TANEYTOWN. MARYLAND, FRIDAY. MAY 6, 1927.

CARROLL ROAD PLAN ANNOUNCED.

Southern Part of the County to Get Roads this Year.

Unless present plans are changed, or added to, the Taneytown and Keymar road, and the road to Littlestown, will receive no consideration this year as the plan seems to be to build 5½ miles in the southern portion of the county. At the request of Chairman N. Mackall, of the State Roads Commission, the County Commission-ers of Carroll held a conference with Mr. Mackall at the offices of the State Roads Commission in Baltimore. They recommended construction on the following roads:

Ridge road, between Westminster Ridge road, between Westminster and Mount Airy; Liberty road, be-tween Winfield and Taylorsville; Washington road, from Liberty road toward Berrett; Liberty road, at Slack's corner toward Henrytown; Finksburg to Gamber, Asbestos to-ward Emory Chapel, Hampstead to-ward Snydersburg, Bachman's Valley road, Woodbine road toward Winfield; Tanevtown road from Tanevtown to Taneytown road, from Taneytown to Frederick county line near Keymar; Lineboro road toward Hanover road. Mr. Mackall decided to build one mile at Mount Airy end of Ridge road, one mile at Westminster end of Ridge road, one mile between Winfield and Taylorsville, one and one-half miles between Finksburg and Gamber, and one mile on Lineboro road. On the Ridge road, four miles have been heretofore constructed on the Mount Airy end, and four and one half miles on the Westminster end. With this year's construction on that road, there will remain seven and one-half miles for future construction.

The Liberty road from Baltimore to Winfield has been finished, and with the mile to be built this year between Winfield and Taylorsville and the mile at the Mt. Airy end of the Ridge road, only one and one-half miles will be left for future construction to connect Mount Airy, by way of Taylorsville and Winfield, with the Westminster-Sykesville State road at Eldersburg.

When the mile and one-half desig-nated by Mr. Mackall for construction on Finksburg-Gamber road has been built, the connecting lateral road will be completed between the Westmin-ster-Sykesville road and the Baltimore Reisterstown-Westminster road. This lateral road extends across the Baltimore-Reisterstown-Westminster road, and is already completed to Asbestos. From Asbestos toward Emory Chapel another mile is under construction and the people of that sec-tion are hopeful the State' Roads Commission may yet find a way to accept the recommendation of the County Commissioners for the construction this year of another portion of the road between Asbestos and Emory Chapel, which, when com-

HIGH SCHOOLS EISTEDDFOD, Westminster First and Taneytown Second, in Finals.

The 5th. annual Eisteddfod of the The 5th. annual Eisteddiod of the High Schools of Carroll County was held in Alumni Hall, on Friday af-ternoon and night, of last week. The inter-scholastic music competition was held at 3 P. M., with a symphonic concert by an orchestra of 65 pieces under the direction of Prof. Philip Royer. This was followed by a vio-Koyer. This was followed by a vio-lin contest, the entrants being Ralph Davidson, Margaret Repp, Harriet Leese, William Mather, Jeanette Anderson, Catherine Wetzel, Cather-ine Cooper, Mabel Wentz, Paul Hyde and Ralph Buchman. Edward Cook, first violinist of Bal-timore Symphony orchestra, was the timore Symphony orchestra, was the judge, and expressed his difficulty in arriving at a decision, but first was given to William Mather, of Westminster, and second to Mabel Wentz, of Manchester. The points by school representatives were, Westminster 81, Manchester 80, New Windsor 79, Pleasant Valley 75, Sykesville 73, Charles Carroll 70, Union Bridge 70, Taneytown 69, Hampstead 69, Mount Airy 57.

In the evening there were nine numbers in the Girls' chorus, which was won by Westminster, with Union Bridge second.

The boys' solo was won by Theron Koons, of Westminster. The girls' solo was won jointly by Miss Leah Catherine Reindollar, of Taneytown, and Miss Catherine Hobby, of Westminster.

The boys' chorus was won by Westminster, second honor going to Sykesville.

The directors of the chorus were: Miss Broadwater for Taneytown and Union Bridge; Miss Ward, Sykesville and Mount Airy; Miss Ward, Sykesvine for Charles Carroll, Winfield, Mechan-icsville and Pleasant Valley; Miss Harshberger for New Windsor; Mrs. Olive E. Earhart for Manchester and Hampstead; Mrs. Helen Casner for Westminster. The instrumental director was Prof. Philip Royer and in general charge of the contest was

Mrs. A. Earl Shipley. The grand chorus, "Hail Bright Abode" from "Taunhauser," directed by Mrs. Shipley, was easily the fea-ture of the Eistoddfod. It was the combined Carroll County chorus, accompanied by a selected group of the Carroll County orchestra.

Superintendent of schools of Carroll County Maurice S. H. Unger announced the winners. In the finals first place went to Westminster with 431 points and second place to Taneytown with 395 points.

Old-Fashioned Mothers.

The old-fashioned mother, though she has taken to herself some new-fashioned prerogatives, remains—the old-fashioned mother. That is why the world is going forward rather than backward. The world will never go backward so long as the old-fashioned mother remains to guide its destinies—and the old-fashioned mother may be a flapper or the reverse. Motherhood of the right sort is a thing of the heart, not of externals—a quality of the soul, divorced from all super-ficialities. She still is everywhere—this old-fashioned mother. She doesn't mind the pitying jeers of the unfortunate class of her sisters who fail to see in the home the divinest temple of peace and happiness that has been ordained by God. One has not far to look to discover the splendid type of American mother. She looks to the affairs of her household, and she cherishes her babies. She sings, and her songs are the joy hymns of the mother heart; she cuddles her babies as mothers have done since the beginning; and she is proud of her kicking, crow-ing "latest," though she loves them all alike.—Jackson News.

BROENING ELECTED MAYOR Republicans Also Elect Half of Baltimore Council.

William F. Broening, republican, was elected Mayor of Baltimore, on Monday, by a plurality of over 17,000. His victory was all the more remarkable because he had no newspaper support, but the active opposition of the Morn-ing and Evening Sun; and the result followed a majority for Governor Ritchie, of 47,000 last November. The upset is variously accounted for, but it was probably due to Mr. Broening's personal popularity; to some friction in Democratic ranks in the selection of Mr. Curran as a can-didate; and to the character of the campaign conducted against him, which partook of ridicule. Evidently, there was a decided reaction against something, in Mr. Broening's favor. The Democratic candidates for

Comptroller and President of the City Council also had a close call, as Gra-ham had a plurality of 7,630 and Bryant only 1323. The members of the City Council elected were equally divided, being 9 Republicans and 9 The Republicans will control the

At this date the cutting season will be at it's height. This will give an opportunity to see the latest meth-ods employed by these growers in marketing their grass which is sold at a premium on all of the Eastern markets. Any farmers interested in making this trip on the 12th., should got in touch with County Agent Wal get in touch with County Agent Walrath at once, in order that necessary arrangements can be made in time. If sufficient men signify their intentions of taking the trip, a bus will be char-tered; otherwise, the journey will be made by machines.

On Wednesday, May 11th., there will be regional conference of the sheep growers in this section of Maryland, to consider plans for promoting a state wide wool pool this year. Last season many Maryland sheep growers pooled their wool in connection with the Tri-State pool. Market conditions favor an expansion of this co-operative marketing work this year. Any sheep growers in the county interested in this work are invited to attend this meeting at the Frederick Court Hou Wodn day. May 11th. start ing at 10 o'clock.

THE FLOOD REACHING ITS CLIMAX.

President Issues an Appeal for Ten Million Dollars.

The extent of the flood increased in northern Louisiana, and at Vicksburg, Miss., the first of this week. In order to get a better understanding of the flood, it should be known that while the river has been dynamited below New Orleans, in order to save that city, the flood itself is still nearly 200 which is north of it, and in fact north of Vicksburg, Miss. which is now the present centre of danger. The crest of the flood advances slowly due to the flatness of the country. A new break about 200 feet wide oc-curred at Milliken's bend, 25 miles north of Vicksburg, that added to the devastated area by invading new territory, carrying vast quantities of water that make new channels in their course. The banks of the Mississippi course. The banks of the Mississippi are strengthened by levees, or artifi-cally constructed banks, in order to confine the water that would other-wise spread out over the flat country, especially in seasons of high waters.

The present unusual flood is largely due to the leveed channel hav-ing gradually filled up during the years, the current of the river not be-ing strong enough to prevent the gradual shallowing of the river. This last break, it is feared, may inundate 2000 additional square miles of terri-tory. The situation is being observed largely from airplanes.

largely from airplanes. Much of the damage done has been to rich cotton and sugar cane planta-tions, and to truck farms, and the total damage will not be known for months. The Red Cross has simply taken charge of present needs. The greater needs will come later, and will require action by Congress. President Coolidge has issued an appeal for the Red Cross $5,000,000 fund for the flood sufferers, to be in-creased to $10,000,000. The appeal will most surely be met, as it is an outstanding necessity.

outstanding necessity. The fiood is still raging, and it will be another full week before it dis-charges itself in the Gulf of Mexico. So far, over 6,000,000 acres of land have been flooded and 300,000 persons affected in one way or another, and more thousands will be made homeless before the waters subside.

The states directly affected have been doing nobly. The southern peo-ple, as a whole, are not rich by comparison with the North and East, and nave already given more than any of the Northern sections will be asked to give. Besides, they are fighting the floods

An Auto Accident at Pipe Creek Bridge.

While Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hockensmith, Taneytown, were on their way to New Windsor, this Friday morning, they met with a serious accident on the state road at this end of the Pipe Creek bridge, that resulted in a badly demolished new auto, several ribs fractured for Mrs. Hockensmith, while Mr. Hockensmith escaped with cuts and bruises.

On approaching the bridge, Mr. Hockensmith saw a car coming to-ward him down the Whitmore hill, and in order to avoid passing on the bridge attempted to guide his car to the right of the road and stop; but in some way lost control and the car swerved to the left going down over the embankment, and breaking the iron railing at the approach to the bridge, and dropped about twenty feet.

As the report of the accident came to us just before going to press, we have no further particulars.

The proper management of a herd of dairy cows necessitates keeping records. The system need not be elaborate, but should furnish accurate information on milk and butterfat production of individual animals, quantity of feed consumed, and values of product. It is very desirable also to keep a record of breeding dates and follow a plan of identification and registration of the purebred animals.

Until a few hears ago camels were extensively used in dry inland areas for transport of wool and other products to and from the nearest railroad. Improvement of Lawns.

One of the easiest ways in which to eradicate moss, chickweed, plantain and dandelions from lawns is to use a kind of sand sold by seedsmen which kills the weeds, but stimulates the grass. The grass may look blackened and burned for two or three days, but it will soon recover and be greener than ever. The one point to remember is that this lawn sand should be put on when the grass is absolutely dry, preferably in the middle of the day, and when the weather is warm.

The President is Aggravating.

President Coolidge is an exceeding aggravating personage to thoseboth within and without his party -who would like to see him voluntarily withdraw, or be otherwise eliminated, as a candidate for renomination in 1928; and his persistence in not saying anything on the subject, and in not making a "bad break" of some sort, is monotonous.

Space writers for some of the newspapers, continue to denounce his "weakness," and lack of "backbone," wonder how he gets through without taking their advice; but somehow he does. The fact is, he couldn't possibly get a cheer from them, for anything, except an announcement that he is not a candidate, and this is particularly what he is not giving.

Now, they are trying to stir him up to the point of giving his opinion on the "third term" question. The of President Harding, which is rather short of a full first term , but it serves as something to argue over, and to use as a reason why he should | Mine," and it is not overdrawn. not aspire to be a two and threeeighths term President, which the Constitution does not forbid-nor even a full three terms.

After all of the fuss over his aggravating qualities, and his stolid ignoring of the withdrawal appeals, it seems to us that President Coolidge might be credited with a proper desire to "try it again" if his party wants him, and to let it decide the question at the National convention. But, the side-trackers say, he can easily control the convention. Perhaps so, but we believe that the President is a cool enough politician to know in advance of the convention whether his party-and not merely the convention-wants him; and that when he finds this out, is time enough for him to say "no," if it be the best policy to say it. The continuous play on the "weaknesses" of the President, and the unwisdom of his "third term" nomination, may after all be a cover to the fear that he is the strongest candidate his party could nominate. If not, then his opponents-outside of his party-should be glad to see this weak, and most aggravating candidate, get the nomination, so that their candidate might easily win.

Mothers' Day.

Appreciation of mothers- the right kind of mothers, and most of them are-frequently comes too late, not only for the mother, but for her children. We have a very bad habit of with-holding our love and thanks, to both mother and father, and indulge in post mortem regrets that continue to grow as the years go by.

There is hardly anything that calls for vain regrets on the part of the and his "down East" economy, and living, so much as the thought of the unspoken words of appreciation that on highways before the automobile should have been given to living ears, and no monuments, or flowers, or tributes of respect, ever quite compensate for the omission.

Necessities-or Luxuries?

In what respect is the United States particularly different from other countries of the world? In the fact that its people use, as necessities, articles which the majority of citizens in other countries deem luxuries. As a simple illustration, take the automobile. Twenty-two million of them are running in our nation of about 110 million people. This is probably four times as many automo-Approximately 18 million telephones in the United States tell the same Y tricity.

This means that all the people-the day laborer as well as the man with money-make common use of the most modern conveniences.

With the automobile has come our remarkable road system. Twenty years ago we had no paved highways through the country. Today paved roads aggregate tens of thousands of miles, and it will be but a few years until unbroken pavement on several routes, will stretch from the Atlantic to the Pacific, just as it now reaches from Canada to Mexico on the Western coast.

Our nation is learning how to build roads and also how to salvage old macadam and gravel which was used demanded pavement. Instead of tearing out such roads, many states and counties are now using these old well compacted bases as a foundation for a resilient waterproof wearing surface which eliminates dust and mud, and binds the rock together, preventing its destruction .- The Man-

A Little Talk on Thrift.

No matter how difficult the practice of thrift may seem today, the months and years to come will make the task no easier.

It is the general experience of life that the hardest dollar to save is the first one.

Those who save small amounts now are better equipped to save more at a later time because they are stronger in character and have the inspiration of something already saved.

One of the sayings of Poor Richard was: "A man may, if he knows not how to save as he gets, keep his nose all his life to the grindstone, and die not worth a great at last."

If you are not saving money today, by anon do not make the mistake of believing of the that time will make the beginning easier. Even though your income may increase and your general circumstances in life become more prosperous, you will find it just as hard to save money later as it is now. Every day you practice thrift the task becomes easier; every day you put it off you make the task a little harder.

Hughes Urges Spirit of Reasonableness.

There is no one in this country better qualified to speak on the subject of war, as to means for its prevention, than former Secretary of State, Chas. Evans Hughes; and this he did at the annual meeting of the "American Society of International Law";last week, in Washington. Mr. Hughes is skeptical over the making of promises, treaties and conferences, unless back of all these is the spirit of reasonableness among peoples who have ceased to think in terms of war. He said;

ies or the extension of power continue loves his work, will be happy in it. Or to fascinate, and nations are so intent | the motorman in his cab of steel, may find it impossible to agree upon any measure for the reduction or limitaarmament

"It would appear to be worthy of consideration that if there is not suffi-ciently compelling humane sentiment to induce agreement, if war should not be contented. Indeed, happiness come, to mitigate unnecessary cruel- and contentment, while we keep movties and to spare noncombatants from ing on life's highway, are not to be unrestrained violence, little progress has been made in cultivating the reasonable disposition by which war may do we shall be thrilled not alone to do be prevented.

"Never before have helpless peoples been menaced by such possibilities of widespread destruction. While welldisposed gatherings are called for the outlawry of war—and I should be the last to decry any intelligent effort to our door is not attractive and ver-

"Mothers' Day" is a fine institution, by common acceptance and celebration, but it would be finer still for each one of us to make every day "Mothers' Day," by living such lives as would make her happy, and if we should cause her tears, that they be tears of joy.

A Secret of Happiness.

"If you don't care for the things you can't obtain you will be fairly happy."

On the surface it is not an inspiring message. Not to care for the things we can't obtain is to resign, give up, be supine. And when we quit in life's struggle we pay a dear price, indeed, for our meagre mete of happiness. Most of us perhaps, would rather keep on fighting. There is joy in the fight; joy at least to know there is fight in us.

Let us reverse the formula.

"If you care enough for the things you have obtained, you will be supremely happy."

The humble farmer on his little farm-if he loves that farm-may be happy beyond compare. If he loves it well, he will till it well, intelligently, thoroughly, and it will yield him, rich store. The widowed mother, in the little cottage, has her children, and if she loves them well they will be "The dreams of successful appeals to force for the vindication of injurpreparation for fighting that they find in the easy response of the throbbing motors and his rolling palace, a tion of burdensome expenditures of sense of responsibility for the passing multitude that will bring him pride and joy.

> To be truly happy in our lot we need reconciled. If we love the work we it well, but to do it better.

Far away fields are always green to too many of us. Only after many prevent war—why not endeavor to invoke the spirit of reasonableness, at least to the extent of mitigating evils

Dickens created the character of Wilkins Micawber who was always "waiting for something to turn up" and wasted his years in poverty and want.

Plan and provide for the future. Do not be deceived by the mirage of tomorrow. If you cannot same money today, you are a potential failure; if you can save it, you are a potential success .- Am. Society of Thrift.

Who Swallowed Live Fish New York .- Many a gullible mortal has swallowed a fish story, but how many have ever swallowed a live fish? Dr. W. E. Gudger, associate in ichthyology in the American Museum of Natural History, has published a collection of accounts, dating back to 1567. of live fishes lost in the food and air passages of man.

In the coasts of France and Italy and in India and the Far East, says Doctor Gudger, fishermen are accustomed to take live fishes between their teeth, either to kill them by biting, or to hold them while the hands are used to free the hook or net. A fish so held, if it pricks the lips with its spine or makes a sudden wriggle, readily causes the man to open his mouth, into which the fish is very likely to jump still farther.

Most of the accounts show, continues Doctor Gudger, that the fishes most often lodge in the pharynx, where the spines, fins and gills make it impossible to pull them out without lacerating the throat. Death usually follows from suffocation unless an operation can be performed to open the trachea and remove the offender quickly. The consequences are somewhat less serious though not less unpleasant when a fish finds its way into the esophagus, according to Doctor Gudger's data.

Sorbonne university, Paris, and presented to the Frankfort institute. It is one of the most valuable collections of its kind in the world, being surpassed only by that in the National library in Paris. Most of the orders were printed in French and German, since they were intended for posting in Alsace-Lorraine.

Forcing Vegetables by Use of Hotbeds

Frame Should Be Six Feet Wide and Any Length.

For forcing early vegetables such as tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, etc., the hotbed is indispensable. To construct a hotbed, an eastern or southern exposure should be selected. The frame should be six feet wide and any desired length. The hotbed sashes are always three feet wide and six feet long. As a rule for the family garden, a hotbed six by six feet will be sufficient. It would be much better, however, to have a frame six by twelve feet. This will afford ample space for transplanting the plants and give them more room to develop properly, says A. E. Schilletter, extension horticulturist at Clemson college.

The soil is excavated to a depth of eighteen inches and the frame built six feet wide and desired length and fitted over the trench. The frame should slope toward the east in order to admit sunlight.

The bottom of the frame is filled with fermenting stable manure. This should be mixed thoroughly before being placed in the frame, and packed firmly and watered freely immediately afterwards. In the South twelve inches of manure will furnish sufficient heat for hotbeds. On top of manure is placed six inches of garden soil, which has been well sifted and is free from all roots and trash. This should be slightly packed in order to make it perfectly level. It is well to cover this with one inch of finely sifted woods-earth, since this is always free from grass and weed seeds. which are frequently very troublesome when the garden soil is used.

After the bed has been completed the sashes are put in place and the frame allowed to stand for three or four days before planting the seed. This is done in order to permit the bed to become thoroughly warm before planting.

Cultivation in Gardens

to Keep the Weeds Down A large part of the labor in gardening is involved in the cultivation to keep down weeds, weeding, thinning, etc. Weeds are objectionable in a vegetable garden because they crowd upon the vegetables, require close cultivation to get rid of them, which may be actually harmful to tender vegetables, and if the gardener lags in enthusiasm the weeds finally triumph and by fall the garden plot is a jungle of tall weeds. The gardener can do a great deal to bring his garden to the weedless condition, where labor and cultivation are reduced to a minimum. The first step is to cultivate closely in the early part of the sea-son, when most of the weed seed germinate. The little weeds are easily killed. But weeds keep on coming up all through the season, and these must be carefully removed also, for a single weed may produce enough seed to infest the whole garden next season. So it is important that no weeds become large enough to produce and ripen seed. If this is done by Revisions Made Our own Mark Twain always wrote under the greatest pressure. Like many other artists, he was in constant need of money; but unlike them, he held to a remarkably consistent gait in his writing.

Twain's Works Marred

His manuscripts are unusual; they show but few changes and corrections. His stories came as "trippingly on the tongue" as his vital conversation, which was characteristically free and easy.

I have the original manuscripts of "Tom Sawyer Abroad," "Pudd'nhead Wilson" and "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court." This second was written by the author under the title of "Those Extraordinary Twins," and the last one was originally called "The Stranger's Tale."

The few corrections made by Mark Twain do not seem especially happy ones to our modern eyes. In my opinion it would have been better if he had left alone the thoughts which God first gave him. There are whole scathing paragraphs in "A Connecticut Yankee" which were never published, but should be published.—Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach in the Saturday Evening Post.

Confucius Had Right

Idea in "Reciprocity" Five hundred years before the Christian era, Confucius, on being asked to define the law of life, said it was all contained in one word, "reciprocity." No problem ever arose in business, in statesmanship, in the general affairs of human activity that could not have been solved if a free policy of reciprocity had been adopted. No problem ever arose in business, in statesmanship, in the general affairs of human activity that could not have been solved if a free policy of reciprocity had been adopted.

The disputes between capital and labor, the constant wrangling among politicians, the hatreds and intrigues that reach from nation to nation, could very largely be cleared up if old Confucius could only have his way.

But it is hard to see the other man's viewpoint as clearly as you see your own. It is hard to put yourself in another man's shoes. It is hard to think and feel as the other fellow thinks and feels. But it would be the part of thrift and wisdom to think more of what Confucius said 3,000 years ago.— Thrift Magazine.

Do We Appreciate Gulls?

Gulls are among the most perfect specimens of nature's wonderful handicraft. No creature could be better fitted for the rough life it has to lead. To enable these birds to withstand cold and wet, their bodies contain great quantities of oil, and as lungs would not hold sufficient oxygen for the great efforts they must make in stormy weather, all their larger bones are hollow and act as reservoirs.

The gull's part of life seems to be to keep the near coast waters of the ocean clean and tidy; without them it would soon be strewn with decaying matter. To enable them to do this work thoroughly they are provided with enormous appetites. A gull will eat half its own weight in food in a single day.

Graveyard at Least

Had One Advantage John James was an old farm hand in Cornwall. For many years he had labored faithfully and silently, with only an occasional day off, and a week's vacation each year after harvest. It was John James' peculiar custom to spend his odd hours off work in visiting old graveyards; and when his annual vacation came around, John James, dressed in his Sunday best, would spend each day of his week in a different graveyard.

On returning from one of his solemn rounds of visitation he was greeted by a busybody woman of the village:

"Well, John James, I see you've got back again."

John James nodded grimly.

"Where you been-same old places?" John James nodded again-still more grimly.

"Well!" exclaimed the busybody, "whatever you find entertainin' in graveyards I can't see. You're goin' to git there yourself soon enough, John James, and when you git there you're goin' to stay there a long time. Why under the sun then do you want to go there now?"

John James straightened himself in his black broadcloth suit and bowler hat and gave the woman a stony glare. "I spend my spare time in graveyards," he said, "'cause them be the only places where folks mind their own business."--W. D. Moffatt in Mentor Magazine.

Easy to Be Punctual

in Washington's Time The first President was a great believer in punctuality. "Never ask" he told his servants, "whether my guests have arrived, but whether the hour has arrived."

Washington was always on time and believed every one else should be. If he had guests for dinner no matter how important they might be, he always began eating at the appointed hour.

It would be interesting to note how many times Mr. Washington would dine alone if he were living today. He would learn a great deal about traffic jams, delayed trains, street car blockades and the thousand and one other alibis made use of by late comers. Punctuality is a great thing if you don't happen to live in a crowded city.—Thrift Magazine.

Not to Be Despised

It was "report card day" and mother was looking them over. Marjory, an eighth-grader, brought home a wonderful record, and Evelyn, from the sixth grade carried home a card that made mother's eyes shine with pride. But, alas, eight-year-old Junior was the cause of great despair. At luncheon mother discussed it with father, in the presence of the children. At last she said:

"I just don't see why Junior can't make good grades like the girls do." Junior looked up from his spinach, which he was dutifully devouring.

"Well," he said, in his own defense, "I may not get as good grades as my sisters do, but let me tell you this: year after year, the number of weeds and grasses will decreases rapidly. The use of stable manure is a source of fresh infection, as this usually contains many weed seeds. This danger may be avoided by using only well rotted manure on the garden, keeping fresh manure in a compost heap for at least six months. The seeds will be sprouted or killed by the heating of the manure. Some of the plant food is lost by composting, but it is made up by the better physical condition of the manure.

Sweet Clover for Hay

Sweet clover sown in the spring will give a good hay crop by the middle of September if a good stand is obtained and the soil is in good fertility. The yellow variety is usually considered the best for hay. It is still a question whether it is best to sow oats with sweet clover and the season is the prime factor in the matter. If the season is extremely dry the oats may do more harm than good. If oats are sown only about two-thirds of the usual amount should be used.

Exercise is important in maintaining brood sows in good condition. Strong, healthy sows insure strong healthy litters at farrowing time.

Abundant light and ventilation are essential for cattle comfort and high milk production. Plan now to remodel stables and provide these essentials.

* * * Horses need air and action. They will keep healthier if they are exercised every day by driving or by being allowed to run in the yard or pasture. * * *

Do not neglect the ice harvest but take advantage of the cold weather and put up a supply of the frozen necessity. Plenty of ice next summer will keep the milk sweet until it reaches the market.

Poultrymen attempting to better the quality of stock by careful selection and breeding should pay some attention to the selection of breeders. Careful study of birds and their records before selection of breeding stock will be rewarded by the better chicks next spring.

Nothing to Do With Horse

Frequently a thing or ill-timed happening is described as "a mare's nest," but it is doubtful if the user of that phrase has any definite idea of its meaning. Certainly "mare" in this case has nothing to do with a horse. It is really a corruption of "Mara," a malevolent creature who, according to tradition, possessed a store or nest filled with wonderful jewels to excite the envy of others.

This particular demon may never have existed, but it unquestionably influenced our speech, for whenever we refer to "nightmares" we are again unconsciously paying tribute to him.

Sugar Trees

The bureau of plant industry says that there is no sugar tree in this country. There is a sugar palm which grows in tropical countries. All maples have sweet sap, but from only a few species have sirup and sugar been produced in paying quantities. The sugar maple (Acer saccharum) and the black maple (Acer saccharum nigrum) are practically the only trees used for this purpose. As a tree for the production of sirup and sugar in commercial quantities, the maple tree is confined to the eastern and northern United States and the neighboring western parts of Canada.

Fierce Mosquitoes

There are no mosquitoes and very few files in England. In 1710 a London paper commented upon mosquitoes in the New world as follows: "The New York people are greatly troubled with a little insect which follows the hay that is made in the salt meadows, or comes home with the cows in the evening. This little animalcule can disfigure most terribly a person's face in a single night. The skin is sometimes so covered over with small blisters from their stings, that people are ashamed to appear in public."

Man Who Succeeds

The successful man is the one who has tried not cried, worked not dodged, shouldered responsibility not evaded it, who has gotten under the burden, not stood off looking on and giving gratuitous advice.—Grit.

I'm the second best fighter in the whole school!"

"Jokers" in Old Laws

Some old laws contain unintentional jokers. A Massachusetts statute leaves it up to the authorities to determine if a citizen has driven on a public highway "laid out under authority of the law recklessly or under the influence of liquor." Kansas railroad traffic could be held up indefinitely, says Pathfinder Magazine, if that state enforced a law that stipulates that "when two trains approach each other at a crossing they shall both come to a full stop and neither shall start until the other is gone." One state proposed to drive all Chinese out of the state by adopting an amendment providing that "hereafter all Chinamen shall be deemed to be girls under eighteen years of age."

Famous Chess Tourneys

The first of the great international chess tournaments ever held in America was that staged in New York in 1889, when Michael Tschigorin of Russia divided the first and second prizes with Max Weiss of Vienna after a grueling contest. Not until 15 years later was another masters' tournament held in the United States. This was the congress held at Cambridge Springs, Pa., in 1904, in which Frank J. Marshall, the American expert, carried off the first prize of $1,000 without the loss of a single game in a total of 15 played.

Proper

Ten-year-old Jean came in hot and tired one June day and said: "Oh, mother, let me have a bath, I'm all hot and sweaty."

"Don't say sweaty, Jean. 'I've been perspiring' is proper."

After a long pause, Jean asked, thoughtfully: "Mother, do sweat people say cry and perspire people say weep?"

Where Daddy Comes In

Leon, age two, was in the grocery store when a neighbor said to him: "Hello, Leon, whose little sweetheart are you?"

"I'm mamma's sweetheart," he replied.

"And where does your daddy come in?" the woman inquired.

"Daddy comes in at the doorstep," was Leon's quick reply.

outstanding developments and improvements for economy, safety and comfort in tires have been made. He is the acknowledged leader in lowering tire costs and fought almost a lone battle to secure lower crude rubber prices from a foreign monopoly. He has saved, and is saving, millions of dollars every year for car owners.

Through the Firestone policy of selling and distributing direct to dealers through 148 Factory Branches and Warehouses, we receive fresh, clean stocks of tires of the highest quality at prices which are the lowest in the history of the industry, and we pass these advantages in quality and low price on to our customers.

German Government Saves Woman From Slave Block Berlin .- In order to save a German woman from being sold in the open markets as a slave, the German minister stationed at Cabul was obliged to purchase her in the name of his government, setting a new precedent, the New York Times learned. Several years ago a native of Afghanistan, Abdullah Khan, who was living in Berlin, married a Berlin girl. When inflation came on he, with his wife and children, returned to Cabul, where the family lived happily and prosperous.

Six months ago Khan died. When his wife applied to the courts for possession of his property she was informed that her late husband belonged to a mountain clan in Alfrided and as such was not subject either to the English or Afghanistan laws.

The clan, however, holds the old custom that the brother of the deceased gets all property, including the wife, which he is allowed to marry or The brother offered marriage, sell. which was rejected. He thereupon used the clan prerogative of bringing the wife to the auction block.

The German minister refused to disclose the purchase price, but it is said to be the highest ever paid in a Cabul slave mar" .- +

In Bad All Around

Descending from a tramcar in Vienna, an English visitor threw away his ticket. In Austria's capital it is a misdemeanor to litter the streets with rubbish. A policeman fined him two schillinge (28 cents) on the spot, giving him an official receipt for the amount. Rather annoyed, the Englishman crumpled up the receipt and cast it from him. The policeman again fined him two schillinge! The Engman used an expletive mildly indicative of his opinion on Vienna's police regulations. The policeman understood English and promptly fined the visitor ten schillinge for "using bad language!"

Discard Veil in East

Possibly inspired by the feminine revolt in Turkey a group of Moslem women in south India have decided to discard the traditional veil (purdah) imposed upon them by custom and religion.

The wife of the prime minister of Mysore presided at a meeting at which more than 1,000 women agreed to abolish the old restrictions. She challenged the orthodox religious authorities to quote textually from the Koran anything enjoining the wearing of the veil.

This the religious teachers could not do; and as a result no veils will henceforth be worn in Mysore.

Bright Cadet

Admiral Sims' recent criticism of Annapolis led a young sea captain to say:

"Admiral Sims is a credit to Annapolis anyhow. He was one of the brightest of our cadets.

"A question was once put to him in his student days:

"'Suppose you wiped out the enemy's fleet, seized his chief harbor and were then besieged therein; suppose you were surrounded by the enemy and threatened with starvationhow would you get food?'

"'From the enemy,' said Cadet Sims."

Miles of Thread Used

in Clothing Humanity

Statistics show that every inch of cloth contains about 25 threads running downward and the same number running across it, so that a square yard is composed of 1,800 threads, each a yard in length.

The average suit or costume needs S. C. OTT four square yards of cloth, so that ARMAR LEATHERMAN every man or woman wears something STERLING ZIMMERMAN like four miles of wool Allowing two sets of clothes a year, we find that each of us uses 400 miles of wool in fifty years.

When we come to linen or cotton goods, with 80 or 100 threads each way to the inch, the total length of threads becomes appalling. A single handkerchief may contain 2,400 strands, each 15 inches long, so that 1,000 yards of cotton thread are required to make it.

A shirt represents about three miles of thread.

Here I Am Now It's Up To You.

I am a baby chick just out of the egg. Nature has filled my little bread basket with enough food to last 72 hours. Then it's up to you.

If you feed me a dirty mash or table scraps, I'll probably die.

But if you start me on Purina Chick Startena and feed me according to the Purina Plan, the chances are nine to one that I'll grow up and make you money.

English Courtesy Titles

Courtesy titles are given by custom in England to persons really having no legal claim to them. Thus, the eldest son of a duke is styled a marquess. The holder of a courtesy title is not a peer and he can, therefore, sit in the British house of commons, if elected, but as soon as he succeeds to the legal title he forfeits his seat in the house of commons.

After fourteen years of experimenting a British inventor claims to have perfected a fireproof moving-picture film. It is said that the film cannot burn, yet will produce as satisfactory pictures and at as low cost as the standard film now used. The invention promises to do away with the costly precautions against fire in projection rooms of theaters.

WHITE-COLLAR JOB NOT ALWAYS BEST

Comparison of Youth in City and Country.

The woman's father, her grandfather and her great-grandfather, each in his turn, had cleared a piece of land, made a farm of it and wrested from it a living for himself and his family. The woman herself had been born on a farm. Now she was visiting a branch of the family in the Middle West.

The farm work was in the hands of a seventeen-year-old son, and it was harvest time. The morning after the woman's arrival she was awakened by the sound of a tractor and a harvesting machine, and after breakfast she and her hostess, the boy's mother, went out to the field.

On the seat of the tractor sat the boy, driving, and beside him Rex, the dog, his tongue hanging out, and every muscle tense with interest and delight.

"It was a big field—acres and acres of grain," says the woman. "It had been no small task for the boy to sow and care for it, and it seemed to me a heavy undertaking for one of his age to harvest it. The machines made too much noise to allow us to talk, but every time he came round to where his mother and I were stacking the sheaves he smiled, and there was a look on his face that thrilled me. It said, 'I can do it!'

"As he sat there on the seat of his tractor, swaying easily to the irregular motion, flushed with the heat and wet with sweat, he seemed to me to represent the very spirit of youth as we like to think of it, self-poised, confident and unconquerable; and the tractor seemed a more fitting chariot than a sport roadster would have been.

"Then I came back to the East and to the city and saw the long columns of little advertisements under the heading 'Situations Wanted,' 'Goodlooking, well-dressed youth, quick at figures, desires position in bank;' 'Young man, high school and business college education, desires position as bookkeeper or stenographer.' And I found so many upstanding, sturdy, good-looking young men running elevators! I can't help wondering what future they see for themselves. To be sure, an elevator man is 'going up' a part of the time, but he always comes down again; and it is not at the top that he comes to rest, but at the bottom.

"I find myself frequently recalling the picture of the boy on the tractor. He wasn't asking anyone for a job or a 'position.' He was making his own, and bossing it himself. Somehow he brings to mind the answer that Dallas O'Mara, the young artist of Edna Ferber's 'So Big,' made to the architect whose mother had smoothed his every path by her own hard work: "'Some day I'll probably marry a horny-handed son of toil, and if I do it'll be the hands that will win me.

I like 'em with the scars on them. There's something about a man who has fought for it; I don't know what it is the look in his ove the feel of his hand. He needn't have been successful, though he probably would be. I, well, you haven't a mark on you-not a mark. You're all smooth. I like 'em bumpy.' "-Youth's Companion.

Reptiles Spit Poison

Into Eyes of Enemy Snakes that spit poison are among the interesting features of West Africa, according to Lieut. Col. A. H. W.

Haywood. "One of the commonest and most dangerous, although not deadliest, of snakes which inhabits these regions is the spitting adder," he writes in his book, "Sport and Service in Africa." "This species seems to have a peculiar partiality for injecting his poison into the eye of his victim. I imagine that the lights of the eye attracts his aim in much the same way as a bull's-eye of a target acts as a focus for the aim of the marksman.

"There are a number of instances on record where a dog has had his eye blinded in this way. On one occasion I remember it happening to a W. A. A. F. officer. The incident was as follows: The officer in question was shooting bush fowl with a friend up country when he espied and promptly shot a snake as it was darting into a hole.

"He stooped down to pull it out of the hole, thinking it was dead. The snake unfortunately was still alive and spat its poison into his eye. He was instantaneously blinded. Had it not been for the assistance of his companion and the lucky proximity of a doctor, it is more than likely he would never have recovered his sight. As it was, he was confined to a dark room with a bandaged face for some ten days and endured great pain before the blindness began to pass off."

Nature in First Rank

as Great Illusionist In his book, "Romance of Geology," Enos Mills records this strange tale of a mirage in western Utah: "As I looked, a bighorn ram raised his head like a periscope through the silvery surface of the lake. The remainder of his body appeared to be submerged in the water. For a few seconds his head also went out of sight, then reappeared. "There was a blur, and the next scene showed a ram, three lambs and two ewes, all knee-deep in the shallow water of the lake.

"Shallow, short-lived lakes are common in the Great Basin. But how, a moment before, had the ram showed only his head, and where had been the others of the flock which now stood by him?

"The ram walked forward a few steps, stopped and turned his head. "After a few minutes the lake van-shed, but not the sheep. There on the desert, correct for distance and direction, stood the six sheep-a ram, three lambs and two ewes-that had been in the mirage scene.

Mortal magicians kindly make way for Dame Nature, who is after all the real first-hand illusionist.

Legal Subterfuge

For just one day, every seven years, a fence is erected around a small triangular plot of sidewalk in front of a large office building in Atlanta, Ga., in accordance with the state property laws, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. They provide that land used for public purposes for seven entire years at a stretch becomes the property of the public. This particular piece is privately owned and to prevent its becoming part of the public's possessions, it is fenced off for one day, defeating the letter of the law and preserving the owner's title. A brass plate in the walk bears the inscription "private property."

MAY MARK SITE UF MAN'S FIRST FLIGHT

Plan to Commemorate Feat of Wright Brothers.

Washington .- A bill has been introduced in congress to provide for the erection of a monument at Kill Devil hill, Kitty Hawk, N. C., to commemorate the first time in history that man flew in a power-driven machine. This was the flight of the Wright brothers on December 17, 1903.

The site of the flight, where it is proposed to erect the monument, is on one of the "banks" of North Carolina, the narrow spits of sand that run along the coast of the state, ten to forty miles off the mainland-naked wastes that seem worlds away from the United States. A bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society based on a communication from Melville Chater describes this region.

A Graveyard for Ships. "In motoring across the Hatteras banks from the sound to the ocean front, we had entered the greatest wreck area on the Atlantic coast," says the bulletin. "For 12 hours we passed the skeletons of what had once been ships, now blanched victims of the sea and sand, their upstanding ribs resembling files of gravestones, their forests of protruding spikes being the grisly grass of the desertlike expanse. At one point we counted 14 wrecks within 100 yards.

"Offshore lay here a careened schooner, there a crazily tilted steam freighter, the waves' white teeth gnawing at their sides in advance of the northeaster which would fling these great hulks into their last resting place among the sand dunes.

"The grim joke which says that Hatteras' chief import is wrecks haunted us throughout this 100-mile graveyard of the Atlantic.

"And now our seaward-curving beach route revealed the great apex of the banks, off which are those dreaded quicksands, the Diamond shoal. They are the more to be dreaded because off Hatteras, due to the enormous tonnage of steel hulls imbedded in the Diamond, there is a magnetic deviation sometimes amounting to 8 degrees.

"Compass correction by swinging ship-that is, laying her in different directions toward known points-was the skipper's main resource until the development of the radio and its coastal application by the United States naval communication service.

"Man's allies in this warfare against shoals and shrieking gales are Hatteras light, the Diamond Shoal lightship, and the radio compass. Since 1876 the enemy seas have eaten inland almost two miles toward the fifty-six-year-old lighthouse, whose 80,000 candle-power flare is known to passing vessels by its 48 consecutive flashes, followed by a seven-minute glow.

"The farther northward we followed the banks, the more remote and resourceless seemed the life of the people. Often it was a mere existence, as of castaways who had taken root on

General Suspicion

"It's a strange thing," said a New York actor, "but Rudolph Valentino always had a horror of appendicitis operations. He always suspected them. Well, since his death this suspicion keeps growing sharper and sharper in the general public's mind.

"Fact is, the general public's attitude towards appendicitis is illustrated in a paragraph in a country weekly that said:

"'Our esteemed fellow-townsman, H. Smith Jones, president of the First National bank and proprietor of the Jones blast furnaces, will be operated on tomorrow for appendicitis by the world-renowned surgeon, Cutler Berry, M. D. Mr. Jones will leave a widow anl three children."-Detroit Free Press.

Wise-Cracking Nut

"Two naval balloonists were drifting low over land one day," writes Lieut. Walter Hinton, famous aviator, in an article in Liberty. "Passing a group of buildings that appeared to be an almshouse or possibly an institution for the demented, they sought to determine their exact location by learning its name. One of them leaned over the edge of the basket and shouted to a mah on the ground:

"Hey, there! Where are we?"

"Throwing back his head until the aeronauts could see his collar button, the man replied:

"'Ah, you can't fool me: you're up there in that balloon, and I am not half so crazy as you."

Thirteen o'Clock

In Poe's famous tale, "The Devil in the Belfry," a sensation is caused in the quaint Dutch town of Vondervattimeitis when the tower clock strikes thirteen. But thirteen o'clock has become a European commonplace. The state railroads and postal service and telegraphs of the German reich have now decided to adopt the twenty-fourhour clock, already in use in France, Italy and other countries. In speech, however, the old system generally maintains, thirteen o'clock still being called one o'clock and twenty-four o'clock twelve. The twenty-four arrangement applies largely to print.

Railroad "Joy Riding"

Among the early rules of the Boston & Lowell railroad was one stipulating that "no engines will be taken out on Sundays, except by permission of the superintendent." This was probably aimed at the ancient-and modern-practice of joy riding. It was the practice in those days for engineers to get out their locomotives and give their friends a ride. There were no Sunday trains then and friends of the engineers thought it a great treat to take pleasure rides on the big iron horses.-Boston Post.

"If there were three crows on a fence post and I shot one, how many would be left?" "Two left."

"I'm afraid you don't get the point. Let me repeat the joke. There were three crows on a fence post. I shot one. How many would be left?" "Two left."

"No. None would be left, because I shot one, then the other two would fly away.'

"Isn't that what I said? Two left."

Gas Displaces Acetylene

Both apparatus and technic have been recently evolved so that it is possible to commercialize the use of hydrogen and other gases in connection with electric welding. A method has been developed whereby ordinary illuminating gas could be substituted for acetlyene in plate cutting, riser cutting in steel foundries and similar work on scrap materials. While this later achievement is not electrical, it is of considerable practical value to the electric manufacturing industry.

Flour From Soy Bean

A scientist of the Vienna Physiological institute is reported to have produced a flour from the soy bean which has an immense value as a foodstuff and contains the only plant albumen which is equal in value to the expensive animal albumen.

this two-mile width of sand bar, 40 miles offshore.

"The unchangingness of Hatteras folk is revealed in their daily usage of obsolete, often Sixteenth-century words. 'My poke' for 'my pocket,' to be 'consentable' instead of willing. to demand a kiss by saving. 'Come buss me !', and to speak of one's sweetheart as 'my may,' and of a water dog as a kelpie-all this is perfectly good Shakespeare.

"'Hit' for 'it,' the Anglo-Saxon neuter of 'he,' is as commonly found in rural North Carolina speech as in Queen Elizabeth's letters.

"When you hear 'abashed' for 'discredited' and 'abraded' for 'nauseated,' or when a mother affectionately terms her creeping baby an insect, you sense a radical vigor of language, and by the time you learn that on Hatteras molasses, like measles, is a 'them,' you begin to suspect that your early education was neglected.

"Beyond Oregon inlet we gained Nags Head, whose name celebrates those palmy days of professional wrecking when a hobbled horse with a lantern on his head was turned loose on the beach at night to lure ships to their doom.

"Farther along, towering 100 feet above the surrounding flatness, rose Kill Devil hill, the scene of the Wright brothers' flying experiments in 1900-1903. A former lighthouse keeper, his wife, and a coast guard are the sole remaining witnesses of those now historic events.

"Trust a woman for determining that, if those crazy Wright fellows wanted to waste their time and money, at least some of the material could be salvaged! The lighthouse keeper's wife had sewn the cloth on the first glider, and when the glider of 1902 was abandoned she thriftly refashioned its covering into dresses for her children.

"On December 17, 1903, the Wrights having built a motor-driven plane at their workshop under Kill Devil hill, the unexpected occurred. This is what the old coast guard told us:

"'They tossed a coin, and Wilbur won. 'Good luck!' I says as he elimbed into the machine. And 'The Lord only knows !' he says. And then, fust as I was telling myself that some thing heavier than air couldn't and never would fly, that machine rose up and flew 850 feet !' "

PETER AND THE RISEN LORD

LESSON TEXT-John 20:1-10; 21:15-17

GOLDEN TEXT-Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ which according to His abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. PRIMARY TOPIC - Jesus Forgives

Peter JUNIOR TOPIC-Jesus Forgives and Restores Peter. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-INTERMEDIATE ADDRESS to Peter. -The Risen Lord Appears to Peter. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC--Fellowship With the Risen Lord.

I. Peter and John at the Empty Tomb (John 20:1-10).

John does not enter into a description of the resurrection of Christ or attempt a proof other than that the tomb was empty and that Jesus had repeatedly manifested Himself to the disciples after the tomb had been found empty.

1. How they came to know (vv. 1, 2).

The information was brought by Mary Magdalene out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons (Mark 16:9. Luke 8:2). Prompted by love for Him she went early to the tomb, "while it was yet dark," "she was last at the cross and first at the grave, she stayed longest there and was soonest here." Her love for Jesus was genuine, though her knowledge of His resurrection was defective. She could not rest till she had done her utmost for Him because she realized that great good had come to her from His hands. The reason we work so little for the Lord is that we have such a dim sense of His saving grace.

2. Their investigation (vv. 3-10). The news of the empty tomb, which Mary brought with breathless haste, so moved John and Peter that they both ran to investigate. Upon arrival at the tomb John gazed upon it, but Peter entered it. John, with holy reverence, hesitates. Peter, with impulsiveness, enters the tomb at once. Their respective actions are not to be explained on the basis of degrees of love for the Lord, but to temperament. The investigation convinced them. The removal of the stone from the sepulcher, the arrangement of the graveclothes all convinced them that it had not been done by an enemy.

II. The Charge of the Risen Lord to Peter (John 21:15-17).

Jesus put to Peter the thrice repeated question, "Lovest thon me?" Then He gave him a commission. This shows that supreme love to Christ is the one essential qualification for serving Him. Love is the spring from which all Christian activity flows. He asked, also, to show that there are three classes in the church which demand care and attention. These three classes need special care and food.

1. Feed my lambs. (v. 15.) This first charge relates to those who are beginning the Christian life -the babes in Christ. The word "feed" means more than instruction. It means in addition to instruction that proper surroundings, influences and examples should be provided. As a Christian minister, Peter was to be an example, provide the proper surroundings and do the proper teaching for the young Christians, those just beginning the Christian life.

Forming in Florida

It is conceded that a greater por-tion of the peninsula of Florida was cast up by the sea. What is considered the most tenable theory is twophased in a way, and points to the work of the tiny shellfish that created the reefs around which sand drifted, and undoubtedly floating seeds of the mangroves which, rooted in the sand, put a finishing touch on the land in Florida by catching and holding sand deposits from the sea and gulf.

The sea has built and the sea has remodeled, for here and there are islands that show by their vegetation that they were once part of the mainland or older portion of the peninsula. Florida came from the water, and the thought has come up of late years that it may return to it-at least a great part-not from any encroachment by the sea or gulf, for the mainland is being added to constantly, but by the creation of lakes, many of which have appeared in the last decade.

It is true they have come, some from rains and some have appeared in "sink holes" as outlets of huge springs or underground rivers. Possibly some lakes are forming at the expense of others not far away, by seepage or the breaking through of actual channels and draining to some extent into bodies of water that lie at a lower altitude.

In the De Land district there are easily 100 lakes that were not there years age. This information sixty comes from the very old-timers of the district, says the Philadelphia Record. Jesse Driggers, formerly bridgemaster at the Crows Bluff bridge, is authority for the statement that there were no lakes worthy of the name in the De Land district when he went there in 1867, fifty-nine years ago.

Other old-timers verify the statement and also point out that lakes that were then are not now. Many have also receded a great deal; but they all agree that many lakes have come in the last fifty years.

All scientists agree that the earth's surface is changing constantly, and the greatest alternative agent is water. It is said that the Atlantic ocean is drying up, but only at the rate of a few inches every 10,000 years.

The growing number of lakes in Volusia county come in low places, naturally, and add to the landscape very materially in scenic beauty. The whole situation is naturally queer, but interesting.

Made Fortune in Scrap

Though war enriched hundreds of men, it was peace that made F. N. Pickett wealthy. With $50,000 he agreed to pay France $5,000,000 and Great Britain $10,000,000 for the right to clear away the ammunition dumps left by the allied armies after the signing of the armistice. He sold the scrap iron extracted from the dumps and paid off his debts in installments and made a fortune from his profits. Mr. Pickett hired 10,000 laborers of all nationalities and for several years lived in the war area in a little world all his own, with his own police, and issuing his own currency. His only partner in this business was his son, who was five years old when the work was started.

Breeding Stock Is of Big Importance

Fowls Must Be Given Room and Exercise.

One of the greatest causes for poor hatches is the condition of the breeding stock during the hatching season. If the hens or rooster are inherently weak or have been put in unhealthy condition by lack of care combined with inclement weather, the germ in the egg will be weak at the time it is laid and will not hatch out well.

It is always advisable to pick out a pen of breeders rather than breed from everything in the average farm flock. No late maturing or under-developed pullets or males should be included in this pen, nor should any hens or roosters which are very old, overfat, or show signs of sickness or weakness. The breeders should be given plenty of room in the house and be allowed to run out as soon as the weather and ground will permit. Their quarters should be kept clean and well ventilated. They should be fed a properly balanced ration. Dry mash should be kept in a trough where the hens can help themselves to it, but wet mash should not be fed, as it has a tendency to be weakening. The birds should be induced to take all the exercise possible through a light morning feeding of grain in a deep, dry, clean litter. At night they should be fed all the grain they will clean up.-O. C. Krum, Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Garden Fence Useful in

Carrying Various Crops Plan to use the fences that surround your vegetable garden this year. They will carry good crops and utilize space often wasted. If you have board fences, tomatoes may be trained against them with loops of cloth and tacks, particularly the south exposure of the premises. Strings or chicken wire may be nailed to board fences upon which tomatoes, cucumbers, pole or string lima beans may climb. If you have wire fences, the tall peas and beans may be planted along them.

A 25-foot fence will support eight tomato plants three feet apart and with the warmth of boards reflecting the heat of the sun behind them fruits will ripen more quickly than those trained to stakes in the open or allowed to ramble over the ground. Cucumbers used as climbing vines instead of being allowed to ramble over the ground, are something of a novelty with most gardeners; yet an observation of the vine fitted with tendrils shows that it is naturally a climber and it will attach itself to any support that happens to be handy. Greenhouse-grown cucumbers are always trained to string or wire, reaching from the earth to the roof of the house.

If vegetables are not desired, gourds to furnish playthings for the children are admirable decorations for the garden fences. They come in great variety and various shapes, sizes and colors.

Says Friends Know You

2. Tend my sheep (v. 16).

This charge shows a different class. It means to shepherd the sheep. It has application to the mature class of Christians. The duty enjoined therefore is to care for those who have passed out of their childhood into maturity. He must feed the sheep, give them proper instruction, guide them, lead them and discipline them. For this ministry the essential qualification is love.

3. Feed my sheep (v. 17).

The implication here is that Peter was charged with the responsibility of caring for aged Christians. The Word "feed" is much the same as in the first case. It means that for the aged Christians the instruction ought to be such as will be suited to their needs. This needs special emphasis today because much attention is given to the young people, but in many instances the old people are neglected. III. Follow Me (vv. 18-23).

In verse 18 is given a clear prophecy concerning Peter's death. It was to be by crucifixion. Peter once shrank from the cross, but now the Lord holds it up before him. It is not the Lord's death on the cross, but Peter's own. He teaches here that the Christian's death is for the glory of God. Whatever may be before us, even the cruel cross, the Lord's command is to follow Him.

Our Hope

Our hope lies not in the absence of danger, but in the presence of Christ, who is able to control the storm. No church with Christ in it can be wrecked or lost. More of the living Christ, more of His love, of His teaching .-- Western Recorder.

To keep in good grace with one's own self often costs self-denial, but Days a mighty dividend.-Herald of Gospel Liberty.

"Aw, that's Hunk Butters," replied Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "He's got a bunch of hounds that have running fits-they take 'em and light out and run for three days sometimes, and come back as gaunt as if they had been starved."

"Mr. Butters looked very dilapidated, too. What has happened to him?

"He's been running after the hounds, I reckon."-Kansas City Star.

Cat's One Week

There are stingy people-and stingier people-and then there are people who vie with the proverbial Scrooge for high honors among the stingiest. A few weeks ago a certain woman who was going out of town for a week's visit took her cat over to the home of a neighbor and asked her to care for it while she was gone.

"The cat will not be any trouble," said the woman. "Here is a cold boiled potato which I have cut in seven pieces. Just give the cat one piece each day I am gone."

Needless to say the potato soon found its way to the garbage can, and the cat enjoyed square meals for at least one week .- Indianapolis News.

Public-Spirited Gift

As a wild-life sanctuary, a tract known as Little Wachusett mountain, Princeton, containing 127 acres of land, has been donated to Massachusetts by a Boston woman. In announcing the gift, the state department of conservation said: "This is one more link in the chain of permanent wild-life sanctuaries which is gradually being established throughout the state. All of our citizens will appreciate the generosity and publicspiritedness of the donor."

Girls Growing Chunkier

According to a survey just completed at Simmons college, Boston, girls are growing chunkier. The average height was found to be five feet, three and three-tenths inches, while the average weight for that height was 120 pounds.

Little if any difference in yields of corn between that grown on land plowed in the spring are shown in the results obtained in tests made by the Ohio experiment station. As an average of six years fall plowing gave 70.74 bushels per acre and spring plowing, 70.81 bushels. Director Williams in commenting on the results of the test. says:

"While there has been some variation in yield due to different seasonal conditions, it cannot be said that either time of plowing has an advantage over the other for this soil and climate."

Catalpas for Posts

Catalpa makes very good posts and is noted for the durable quality of the wood. Catalpas were formerly used for posts and rails and when their value became known there were many of them planted to be used as telephone poles, posts and crossties. Because of the ravages of the catalpa spinx, however, it has become a hazardous proposition and large plantings are not recommended in Indiana.

In 1925 co-operative marketing will help solve many farm problems, but it will be no substitute for old-fashioned industry.

The new year is a good time to remember Emerson's true saying, "Nothing great was ever accomplished without enthusiasm." * * *

One of the chief causes of failure with alfalfa and clover is lack of lime in the soil. It is useless to seed Ifalfa and clover on these soils without first applying lime. * * *

Sudan grass stubble has been found to harbor many chinch bugs and other insects during the winter. The plowing of such fields is, therefore, to be recommended as a means of destroying these overwintering insects. * * *

Disease in many poultry flocks emphasizes the need of keeping the poultry house clean and well disinfected at all times. The farm flock functions best in healthful surroundings. Give | the birds a fighting chance to do their Lest.

HERO OF MEDICINE

Everlasting Fame Accorded Armenian Physician.

An Armenian immigrant, who became an American doctor and died 12 years later from the effects of Xray burns, has been selected as "the most picturesque hero of American medicine" by Dr. Wilmer Krusen, head of the Philadelphia department of public health. Doctor Krusen declares, in an article in the American Magazine, that the unsung heroes of scientific medicine have done as much as the soldiers and statesmen to make the world safe for democracy, and he proves his case by examples of medical martyrs in the conquest of yellow fever, spotted fever, typhus, and in the study of the X-ray.

"Every big city can lay claim to one or more of these heroes of the X-ray," says Doctor Krusen. "The story of Dr. Mihran Kassabian is only typical of what many others went through." Kassabian was born in Turkey, and as a boy was surrounded by the horrors of massacre. He came to America and studied medicine, receiving his degree just in time to enlist in the army medical corps for the Spanish war. In 1903, again a civilian, he became director of the Philadelphia Xray laboratory.

The X-rays, used upon a patient for diagnosis, are harmless. The patient is exposed only a brief time. But the X-ray specialist, exposed day after day, plays with almost certain death unless he has means of protection.

Kassabian and the other pioneers did their work with bare hands. One day Kassabian detected a small ulcer on one hand. Other ulcers soon appeared, until both hands and wrists were covered with ugly spots from which came the most execruciating pain. Then Kassabian knew that the wonderful rays by which he had saved many lives were literally eating him away. He refused to quit work. While his life was being eaten away, he rose to eminence. He studied, wrote, and went back again and again to his machine to let it do its worst on him, seeking constantly for the secret which would protect future experts from the fate which overhung him. Famous medical societies honored him. He was a doomed man, but one still with his

Lead, the metal which the X-rays cannot penetrate, protects the specialist of today. He is not asked to endure what Kassabian, and many others, went through, "They were the trail blazers," says Doctor Krusen.

Smart Dog

Every afternoon about two o'clock Brownie, a handsome dog, can be seen trotting around to the circulation room of the Quincy Patriot-Ledger. He never varies the time of his arrival by more than a few minutes. After the boys get their papers he often accompanies them on routes if it is pleasant, but stormy days he just goes out to the corner and sees them off and then returns to the office. How does the dog know when it is two o'clock, and why does he never show up on Sundays? He must figure this out in a way animals have and that cannot be accounted for by any human standard of reasoning .-- Quincy Patriot Ledger.

Vodka-Stuffed

Mexican Consul Lubbert said at a dinner in San Antonio:

"It is a mistake to think that Mexico is going in for Bolshevism. We Mexicans would never tolerate Bolshevism. It is most antipathetic to us. It is probably antipathetic to the Russians themselves, only they are so stupefied with vodka, you know.

"It remainds me of a little Russian boy who looked up from a travel book and said:

"'Father, is it true that gorillas can't endure our climate?'

"'Gorillas, my son,' the father answered, 'endure our climate perfectly, only they have to be stuffed first." -----Exchange.

Hot Answer

Senator Ashurst was condemning certain campaign irregularities.

These men's hot answers to our accusations," he said, "remind me of a Prescott husband. He was quarreling violently with his wife one day.

"'Perhaps you're not aware,' his wife said, 'that I had eight very good proposals before I accepted you.'

'And perhaps you are not aware,' the poor fool busband roared, 'that I proposed to a round dozen of beautiful women before I became acquainted with yourself."

by Noise of Your Face

London .- "It is possible to distinguish your face from other people's faces by the noise it makes," said J. L. Baird, the televisor inventor, in a lecture here the other night. He then proceeded to demonstrate.

He explained that he had discovered that transmissions of pictures by the television system were received as sounds by telephone or radiophone, each object or scene having its corresponding vibration.

In his demonstration he used pictures of various persons, and then of a matchbox, a pair of scissors, a hat and a cabbage. One face made a sound like a saw, another like a pneumatic riveter, while the hat purred softly. The cabbage's image emitted a noise like a man gargling.

These sounds, Mr. Baird said, formed permanent records from which the original images could be reproduced.

Factory Hands Better Paid Than Office Help

New York .- Factory workers and other manual laborers receive an average higher wage than office employees, according to a survey of the national industrial conference board, made public here recently. Weekly wages of the first type of employees averaged $2 a week more than those of clerical workers, the analysis revealed. The office salary study was based on earnings in twenty occupational classifications of office workers. The data for the survey was gathered in eighteen cities and was collected separately for men and women.

But Measure Was Filled

The weather was cold and the oil ran very slowly. Floyd Vanderhoef of Boonton, N. J., became impatient and went into the house, intending to come back later when the quart measure was full. That was Christmas morning. Two days later Vanderhoef went to his garage. The quart measure was full, but the 50-gallon barrel of oil delivered the day before Christmas was empty.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especial-ly accidents, sales of real estate, fires, im-portant happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

Rev. Thos. T. Brown is slowly improving, but is still confined to bed.

John T. Dutterer has been on the sick list at his home on Middle St., but is gradually improving.

Frank Koons spent a week here with his mother, Mrs. Ida B. Koons, and left for Philadelphia, Monday.

Miss Annie O'Neal, of Gettysburg, who had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. B. Walter Crapster, returned home, Thursday morning.

Harry Appleman, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Reid Appleman and mother, of Littlestown, Pa., spent Sunday with E. C. Sauerhammer and wife.

Carroll County's quota for the Flood Relief fund, has been doubled, and is now $3000. Taneytown will be expected to do its full share.

Peter Baumgardner, near Keysville, has bought the J. L. Hunsberger property, east end, but has made no plans as to when he will occupy it.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Fair and two children, Florence and Wilbur, of Baltimore, spent Sunday afternoon with his brothers, Ross and Harry.

Richard S. Hill is on a visit to his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Conover, Aspers, Pa., where he expects to stay about three weeks.

Mrs. Francis T. Elliot is the guest, this evening, of Mrs. Chas. H. Mayers at a club reception to be held at the home of Mrs. Luther Snyder, of Littlestown, Pa.

Mrs. James V. Brooks, of Baltimore, spent Monday with Miss Adelaide Shriver. Mrs. Brooks before her marriage was Miss Mary Clare Boyle, of Emmitsburg.

Mrs. L. B. Hafer and Miss Genevieve Brewer were guests at the Englar home, last Saturday, while Mr. Hafer was transacting some legal business in the neighborhood.

Mrs. David Little, of town, who was seriously ill, following an operation performed by Drs. F. T. Elliot, of town, and H. S. Crouse, of Littlestown, Pa., is somewhat improved.

Further storm damages have been reported to the buildings at Mrs. Wm. A. Devilbiss's farm near Keysville; and slight damage to the roof of Calvin T. Fringer's farm barn.

We are now in the third week of Frederick is staging its annual argument for a new Penna. R. R. Station in that city. Some of the smaller places along the line say "me too," but there is hardly any use to spend much energy in that direction. The bus lines do business, and have no stations.

Miss Leah Catherine Reindollar secured a tie for first honors in the county High School girls' solo contest. Westminster school, as usual, won most of the prizes. Taneytown School stood second in the finals. John Chenoweth, for the boys' solo, and Ralph Davidson in the violin contest, did splendidly but were not adjudged winners.

A statement will be found, on last page, of the amounts received for Flood Relief. Also the announcement that further subscriptions will be received next week. No very active canvass has been made in Taneytown, but this should not prevent our citizens from voluntarily showing their liberality toward the sufferers Content to the sufferers in this disaster. #### HONESTLY NOW?

Honestly now, don't you find a lot of good things in The Record that you do not find in any other paper? True, it does not of contain as many letters .from "correspondents" as some other papers, and it comes once a week, only; but considering all its shortcomings of e money" anyhandicaps and shortcomings isn't it "worth the money" anyway? Besides, isn't a paper that "be-longs" in Carroll County—lives here, pays taxes and wages here, and has a real first-hand inter-est in home affairs, worthy of your first and continuous sup-port? After all, there is real need for we "home folks" to pull together—don't you think so?

"Accuracy Always!"

Miss Laura French of Emporia tells this story of her experience in her service as managing editor rears of of the Gazette. One day the society reporter received an urgent item of social activity in Emporia. "Bill" White, editor of the Gazette had impressed on his force the importance of printing all the news of interest to women. The society reporter told the woman who had telephoned the news item that the paper for that day was ready to go to p

"Can't we leave this item until to-morrow's issue?" asked the reporter. "No, no," came the reply. "This is very important, and it must appear this afternoon.

The society reporter rushed to the composing room, quarreled with the make-up man until she induced him to hold the forms for the society note. Then she wrote it, just as the woman had given it to her, with the detail that "dancing and cards formed the entertainment of the evening." The Gazette went to press late, because of the delay. But in ten minutes the woman called again.

"There is a mistake in that society item I gave you a while ago," she ex-claimed frantically. "I want it corrected.

"But it is too late for a correction today," the reporter insisted.

"Oh, please correct it; it is not right as it stands," the woman implored. "Well, I'll see what can be done about it," the reporter replied. "What is the correction?'

"As I gave you the item," came the explanation, "it read: 'Dancing and eards formed the evening's entertain-"Well, what change?" insisted the
