A BOND ISSUE FOR PUB-LIC ROADS

Two Bend Issues to be Voted on, Monday, Sept. 26th.

A matter that has hardly been thought of, and perhaps not known by many, is that of a second Bond issue for $250,000 for public roads of Carroll County, to be voted on Sept. 26, authorized in House Bill No. 649, Chapter No. 557. This bill, with the one for the erection of school buildings, would make a total new bonded debt of $850,000 for the county, should both be passed.

More good roads and more school buildings for Carroll County, would be very desirable; and the big question is now before the taxpayers of the county, as to whether they want more schools and roads at present construction costs, and are willing to pay for them through higher taxes. substance of the Road bill is, briefly summarized below.

Section 1. Authorizes the County Commissioners to borrow money on the faith of the county, and to issue and sell coupon bonds therefor not to exceed $250,000 in denominations of $100.00 or any multiple thereof, to bear interest at the rate not exceeding 5 percent per annum, the proceeds of said bonds to be used for the improvement and construction of public roads in the county.

Section 2 and 3 provides for the selling of the Bonds as needed, and authorizing the levying of taxes to redeem same, within thirty years, the selection of roads to be improved, etc.

Further sections cover various de-tails; and Section 12 provides that the question is to be submitted to the voters of the county, on Monday, Sept. 26, 1927. The Bill was intro-duced by C. Ray Barnes, of Carroll County, by request.

(Through the courtesy of Delegate Chas. B. Kephart and Senator Geo. P. B. Englar, either of the proposed Bond issue bills can be examined in detail, at this office.—Ed).

THE BIG COUNTY FAIR

What it will be, Must Come and See.

The County Fair is still progressing in preparations for the big event, next week, and all that is needed is good weather, that is so essential to such events. In addition to the attractions heretofore announced, there will be two chariot races each day, a novelty never shown here.

The County Agent will also be present each day of the fair to give demonstrations to farmers on how to treat their seed wheat to prevent smut. This alone will be worth much more than the cost of an admission ticket.

No advance write-up can do justice to the attractions of a county fair, for no one knows just what they will be. In fact, there is always a big attraction in the crowd itself; in meeting old friends and making new ones; in just seeing and hearing things-some that we like and perhaps some we do not like—and a lot of things go to make up a fair that those who attend, We again repeat, briefly, the schedule for each day.

Take No Chances Against Rabies.

Commenting on the death that occurred recently in Baltimore from the effects of the bite of a rabid dog, Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health' said: "There is just one preventive against rabies, as the disease which follows old name for it—hydrophobia—meaning fear of water, comes from the horrible spasms of the throat which accompany it and which are aggravated by the sight of water or food or anything that suggests the sensa-

"In the thirty years since the Pasteur treatments were started in Maryland-back in 1898-approximately 1500 people have been given the protective treatments against this dreadful disease. Among those treated there have been less than five deaths. Each of these occurred because the treatments were started too late.

"An unnecessary and preventable death like the one that occurred recently, serves as a terrible warning. The person who is bitten or otherwise injured by a mad animal or by one that is acting suspiciously should apply at once for the Pasteur treatment. If the animal was not killed and was placed under the care of the nearest veterinarian or of the State Department of Agriculture—which is what should be done—a few days under such care will show whether the animal is normal and can be released. If the animal is not mad there is no need for further treatments. If the animal was killed, tests made at the State Laboratory will show whether or not the creature was mad and will determine whether or not the treatments should be contnued until the full number have been given.

"There has been a steady increase from year to year in the number of people who have been bitten by mad or vicious animals, probably due to the carelessness of the owners in allowing dogs to run at large and to the great number of stray, ownerless, dogs. Since the first of the current year, over 100 persons who had been bitten or otherwise injured by rabid animals have been given the Pasteur treatment and have been protected from rabies. Of that number 53 were treated by Dr. C. W. G. Rohrer, chief of the Pasteur Division of the State Department of Health and the rest by their own physicians.

THE PROPOSED BOND ISSUES EXPLAINED

Important Questions to be Decided at Special Election.

The voters of Carroll County are beginning to realize that a special election will be held on September 26, when they will be called upon to determine two questions; whether or not School Bonds shall be issued; and whether or not Road Bonds shall be issued. From the many questions asked of the representative of this paper, it is evident that few voters have sufficient knowledge of the provisions of the laws relating to these bond issues to vote intelligently.

The author of the two bills passed by the recent Legislature, William L. Seabrook, attorney for the County Commissioners of Carroll County, has been asked to give as briefly as possible the reason for the enactment of, and the more important provisions of these laws; and has done so in the following interview.

SCHOOL BONDS.

On May 17, 1926, the Board of Education and the County Commissioners of Carroll County adopted a joint resolution, in which it is set forth that both boards, the party leaders of both political parties, and the rank and file of the citizens of the county, believe that the upward limit of taxation has been reached; that new school buildings are imperatively needed at Sykesville, Union Bridge, Westminster, New Windsor and Uniontown, and additions at Charles Carroll and Mt. Airy; that the two boards, recogniznig the imperative need, and inadequacy of school facilities at the places named, realize that there are only two ways in which the necessary funds can be raised-by direct levy of taxes or by the issuing of bonds—and realize the further fact that the levying of taxes beyond the present point would impose a burden upon the taxpayers too grievous to be borne. After reciting these facts in preamble, the joint resolution is as follows: "Be it resolved that until the citizens of Carroll County shall demand and approve a bond issue for schools to meet the various needs of the county, in its annual budget for an appropriation for any of the new public school buildings hereinbefore mentioned; and the County Commissioners will adhere strictly to this program."

DRAFTING THE BILL. When the attitude of the two Boards became generally known, the Parent-Teachers Associations of the county began to agitate the question of the passage of a bill by the Legislature of 1927 to provide for a bond issue. Many desired a bill providing for a mandatory issuing of bonds without submission to the voters, as has been done for many of the counties of the State, but such a bill would not have been in harmony with the When the attitude of the two the citizens of Carroll County shall demand and approve a bond issue.' orized by the boards to prepare a bond bill, providing for a referendum.

Announced by Department of Agriculture for 1927-28.

Eleven farm and household features forming the extended 1927-28 program of the Radio Service, United States Department of Agriculture, are announced for broadcast beginning Oct. 3, 1927. The schedule listing the full program has been sent to radio stations in all parts of the United States and a full list of stations which will broadcast Radio Service features during the coming year will be released soon.

The new season's program includes three of last year's favorites: "Aunt Sammy's" Daily Housekeepers' Chat, the Noon-time Farm Flashes, and the United States Radio Farm School, as well as eight "special features," some of which will be put on the air for the first time when the season opens early

"Aunt Sammy's" Chats will continue as the 10-minute, five-day-per-week program which proved popular last year. These Chats are written in an informal style and contain brief discussions of such important prob-lems of home-making as meal plan-ning, marketing, cooking, canning, health and food habits of children, sewing, home furnishing, decoration, gardening, and other closely related subjects. The Chats have been reduced from 15 to 10 minutes in length to comply with requests for shorter

Somebody Always Pays.

Considering only the money cost of a thing occupies a great deal of our time, and we are not much concerned about why a getting price happens to be to our advantage. The "getting" about tax reduction.

However, there are sound reasons is more important than the "why." Just so we pay less, what matters it who pays more?

And somebody does pay more-or suffers loss-when somebody else buys too low; and somebody suffers from paying the too high prices that stance, the high price of labor in cities, that draws labor away from the country districts, returns back to the latter in the increased costs of manu-

There are no miracles, these days, but there are many trade reasons for low prices, as well as high, that we do not understand; and sometimes we think we are being robbed, when we only benefit at somebody's expense.

There are times when rivalry between men in business-one trying to drive another off the field—causes the unfairest of low prices that are of benefit, temporarily, to many people, but the competitor with the least money, and who can not live without a little profit, is the victim; and after a while, when he is driven out, the more, and the people eventually pay for their temporary good time.

When one gains another loses, applies always and everywhere. It is is something like this, and it leads the gambler's game. This situation in the Senate is the only valid reason for a special session. Free from deadlocks and wrangling delays, Congress can dispose of all these and adjourn before the summer of 1928. If the Senate, however, must spend half the winter over these contests from Illinois and Pennsylvania, Congress will continue indefinitely or adjourn with its work unfinished. If a special session of the Senate will prevent this situation from developing, there should be a special Senate session."

Ages of Candidates.

Four of the leading candidates for the Republican and Democratic nominations for the presidency being men over sixty years old, it is interesting to compare their ages with those of the oldest Presidents we have had in the past. If Governor Frank O. Lowden should be elected in 1928, he would be sixty-eight years one month and six daes old on March 4, 1929, when he would take office. The oldest man ever elected to the presidency was William Henry Harrison, who was sixty-eight years and twenty-three days old when he entered the White House. Governor Lowden tops Harrison by thisteen days.

Either Senator Jim Reed or Charles E. Hughes, if elected in 1928, would rank just below William Henry Harrison as the second oldest man ever elected to the presidency. Mr. Reed will be sixty-seven years three months and twenty-three days, and Mr. Hughes will be sixty-six years, ten months and twenty-four days on March 4, 1929, when the new President takes office. Next to William Henry Harrison in age upon taking office was Andrew Jackson in his second term. He lacked eleven days of being sixty-six years old. And since he lived to serve out this term, he is the oldest man who has ever presided in the White House. He lacked only eleven days of being seventy years old when his second term ended. William Henry Harrison, who was older when he was elected than Jackson was when he was elected to his second term, did not live to serve out his four years.

Next on the list of old Presidents comes James Buchanan, who was sixty-five years ten months and eighteen days old upon his induction into the presidency, about a year younger than Mr. Hughes would be if he were elected President and a year and five months younger than Senator Reed would be if he should succeed Mr. Coolidge. And next below Buchanan stands Zachary Taylor, who was sixty-four years, five months and eight days old when he became President. Vice-President Dawes, if he should win in 1928, would be sixty-three years six months and five days old on taking office. This would rank him next to Zachary Taylor in age, or as the fifth oldest President at the time of entering office.

There have not been many Presidents wno were more than sixty years old on the daf they took office. John Adams, Andrew Jackson, William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor and James Buchanan were the only men to be over sixty at the beginning of first terms. In addition, Washington, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe had reached sixty before they began their second terms. Jackson was the only President who, being over sixty when first elected, achieved two terms.-Phila. Ledger.

The Modest Groom

At a village church a wedding was fixed and the happy morn arrived. In due course a youthful swain and a buxom damsel presented themselves at the chancel steps.

When the supposed bridegroom was asked, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" he stammered: "Please, sir, I'm not the man! I don't want to get married!"

"Not the man!" exclaimed the clergyman aghast. "Then where is the bridegroom?" "He's down at the bottom of the

Nature Has Equipped Sea Bird for Piracy

The man-o'-war is a sea bird with a body about the size of that of an ordinary barnyard hen, monstrous long wings, spreading as much as ten feet, a long bill with hooked tip that makes a dangerous weapon, and tiny feet so weak that the bird can scarcely wad-

With such equipment, the bird is an accomplished aeronaut, circling and diving in midair with lightning speed, or hanging on motionless wings in the teeth of a gale without losing ground. It gets its name from its habit of dashing forth, after the manner of the oldfashioned frigate ship, or fullsailed man-o'-war in pursuit of a merchantman, and playing the villain's part with the peaceful booby returning home from the sea with a maw full of fish for the powder-puff youngster on the islet's battlements.

The frightened booby squaks and dodges, but it cannot escape the threatening pirate bird; so in despair it disgorges in midair and makes its escape, while the man-o'-war dives like a plummet, recaptures the morsel before it drops into the sea, and makes for its own youngster atop the islet or lies in wait for another encounter-National Geographic Magazine.

Desert Animals That Scorpions Can't Harm

One of the most fascinating chapters in animal poisons is the subject of natural immunity, the fact that some animals are immune to the poisons of others and remain unhurt if stung or bitten by the poisonous animal, whereas all other sorts of beasts

A case in point is that of desert animals which are unharmed by a scorpion's sting. The desert fox, the kangaroo rat and other inhabitants of deserts where scorpions abound are in this happy position. Their cousins, living far away from the desert, would at once be seriously injured by a scorpion's sting, whereas the desert breeds remain unhurt. It is to be supposed that in the far distant past, before the desert animals had this complete immunity to scorpion venom, those which were stung and could not resist died, leaving no offspring. Their luckier brothers, who happened to have a hardier constitution, survived and left behind them a resistant race of descendants.-Prof. H. Munro Fox in the Forum.

Eskimos Have to Marry

Whenever there has been talk of a tax on bachelors in England, there has been a chorus of protest. Yet their bachelors may consider themselves lucky, for amongst the Eskimos of northern Canada marriage is compulsory.

Christian Leden, the Norwegian explorer, who recently returned from a three years' stay among them, says that no people live a cleaner family life than the Eskimos. Each man has as many wives as he can support, and all are remarkably good natured. Bad temper is considered a sign of being possessed by a devil, and lying is a crime punished by death.

Leden came across only one woman who was not married, and that was due to the fact that her hair was too short.—London Tit-Bits.

The Other Man's Job

It is useful to examine our own capabilities when we find ourselves envying the lot of others. Are we making good in our own sphere of work? That is the first test. If we are merely pottering along in an undistinguished way the chances are we should do the same in any other role. In our own work we are very conscious of its difficulties and barriers. Our advancement is slow because we daily encounter the little lets and hindrances that are hidden from the outsider. But these would be much the same in any other job. If we cannot surmount them in our own case, it is unlikely we should be more successful in a position with which we are wholly unacquainted.—Exchange.

Children's Day

It is not possible to determine when Children's day originated. From early times many pastors devoted a certain Sabbath for special services for children. In 1856, Rev. Charles H. Leonard, pastor of the First Universalist church of Chelsea, Mass., set apart a Sunday for the dedication of children to the Christian life. This was the second Sunday in June. In 1868 the Methodist convention recommended the second Sunday in June to be annually observed as Children's day. In 1881 the Ecumenical Methodist council of London recommended the same day and similar action was taken in 1883 by the Presbyterian General assembly.

LARGE YIELD AIDS POULTRY SUCCESS

Poultry raisers who can get high egg yields are almost certain to make a profit, because egg production is closely tied up with labor income and profit, it is pointed out by L. E. Card, chief in poultry husbandry at the college of agriculture, University of Illi-

"Studies of the farm poultry enterprise as a business have shown that there are certain major factors involved in determining whether a given poultry flock will show a profit or a loss. Egg yield per hen is an accurate barometer of success in almost any poultry enterprise. Other factors are size of flock, proportion of pullets to yearlings, rate of mortality, price received for market eggs and experience of the operator. However, if egg production is low, no other factor can make 'up for the handicap and the profits will be small.

"Size of flock is a convenient measure of size of business. A small business can never make either a large profit or a large loss. A large business is necessary for a large profit, but it must carry the risk of a possible large loss.

"Mortality of hens and young chicks is frequently a major cost in the production of eggs and unless the mortality rate can be kept down to a reasonable level it will be very difficult, if not impossible, to show a profit.

"The price received for market eggs is an important index of profits from a poultry flock. It is often easier to increase returns by producing a better product and finding a higher market than by raising the egg yield per hen, assuming that the egg yield is not too low to begin with.

"Finally, experience helps the operator to achieve results. Even if it does nothing more than teach him how to make the business measure up in respect to the other factors mentioned, it is an important asset. It is unwise for a poultry business to be allowed to grow faster than the ability of the operator to manage and control it,"

There Is Much Profit

in Proper Management Shiftlessness has been, and always will be, the price of dear experience. There is a profit in only what we take

To go about the work of caring for poultry in a mechanical way, important matters will be forgotten, details will not be noticed. There are entirely too many who trust to luck and do not stop to think, writes Michael K. Boyer in the Farm and Ranch. A man who rushes is in a constant hurry, and never accomplishes much. Good management cuts down expenses. Scrub treatment brings scrub returns. Poultry raising commands the same business methods as employed in good dairying-the best food and care for best

The idea that "anything is good enough for hogs and chickens" is wrong. It has ruined the prospects of many otherwise good farmers. Nothing can be secured without effort, and the more intelligent and practical that effort, the better will be the success.

Methods of Spreading

Disease Among Poultry One method of carrying disease is on the shoes from a yard of sick chick ens. Farmers learned to forbid entrance to their hog yards when there was a scourge of hog cholera. They should forbid entrance to the chicken runs when disease is prevalent. Poultry buyers should be kept out. Indeed, the only safety to the flock is in quarantining them against all visitors and dogs. The caretaker should wear rubbers if sickness breaks out in one of his pens, and not allow the soles of his shoes to touch contaminated grounds. Take the rubbers off before stepping out of the door. Clean up and clean out often. Burn all dead birds and the litter from houses where there has been sickness. Expense and worry are saved by avoiding disease. It is folly to let a condition go until it is big enough to demand a fight.

Minerals Big Factors

Minerals are often limiting factors in egg production. Heavy laying fowl require from three to four pounds of oyster shell or its equivalent per year. Even though the hens have enough protein and other food to produce a large number of eggs, they will cut their production down to meet the amount of minerals which they have for shells. A balancing ration means supplying minerals and vitamins so that all of the organs of the fowl work efficiently.

Shade Is Necessary

Shade is very necessary for chicks, especially if they are late batched, for they are stunted by the hot, dry weather and are more liable to be affected by disease and worms, than if hatched early. Plenty of grit and charcoal should be within easy reach of chicks when on range unless sand or gravel is present in large enough quantities to make it unnecessary to furnish it extra. Plenty of fresh water should be within easy reach of the growing chicks.

Cheapside First Home

of Great British Bank How came the bank of England to be built? And why the appellation "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street?" Mr. H. Rooksby Steele, a well-known London architect, supplies the answers in an article on the architectural history of Britain's bullion house. Many think that Sir John Soane, the wizard of Lincoln's Innfields, built the bank. His are the girding walls, but in the raising of the fabric three other names-those of Sampson, Taylor and Cockerell-have to be joined. Mercer's hall, Cheapside, was the bank's first home; but a quick move was made to the Grocer's hall, in Poultry, and it was not until 1752 that the foundation stone of the present bank was laid. George Sampson was the first architect, and it is curious that no building, other than the bank, can be attributed to his hand, a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer comments. In the cornice extending the full length of the building, Taylor sculptured an excellent figure of Britannia, some years after the completion of the building. "This carving, the 'trade mark' of the bank," writes Mr. Steele, "was probably the inspiration for that trite appellation, the 'Old Lady of Threadneedle Street.'" Taylor added to Sampson's

Evolved by Accident When the son of a Sixteenth century spectacle maker in Holland picked up some spectacle lenses in his father's shop one day and happened to hold up two of them, one in each hand, he was surprised on looking through both lenses to see the weathercock on a neighboring church steeple greatly enlarged. Excited by this discovery, he ran to his father and told him what he had seen. The father immediately took the two lenses and repeated the experiment. The result confirmed his boy's report and the father set to work at once, fixing two movable lenses on a board -an idea suggested to him by the varying view he had obtained by moving the lenses in his hands-and thus the first rude telescope came into being. Shortly after the news of this discovery had leaked out, a friend wrote to Galileo in Italy describing the contrivance of the Dutch optician and it was from this description that the Italian inventor built the telescope that made him famous-Newcastle Weekly Chronicle.

Gen. William T. Sherman wrote in his Memoirs that Cape Horn was an island rounded like an oven, "after which it takes its name (Ornos) oven." However, he was in error, for the Spanish word for oven is "hornos," though it is pronounced without the "h" sound. The island to which Sherman referred is known as Horn island and the actual cape is only a portion Magazine. But the cape did not get its name because of its resemblance to an oven. It was named for the Dutch navigator William Schouten van Hoorn who, with Lemaire, doubled the cape in 1616. Horn is an anglicized form of Hoorn. In Spanish it is called Cabo de Hornos. No wonder Sherman was misled, for literally Cabo de Hornos would mean cape of ovens; that is, it would according to the form, did it not have a different origin.

Next Best Thing

It was a country town, and at a meeting of the leading merchants it was decided that the fire company and appliances available were not sufficient for a place of such importance. They therefore decided to form a supplementary company and, having enlisted several members, consulted the chief of the fire department as to what was to be done.

"Well," said the chief, "let us suppose there were two fires in the neighborhood and all our available men were called to one, do you think you could manage to put out the other?"

"Well, we couldn't do that, but we could keep our fire going till you came back from the other."-Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

CAME PRESERVE NEAR CUMMER WHITE HOUSE

Wind Cave National Park Interesting Place.

Washington.-President Coolidge's summer "White House," the game lodge of the Custer state park game preserve in the Black Hills of South Dakota, is only a few miles north of one of the federal big-game preserves. This is in the Wind Cave National park, 4,000 acres of which have been fenced and maintained by the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. The preserve was established by act of congress in August, 1912, and its size will be nearly doubled this summer by inclosing 3,000 more acres.

One of Largest Caves in West. Wind cave, for which both the national park and the game preserve have been named, is one of the larger of the known caves in the West, and, together with the bag-game animals in the preserve, which may frequently be seen by passing tourists, attracts increasing thousands of visitors each year. It is on the main highway from Custer to Hot Springs, S. D., on the southern slope of the Black Hills, commonly known as the foothills, a region made famous by Indian war-

The cave proper was named because of the current of air, often very strong, that blows intermittently in and out, varying in force and direction in response to changing temperature. It once served as channels for subterranean waters which now follow other courses. Approximately one hundred miles of passageways have been explored, and guides have penetrated to a depth of 1,500 feet. There are said to be thousands of passageways that have never been explored, and a party that leaves the beaten trails is in grave danger of being lost. For this reason no one is permitted to enter the cave without an experienced guide.

Discoverer in Doubt. Several men have claimed the distinction of discovering Wind cave. According to one story, a cowboy was riding along the ravine when a gust of air from a small opening in the ground blew off his hat and in this way attracted his attention to the cave. Old settlers differ as to who was the actual discoverer, and a great deal is left to conjecture. The cave has many interesting and unusual geological formations.

The game preserve contains 150 buffalo, 144 elk, and 18 antelope, and, as it is a bird refuge also, many species of wild birds are protected there, including grouse and quail. The situation of the Wind cave game preserve is ideal for the perpetuation of the big-game animals that in great numbers formerly roamed the Black Hills region. Near the game preserve and park is Buffalo gap, through which great plains herds of buffalo are said to have passed in massed formation on their way to and from their winter range.

Changes Garlic Smell to That of Tea Rose

substances that ordinarily smell like rotten eggs and garlic to the fragrance of the geranium and the tea rose is part of the work of Dr. Marston Taylor Bogert, professor of organic chemistry in Columbia university.

Professor Bogert is director of the research department established in the university more than a year ago by the American Manufacturers of Toilet Articles, the organization representing the perfume and cosmetic industry, for the purpose of making a study of the relation between odor and chemical constitution. Since the founding of this department, gratifying and startling results have been obtained.

The new sulphur and selenium compound is typical. Ordinarily unexidized sulphur or selenium organic compounds have exceedingly disgusting and unpleasant odors. Sometimes the odor is so powerful that 1,460,000,000 of a milligram of the substance is sufficient to give a fairly perceptible smell. The edor of sulphur is like rotten eggs; that of selenium, like rotten eggs and garlic. Yet Professor Bogert and his associates have succeeded in synthesizing a totally new compound, containing both unoxidized sulphur and unoxidized selenium, yet recalling in its fragrance the geranium and the tea

Good Hobo Can Make $12 to $15 Per Day

New Britain, Conn.-Any good hobo with a hard-luck story can make from $12 to $15 a day, in the opinion of Prof. W. B. Bailey, formerly of Yale. who lived the life of a tramp three summers and then for ten years conducted a hobo's lodging house.

"Thanks to the American housewife, the easiest thing a tramp does is to eat," he said in telling of his experiences at a Rotary club dinner. "The only objection he has to the American housewife is that she insists on feeding him cake and pie when what he wants is a slice of meat between two pieces of bread."

UP TO THE PEOPLE.

It is up to the voters to determine whether or not the bond issue shall be authorized. The polls at regular vot ing places will be open from 8:00 A. M. until 6:00 P. M., September 26th. The ballots will have printed on them the title of the bill, which specifies the amount suggested by The Board of Education for each school building; and upon the ballots, with suitable square after each, the words FOR THE SCHOOL BOND ISSUE.

AGAINST THE SCHOOL BOND ISSUE. Every voter should take an interest in deciding this important question, and it should not be left to the determination of a small proportion of the voters.

WHEN REDEEMABLE.

Sec. 6 provides that each series of bonds shall mature and be redeemable within a period not exceeding thirty years from date of issue; and all bonds to be redeemable not later than thirty years from date of issue.

THE ROAD BOND ISSUE. Although to be voted on on the same day, and on the same ballot, the School Bond question and the Road Bond question are absolutely inde-pendent of each other. A voter may vote for the school bond issue, and against the road bond issue, or for the road bond issue and against the school bond issue. This explanation is necessary because their seems to be an impression current that a vote for one is a vote for both, or a vote against one is a vote against both.

It was at the solicitation of large delegations from many parts of the county, in which road improvement is desired, that the Road Bond Act was prepared, and passed by the Legisla-

Paragraphs for Farmers.

Cottonseed meal should not be fed to young calves.

Don't feed your cows ear corn.

Grind it either with or without the cob. They fail to digest about 20 per cent of the corn when fed whole. Washing eggs reduces their keeping quality and results in losses, especially if they are to be placed in storage. All very small, very large, or very dirty eggs should be used at home or sold to local consumers and not included with those shipped to market.

The quantity of whole milk produced in this country last year is placed by the United States Department of Agriculture at 120,766,487,000 pounds compared with 116,505,395,000 pounds in 1925, an increase of more than four billion pounds. The quan-tity of milk used for household purposes is estimated at 56,417,000,000 pounds compared with 54,325,776,000 pounds in 1925. This increased consumption of milk has been due to its greater use by the city population.

Fur farming, or the raising of fur animals in captivity, has steadily developed until the investment in the business in the United States and Alaska is about $30,000,000, and in Canada about $11,000,000. There are more than 4,000 fur farmers in these countries most of them raising silver or blue foxes. Fur farming is also being undertaken in European countries and in Japan, where it is having a steady growth. The poultry industry of the United States is a billion dollar industry. In fact, according to Roy C. Potts, chief poultry marketing specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, it has passed well beyond that value and has become one of the leading agricultural industries of the ountry. Chicken egg production on farms is in the neighborhood of 2,000,000,000 dozen annually with a value of $600,000,000 or more, while the number of poultry raised each year is approaching three-quarters of a billion with an approximate value of $500,000,000. These production and value figures include farm production only and do not embrace the village and city production, which, if its extent were known, would undoubtedly swell the totals considerably.

Bootleg Wood for use of the Poor.

John F. Herbert, prohibition admin-istrator for the Maryland division, wants to give away to the poor, for winter fire wood, the lumber contained in the many barrels, boxes and crates that fall into the hands of his department, providing the same can be done economically, or will be taken baugh, Lloyd Stambaugh, Brooke over by some charitable institution, and Charles Bentz, Reno Eyler, Guy and has placed the proposition before N. G. Grasty, Baltimore, Secretary of the Board of Charities.

For a long while these containers were merely broken up and left on the premises where found, and later they have been removed and burned; but Mr. Herbert thinks it will be much the best method of disposal to place the material within the reach of the poor, through some distributing agency, for use for winter fuel.

This looks like salvaging a lot of valuable material from a wrong use to a good one, providing the cost does not amount to more than the value of the fuel. At any rate, the idea is one worth working out.

The Louisville man who had made four unsuccessful attempts at suicide might try dropping into Philadelphia, and asking the officials there if they'd be interested in a proposition to pull off another centennial.

New Double Dwelling

in Taneytown, Carroll County, Md. By virtue of the power and authority contained in the Last Will and Testament of Samuel Galt, deceased, and an order of the Orphans' Court of Carroll County, the undersigned, Executors, will sell at public sale, on the respective properties hereinafter described, on WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 5th., 1927 at 1:00 and 2:00 o'clock, P. M. FARM.

First: at 2:00 o'clock, P. M., all that valuable farm, containing 167 ACRES & 8 SQ. PERCHES, more or less, improved by a large stone house, slate roof, front and rear porches, large frame bank barn with slate roof, wagon shed with corn crib attached; grain shed, corn crib, garage, wood house, smoke house chicks age, wood house, smoke house, chicken house, and other necessary outbuildings. This is one of the most desirable farms in northern Carroll County, as the land is in a high state of cultivation, very productive, with running water in practically all the fields. The buildings are all in excellent condition, the cow stable is concreted, and the property is specially adapted to dairying purposes. This farm is located on the state road running from Taneytown to Littlestown, about 1½ miles from Taneytown, in Taneytown District, Carroll County, Maryland. There is a small stream of water, (Piney Creek), run-ning through the farm, about ten acres of prime timber, consisting of 1925 model, but little used, with good white and black oak, and an abundpaint and tires—almost like new; and ance of fine meadow land.

NEW DOUBLE DWELLING. Second: at 1:00 o'clock, P. M., all that tract of land, containing 10,000 square feet, more or less, improved by a new frame, stucco, double dwelling, with all modern improvements, electric lights, water and furnace, other necessary outbuildings. This is a very desirable dwelling and proper-ty, as it fronts 50 feet on the state road, in Taneytown, Carroll County, Maryland, and has a depth of 200 ft. Anyone desiring a beautiful home and investment will find a splendid opportunity in this property. The one-half of this property was occupied by the late Samuel Galt at the time of his death, and the other half is now tenanted by Mr. Meryl Ohler.

TERMS OF SALE-One-third of the purchase money to be paid to said Executors on the day of sale, or on the ratification thereof by the Court, and the residue in two equal pay-ments, the one payable in 6 months and the other payable in 12 months from the day of sale; the credit payments to be secured by the bonds or single bills of the purchaser, with sufficient security, bearing interest from the day of sale; or all cash, at the option of the purchaser.

GNATS OF MARRIED LIFE

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

DITH MASON stood back and looked at her luncheon table. It really looked beautiful with the dainty embroidered doilies laid on the polished wood, the silver shining and the food properly hot and savory. She had cooked the things her husband liked-escalloped potatoes, chops, nut cakes, coffee steaming fragrantly from the silver percolator. Her daffodils happily were out and she had placed a cluster of them in a slender cut-glass vase in the center of the charming board. And now she had only to wait for Grant to come in from his garden.

The young Masons had been married a year, but they had been occupying their own home for about' a month only; up to that point the bungalow had been in process of construction and they had boarded. Meantime, however, Edith had prepared herself carefully in all housewifely knowledge and she had entered her own house feeling able to look after it in such a way as should do credit to the establishment and to herself.

Now when Grant did not appear at once she went to the kitchen door and called him. Without raising his head as he hoed he called back: "All right." She watched him, but he kept on with his work. The thought of the luncheon cooling on the table aroused in Edith anger at her husband's indifference. She called again sharply: "Grant! Hurry up!" This time he laid down the implement and came toward her with apparent reluctance.

"Seems like it's got to be noon awful quick," he said.

Edith did not answer. She did not, indeed, dare trust herself to speak. Grant dawdled at the sink and when at last he took his place at the table. he ate without comment on the food.

His talk, like his thoughts, apparently, were all about the garden and when was the best time to plant the pota-

"Ought to get our first mess by the Fourth," he said. "I tell you it's great to have land of your own. I've always wanted it. I'll get some proper exercise now, which I need after sitting at a desk all day."

After lunch he lit his pipe in the living room whither he had gone to look up some fact in one of the agricultural journals he had subscribed for and when a little later he went out of doors he did not stop to kiss Edith, although she had put herself in

She sighed at the neglect. But the dishes had to be washed. She loved washing dishes. With one of the new heaters in the cellar she always had plenty of hot water and delighted in sozzling in the rich white lather with

After the kitchen was spotless she went into the living room for a look agricultural journals, a burned match lay on the gleaming whiteness of the runner and ashes had been sprinkled freely upon the delicate rug.

Edith's lips set tightly. Grant was careless; more than that, he was inconsiderate. She laid the journals straight, flung the burned match into the fireplace and brushed up the ashes. His lack of thought had made these three acts necessary and he could so easily have saved her. She was not tired, but what was the use in doing things over and over?

She would speak to him about it and she went out to the garden for that purpose. He saw her coming, wiped his face and greeted her with a shout. "Come right along honey; I want to show you the prettiest sight you ever saw." He pointed to a long row of faintly green things springing from the earth. It was a pretty sight, and when he put his arm about her she had to smile and tell him so.

In the end she had forgot to scold and skipped back indoors to iron her embroidered linen. No easy task to Iron, white embroidered linen, but she needed the dress for that evening. Mrs. Hume was giving a small party for her house guest, Miss Merrill, and all the young folks of the neighborhood were invited.

Edith's iron was electric and smooth as glass, the starch did not stick and the linen was just nicely damp. She loved to iron and she began to sing a little.

The dress came out beautifully glowing. She arranged it on a hanger and hung the hanger on a hook near the open window, where 'the linen could finish drying. Then she ran upstairs to bathe and wave her hair. She thought, too, she might as well have a bit of a nap-it was such a lazy day.

In all she was upstairs about two hours. When she came down she was refreshed and happy, eager to begin dinner. As she entered the kitchen her eyes at once sought her white

It still hung on the nail where she had left it, but suspended from the same nail was Grant's dirty old garden rucky!

Edith gave a horrified gasp and snatched down the rucky, but the damage was done. Her beautiful shining white dress was smirched with soil.

Snatching it from the nail she ran with it into the small den whither certain well outlined footsteps led. She knew where to find Grant. But her angry on-rush was stopped by the sight of him lying on the davenport relaxed and rosy, sound asleep and guileless as a child.

Ordinarily she would have smiled at the sight of him asleep so, but now she scowled. For the third time that day she had been treated to evidence of his thoughtlessness and inconsideration. She had borne all she could.

Leave him? She was almost angry enough to, and, indeed, women had left husbands for less. No, she would not do that. What should she do? She went back to the living room to ponder, to fight away these gnats of

As she sat with her cheek on her hand wiping away tears she heard a sound, and there was Grant in the doorway, looking at her in surprise.

"What's the matter?" He ran to her quickly, kneeled down and took her in his arms. His cheek pressed hers. "What's up, sweetheart?"

He didn't know! If she told him could she make him understand without hurting his feelings, sensitive as she knew him to be. She drew a long breath and let-him kiss her tears away. After all it was not his fault so much as his training; his mother should have taught him better. Sometime, perhaps, when she was more sure of herself, she could explain, but the thing was too hot for her to handle

"What a boy, what a little boy you are, Grant," she sighed.

"And what a little goose you are to cry," he retorted. "What's it over, honey? If it's anything I've done or am doing you'll tell me, won't you?"

Then, not waiting for her answer he sprang up and rushed out of the house. If he had not whistled as he went she might have thought-

In ten minutes he was back. He laid a great box of candy in her lap. "I know," he said, gayly, "it's your birthday or something and you thought I'd forgotten."

She laughed weakly. He was too absurd and dear; altogether too dear! That night Edith wore her little gray crepe, and she was happier in it than she had ever dreamed she

of the Old and New

In one of these typical streets of six-story shops and Indian bazaars (Calcutta) I witnessed a strange sight that reminded me vividly that I was in another world. I stood holf an hour watching goats led up a flight of steps into a small structure open to the street and rising a few feet above it, where they were thrown on a wooden block and beheaded by the slaughterman, in plain view of a circle of gaping spectators outside.

I supposed at first it was a native abattoir, but was informed that it was the sacrifice place of some backward Hindu sect, and that on certain days this ceremony went on from early morning until late at night.

A similar intermingling of two worlds occurred on the banks of the holy Ganges, where next to modern vessels from Glasgow and Liverpool old-fashioned barges rowed by six or eight Indians, who ran back and forth along the deck as they plied their long oars, crawled sluggishly forward.

Down dozens of broad flights of steps natives descended to bathe in the sacred waters, while Hindus washed their cows in their midst. Along the green banks of the Hooghly were ranged brightly painted jute factories and white and yellow European villas. Between the factories Hindu temples nestled, half obscured in palm groves, and here and there the clay but of a Bengalese peasant peeked forth from the foliage.-Franz Josef Furtwangler, in Vorwarts, Berlin (Living Age).

Ancient Murals Found

Pictures that have been hidden for many years were revealed recently by workmen renovating an ancient building in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

The walls of the structure were decorated with figures producing an effect similar to that on pottery, and when the coating of dust and paint were removed, the art work was clearly shown.

The pictures had been worked in plaster, an imitation of bas-relief being effected by laying a coat of white over one of black and then removing enough of the upper coating to expose the black in the desired designs and patterns. They are being preserved as curiosities.

By F. A. WALKER

WASTING TIME

HERE is one thing that you can-I not buy from the greatest merchant in the world. A minute of time. One second is as unpurchasable as the whole of eternity.

Yet thousands of men and women go through life wasteful not only of their own precious moments, but wholly regardless of the value of other

To a busy man the loss of fifteen minutes may upset the plan for a whole day's work. Delay in the keeping of an appointment may disarrange hours of scheduled efforts.

You would never think of putting your hand into the pocket of a man and taking out even the smallest coin, but you may make totally valueless for him a period of time worth more than all the money he had in all his

The great trouble with too many is that they put no value at all on time. They watch the hands of the clock go round with as little regard for the fleeing hour as for a passing wind.

For a spent dollar another may be earned to take its place. For the lost friend another may be gained. But for the hour that is gone, for the minute that is wasted, there is no supplying a substitute, no replacement. It is gone

It was TIME, not guns nor generals, that won and lost at Waterloo. And-Napeleon was not alone among the great generals who were defeated by the clock.

"Give us time," said a great scientist. "and we can solve every problem the world offers us."

Life is composed of only two things: time and effort. One is useless without the other. Both should be as nearly 100 per cent productive as we are able to make them.

Try as best we may, the end of life will find us with many things undone. No man ever wholly completed the task allotted to him. There is a reasonable excuse if into our use of time no waste creeps.

For the man who wastes his own time or steals another's, there is neither excuse nor valid reason. He has wantonly destroyed what neither man nor the Creator Himself can restore or replace.

Put a value on every minute. Be as anxious and as certain to get that value as you are to gain the worth of your dimes and your dollars.

Remember that once a minute has passed it is gone FOREVER. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

TURKEY TALKS," or to "talk tur-I key" is a phrase meaning to speak in an open, honest manner.

It happened that an Indian and a white man had agreed to hunt together for a day and then share the game between themselves. At the end of the day they divided the game as agreed. All went well while they were separating the smaller animals and birds. Each took one of a kind. But when they came to the last pair, a crow and a turkey, the white man spoke up with a great show of fairness, "Now you may have the crow and I'll take the turkey or I'll take the turkey and you may have the crow" "Hugh hugh," grunted the Indian. "Why you no talk turkey to me?"

HOT WEATHER LUNCHES

S o MANY people labor under the impression that if food is cold and refreshing it is also good foed for anyone. The fat person who sits down to a luncheon of sliced cold ham with plenty of the fat, a potato salad with a mayonnaise dressing and tops it off with a soda or sundae with rich ice cream probably thinks he has had a cooling luncheon. The fact is he has stered up a lot of heat units which he would better have done without. Ice creams, rich salads, iced tea or coffee creamed and sweetened are all full of calories which will make them feel stuffy and will add to their already too fat condition. Many foods low in temperature are high in food value. For a good salad with little food value and much refreshment use fruits, crisp lettuce and drinks of orange or lemonade. Nothing surpasses a good old fashioned lemonade as a thirst quencher; it adds no calories to speak of to your food intake and the effect is decidedly refreshing

All vegetables should be used freely except potatoes; these of course will be served once a day at the dinner meal. Lean meats, clear soups, fresh fruits without sugar or cream for those who need to cut down the calories, with gluten and whole wheat bread are the best foods for the sum-

SOLOMON DEDICATES THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—I Kings, chapter 8. GOLDEN TEXT—I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Worshiping in

PRIMARY TOPIC—WOISHING
God's House.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Young Man's
Love for God's House.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Love for God's House.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value of God's House to a

The first task of Solomon after his coronation was the building of the temple, a privilege which was denied to his father, David. In his preparation for this task he secured wood from King Hiram of Tyre, stones for the foundations from the Phoenicians, skilled workmen also from King Hiram. It was located on Mount Moriah (II Chron. 3:1). The suitableness of this place was due to the fact that the Lord had appeared here to Abraham. Its dimensions were 90 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 45 feet high. It contained the brazen altar, the laver, the golden candlesticks and cherubim. The dedication of the temple was arranged to take place at an auspicious time. The dedicatory services consisted of: I. Bringing Up the Ark (vv. 1-11). The ark of the covenant was typical of Jesus Christ. God dwells among men through Jesus Christ (John 1:14). The ark was God's holy dwelling place. This, therefore, must be brought up first and placed in the temple. For the manifestation of the divine presence was the real dedication. When the house of God was to be dedicated the king arranged for a representative gathering of the people, consisting of the elders, princes and heads of the tribes. There were many great men present, but only the priests, God's appointed ministers, moved the ark. The fatal experience of Uzzah in David's time was doubtless clear in their minds. Solomon profited by the blunder of his father. Connected with this service was a very great sacrifice. one in keeping with the occasion. The ark with the two tablets of stone under the mercy seat shows God manifesting Himself to His people on the ground of a law perfectly kept and since atoned for by the shedding of blood. At the completion of the sacrifice, the temple was filled with the glory of the Lord.

II. Solomon's Address to the People (vv. 12-21).

He points out to the people that God had chosen David to be king, yet for certain reasons He would not allow him to build the temple, promising that his son should do the work. Now that the work was done, the temple was built and the ark of the covenant was in its place, they could be assured that God had raised him up in the room of his father.

III. Solomon's Dedicatory Prayer (vv. 22-53).

The ark having now been placed in the most holy place, and the address to the people being ended, the king pours out his soul to God in prayer. In this prayer Solomon gratefully acknowledges God's goodness in the past, giving glory to Him, and pleads that His promise to his father be verified (vv. 22-26); he prays that God's eyes might be continually open toward the temple which He had now taken possession of (vv. 27-33); so that (1) in case of contention between parties He would judge between them (vv. 31, 32); (2) in case of being smitten by the enemy, even though they had sinned, upon confession of the same, God would forgive and restore (vv. 33, 34); (3) in case of famine as chastisement for sin, upon confession and prayer before the temple, God would forgive and send rain (vv. 35, 36); (4) in case of pestilence and sickness, if they pray to God toward the temple, God should hear and forgive (vv. 37-40); (5) in case of the coming of the foreigner who comes at the news of God's greatness, and prays toward Jerusalem, his prayers should be heard (vv. 41-43); (6) in case of going out to battle, their cause should be maintained (vv. 44, 45); (7) in case of being in captivity because of sin, God should hear their prayers and restore (vv. 46-53).

IV. Solomon Blesses the People (vv. 54-61).

On the strength of the covenant promises, he invokes His presence always with them to keep them faithful, and exhorts the people to have their hearts perfect before God, walking in His commandments and statutes.

V. Solomon and the People Offer Sacrifices of Thanksgiving (vv. 62-66).

Ideals Like Stars

Ideals are like stars; you will not succeed in touching them with your hands; but, like the seafaring man on the desert of waters, you choose them as your guides, and, following them, you reach your destiny.-Exchange.

Charming Human Beings

It is always good to know, if only in passing, charming human beings. It refreshes one like flowers and woods and clear brooks.-George

Early Tobacco Users Had Weed Sweetened

In the early Sixteenth century, a few adventurous Spaniards discovered to their amazement that the habit of chewing tobacco was generally prevalent among the Indian tribes in the New world. The chewing tobacco was apparently in cake form, but whether originally flavored or not is not known. In the middle of the Sixteenth century in England, a form of chewing and smoking tobacco, knewn as the "carotte," was in use. The cake was about 10 inches long, 3 inches thick, and was sweetened with treacle. The chewing and smoking tobacco when not in cake form was made into a long roll or large ball, and often answered for the tebacconist's sign. Smokers carried with one of these rolls a knife and a tinder to ignite their roll. The manufacture of tobacco in England commenced with "cake tobacco"-pudding, rell and twist. This was a hard tobacco and could be sliced off for chewing or smoking as desired. This was in 1500; later the loose tobacco for smoking and chewing came into

Evil Spirits Invoked to Aid Devil-Doctor

fashion.-Hendrik Van Doon in the Smokers' Companion Magazine.

A cadaverous - looking individual, clothed in a variety of colors, seated in the shade of a tree surrounded by low jungle and numberless heaps of house refuse—such is the devil-doctor of Ceylon. His paraphernalia consists of a handful of flowers, invariably red, a tuft of human hair, a few drops of blood, some betel leaves, a small hand-mirror, and, lastly, his allpowerful book of charms.

This dissimilar and uncanny collection placed in front of him on a trellised framework, he begins his incantations to all the devils and spirits in pandemonium. From time to time he peeps into the book, probably to revive his memory. His communion with the powers of darkness ended, he gets up with a self-satisfied smile, consigns the precious heap before him, except the mirror, into the nearest bush, and enters the patient's house to communicate to the anxious relatives the oracle, which in almost all cases is a favorable one, but the obstinate patient falsifies the prophecy by joining the majority.

Then Look at Your Watch

To tell time by the stars, explains an Iowa professor, "First look at the North star and the two points in the Great Dipper which are on a line with it. Imagine that in the sky there is a huge clock face with the hour hand pointing to these pointers. Read the time to the nearest quarter hour. To this figure add the number of months since January 1. Double this and subtract the result from 161/4. If the result is more than 1614, subtract it from 401/4. The result is the time in hours, after noon. If the time is greater than 12, it means that it is fter midnight, so subtract 12 and you have the time in hours, the forenoon." As regards the day, of course, by the time you have done all this it will be the middle of next week.-Ex-

Long List of Disasters

The greatest disasters from 1900 to the present time arising from natural causes include: St. Pierre and Martinique, volcanic eruption, May 8, 1902; San Francisco, Calif., earthquake, April 18, 1906; Sicily and Calabria earthquake, December 28, 1908; China earthquake, December 16, 1920; Japanese earthquake, September 1, 1923; Santa Barbara earthquake, June 29, 1925; Shenandoah wreck, September 3, 1925; Lake Denmark, N. J., explosion, July 10, 1926; mine disaster at Ishpeming, Mich., November 3, 1926; snowslide near Bingham, Utah, February 17, 1926.

"Cheap" Only in Name

American visitors to London learn to their sorrow that Cheapside is

"cheap" only in name. Cheapside was the principal London street market, when retail trade was carried on around old St. Paul's cathedral. The names of many of the thoroughfares leading into the western end of Cheapside as, for instance, Milk street, Broad street, Wood street and Honey lane, are reminiscent of this period.

"Cheape" was the old English name for market. In the Sixteenth century the form Chepessyd appears, from which the present spelling originated.

Timing the Doctor

The doctor had received a hurry call from the home of the Robeys, who had their first baby. Arriving the doctor found the young father on the doorstep, watch in hand.

"What's the trouble?" asked the doctor.

"Nothing this time, Doc. My wife just wanted to see how quickly you could get here in case the baby was taken sick suddenly. You made it in four minutes this time."

Emblems of Authority

Lictors were the attendants of the agistrates of ancient Rome. They arried axes, around the handles of which were bound a bundle of rods. l'hose represented law and order and the power to punish offenders. The lictors preceded a magistrate, such as a consul or a praetor, in the streets of Rome, a sort of bodyguard to protect the magistrate and to emphasize authority.

Shyster Lawyer Had

Overlooked a Point When Musa Ben Adhem was poor, as he was crossing a plain one day, he came to the house of the widew Zaidah, who was poor also. Musa knocked and told the widow of his hunger, and she gave him two hardboiled eggs, all the food she had.

In after years, when Musa Ben Adhem had grown rich, Abdullah, the shyster lawyer, persuaded the widow to sue him, not for her two eggs alone, but for the two chickens which they would have become, together with all the chickens' eggs and offspring, a vast sum equal to the whole of Musa Ben Adhem's fortune.

"Where is the defendant in this case? Why isn't he present?" the judge demanded sternly. Then the brilliant young corporation lawyer, Haroun, rose and said in his suave voice: "I represent the defendant, your honor. I have sent him out into the country to sow baked potatoes." "To sow baked potatoes?"

"Yes, your honor." "Why, he must be mad. You must be mad. The pair of you are mad." "No, your honor, we are very wise," said Haroun in a suaver voice than ever, "for surely, if boiled eggs can be hatched, baked potatoes can be

The judge laughed heartily. Then he delivered judgment against Abdullah, the shyster lawyer, with heavy costs.

Porridge That Makes for Domestic Felicity

When a husband begins staying out late at night and cultivating his crop of wild oats, the women of the native tribes in central Africa provide him with a bit of food considered certain to bring him back to the paths of domesticity and proper conduct. The food must be served without his knowledge, but, once it has entered his system, the woman expects him to be a model husband for all the years ahead, says the Adventure Magazine. The food is a porridge thickened with meal made from the flesh of dried lizards. The wife, taking the lizard, kills it, dries the body in the sun, pounds it to a fine powder with stones, then pours into his porridge the dose the misconduct of her husband appears to require.

She is supposed to serve it to him when he comes in from hard labor, is tired and hungry, liable to take the food and devour it without asking questions. The dried lizard powder porridge is the antidote for divorce court troubles, and is said to work well among the people there.

People of Mixed Blood

The Melungeons, a race of people said to be living in the mountains of east Tennessee, are supposed to be an offshoot of the so-called "Croatan Indians's of North Carolina. The name "Melungeon" is probably from the French "melange," meaning mixed. They are of mixed Indian, white and negro blood, according to ethnologists, although the original admixture of blood occurred centuries ago and the history of these people is obscure. The Melungeons, who in general resemble Indians more than negroes or whites, refuse to be classed as negroes and refuse to attend negro schools and churches. At the same time they are socially ostracized by the whites. Although they are as dark as mulattoes, their hair is straight. For the most part, the Melungeons are farmers.—Exchange.

Anglo-Scotch Idiom

The way in which Scottish and English idioms differ are legion, and anyone attempting to make an exhaustive list would probably find the proverbial three score and ten a span too short for the task. Sir James Wilson, who has been making a study of the dialects of central Scotland, cites as examples: Whereas an Englishman "oversleeps himself," invites a friend "to tea" and asks: "What will you take?" a Scot "sleeps in," invites you "to your tea" and hospitably inquires: "What are ye for?"

Radio Reception

The Loomis Radio school says: Generally speaking, signals will come in loudest from those stations which are located in the directions toward which one's lead-in points, instead of in the direction pointed to by the free end of the antenna. Those stations will be heard next loudest which are slightly off this line. So far as the college knows, the direction of the aerial in regard to the cardinal points of the compass has very little effect on radio reception.

Who's Random?

'Twas a hard and bloody battle at the pistol range. At last the instructor called: "Fire at Random!"

After the carnage had ceased one freshman still stood with his pistol at 'ready," a full clip in it.

"Hey, you!" yelled the instructor. 'Why didn't you shoot?" "I'm waiting for Random to stick #### is head around the parapet."

Getting and Spending A familiar adage is, "Easy comeasy go." This is peculiarly applicable o money; the easier money comes. he easier it goes, and conversely the warder money comes, the more care fully is it expended. Only the man who knows the cost of a dollar, knowts value.-Grit.

Common Name for Cats

Nancy, age four, sat on the back steps at grandmother's holding one of the many kittens which lived there. "Mother," she called, "come see what a nice kitty this is."

"Yes, it is," replied mother, "and what is that kitty's name?"

"Oh," said Nancy, "all of grandmother's kitties have the same name." "That's queer," said mother. "What is their name?"

"Why, their name is Scat," said

BUICK

When Buick improves upon Buick —the standard for the year is set

Buick for 1928 introduces a higher standard of beauty and luxury than the world has ever known. Buick interiors are as modish as exquisite drawing-roomsas harmoniously colored -and as comfortable. Buick's new Fisher bodies are low-swung without any loss of head-room or road-clearance.

And so, down to the smallest detail of construction, wherever refinements could be made, Buick has made them. Again Buick has improved upon Buick. Again the standard for the year is set.

Sir: A judge in a small Western town was determined to stop the boys from shooting in the town. One day one of the boys got drunk and started to shoot up the place. When he was brought before the judge he was given "Twenty dollars and costs." "But judge," he said, "I fired into the air." "That's all right," said the judge, "you might have shot an angel."

Taneytown 10-Hagerstown 1.

The game last Saturday ended for the home team much better than it started, and with a one-sided score that was unexpected. The Hagerstown boys went at the game as though it was to be a walk-over. In the first inning the first three up touched Utz's delivery for infield hits, but were thrown out at first. In Tanbut were thrown out at first. In Taneytown's half, there were three strike outs. In the second, the visitors again looked dangerous, but were blanked by good play with two left on; and Taneytown went out one-two-three, one being a strike out.

In the third the first man up for Hagerstown struck out, and the next two were out at first. Up to this time Taneytown had not discovered that there was a first base, but Estey had one presented to him; the next man was out; then something happened unexpectedly to the noisy visitors that dampened their spirits for the rest of the game. Utz banged out a two-base hit, Stover followed with a single, Seibert went out, and Hitchcock laid one down the third base line for three bases, with a total result of three runs.

Hagerstown came back with strong protest in their half of the fourth, with two singles that produced a run—the first and last for the game, on their side of the score book. After the locals made three more hits and two runs in their half of the fourth; and five hits and four runs in the sixth, a new pitcher appeared in the game but for good measure the locals added another score, the last for the game.

The umpiring on balls and strikes was not liked by the audience at several points in the game, especially in the first inning, and at other times when Utz seemed to be getting the worst of the decisions, but the hard hitting of himself and his team-mates decided the game. The game was really not as easy as the score indicates as there was plenty of fast playing on both sides; Taneytown outmatching the visitors.
