lyrist would be compelled to say, "Her nose is like the snowdrift"obviously it wouldn't do.

The present extensive use of cosmetics is indulgently considered as a new effort of fashion to invent something strange and new; or, on the other hand, as a sign of a sort of indefinite decadence. This is evidently what Jeremiah, prince of joy-killers, considered it in his words, "Though thou clothest thyself with crimson, though thou deckest thyself with ornaments of gold, though thou rentest thy face with painting, in vain shalt thou make thyself fair." One can read how Cleopatra had to do without soap and found olive oil a tolerable substitute, but one wonders how the complexion was affected by being rubbed with pumice stone, a material much used by the Assyrians and other ancient peoples. They had, however, an array of emollients, salves, perfumes and rouges that would compare fairly well with a modern dressing-table supply.

The much-exploited cowboy may find his predecessor in history in a voung Assyrian gentleman of whom it was written: "His chin was shaven, and his skin, which was kept smooth with pumice stone, was white as milk, and his eyebrows were painted black."

Even the men of the Roman empire did not consider it beneath their dignity to spend much time on personal beautification. The barber in those days was a person of much importance. He ran a regular masculine beauty parlor, being a manicurist as well as a tonsorial expert, occasionally practicing surgery also.

His shop was a humble precursor of the modern clubroom—the place to learn the latest news in society and politics. No doubt he could have told exactly what violin selections Nero was going to play several hours before the incendiary emperor started his famous bonfire. It was part of the barber's job to know everything like ended: "Poets are born, not paid."

Disestablishing Churches

The bill disestablishing the Church of Ireland was passed by the British parliament in the summer of 1869, when Galdstone was prime minister. The Church of Scotland is the established church of that kingdom. The endowments of the church from all sources, including mannes and glebes, amount to about £410,000 a year, and the voluntary contributions to about £765,000. Out of the funds the church pays its ministers and meets other charges. "Intellectuals" Think Dirt Is Mark of Genius

The evolution of the "intellectual genius" can best be studied at close range in Greenwich Village. New York city, the congregating point for the sexstuff writers and their friends.

In one of the cross streets off the lower end of Washington square is a "coffee house" equipped with low divans covered with pieces of ragged old carpet, and chairs and benches cut down to bring their users close to the floor. The lighting is subdued, the air heavy with cigarette smoke, and an open fireplace cheats in warmth, for its log is painted red, and the flame an effect in color from a concealed electric bulb.

"They come in here, many of them," remarked the proprietor, who has kept at close grips with his sense of humor. "and I have often revolted at their dirty collars, unwashed necks, long, streaky hair and generally untidy appearance. But it is not because of the scarcity of soap or the lack of baths. To be unclean, shiftless and conspicuous through that pose is as studied a part as taken by the Broadway actor who makes up for a character in a play.

"Johnson, Swift and others of their period set a precedent for literary men by arraying themselves in simple clothing which they wore out. But they kept clean. They did not carry their contempt of the mob to the extent of going about unwashed. Down here in the village the imitators of the Mid-Victorian and earlier intellectual giants decided that if they would go about in dirty linen and clothing they might attract attention."-Philadelphia Public: Ledger.

I. Paul Preaching in Thessalonica (vv. 1-4).

1. His Method (vv. 1-2).

He observed the divine order, to the Jews first wherever he went (Acts 1:8; Rom. 2:9-10). He was exceedingly anxious for his kinsmen in the flesh, but whenever they proved themselves unworthy, he turned to the Gentiles. His own kinsmen first should te the method of every missionary, but should not stop there. He went out on the Sabbath day so as to find them assembled together.

2. His Message (v. 3). His message was always and ever the same, viz., that Jesus is the Christ. To the Jew the essential thing was to be convinced from the Scriptures. So Paul expounded to them the Scriptures. This is the business of all ministers, to expound the Scriptures, to prove their positions by the Word. Concerning the Christ, he set forth three propositions:

(1) The Scriptures prove that Christ must be a sufferer (v. 3). "It behooved Christ to suffer." No plainer reference need be made than Isaiah 53, but it seems that the rabbis of that time had explained away the fact of a suffering Messiah so that the Jewish people were only looking for a glorious and powerful king to come; therefore they rejected Christ because of His lowly appearance. The same method of exegesis is employed by many Bible teachers and preachers today. Only the emphasis is placed upon the literal suffering of the Messiah, while they spiritualize and allegorize the teaching of the glorious coming of the Messiah to judge His enemies and to reign upon the earth (II Sam. 7:8-16; Isa. 53; Jer. 23:5-8; Zech. 9:14; Luke 1:1-13; Acts 15:14-

(2) That Christ Must Rise Again From the Dead (v. 3).

This he proved by the Scriptures. The resurrection of Christ, and the bodily resurrection of telievers, needs sound and practical exposition in our churches today.

(3) That the Historic Jesus Whom He Proclaimed Did Suffer and Rise From the Dead; Therefore, He Is That Christ, the Predicted Messiah

II. The Attitude of the Jews (vv.

While some Jews believed and many Greeks, the envy of certain Jews was so aroused at Paul's success that they gathered together the worthless fellows of the town and set on foot a riot. They assaulted the house of Jason and dragged him before the rulers, having failed to get the missionaries. In their indictment of the missionaries they uttered unwittingly some great truths. They said: "These that have turned the world upside down." It is true that the gospel is revolutionary, but it is not treason to right government. The real truth, however, is that the world is now upside down. The work of the gospel is to set it right side up. They turned the preaching of Paul into a specious lie. He did preach the kingship of Jesus (see verse 7), but not as they endeavored to make it appear. Jesus is most assuredly coming to reign on this earth (Ps. 2). Let all men acknowledge Him in humble submis-

It was with gladness of heart. The message was just as new to these Jews and just as counter to their way of thinking as it was to the Thessalonian Jews, but they had a more noble disposition. The success of the gospel depends altogther on the disposition of the hearers. Two things are said of them:

(1) They received the message gladly.

(2) They searched the Scriptures daily for the truthfulness of the preaching. For this worthy act Paul says they were more noble than those at Thessalonica.

The Harvest of Our Lives—What Shall It Be? Galatians 6:7-10; Proverbs 1:17-20;

2 Corinthians 5:10
"Sowing," "reaping," "flesh," "spirit," "life," "death," -"judgment."
These are the outstanding words in the Scripture verses assigned for this

In considering the harvest of our lives, we may conclude, first of all, that we shall reap as we sow. There is no dodging of this law. If we sow to the flesh, that is, if we seek selfindulgence and gratification we shall reap corruption. Such sowing corrupts the moral nature and ends in disaster. The sowing here spoken of represents not only actions or deeds, but thoughts and desires as well. The words of our Old Testament reference may be inserted at this point, "To him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward. As righteousness tendeth to life, so he that pursueth evil pursueth it to his own

The word "death" as used in the Bible means more than physical death. It involves separation from God, with a judicial sentence of condemnation impending. It is the antithesis of the words "life everlasting" as found in Galatians 6:8, where we read that "he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." This life begins the moment we turn to God, for it is written, "He that believeth on the Son of God hath everlasting life." (See John 3:14-16; 5:24; 6:47). The full development of this life is yet future (1 John 3:2).

The only outstanding word remaining is the word "judgment." We must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ. What shall we do in view of Verse 9 supplies the answer. We labor—that is, we are ambitious, to be well pleasing unto Him. To this there should be added the words of verses 14 and 15, which make the truth complete.

Gap Johnson Knows

Value of Discretion

"A feller driving along in an old hootin' nanny car last night with its lights out, ran onto a mule that was laying in the road in front of Hoot Holler's house," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "The durn mule started to get up just as the car ran onto him and knocked him over. The driver of the car gave a hoot of his horn and a yell from himself, and the mule laying on his back began to kick and squeal.

"'Say, what are you trying to do with my mule?' yelled its owner, running out of his house.

"'You better ask him what he's trying to do to me and my car!"the feller hollered right back.

"And as I'd seed and heered this much and hadn't no desire to mix in a fight, being as I was all down in the back, I just went on and never did find out the rest of it."-Kansas City

Art and the Haddock

On one of the piers in Portland an old fishmonger told the legend of the queer markings on the haddock. Just abaft the fish's gills are two dark blotches, like bruises, one on each side. And from each of these marks runs a straight dark line back toward the tail. The haddock, said this fisherman, was the fish with which Christ fed the multitude (though that sounds unlikely). This so annoyed the devil that he tried to avenge himself on the species. He seized one, holding it tightly (hence the bruise mark), but it slipped away. The devil's finger nails made the long scratches on each side; since when all haddocks carry that pattern. And beauty, in any art, is just as elusive as that haddock. It cannot be nabbed between the thumb and finger of any manifesto.-Christopher Morley, in the Saturday Review of Literature.

Totality

The little fellow at the corner, selling papers, looked so forlorn and wistful that the passing stranger couldn't forbear speaking to him. "What's your name, sonny?" he asked. "Jim," was the reply.

"Jim what?"

"Just Jim."

"Well, what's your father's name?" "Ain't got no father."

"Well, who's your mother-brothers -sisters?"

"Ain't got none." "No one at all?" asked the man in

"Nope." the boy answered. "When you seen me you done seen all there is of us."-American Legion Weekly.

Bird Census Takers

In all civilized countries where game is being protected there are trained men employed in taking the census of the various birds and other protected wild game. In the United States and Canada the preserve wardens do the work with the aid of competent helpers. The task is a patiencetrying one. In Europe the count is actual, just as when a human census is taken, but in the United States it is largely by estimate. In this way reliable figures are obtained, as for instance the statement that in Peru may be found 4000,000 llamas.

That's what everyone has to say who has seen the latest Ford cars.

That such attractive motor cars could be offered without the slightest increase in prices, seemed incredible to a public long familiar with Ford values.

Yet enthusiasm for the smart new appearance can never supersede the fact that it is the quality of materials and workmanship that has made the Ford the world's leading automobile value. New beauty has not crowded out traditional Ford reliability.

The very volume of Ford output demands absolute accuracy of every working part. The steady flow of production is dependent upon parts fitting together perfectly; inaccuracies would interrupt and delay assembly. And to this precision must be largely credited the uniformly fine performance

$ NOTE OF THE PROPERTY OF THE OF SIGNALING

Early Inventions for "Long-Distance" Talk.

The fabulous honor of being the first inventor of the art of signaling, says the Scientific American, is bestowed by certain classical writers upon the ingenious Palamedes, but it is certain that long before the time of the Trojan war the Egyptians and Assyrians, if not the Chinese and other nations of remote antiquity-of whom monumental records alone remain to us-had developed regular methods of signaling by fire, smoke, flags, and so on. Signals were passed from tower to tower of the Great Wall of China, and the Tower of Babel was a signal tower.

Beacons are "as old as the hills" on whose summits they were placed. Those lighted on Mounts Ida, Athos, Citheron and intervening heights conveyed information of the taking of Troy by Agamemnon. Leander was guided across the Hellespont by the signal lamp displayed by Hero in her tower at Sestos. One night the lamp was blown out-he was drowned, and she then threw herself into the waves. Theseus, in the Argonautic expedition. conveyed information by colors of the sails hoisted, but killed his father through a telegraphic error; for, flushed with victory, he forgot his signal, and old Aegeus, seeing the black sail, and feeling sure his son was dead, flung himself into the sea.

The use of mirrors to flash signals by the sun's rays dates back to the time of the pharaohs. The Persians are said to have considerably developed it for purposes of war.

The Persians, the Gauls and the Aztecs communicated by relays of sentinels shouting to one another, and Alexander, by means of the stentorophonic tube, tactician Arnios communicated at night by means of a tall vessel containing water, which was let out slowly by a tap at the bottom; on the water floated a cork disk carrying a gauge with divisions down the side, and on each division a separate sentence was inscribed. Each signaling point had one of these contrivances; and on a light being shown from one station it was acknowledged by the other, and each clepsydra opened at the moment. When the surface of the water receded to the sentence required, the signaling station again showed a light, when the other stopped the outflow and read the words inscribed at the water level upon the corresponding gauge.

Hannibal erected watch towers in Africa and Spain to signal from; and whenever the Romans extended their conquests in Gaul. Spain or elsewhere, they made use of similar signaling devices. A representation of one of their telegraph towers is engraved on Trojan's column, and ruins of some of them are still to be seen in parts of

Elephant Most Brainy of the Lower Animals

The elephant is probably the shrewdest and most adaptable of living animals and has no enemies except man. He eats anything that is green, and seems equally at home on the plains or in the forests and jungles, on the high mountain slopes or down in the swampy lowlands. His trunk is one of the most extraordinary organs of nature. It contains the finest smelling apparatus on earth, and when the proximity of man is suspected the trunk is raised in the air and carefully turned in all directions, "feeling" for the man-smell in the wind. Once an elephant gets that smell he does one of two things. He either retreats quietly and rapidly or charges. Years of experience in matching his wiles with those of man and his highpowered rifle has taught the elephant that it is safer to remain in the dense forests. An elephant can move through these forests with no more noise than would be made by a mouse, and the growth in these forests is frequently so impenetrable the hunter can make progress only by following the winding elephant trail.

Look for Treasure Hidden by Alexander

When Alexander the Great was marching against the Persians in 331 B. C. a part of his army mutinied on the shores of the Caspian sea. There is a legend that he hid all his gold, royal possessions and spoils of war somewhere in the vicinity to keep them from falling into the hands of the mutineers. The Archeological society of the Republic of Azerbaijan has begun a search for this treasure. It is believed to be buried about sixtyfive miles from the city of Baku. There are no historical data on the subject as to the location of the treasure, but an old man eighty years old living at Andrievka says he owns an ancient map which was stolen from a Turkish sultan many years ago. This map, he says, indicates that the treasure was buried near his village. Whether or not the archeologists locate the treasure, it is believed that they will at least excavate many valuable relics throwing light on the peoples and nations which inhabited the country before the time of Christ .- Pathfinder Magazine.

When Brides Were Bought

Wedding gifts apparently have developed from the earlier custom of exchange of gifts between bride and bridegroom, in turn based upon marriage by consideration, where the suitor had to give to the father of his intended wife a bride price or present and the daughter was provided with a dowry as a return gift.

The price for a bride shows considerable variation, according to the wealth of the interested parties and the accomplishments of the bride. Among certain tribes a couple of pigs or goats seemed to be sufficient capital necessary for investment in one good husky helpmate. Among the Bedouins of Mount Sinai Westermarch tells us the price of a girl is "from $5 to $20," but sometimes amounts to $30 "if the girl is well connected and very

Cheap for $1,200

A western young man visiting New York city thought it would be fine to buy his sweetheart's engagement ring there. Entering a Fifth avenue store he was waved from one lordly clerk to another down a long aisle and at last reached the counter where there was a personage who sold engagement rings. "Here are some rather neat rings," said the distinguished one. "Small, of course, but in good taste." Our young friend liked their looks, but was pained to learn they ran from $3,500 to $5,000 apiece. He admitted, in some confusion, that he wished something a little cheaper. Then the mighty one reached into a bin and brought up a handful of sparklers. "Take your pick." said he, politely repressing a yawn, "$1,200 each." The home-town jeweler sold that ring.—Capper's Weekly.

Old Superstition

Much quaint, mythical superstition centers around ancient Dover castle, which overlooks the English channel It is unique among English castles in more respects than one. No other ancient fortress in this country has maintained its practical usefulness so long and no other has been accredited to the industry of the devil. According to the Bohemian Leo von Rotzmital, "it was built by evil spirits and is so strong that in no other part of Christendom can anything be found like it." It is easy to see the reason for this ascription. Foreigners casting covetous eyes on this gateway to the rich lands of England may well have found- something diabolical in this fortress frowning down on them .- London Mail.

Too Good to Live A jury condemned the philosopher

Socrates to death, but it is not recorded that they were influenced in this by his statement, in the course of his defense, "While a soldier in the Greek army I went through the snows of a winter campaign barefoot, and no one ever saw me cross a street in Athens in the summer to get into the shade." The mind of Socrates was never much on the weather. He believed that one would suffer less and accomplish more if he did not bother his brains about the temperature, and what it might do to him. That is still very good philosophy.-Detroit News.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL. "Down and Out."

Used together as an expression of fact, these are among the saddest words in the English language, and we wonder whether, in most cases, they are not improperly used. A man may be "down" through no fault of his, but we believe being "out" is largely a matter of personal sur-render—of lack of that "come back" that represents a courageous spirit.

Meeting and overcoming obstacles "hard luck" as we say—often serves to bring out the best that is in a man, and it is the refusal to be 'out" that often turns disaster into a blessing in disguise. It is an easy matter to go through life on good roads, with pleasant weather and everything going just right. Spoiled children do that, and so do lazy peo ple and those with easily irritated dispositions.

We put ourselves "out" when we fail to take courage and "buck-up" against bad roads and obstacles; so it is a mighty good thing for us, at times, to have our genuineness tested and our wearing qualities tried for strength. The man or woman who is continuously expecting and demand-ing a course of "petting," is undependable in great—or even every day -crises, and is apt to jump the track, or throw down a job, merely because he or she is not made up of the attributes that go to make up real manhood and womanhood.

"Down, but not out" is a fine motthat makes one man succeed, where another fails, and places real values on persons and circumstances. In other words, it separates the "quitters" from the "stickers" and the real

Even those who are actually "down and out" physically, may remain so cheerful and courageous mentally and in spirit as to make their personal trials more easy to bear, and care and attention that developes on others, a much more willing task, if not even a cheerful one. In hardly a single case does being "down" mean entirely "out," unless we help to make it
