MACHINERY TAX NOW REPEALED.

A Brief History of the Case by the County Commissioners.

At its meeting this week, the County Commissioners repealed the resolution adopted by the County Commissioners January 18, 1915, which exempted from taxation the tools, machinery, manufacturing implements and engines of corporations, firms and individuals actually engaged in manufacturing. Chapter 528 of the Acts of Assembly of 1914 gave the commissioners of the counties the right to pass such exempting resolution. After the passage of the resolution of January 18, 1915, the privilege was enjoyed by only a few business concern in Carroll. In July 1920, The Maryland Felt and Paper Company, at Asbestos and The Tidewater Portland Cement Company, at Union Bridge, discovered, that notwithstanding the exempting resolution, they had paid taxes each year on their tools, machinery, etc., and demanded a refund; and were repaid many thousands of dollars.

On December 6, 1920, the County Commissioners then in office attempted to repeal the exempting resolution and impose taxes on all property of all persons, whether manufacturers They attempted to collect the tax from The B. F. Shriver Company and brought suit. The Circuit Court for Carroll County decided that the County Commissioners, once having exercised authority under the law to pass a resolution exempting manufacturers, no succeeding board of County Commissioner could repeal the former action, without express authority from the Legislature to do so. An effort was made to have a law passed by the Legislature of 1924, giving such authority, without suc-

William L Seabrook, attorney for the County Commissioners, prepared the bill and it was introduced in the Senate by Senator Englar, and in the House by Mr. Bollinger. A strenuous fight against its passage was made by representatives of the B. F. Shriver Commany. The Maryland Felt & Paney. Company, The Maryland Felt & Paper Company, and The Tidewater Port-land Cement Company; although a number of the leading manufacturng industries, such as Smith, Yingling & Co., and the Arthur W. Feeser Company, canners, and Englar & Sponseller, millers, did not participate in the Bill called in as their allies several Baltimore organizations and individuals. The County Commissioners, Mr. Seabrook, their regular counsel, and Guy W. Steele, special counsel, assisting, made frequent visits to Annapolis, with other citizens, taxpayers of the county, appearing before committees, and interviewing Senators, members of the upper house, where the opposition centered.

The Act was introduced early in the session, and was passed only a few days before its close, authorizing the commissioners to "rescind, repeal and revoke" the resolution of January 18, 1915, as follows:

HOUSE BILL NO. 164. "Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the County Commissioners of Carroll County, Maryland, be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to rescind, repeal and revoke the resolution passed and adopted by the County Commissioners of Carroll County on the 16th. day of January, 1915, exempting from taxation in Carroll County the tools, machinery, manufacturing implements and engines of corporations, firms and individuals actually engaged in manufacturing; and that the said the County Commissioners of Carroll County be and they are hereby authorized and empowered to rescind, repeal and revoke any resolution that may hereafter be passed and adopted by the said The County Commissioners of Carroll County under the authority of the provisions of Chapter 528, Section 164 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed at its January session in the year 1914, and codified as Section 169 of Article of annotated Code of Maryland (1924 Edition).

"Provided, however, that all such tools, manufacturing implements, engines and machinery, which may have been acquired since the Resolution of the County Commissioners of date of the 18th. day of January, 1915, and down to the date of the repeal said resolution as authorized by the provisions of this Act, provided a resolution of repeal should be had, shall continue hereafter to be exempt from assessment and taxation Carroll county from the date of the passage of said resolution of repeal for a period of five (5) years there-

BASEBALL IN TANEYTOWN

At a public meeting in the Firemens' building on Monday night, plans were set in operation with the object of organizing a baseball team Taneytown, for the summer. At this meeting, a lease, or form of argument was presented tentatively covering certain privileges to be conferred by the School Board to the Taneytown Athletic Association, concerning the use of the High School ground for ball playing. As this lease is not yet ef-fective, its terms will not be stated now, but it represents a fair proposition by the School Board, and covers a five-year period.

The following persons were chosen at the meeting to represent an official committee, or Association, to complete the agreement with the School Board, and also to have charge of further arrangements for the season; Clarence E. Dern, Merwyn C. Fuss, Chas. R. Arnold, Curtis G. Bowers, S. Le-Roy Byham, W. Wallace Reindolar and P. B. Englar.

summer; but, everything will depend on early and liberal support, all working together. Clarence E. Dern and Merwyn C. Fuss, members of the committee, are now lining up the situation, both as to finances and players, as well as some other matters, and further report will be made next week. A part of the plan is to erect a grand stand and seats for spectators on the school ground, which will be-come part of the High School property, the erection of which will likely be in charge of mechanics supplied by the School Board. The cost of this part of the work has already been fully met by subscriptions from Taneytown patrons.

HIGH SCHOOL CLOSING EXERCISES '27.

A Sketch of the School, its Work and its Advantages.

The present week marked the close of another successful year at the Taneytown school. With the com-pletion of the new building, the school has entered upon a new era of its life, a fact evidenced in every department. The number of pupils has greatly increased. Last year the total enrollment was 230, this year 289. Of the total enrollment, 95 were High School pupils. The McAdoo Challenge.

The wet-dry issue is packed with political dynamite. Policy-makers of both parties are anxious to wrap it in smooth platform phrases and bury it under soft words. This, William Gibbs McAdoo, leader of the dry Democracy in 1924, refuses to permit.

Cannot Harden Rubber

The bureau of standards says when rubber is melted it is changed both chemically and physically. It cannot be hardened. Contrary to what seems to be the quite common impression, rubber goods are not cast by pouring the melted material into molds. Instead the crude rubber is worked between steam-heated rolls and at the same time the sulphur and other ingredients are mixed up. The warm, plastic mixture is then molded and heated to vulcanize the rubber-that is, to cause the sulphur to combine with it.

in Kerry Mountains

Next morning the tempest was stili high, and, venturing upon the strand, I there saw, as at Valentia, crowds of women busied; and speaking to one, she replied, "These stawrmy nights, ma'am, blow good luck to the poor; they wash up the say-weed, and that's why ye see so many now at work."

The company increased till I counted more than sixty; and busy, merry work they made of it; running with heavy loads upon their heads, dripping with wet, exultingly throwing them down, and bounding away in glee. Truly, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine." "And are you not cold?" "Oh, no, ma'am, the salt say keeps us warm." "And how many days must you work in this way, before you get a supply?" "Aw, sometimes not fawrty, but scores of days." "And all you have for your labor is the potato?" "That's all, ma'am, that's all; and it's many of us that can't get the sup of milk with 'em, no, nor the salt; but we can't help it, we must be content with what the good God sends us."

She hitched her basket over her shoulder and, in company with one older than herself, skipped upon the sand made wet with rain, and, turning suddenly about, gave me a pretty specimen of Kerry dancing, as practiced by the peasantry. "The sand is too wet, ma'am, to dance right well on," and again shouldering her basket, with a "God bless ye on yer journey," leaped away.

I looked after them among the rocks, more with admiration for the moment than with pity; for what hearts, amid splendor and ease, lighter than these? This woman, who danced before me, was more than fifty, and I do not believe that the daughter of Herodias herself was more graceful in her movements, more beautiful in complexion or symmetry, than was this dark-haired matron of the mountains of Kerry.-From "The Bible in Ireland" by Asenath Nicholson.

Injurious Fashion

Dieting to reduce may affect a woman's temperament, according to Dr. A. A. Masser of Sheffield, England. "The slim figure demanded by modern fashion has led to innumerable cases of dieting among obese women." Doctor Masser stated in an article in the medical journal, the Lancet. "I have noted how a previously contented, cheerful and placid individual has, on attaining a marked reduction in her weight, become irritable, sullen and mit that with moderate reduction in weight in cases where obesity has been marked, activity of both body and mind is usually increased, but if the reducing process has been carried too far, pronounced lassitude with nervous irritability occurs."

Barometer Beaten!

Eight times as sensitive as a barometer! This is the claim made for a new instrument which measures altitudes above sea level.

French physicists have invented this efficient method, which involves heating a wire of resistance by passing an electric current through it. en a steady temperature has beer produced, the wire, if moved upwards, will become cooler owing to the lesser density of the surrounding

The instrument can be carried by climbers. The drop in temperature gives a more accurate index of the increase in altitude than the ordinary pocket aneroid used by mountaineers.

Old Cathedral in Danger

Lack of foresight by Twelfth-century builders has resulted in cracks in the walls, towers and arches of the cathedral at Mayence. The builders of 800 years ago apparently did not reckon with the possibility that the level of the Rhine would sometime fall. The piles driven when the cathedral was built served well in supporting the masonry as long as they were immersed in water, but due to the fall of the level of the river, and the piles decayed. The wall apparently sagged and cracks appeared. Due to possible danger through using the cathedral, the authorities closed it some time ago.

Apartments for Hogs

Little Mary, age three, made her first visit to her uncle's farm, in an adjoining state, recently. Two observations reported to her mother during the visit bring home the fact that farm life is very remote to the city

One morning she came in and said, "Oh, mother, my uncle showed me the pigs and I saw all of their cute little apartment houses, too."

On another occasion she said, in a puzzled manner, "I see how they get the milk out of the cows, but I have been watching and watching and have not found out yet how they get the milk into the cows."

Rebuked by Washington

Virtually the only woman who came closely into Washington's life who seemed to distress him was his brother Samuel's daughter Harriot. She lived with the Washingtons for over ten years, until her marriage. Her failings seem to have been carelessness and extravagance. She had "no disposition to be careful of her clothes," which were "dabbed about in every hole and corner and her best things always in use," so that "she costs me enough," said Washington.-Detroit News.

Treasures Placed on Altar of Friendship

A Washington man who spent some months in a rooming house in New York brought home a small yarn to a woman who tabbed them down:

"In the house where I put up I was in a room that had just been vacated by an old Englishman, who had lived in it for years. His income was so small that after settling for his rent and laundry he had 20 cents a day for

"Nobody guessed it, because he was so dignified and proper proud. One day he brought home another old gentleman and they shared the 20 cents between them until the adopted one was taken ill. Illness calls for doctors, so the old Englishman brought to the room a man who came in a car, and when he went away carried some books for which he had paid $4,000.

"When the excited landlady wanted to know why, for goodness sake, he hadn't sold the books before, the old gentleman told her that he would have suffered any personal privation rather than part with his handed-down treasures, but with a sick friend it was different.

"And when you figure it out that his friend was just a poor old fellow he had picked off a park bench because he had no better home, you can understand how proud I was to inherit his room."-Washington Star.

Kidd Unjustly Condemned

Information has recently been brought to light which would indicate that Capt. William Kidd really was not as great a pirate as he was painted. It is said that a letter from Lord Bellomont has been brought forth which would have exonerated him if it had been admitted to evidence at the time of his trial. His enemies, however, would not permit its use. Also the forged French passes under which the Moorish vessel which he captured was sailing have been found in the archives of the British public record office. He was not allowed to submit these in evidence.

To Show Prehistoric Life

Life as it existed on the earth in remote geologic ages is to be vividly pictured on the walls of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, in a series of twenty-eight great mural paintings, supplemented by sculptured groups of restorations of such animals as the extinct three-toed horse, the mastodon and the dinosaurs. The commission for the work has been given to Charles K. Knight, leading artist in the depicting of prehistoric landscapes and animals, and he will be assisted by a corps of scientists and by other artists. Six years will be required to bring the entire scheme to completion.

Paper From Cornstalks

Promised by Professor Ames, Iowa.—Corn belt farmers may soon be able to turn their cornstalks into money.

Paper can be made from the stalks, but this knowledge has done the corn grower no good because there has been no way found to harvest the stalks in quantities large enough to justify their substitution for wood pulp by the paper factories.

Now E. V. Collins, professor of agricultural engineering at Iowa State college, has devised a machine which he believes will do the work. It snaps the stalk off at the root, separates the shucked corn into one wagon and puts the stalk, after shredding it for baling, into another.

Peer of Trappers Gets 15,600 Pests as Catch

Salt Lake City, Utah.-For eleven years Roy Mussalman has trapped on the Indian creek cattle range.

He has lived a secluded life at his lonely cabin in Mormon creek pasture, Jack, a large, grizzly dog of undetermined ancestry, and Old Blue, his faithful horse, being his only companions.

In this time he has caught 2,100 lynx, or bobcats, 6,000 coyotes, 1,500 foxes, 6,000 badgers and civet cats and numberless crows and small pests. Stockmen whose ranges he has protected consider be has no peer in the West as a trapper.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our kind neighbors and friends for their kindness shown us during the death and burial of our dear nusband and father, also for the use of automobiles and the beautiful flowers.

MRS. CALVIN WILSON and SON.

In Memory of JOHN T. DUTTERER, Beloved Husband of Mary E. Dutterer, who died May 31, 1927.

Weep not that his toils are over,
Weep not that his race is run,
God grant we may rest as calmly,
When our work, like his is done,
'Til then we yield with gladness,
Our husband to Him to keep.
And rejoice in the sweet assurance,
"He giveth His loved one sleep."

Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
Peaceful in thy grave so low;
Thou no more will join our number,
Thou no more our sorrows know.
Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled,
And in Heaven with Joy to greet thee
Where no farewell tears are shed.

(High School.) (Continued from First Page.) He had thoroughly tested himself for just such a trip.

He called attention to the fact that most of the professions now require college education, and all call for preparation intellectually. All young people have some object in education; some perhaps think of money, some want general knowledge, others want to render public service, while others perhaps go to school because folks send them there.

Whatever may be the object in mind, education gives to students potential powers, a freedom of intellect, the working tools with which to analyze problems-to debate and weigh both sides of questions. He spoke of superstition as a wide influence in highly civilized communities; and that it is necessary that we cultivate judicial powers, and that new minds be given the power to take in new thoughts. Our schools liberate the minds of the young and help them to overcome superstitious ideas.

That it required 69 days for Columbus to cross the ocean while Lindbergh accomplished a longer trip in 331/2 hours, and comparing the experiences of both after their accomplished tasks, shows the difference between over 400 years ago and now. The school helps to destroy old worn out fixed ideas, and brings the greatest measure of freedom of mind and of conscience, through the harmonious co-operation between all classes in standing together for education

At the close of his address Prof. Unger presented diplomas to the graduates, saying that the class represented part of a class of 187 graduates this year in the county. He said that perhaps some of them would not give future evidence of a High School education; others will do a great deal of good in their com-munities, and still others would now go to college and perhaps be of more good. He urged that all must be of material service to the community, as the public has a right to expect it, because of the financial outlay invested in public education.

He briefly mentioned the coming yote in Septmber on the bond issue for more school buildings in districts needing new buildings fully as much as Taneytown. He said these buildings must come, and would be built whether the bond issue carried or not —that it was largely a question where they were to be built at 4 per cent on the invested cost, or at 6 percent-that the bond issue bill represents the cheapest way in which the buildings can be secured.

Paradichlorobenzene and naphthalene flakes are both effective in protecting stored clothing against moth damage, if the clothing is first thoroughly cleaned by brushing and beating, and if possible, sunned. Lindbergh in Washington.

Lindbergh day, in Washington, was celebrated by immense crowds who were attracted to the nation's capital to pay honor to this interpid young flier who has so recently startled the world by his daring.

Hours before he landed from the cruiser Memphis at the Navy yard his movements were being kept in close touch with by millions of people. Microphones at the navy yard dock, in the dome of the Capitol from the Treasury building, and in the topmost peak of the Washington Monument, which had been installed by the tele-phone company for the use of the announcers, made this possible for the benefit of the rapid fire description of every activity that took place in their range of vision of the movements of Lindbergh and his majestic escort and the wild demonstrations of throngs. These observations stations tied together by a net work of telephone lines, brought descriptions of Lindbergh's every movement to the ears of people all over the country.

Col. Lindbergh, along the line of march and on arrival at the Monument grounds, was welcomed by an audience said to be the largest ever assembled in Washington. On entering the speaker's stand, President Coolidge and Col. Lindbergh were greeted by a roar of welcome from the vast throng who had assembled in his honor and to see the Chief Executive of the nation decorate him with the flying cross People not only saw the presentation of the medal, but actually heard every word spoken by the President as the acknowledgement made by Col. Lindbergh. This was made possible by the use of a Bell public address system which was installed and operated by engineers of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Com-

The event was accompanied by several record-breaking events. The Memphis beat the record for a warship run from Europe, making the voyage of 3337 miles in six days and five hours steaming to the capes. An other record was the broadcasting of band music from the Atlantic to the Pacific Coasts. The hook-up consisted of about 50 broadcasting stations, and extending from full east to west, and from Canada to Mexico.

The Lindbergh demonstration in New York City, on Monday, was the greatest greeting he has yet received anywhere, so far as noise and many thousands were concerned. The city's oose and produced another of New States. York's "greatest" shows.

Some Good Short Ones.

The dear old lady entered a drug youth behind the counter. "I suppose," she said, "that you are a properly qualified druggist?"

'Yes, madam." "You have passed all your examinations? "Certainly."

"You've never poisoned anyone by mistake?" "Not to my knowledge." She heaved a sigh of relief.

"Very well, then, you can give me a nickel's worth of cough drops. A prim and proper young miss was much horrified on the street to find a small boy, apparently not much over six years old, smoking a cigarette.

"Little boy," she command she commanded.

"throw down that horrid thing this "Go chase yerself, lady," answered the infant disdainfully; "hunt yer own I found this one myself."

A stick of long-leafed pine, 10x10. which formed a part of the old roof of the White House, was found to be as sound as the day it was put in, 127 vears ago.

LUMBER CAMP SONGS | PROVES SANITY, BUT INNOCENT DITTIES

Writer Traces History of Ancient Tunes.

Montreal.-Coincident with the decision of the Quebec government to appoint a committee of prominent men to study the speech of the French-Canadians with a view to putting a quietus once and forever on the slanderous opinions of tourists who believe, from contact with cab drivers and others, that the only language in French-Canada is a jargon of French and English, comes the publication by Mr. J. Murray Gibbon of Montreal of translations of thirty of the songs of French Canada.

Instead of the swaggering, blustering, devil-may-care lumberjack and river driver singing songs best heard in deserted districts of the forest and river, the secret is out at last, namely, that the songs most sung by these lumberjacks are in reality children's songs in the main, brought over from France hundreds of years ago, and the first white man's music to be heard in North America. Traces Old Tunes. "Canadian Folk Songs, Old and New," the book just published by Mr. Gibbon through Dutton & Co., New York, not only is an education to lovers of music who gain some idea of the spirit in the songs, but it contains a somewhat lengthy treatise on the history of the music. The translator believes that some of the tunes date back to the Twelfth century, others corresponding to those in the Tudor and Stuart periods in England. Strangest of all, it is stated that the tune of the famous old Scotch song, "Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonnie Doon," was discovered in a Seventeenth century manuscript in France.

"En Roulant Ma Boule," one of the favorite French Canadian songs was originally sung by French children at play-rolling balls. Another colorful selection has to do with a French trapper who saved the lives of his companions when threatened by the Iriquois, at the expense of his own. When his body was found, beside it lay a poem written in blood.

Purest of French.

The Quebec government points out that the purest of French is spoken by prominent French Canadians, even purer than that in France, and this book by Mr. Gibbon will no doubt also dissipate another mistaken impression that the simple French pastourelles were of questionable merit, held by people who are unable to read French.

Wild Horse Elimination

Sought by Cattle Men San Francisco.—The last of their type, wild horses of the once "wild" West are becoming victims of a campaign of extermination, because of their encroachments on civilization. Thousands of these wild mustangs. descendants of those used by Indians. before the advent of the white man in the West, have roamed in small bands from their mountain wilderness into sparsely settled country to prey upon the grass of cattle and sheep ranges. Stockmen, co-operating with forest rangers, have formed wild horse hunting parties, with the result that in Utah recently more than 1,000 were eliminated and in Nevada a campaign netted 1,238.

In the north coast section of California the wild horse problem has become so serious a conference has been called to outline plans for extermination. Similar action has been taken in Idaho and Montana. The horses are declared to be of no economic worth and their elimination of decided value to cattle and sheepmen

Wisconsin "U" Leads With 40,450 Students

The University of California ranks second to Wisconsin in the number of extension students, but has less than half the Wisconsin number in that branch. The western state leads all the others in full-time students registration, with 17,101.

Fruit Growers of Ozarks Will Have Banner Year

Kansas City, Mo.-Fruit growers in the Ozark mountains are to have one of the greatest years on record, according to report of one of the principal fruit growers' associations. More than 20,000 acres of strawberries will be under cultivation and from 2,500 to 3,000 carloads of berries are expected to be shipped to the city markets. Officers also stated that about 2,000 carloads of grapes would be shipped this year.

LOSES REPUTATION

Famous "Two-Gun" Man Just a Fine Liar.

Mission, S. D .- "Automatic Bill" Hackworth has lost his reputation. Mission thought "Automatic" was a regular two-gun man, but it finds he was simply a liar, instead.

"Automatic Bill's" reputation all over the Rosebud country was that of a bad man-an awfully bad man at that. It was known that he would shoot at the drop of the hat and consequently he never had to shoot. But "Automatic" worked up such a reputation, such a tremendously bad reputation, that last week he was dragged before the sanity commission.

And the sanity commission decided "Automatic Bill," the terror of the Rosebud, was just a liar. The commission further decided Bill was just as sane as any one, but that he certainly had a good line of stories.

Just to Amuse.

"Automatic" admitted some of his stories were told "just to amuse the boys," who expected big, bloody stories from him, personal exploits, etc., and he just hated to disappoint them. Now the Rosebud country is trying to figure out how "Automatic Bill" ever got his reputation as a two-gun man. With the biggest name along that line in all the Rosebud Indian country, not a single case in which "Automatic" actually used his guns can be found.

"Automatic Bill" Hackworth is a little fellow about fifty years old. He wears a Scotch cap with a piece of cloth sewed around the back and sides like a sheik of the desert. Around his waist he wears a belt, supposedly in which to carry two or three automatic pistols.

The speed with which he could get his guns out and go into action with them has covered many floors with dead men who were too slow on the draw, according to his stories. Bill lives on an Indian allotment a mile or so from Mission and farms a little bit for a living.

One of "Automatic Bill's" prize stories was told in connection with the World war. "I was with a Canadian regiment," he said. "There was a German machine gun nest on a hill top. We couldn't get sight of the Germans but they were killing us off fast. So I got one of the aviators to tie me on the end of a rope and fly over that hill. With an automatic in each hand, I killed every German in that nest and silenced the guns. They shot at me

1.000 times but I wasn't hit.' But another time "Automatic" had a fight-a real fight, he says-with a bunch of a dozen or more and they just shot him to pieces. "Had to have all the bones in one leg and on one side, including the ribs, cut away and silver bones put in their places, they were broken up so bad," says Bill.

Another one of Bill's stories that always pleased his hearers was of his treatment of an old acquaintance whom he met when he went over the top in France one night. This old acquaintance was in the German army. Bill slashed off his head, put it in a box and sent it to the fellow's father in Kansas, with a message of how much he thought of the dead man.

Not All Bloody. But not all of "Automatic Bill's" claims to fame were grounded on blood. He grafted lettuce and Russian thistle and sold a single plant for $600 and got $2,000 for a dozen of the plants from another fellow. He also grafted turnips and cabbage and made a lot of other such discoveries, but at the sanity hearing last week he laughingly told the commission he just told the stories to amuse himself.

Last week "Automatic Bill" came into Mission wearing his guns pulled far forward where he could get to them quickly, and carrying a Winchester rifle across his arm. He announced he was looking for the fellow who fired a shot through his window the night previous.

Mission took to its hole and pulled the hole in after. Stores were closed. Everybody got off the street. School children were sent home through back streets and told not to come back.

"The two-gun man is on a rampage," was whispered all over town. "He's liable to kill anybody in the place."

Finally two deputies went out and talked to Bill a few minutes. Then they grabbed him, took his guns and his rifle away from him and locked him up. The next day be was before the sanity commission, where he proved he was sane, but he lost his reputation when he did so.

Now Mission is wondering how "Automatic Bill" ever ran his bluff on the community for so long and how he got his reputation as a two-gun man anyway. He hasn't any more reputation as a two-gun man, but he's got a splendid one as a liar.

"W HEN I was twenty-one I graduated from Yale with a Ph. D. degree and then went to Freiberg, Saxony, for a post-graduate course at the Royal School of Mines.

"I remained there for three years and when I returned to the United States I tackled Senator Hearst, then a foremost mine owner in the West, for a job. The senator told me: "The only objection I have to you is that you have been at Freiberg and have had your head filled with a lot of fool theories. I don't want any kid-glove engineers."

"If you promise not to tell my father, I'll tell you something," I answered. The senator promised. 'I didn't learn a thing in Germany,' I said. I began work the next morning at seven o'clock .- JOHN HAYS" HAM-MOND."

TODAY: Mr. Hammond is one of the greatest mining engineers in the world. Through his efforts mines were opened in the United States, in South and Central America, in Mexico and Russia. He is also a leading figure in the building of electric car lines and hydroelectric power plants in all parts of the world, and has made extensive operations for land irrigation on a gigantic scale.

The adventures that Mr. Hammond has passed through in his life would fill a book with more thrilling episodes than those of any hero in fiction. He has starved for days in jungles, escaped cannibals and just slipped out of an executioner's hands in Africa, where he was arrested by Kruger and trapped by the prosecutor into pleading guilty under a code of the law carrying the death penalty.

Lesson for June 19 PETER TEACHES GOOD CITIZEN-

Temperance Lesson. LESSON TEXT-I Peter 2:11-17: helps tell the story.

GOLDEN TEXT-Love worketh no ill to his neighbor.-Rom. 18:10. PRIMARY TOPIC-Peter Tells Us How to Behave.

JUNIOR TOPIC-Rules for Right INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-

IC—What Makes a Good Citizen.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—The Character of a Good Citizen.

In order to get an intelligent grasp of today's lesson, one must get a view of the entire epistle as to its purpose and method. The purpose was to establish all who were passing through suffering and testing (see ch. 1:7, 8:14, 4:12, 5:10-12).

The principles of Christian behavior set forth in the text of this lesson are of broader scope than citizenship. They embrace:

I. Behavior as Pilgrims and So-Journers (vv. 11, 12).

Christians are merely sojourners on the earth. They have not here their permanent home but are journeying through the earth on their way to the eternal home in the heavens. Our heavenly citizenship (Phil. 3:20) should constrain us to the maintenance of conduct consistent with our high calling.

1. Abstain from fleshly lusts (v. 11). The term lusts includes the entire army of unclean forces springing from our carnal natures: They are enumerated in Gal. 5:19-21. These war against the soul. The Christian should not be under the sway of carnal pas-

2. Behavior as citizens (vv. 13-17). While the Christian's true citizenship is in heaven he has a mesponsibility as a citizen on the earth.

1. Obey all requirements of civil rulers (v. 13).

Fidelity to Christ is shown by loyalty to civil authority. The intelligent Christian recognizes the necessity of government and graciously submits to those in authority over him regardless of the form of government. His duties as a citizen he performs as the Lord's free man-not through servile fear. Government even of a low order is better than anarchy.

2. Honor all men (v. 17). He will see in every man the image of God and therefore give honor to him. This applies to all relations wherein we touch human life. 3. Love the brotherhood (v. 17). The Christian has a peculiar love for those who are of the same household. The brotherhood is composed of those who are children of God by faith in Jesus Christ. 4. Fear God (v. 17).

5. Honor the King (v. 17). This has a peculiar significance because in all probability the wicked

Nero was then reigning as emperor. II. Behavior in a World of Opposition (I Peter 4:1-5).

1. Armed for the conflict (v. 1). Christians are engaged in a tremendous conflict with evil forces within and without. Satan and his angels are bent on the believer's defeat and destruction. The only way to keep from being overcome with his darts is to arm oneself with the mind of

2. The salutary effect of suffering (v. 1).

Suffering has a remedial effect upon God's children. The one who suffers with Christ as an example will have tity with Christ that calls forth the opposition of the world.

Since the flesh has so long had sway over the life, God is entitled to the rest of the believer's energy. Looking back upon a wasted life in serving the lusts of the flesh will move one to give no more time to serving such a master.

5. The attitude of the world toward the one who separates himself from it (v. 4).

The world speaks evil of those who will not go its way. The world not only wonders at the life of the Christian who separates himself from its pleasures, but will heap upon him nicknames and reproach.

6. Account shall be given (v. 5). The Christian should so live as to be able to render an account to God.

The Joy of Christ

O believer, the joy of Christ is within you; give it room, let it spring up within you like a well of living water, and you will rejoice in the Lord always, and again rejoice.-G. H. C. McGregor.

Praising God

When you find that a man has got to praising God it is a good sign. Oh, let us get to personal love, to personal praise! That is what is wanted in the church today .- D. L. Moody.

AMBER TELLS TALE OF PASSING AGES

Records Clearly Revealed to the Geologist.

That the island of Britain was once connected by a land bridge to the mainland of Europe is familiar to most of us, but the geologic presumption that all Europe was once an island and that ocean currents swept from what is now Asia across South Russia, present-day Poland and north Germany is less familiar. Curiously, the amber of beads and pipestems

True amber is really fossil gum, just such gum as forms today on wounded pine or cherry trees. As that modern gum will form a sticky tomb for the unwary ant or fly that treads on it, or even for a stray blossom blown by the wind, so some millions of years ago the gum of ancient forest trees wrapped itself about the tiny flora and fauna of its day, preserving them as perfectly as a laboratory film of Canada balsam preserves a modern microscope slide. For thousands of years gum dripped from the Baltic forests and the trees fell and rotted away, leaving pellets of gum undecayed in the clay where they fell, and then, the record of the rocks reveals, the sea gradually encroached upon the ancient forest, wearing away the litter of the forest soil and tossing and polishing the ancient gum, which became rounded pellets of amber. Some of these pellets were finally buried in the blue-gray clay of the sea bottom, and from the part of that ancient sea bottom which is still beneath the Baltic amber is occasionally tossed up. More of it, however, is dug out of the earth in the Samland peninsula near Konigsberg. From such earth the geologists have dug nearly a thousand species of fossils, whose lack of relationship to those which underlie them, with their kinship to those deposited somewhat earlier in eastern Europe, tell the tale of what geologists call the Lattorfian sea. Part of the amber forest, apparently, northern shore. It is difficult to date the amber itself. The clay in which it lies may be correlated with other sedimentary rocks, but the trees which furnished the gum and the flowers and insects preserved in the gum lived when the region was land, not sea, which may have been long before the clay sediment formed. The very perfection of the preserving process wrought by the gum makes comparison with other forms of fossil difficult. The fossil rocks record only the hard parts of an insect; in the amber the very facets of the eye of an insect which died perhaps ten or fifty million years ago may still be studied, as if it had been put away yesterday.

was submerged by this sea; part of it probably remained dry above its

The geologists still wrangle. But whether amber be Eocene or Oligocene makes little difference to man; amber has always seemed beautiful to him. Amber beads have been found in the burial heaps of Neolithic man, some twelve thousand years old; the Swiss lake dwellers, Europe's first farmers, used amber nine or ten thousand years ago. The pre-Trojan Cretans and the pre-Roman Etruscans delighted in its soft, electric surfaces. And despite the work of the chemists, providing artificial methods for making almost everything, amber is likely still to be loved until men cross the ether to

Effect of Light Waves

Ultra-violet radiation, consisting of light waves too short to be seen by the human eye, may some day play an important part in agriculture, as it does now in medicine, for it has been shown to have measurable results on the germination and growth of seeds. The experiments of Dr. Charles Sheard and Dr. George M. Higgins, of the Mayo foundation in Rochester, Minn., the consciousness that it is his iden- will be reported in Science. Puts Sulphur in Shoes

If you would ward off the grip, put a teaspoonful of sulphur in each shoe every morning during the winter months, is the advice of Leverett H. Holden, eighty-three-year-old city clerk of Malden, Mass. The sulphur, he explains, works up through the system and proves unpleasant to any grip germs that happen to be taken into the body. In Holden's boyhood days sulphur and molasses composed a common spring tonic, but the sulphur in shoes as a grip preventive was told to him by a Malden resident who has since died.

Art Too Lifelike

Driving on an icy road near Lawlor, Iowa, Ben Webster landed in a ditch. Half a mile away was a man who seemed to be leaning on a pitchfork. "Hey, there!" yelled Webster, "come over and give me a lift!" The man did not move. Webster called louder. Still the man stood motionless. "Must be deaf," Webster said to himself as he started across the field toward the man, who proved to be the bronze figure of a World war veteran, leaning on a rifle, erected as a memorial. Art is becoming too lifelike.-Capper's Weekly.

Fish Has Odd Power

to Benumb Opponent

In the winter of 1882, when the writer was at work on the fishes of Key West, a tourist came to his office, bearing a small ray or skate of which he told a curious story. Seeing the little fish close to shore, he stabbed it with a pocket knife. At once he felt a sharp shock like that from a Leyden jar, which, for the moment, paralyzed his arm.

So he brought the fish to me. It belonged to the family of torpedoes or electric rays, being one of the smallest kinds of these fishes, Narcine brasiliensis. It is locally known to the Bahama and Key West fishermen as numb-fish or cramp-fish, and to the Spanish as entemedor. These fishes, the torpedoes or electric rays, are very much like the ordinary skate in appearance, but softer in body and more rounded in form, the flesh being very watery and the skin everywhere perfectly smooth.

The torpedo yields a quick, sharp shock when touched, benumbing an enemy for the time being. The shock is well carried along a metallic conductor, such as a knife or spear. It is said to have the qualities of magnetism, "rendering the needle magnetic and decomposing chemical compounds." However disconcerting to one who feels it, it is not dangerous. The exercise of this power soon exhausts its possessor and a period of rest is needed .- Prof. David Starr Jordan in the Scientific American.

Had to Have Strong

Coffee on Broadway

During her recent week-end visit to a town on the South shore the Woman stopped in a fruit and vegetable store to make some purchases for her friend. The clerk was having a rather difficult task, for the customer upon whom he was waiting wanted to know the history of each purchase.

"What kind of coffee have you?" she asked. "Good coffee!" promptly responded the dark-eyed son of Italy. "Yes, I know. But what brand is

"These one, she's drink by all the people downtown, New York. Fiftynine cents a pound." "Oh, that's too expensive."

"Well, here's another, only 49 cents," hastily volunteered the man. "Is it strong?" asked the lady dubiously. "I like strong coffee." "Sure. Wonderful strong. They drink these kind on Broadway. They gotta have strong coffee there. They stay up all night."—New York Sun.

Hope-Making Plant

Much of the peninsula of Yucatan is very stony, and as there are practically no rivers, the planters depend on rain to irrigate their fields. Sisal hemp, or henequin, is the chief article of growth and export throughout the peninsula.

The sisal itself is an evergreen plant closely related to the century plant or American aloe. The fiber is extracted from the curving, swordlike leaves, which are cut at the end of the third or fourth year of growth. The leaves are macerated, or made into pulp, and the fibers torn apart by machine. The pulp is then washed away and the fibers dried and bleached by the sun, and when the process is completed this yellowish-white fiber ranks next to Manila hemp in making rope.-Washington Star.

Recalling Early Days

With plenty of patience, paper and a pencil, it is possible for you to remember what happened when you were six months old, asserts Dr. E. Pickworth Farrow, English psychologist, in Popular Science Monthly. For periods of one or two hours at a time, he says, write down any and every thought which occurs to you. Repeat the process several times. Then, as memories of recent happenings gradually are "worked off" paper, you will go back to recollections of your early life.

Colors and Mentality

That different colors may have important effects on the mental state of people has been believed for many years. Some psychologists have gone so far as to prepare charts of the mental effects of different colors, red being stimulating and exciting, blue depressing, and so on. In a long series of tests made on children several months ago it was found that most of the children preferred red and orange colors to blue and violet ones Red for most people is a cheerful, inspiring color.

Not Copied From Nature

My sculpture is not copied from nature . . . I follow a definite and preconceived idea about sculpture, and from that I make a sketch in clay. . . . What I search for is the disposition of volume in space, the figure in light and air. I search for an ample form and the copying of an actual figure is of no interest to me. . . . Who could copy nature? Even the Greeks never attempted it. . What is important is the general idea. It can't be explained, but has to be felt.-Maillol.

Knowledge and Power

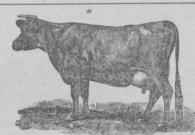

A great many people "know" many things they really don't know Some one has said that what is not known would fill more books than ever have been printed. Human knowledge is limited, yet a little knowledge may exert tremendous power .- Grit.

Extra copies of this issue of The Record may be had, at 3 cents each, Class was entertained at a strawberry at our office. They should be of interest to many patrons of the High School, because of the pictures of the graduates and the faculty, as well as for the first page write-up.

The first baseball game of the season-or the second, counting the Thurmont game-will be held on the H. S. ground, the Saturday afternoon, at 2:30. A strong team from Pleasant Valley will be the opponents Let everybody turn out and give the new home team a strong boost.

Why should The Record say anything about the disgraceful occurrences on our streets, late at night? It merely advertises the town to the public, to its disadvantage. Taneytown is a good town in nearly every way, and it could be made decent late at night, if those in authority tried to make it so. Until this is done, no doubt the disorderly and disgraceful conduct, that citizens near the square complain of, will continue.

The effort to secure funds to place Mrs. Charles Myerly-who once lived here—in a home, is not a Lutheran effort in the sense that she was, or is, a Lutheran. She was not a member of the church, while here, and may not be now. It is true, however, that the Sup't of Lutheran Inner Mission work, in Baltimore, has secured the option for her on a vacancy in a home. About $45.00 of the needed sum is yet to be subscribed, and naturally her old home neighborhood is looked to, to help. Just a little more of the Good Samaritan spirit will supply it.

A very enjoyable surprise party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geary Bowers', Monday evenng, June 6, in honor of B. F. Bower's 77th. birthday, by his children and their families, and great-grandchildren. The evening was spent with music on the grafonola and several quartets. At a late hour all were invited to the dinning room where refreshments were served, such as cake, candy, bananas and ice cream. After which all returned to their homes wishing Mr. Bowers many more happy birthdays. About 57 were present.

Geo. W. Clingan, Foreman.

The following clipping was sent to us for publication from Mrs. Wm. F. Clingan, of York, concerning her son, George W., who is foreman the paint department of the Martin-Perry Body Works, in York. "George Washington Clingan first smiled at the rising sun in Taneytown Md. It is said that he swung wicked foot on ice skates in his boy-hood days. Missing a meal to play baseball was also a favorite pastime. George was one of fifteen children and it would have been possible to organize a family baseball nine.

As a lad he spent four years with the J. H. Reindollar, Tanevtown. concern getting acquainted with the art of painting. In 1905, G. W. placed himself on the payroll of the Martin Carriage Works where he had a hand in painting thousands of carts built He also helped to South America. He also helped to add color to all the vehicle models of those bygone days. The past seven of his twenty-two years of service has been spent as Foreman. During this time he has been sent to our Indianapolis Plant, on special duty, on several occasions. George declares, when questioned on the subject of recreation, that base ball (as a fan) is his long suit. Mrs. Clingan comes into the picture we are trying to "paint" as well as two fine boys and a girl. His six year old oy can already tell a fielder's choice from a home run."

Leadership, and "Our Way."

Some men get the reputation for being dictatorial and snappy; some times without deserving it, or at least not without some justification. Ones manner of speech is largely a matter of habit; or not so much "habit," as the word is mostly used as of daily contact and practice with a job.

For instance, the commander of a body of soldiers, or one who directs large bodies of men-gives commands -must be sharp and decisive, with-out hesitation. Heads of great corporations, or even comparatively small enterprises, whose business it is to give many decisions during a day, must naturally be positive, and apparently dictatorial in manner of speech.

In many lines of work, quick thinking must be done and quick decisions rendered. There is little time for the selection anr studying of words just how they may sound to critics. Slowness in speech is costly, when somebody is waiting for orders to go ahead—one slow leader can hold back nany workers.

These quick thinkers and movers make mistakes—sometimes; mostly, they do not. Their business, or practice, has fitted them for seeing through things and reaching conclusions quickly; sometimes instinctively and on general experience, but rarely very far wrong. Of course, such men may not be popular. They are likely to be called "bosses" and wanting to 'run things" but just the same, they hold a strong place in real progress, and are indispensable in many tasks. Naturally, the average person rather resents their style. Folks like to talk, and argue, and have some entertainment during their tasks. They dislike to be hurried, or to accept too much leadership of the positive sort, especially when not compelled to do so. There are so many things that we "must" do, that we like the pleasure of not letting "bossy" leaders have their own way—even if it be the best way. Having "our way" is a very wide spread natural desire but it is wide-spread natural desire, but it is not by any means always the right way, and we actually need being "bossed" more than we admit.
