

SALE OF BED CLOTHING COVERED BY LAW.

How Articles Must Be Prepared before Being Sold.

The following letter from the State Board of Health, was received by Auctioneer J. N. O. Smith, this week, and handed to The Record for publication. Mr. Smith is not prepared to give advice concerning this law, but will get further information as it applies to public sales or auctions of personal property;

To Auctioneers:-
Chapter 370 of the Acts of 1924, prohibits the sale, offering for sale or delivery of any mattress, pillow or comfortable, unless each of such articles bears securely attached thereto, a tag, furnished by the State Department of Health, which tag shall state the name and address of the manufacturer of such article, and of the seller, a statement of the material used in filling, preceded by the words "new", "second-hand" or "partly second-hand," and if such filling material is feathers or down, (whether new or not), or has been used before for any purpose, the number of the permit issued by this Department for sterilizing and disinfecting such feathers or used material.

No feather or down filled pillow, mattress or comfortable can be sold unless filling materials have been sterilized and disinfected in accordance with a permit, and the number of such permit is shown on the tag attached to such article.

No pillow, mattress or comfortable which contains filling material of which prior use has been made, can be sold unless such second-hand material has been sterilized and disinfected in accordance with a permit issued by this Department, and the attached tag contains the number of such permit and the words "Second-hand" or "partly second-hand".

No mattress, pillow or comfortable may be delivered after remarking or renovating unless it bears a tag on which shall be a statement that the materials used in filling are second-hand or partly second-hand, and the number of the permit issued by this Department to the person who has sterilized and disinfected such materials.

Materials taken from pillow, mattress or comfortable to be renovated or remade must be sterilized and disinfected before being used again for refilling.

Information as to method of obtaining permit or the names and address of persons to whom permits have been issued can be obtained at Room 106, No. 16 W. Saratoga Street. The tag referred to is issued by the State Department of Health, in lots of not less than 1,000, and the cost is $10.00 for each thousand. Name and address of the manufacturer, vendor and permit number will be printed on such tag without extra cost. Such tags cannot contain any additional information in such statements.

The word "mattress" shall mean any quilted pad, mattress, mattress pad, mattress protector, bunk, quilt or box spring, stuffed or filled with excelsior, straw, hay, grass, corn husks, moss, fibre, cotton, wool, hair, jute, kapok or other soft material, to be used on a couch or other bed for sleeping purposes.

The words "pillows," "bolster," or "feather bed" shall mean any bag, case or covering made of cotton or other textile material, and stuffed or filled with excelsior, straw, hay, grass, moss, fibre, cotton, wool, hair, jute, feathers, feather down, kapok or other soft material, to be used on a bed or other article for sleeping purposes.

The word "comfortable" shall mean any cover, quilt or quilted article made of cotton or other textile material, and stuffed or filled with fibre, cotton, wool, hair, jute, feathers, feather down, kapok or other soft material.

The word "new" shall mean any material or article which has not been previously manufactured or used for any purpose.

The word "second-hand" shall mean any material or article of which prior use has been made.

The word "shoddy" shall mean any material which has been spun, into yarn, knit or woven into fabric, subsequently cut up, torn up, broken up, or ground up.

The use of shoddy as a filling material for mattresses, pillows or comfortable is absolutely prohibited, and the sale of any such article in which shoddy is used is illegal.

Violation of any of the provisions of this Act carries a penalty of from $10.00 to $50.00, or imprisonment for 10 days to 6 months, and each article not tagged or tagged improperly constitutes a separate offense.

No More Liquors at the old McGinnis Distillery.

All of the liquor has been shipped from the McGinnis distillery, at Carrollton, to a more secure store house in Kentucky. Just what will be the future of the plant seems not to have been determined. It was "too easy" for liquor bandits to help themselves and make a safe get away at the old plant, and revenue officials very properly removed the opportunity.

Airplanes are now in use in some sections for dusting plants, in order to combat worms and bugs.

THE HEAVIEST SNOW.

General Throughout the North and the Middle West.

The snowfall of Tuesday night and Wednesday was the heaviest of the winter, and was general in scope from Virginia northward and as far west as the Mississippi river. The heaviest fall was in Pennsylvania, New York and New England states.

In New York City and some other sections, the snow was accompanied by wind and drifting, and snow-blockades seriously interfered with traffic.

The snow in this section fell to the depth of about 8 inches, but without drifting. A depth of 10 inches is reported for Baltimore.

In Allegany and Garrett, where the former snow still lies thick on the ground, the total depth of snow is now, not inches, but feet, in depth. In the open country, at places, the small buildings and fences are covered.

Many blockades on the county roads were reported, on Thursday, and automobiles had a hard time wading through, especially when passing each other and turning. There were very few accidents reported, and fortunately there was but little wind after the fall.

The Small Number of Sales.

The Adams County Independent, in an article commenting on the small number of sales of farm personal, this year, reaches the following conclusions;

"The passing of the sale is attributed to a number of developments, one of which is the difficulty in selling farms under present conditions. This results in owners staying on their properties rather than selling at a sacrifice. Another reason is the scarcity of tenant farmers who can get one farm one year and another the next. Men who once get a good farm to work 'on the shares' stay there. The third reason is the generally unsatisfactory prices received in recent years for stock and machinery. This is ascribed to the passing of horses and mules and substitutes of motorized equipment. Farmers who bought their stock and machinery will not sacrifice them, but prefer to keep and use them.

The final reason has been the popularity of a new system of selling farms whereby the purchaser buys not only the real estate but all the live stock and equipment on the place wholesale. This has resulted in bringing in many residents from other states and at the same time has put to an end the auctioning of each item separately."

Rev. Gonso Moves to Frederick.

Rev. John H. Gonso, who has been a resident of Carroll County for the past fifteen years and pastor for twelve years of the Church of God at Carrollton, Westminster and other charges, has moved his family to Frederick, 617 Park Place. For the last three years he has been doing evangelistic work exclusively, traveling over all parts of the United States.

Those present at the flitting were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Orrison and children, Elliot, Ralph, Glen, Herman and Laura, Augustus Wachter, daughter, Helen; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Shaffer, son, Ezra; Mrs. Joseph Reeder, son, Edward; John Gonso, Sr., daughter, Clara; Miss Clara Falk, Glen Shaffer, Miss Edna Shaffer, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Kemp, daughter, Lillian; Mrs. Sherwood Smith, Mrs. Charles Stanley, all of Frederick; Mrs. Lydia McClellan, Mrs. John Baker, son, Charles and Miss Edna Angel, of New Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reeder, Woodsboro; Mr. and Mrs. John Shaffer and Charles Biddle, Charlesville, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. John Masemore, Carrollton, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Taylor, Westminster.

Dr. Gotwald Died Suddenly.

Rev. Dr. Frederick G. Gotwald, a prominent Lutheran minister, of York, Pa., died suddenly in Harrisburg, Pa., on Feb. 4, while engaged in playing a game of chess in a contest between Harrisburg and York players. He complained of not feeling well during the evening, and shortly after play began, fell forward and died instantly, a victim of a heart attack. He was 58 years of age.

Dr. Gotwald has always been active in ministerial circles. During the 34 years of his service he had held many high positions in both local and national Lutheran capacities. Up until the time of his death, Dr. Gotwald was executive secretary of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran Church of America. Besides this, he was instrumental in founding the Trinity Lutheran Church, the Augsburg Lutheran Church and the Chapel of the Advent, York. He was a member of the Lutheran Board of Missionaries and the York Engineering Society.

Dr. Gotwald leaves, besides his widow, Mrs. Julia A. Small Gotwald, two sons, the Rev. Dr. Luther Gotwald, a missionary to India, and David E. S. Gotwald, at home; a daughter, Mary Fulton Small Gotwald, a student at the Elmira College for Women, at Elmira, N. Y.; two sisters, Mrs. H. C. Pontius, Canton, O., and Mrs. Glen M. Cummings, East Cleveland, O.; a brother, Robert C. Gotwald, Springfield, O., and four grand-children, three of whom are residing in India.

There are two Democratic candidates for Sheriff of Carroll County, already in the field; Messrs Harry C. Hesson and Augustus G. Hamby.

FARMERS WARNED TO PRODUCE LESS.

World Production is Greater Than World Consumption.

The Department of Agriculture, in an outlook report just issued, advises farmers against any expansion in production this year, on the ground that there is likely not to be any increased foreign demand this year, and that overproduction is apt to mean lower prices.

It frankly admits that farmers are not receiving a fair profit on their products, and sees no chance of relief in the direction of lower wages or lower production costs for the next year ahead. The report says that in general farmers of the whole country are in a better position than five years ago, but that world production in the past two years has exceeded world consumption.

The general admission is made that "farm products taken all together still stand at a disparity in exchange for industrial goods and services and the warning is given that 'any general expansion in production at this time would tend to place agriculture in a less favorable economic position.'"

The report also contains the significant statement that "certain basic industries are now adjusting their future production schedules for a lower domestic demand during 1926-1927" and that is a reason why agriculture should do likewise.

"The present prospects in foreign markets are that the demand for most of the products of our farms in 1926 will be no better than for the products of 1925, if as good, unless the competing products of foreign countries should be reduced by a less favorable season. Although the purchasing power of consumers in most countries for the products which they will have to import may be as good or better than in the past year, recovering domestic production and the imposition of protective tariffs is reducing the demand in some countries for foreign products, and competition in all foreign markets probably will be at least as strong as last year."

Taken as a whole the statements in the document sound very similar to the arguments which have been made and are being made by the advocates of farm legislative by Congress.

The Baltimore Sun, in commenting on the farmer situation in general, is of the opinion that the best chance of relief to farmers is through a revision of the tariff. It says:

"It is true, beyond controversy, that the petted manufacturer and industrialist is selling his things to the farmer at a high level of artificially stimulated prices, and that he and his employees are buying the farmers' things at economic prices. The work of readjustment of tariff rates must be done moderately; vindictive slashing, however it might be justified by facts and figures, will not be wise, for it will lead to depressions and probably to a revulsion of popular feeling in favor of another tariff wall. But cautiously and sensibly, the Government should set about undoing the indubitable injustice under which the farmers now live.

Tariff readjustment really is the most that the Government or the people can do directly in aid of the farmers. But indirectly the Government may do something to help the farmers to help themselves through the medium of co-operative marketing and purchasing. That is essentially a work which the farmers and their leaders must perform. But as they work out their problems the Government should stand prepared to aid in any way that is compatible with the unescapable fact that the problem of the co-operatives is in its very nature simply one of efficient business methods, and that efficient methods in any business must be organized by that business, not by the Government. Perhaps there are other tidbits of help that the Government may give, such as reduction in freight rates. But it is easier to over play the value of such than to change the farmers' status thereby.

There is little else that can be done. Schemes for purchase of exportable surpluses by the Government, involving governmental price-fixing, will not do. It is natural that the Government ought to equalize favors by fixing the prices of their products. But that would only pyramid for the whole country the evil of paternalism that farmers soon or late the structure would topple, everybody would suffer, and the farmers in particular would find their last case worse than their first."

Fire Protection for the Farm.

An interesting method of providing fire protection for the rural district adjacent to Albion, Michigan, has been devised by the Chamber of Commerce in that city, which obtained a subscription of twenty-five dollars apiece from the farmers residing within a radius of ten miles of the metropolis. The fund amounted altogether to six thousand dollars and was used to purchase a truck equipped with four chemical tanks carrying 140 gallons of chemicals and a water pumper capable of projecting 250 gallons of water a minute. The sum also covered the cost of various additional items of equipment and necessary apparatus.

COAL STRIKE POLITICS.

Nagging the President to Do What Congress Ought to Do.

Throughout the week, members of the Senate have been trying to find ways in which to force President Coolidge to intervene in the coal strike. These members are largely anti-administration Senators who are trying to make the country believe that President Coolidge ought to "do something" that the Senate itself refuses to do—in other words, they are "passing the buck" for political effect.

In the meantime, the miners refuse to go to work at old wages, and take the chance of having anybody, or any committee, or power "arbitrate" the questions in dispute. The only thing the President could do, therefore, would be to suggest that they return to work. He can not compel them to do so, nor to accept any wages or rules that they do not agree to.

The Senate can at any time give the President the authority to declare an "emergency" situation; and order that the mines be opened and operated by the government—providing the government can find legally licensed miners who will work at the wages offered by the government.

Congress can also "do something"—if it has the power. The President does not make laws, Congress does. When the President assumes such authority, the Senate is always ready to jump on him for exceeding his authority, and using "the big stick."

A feature of the situation that the critics of the President seem to overlook, is the fact that Pennsylvania's Senators are not requesting action; and also, that the Pennsylvania legislature is now assembled in special session, one of the objects of which is to handle this very question.

Should the President attempt to intervene, critics for political capital would find fault with the style of his intervention; and in case it should fail, would criticize it again for "coming too late." Perhaps though both of the strike principals are tired of their costly fight, and would welcome intervention by the President as a way for them to come down off their high perch? They could then say one did not "give up" to the other. But, there would still be the open, unsettled question, as to who shall decide between them, when they disagree again.

The question is too big to be settled by such moral suasion as even the President might give—except very temporarily. It is a question, in fact, that goes very far beyond the coal strike, and everybody knows it but fears to strike at the root of the trouble—largely for partisan reasons—the fear of the votes and influence controlled by, let us say, capital and labor, and their influence on coming elections.

The Senate finally managed to pass a resolution calling on the President to call the operators and miners to a conference at the White House at such time as he might select, but by common consent the resolution meant nothing. At any rate, the President at once sent reply that he does not expect to call such a conference, and that he thought Executive interference would make matters worse than better. Both Congress, and the legislature of Pennsylvania, can act with authority, whenever they want to do so.

The President is as desirous of ending the strike as anybody, but knows his lack of authority, and is said to favor action that would give him the authority, such as he requested of Congress two years ago when a Commission was asked for that would decide who was responsible for strikes, and thus arraign public sentiment against the guilty party and be of service in arbitrating differences.

TAIT GIVES VIEWS ON RITCHIE RECORD.

Says a Third Term Means More Individual Power.

Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, on Monday, issued a statement attacking Gov. Ritchie's administration, and his announced candidacy for a third term. He says Ritchie is already the most powerful American Governor, and his powers have been swallowing up the co-ordinate powers of the state. He says in part;

"Through laws he furthered, some in the name of reform, Governor Ritchie now alone makes thousands of official appointments; alone frames a $19,000,000 annual budget; through pretended reorganization has absorbed centralized executive functions without diminishing one job; through holding back the 'green bag' and 'budget' till late in the session controls the four-year Legislature; in effect, makes laws as well as executes them."

"The General Assembly, all commissions and boards, the university, State-aided agencies, very numerous state and county appointees, county election boards, Baltimore city police, election and judicial magistrates—all are in the hollow of his hand."

"Governor Ritchie declares for State rights while violating the only State instrument which declares them the Maryland Declaration of Rights. Article 34 says: 'That a long continuance in the executive departments of power or trust is dangerous to liberty; a rotation, therefore, in those departments is one of the best securities of permanent freedom.'"

"He broadly asserts State rights against the nation while denying local county and city rights against the State."

"The priceless water rights of the Susquehanna at Conowingo have been given to Philadelphia companies. At the same time the Arundel Corporation—composed of Governor Ritchie's third-term supporters and friends—lands a $22,000,000 cost-plus Conowingo construction contract."

"Under Governor Ritchie, formerly an attorney for them, the Philadelphia-owned race-tracks by law received an air-tight, legal race-gambling monopoly, with absurdly inadequate revenue for the State."

"While legalized race-track betting continues in Maryland, the golden privilege should pay the State a fair division of the easy profits."

Meat Story Contest.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 11.—University scholarships are the goal of high school girls who will compete in the Third National Meat Story Contest, now getting under way throughout the United States. Headquarters of the National Live Stock and Meat Board has sent out formal announcement of the contest's opening to high school home economics instructors in every state. The contest is conducted annually as an aid to class-room study of meat, according to information obtained from the Board. Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and other authorities in this field, have co-operated in making the project a success in the past, it said.

High School girls who compete in the contest are required to write a story on some phase of the meat subject which it to their liking. The story must not exceed 1,500 words. With this story a contestant also must submit three meat recipes which she has tested.

The plan as made public by the Board provides for prizes totaling $2,140. A portion of this amount will be in cash awards, but it is pointed out that the scholarships constitute the major prizes. Awarding of prizes has been arranged so that girls in every state will share in them, it was said.

"Approximately 30,000 girls, representing every state, have competed in the past," said R. C. Pollock, general manager of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. "A large number of instructors feel that the contest is a splendid idea and have urged that it be continued year after year. This wide-spread interest prompted the plans for the third contest. April 15 has been set as the closing date."

Three Pastors in 80 Years.

The Second Presbyterian Church, Richmond, Va., although 80 years old, has just installed its third pastor. The first was Rev. Dr. Moses D. Hoge, who served from 1845 to 1899. Rev. Dr. Russell Cecil, the next pastor, served from 1900 until his death last summer. The third pastor, Rev. Dr. William E. Hill, has just entered upon his duties, his fourth charge.

Another Country Mill Burned.

The general custom grist mill owned by Levi Devilbiss, on the road from Unionville to Mt. Airy, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin, last Saturday night. The mill was completely destroyed, with all of its contents, including some recently installed machinery. The mill was built in 1865. The adjoining dwelling caught fire, but the flames were extinguished by neighbors. The mill had not been operated for about six weeks. It was partly covered by insurance.

MILK TRANSPORTATION.

A Case of Interest to All Dairy Farmers.

The recent decision of Judge Ullman, of Baltimore City, in the case of the Western Maryland Dairy Company vs. the State of Maryland in which he granted the request of the dairy company for an injunction restraining the state of Maryland from collecting a franchise tax from the company and from arresting its drivers, has aroused the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation to the necessity of securing, if possible, a reversal of this court decision, if our dairy farmers are to retain a free and open market for their milk products.

Up to this time, the various private milk-hauling trucks, the co-operative milk trucks and even trucks of the dairy company itself, have been required, under the law, to secure a permit from the Public Service Commission in order to operate over a definite route and on a definite schedule and to charge a definite fixed rate for carrying the milk. These rates, routes and schedules all have to be approved by the Public Service Commission, and, in addition, they were required to pay a franchise tax to the state of Maryland, through the Automobile Commissioner's Office, on a ton mile basis for the privilege of having a protected route and for the privilege of operating as a common carrier over the roads of the state of Maryland.

The Maryland Farm Bureau Federation has employed counsel and will represent the farmers in the Maryland Court of Appeals when this case comes up for trial this month. This is a time when it is necessary for every dairy farmer in the state to rally to the support of the Farm Bureau organization because this case affects every milk producer.

We are going to need the active, moral support of every milk producer in the state and we are going to need his financial contribution to help this important matter, especially if it resolves itself into a legislative problem before the next legislature. Recently, nine of our dairymen were arrested in Talbot County which is in Interstate Milk Producers' Association territory. Our farmers in the Maryland-Virginia territory are likewise vitally interested because this same transportation problem is involved in transporting their milk to Washington. Of course this particular case has its direct bearing in the Baltimore territory.—Md. Farm Bureau Federation.

Tell Us the News.

Many good items of news are lost to the newspapers by the modesty of the people who hesitate to tell the reporters and editors of matters concerning themselves. Not that they do not want it in print, but that they are afraid they would be pushing themselves forward. This is the wrong idea. From the editor's standpoint the man who will stop a newspaper contributor on the street and inform him that he has been away to some other city, that he is going to get married, or his wife entertained friends, is the best man alive. May his like increase throughout the earth. If you have done anything mean or disreputable it isn't necessary to tell it, for there are always people who will do that for you. It is the good things about yourself and your neighborhood that the newspaper men want you to give them.—Exchange.

Proposal Comes Too Late.

York, Pa., Feb. 6.—Fifty-five years is the time it required George C. Krumrine, now living in Indianapolis, to summon courage to propose to the girl he loved, and when he did she had been dead 25 years.

The letter was addressed to Miss Susan Willett, of Littleton. No one knew her. Inquiry revealed she was the mother of William Formwalt, to whom the letter was given.

"If you are not married, I would never go away from you again," Krumrine wrote in his letter.

The girl Krumrine left behind was married to the late John Formwalt, who died three years ago. His wife died in 1900.—Pittsburgh Post.

An Unusual Coal Dealer.

John E. Larney a coal dealer in Brooklyn, N. Y., is supplying his old customers with real anthracite coal at $14.95 a ton delivered, the same price as before the strike. He has been in business 57 years, and says he does not see any justice in advancing prices. He bought 5000 tons last summer before the strike. Other dealers are selling coal at from $28.50 to $30.00. Larney will likely be able to hold his customers in the future.

$33,000 For Roads.

The Montgomery county Commissioners have passed an order authorizing the issue of $33,000 in bonds to provide Montgomery's share of the cost of construction in the county this year of lateral and post roads, to be selected by the State Roads Commission. One-fourth of the cost of such roads is paid by the county, a similar part by the Federal Government and one-half by the State Roads Commission.

Who Writes Editorials?

Every great newspaper has a corps of editorial writers who wield a great deal of wide influence. Their opinions are copied and verbally repeated, thousands of times a day. As a rule, they are men of great width of information; what they say must be based on fact; it must be worth reading; it must be a credit to the great newspapers which they represent.

Their editorials are frequently made use of in Congress and published in the Congressional Record. If readers want to know what it thought of certain big questions in New York, Philadelphia of Chicago, they read the editorials in the leading newspapers in these cities—and nobody knows the author of them. They are part of "the job" of somebody unknown to the public.

Recently, we read the statement, made in all seriousness, that editorial writers on New York "papers" were "now being paid almost as much" as composers and machinists in the offices of publication. Think of that! Yet these hard-working specimens of intellectuality, who might themselves be excellent material for Senators and members of the House, are rarely known by name—and, it isn't fair.

The name of an Editor-in-Chief may be given at the head of an editorial page, but the chances are he merely directs what topics shall be written-up, and perhaps the general tenor of what shall be said, but the real composition and architecture of the editorials is left to assistants, who are submerged to give all prominence possible to the newspaper itself.

We think it would be a splendid idea, and a piece of tardy justice, for the writers of editorials to be lifted out of their present obscurity. There was a time when Greeley, Watterson, Dana, and others, were known worldwide, as great editors; and all of these have their equals of today, but they are not given even the prominence of initials to their productions. We wonder why?

Chronic Objectors.

A certain small number of Senators opposed the World Court, and most of the same ones are now fighting sections of the Federal Tax Reduction Bill. The same line-up has been opposing a lot of things that the larger number favored, for quite a while, and the country is now pretty well agreed that these men are chronic objectors.

These objectors are not an unmixed evil, if we seek grounds for their defense, as they do help to fully ventilate important topics; but it is uncomplimentary to other Senators to assume that all necessary ventilation and discussion would not be given, should not the "chronics" be there to launch it.

It seems almost as though these noted obstructionists can not be satisfied to have somebody else originate legislation, and get the credit for it. It also seems a matter of plain fact, that the objectors, as a rule, are also ready debaters, and perhaps like to make a display of their talent. They just seem not to be able to bear seeing a Bill of any sort go through, without their having the chance to occupy a large lot of time on the floor, and space in the Congressional Record.

This may be unfair criticism, but the history of public events in Congress during the past ten years, shows that a comparatively few—and largely the same few—are entitled to whatever honor may be attached to delaying legislation.

These men are not influenced by the fact that the biggest men, mentally, in the country may oppose them, because they consider themselves also among the "big men"—men fully equipped to be President, Secretary of State, Attorney General, or any other high officials; and feeling so, have the courage of their convictions and are unafraid.

They enliven the political landscape, and besides, must be taken as representative of their folks back home. So, while they at times become tiresome, and the suspicion is strong that they disport themselves for mere notoriety, the chances are that they play an important part in legislation; for good legislation that is not strong enough to get by obstructions, is perhaps not good enough to get by.

The Delusionsists May Yet be Deluded

The other day in the Baltimore Sun, this sentence appeared in an editorial: "The saddest and the most dangerous thing about the Prohibition Delusion is that it has led so many good men and women into the invincible state of intellectual error which the Bible bluntly describes as 'believing a lie.'"

So, we have a "Prohibition Delusion?" This is partly true in Maryland, and in a few Eastern states, and in some big "wet" western cities. But, even where the "delusion" is greatest, conditions are fully 100 percent "drier" than before prohibition.

It is newspapers like The Sun, and big men in politics and public office, who cater to meet sentiment and patronage, that causes the present extent of the "delusion." If all of these, and others who violate the Prohibition laws, like the company they are in, and the attitude they take against sobriety and morality, just now there seems to be no block to their enjoyment.

But, some day they may find themselves deluded, for we believe there is a big majority—even in Maryland—who are actually and conscientiously sincere in their advocacy of prohibition, and some day perhaps they will get together in an effort to put a new regime in power, and see that prohibition laws are enforced.

And these laws can be, and will be, enforced, just as soon as the newspapers and public officials stop lending encouragement to the law-breakers who are responsible for the present "delusion."

There are some things about the lack of enforcement of prohibition laws, and lack of observance of the Constitution of the U. S., that we have never been able to understand. We can understand how most of said violators claim it as a "personal liberty" to get liquors for their own indulgence, regardless of law; but, how they can be willing to place this selfish "personal liberty" ahead of the common good, and practically keep company with the whole body of intemperate of the country, we cannot understand.

We can understand how many a man can sufficiently control himself to use liquors temperately, and to be have within the law in general; but, we can not understand why such men will not make a sacrifice of their personal preferences for the common good—for the protection of society against those who can not, or will not, exercise control over their liquor appetites.

That they are not willing to forego their moderate indulgence in liquors, in order that lives of women, and children, and the public in general, may be made safe against "drunken drivers" on our public highways. Even such a prized possession as "personal liberty" has its limitation—when it interferes with an equal right to the liberty and safety of others.

Politics at Harrisburg.

In the deep game of politics that is being played at Harrisburg the victory should go to that side which plays the cleanest game, not necessarily the most adroit or skillful. There must be some, at least, of the leaders in the Republican Organization who can distinguish between what is good and what is bad politics. It will be good politics, for example, to do what is right and very bad politics to refuse to do the right thing merely because the other side wants it done.

This newspaper never was convinced that there was any real emergency that justified the call for the extra session of the Legislature. But it has been repeatedly pointed out in these columns that, being in session, the Legislature should not lose the opportunity to enact some of the measures advocated by Governor Pinchot. The proposals for the amendment of the election laws are for the most part timely and excellent and ought to be passed. And the two bills for strengthening the hands of the Executive for law enforcement are in the same class.

Opponents of these measures will expose themselves to the natural imputation that they want to protect ballot crooks and prevent clean elections and that they do not want law enforcement. There is a powerful element, of course, that is outspoken in its objection to the enforcement of the prohibitory liquor laws. But the logic of the position is held by those who believe that even an unpopular law should be obeyed and that the only certain and legal way to get rid of an unpopular law is to enforce it.

Consistency is an essential element of good politics. To be consistent, therefore, the Republican organization should stand for law enforcement. It should realize that the issue between the dries and wets is not a partisan one. And it should awake to the fact that it will do itself far more harm than good if it plays into the hands of Governor Pinchot, whom it regards as unworthy to represent the State in the United States Senate, by permitting him to stand as the sole advocate of clean elections and law enforcement.—Phila. Ledger.

The Purpose of Laws.

Congress meets for three general purposes: First, to fulfill the requirements of Constitutional law; second, to pass constructive legislation; and third, to satisfy national whims. Conditions do not change as rapidly as we are sometimes led to believe. There is too much of a national and state-wide hunger and thirst after unnecessary legislation. The result is, the national and civic mind is cluttered up no less than are the statute books.

If all demands for legislation could be limited to this simple formula the country would be better off; only such laws should be enacted as will guarantee and protect the rights of persons and property. But the formula is too flexible. Any lobbyist could claim that his pet bill came within the requirements. The real sore spot is in the matter of regulation. The majority of people are sober, honest and law-abiding. So it is, unfortunately, that the same law that curbs the refractory fellow makes also the ninety and nine toe the mark, lock the step; it binds them in a maze of red tape and seeks to purify their already untainted consciences.

When society awakens sufficiently to modify the obstreperous and immoral conduct of its troublesome minority there will come relief; not only because of the direct wholesome influence, but in releasing its enduring majority from the shackles of restraint. In doing this, the world still has a man-sized job on its hands.—Apopka (Florida) Chief.

Unlucky Interference

A high ranking army officer, vain of his prowess at billiards, challenged a lieutenant to a game. The latter was a skilled player, but for the sake of policy, decided to let the other defeat him. He wanted to make the game close, however, and kept his score even with that of the high ranking officer's. Then the lieutenant had to make a shot that would decide the game. He, of course, intended to miss, but just as he was about to shoot, another lieutenant, who feared the consequences to his friend if he should win, twitched his arm, with the result that the shot went true and the lieutenant won the game.

Change Room's "Scenery"

Nothing is so refreshing in a room as to change its scenery. The pictures are its scenery, and a change of pictures on the walls does more than anything else to give fresh interest to the room. These pictures, which are magic windows in the home, may in their varying aspects give us new fields for the imagination, and isn't it always pleasant to wander in new fields and to receive new inspiration that comes with this? So let us follow the custom of the Japanese, that nation of artists, and change the pictures that hang on our walls from time to time.

Care of Gutters

When the tinner puts up the gutters on your house make certain that they are set in such a way that they drain in the direction in which they were intended, and that they are supported at frequent intervals.

Home builders are often disappointed because the gutters rust away, but they do not stop to think that the life of this part of the roof could be prolonged by keeping it clean.

Ants' Sense of Direction

Naturalists once thought that ants returned to their home through the forests of grassblades, weeds, sticks, etc., by scent, following their own track back. As a matter of fact an ant seldom goes back over the out-bound trail, and there is considerable evidence that it relies more on the mysterious general sense of direction than on sight or any other particular sense.—Our Dumb Animals.

Get Along Without Fork in Abyssinia

The following is a description of entertainment given the servants of a traveler in Abyssinia in which raw meat formed the menu. Eight of the leading members of the caravan who had been invited to the feast entered and seated themselves in a circle on the dirt floor of the house. Two of the chieftain's servants then entered, bearing a sheep suspended from a long pole. The carriers stood outside the circle. The visiting men pulled out their knives and cut off strips of flesh until they were satisfied. Little more than a skeleton remained when they had finished. The usual method of eating is to remove a large piece of meat attached to a bone. The bone is held in the hand and with the knife a small piece of meat is loosened by a cut from the base of the chunk. The piece is not entirely severed, but remains attached at the tip. The loose end is then grasped in the teeth and the other end freed with a second upward cut. To an observer it appears that the diners are in constant and imminent danger of severing the ends of their noses.

Saltcellar in Use as Table Ornament

The word "saltcellar" is a combination of "salt" and "saler," assimilated in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth centuries to "cellar," meaning a storehouse. There are two types of ancient saltcellars, the large ornamental "salt," which during the Medieval ages and later, was one of the most important pieces of household plate; and the smaller "salt," actually used and placed near the plates or trenchers of the guests at table, and termed "trencher salts."

In Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, there is a salt vat, or cellar, that once belonged to Archbishop Parker. It is of gold and silver and is beautifully carved, standing about five inches high. The Bishop Fox salt vat at Oxford is another famous piece. In ancient times the large ornamental "salt" acted as a dividing line at table between the high-born and those of more lowly origin, whose allotted place was "below the salt."—Dearborn Independent.

Toofus

Toofus say to old Chief Cut Plug of Flatfoot tribe: "How about some valuable glass beads which I will trade you for fox pelts?"

Chief laugh and say: "Toofus, I told you that is old stuff since before the time of Chief Complanter. You cannot fool educated Indians with glass beads. But since you are so full of business, lemme sell you some building lots in Fort Mink."

"Lots in tamarack swamp," say Toofus.

"They may be a little damp."

"Four feet of water. That is how damp they are."

Chief grin and walk away.

"That Indian will do me," say Toofus, "if I not watch out. He is unscrupulous." — Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Barebones" a Nickname

A so-called parliament of England was summoned by Oliver Cromwell after he had made himself supreme in the three kingdoms of England, Scotland and Ireland. Cromwell summoned 122 persons whom he thought he could manage. One member was a Puritan named Barbon, and this name, extended into barebone, was applied in ridicule to the assembly which became known as "Barebone's parliament." It was suddenly dissolved on December 13, 1653.

LEADING HARDWARE DEALERS

POULTRY

FEED LAYING HENS IN COLD WEATHER

In feeding laying hens, only one-half to one-third as much of the scratch feed should be fed in the morning as in the evening, according to the instructions accompanying a list of rations for laying hens recently compiled by T. A. Bittenbender of the poultry husbandry department, Iowa State college.

He states that the mash feeds should be left before the birds at all times. It should be fed in self-feeding hoppers. It has been found that mash moistened with hot water or buttermilk fed in the middle of the morning will increase the egg production noticeably during the winter months.

The green feed should be fed at noon or soon after. Sprouted oats, steamed alfalfa leaves, cabbage, beets, mangles or a small amount of fresh silage will answer the purpose. Green feeds and mash are very essential, according to Mr. Bittenbender, for the highest possible production of eggs during the winter months.

Some scratch formulae which Mr. Bittenbender recommends are as follows: 200 pounds of corn to 100 pounds of oats; or 200 pounds of corn, 200 pounds of wheat and 100 pounds of oats. For a mash formula the following is recommended: 100 pounds bran, 100 pounds middlings or shorts, 100 pounds ground oats, 100 pounds ground corn, 50 pounds tankage, 5 pounds salt, 20 pounds bone meal and 20 pounds of ground limestone. To this as much liquid buttermilk, sour skim milk or paste buttermilk as the birds will consume should be added. Forty pounds of dried buttermilk can be substituted for the liquid milk.

Cheap, but Ideal Floor

Eight inches of cinders, gravel or crushed rock covered with about two inches of rich cement will make a cheap but ideal floor for the poultry house. The porous material under the cement will tend to keep the floor dry. The filling should be tamped until it forms a solid base for the concrete.

Hollow tile forms perhaps a more satisfactory base for the cement, and only one-half inch of cement is needed to cover a carefully laid floor. It is more expensive than the other filler. It should be laid on a layer of sand and then covered with rich cement to make a smooth surface which is more easily cleaned.

Nebraska Station Gives

Ration for Laying Hens

The ration for laying hens should have yellow corn as its basis and also contain mineral, animal protein, and a green feed. Cracked yellow corn as a scratch feed and sprouted oats for a succulent feed, plus a self-fed dry mash made up of 150 pounds of corn meal, 150 pounds of shorts, 100 pounds of bran, and 100 pounds of meat meal or tankage is recommended as Ration No. 1 by the new Nebraska Station Circular 33. Three other rations are listed on the back page and the circular as a whole deals with principles and methods of feeding for an average of above 150 eggs per hen per year.

Try Sprouted Oats

There is nothing that does more to promote egg production and the general health of the fowls during the winter months than sprouted oats. This is such a cheap feed and oats are so easily sprouted that it is surprising that there should still be some breeders who do not regularly feed sprouted oats to their birds. A good sprouter should be considered a necessity on every poultry plant. They can be had in many forms and in any size to suit the largest as well as the smallest poultry raiser. If you have never fed sprouted oats, try it.

Poultry Notes

If houses and coops are not kept clean lice and mites take control of things.

Don't forget gravel for the hens when snow covers the ground—it's their teeth.

Make a close examination frequently to see whether birds are gaining or losing in weight.

Health, vigor and vitality must be maintained in poultry if winter eggs are to be obtained.

Resolve that this year, if never before, you will supply plenty of litter and see that it is changed often.

One authority says that eggs from hens fed milk freely will hatch better and produce more vigorous chicks.

Convenience for both hens and caretaker should be considered when building a poultry house. Convenience means cleanliness and cleanliness means health. The arrangement of fixtures such as water stands, nests, roosts and droppings board, broody coop and mash hopper should be such as to promote ease of cleaning and saving of labor in caring for the flock.

Watch Incubator During Hatching

Supply of Heat, Moisture and Ventilation Is of Much Importance.

Incubators are in use during winter on many farms and in commercial hatcheries from which young chicks are supplied to the trade. To be successful with the hatch, the incubator must be carefully looked after.

A fertile egg with a strong germ will hatch into a strong, vigorous chick if care is taken in supplying the proper heat, plenty of moisture, sufficient ventilation, and the egg is turned. A chick hatches normally in 21 days but the amount of heat determines this time and if the eggs are kept too hot, the chicks may hatch in 19 or 20 days.

Heat in Incubator. According to A. G. Oliver, poultry extension specialist at the North Carolina State college, the heat occurs in the incubator in layers and for best results should be 103 degrees on top of the eggs, 100 degrees at the middle of the eggs and 97 at the bottom. During cold weather the heat zones are narrower and where air is forced through the machine, the heat is properly distributed.

Mr. Oliver states that moisture in the incubator is next in importance to heat. Too much moisture prevents evaporation and causes the chick to become strangled with liquid in its attempt to breathe. Too little moisture causes such quick evaporation that the air cell is so large the chick cannot break the shell to get out. It reduces the amount of food in the egg and results in a small, undersized chick being hatched.

Benefit of Ventilation. Ventilation brings to the egg oxygen and takes away the poisonous carbon dioxide gas. The chick is a factory, says Mr. Oliver, using the oxygen and egg material to build a body and expelling the gas. Thus it is important to ventilate the incubator so as to adjust this process to correct proportions. By carefully turning the eggs, all of these things are equalized in the egg and the embryo is given exercise.

Mr. Oliver advises anyone first beginning to run an incubator to write for a free bulletin telling how to do it.

Common Salt or Flake

Naphthalene for Fleas

W. P. Flint, Illinois state entomologist, recommends common salt or flake naphthalene for fleas.

The best method for fleas is first to clean out the manure or straw from pig or cattle sheds or from barns, especially in the case of dirt floors, where farm animals are in the habit of lying down or standing. The ground or floor of the building should then be covered with a good layer of salt, enough being put on to form a thin white coating over the ground. This should be allowed to remain in place for at least a week and then washed down, or it may be allowed to stay until it gradually dissolves.

Flake naphthalene may be substituted for the salt. The crude flake naphthalene can be bought in bulk. A strong lye solution applied to the soil also has been used effectively for cleaning up the young fleas. If the salt or naphthalene cannot be applied, the floors or ground around the infested premises should be thoroughly sprayed with a strong stock dip, preferably a creosote, or tobacco dip.

Large Fowls Appreciate

Roosts Built Very Low

For the large fowls low roosts should be used, as they cannot reach high ones without a ladder, and in dropping from them are very apt to injure themselves. A roosting frame, made for Asiatic fowls, is made of chestnut strips two inches square, with the edges of the upper part rounded off to make them easy to the feet of the fowls. Three of these strips are fastened to frames made of the same material for supports. The whole is fastened to the wall by rings fixed in staples, so that it can be turned up and held against the wall by a hook. It is twelve feet long, three feet wide, and should stand eight inches from the wall and about one foot from the floor.

Poplar Is Undesirable

for Street or Lawn Use

The poplars are poor trees at best. They are dirty and short-lived and break easily. They are of value where a quick-growing screen or shelter of a temporary nature is desired, but are undesirable for street or lawn planting. After all, any of the so-called slow-growing trees are not so slow if they are given a fair chance. Many of the oaks are fairly rapid growers and among the best of trees, being hardy, sturdy and long-lived. The sycamore and tulip trees are also receiving attention as desirable trees for city and suburban planting. The best time to plant young trees, all things considered, is in the spring.

Big Loss of Lambs

Many lambs are lost each spring because they all come in just a few nights, and proper care cannot be given them. The lambing period can be exactly controlled and extended over a two weeks' period, by allowing only a part of the ewes to run with the ram at a time, changing the flock every few days. It gives the caretaker the opportunity to work with each lamb needing attention.

CORRESPONDENCE

Latest Items of Local News Furnished
By Our Regular Staff of Writers

All communications for this department must be signed by the author; nor for publication, but as an evidence that the items contributed are legitimate and correct. Items based on mere rumor, or such as are likely to give offense, are not wanted. We desire correspondence to reach our office on Thursday, if at all possible. It will be necessary, therefore, for most letters to be mailed on Wednesday, or by Fast Mail, west, on W. M. R. R., Thursday morning. Letters mailed on Thursday evening may not reach us in time.

MANCHESTER.

Inasmuch as Manchester, Greenmount and Hampstead are very closely linked together by buildings which in the future will perhaps become one large town, will include news from the two latter places.

The merchants of Hampstead have agreed to do a wise thing. At a meeting recently held by the merchants, barbers and business houses of the town, it was decided to close their places on Wednesdays and Fridays of each week, at 6 P. M. The plan had been under discussion for some time but a final decision was not reached until this week, when all of the owners met and thoroughly talked over the question.

It was brought out in the meeting that many of the stores that remained open until 10, 11 or 12 o'clock each night during the week, have been doing it at a loss. The expense of light and help was far above the amount of profit derived from the evening's sales.

Perhaps this will inconvenience a few for a short time, or until it becomes generally known that the stores of Hampstead are not open on the above nights, then the people will arrange to go to the various places as they do when they go to the blacksmith shop. They know the shop closes in the evening and because of this knowledge leave home in time. It is hoped that Manchester may catch the same disease. Of course, loafers are hard hit.

Albert F. Snyder, a former resident of this community, but now a retired mail carrier, of Baltimore, gave two fine illustrated lectures in the churches of Hampstead on Saturday and Sunday evenings of last week. The first one was in the Methodist Church, and the subject "The Old Times and the Better Days." The other one in the Lutheran Church and the subject was the "Life of Daniel." I have been told that the crowds were very much inspired.

A very unique training school, which will affect several communities, will be held in the Hampstead High School building, on Feb. 10, 11, 13 and 17, 18, 19, at 7:30 P. M. Four courses will be offered.

Miss McCormick, of the Maryland S. School Association, will instruct those who are teaching in the Primary Department.

Miss Crimm, of the department of public schools of Carroll County, will instruct those teaching intermediate and Juniors. Prof. Shroyer, of Westminster Theological Seminary, will give a course that will deal primarily with the Old Testament. Dr. Forlines, of the same place, will give a course which deals largely in methods of effective teaching. The text book which will be used is titled "How to Teach Religion." The school will be open for all Sunday School workers within reach of Hampstead. Thus far many have enrolled. Even preachers. The Men's Orchestra of the U. B. Church, Hanover, motored to the Greenmount Church, Thursday night of last week, and inspired a crowd who did not allow the cold weather to keep them home. The program was largely musical. Several readings were given. After the service the visitors were invited to the dining room where refreshments were served which consisted of sandwiches, hot coffee and cake.

Last Sunday night witnessed great things in the Greenmount U. B. Church. The service was rendered entirely by the men of the congregation. It was known as Brotherhood night. The women took the advice of the Apostle Paul and kept quiet, at least during the service. But they say their time is coming. J. F. Utz had charge of the service. After several duets, quartets, solos, etc., were rendered, a fourfold topic was discussed. "Men's part in the Religious Education Program," by N. V. Hoffacker; "Men's Part in the Church Attendance Program" by Otterbein Hann; "Men's Part in the Evangelistic Program" by J. E. Clas; "Men's Part in the Financial Program" by Arthur Murray. The men spoke from the pulpit. Let more laymen come to the front.

Harvey Graf has sold his bungalow on York St. to Clarence Miller, of Baltimore.

Jacob Wink is beautifying the interior of his house by placing hard wood floors and repainting.

J. Wesley Hoffacker, who was confined to his home by illness the past several weeks, is able to be out again.

Mary Martha, little daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Wachter, who has been indisposed with the measles, is able to be out again.

The Ladies' Auxiliary held an oyster supper in the Firemen's Hall, on Saturday evening past. On Monday of this week they held their regular meeting.

Guy Witter, the barber of our town, is able to take up his duties again. He had been incapacitated suffering with tonsillitis.

The regular monthly meeting of the Light Brigade was held Saturday afternoon of last week, in the Lutheran Church, at 2:15. At these meetings the mothers are urged to have their children present.

On Thursday evening of last week, a Union Christian Endeavor program was rendered in the Reformed Church. This was in keeping with Christian Endeavor week. Rev. J. H. Lehman, of Greenmount made the address.

Rev. John Hollenbach, pastor of the Reformed church, motored to Taneytown on Wednesday evening of last week, and addressed the Christian Endeavor Society of the Lutheran Church. Owing to the snow storm he was unable to return until the next day.

On Sunday morning past, Rev. Garner, pastor of the Reformed Church, Westminster, exchanged pulpits with the Rev. John Hollenbach, pastor of the Reformed Church of this place.

Members of the Mt. Zion United Brethren Church, Manchester Charge, are meeting this coming Monday evening to formulate plans to renovate their church which is badly needed. The improvements will cost about $1200. This church has recently been taken off Greenmount charge. It is now being served by Rev. W. C. Wachter.

Quite a number of Sunday callers find their way to our town on the Sabbath day, while equally as many leave for other places.

EMMITSBURG.

IN MEMORIAM.

Mr. Greenberry Null, died Feb. 9th., 1926.

He sleeps, but in that sleep beneath the sod
No dreams shall come—those dreams that banish sleep;
No watchers then, naught save the eyes of God,
To watch his slumbers long, and still, and deep.

Then mourn him not as dead—he can not die—
And mourn him not as sleeping in that day;
He wakes, he lives, not far in yonder sky,
But near us, though not seen, he walks today.

His memory will ever abide with his friends, a benediction and a blessing.
M. Mc. NULL.

CARD OF THANKS.

We take this means of expressing our sincere thanks to all who so kindly assisted us during the illness and after the death of our dear mother, Mrs. Amanda Shoemaker. Also for the floral tributes and use of autos.

BY THE FAMILY.

In Sad But Loving Remembrance of our Dear Mother,
MARY M. STANSBURY,
who departed this life, two years ago, Feb. 12, 1924, and my dear father,
J. ALBERT STANSBURY,
who departed this life, December 31, 1925.

More and more each day I miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies in my heart concealed.

Dearest mother and father if you only knew
How sad and lonely the home is without you,
My heart has ached in pain for thee,
No one else can know but me.

Surrounded by friends I am lonesome
In the midst of pleasure I am blue
A smile on my face and heartache
Always thinking of you.

By their loving daughter,
MRS. JOHN CRABBS.

Canker-Roup Epidemic!
Protect Your Poultry

Danger time for poultry. Biting, chilly weather, stuffy quarters, poor ventilation means millions of germs attacking your flock, reducing vitality and cutting down egg production.

When chickens sneeze and froth at nostrils, that's roup. Unless checked the disease quickly devitalizes the flock and finally develops into the loathsome condition known as canker. But these conditions can be avoided.

Conkey's Roup Remedy
and Conkey's Canker Special

Use both remedies for quick results. Keep Conkey's Roup Remedy in the drinking water and treat all affected birds with Conkey's Canker Special, an oily prescription which is squirted into the nostrils.

Guaranteed

All Conkey Poultry Remedies are sold on a guarantee to refund your money if you are not entirely satisfied.

Manufacturers of Feed
TANEYTOWN, MD.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We beg to announce having installed an up-to-date steel corn cutter and grader, for the manufacture of cracked corn. This together with the Feed Mixer we recently put in operation enables us to manufacture, at low cost, OUR OWN BRANDS of Dairy Rations, Egg Mash, and Scratch Grains, and to mix for the public any formulas of their own, at very moderate prices.

OUR OWN BRANDS of Feed should find ready sale, for several reasons; they are mixed right here at home; made fresh every few days; contain no ingredients that are not feeds in themselves; are tested by the State authorities at College Park; and are sold at prices that are lower by comparison with other feeds of the same analysis.

We have always on hand for the manufacture of OUR BRANDS—or any formulas you may select—Bran, W. Feed, C. S. Meal, F. S. Meal, Gluten Feed, Beef Scrap, Beet Pulp, Alfalfa Meal, etc.

We invite you to come and inspect our plant, try OUR FEEDS, and get results—the Cows and the Hens will tell the story.

Copper Sulphate for Sheep Worms

Method of Control Devised by Scientists Gives Good Results.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A method of controlling stomach worms in sheep devised by scientists of the United States Department of Agriculture and tested on farms for the last three years has given excellent results. The treatment consists in dosing the sheep once every 25 days with a 1 per cent solution of copper sulphate.

Losses From Worms.

Following good results at the department's experimental farm near Vienna, Va., the bureau of animal industry arranged with owners of 12 farm flocks in Schuyler county, Missouri, to try the method under ordinary farm conditions. At the beginning of the experiment, all owners reported they were experiencing serious losses from stomach worms.

While the experiment was in progress no change was made from the former usual practice of grazing, which consists in the use of permanent pasture throughout the year, except in the fall, when the flocks are allowed to run in fields and meadows from which the crops have been removed. During the last year no sheep or lambs under treatment were seriously affected by the stomach-worm disease.

Treatment Does Good.

The second generation of sheep which have developed under the copper-sulphate treatment are larger than their dams, have grown better wool, and have sold without culls. Buyers of feeder lambs from the dosed flocks have recognized their outstanding condition and paid top prices for them. These favorable results were observed among more than 2,000 sheep. Full directions for using the treatment, which is comparatively simple, may be obtained on application to the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

Early Spring Is Proper

Time to Prune Orchard

Warm days during March can be profitably spent in renovating the fruit trees. Moderate pruning every year encourages annual fruiting and is much better for the tree than heavy pruning every three or four years. The work should not be delayed until growth starts in the spring.

Trees which have not been pruned regularly and have grown too bushy and dense should receive a rather heavy thinning of medium-sized branches in the outer portions of the tree. If possible, avoid removing large limbs because this leaves the tree thin in places and too dense elsewhere. All dead, diseased, broken, injured, crossing and rubbing limbs should be removed as far as possible. When young trees have been properly pruned until they reach bearing age, only moderate pruning of small branches is required to keep the tree properly thinned. Sunlight will then be admitted to the central portion of the tree.

In the pruning of young trees keep the head low. Also avoid having two branches leave the trunk at the same point. Four or five main branches should be saved, and as far as possible so selected that they will be evenly distributed around the tree as well as up and down the main trunk. In all your pruning work use sharp, efficient pruning tools. Make all cuts clean and close and wax or paint all wounds that are over an inch in diameter.

Does Not Pay to Grind

Alfalfa Hay for Cows

Experiments conducted by the dairy husbandry section of the Iowa agricultural experiment station indicate that it doesn't pay to grind alfalfa hay when it is to be fed to dairy cows. At least it wasn't profitable in these preliminary tests. Eight cows were used in the experiment.

The use of ground alfalfa did not increase the yield of either milk or butterfat in these tests and, in addition, there was a greater amount of ground hay refused by the cows than of the unground hay.

It cost $3.50 per ton to grind the alfalfa and there seems little likelihood that this figure could be reduced on the average farm, those in charge of the test say. The grinding cost, they state, represents from 20 to 25 per cent of the market value of the hay on the farm in the average year.

Corn Good Animal Fuel

During Severe Weather

Corn is cheap, about a cent a pound. One can get fine-burning soft coal for less than a half-cent a pound.

Animals are going to keep up their body heat during cold weather. They can do this with corn at a cent a pound if the owner can do some of it for them with coal at half the corn price.

If the chill is not taken off of the cow's drinking water with coal or wood, she will warm it to 98 degrees with corn. If the pigs are forced to drink water or milk in which there is some ice, they are going to melt the ice with corn at a cent a pound. If the chickens have a warm mash at noon, just that much corn is saved. Eggs come faster.

All the way around, trading coal for corn on a fuel basis is good business.

Complete Disarmament

Hard to Bring About

There is nothing new under the sun, and even anti-weapon laws have been tried before—in 1882, for instance. A greedy and witless king of France, Charles VI, attempted to reimpose on the people of Paris what would now be called a sales tax. The people of Paris arose in their might—armed, as it happened, with mallets. The insurrection was quickly put down by the disciplined forces; but, to prevent further troubles of the kind, a rigorous disarmament law was passed and very strictly enforced. Paris was regarded as the pivot of the kingdom; it must not be split by internal fighting; and obviously—to the feeble mind of Charles VI—fighting would be absolutely prevented by the removal of the inhabitants' weapons.

Time passed, about 30 years. A generation of Parisians arose which knew not weapons. Then under circumstances it is not necessary to detail, a certain duke of Burgundy wished to have command of the city. It was politically impossible for him to take it by force of arms; but it was possible, as it would be nowadays, for him to engineer the election of a friend of his to the captaincy of the city. Had all the inhabitants been armed, this move would have been without effect; a captain can only command; and to order the whole body of the citizenry to fight against its own interests would be useless.

But, under the circumstances, the count de St. Pol's course was clear. One class of citizens had of necessity been exempted from the disarmament process—the butchers. The butchers had knives, axes and bludgeons galore—just as after modern disarmament plumbers would still have lots of lead pipe, and miners plenty of dynamite. And one class of citizens can usually be induced to betray the other classes for its own benefit.

So the duke of Burgundy controlled Paris, much against the desire of the Parisians at large, by means of a Parisian militia.

The powerful, but unarmed, university; and the indignant, but weaponless, population, protested violently. But it has not been recorded anywhere that their protests ever did them any good.—F. R. Buckley in Adventure Magazine.

Appeals to Old and Young

Florida has two new assets to add to its bid for popularity. First, the California earthquake. Second, a pirate ship, remarks Grove Patterson in the Columbus Dispatch.

An old pirate ship was discovered twelve feet underground in Sarasota, Fla. It stirs the blood of youth, if you have any. Do childish adventures of the mind still play about pirate ships? They used to. A boy who never wanted to be a pirate probably never wanted to do anything. It is as inevitable to want to sail on a pirate ship as it is to want to be a conductor on a train. If they find any more pirate ships in Florida we'll all get the fever.

Lamps Without Filaments

Through the invention of an electric light bulb that requires no filament, Conrad Schicklerling of Newark, N. J., claims that municipal lighting bills may be cut in half. A 500-watt lamp of the new type, he says, will burn twice as long as filament lamps and consume less than half the current now required. The inventor also has made lamps of two-watt size for use on signs, and auto lamps of two candle-power and higher, without filaments, says Popular Science Monthly. Still another of his inventions is a vacuum tube filament or grid, designed especially for alternating current rectification in radio B-battery eliminators.

Wool Grown in a Hurry

An invention which makes sheep's wool grow faster was described by Professor Barker of Leeds university at the international conference of sheep breeders at Chester.

He said a Japanese doctor had placed on the market a fluid which, when injected in the veins of a sheep, say, every two days, promotes rapid growth of wool.

"So rapid is the growth said to be," Professor Barker continued, "that two months' injection produces twelve months' growth at the ordinary rate. Thus two or three shearings each year are possible."—Tit-Bits.

Woman Fertile Inventor

Among the many interesting things on show at the Exhibition of Inventions held recently in London, few attracted more attention than an apparatus designed by a woman inventor, Miss Verena Holmes. It is a device enabling an important operation in the treatment of consumption to be carried out in the home, and it is regarded as a great boon by the medical profession. Miss Holmes, who is a qualified engineer, has a number of other inventions to her credit. One of the most promising is a new type of diving apparatus.

New Salvador Railway

A contract has been signed and approved by the President and the national assembly of Salvador for the construction of a branch railway line, 16 kilometers (10 miles) in length, from Ahuachapán (in the department of the same name) to the Guatemala frontier, north of El Naranjo. Construction is to be completed before April 24, 1930. It is intended ultimately to connect the line now in the course of construction between Santa Ana and Ahuachapán with Guatemala City.—Commerce Reports.

NEW DIAMOND MINES PROLIFIC IN STONES

Are Believed to Be Richest in World.

The world has several times been threatened with a diamond famine. Nearly a century ago experts calculated that the diamond supply was rapidly decreasing and could not long be expected to meet the demand. The discovery of the South African mines solved this problem for a long period. A generation ago much was written about the rapid growth of the demand for diamonds, especially in America, and the probability of a serious diamond shortage if new sources of supply were not soon discovered. Likelihood of a diamond shortage for some time to come has been removed by the discovery of diamonds in the Belgian Congo. Although diamonds were first discovered in this region as late as 1907, the development of the industry has been remarkable. It is virtually a postwar industry. During 1923 and 1924 nearly 20 per cent of the world's supply of diamonds, measured by weight, was gathered in these mines.

It has been necessary in some places to cut away almost impenetrable jungle at great expense before mining operations could be commenced. In other regions the diamond deposits are covered by deep sand, clay and silt.

The new African mines are believed to be the largest in the world. It is estimated that the diamond-bearing earth is spread over 150,000 square miles. Since the region lies just south of the equator climatic conditions encountered are difficult. This region had rarely been penetrated until the discovery of diamonds. To reach it a river journey of some 500 miles is necessary from the nearest railroad.

The equipment of the mines is modern and up to date. A narrow-gauge railroad has been built and more than 1,000 miles of automobile roads constructed. Several powerful wireless stations are maintained by the diamond company to keep in touch with the outside world.

The quality of the diamonds mined varies widely. Many of the stones are blue-white or colorless and transparent, comparing favorably with those from other parts of the world. Many are yellow and brown, green, blue and red. There is a wide variation in size. Diamonds of 40 carats have been found and 10-carat stones are comparatively common. Many of the stones are found in the beds of streams where the action of the water has chipped them.

About fifty diamond mines are in operation in this general region. A single company now employs nearly 25,000 workmen. A force of a few hundred white men directs thousands of natives.

Convicted Through Dream

Reacting in dream has led to the death sentence being pronounced on a Dusseldorf (Germany) laborer. The condemned man fired two revolver shots at his victim, and as the man was still living he killed him by beating him on the head. He then threw the body into the Rhine. The prisoner in March of last year was arrested for a petty offense and thrown into jail with another man. While asleep in his cell in the night his companion heard him say in a dream: "At first I discharged my revolver at him, but as the fool struggled to rise to his feet I knocked him down and stepped on his head. This time he was dead, and I picked him up and threw his body into the Rhine." The facts were reported by the second prisoner, and the following day Schramm was formally accused of the murder. The body of the dead man was recovered, and revealed that death was caused as described by the prisoner in his night vision.

England's Herring Haul

The end of October sees the East Anglian autumn herring season in full swing. East Anglia—especially the Yarmouth district—has been a herring center for close on 1,500 years. Foreigners have bought East Anglian herrings from the days of the Vikings and Saxons. Seven weeks the Yarmouth herring season lasts, during which time something like 400,000,000 herrings are caught. Fortunately the herring breeds at an enormous rate, the mother laying about 50,000 eggs. So there is never a scarcity of the fish each season. The herrings are cured and packed for export to places like Germany and Russia. Last year 845,000 barrels of cured herring were exported from East Anglian ports, twice as many as the year before. The export of cured gutted herrings reached altogether a total of 818,000 barrels.

New High Explosive

An explosive so violent that it drove the pieces of its container shot-hole fashion clear through a nearby bottle without cracking the bottle was recently demonstrated, according to Science.

The new substance is divinyl acetylene, product of remarkable new developments in acetylene chemistry at Notre Dame university. As usual, dyes and explosives are bedfellows in this research, and a brilliant new scarlet color is one of the results of combining acetylene with coal-tar derivatives. This is the first serious and extensive use of acetylene in chemical synthesis, the gas having heretofore been relegated to the domain of the steel welder.

Khedive's Ex-Chef Gives Cooking Tip

Great chefs are born, not made. Rarely if ever do they rise to the heights in their profession by dint of perseverance.

In Europe and the East a chef with the true gastronomic instinct is treasured jealously. He expects and obtains the treatment of an ambassador. His dishes are the pride of his master, to be boasted of to friends in the cafes and bazaars.

Such a chef is Haroutoun Gedojian, sometime chef to the family royal of the khedive of Egypt, now the owner of a bizarre gold coast restaurant in Chicago. In his forty-three years as a chef extraordinaire, Haroutoun's word has been law in the cuisines of three Egyptian princes and one princess, the mother of the khedive. When Lord Kitchener was sirdar of Egypt, before the trouble in the Sudan, Haroutoun cooked for him.

One of Kitchener's favorite dishes, according to Haroutoun, was schisch-kabb, a dish made from milk-fed baby lamb. Prince Jamel, another of his masters, was particularly fond of dried cream and honey, a preparation which is one of Haroutoun's zealously guarded secrets. Prince Saad Pasha was a keen admirer of a confection Haroutoun makes entirely out of flour, butter and nuts.

In many of his admirable dishes, Haroutoun uses evaporated milk, which is simply fresh cow's milk sterilized in cans and with sixty per cent of the water removed. Because of a homogenizing process through which evaporated milk is put, the fat globules in the milk are broken up into microscopic particles and distributed throughout the milk, where they remain in homogeneous suspension.

This breaking of the fat globules gives a distinct buttery flavor to every drop of the evaporated product, a flavor which ordinary market milk does not have. Haroutoun says he uses evaporated milk in preference to market milk in the preparation of all sorts of baked dishes, as well as in cooking.

ZeZ Confrey Mixes Salads and Songs

ZeZ Confrey, famous composer of the musical classic, "The Kitten on the Keys," is hailed by his friends as the most versatile of America's popular song composers. Those who know him say he can mix a salad or a song oddity with equal success, which is saying considerable since his portrayal of the delightful pranks of a certain young feline frisking over the ivories has been recognized as the model of American syncopation. But Mr. Confrey has other "firsts" in his repertoire, his acquaintances declare. Country bred, he is a judge of horse flesh, and also knows a good cigar.

The simple life is Mr. Confrey's idea of happiness. Every so often Manhattan gets too crowded for him and he boards a train for the country and the companionship of a certain murmuring brook. Inevitably he comes back with one of the merry tunes for which he is noted.

A bachelor, ZeZ keeps open house for his friends. If he invites a few of the boys over for a midnight supper, he does the cooking himself. Invitations to his lively little dinners are sought after. There are two dishes to which Mr. Confrey is partial. So are his friends. His recipes for the two follow:

Roast Eggs With Mushroom Sauce.
12 eggs
Salt
Pepper
1-2 pound mushrooms
1 slice pimento
2 tbsp. butter
12 slices toast
1½ cup evaporated milk diluted with water
1½ cup meat stock (This may be prepared from bouillon cubes)
2 tbsp. flour
Parsley
Sauté the mushrooms in two tbsp. butter, taking care not to burn; make a white sauce of two tbsp. butter, four, evaporated milk and meat stock. Cook five minutes. Add the cooked mushrooms and chopped pimento. Break eggs and drop into hot fat, being careful to keep egg in a globular mass. Just as soon as they are a golden brown lift out and drain. Place an egg on each piece of toast. Allow two pieces for each serving. Pour over all the mushroom sauce and garnish with parsley.

Pineapple-Cheese Salad.
10 slices pineapple
1 cup cream
1 cup cheese
¼ cup chopped nuts
2 tbsp. evaporated milk
Crisp lettuce leaves
1 tbsp. pineapple juice
1 tsp. sugar
Green and red mangoes
Creamy salad dressing
Combine the cheese, nuts, evaporated milk, pineapple juice and sugar, and blend into a smooth mass. Cut pineapple circles in half. Spread cheese mixture on a slice of pineapple and press the other half circle of pineapple on top of cheese as one would a slice of bread in making a sandwich. Cut diamonds or triangles from green and red mangoes and press into the edge of the cheese mixture between the pineapple. Lay two of the prepared pieces of pineapple on a crisp lettuce leaf. Serve with creamy salad dressing. This serves five.

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean of the Evening School, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(© 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for February 14 JESUS, THE GOOD SHEPHERD

LESSON TEXT—John 10:1-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I am the good shepherd, the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep."—John 10:11.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Good Shepherd and His Sheep.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Good Shepherd.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What the Good Shepherd Does for His Sheep.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Many Sheep, but One Shepherd.

The relationship of the Messiah to His own is set forth in the Old Testament under the figure of the shepherd and his sheep. (Ps. 23, Ez. 34).
1. The Good Shepherd (vv. 1-18).
2. He is the True Shepherd (vv. 14).

He came by the divinely appointed way. The power exercised by the Pharisees in casting out this man was not obtained by lawful means. It was stolen by them and exercised in the bold spirit of robbers. John the Baptist, and others of the prophets, had performed the function of the porter and opened the door to the Shepherd (v. 23). Despite the deceit, audacity, theft and robbery of these Pharisees, those who were Christ's sheep were declared to be forming a new flock and following Him as the true Shepherd (v. 4). The reason the man suffered excommunication for Jesus' sake was that he recognized Him as the true Shepherd and the Pharisees as strangers.

2. He is the Door of the Sheep (vv. 7-10).
The way to fellowship to God is through Christ. He is the only door (Acts 4:12). There is absolutely no way to get into the fold of the redeemed but by Him. All who attempt it are thieves and robbers (v. 8). Those who become members of the flock through Him enjoy marvelous gifts (vv. 9, 10).

(1) Salvation—"Shall be saved." Not only saved now but saved eternally (vv. 27, 28).
(2) Liberty—"Shall go in and out" (v. 9).

Only those who accept salvation in Christ know what freedom is.
(3) Contentment—"Shall go in and out and find pasture" (v. 9).

The one who really enters the fold by Christ, the door, receives that which is all-satisfying to the soul.
3. He is the Good Shepherd (vv. 11-18).

He is so devoted to His sheep that He willingly lays down His life for them. The hireling abandons his sheep in time of danger. The Good Shepherd has perfect knowledge of His sheep and they know Him (vv. 14, 15). He enjoys such personal intimacy with His sheep that He knows them by name and goes before them to lead the way and defend them from every danger. This He will do even unto death. On Calvary this was historically fulfilled. It was Christ's love for such sheep as this poor blind man that caused Him to give up His life in order to find for them the abundant life (v. 10). This sympathy is world-wide—"other sheep I have which are not of this fold." This suggests that the Gentiles have a place in His fold. All who believe in Christ form one flock. In order to save His sheep He voluntarily laid down His life (vv. 17, 18).

11. The Sheep (vv. 19-30).
1. Unbelievers Are Not His Sheep (vv. 19-26).

Christ's assertion that He was the good shepherd caused a division among the people. Some accused Him of being mad, others that He had a devil. To their request that He would tell them plainly if He were the Christ, He referred them to the testimony of His works, declaring that the secret of their inability to recognize Him was their unbelief.

2. They Recognize His Voice (v. 4).
There are many voices in the world, the voice of the hireling, the voice of the thief and the voice of the stranger, but none of these will the sheep hear. The voice of the true Shepherd is recognized by His sheep even amidst the babel of voices in the world today.

3. His Sheep Follow Him (vv. 3, 27).
This is the proof that they are His. The one who does not hear, heed, and obey the Lord's voice is clearly not His sheep. His sheep have unquestioned faith in His ability to lead them.

4. His Sheep Are Eternally Secure (vv. 27, 28).
The sheep are entirely dependent upon the Shepherd. It is the Shepherd's business to look after and care for the sheep. This He does for He knows them by name and is acquainted with their weaknesses and trials.

The Real Blessing

The real blessing, mercy, satisfaction, is not in the having or the lack of merely outward things, but in the consciousness that the true source of life and happiness is deeper than all these.—John W. Chadwick.

What is Faith, and What Does it Do For Us?
Hebrews 11:1-10

There are many definitions of faith. General Booth of the Salvation Army defined it as "willingness to trust God when things looked dark." Another writer declares that "faith is belief in what cannot be demonstrated." According to the first verse of our Scripture lesson, faith is confidence in what we hope for. It is a conviction concerning the things not yet seen. It makes the invisible things real, so real that we act upon the conviction of their reality. Thousands of Christian men and women have sealed their faith with their blood.

From the content of our chapter we may say that faith is believing God's Word to the extent of acting upon it. The whole chapter presents a picture of faith in action. All the heroes of faith, from Abel to Samuel pass before us in review. The conspicuous feature in each instance is the power of faith in its action upon the life.

Abel believed the testimony of God concerning human sin and divine holiness. God had spoken of these matters in no uncertain way. Abel believed God's word to the extent of acting upon it. He approached a holy God upon the ground of a substitutionary sacrifice, the blood of the lamb, and was accepted. This is faith in action; this is the faith that saves. Abel's brother came another way, not the way of faith in God's Word, and he was rejected.

Enoch believed God's Word concerning judgment to come to the extent of acting upon it. In the midst of spiritual apostasy and moral darkness Enoch walked with God and was delivered from the judgment that came upon the world as a punishment for its sin.

Abraham is another conspicuous example of the faith which believes God's Word to the extent of acting upon it. When he was called he obeyed and went out into the new life of faith trusting God where he could not see.

"Into His hand went mine,
And into my heart came He,
And I walked in the light divine,
The path I had feared to see."

Records Show Women Had Natural Horns

The Evil One is generally supposed to be provided with horns, but it comes as a surprise to find that cases of horned men and women have been known.

A speaker at a meeting of the British association stated that the curious formation of the recently discovered Galilee skull must have given its owner, during his lifetime, almost the appearance of being horned.

Quite recent times, however, afford examples of people who went farther than this and did actually grow horns. The most remarkable case was that of a Cheshire woman, who in the sixteenth century, made quite a good living by exhibiting herself as a freak at Charing Cross. The first horn, a long, slender one, took 20 years to grow. It was then shed, and in its place came pairs, cast at irregular intervals and invariably regrown.

A more recent example was Mrs. Allen, of whom engravings made in the year 1790, showing a single horn, are still in existence.

Desert Lands

The term desert is used to include the tundras or frozen plains of the Arctic regions, the great ice wastes of the Arctic and Antarctic continents and sometimes the temporary wastes of steppes which are only covered with vegetation for a few months in the spring. The name is usually restricted, however, to the hot dried districts of the latitudes where the temperatures are extreme, the rainfall very scanty and evaporation very rapid. These hot deserts occur in two belts encircling the earth; in the northern hemisphere there stretch the great Sahara, the Libyan and Nubian deserts, the Desert of Arabia, Persia, Turkestan and Gobi, and continued in the Great Basin of North America. The southern ring, less extensive, and more broken includes the Kalahari desert in Africa, the interior of Australia, and the Atacama desert in South America.

Ventilation Needed for Stored Tubers

Temperature Slightly Above Freezing Is Ideal.

The ideal temperature for the potato storage room is slightly above freezing. Authorities disagree as to the exact temperature, but no doubt it should be somewhere between 34 and 38 degrees Fahrenheit. The potato is alive and continues its life activities while in storage. If the temperature is high and all other conditions are favorable, the tuber sprouts, thus reducing its store of plant food. Each set of sprouts that develop is weaker than the former set.

Perhaps the most neglected factor in the storage of potatoes is that of ventilation. Respiration goes on in the stored potato and during this process oxygen is utilized, while certain gases which are detrimental to the stored tubers are given off into the air. It is only through ventilation that there can be an exchange of good and poor air. On warm days, when it is possible, the storage room should be opened and free ventilation permitted. On cold days it will be necessary to use only the regular provided ventilation. In the ventilation of potatoes, especially those that are to be eaten, it is important that light be kept out of the storage room.—J. J. Pieper, Illinois College of Agriculture.

Mice and Rabbits Will Hurt Young Fruit Trees

Cylinders of woven wire netting are among the best mechanical contrivances for protecting young trees from rabbits, W. R. Martin, horticultural specialist at Kansas State Agricultural college, believes. Poultry netting of one-inch mesh made of No. 20 galvanized wire is recommended. Rolls 18 inches wide may be used for cottontails, and the material cut into one-foot lengths. One of the sections is rolled into cylindrical shape about the trunk of each tree and fastened at several places by bending and twisting the projecting ends of wire.

Guards should be left on the trunks as long as the trees require protection. They may be adapted to protection from both meadow mice and rabbits by using wire of finer mesh and by pressing the lower edges into the ground.

Veneer and other forms of wooden protectors are popular and have several advantages when used for cottontail rabbits. When left permanently upon the trees, however, they furnish retreats for insect pests. The labor of removing and replacing them is considerable but they have the advantage, when pressed well into the soil, of protecting the trees from both mice and rabbits.

Artificial Lights Will Help in Producing Eggs

Shorter days mean less time in which hens can eat, and therefore fewer eggs. Artificial lights can help lengthen the days shortened by nature in these months when eggs are scarce and prices high. If properly used, lights will often prevent a pullet molt and will increase the egg production when eggs are high in price. But the lights must be properly used.

Three lighting plans successfully used are these:

The evening lunch plan: Turn the lights on at nine o'clock at night for an hour.

The morning light plan: Turn the lights on early enough to allow the birds the necessary feeding time for satisfactory production, but not more than 12 or 13 hours of daylight and electric light combined.

The combination morning and evening: Turn lights on from six o'clock in the morning until daylight, and from dusk until six o'clock in the evening.

Whichever system is most convenient in the day's routine should be used. With well-developed pullets, lights can profitably be used from November through April.

FARM FACTS

Saccharine sorghums have greater feeding value when ground than when fed whole.

Just now almost any landscape in the state presents evidence that it's gopher-killing time.

A warm, well-ventilated house is necessary for laying hens. Beware of floor drafts on the roosts.

Seed dealers report a possible germination injury of all sorghums due to fall weather conditions. It's best to test.

Rye will germinate as long as the temperature is not below freezing and come on in the spring to furnish a nice crop of green chicken feed.

Prairie hay is best for calves from two to three weeks old, but from that time on alfalfa is better. Silage should never be fed to calves until they are at least four months old.

The laying mash should contain 2 per cent salt to encourage drinking and to keep the fowl in good health. Charcoal, ground limestone and oyster shell are best fed in separate hoppers where the hen may help herself.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

Locals, this week, were "all froze up"—too much snow.

Mrs. Chas. A. Elliot is visiting her son, Robert, at Stevenson, Baltimore county.

Let us have all March sale copy, now, even if sale is in the latter part of the month.

Mrs. Charles Boston, moved into James Buffington's house, on Fairview Avenue.

Mrs. Roy Myerly and two children, moved into part of Wm. Fleagle's house, on George St.

Mrs. Margaret Nulton is visiting her friend, Mrs. Robert Kauffman, at Halethorpe, near Baltimore.

Lathing the walls, getting ready for the plasterers, is the work now in progress in the new school building.

Prof. J. L. Hunsberger is reported sufficiently recovered to be able to sit up in a chair, part of the time each day.

Mrs. Jesse Stonesifer, of near Uniontown, spent several days this week, with her daughter, Mrs. Roy Carbaugh.

Harry Hawk, of near Littlestown, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Shanabrook, at the home of Mrs. Wm. Knox.

February has so far been behaving badly; but, everybody says, "Let us have it now, and not later when Spring ought to come."

Misses Ruth Young and Isabelle Sittig have entered Md. University Hospital as probationers for appointment to take the nurse's course.

Our readers interested in the Manchester-Hampstead section, ought to enjoy the lengthy letter from our good correspondent, in this issue.

Mrs. Edw. Winter, who has been confined to the house for several weeks, with a sprained ankle, from falling on the ice, is getting able to do some of her house work.

Mrs. Margaret Nulton and Ada R. Englar, called to see Miss Rose Crabbs at Md. University Hospital, on Tuesday. She is glad to have visitors with whom she is acquainted.

Prof. Wm. James Heaps, of Baltimore, principal of Milton Academy, well known to many in Taneytown, sustained a partial loss by fire to his school property, last Saturday. The damage is covered by insurance.

The Senior Class of Taneytown High School will give "Esmeralda", a comedy, in the Opera House, this Friday and Saturday evening, for the benefit of the school. This will be another of our excellent local programs that deserves liberal patronage.

The Calss of '26, Taneytown High School, will be the second, and it is to be hoped, the last, that will graduate from the Opera House quarters, where the best of class work is handicapped, and impossible. It will be graduating under difficulties; but the effort ought to be to surmount them—as the opportunity will never come again. The more opposition one encounters, the stronger the effort should be to win against them.

New Ford Car Prices.

A new price list for Ford passenger cars including a material reduction in the prices of closed cars was announced this week by Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company. The new prices became effective Thursday morning, February 11th. The biggest reduction is made in the price of the Ford Sedan which is dropped from $660.00 to $565.00, a reduction of $95.00.

A reduction of $60.00 also is made in the Tudor Sedan which is cut from $580.00 to $520.00, and the price of the Coupe is reduced from $520.00 to $500.00. In the open type cars the price of the Touring car goes from $290.00 to $310.00, and the Runabout from $260.00 to $290.00. All prices are f. o. b. Detroit.

Demand for closed cars since the improved type in colors were introduced has been constantly increasing. With greater output of these types costs have lessened and it is the policy of the company to give its customers the benefit of all reductions in production costs. A slight increase is made in the price of open cars.

OUR NAMES.

Away back, at a time too remote for us to even guess at, proper names actually meant something. For instance, we are told that the time came when there were so many "Johns" that it becomes necessary to designate them by occupation; hence, "John, the Smith," "John, the Baker," "John, the Carpenter," etc.; and later the word "the" was dropped and we had a lot of occupational names like Painter, Shoemaker, Wagoner, Plowman, Miller, Lawyer, Porter, and the like.

By going over the occupational list, and the variations in spelling such names that naturally followed, then use the German, French, Greek and other nationalities spelling and pronunciation of the same names, and we will have made a good beginning toward accounting for the names we have.

In this country, too, a good many Indian names have been used.

Going a little further along the same line, individual characteristics became coined into names, as "John, the Brown," "John, the Swift," "John, the Small," etc. So, we have just a little further indication here, of how names came about, and how after a long lapse of time they no longer fit. "Drinkwater," a common name in some localities, does not necessarily mean that persons having such names are noted for water drinking; nor that one named "Cash," or "Goldman," does not indicate their being wealthy.

Some of the "whitest" persons in the country bear the name of "Black," and there are "Whites" among the Negroes. Some fellows in almost every community never lived to the name, "George Washington."

All of this has very little merit, even for a "Last Page Editorial," but the important point about our name is, that all of us have the opportunity either to "live up" to it, or "live it down," just as the need may seem to be. As the late Mr. Shakespeare once said, "There's nothing in a name—a rose by any other name would smell as sweet."

What we do, what we are, the influence we exert, are all worth greatly more than mere name; and yet, there is a rather nice sentiment connected with "living up" to names. Every one of our Presidents have had children named after them, from Washington down to the present, and parents likely indulged the hope that their boys would be inspired, or helped in some way, through being named "Washington," "Jefferson," "Grant," "Harrison," "Garfield," "Cleveland," "Roosevelt" or "Wilson."

And family names, very often, do stand for something in a community, and even wider. We may not know a certain person, but his family name may be a sort of indorsement for him, among strangers, very much as does membership in a high-class fraternity. So, a good name is worth honoring and perpetuating; but best of all is, the leading of a useful, honorable, industrious life, no matter what our name may be.

Senate Wild on Tax Cut.

The U. S. Senate, on Wednesday, broke away from the non-partisan tax bill and indulged in an orgy of cutting. It voted the outright repeal of:

First. The Federal estate tax, involving an immediate loss of revenue of $20,000,000 annually and $150,000,000 annually when it becomes fully effective.

Second. The tax on admissions and dues, involving an immediate loss of $33,000,000.

Third. The tax on automobile passenger cars, motorbuses, parts and accessories, yielding $150,000,000 annually.

The estate-tax repeal was accompanied by a retroactive modification of the 1924 estate tax rates, which the Treasury Department estimates will cost $85,000,000 in revenue.

When Senator Smoot, Utah, chairman of the Finance Committee, gathered up the battered and mangled remains of the bill, it was estimated that it provided for total reductions of $451,000,000, immediately effective, and well over $500,000,000 when the full effect in the estate-tax repeal is reached.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, in his recommendation to the House Ways and Means Committee, last October, warned that $300,000,000 was the extreme limit of safety in tax cutting. The reductions, therefore, already exceed Mr. Mellon's recommendation by $151,000,000.

A Quilting Party.

(For the Record).

Mrs. John Sanders entertained at an old-fashioned quilting party on Wednesday. Refreshments of all kinds were served and a pleasant day was spent.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Sanders, Mrs. Clayton Harget, of Littlestown; Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Shaum, Mrs. John McGee, Mrs. E. F. Smith, Mrs. Mary Baker, Mrs. John Albaugh, Mrs. Charles Kuhns, Mrs. Geo. Arnold, Mrs. Ralph Shirk, Miss Evelyn Albaugh, Miss Edith Smith, Edw. McGee, Helen, Ruth, Mary and Rose Anna Smith, Helen Albaugh, Beatrice Sanders, Albert Shirk, Hobert Shirk, John and Betty Rose Shaum, Allen and Bernard Sanders, all of Taneytown; Ira Albaugh, Vincent Arnold, Paul Myers, Laurence Smith, Bertha Albaugh, Teddy Albaugh, called in the evening.

Lancaster county tobacco growers see no recourse for tobacco, this year. Growers declare that at 30 cents an hour for labor, the selling price of tobacco leaves them no net profit; that in cases where labor costs more, there is an actual loss in growing tobacco. Government reports show that the growers should receive 16 cents a pound to make a fair profit.
