

CARROLL COUNTY FARM BUREAU.

What it has Accomplished the Past Three Years.

The Carroll County Farm Bureau has completed three years work in the county. The three years membership contracts expires during the next three months. A campaign of four weeks duration will be put on to build up campaign material and solicit membership.

The Farm Bureau during the last three years organized 525 farmers of the county into a solid farmer's organization, which was a unit of the state organization, and in turn the National Farm Bureau Federation.

Legislation, Educational and economic, has been the three outstanding planks of the Farm Bureau platform in the county. The first plank was carried on by our state officers at the last meeting of the Legislature with very satisfactory results. The second plank was carried out in the monthly meetings of the locals. Outstanding work along this line was the Tuberculosis Eradication Campaign, field corn improvements, feed schools pure-bred Sire and dairy herd improvement work, high analysis fertilizer, control of insects and disease in orchard and crops, home mixing of fertilizers and feeds. The community shows held during the past three years have helped in putting across many of the above projects.

The boys and girls club work has been one of the biggest pieces of work undertaken by the Farm Bureau. Only through the education of the youngsters on the farm today will we develop the progressive farmer of tomorrow.

The economical plank has produced its share of results. The organization of the Carroll County Co-operative, which has handled feeds, coal, bran, binder twine, plow shares and all the supplies needed by the farmers. The Carroll County Wormseed Growers Association is a branch of this organization, and while organized only one year, has done very good work in the marketing of oil of wormseed for its members. The study of the cost of producing sweet corn, and the co-operation with the canners, has kept the price above the cost of producing the product which was not so in previous years.

The indirect benefits derived, not only by the member but by all farmers of the county, cannot be measured, but it is very great, not only in the economic but in the educational and social life of the farmer and his family as well.

Meetings will be held during November, according to the following schedule. Every farmer should attend these meetings and learn the truth about the Farm Bureau. No one will be asked to sign up a contract until after these local rallies. The meetings will be addressed by one or more of the following speakers: F. B. Bomberger, D. G. Harry, M. H. Fairbank, Jos. L. Donovan, and others.

PLEASE OBSERVE THIS.

The days from now until Christmas will be busy ones in our office. It is the most exacting time in the entire year. Every year, we ask our patrons to plan ahead, and let us have their orders as long as possible before they are actually needed. This request has not been very generally complied with, in the past, but we trust that this year it will be.

Please don't expect us to handle rush orders, "right away," because you forgot, or neglected, to give us the time we so much need. Please help us, and perhaps save yourselves disappointment.

School of Missions.

A School of Missions is announced to be held in Westminster, Nov. 10-12 at Grace Lutheran Church, under the auspices of the Women's Interdenominational Missionary Union. All local Societies, or churches, are invited to send representatives. The program, in brief, will be as follows:

COATS FOR FIREMEN.

Subscriptions will be Received at This Office.

The kind of coats our firemen need, are a rain coat and overcoat combined, made especially for firemen, that cost about $8.00 each.

They ought to have them, and it is up to those who have property to save, to furnish them! A dozen or fifteen might answer present needs.

Let us not fool around about it, getting up a supper, or bazaar, or "hot doggie" scheme, but plank down the cash as quickly as the firemen give their service.

Our boys tumble out of bed at any time of night, whether it be zero, snow, rain or sleet weather, and are apt to get to the firemen's building, half-dressed. These coats are a necessary part of their working equipment.

This should be a quick and easy job. Bring, or send, your subscription to THE RECORD Office and let us make a clean-up of the whole job in one week. The fire boys will appreciate your quick work. If more convenient, leave subscriptions at McKinney's Drug Store, or at A. G. Riffe's. All subscriptions will be published in The Record, next week.

4-H Club Organized.

The boys and girls in Berrett community have organized a Pure-bred Calf Club. They met at Clarence Conaway's home, near Berrett, with County Agent Fuller, Hubert Null and Burton Kephart, of Taneystown.

Hubert Null told about his trip to Springfield, Mass., where he attended "Vail" and demonstrated killing and dressing poultry. Burton told about the judging contests in which he has taken part. James Bushey told about his trip to the National Dairy Show. Campfire stories, songs and yells with election of officers made up an interesting evening.

Mrs. Conaway contributed hot chocolate and cake. James Bushey was elected president; Willard Milter, Vice-President; Frank Bushey, Sec.; Nellie Conaway, Treas. The other members of the club are Claudia Conaway, Gladys Milter, Franklin Pickett, Harold Goodwin, William Fowle, Edwin Milter, Alva Conaway, Gordon Conaway, Naomi Shoemaker. The club will always welcome new members, give your name to the President or County Agent Fuller.

Bready; Vocal Solo by Misses Marian and Margaret Hitchcock, with Miss Mary Shriver accompanist; Recitation by Thurston Putman; Vocal Solo by Mrs. Maurice Dutta, with Mrs. George Harner as accompanist on piano; Recitation by Elizabeth Wilt; instrumental solo by Elizabeth Wilt at the piano and Helen Roop with the mandolin; Recitation by Isabel Elliot, vocal solo by Leah Reindollar.

ELECTIONS HELD ON TUESDAY

Thirteen States Vote Largely on Purely Local Issues.

The elections held throughout the country, on Tuesday, were largely local, and attended by local issues and divisions, many of them being election of Mayors, influenced in some instances by the activity of the Ku Klux Klan and the injection of the "wet" and "dry" question. Governors were elected in New Jersey and Virginia. Only thirteen states held elections.

The Ku Klux issue was particularly in evidence in the mayoralty election in Detroit, where many Protestants openly denounced the Klan. Members of state legislatures were chosen in Virginia, New Jersey, New York and Kentucky. Two members of Congress, to fill vacancies, were chosen, one in New Jersey and one in Kentucky. Pennsylvania elected one state official—Judge of the Supreme Court. In Boston, there were ten candidates for Mayor—seven Democrats and three Republicans. One of the Republicans was elected.

Moore, Democrat, was elected Governor in New Jersey by about 40,000. Moore ran on a practically anti-Prohibition platform, and was elected by the heavy "wet" vote—largely foreign—in the cities, making him the third Democratic governor elected on this issue in the state. The Republicans retain control of the legislature, and Appleby, Republican, was elected to Congress in the Third district.

Walker, Tammany candidate for Mayor in New York City, easily defeated Whitman, Republican, by a big majority. Republican candidates in the state, for General Assembly, outside of the city, were generally elected.

Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, was easily elected Governor of Virginia, and Democratic candidates, generally, were elected. In Michigan, the main contest was for Mayor of Detroit where the Ku Klux candidate was defeated by over 30,000, losing also control of the city council.

Kentucky elected a Democratic Congressman, to fill a vacancy, and retains control of the legislature. Republicans elected Mayor in Louisville.

In Adams County, Pa., Judge Donald McPherson carried the county for judge of the Adams-Fulton district over his Democratic competitor, Geo. E. Benner, by over 1000. Herbert W. Taylor, director of the poor, and LeRoy Winebrenner, county surveyor, both Republicans, were elected. S. H. Crum, Republican, and William P. Stover, Democrat, were elected jury commissioners. Gettysburg elected a Republican Burgess and tax-collector. In Littlestown, Wintrose, Dem., defeated Zercher, Rep., for tax-collector by 6 votes. The Republicans won 6 votes. The Republicans won most of the remaining borough contests.

In York county, the Democratic candidates were successful, except for District Attorney and County Comptroller.

HUNTING REGULATIONS.

Information issued by Office of State Game Warden.

Our attention has been called to the fact that numbers of persons throughout the State are under the impression that it will be lawful to kill the Chinese Ringnecked Pheasant during the hunting season of 1925. The Acts of 1922, Chapter 301, Sec. 20, paragraph 4, provides: "It shall be unlawful to shoot, trap or kill or take in any manner at any time any Chinese Ringnecked Pheasants," and there cannot be an open season on same until an Act of the General Assembly of Maryland is placed on the statute books opening the season on same. Therefore, it is unlawful to kill this species of game bird in any manner under a penalty of not less than $25, or more than $100 for each offense.

The 1925 hunting season will open in Maryland for Upland Game on November 10 and close on January 1. This includes bob-white partridge (quail), ruffed grouse, woodcock, rabbits, squirrels and wild turkeys. (There is a closed season on wild turkey in Garrett County until 1930). Also a closed season on deer except in Allegany County and on the Woodmont Rod and Gun Club in Washington Co. One buck deer may be killed per season with an antler six inches or more in length, between December 1 and 15th.

Bag limits. Partridge 12; Ruffed grouse 2; Woodcock 6; Rabbits 10; Squirrels 25 per day; Wild Turkey 4 in any one season.

It is unlawful to export any game (wildfowl excepted) out of Maryland, except licensed hunters may carry out 1 day's bag limit.

It is unlawful to sell, offer for sale, purchase or offer to purchase, bob-white quail, Chinese ringnecked pheasants, ruffed grouse or wild turkeys.

License for hunters who are residents of any county is $1.10 which permits hunting in the county of his residence. State-wide license permits hunting in all counties, $5.10 for residents of State. Non-residents $10.50. Non-residents who are assessed with property in Maryland at $500, or more may procure their license at the same rate as a resident, except the Clerk's fee is 50 cents for all non-residents.

It is unlawful to trespass or hunt on any property which is posted against trespassing, therefore, it is advisable when hunting to request permission of the owner or tenant of the property on which you desire to hunt before trespassing thereon.

The law requires the license to be in possession while hunting, and, at the same time a tag must be displayed on outer garment, center of back, between shoulders, which is furnished when license is purchased. The penalty for violation of same is $15.

The United Patriotic Home an Appeal!

The United Patriotic Home, of Baltimore, is an institution run by free-will offerings exclusively, and not receiving aid of any kind from the state or city, and not even asking to be included in the Community Chest now run by the Baltimore Federation.

The Home is asking for contributions from the contributing Fraternities of a cash "sacrificial offering, and the Home needs fruit, vegetables, canned goods, clothing, etc. The following announcement shows how the Home, or Orphanage, can be practically aided, and it is hoped that this plan may be followed in other communities.

The Camps of the Patriotic Order Sons of America will hold a rally at Winfield, on Saturday night, Nov. 14th, in the interest of the United Patriotic Orphanage of Baltimore, when plans for a Thanksgiving donation will be arranged. Wesley F. Barnes, District President, expects to secure a truck load of vegetables and provisions for the Home as the result of this meeting. Wm. Jas. Heaps a director of the Home, will be present and explain its workings and needs. The ladies of Winfield will furnish refreshments to those who attend. Present needs: vegetables, provisions, fruit, canned goods, clothing, money.

An Anti Weller Ticket.

While Senator O. E. Weller is vacationing in Florida, his political foes slipped over to Annapolis and legally filed an anti-Weller combination to be voted on at the primaries, next September. The following are the candidates: Marian A. Humphreys, Eastern Shore, for Governor; Wm. F. Broening, of Baltimore, for Attorney General, and the Hon. John Philip Hill, also of Baltimore, for U. S. Senator.

The slate is said to have the endorsement of W. Bladen Lowndes, former Senator France, Thomas Parman, William P. Jackson and some others. The surprise in the trio seems to be Hon. John Philip Hill, with his well known extreme "wet" position, whose political strength outside of his own "wet" city district, remains to be demonstrated.

Another surprise is the extreme previousness of the action. Anyway, Senator Weller will have plenty of time in which to plan his reply.

There are more houses in Belgium today than there were before the war.

Kentucky has two women sheriffs who attained their offices through appointment following the deaths of their husbands, who were killed in line of duty.

FREDERICK MEN ON DOPE CHARGES

Must Face Prosecution Under the Narcotic Laws.

David C. Winebrenner, Jr., a prominent business man of Frederick, Harry R. Snook, former saloonkeeper and Dr. John J. Rensberg, Mount Pleasant, were indicted on Wednesday by the Federal Grand Jury on charges of conspiracy to violate the narcotic laws.

These charges have been under way for several weeks and have attracted considerable attention due to the prominence of the men involved. Other indictments charge Winebrenner with purchasing narcotics; Winebrenner and Snook with purchase and possession of the drugs and Dr. Rensberg with sale and exchange.

District Attorney Amos W. W. Woodcock announced that he would endeavor to bring the men up for early trial. He said that he would immediately get into communication with the attorneys in the case and attempt to set a date.

Winebrenner is now confined to the Laurel Sanitarium, having been committed there for twelve months by the Circuit Court for Frederick county. His confinement to the institution will in no way interfere with the Federal charges.

I. O. O. F. Get-together Meeting.

(For the Record.)

On Friday night, Oct. 30, the Taneystown I. O. O. F. Lodge held its annual get-together meeting. About 60 were present, notwithstanding the inclement weather, one of which was Rev. L. B. Hafer, of Gettysburg, Pa. The music was furnished by the Charles Carroll school orchestra, of which brother Edw. P. Zepp is instructor.

The orchestra is made up of boys and girls of Charles Carroll school. They are certainly to be commended for their fine music, and especially Mr. Zepp for the way in which he has them trained. Any one wishing music of this kind, for any kind of an entertainment, will not go wrong by employing this orchestra.

Taxation and Schools.

We have published, at length, on our Editorial page of this issue, the action of a California Grange covering the subject of tax rates and public school costs, with comments on the same by a California newspaper, and "The Manufacturer" published at Salem, Oregon.

The subject, as well as the comments on it, though coming from the Pacific Coast, are identical with the situation in the east, showing that the whole question is a Nation-wide one; and as such, it deserves careful reading and study.

Coal and Wood this Winter.

Farmers and others who have wood, had better prepare to burn it, this winter, as there is no telling when coal will be on sale again—at least not for several months. Wood will also be in demand in towns and will meet with ready sale, especially sawed up in stove lengths.

Those who are not fully supplied with coal for furnaces, had better buy bituminous, and do it now. It also goes without saying, that economy in the use of coal, this winter, will likely be an enforced necessity.

Tuesday was "Election Day."

Tuesday was "Election Day"—but not in Maryland. Think of it! A year without an election of any sort—a thing that has never occurred before, in the history of the state! The situation was caused by the new law of the state that provides for elections only every two years, which practically means that in 1926 we will have two elections in one.

The chief reason—saving in election expenses. Well, we suspect that if we don't spend the money on elections, we will do it in some other way, and in the end, not save anything, nor lower taxes.

State Snow Plows Ready.

The state is ready to keep the state roads free from snow, this winter, having provided 16 big snow plows for the use of Frederick, Howard, Carroll and Montgomery counties; 80 plows, in all, will be used in the state, and one giant rotary plow to be used in the mountainous region. The program, as outlined, is to keep main roads open to traffic, and is the most extensive preparation ever made in the state.

Texas has a muss on hand. Ma was elected Governor and Pa is running the State government. Now there is talk of impeaching Ma. If women are to be elected to office let us pick those who have no husbands to meddle in.

WONDERFUL RADIO.

The Greatest Modern Invention for Entertainment.

What about the cost of operation? That depends on the outfit you have, and the amount of trouble you have. The first year there will be items chargeable to "getting experience" that will not be so apt to come along again. Actual necessary expense attaches almost entirely to battery and tube replacements, and the amount of this depends largely on the extent of use you make of your set, and how carefully you care for it. A five or six tube set will of course mean more expense than a three tube set, both for tubes and batteries, just the same as a high-powered car costs more for upkeep than a "Lizzie."

Don't overwork your set. Tune in a station as clearly as possible, until you get good volume, then stop. Don't try to get the loudest possible volume; so doing is hard on batteries and tubes, and is apt to distort the reception. A radio is like an automobile—the more carefully you handle it, the longer it will last, and the less the operating expense will be. Don't brag about how "loud" yours is—quality of tone is worth most.

Don't operate when conditions are unfavorable either from "static" or other unpreventable causes; and don't try to make your receiver do what it can't possibly do—bring in 100 percent perfect results every night. Operating a receiver when reception is poor, unnecessarily invites unfavorable comment. Almost every operator, who has had long enough experience, knows how he felt when trying to "show off" his set to visitors and it made all sorts of noises but those desired. Just turn off the current, when conditions are bad, and wait for the good nights sure to come.

As this is a sort of "don't" article, we will add a few more. Don't let anybody "monkey" with your set. It isn't a plaything, and cost you a lot of money, both to own and to operate. Careless regulation of the current may burn out tubes for you, that cost $2.50 each. Demonstrate, but don't let visitors, or children handle the dials. Be sure, even, that members of your own household understand enough about the receiver to operate it properly.

Don't be discouraged because somebody "gets" some station that you don't get, or more distance. How? you get the programs is the main thing; and the erection and length of aerials may explain why others get stations that you can't get. Compare notes, and it will likely be found that you get some stations that your friend don't get. It must also be remembered that every station is not "on the air" every night. Some broadcast only on certain nights, and at certain hours.

As a matter of information not generally known, as the result of International agreement, the U. S. has been given three and four letter combinations beginning with the letter "N" for government stations, and the letters "K" and "W" with three and four letter combinations, for other stations, with the exception that the Army reserves combinations from W. U. A. to W. V. Z., and from W. X. A. to W. Z. Z. This easily explains why no stations in this country begin with A. B. C. or other letters than K. or W. for public stations.

Station WBAL, Baltimore, the only strong station in the city, went on the air for the first time, on Monday night, with a fine program of music, preceded by addresses by President of the Consolidated Gas & Electric Co., the owners and operators of the station, Governor Ritchie and Mayor Jackson. The station operates on 376 meters and is sandwiched in between WEBB Chicago and WGY Schenectady. Baltimore is now very emphatically on the radio map and can no longer be referred to as being in a "dead area," or "pocket." Welcome to WBAL.

This series of radio articles will close next week; as the remaining matter prepared would make the present article too lengthy.

Our $1.00 Stationary Offer for Christmas.

Several important additions have been made to our $1.00 stationary offer (See Advt). The one we particularly desire to call attention to is the use of an old English initial letter, instead of name, when so desired. When the initial is used, a street address, or box number should be used, especially on the envelope.

We should have a large number of these orders, before Christmas, and we would like to have them now, in order that we may have plenty of time to execute them without interference with more profitable work.

Additional Jurors Drawn.

The following names were drawn for jurors in place of those excused. George H. Nusbaum instead of C. Edgar Myers; Edward Leese instead of George W. Yeiser; George E. Benson, instead of Thomas C. Lindsay; Howard E. Koonz instead of George R. Grumbine; J. Ross Galt instead of Samuel N. Benedict; John D. Grabill instead of Claude C. Bilymyer.

Our Two Greatest Criminal Agencies

For extent of criminality within the past two years, no other two agencies have come anything like equaling reckless auto drivers and violators of the Prohibition amendment; in fact, the two forces, in a good many instances, have combined in the drunken driver, or at least in the driver partly under the influence of liquor.

Both of these sources of crime have had some encouragement in the working out of laws.

There has been so much favoritism for auto drivers of all classes, that there has been a greatly too large array of "unavoidable" accidents; and opposition to the enforcement of Prohibition has been greatly aided by officials who have dealt out trifling sentences in serious offenses. In both cases, life and property have suffered for the enjoyment of speed and booze—for the protection of a so-called modern improvement in travel, and for the continuance of the use of illicit liquors.

There is no use in merely publishing accounts of these criminals acts, and in mildly suggesting that the ought to stop. There is no use in continuing the making of laws, and in leaving their enforcement with sympathizers for the criminals. Drastic action must be demanded by the sane and sober people of this country—if there are really enough such to unite in a demand that means something and compels consideration.

If the enforcement of law against criminals in these two big classes is puerile, how can we expect law enforcement and the protection of life and property in any other classes in which big, secret and powerful, influences are interested? The good people of this country must soon let it be known what they are going to do, or can do, about the increase in criminality.

Even the church and its allied bodies have been too pussy-footed in the matter. Once in a while some churchman will lament the weakness of law enforcement, and "spread himself" through the columns of the press, or over the radio; but, for real hard-hitting and keep-it-up preaching from the pulpit, the church has not been much in evidence. It has dodged this question, just as it has dodged the questions of immoral social practices and immodest styles in female dress. When the church soft-pedals tendencies toward crime as well as crime itself, the newspapers feel at liberty to follow suit; and with both press and church as non-combatants, why should not the criminal, and law ignoring classes, continue their present gait?

President Coolidge's recent address before the conference of Congregational churches, picturing the increase of lawlessness and the crying need for law enforcement, was not only a timely presentation of a national danger, but a warning of the most important official character that can come from the head of the Nation. Very properly, we think, he made it at a church conference, and emphasized that religion must help government, or the two must fail together—both "must become partakers of the spirit of the Great Master."

FARMERS CRITICIZE SCHOOL EXPENDITURES.

(As showing the extent of the tax question as it relates to Public Schools in this country, we reproduce the following article, entire, from "The Manufacturer," published at Salem, Oregon, setting forth the resolutions adopted by the Santa Rosa, Cal., Grange, and the various counties thereon, which in many respects represents the attitude of Eastern farmers, and other taxpayers, on the subject. The article is well worth reading and studying.—Ed. Record.)

"The Sonoma county, California, Pomona Grange at a recent meeting in Santa Rosa, California, adopted a set of resolutions directing the attention of its members and the members of other farm organizations to the exceedingly high cost of education in California. Furthermore the resolution declared that a species of terrorism set up by those who have been responsible for the expansion of education and the high cost thereof, has heretofore prevented a full and free discussion of the problem."

The growing cost of our educational system has become a problem in practically every state in the union. It is a difficult question to discuss without laying one's self open to the charge of being a reactionary on the subject of education.

Aside from the tax question involved in supporting our various public institutions of learning, the textbook question has become a great problem to many parents, due to constant changes and increases in price. It remains to be seen whether the man of tomorrow, who has profited by our expensive school system with its multiplicity of courses, will be as much brighter than his father as the increased school expenses would seem to suggest.

Commenting on the resolution of the Sonoma County Grange, the Petaluma, California, Argus, says:

"Perhaps the word 'terrorism' used by the Grange is a little too severe a term, but it is unquestionably true that, for some reason the guns of the critics have not been leveled upon 'the entrenched forces of education,' as they have been upon other governmental activities, state and county. Few public men, especially men seeking the popular vote, have had the temerity to question or discuss any phase of the educational problem either financial or fundamental."

"The Argus believes, with the Grange, that our educational system should be conducted upon the same high plane of efficiency and usefulness to the taxpayers as any other branch of the government, be it county or state, and that it is time for a survey of the educational activities of California, and of the cities and counties of the state, with a view to ascertaining whether certain very definite doubts that have come to exist in the minds of the people are well founded."

"Since the world war our farmers, because of their disadvantageous position, have felt the heavy hand of the tax collector more than any other industry. It is but natural, therefore, to find the Grange and other farm organizations taking an active interest in all matters affecting the tax rate, and that, having been successful in other fields, they should now ask for an accounting along educational lines."

"Attention is called to the fact that we have been more than liberal in our expenditures of public funds, payable from tax revenues, in constructing palatial schools; that we have extended the curricula to cover almost every known subject. And the question is seriously raised as to whether we have lost sight of fundamentals in the general expansion."

"No one can seriously object, least of all those charged with the administration of the school laws of the state, to the turning on of the flood light of investigation as suggested, though not actually proposed, by the Grange resolution. In Sonoma county we expend fifty-two percent of all public monies for education. Similar expenditures are made by other counties, and state funds expended for education in one form or another run to practically a similar percentage."

"The frank and full discussion of our educational problem, which is of such vital interest to parents and patriotic citizens everywhere, as proposed by the Grange resolution, shows that this foremost farm organization has lost none of its virility or courage. As recited in the resolution, which originated in the 'baby' Grange at Windsor, the original declaration of the purpose of the Grange pledged the order to 'promote education by all just means in our power.' It is therefore quite evident that the Pomona Grange, when it adopted the resolution under discussion, was prompted by patriotic motives and an earnest desire to procure the facts that the Grange deems essential to a thorough-going survey of educational expenditures and educational functions."

Commenting on its action, Wesley Beach, Master of the Sonoma County Grange of Santa Rosa, says:

"Of the gross receipts of the agricultural producers of the United States in the year 1923, the tax collectors took 16.6 percent, while all other forms of human activity in this country gave up only 11.9 percent. This meant a 40 percent handicap for our farmers. Of the net earnings or profits of his business enterprises the farmer gave up over 86 percent to the tax collectors, while all other industries contributed less than 34 percent."

"Farmers are fully aware that they cannot under their present economic handicaps pay the ever increasing load of taxes. If something cannot be done to remedy the present situation, farm tenancy which in California is about ten percent, will grow as it has in some of our eastern manufacturing states to over 60 percent. If the American farm home is worth keeping for the welfare of our state as a whole, then we shall have to remember that the farmer cannot spend money which the facts show he has not or cannot earn.

"Our farmers are anxious to have some real statesman cry out the solution of their tax problems but nothing but constructive and fundamentally sound suggestions will be worthy of consideration. The wail of the charlatan and the self-seeking political demagogue will avail nothing toward the coming of a better day for the farmers of this county, this state or this nation."

The Pomona Grange and its level headed Master have brought the school tax question before the public in no half hearted manner. It is a subject which politicians generally are afraid to discuss and even editors do not like to touch the subject.

But our school machine is with us, it is growing and is becoming more expensive in practically every department. It is a subject which affects every citizen and it cannot be settled by anyone but ourselves. Many persons are of the opinion that better pay for good teachers and less money spent on educational palaces and professional courses of various kinds with their numerous instructors would be beneficial to students by concentrating studies more on the essentials of education.

This would undoubtedly reduce the overhead cost of our school system. It is indeed a question how far the state should go in attempting to teach professions free of charge. As the scope of such work is constantly enlarging to various college courses, the cost to the state naturally becomes heavier and the burden falls on the taxpayer.

There is no doubt but what thousands of students attend state colleges and take numerous of the courses with no thought of ever following the profession which they are studying. Many of them go largely to have a good time for a few years at a free state school.

How far can this process be carried? Does a graduate under such conditions perfect himself sufficiently to justify his state in expending such amounts for the various courses which he may take free of charge? It is a question.

State school organizations are so well developed and far reaching that it will be almost impossible to change the present system and it will be a question whether its extension to all lines of activity can be curbed to any great extent.

The Grange has sounded a warning. It will be up to the people to decide.—The Manufacturer.

Republican Fights, in Md.

The Republicans of Maryland are good fighters, both within themselves and against the enemy, and win big elections just about frequently enough to consider that the party always has a good "fighting chance" in the state. They have a way of fighting things out, rather than making compromises, and this seems to be called for because there are too many "big fellows" in the party for all to get amicably together, when dividing up the political plums that come along.

When one "big fellow" gets knocked out, one year, he is apt to lay low and help to knock out some other "big fellow" out, when the next chance comes along. This sort of game takes a lot of money, and there seems to be plenty of it with which to keep up the game; but, it does not seem the best way to win against the enemy.

Still, we have the state-wide primary system—which presumably picks the best men—and, call it "fight," or just "friendly contest," there is really not much to be said against settling personal differences in this public way—especially as the general taxpayers pay a lot of the expense of it.

The only hitch about the plan is that there are a lot of voters in the party who are not convinced that the best qualified men appear on either side; that it is individual "barrels" and ambition, together with primary election expense, and some other facts, that keeps the very best men in the party out of political opportunity, until about the only chance the miscellaneous voter has is to choose between—well, the best he can get.

But, why not? We do not select our standard-bearers in churches, after careful and prayerful consideration of their qualifications and virtues—not in Maryland, anyway.

An estimate is made that at the present time in America over $400,000,000 is hoarded in old stockings, mattresses and other hiding places.

Anne de Rohan

Anne de Rohan, the daughter of Catherine de Parthenay, heiress to the house of Soubise, was born in 1562 and acquired, like her mother, a high reputation in the literary world. She would have been one of the greatest poetesses of her age, but her devoted piety turned her talent into another channel. She died, unmarried, in 1646. She was a Protestant and was celebrated for her courage as well as her learning.—Chicago Journal.

High-Handed Action

The name "Pride's Purge" was given to an act of Col. Thomas Pride, who with a body of soldiers "purged" the Long parliament of its Presbyterian members on December 6, 1648, on which occasion 41 members were arrested and 100 were excluded on the following day. The house of commons, now reduced to about eighty independents, appointed a commission to try Charles I on a charge of treason.—Kansas City Star.

POULTRY

COST OF RATION IS BIGGEST ITEM

A very important factor in any ration is the matter of cost. The best ration is one that will give the largest returns, cost considered. This does not mean the largest returns or the cheapest ration. The biggest income may be secured from a ration that is so high in price that it is impracticable to use, while the cheapest ration might bring about such low production as to make it unprofitable.

From the farm poultryman's standpoint the question of feeding is largely a question of economically supplementing the home-grown feeds. Two general types of feeds come under this classification: Those that are supplied to the fowls and those the fowls pick up by ranging over the farm.

In the majority of cases there are two problems: One, the supplying of protein or flesh-forming foods, and the other of giving the proper variety to the ration. This is more particularly true when the fowls are confined than when they are picking up considerable of their feed by foraging over the farm. When foraging they eat more scratch feed and less mash than will properly balance up their ration if they are allowed to choose as they may. Therefore, they must be encouraged to eat the mash by making it as attractive as possible and also by limiting the amount of the scratch feeds which are supplied, especially during the morning feeds.

The cost of the ration is the biggest item of expense in poultry production. The greatest opportunity for a saving lies in the feeding. The big item that the majority of people need to pay more attention to is that of balancing up the food by the use of some of the animal proteins and supplying additional variety. Too much scratch grain and not enough mash to properly balance the ration is the mistake made by many flock owners.

Market All Fowls That

Molt Early in Autumn

"Most hens stop laying when they begin to molt," says E. L. Dakan of the poultry department at Ohio State university. "A hen must be a consistent layer to make a high record, and an early molting hen is not a consistent layer."

"The time of the molt is the best indication of the past year's performance. This rule can be used in culling all breeds and varieties, but is of special importance with such breeds as the Orpingtons and Minorcas that do not have the yellow skin."

"The hen that molts early, under normal conditions, will not lay as many winter eggs as the hen that molts late. Neither will she begin egg production earlier in the spring. No definite date can be set as to early molt, but as a general rule the first hens in the flock to molt should be sold, and the last to molt should be kept for breeding purposes."

"Hens may be thrown into an early molt by starving while laying heavily, by irregular feeding, by roosting in a house that is poorly ventilated, or by anything which tends to check egg production."

Fattening on Range

Some feeders have tried confining the turkeys while they are being fattened, but with little success. When confined to a pen, they may eat heartily for a few days but afterwards lose their appetites and then begin to lose flesh. A certain amount of liberty and range is necessary to keep them hungry and in good, healthy condition. Where this is combined with a good feeding ground, as is the case when they are allowed to run in a cornfield that has been hogged off, results are more than likely to be gratifying.

Poultry Hints

Ducks or geese will eat all the grit they require without putting it in their feed.

Turkeys should not be fed at first. Growth should come first and fattening should not begin until in November if the birds are to be wanted for the Thanksgiving market.

A novel and easy way to make wet mash is to pour a little milk in the mash hopper at noon. Just enough liquid should be used to moisten what the birds will clean up.

Make a bred-to-lay hen's home life happy and comfortable with proper housing and feeding, as well as the other surroundings, and she will try to do the nest justice and let you enjoy the profits therefrom.

Only a laying hen is worthy of her feed.

Whether or not it pays to raise capons depends very much upon the market. People who eat capons are very particular people and birds not only have to be well raised, but well finished.

Green feed increases the fertility and hatchability of eggs. It has been found. Hens should have access to pasture, or be fed silage, sprouted oats or some other good green feed.

Bees in Orchard Most Profitable

Under Modern Methods of Handling Insects Are Not Bothersome.

Orchardists think kindly of the lowly honey bee. There is a very common saying among experienced orchardists which sums the matter up in a few words. It is: "No bees, no fruit." The failure of orchards in certain parts of the country, the indifference to the fruiting which is often blamed on the season, might very often be traced to the absence of bees. It does not make much difference, so far as the orchard is concerned, whether it is tame bees or wild bees that perform nature's method of fertilization of the bloom. It does, however, make some difference to the orchard owner in that tame bees will give him a yield of honey and sure pollenization without the consumption of extra ground. The same land can be made to yield two crops just as well as one.

Orchard Failures.

The discontinuance of the keeping of tame bees on many farms, and the additional destruction and disappearance of the wild bees in the surrounding woods have all had their hand in the so-called "failure of orchards." Bees are one of the most profitable side lines which the farmer can carry. He can well afford to consider their possibilities, not only for their own sake but for the sake of the orchard.

Under modern methods of handling bees, they are not half the bother and the trouble that they used to be. Swarming, the old-time bugaboo of the beekeeper, has been practically eliminated, because we have learned its cause and by practicing precautionary methods, by getting ready in advance for the "fun," bees can be hived in a very few minutes. Indeed, beekeepers now have ways of preventing swarming if they so desire.

Modern Appliances.

Modern appliances such as hives, supers and the uniform pound frames all aid in encouraging the modern bee to produce more than his earlier ancestors did. Ten to twenty pounds per hive used to be a fair average production for one season; now it is not uncommon for Iowa beekeepers to receive as much as 200 pounds of honey from one hive in a favorable season. An average of 40 to 80 pounds can be had from each hive under ordinary conditions per season, so Iowa beekeepers report.

The finest quality honey comes from white clover, alsike clover and sweet clover. It is clear and golden. Buckwheat is often a desirable late feeding ground for bees, but it falls short of premium prices on the market because it is darker in color and a little ranker in flavor.

Soy Beans Produce Best

Hay When Planted Thick

Thickly planted soy beans produce hay of greater feeding value than those that are thinly planted, according to preliminary results of tests which are being made by the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. Soy beans with a wheat drill at the rate of one and a fourth bushels an acre yielded hay with fine stems, only six per cent of which was refused by dairy cows. In contrast to this, beans that were seeded thinner produced coarser hay, a larger proportion of the stems being left uneaten. The plot seeded at the rate of about a half bushel an acre produced very coarse hay, 16 per cent of which was refused, according to Dr. W. B. Nevins, assistant chief of dairy cattle feeding at the college. The difference in the feeding value of the fine stemmed hay as compared with the coarse hay, therefore was about 12 per cent, or about 240 pounds for each ton of hay fed.

For one thing the thinly seeded plots contained more weeds, an important factor affecting the quality of hay.

Larger plots of soy beans are being grown in the test with the object of making further studies of the effect of rate of planting on the quality of hay.

Different Kinds of Food When Hen Is Confined

When the hen is confined to the poultry house and its immediate surroundings, perhaps a small yard, the only way that she can make eggs is to receive from the caretaker the various different kinds of food that she would obtain on free range in summer, or their equivalents. On most farms there is a reasonably good variety of grains, including corn, wheat, oats and barley, and these form sufficient variety so far as they are concerned. In addition there should be ground grains, including wheat, bran and cornmeal, to use in dry or damp mashes. To take the place of the bugs and worms of the summer season beef scraps, such as are furnished by dealers in poultry supplies, or cut fresh bone should be given.

Grain for Cattle

For cattle a grain ration of one-third bran, one-third middlings and one-third oats would be very suitable. While for the hogs, a ration of 60 per cent middlings and 40 per cent oats would make a suitable ration for sows or older pigs. For the young pigs at weaning time a ration of 45 per cent ground oats, 45 per cent ground barley and 10 per cent tankage is recommended as a more suitable ration.

Hard to Get Couple

to Agree on Money

It is largely the "niceness" of middle-class married folk, making them unwilling to discuss "the sordid matter of money," that causes trouble for wage-earning wives, says one of them, writing anonymously in the Woman's Home Companion.

Says the wage-earning wife: "Unexpectedly enough it was that double income which even our old-fashioned relatives had approved that became our chief difficulty. If the economic dependence of women had tyrants on the one hand and cowards on the other, the economic independence of women has its own dangers. Two people, each accustomed to earning his own living, to spending his own income, have a good deal of adjusting to do before they learn how to merge two incomes into one, and until that lesson is learned they founder in a financial morass."

The solution for the problems of their household, the wage-earning wife continues, came when the husband could bring himself to say, "as he would have said to a brother with whom he was keeping house, or any man friend: 'See here, you're holding out on me. You can't go on buying rugs until you've paid your share for the kitchen ceiling. Shell out.'"

Were "Over a Million"

Latimer had great difficulty in finding just the right sort of office space that would suit his requirements.

Searching about the city from the Battery to Fifty-ninth street he finally discovered what he wanted. This office was one flight up and directly over a bank. The bank owning the building, Latimer was compelled to call on the president of the bank in regard to the rent, lease and other particulars. After these formalities were amicably settled he noticed a large safety vault.

"How much money is there in the vault," he inquired of the president. "About $1,000,000," was the answer.

When Latimer moved into his new office he had his small second-hand safe placed exactly over the spot where the vault below was located.

Soon customers arrived and congratulated him on securing such an excellent location.

An old friend who never had much faith in Latimer's business ability called and, seeing the safe in the middle of the office, asked:

"How much money have you got in that old safe?"

"I don't know exactly," answered Latimer, "but it's over a million, anyway."

And literally it was. The old man left the office muttering that he could not understand how that shrimp had accumulated so much money.—New York Evening World.

Health and Home

ICED DRINKS IN THE SUMMER

On a warm and sultry summer day, there is nothing more refreshing to the mind and to the body than an iced drink. Of course, when such drinks are being used, moderation should be practiced, because if taken in excess or too rapidly, they are liable to be injurious to the stomach. However, when taken in a sensible manner, they are refreshing and beneficial to the fatigued. In the manufacture of these drinks, care should be taken to avoid any combination that may be indigestible or hard to assimilate. The drink should be consumed in a slow and leisurely manner.

The greatest danger present in the use of iced drinks is the one that involves the use of ingredients that are possibly impure or contaminated in any way. This is very liable to happen if the juices that are used are allowed to stand until they become soured and unfit for use, or if the milk or other ingredient used is not strictly fresh. The predisposition of milk to spoil quickly at summer temperatures makes it oftentimes necessary to use evaporated milk, which after all is just pure fresh milk with more than half the water taken away. It is sterile and, therefore, always safe. For use in iced drinks, it is ideal.

Following are several formulas used in the manufacture of iced beverages. If these formulas are followed religiously, the results will be found to be very satisfactory.

Chocolate Malted Milk.

1 cup evaporated milk 3 teaspoonfuls cocoa
1 cup water 2 teaspoonfuls malted milk
Mix cocoa with water until syrup is obtained. Put all ingredients in Mason jar and shake thoroughly and serve with iced milk.

Milk Punch.
1 cup evaporated milk 2 tsp. orange juice
Sugar to suit ½ cup water
Small stick cinnamon
1 cup tea ½ cup fruit juice (currant or berry preferred)
2 tsp. lemon juice

Boil slowly the cinnamon, a lemon rind and orange rind in water for ten minutes. Strain and when cool add the other ingredients. Place in a Mason jar and shake well. Serve in tall glasses with chopped ice.

Egg Nog.
1 egg 1½ tsp. powdered sugar
Pinch salt 2 tsp. fruit juice
½ cup cold evaporated milk Nutmeg gratings
½ cup ice water
Add salt to egg white and beat to a stiff froth. Add the sugar, the well beaten yolk of the egg and the fruit juice and nutmeg. Fill glass with milk and cold water. Sprinkle top with chopped nuts.

Millions of Wills

Almost at the moment that Waterloo bridge yielded to the strain of river traffic its splendid neighbor, Somerset house, is reaching the point of repletion. It is getting too full for comfort. The storage space in its vast vaults grows perceptibly smaller, and the finding of other accommodation is receiving the attention of the board of works.

In these vaults the volumes and indexes of births, marriages and deaths dating from the year 1837 are piled seven feet high. There are more than 150,000,000 names in these books. Apart from these registers there are some millions of copies of wills in the vaults, and on payment of a shilling any will can be inspected.

Here may be seen the wills of many famous people, including Shakespeare, Doctor Johnson and Sir Isaac Newton.—Tit-Bits.

Here's Unique Plan for Raising Church Funds

At least one society of women in a leading church of the city, perhaps societies in other churches, has decided to raise funds for its church in a way that is novel, if not unique, to say the least. The total amount realized would be well up in the thousands of dollars if figures tell the true story and the women carry through to the end.

One woman invites seven friends to luncheon and explains the plan. Each is to pay 50 cents, and the hostess may pay or not as she pleases; but it is believed if she furnishes the luncheon she would be exempt.

Each of the seven invites six, which would make 42 guests at 50 cents each. Then each of the 42 invites five, making 210; and each of the 210 invites four, making 840.

The number of guests diminishes until the last hostess would have only one to entertain, but there would be more than 5,000 of these parties for one.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

On With the Story

"You don't seem to have any notorious spots here," said an inquiring tourist to the native guide. "In the last village we stopped at they showed us a place where a man had laid in wait for his rival in love and attacked him with fiendish gusto."

The guide had really never heard of this remarkable crime, but his professional jealousy was aroused.

"That is quite true, sir," he unblushingly bore witness, "but you, perhaps, are not aware that the villain afterward made his escape in this direction, and you are now standing on the very spot where he threw away the fiendish gusto with which he made the fearful attack."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Health and Home

THE WOMAN WHO WORKS

In this new order of things, with women, both married and single, broadening their business activities, a very serious problem arises. It is the problem of what, when, and where to eat.

Breakfast is always a hurry-up meal for the men but much more so for the woman who goes to business. Lunches, of course, are taken in the lunchrooms and restaurants in the business districts and are no problem. But how about dinners? Shall they, too, be restaurant meals or can they be so planned that business women may enjoy the home cooking of which they are so fond? Take away the element of haste and anxiety and in its place put carefully thought-out menus, well planned and easily prepared, and home dinners will again regain their high favor with the working housewife.

One of the big worries is frequently with the milk. Did it come? Is it fresh? Is it frozen? Has the milkman been paid? Are the bottles washed and set out? However, there is no cause for worry about milk. Why not keep a dozen cans of evaporated milk in your pantry? There are large cans, equal to a quart of milk and smaller cans that will meet the lesser needs.

For evaporated milk is just pure, fresh milk with more than half the water missing. This water can be replaced in a jiffy, if you so desire or you can use it as cream if rich and creamy foods are desired.

Here are a few recipes that may be used by "The Woman Who Works" for forming her plans for self help and good home cooking.

Scalloped Ham and Potatoes.

1 pound smoked ham 1½ cups water
6 medium potatoes 1 green pepper
1½ cups evaporated milk (may be omitted)
Flour

Cover the bottom of an oiled baking dish with sliced, raw potatoes. Sprinkle with flour and pieces of ham ½ inch square. Repeat until dish is full. Fill dish ¾ full of diluted milk. Bake until potatoes are tender.

Eggs en Casserole.

6 hard-boiled eggs ¼ cup evaporated milk
3 tomatoes ¼ cup water
2 tbsp. butter ½ cup grated cheese
3 tbsp. flour
2 tsp. salt Buttered crumbs

Cut hard-boiled eggs in half and arrange around the edge of a greased casserole. Slice tomatoes in center of dish. Make a white sauce of the milk, water, fat and flour. Add cheese and stir over a low fire until cheese is well mixed and smooth. Pour over tomatoes and eggs. Cover with crumbs and bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Deep Cultivation Cuts

Yield of the Corn Crop

"Stir as shallow as possible when cultivating corn," is the advice of soils men at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. Within recent years it has been found that deep cultivation of corn injures the roots and reduces the yield of the crop.

In wet seasons, when the weeds get a big start, deep cultivation may be the only way to kill them, but it nips the corn roots, too, and holds back the growth of the crop.

Another reason for deep cultivation has been the theory that a soil mulch was a great moisture-saver. This is only partly true, and it is only in dry seasons that this mulch conserves much moisture with New York's normal rainfall.

Cultivation before planting the crop is the most effective, say the soils men, and it can be done more cheaply and easily than later. Proper preparation of the seed bed is necessary for later cultivation to be effective. If the seed bed has been properly worked, shallow cultivation should do the business later on when the crop gets up above the ground. Wet weather may interfere, of course, but the same rule holds: The best cultivation is that which injures the crop roots least and still kills the weeds.

These principles of cultivation apply to all weed crops, such as corn, beans, potatoes and cabbage.

Good Feed for Stallion During Breeding Season

A few combinations of rations which are suitable for a stallion during the breeding season are as follows:

1. Oats, timothy or prairie hay.
2. Oats, four parts; corn, six parts, and bran, three parts by weight; timothy or prairie hay.
3. Oats, four parts; corn, six parts; linseed meal, one part; timothy or prairie hay.
4. Corn, seven parts; bran, three parts; linseed meal, one part; timothy or prairie hay.
5. Corn, alfalfa hay one-third and prairie hay two-thirds.

No specific directions can be given as to the total amount of feed required, since this depends on the exercise the animal gets and whether he is a "hard" or "easy" keeper. A safe rule is to keep the stallion in good flesh, but not "hog fat," for this will injure his breeding powers. Most horsemen advise that in the breeding season he be kept gaining just a bit, rather than allowed to run down in flesh. While some recommend feeding three times a day, four is preferred by others. In either case no more should be fed than will be promptly cleaned up. Plenty of exercise is very essential.

A Farmer's Faith.

I believe in farming as a way to live and make a living.

I believe in the dignity of my work. I want no man's patronage, preaching or pity.

I believe in my soil. It will reward me in proportion to the thought, labor and love I give it.

I believe in myself. My success depends on me more than on weather, luck or laws.

I believe in my neighbors. My community, like my soil, returns to me as I give to it.

I believe in co-operation, in thinking for myself and acting with my fellows.

I believe that only a united agriculture can insure justice and prevent inequality.

I believe in education. The more I know the greater my ability to seize opportunities and to be happy. I insist that my children be enabled to learn to be useful, intelligent men and women.

I believe in conservation. I will leave a better farm than I took.

I believe that living is the most important job in the world and I mean to plan my work so that my family and myself will have the time and the means to enjoy life.

I face the years ahead with confidence, hope and cheer.

I believe in myself, my fellowman and a Supreme Being.

I believe in farming.—Andrew S. Wing, in Md. Tri-county Bulletin.

The Wires.

Whenever I go out to walk With daddy, we just talk and talk I ask him questions too, although He often answers: "I don't know."

And so I asked the other day About the wires along our way. They stretched above us, high and tight, From pole to pole, clear out of sight.

He told me that those wires were meant To carry messages we sent By telephone and telegraph All 'round the world. I had to laugh.

I seemed to see them creeping past Upon the wires, all going fast, And some had legs and some had wings, Those messages were funny things.

Now, when I'm left alone at night, Tucked in my bed, without a light, I think about those wires out there And all the messages they bear.

I do not look, for I might see A message never meant for me; But as I lie awake and hark I hear them singing in the dark.

"COLLEGE HUMOR," NEW DEPARTMENT OF STRIKINGLY HUMOROUS HITS FROM COLLEGE PUBLICATION, BEGINS IN SUNDAY'S BALTIMORE AMERICAN.

Clock Has Only One Hand

An ingenious clock with but one hand is installed in an office in Portland, Ore. An English naval officer, who was wrecked, is credited with the invention. After being shipwrecked and thrown on a desert island, he found that among the few effects he had saved was a watch with the minute hand gone. Necessity of telling time with only the hour hand inspired the officer to divide the dial into spaces indicating one-minute intervals and from this rough pattern a marine clock was fashioned that serves its purpose as well as the old type with two hands.

In the JUNGLE

With Cheerups and the Quixies
by Grace Bliss Stewart

THE NERVOUS GNU

IT WAS a very trying moment for Mr. Gnu. He had just begun to wonder what kind of an animal he really was. All his friends were quite sure which family they belonged to. There was Mrs. Ostrich, Raffy Giraffe, Swift the Antelope, Springy Gazelle and Zippy Zebra, his jolly neighbors on the Great Plain. Each knew without a doubt where he belonged in the Animal World.

"But here am I," grumbled Mr. Gnu, "with the head and horns of a bull, the mane and tail of a horse and the body and legs of an antelope; just a mixture like patchwork. It's most embarrassing."

He took a sudden leap into the air, alighted on the ground and began to paw and wheel about like a frisky horse, of which is a funny way Gnu's have, doing when they are excited and disturbed. Then, kicking up his heels and flourishing his long tail, the Nervous Gnu scampered across the Broad Sunny Plain at top speed. Soon the Great Trees and Twisty Vines of the edge of the Jungle loomed before him. Their cool shade looked very inviting to Mr. Gnu.

"Don't Be Alarmed," Called a Voice From the Palm Leaf Roof.

"I haven't been in there for a long time," thought he. "I wonder what's going on in the Jungle these days. The same old Lions and Leopards are there, I suppose, and they would like a nice juicy something-or-other like me for supper. But I can't help that; I've just got to go in and look around for myself, it's so mysterious and exciting."

Now the Nervous Gnu is about the most curious animal in the world, so he lost no time in trotting down the Winding Way into the heart of the Jungle. He was timid and suspicious, of course, but his curiosity quite got the better of him.

"Oh, what's that?" whinnied he with a jump, as he came suddenly into the clearing and saw Cheerups' little house standing there. "I don't believe it means anything good, whatever it is, and yet I should like to know."

"Don't be alarmed," called a merry voice from the peak of the small palm-leaf roof. "I know it looks queer, but I just got up here on top of my house for a change and a better view of things. I'm Cheerups; is there anything I can do for you today?"

"Why—why—yes, sir, there is," stammered the Gnu, remembering all of a sudden the knotty question which had troubled him that morning. "I'd like to know what I am. Now there's a poser for you! You see my chums, Raffy Giraffe, Mrs. Ostrich, Springy Gazelle, Swift the Antelope and Zippy Zebra, all know who they are. We are very happy and sociable out on the Broad Plain, sir, but I am bothered about my family tree."

"What is your name?" asked Cheerups kindly.

"They call me the Nervous Gnu, Mr. Cheerups, because I am so easily flustered. But who wouldn't be if he had the head and horns of a bull, the mane and tail of a horse and the body and legs of an antelope, and didn't know at all what he is and who are his relations? It's confusing, I say."

"Now don't be disturbed, Mr. Gnu," said Cheerups, smiling and nodding his topknot merrily. "There isn't a bit of doubt in my mind what you are. You are an antelope. Don't you see that your body and legs—the greater part of you—are like those of the antelope family? So there you are! The question is settled as neatly as can be."

"Oh, I hadn't thought of that," gasped the Gnu. "It's funny how you don't think of things, isn't it? I see now that you are perfectly right, Mr. Cheerups. That's really a wonderful idea. How you have relieved my mind! Thank you, thank you!"

"Now you can go back to your happy little neighborhood on the Broad Plain and know just where you stand. Swift the Antelope and Springy Gazelle are your cousins, remember! But please do be careful about being curious, Mr. Gnu," called Cheerups.

"Curiosity carries you far And teaches you much, I hear, But caution tells you not to stray Where danger is lurking near."

"I'll try to remember all you have told me, Mr. Cheerups," cried the Nervous Gnu, kicking his heels joyfully in the air, and with a final switch of his tail he made off at top speed in the direction of his friends on the Broad Plain.

WHO SAID

"Every tub must stand up on its own bottom."

THESE are the words of the man who is known to history as the author of the great religious allegory, "Pilgrim's Progress"—John Bunyan. Bunyan was born near Bedford, England, in the year 1628. His father was a tinker by trade, and, as a young man, John Bunyan followed the same vocation. During his youth he served in the great civil war that engulfed his native country and his change of mind which led to deep religious ponderings may be attributed to his experiences as a soldier.

Bunyan returned from the war with a much more serious regard for life than when he had entered in upon the struggle as a carefree young man. He was greatly impressed with the truth and importance of religion, and he shortly joined the Society of Anabaptists at Bedford, where he was soon made a teacher among the sect and achieved considerable reputation as a preacher.

There were, at this time, severe laws against any one who dissented from the established church but these statutes held no terrors for Bunyan. He continued to preach in defiance of them and eventually was apprehended by the authorities and sentenced to serve 12 years in prison. During these years, from 1690 to 1672, he devoted himself almost entirely to religious meditation and to writing. The first part of his celebrated "Pilgrim's Progress" was written in the Bedford jail.

Upon the expiration of his sentence Bunyan was released and became pastor of the community in which his former preachings had resulted in his jailing. As has so often been the case, his jail confinement only served to make him more popular and his preaching services were attended by great numbers and many new converts were secured.

John Bunyan died in the year 1688, while on a visit to London.

Old Faithful Geyser

The eruption period of Old Faithful geyser, commonly stated to be exactly one hour, fluctuates between 55 and 75 minutes, with an average of about 63 minutes.

YOUR Last Name

IS IT HINMAN?

THERE is no English Hinman family. Burke gives arms for Inman, Hindman and Hyndman. A genealogist of the American Hinman family suggests that Inman is the original form of the name for which Hinman is a Cockney variation.

At any rate there was early a big family of Hinmans in this country. The first of the name here was Sergeant Edward, who is recorded in Stratford, Conn., between 1650 and 1652. There is a family tradition that he was a sergeant-at-arms in the body-guard of King Charles I, and that that is where he got his designation as sergeant.

There is record that he and Capt. Charles Underhill, in Albany, offered their services to Governor Stuyvesant to help the Dutch fight the Indians but Stuyvesant turned down their offer, saying that he considered the Indians as good friends as the English.

Sergeant Edward married Hannah, daughter of Francis and Sarah Stiles of Windsor, Conn. He died in 1681, leaving four daughters and four sons, Titus, Samuel, Benjamin and Edward. POWNALL—This name is derived from a township so called in Cheshire, England. The founder of the family here was Thomas Pownall, who was born in Lincoln, England. He was son of an English civil officer in India. Thomas, the son, came to this country as private secretary to Sir Danvers Osborne, governor of New York.

BUCK—The Buck family, to which Dudley Buck, the musician, belonged, was founded here by Emanuel Buck, who came to Massachusetts shortly after the founding of Plymouth. He was one of the earliest settlers of Wethersfield, Conn., in 1647. The family is connected with those of Winthrop, Saltonstall and Dudley. Dudley Buck's maternal grandfather was Nathaniel Adams, a noted lawyer of New Hampshire, the preceptor of Webster and one-time grand master of the Masons. Dudley Buck's grandmother was a member of the Winthrop family. The name is of old English origin and is doubtless derived from the animal, famed in the chase.

Trainer of Boxers Gives Diet Hints

To Kid Howard of Chicago and his new system of training and conditioning, Sammy Mandell, the present lightweight boxing champion of the world, gives a great deal of the credit for his meteoric rise to stardom in the world of pugilism. When Mandell first started fighting, he was small, weak and undeveloped, but after turning himself over to Howard it was only a short time before he took the decision from Sid Terris of New York that resulted in him being recognized as the boss of the lightweights.

Sammy Mandell. Howard's system is unique in that it works no hardship on the athlete who is in training. Unlike the systems that have been used for years, this prominent and successful trainer of men makes conditioning more of a pleasure than a distasteful necessity. Instead of demanding that his men eat only certain things he advises them to eat what they want and when they want it as long as it is cooked in a proper manner. Mr. Howard, in a recent interview on the subject of diet and condition, said, in part: "Years ago it was a task, and an unpleasant one, for a boxer or a wrestler to train for a bout because he was forced to literally starve himself unless he wanted to eat steaks and chops at all times. I remember that when I was training for a match, I was so truly tired of steaks that I choked every time that I ate one but it was steak or nothing. I advise my men to diet at all times but it is perfectly possible for them to diet and, at the same time, to enjoy their food. My only 'don't' is the one regarding the eating of such combinations as fresh milk and cheese, and fruit with cream. In fact, I advocate the use of evaporated milk entirely. Vegetables are fine and the more that the athlete eats the better he will be for it. Pastry, of certain kinds, such as homemade pies, cakes and cookies, if made correctly, and with pure butter, evaporated milk and pure lard, are very beneficial. Steaks and boils are ideal. Taken as a whole, any food, with a few exceptions, is all right if properly cooked and eaten without gorging."

And one has but to look at Howard, who is the most religious user of his own system, to realize that it is a success.

Millions of Idle Money

There are, it is estimated by the actuary of the United States treasury, something more than 8,000 misers in this country, who are hoarding and keeping out of circulation more than $400,000,000, none of which is earning a dollar.

Contrast the miserly waste of money with the good which is being done with the $531,000,000 owned by the 65 leading colleges of the United States.

From their investments these colleges derive an annual income of about $27,000,000. Assuming that the smaller colleges not included in this list of 65 larger centers of education have an annual income of only $13,000,000 from their invested funds, we arrive at the annual educational fund of $40,000,000. This divided among the 380,000 students of both sexes in all the universities and colleges allows about $106 a year per student.

By making this money work, still other contributions are made to the wealth and progress of the country.—Thrifty Magazine.

Lady Hypercritical

Miss Lorraine Elizabeth Wooster gave as one of her reasons for opposing the adoption of the Winston primer the fact that one of the pictures in the much discussed textbook shows a pair of billy goat horns attached to the head of a nanny goat. We have been quite a consistent supporter of Lorraine Elizabeth since our acquaintanceship was formed in a Sallina boarding house in the dear, dead days beyond recall when we were both twenty-one, but this particular objection to the Winston primer appears to us to be rather far-fetched. Assuming that during the period of our acquaintance with Lorraine Elizabeth, the nanny goat has undergone the same wonderful changes as the female of our species, we see nothing wrong in a picture that represents a nanny goat with a pair of horns attached to her head.—Jack Harrison, in Beloit (Kan.) Gazette.

Too Blind

Dr. Cornelius Gurliitt, of the Society of German Architects, said as he embarked for home on the Thuringia:

"The German people have awakened. Blind obedience was their trouble in the past."

"Hans," said a German school teacher, "supposing now, Hans, a tiger was to come at you to eat you up—what would you do?"

"Nothing, teacher," said little Hans quietly.

"What? Nothing? Wouldn't you even scream for help?"

"Oh, no, teacher."

"My goodness, Hans, why not?"

"Because, teacher, my papa says I mustn't never talk at meal times."

PAUL'S FAREWELL AT MILETUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 20:18-38.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how He said, It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Acts 20:35.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul a Loving Friend.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Farewell at Miletus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—An Example of Faithfulness.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Responsibilities of Church Members.

After the uproar at Ephesus, the Jews laid wait for Paul to destroy him. This plot obligated him to retrace his steps through Macedonia instead of taking a more rapid sea voyage. He tarried with the disciples at Troas, meeting with them around the table of the Lord, and speaking words of encouragement to them. In order to be at Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost, he did not go to Ephesus, but sent for the elders of the church at Ephesus to meet him at Miletus. The picture of Paul's farewell to the Ephesian elders is a very touching one. His object in this address was to impress upon them their responsibilities. The analysis of his address has been so well made by Doctor Stiffer that it is substantially reproduced here.

I. Paul Reviews His Three Years' Ministry at Ephesus (vv. 18-21).

1. The Spirit of His Ministry (v. 19).

(1) He was humble, "serving with all humility of mind."
(2) He was tender, working for them in tears.

(3) He was faithful in the face of trials which befell him because the Jews were lying in wait for him.

2. The Diligence of His Ministry (vv. 20-21).

(1) He made known everything which was of profit unto them. This every true minister or teacher will do.

(2) He taught both in public and in private. A minister's work is not done when his pulpit ministrations are over. The effectiveness of his public work is sometimes determined by his touch with the people in their homes.

(3) He neglected no class, whether Jews or Greeks. The Christian minister must be exceedingly careful here.

3. The Theme of His Ministry (v. 21).

This was repentance and faith. Men and women need to repent of their sins and believe on the Lord Jesus Christ.

II. Paul Presents the Present State of Things (vv. 22-27).

1. His Immediate Purpose (v. 22). This was to go to Jerusalem. The constraint of the Spirit moved him to go forward though he did not know the things that should befall him there.

2. The Shadows Lying Across His Path (v. 23).

Though bonds and afflictions awaited him, he went forward to his work with undaunted courage.

3. His Fixed Purpose (v. 24).

This was to complete his ministry, which was to testify the gospel of the grace of God which he had received from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4. A Sorrowful Prediction (v. 25).

Those among whom he had labored should see his face no more.

5. He Leaves No Debt of Obligation Behind (v. 26-27).

He was pure from the blood of all men.

III. Paul Sets Forth the Ephesian Elders' Responsibility (vv. 28-35).

1. Motives to Duty (v. 25).

(1) They received their call and commission directly from the Holy Spirit.
(2) The flock for which they must care was purchased with the precious blood of Christ.

2. Perils Ahead (vv. 29-30).

(1) Grievous wolves would enter the flock and mercilessly devour them.
(2) False teachers would arise from among their number.

3. Incentives to Watch (v. 31).

Paul's own example. For three years he watched night and day with tears.

4. He Commends Them to God, and His Word (v. 32).

He knew that this Word was able to build them up.

5. He Was Unselfish in His Service (vv. 33-35).

(1) He did not covet any man's silver, gold or apparel.

(2) He labored with his own hands and taught.

IV. Paul's Prayer (vv. 36-38).

Having spoken these words he knelt and prayed with them all.

Patience

Patience is a beautiful trait, but it is not worn oftenest by those who walk on life's sunny side in silver slippers. It is the product of days of adversity. "The trial of your faith worketh patience."—Evangelical Messenger.

What Can Young People Do For International Friendship?

Matthew 28:19, 20; Acts 17:22-31; Galatians 3:26-29

International friendship, world peace, limited armament, abolition of war and a world court of justice are phrases familiar to all. The daily press, the monthly magazines and the religious journals present these matters with persistent regularity. Racial antagonism, national prejudice, class hatred, sectional and group differences all come up for discussion. The remedies devised are based on these external factors. But these surface matters are only symptoms of a malignant disease. "Every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit." There is something wrong at the root of things, some-thing needing a radical remedy. A poultice may give ease and comfort for a short time, but it is no adequate substitute for a surgical operation. The way to world peace and international friendship is not so much through changed conditions but through changed hearts.

Let us now see the bearing of our three Scripture texts upon this subject. In the first one, a remedy is prescribed for the ills of mankind. In the second, the need of this remedy is seen, and in the third, the results of its application are mentioned.

The divine remedy for humanity's ills is the applied truth of the gospel and the knowledge of God in Christ. With Matthew 28:19, 20 we should read Mark 16:15, 16 and Luke 24:47. Our Lord understands human need and sees world conditions. Over against this need and these conditions the last commission to the church abides as the only worthwhile remedy. Study it carefully.

The need of this remedy is seen in our second Scripture which contains Paul's sermon on Mars Hill. In the city of Athens, the seat of culture, the home of "Mr. Worldly Wise-Man," the apostle proclaimed God as Creator, Sustainer and Judge of all. In view of this all men everywhere are commanded to repent. Men must get right with God before they can be right with their fellows. The gospel remedy secures both. In the proclamation and promotion of this gospel our Christian young people can do the most for international friendship.

The third Scripture shows the results obtained. When the gospel is received and believed a new relationship with God follows, as clearly seen in the words, "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus."

This new relationship leads to a new character described in the words, "Ye have put on Christ." True believers become Christ-like. In verse 28 we are taught that all the old barriers and distinctions are broken down or abolished and "ye are all one in Christ Jesus." The results obtained by the application of the gospel to human need are a new relationship to God, a new character in Christ, a new liberty and a new unity.

III. Paul Presents the Present State of Things (vv. 22-27).

1. His Immediate Purpose (v. 22). This was to go to Jerusalem. The constraint of the Spirit moved him to go forward though he did not know the things that should befall him there.

Country Boy Recalls

Youthful Hardships

"You ask me my hardest battle," said Dave Patrick of Saco. "Well, sir, the toughest experience in my career was trying to get enough to eat, and never shall I forget it if I live to be as old as Methuselah. In 1866, when I was a boy of seven years, my parents sent me to the farm of a friend (?) of theirs in Saco village to work for my board. I surely got plenty of the former, but, believe me, the latter was way below par from what a youngster requires, says the Kennebec Journal.

"The women folks had no time to prepare meals, being busy making articles of clothing to sell, that being the custom in those days, and the men folks, who worked in the shingle mill, had to take pot luck with what they got to eat, so you can easily imagine how I fared. I never had more than two meals a day, and many times not that number.

"All I had to do was to take care of eight cows, two horses, a large number of hens and chickens and guinea hens, the latter keeping me more than busy chasing them back to the premises from the road. As a sideline I had the wood and water to carry, the latter necessity being brought from a well an eighth of a mile distant.

"Almost barefoot with the old shoes I was provided with, every toe on both feet became frozen, the blisters becoming so painful I took a pair of shears and clipped off the end of my toes to let the water in the blisters out. I have never fully recovered from this experience, my feet to this day being so tender that I am obliged to wear woolen stockings the year around.

"I stood the hardships I was subjected to for over a year until one day Thomas Sands of Saco came to the next farm to visit relatives, when I begged him to take me back home with him, which he did. You can easily imagine what a tickled boy I was when I landed with my father and mother once more. There, mister, is a tough experience and, take it from me, it was tough."

Act Appreciated

The three-day vaudevillians are flocking back to town, crowding Broadway about Forty-sixth street and west to the N. V. A. clubhouse. And with them, the usual tales, of which the first concerns a monologist who tried out new material, against next season, in a small Indiana town.

Guarding against failure, he instructed the orchestra leader at a signal to swing into several popular songs, of which he sang parodies; always, they say sure-fire in the Duquesne of our land. He had recourse to this expedient even sooner than he had expected. Even then the audience was coldly indifferent. Cold to parodies. Hopeless.

The manager came to speak to the monologist after the first performance. "You got a swell act," he informed the vaudevillian. "It's good stuff, even if it is too smart for this town. They don't get it. It's too wise for them. Of course, I got it. I laughed. It went over big with me.

"But, say," cautioned the manager, "you know you didn't sing the right words to them songs."—New Yorker.

Another West is passing. The old wild West went long ago, with its unfenced, free range and its picturesque cowboys. But now the West that succeeded it is going, too—the West of the homesteader. Free land has followed the free range into the limbo of far-off, forgotten things.

The West that is a land of fenced pastures and farms owned in fee simple subject to mortgage at 8 per cent, automobiles and golf courses. The homesteader is embalmed in film and book. The present farmer is like his brethren in New Hampshire and Ohio.

Where will the migration-bitten younger sons go next? Will we become another Britain, exporting youth to other continents and the islands of the sea—to such, at least, of even these as have open spaces left? Whatever the answer, America is practically "full up" so far as free land is concerned.—World's Work.

She Knew

One of the biggest attractions to the middle westerner who comes out here is the visit to the battlefields, some of which are always to be seen at San Diego, says the Los Angeles Times. Many of these visitors have never before seen the ocean, let alone a battleship, but for some reason they do not like to let this fact be known.

Thus it was with the fair young thing who was being shown about by a sailor. He had explained about yeomen, able seamen, engineers and one thing and another, and now the pretty girl pointed out another man whose insignia was different.

"That's the cox'n," explained her guide patiently. "His duty is—"

"Oh, I know," interrupted the girl. The cox'n crows the reveille, doesn't he!"

Farmer Should Not Waste His Time or Money on Doubtful Cultures.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Worthless preparations calculated to stimulate nitrogen fixation in such nonlegumes as corn, cotton, and tobacco, are being offered the farmer at the rate of a dollar a pound, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

The farmer should not waste his time or money on such doubtful preparations, cautions the department. Even the most alluring advertisements and claims should fall on deaf ears. All efforts to inoculate the seeds of nonlegumes with nitrogen-fixing bacteria have failed, says the department. Corn, wheat, oats, rye, cotton, tobacco, and other nonleguminous plants do not harbor such nitrogen-fixing bacteria in their stems and leaves, although such is the assertion of some commercial concerns engaged in the business of manufacturing and selling commercial cultures for inoculating the seed of these nonlegumes.

Cultures for Legumes.

On the other hand, the use of commercial cultures for inoculating the legumes—such as alfalfa, clover, vetch, peas, soy beans, and cowpeas—is often to be recommended. These and other legumes attain their best development if their roots have many well-developed nodules in which the nitrogen-fixing bacteria are present in large numbers. Not all soils contain these desirable bacteria in the right quantity or quality to assure a normal natural inoculation, but fortunately this lack can be supplied by the use of properly prepared commercial cultures.

Many investigators have tried to select and cultivate useful bacteria in the laboratory for the artificial inoculation of the soil or seeds of nonleguminous plants, hoping that results would be similar to those secured when the legumes are inoculated artificially. However, all efforts made in this direction have failed thus far and all such commercial cultures have been found to be without value to the farmer.

Composition of Cultures.

Usually these cultures prepared for the nonlegumes have been found to contain such substances as dried animal manure, compost, guano, phosphates, lime, and prepared humus. All of these substances are in the nature of a fertilizer and may, if relatively large amounts of them are applied in pot or small plot tests, stimulate noticeable growth. This apparently beneficial effect from the substance will be as a fertilizer and not as a nitrogen-fixing agent.

Flat Feet and Rheumatism

Many persons think they have rheumatism of the legs or back when they have flat feet or broken arches, according to Dr. Solomon Strouse in Hygeia Magazine.

A young man fell as he was escorting his lady down the aisle of a theater. Much embarrassed and fearing himself a victim of serious rheumatism, he stayed in bed nursing his illness. When he finally called on a physician, his flat feet were discovered and his illness disappeared in a pair of properly adjusted shoes.

Suiting Action to Word

The accused man appeared before the justice of the peace, accompanied by his attorney. After the defendant had told his story, the old justice of the peace cleared his throat, spat a stream of tobacco juice on the floor, and, looking sharply over his reading specs, said in a commanding voice: "Young feller you are sentenced to a year in the pen."

"But your honor," objected the defendant's young attorney, "you have no authority to sentence a man to the penitentiary."

That was something the justice had failed to take into account. "I know I ain't," he replied. "But I've already done it."—Indianapolis News.

In the Solar Plexus

The late John S. Sargent, the famous painter, who was found dead in bed with a book at his side, hated above all things the best-seller type of novel and the best-seller type of novelist.

A best-seller novelist, visiting Mr. Sargent's Tite street studio, once said: "Well, old man, you ain't the only American with an international rep. I guess mebbe you heard about the hit my last book's makin'. She's been translated into French, German, Italian and Japanese."

"Why don't you get somebody," said Mr. Sargent, "to translate it into English?" — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Our list against trespassing has received numerous additions, this week; also, there has been increased calls for card notices to be posted up. "Against hunting" is very popular this year. Some farmers say, "They won't work for us, and they can't hunt on us." They appear to be in earnest about it, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dern attended the funeral of the latter's brother's wife, Mrs. William Troxell, Graceham, who died at St. Agnes Hospital, Saturday evening, Oct. 31. About forty-five persons left Taneytown Saturday evening on an excursion to Niagara Falls, N. Y., and returned early on Monday morning. The train narrowly escaped a serious wreck at Spring Grove, when the engine and one car jumped the track. Fortunately nobody was hurt, but the train was delayed about two hours. We have been given to understand that a number of improvements are being made in the supplying of electric light and power to this section, consisting of re-locating and re-building of the substation at LeGore, Md., at a cost of almost $1,000 and the installation of additional switch board equipment at Union Bridge, at a cost of almost $2,500. These improvements will have a marked effect on the service rendered in this territory, and it is hoped that they can be completed before the first of the year.

The Hallowe'en supper held by the men of Piney Creek Presbyterian Church, last Saturday evening, was considered very successful by everyone present. Paper hats and Hallowe'en ticklers were the favors. Entertainment was furnished by radio and singing. There were about twenty gentlemen present. Supper was served by six of the ladies of the church. On Sunday morning following, the men of the church occupied the choir seats, and their efforts were received with enthusiasm.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL.

Best Things, Sometimes Easiest.

It is a curious thing, but the best things we do are usually the easiest. A lot of our greatest inventions were discovered accidentally—or nearly so. We make our best speeches when we are the most natural, and the least self-conscious. We make "hits" in many ways when we are not keyed-up with the effort of making them. The best editorial are usually written on the "spur of the moment," when we are perhaps hurrying to finish an assignment and have no time for going down deep into the intricacies of things.

Many of our most popular songs and poems have had their birth, easily—almost carelessly. But, while these are all facts, they are not the come-by-chance product of unskilled minds. Just because many good things come easily, is no foundation for a "come easy" policy on the part of people. Things that do come easy, usually come to those who have fitted themselves for the job, and who are simply at their best when natural and unstilted.

When we say "Practice makes perfect" we do not so much mean that doing one thing all the time produces skill, as we do that doing one thing and a lot of other things closely allied to it, makes perfect. A skilled oyster-shucker, for instance, never gets beyond that job; but it is the fellow who does one thing perfectly, who is at the same time training himself to do a lot of other things equally as well.

The man who makes a telling speech, on short notice, does not do so entirely by accident; for a lot of preparation lies somewhere back of it. The one who writes a great poem, or hymn, had at some time a great deal of practice in writing and mind and thought development.

All of us have laid by a lot of surplus power and equipment that we scarcely realize having. Our minds are something like refrigerators—keeping a lot of things handy for emergencies—and it is quite possible that back in some corner we stored away something we forgot about, that suddenly came to us when we needed it.

Abraham Lincoln wrote his Gettysburg address—so it is generally supposed—in a few minutes; but Mr. Lincoln had passed through years of preparation for just such a great effort—preparing himself for it subconsciously. In less important ways all of us are doing the same thing.

The sermon that is read, is rarely as effective as the extemporaneous one. This is because the very depth the fineness—the intellectuality of it—fails to reach the minds and hearts of the average listener; and that is just what counts for strength, and greatness—the influence we have over the "average listener." The good we do—likewise the evil—is not all with the "high-brows" or the "criminal classes," but with the every-day folks.
