LETTER FROM DETROIT CORRESPONDENT.

Incidents Connected with a visit to old Taneytown.

In compliance with the request of the Editor in a recent issue, I will at last try to write an article on my trip back "Home" trusting that my friends will excuse my tardiness in doing so. The fact is, I had intended to write as The fact is, I had intended to write as soon as I reached home, but on coming to my office Monday morning, I found that the fellow-workman who was filling my place, had been taken ill the latter part of the previous week, and so I had a good start of three days work ahead. The work came in an overwhelming stream, all week and even now I have not caught week, and even now, I have not caught up. After rushing all day I did not feel much like doing anything but feel much like doing anything but rest up for the next day.

But now I want to tell my many friends how much I enjoyed the visit. If any one in our whole shop had as good a vacation as I had, I have never heard of it. I surely enjoyed every minute of the time, even when placed in ambarrassing positions as on in embarrassing positions as on Thursday and Friday evenings of the first week. Ever since I came home, first week. Ever since I came home, I have been thinking about those two receptions, and wish to convey to my brethren of the two Orders my appreciation of the way in which they showed their friendship for me. Those receptions called back a flood of memories, and I deeply regret that I had not the gift of speech to tell them just how much I appreciated their action.

I also want to publicly thank all who so kindly entertained me, and also the large number of friends who extended invitations, that, on account of the shortness of my visit. I could not accept. My wish is that you could all come to visit us, and thus let me return your kindness. To those whom I did not get to see—and there were dozens. I suppose—I extend my redozens, I suppose-I extend my regrets, and give them my good wishes.

My trip eastward, over the Pennsylvania, was an uneventful one, the portion between Detroit and Pittsburgh being by night. As I was never over this part of the country beer over this part of the country between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg, I certainly enjoyed the wonderful scenery, especially over the mountains around the Horseshoe Bend, and all along the line. I arrived at York, on Saturday evening, spent the night with my brother there, and then came on to Taneytown. It is no use to say anything about what happened to me during the next two weeks, except to emphasize the fact that I enjoyed myself hugely. myself hugely.

Of course I had political arguments with my Democratic friends, and as the Editor asked me to write about Hoover, will say that I was surprised and delighted to find the sentiment so strong for him, which is in direct contrast with Detroit I ascribe this to the fact that the people of good old Maryland are more intelligent, and think more than the majority of people of the strong p I am sure our arguments left us the same good friends as before, as I, as well as all good-thinking people, think one who votes. A man may otherwell as all good-thinking people, think a man has a right to his own opinion. I left Taneytown very unexpectedly on Thursday, and so was prevented from saying "good-bye" to many. I hope they will excuse me for not doing so, as I had a chance to visit Baltimore, which I had previously cut off my list, and felt that I ought not neglect the opportunity given me.

And now, at the request of a number, I will give an account of, and also my impressions, of the trip home by bus. This way of making a long-trip is about as comfortable as a train, as the buses are fitted up very nicely. They stop for lunch every 20 or 30 miles and we saw some of the finest mountain scenery in the world, even if we did not arrive at the wildest spots until after nightfall. And right here let me say that after living in this flat country for 10 years, the hills and valleys around Taneytown, looked good to me, and the people of that vicinity need not go on a long journey to see something as fine as any one wants to look upon, in the way of

On arriving at McConnelsburg, Pa., we found that the bus preceding us, had broken down, and we loaded up all through passengers, and proceeded on our way. Either our bus was overloaded, or it was an unlucky day for Either our bus was ovthe Bus Co., for when on the highest point of the Alleghanies, our engine began to sputter and finally stopped. For over two hours we lay there, while our chauffeur went for assistance to a garage about 12 miles further on. After the mechanic came on the scene, he found we had lost the plug out of the carbureter and fixed it up with a lead pencil and tire tape, so that we finally arrived at the Service Station, where permanent repairs were made and we proceeded on our way, arriving at Pittsburgh 4 hours late for the bus we wanted to take, and were in-formed that the next bus would not get us into Detroit, until some time Monday morning.

The Agent there was not well informed, for after going from Pitts-burgh to Cleveland by train,we found a schedule for every two hours. Any-how, we arrived at Detroit about 8 P. M., 5 hours later than we expected, but well pleased with our experience There was exactly 41 in our party and not a grouch among the bunch, and we had a jolly good time, with all our troubles.

I had waited nearly nine years to make this visit, and had all the time the thought in my mind that it would be the last I would ever make to old Maryland. Maybe it will be; but Providence permitting, after the lapse \

Luther B. Swope, motorcycle and bicycle dealer, of Hanover, suffered severe injuries last Saturday morning when he ran his motorcycle into a truck driven by Wm. G. Fair, butch-er, Taneytown. Those who witnessed the accident say Swope, ran into the truck as it pulled away from a gasoline service station at a garage. in Midway, at Hanover, Pennsylvania. He was thrown to the ground in the path of a truck of the Newark Shoe Company, but escaped being run over when the driver quickly stopped his truck. Mr. Fair is said not to Swope was taken to the Hanover Hospital, by a doctor who was passing, and he is said to have suffered a broken nose and other injuries about the face and head.

On Monday afternoon about 2:00 o'clock while Wilbur Z. Fair and Bob Scranton were driving the freight delivery truck up the Emmitsburg road, when about a half mile from town a car containing two men from Baltimore, running at a rapid gait passed the truck going in the same direction, and when well around the rear wheels ran off the road on the left side, and on being suddenly guided to the right it turned somersault.

The men were both badly hurt and were brought back to town to Dr. Benner's office by the truck, where they received first aid, and were later taken to Baltimore by the Baltimore ambulance. The car, which was badly damaged, was towed to the Taneytown garage. The car is said to have been running at about 50 miles an hour.

The County Corn Show.

The greatest corn show ever held in Carroll County will be conducted this fall by the corn growers of the county according to County Agent Burns. Committees are at work now starting to lay plans to get corn from all parts of the county. Now is the time to begin selecting your samples. Do not put it off until husking. Many farmers are already shaping up samples for the show, which will be held some time during the first of Decemsome time during the first of December. December will be here before you are conscious of the fact and it will be too late then, to select wisely the ten ear sample of corn you expect to win.

As usual the business men of the county and the Banks are willing to co-operate to help make this one of the greatest shows ever held in the county. The educational and economic values of such a show are many and it is to be hoped that the work so well started by the First National Bank and the Extension Service will contin ue to bring results which will make Carroll County a greater agricultural and corn raising county.

Be a Good American.

We are quite a way from election day, but it is not too early to pledge -mostly foreigners-do out here yourself that this year, come what wise be a good citizen, loyal and patriotic, but unless he votes he is not doing his duty toward American institutions.

In the presidential election in 1920 only 49 percent of those entitled to vote went to the polls. There was a slight improvement in 1924, yet even then only 51 percent of eligible voters went to the polls. Older citizens can recall that people used to take greater interest in elections, and figures will bear them out. In the campaign of 1896, for instance, nearly 80 percent of the qualified voters cast their ballots.

These figures call for thoughtful These figures call for thoughtful consideration of all good citizens. The usual drive to get out the vote will be made this year. It should have the support of all good citizens. The people who solicit voters to register, and to go to the polls and vote, should not be put off with a vague should not be put off with a vague promise which is not intended to be kept. They should be received cordially as individuals who are trying to do the country a good turn, and this reception should be followed up by registration and voting. The man who doesn't vote has little cause to offer criticism as to how the country is governed.—Ellicott City Times.

of a few years. I may again take the trip, and until then, my means of communication with my friends there, will be The Record, and also by correspondence with all who wish to write to me. As stated by the Editor, "Taneytown looks good" to me, and nothing could please me more than to spend my few remaining days among my friends. But, as this cannot be, all I can do is to wish them all the success and happiness possible. JOHN J. REID.

Another Appeal for Florida!

Many of the people of the north do not appreciate the extent of Florida's destruction by the storm, but rather seem to think that the only great sufferer was Porto Rico, which makes it less interesting and less an appeal to their representative. From last week's issue of the Aporto Florida Chief we cather generosity. From last week's issue of the Apopka, Florida, Chief, we gather the following first-hand information, that places a different face on the sub-

"The dead in Florida is over 3000. The country has never before suffered such a storm calamity. Relief parties that have entered the devastated region tell of the tremendous loss to property, and of the horrible scenes of death

"As we penetrated to the South and neared Pahokee, horrors upon horrors were disclosed to us. Bodies of dead animals and human beings were floating at the roadside. In places they had been pulled from the water and lay in heaps awaiting transportation. The stench became almost unbearable the further we went, and relief workers who had penetrated the area wore handkerchiefs over nose and mouth saturated with turpentine."

"The living now have neither food, clothing, shelter nor money with which to buy supplies, seed, implements, or materials for rebuilding their homes. They must be supplied. They will plant and go on again if given a chance."

And, there is a great deal more along the same line. The unaffected portions of Florida are doing their utmost, as are adjoining states. Millions are needed, and the north, generally, will do its part, if it can be convinced of the Carroll County is asked for only $1500, and even that is coming in very slowly—less than $400—due in all probability to the fact that the citizens of the county do not realize the extent of the need. necessity existing.

Do not have any further doubt about it; but send your subscriptions promptly to H. Carroll Shunk, Westminster; or, if more convenient to Taneytown, hand them to Mrs. Walter A. Bower, or to THE CARROLL RECORD. The amounts so far received in Taneytown are reported in another column.

THE STRAWRICK QUESTION Washington.

Misunderstanding and differences, which have existed between the District of Columbia health department and dairymen of Frederick and Montgomery counties shipping milk into Washington were cleared up on Thurs day evening at a meeting held in the courthouse. Also that a space 25 feet in depth in front of the cow stable be cleaned of manure and littered with clean straw, the straw to be removed after serving its usefulness, and fresh litter supplied.

The agreement reached between the dairymen's committee and Dr. Fowler is the result of several months of negotiation. After several conferences the Frederick county committee, composed of Prof. Amon Burgee.

POLITICS THIS WEEK

Condensed Clippings from Around the Political Horizon.

Gov. Smith, in his western tour, made a strong bid for the former Progressive (La Follette) vote, and it is said to be part the main policy of the Democratic managers to reach out for that vote in states like West Va., where the La Follette vote was strong. The present Senator La Follette has not, as yet, declared for Smith. Senator Norris, Neb., Progressive Republican, is also a hold-off, so far as declaration is concerned.

Both parties are playing strong for the Negro vote. In Baltimore The Afro-American (newspaper) is openly opposing Goldsborough (Rep.) for Senator, and is apparently favorable to Smith for President. In Chicago the Republicans have nominated a Negro for Congress in the 1st. District; and in St. Louis the Democrats have nominated one for Congress against the Republican candidate. The Republicans have also nominated a Negro candidate in N. Y. City, while the Democrats there have recently been very free with minor appointments to Negroes. The Ku Klux movement is said to have operated toward their favorable consideration for Smith.

eration for Smith.

The census of 1920 showed the following Negro voters, and these numbers have been materially added to since then; New York 142,544, New Jersey 75,671, Pennsylvania 191,226, Illinois 128,090, Indiana 53,935, Ohio 126,940, Tennessee 245,395, Kentucky 145,881, Missouri 121,328, Maryland 141,991, Oklahoma over 76,000, Kansas nearly 40,000, Massachusetts about 45,000, and Connecticut 21,000.
Gov. Smith, in his address at Milwaukee, last Saturday night, emphasized his stand for states rights over liquor. He laid down the proposition that the 18th. Amendment prohibits intoxicating but not alcoholic beverages, and took a strong stand for wines and beer, and stated that "a great deal of the degree head." great deal of the dangerous hard liquor would be driven out of the country, if the people could be assured of an alcoholic beverage declared by common-sense and science to be non-intoxicating." He proposed changes in the constitution that would permit all states to have only such liquor laws as they wanted.

The chairman of the Finance Committee of the Democratic National Committee recently made an appeal over the radio for popular subscripover the radio for popular subscriptions from $1.00 up for campaign expenses, stating that only $1,500,000 of the $4,000,000 budget had as yet been pledged or paid. The Hoover speaking program is as follows: Oct. 6, Elizabethtown, and Johnson City, Tenn. (two speeches); Oct. 15, Boston; Oct. 22, New York City; and on Oct. 28 at some place

Unquestionably, the Republican
National campaign is being helped in the west by the argument and oratory of that some-time Republican insurgent, Senator Borah, of Idaho, who is the most effective speaker and campaigner in any party in this country, when the hard-hitting, applause getting, style is considered.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who against his wishes accepted the Democratic nomination for Governor of York, is expected to give strength to the candidacy of Gov. Smith for pres-ident. He is a very able man and public speaker, but is much afflicted physically. He has been trying to build up his health in Georgia.

Chas. A. Lindbergh made special flight to St. Louis, in order to register that he may vote for Hoover. He says his election is of "supreme importance to the country."

The Republicans have nominated for Governor, in New York, Alfred Ottinger; and for U. S. Senator, Alanson B. Houghton. ## FOR FIRE PREVENTION ALL NEXT WEEK.

Everybody asked to help add to Safety of Property.

The Secretary of the Department of Agriculture has stressed the importance of observing fire prevention week beginning Oct. 7, throughout the United States as designated by proclamation of the President, by calling attention to the fact that about 30 percent of the fire loss of the country occurs on farms and in rural sections, and that this loss would not prevail if a constructive campaign was engaged in by communities for greater care and the use of proper efforts for fire prevention.

There is a percentage of fires directly due to lightning and to the spontaneous combustion of hay and other stored products, which loss is difficult if not impassable to prevent; but the major portion of the losses are not due to these causes. Some of them are due to "wash houses" or other like buildings which do not have good brick chimneys, and where fireplace, or other fires, are not carefully watched; but in general, fire prevention is much alike everywhere, and it calls for intelligent care of proper-

Municipal authorities, too, should go over towns at least once a year looking for bad chimneys, accumulated rubbish and fire nests of all kinds, and order their removal; for just one careless occupant of a property may be responsible for the loss of many thousands of dollars by careful property owners.

It is too late to be sorry, after a ire. So. during "Fire Prevention Week", see what you can do about your own property to prevent a possible fire loss; and after a clean-up has been made, keep it so.

Even good movements sometimes wear out, merely because they are not well managed, in advance.

Universal Safety.

The National Safety Council has designed an attractive poster, the message on which is "To Save Your Life, you Can't beat Safety," and accompanies the slogan with the advice, "Work for Safe Conditions." The once heard a man say that he had no easiest thing in the world to give, is advice-and it is about the hardest "didn't teach him how to spell." This assented. The ancient organ has only thing in the world, to take.

strength of safety advice is felt after a fatality, and too late for the victim to take. He would have taken it, had he known what was coming; but, life makes one bold, and chance-taking is a habit that is formed—sometimes by dropping a nickel in a slot, and sometimes not so innocently.

When we play "safe"—whether it be with life, or just ordinary eventswe do not take unnecessary chances. We use caution, avoid great speed and recklessness; simply stated, we observe the motto, "Look before you leap." Children, or mental defectives do not do this; nor do the habitually careless or absent-minded, or the chance takers, and certainly not those who are partly or wholly intoxicated.

If automobilists would always keep in mind that "To save your Life, you can't beat safety," the accident list would practically drop out of the news columns of the papers; and there would not exist the after regrets that last throughout life, or perhaps end the life of the one responsible.

Electing a President.

There seems to be a disposition on the part of both Republican and Democratic candidates not to discuss prohibition as a main issue. This is likely because good politics demands it, due to the split in both parties over "wet" or "dry," more pronounced in the Democratic than the Republican party; but the party platforms, and the utterances of both Gov. ## What Kind of "Typewriter?"

Our very interesting and snappy exchange, The Observer, Baltimore, departed last week from its usual line of expression, as follows;

"Now that so many surprising inventions are being developed, its a wonder no one thinks of the typewriter. A really good one hasn't yet

Well, what's the matter with any one of a half dozen good makes? We use for a typewriter because it, is not the Observer's grouch, we are five stops and one manual.

Or, can it be that the Observer means that other sort of "typewriter" that powders her nose, in addition to banging the keys? But even then there must be a "really good" one in the city noted for its specimens of feminine attractiveness. Look 'em over again—the kind meant!

A One Track Mind.

We hear the statement made now and then that such a man has a "one track mind." Whether such a characterization is intended as criticism or compliment, the fact remains that the power of concentration is a valuable possession.

Nothing worth while was ever accomplished without concentrated effort. This rule applies with special force in the administration of one's personal affairs. Those who scatter their efforts and give their time to all sorts of activities and enterprises are not apt to gain satisfactory re-

Observation in any community will show that those who are succeeding best in life are to a great extent men of single purpose. A study of the careers of the successful men of this or of any other country will bear testimony to the same truth.

This does not mean that there is any virtue in selfishness or in a narrow attitude toward life. Successful men keep themselves in a receptive mood to changing conditions in order that they may not get out of step with the marching feet of progress.

But it is lack of thrift—a sheer waste of time, effort, opportunity and money-not to have one outstanding purpose or plan in life and bend every effort accordingly. It is always better to do one thing well than to do many things poorly. It requires will-power and strength of character to stick to a given purpose, It is the weakling—the potential failure-who follows ever the line of least resistance, enthusing over one project today and casting it aside for

Count Solms boasts of having one of the oldest and most interesting organs in Germany. Of course, I shall have to leave town and attempt to begin all over again where my past is unknown. I cannot remain here, where my business assoclates eye me pityingly, knowing that the new sales manager, Mr. Goomis, has given me to understand that my time is up at the end of the month. And what I did seemed, at the time, so venial!

My blunder occurred at a little dinner given by the sales force in honor of Mr. Goomis. All had gone pleasantly enough; Mr. Goomis, who sat at my right, seemed to take a particular nterest in me. And when, in response to the general demand, he rose to "say a few words," I sank back contentedly enough, certainly with no presentiment of disaster. It is true I had drunk a good deal; but my nerves were steady, I knew what I was about, and except for a slight feeling of unusual vigor, possibly of daring, I was quite normal. Even now I cannot account for that fatal faux pas.

I only know that when Goomis, after the usual apology for his lack of forensic ability, cleared his throat and began: "That reminds me of the story of the Scotchman who took his wiff for an airplane ride—now stop me if you've heard this one ... I stopped him !- Kansas City Times.

Human Body Depends on Toe for Balance

The most perfectly formed feet are found among savages. Civilization tends to compress the feet, spoiling the shape of the toes and in many cases actually deforming them. Originally intended to be used as a sort of second set of fingers, the toes still play a prominent part in the lives of many natives. Indian craftsmen, for instance, hold a tool between their toes with an ease almost equal to handling it. Amongst the more advanced peoples, however, this use of the toes is completely obsolete, and in another hundred years our toes nay be out of work. In the mean time, however, we must certainly have a use, though limited, for our toes. On them we largely depend for the balance of our bodies, the spring of our walk. If we were toeless, every step would be a jar. For cycling, football, dancing, to name but three instances, toes are practically essential. In them we carry about with us a sliding lever more delicate than any science could devise, which helps us to keep our balance. Decidedly, we cannot yet afford to dispense with our

The Woad Makers

The ancient Britons, we are told. dyed themselves blue with woad. The manufacture of dye from woad is still carried on, although it is not used for its original purpose.

Huge, cumbersome wooden rollers drawn by horses are used to crush the plant, and in the village of Parson Drove, in the Fen country, a woad mill is still in seasonal use, its processes probably differing little from those of two thousand years ago.

Woad has its uses in newer industries, and for certain purpos : its value still remains superior to all modern substitutes.-London Mail.

Birds Keep Down Flies

It is claimed that the cultivation of birds will prove a very decided check on the fly population. The black-capped Wilson's flycatcher has been known to catch about 2,000 green flies from the rose trees of a greenhouse in a few hours. The wren, it seems, is perpetually eating, as are many of the other birds. One observer states Le has seen the fussy little motherly wren feed her young 36 times in an hour. The insects and insects' eggs that she cleans out in such feedings are inestimable.

ALASKA FARM LIFE BEGINS NEW PHASE

Bachelor Owner and One-Crop System Passing.

Seattle, Wash .- Touring southeastern Alaska for an inspection of natural resources, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine will find farm life of the Far North in the midst of a colorful

The "bachelor farmer," whose pioneer struggles are written into the agricultural history of every frontier, is slowly passing from the land he cleared of timber and is being replaced by men with families. Where his shack stood the new farmer is building houses and barns and his one-crop system of farming, is giving way to diversified activities, including the production of live stock.

Needing little and obtaining that principally from the forests, the early settler lived under conditions impossible for a man with a family. He planted his wheat or potatoes in the spring, left during the summer months to earn a "grubstake" and returned in the fall to harvest a crop that had received no attention.

More Dairy Farms.

Long-required diversified farming is coming in with the families. The small dairy farm grows more common and many vegetables are grown. In the region near Fairbanks the bachelor still predominates, and since the area is adapted to wheat and potatoes, it may take longer to introduce diversified systems.

Southeastern Alaska is rough, rugged and covered with timber. Comparatively little land in this region is available for cultivation. The rich farms are in the great Tanana valley, which, with the Yukon and Susitna valleys, has the essentials to make it eventually the granary of Alaska, in the fertile Matanuska valley and contiguous territory.

The secretary's plan to visit the southeastern section was motivated by his desire to see at close range the infant forest industry, other natural resources and the possibilities for preservation of wild life.

This newest Alaskan industry has none of the stampede characteristics of earlier enterprises. The gold rush brought rapid but short-lived growth in many places, but the paper-making industry is expected to be permanent. Scientifically developed, costly newsprint plants, with strict government supervision of natural resources, have been planned with a view to encouraging prosperous cities and towns.

Will Build Mills.

Water-power rights for construction of mills at Ketchikan, the secretary's first stop in Alaska, and at Juneau have been granted by the government, and two companies are making preliminary investigation for actual construction work.

The United States will be paid for the timber as it is cut, and cutting will be done in accordance with forestry principles. The southern coast is covered with thick forests, and 95 per cent of the timber is understood to be excellent for the manufacture of

Church Leases Farm to Pay Off Its Debt

Rapid City, S. D.-A four-hundredacre farm on the old Sioux reservation is expected to pay the debt of the Rapid City Episcopal church in four years. The Men's club of the church, which has 80 members, has advanced $800, rented a farm near Waste, a little town 40 miles east of Rapid City, bought the necessary farm equipment and planted 100 acres in flax and 100 acres in wheat. Next year the whole 400 acres will be farmed.

The farm is seven miles from Waste, pronounced "Washti" and meaning in the Sioux language "good," and is the center of a farming country that never has known a crop failure in the 20 years of its cultivation. After the opening of the In dian reservation, the country between the Missouri river and the Black hills was a free cattle range until the building of the Chicago & North Western railway from Pierre to Rapid City in 1907 made it available to settlers.

High Price of Brides Worries Syrian Youth

Damascus, Syria.—The high price of brides is beginning to worry young and marriageable men in the East.

A mass meeting held here recently elected a committee to seek a modification of the custom requiring the man who would marry to pay over a handsome sum of money to the father of the girl of his choice. The western custom is more to the liking of the eastern swain.

The men working for the reform say that they are not impelled by selfish motives, but are interested in the welfare of the state; marriages, they say, are on the decrease owing to the greed of parents who have been raising prices in the marriage markets.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

THE refreshments for luncheons or wedding menus are one of the most important parts of such occasions. Sandwiches made in layers and cut in slices are most attractive and not difficult to make.

A loaf may be prepared by removing all the crust, then slice lengthwise in half-inch slices. Spread each slice with creamed butter, on one lay crisp lettuce or thinly-sliced cucumber, then a thick layer of sandwich filling; on top of this lay a slice of bread buttered on both sides; repeat with the lettuce and salad filling and top with bread buttered on one side. Put under a light weight for a short time, then cut into slices like layer

Different fillings may be used in the layers-one of cream cheese and maraschino cherries or cheese and chopped egg, seasoned. A variety of color will add to the sandwich.

Here are some general hints on good cake making. Use good materials, fine granulated sugar, cake flour, and a tested recipe. Measure accurately. Cream the butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and work it in until the mixture is thoroughly creamy. Add the well beaten eggs, or the well beaten yolks, if the recipe separates the yolks and whites. Mix and sift dry ingredients, add alternately with the liquid, and beat well. Add flavoring and beat. Fold in the egg whites, if they are separated from the yolks. Distribute the batter evenly over buttered tins, making a little indenture in the middle with the back of a spoon, so that cake will rise evenly. Bake evenly in a moderate oven until good and prown, and brown, and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Pour into a greased tube fold mix together two cups confectioner's sugar, two tablespoons evaporated milk, two tablespoons melted butter. Stir until creamy. If too thick to spread well, add more evaporated milk, drop by drop.

Potentially snow storms form in general region of warmth, strange as it may seem. The area of low barometric pressure, or storm sea, comes whirling eastward across the Gulf states and then generally takes a twist northward along the Atlantic seaboard. When sufficiently far north these warm air currents are chilled and the moisture becomes snow, very often being borne to the earth by the back draft of east wind.

It Makes Him Sick.

An old lady got on the elevator in a big department store in Washington the other day. As soon as the operator had closed the door she became talkative. "Don't you ever become ill going up and down in this elevator all day," she asked.
"Yes'm," the operator replied.

"Is it the motion of going down?"

"The motion of going up?"

"The stopping?"

"Standing on your feet so much?"

'Closing that heavy door?"

"Opening it?"

"What is it, then?" "Answering questions."

"Fourth Estate" First Applied to the Army

Carlyle credited Edmund Burke with originating the expression "the Fourth Estate," frequently applied to the newspaper profession, but Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly declares in Editor and Publisher that the phrase is much older, having originated with Lord Falkland in the days when Richard was lord protector of England. Richard had consented to the appointment of a general council of officers to aid in the government. Parliament and the army were opposed to each other, Five hundred officers assembled and attempted to remove command of the army from civil power. In parliament, Lord Falkland, who foresaw the threatening danger, said: "You have been a long time talking of the three estates. There is a fourth, which if not well looked to will turn

The phrase has been used at various times to distinguish the army, the laboring classes, and the press as distinguished from the church, and the lords and commons.-Detroit News.

us all out of doors." The application here made it not to the press but to the army.

Diligence

Our word, diligence, is from the Latin, "diligencia." It means the quality of being diligent; interested and persevering application; devoted and painstaking effort to acomplish what is undertaken; assiduous industry; careful attention. Industry has the wider sense of the two words, imply ing an habitual devotion to labor for some valuable end, as knowledge or property. Diligence denotes earnest application to some specific object or pursuit which more or less directly has a strong hold on one's interest or feelings.

Hairy Elephants Historians tell us that, in prehistoric times, mighty mastodons and mammoths were covered from head to tail with a very coarse hair which, in many cases, grew long. So the elephant's forefathers had long hair but, changed with regard to ditions, from the bitter weath ers that were encountered frosty to t' a nodern climate of extreme heat and cold, the elephant gradually doffed his overcoat. The hair sometimes seen on the top of his head alone remains as a reminder.

Takes Joy From Life

People that are always looking for all the hardships and difficulties that they may meet travel a hard road if their speech is in line with their thinking. I know farmers that start in with spring work and see their crops ruined by coming disaster, until it has been stored away. A snow and cold spell coming after the oats are in is certain to kill the seed, and all must be done over. A two days' rain is evidence that it is going to be so wet that nothing will mature. If the surface of the ground is dry we are in the start of dry spell that will ruin everything. Thus it goes daily to the finish. I claim that a man that really thinks that way lives a mighty poor life. We have to take about everything on faith in this old world and on the whole our faith is justified. A happy philosophy of life is a thing that can be cultivated and is worth while. It is an added treasure to the joy of living, not for one but for many.-George Godfrey in Successful Farming.

of Greatest Import I do not know that there is anything, except it be humility, which is close of business, Sept. 29, 1928. so valuable as an incident of education as accuracy. And accuracy can be taught. Direct lies told to the world are as dust in the balance when weighed against the falsehoods of inaccuracy. These are the fatal things. And they are all-pervading. I scarcely care what is taught to the young if it will but implant in them the habit > of accuracy. Now, look at the matter in this 3,728.75 light. Take the speech of any man .$159,667.04 | for any given day. For once that he wilfully gives a wrong color (with an eye to his own interests) to anything which he states or narrates, he mistakes or misdescribes 20 times, on account of his inability to tell anything accurately.

Besides, there is this important result from a habit of accuracy, that it produces truthfulness even on those occasions where a man would be tempted to be untruthful. He gradually gets to love accuracy more even than his own interests; at last he has a passion for accuracy.—Arthur Helps.

Feathered Dustbins

Would you care for a vulture in place of your dustbin? In Tibet, where there are no modern facilities for getting rid of refuse such as are afforded in this country, vultures are used for this purpose.

The lamas make a practice of trapping the cinerons or black vultures and fastening a long rope to the bird's leg. The other end of the rope is attached to a peg driven in the ground, and each bird is provided with a big rock on which to perch. Garbage is strewn around it, and the scavenging birds feed on this and quickly clear it

Novel Tadpole Test

Hot water causes female tadpoles to turn into males if they are kept in it too long. A scientist kept two sets of tadpoles from the egg stage until he was able to determine their sex. In one set, in which the temperature of the water was natural, the sex ratio was normal, about 100 females to 96 males. In the other set the temperature of the water was jumped suddenly to nearly 90 degrees Fahrenheit when the tadpoles were five weeks old. The sex glands of the females in this set gradual'y assumed a musculine character, and the frogs emerged as

The man was puzzled for a moment.

Then he understood. "Oh, you want me to see that you

The opposite curb reached, the boy said, "Thank you," and marched off-to grow up, presumably, into a man who calls regularly on friends of the family and asks plain girls to dance.-Baltimore Sun.

Light Rays Echo Finders

The acoustic defects of a London hall were recently located and remedied by the use of an echo finder, which consists of a beam of light and an electric spark gap, both mounted on the same bowl-shaped reflector. As the beam is moved around the hall, shot first on one place and then another, such portions of the interior as have the faculty of reflecting the sound are detected by means of a chattering in the instrument. When located steps are taken to overcome the echo.

Forgetful Auntie

Sammy came down for breakfast one morning looking rather scared. He had had a most unpleasant dream, which he began to recount to the family at great length.

He had reached an exciting stage, and his voice had sunk to an impressive whisper, when he stopped short and demanded of his aunt:

"And what came next, auntie?" The lady looked puzzled. "How should I know, Sammy?" she asked. "Why," said Sammy indignantly, "you were there, weren't you?"

Domain of Certainty

29.-Hanna and the Gold Plank of '96

WHATEVER the personal qualities of William McKinley, there can be no gainsaying that he owed his elevation to the highest national office largely to the manipulations of a skillful political impresario. Marcus

Hardly could a greater contrast be imagined than between the Ohio major, who had come into prominence in congress as an authority on the tariff, and "Uncle Mark," the blunt political boss who worshiped success and who played the game of politics to win, just as he played the game of business, hardly as much for the sake of the stakes involved as for the zest of winning.

Hanna's exploit in 1896, when the monetary issue was uppermost, was in running a man with a silver record on a gold platform and making many of the Republican leaders believe that the gold plank was a great concession by Hanna and McKinley to them.

McKinley in congress had voted more than once with the western silver faction on the money question. But Hanna perceived that a stand for a gold standard was the only one the Republican party could afford to take. He kept his real views under cover, although he had in his pocket the gold plank he wanted adopted when he went to the Republican convention at St. Louis.

McKinley was popular because of his high tarin stand, but the eastern leaders thought him unsafe on the money issue. Boss Platt, heading the New York delegation, threatened to bolt the convention if it did not de clare for a gold standard.

At the other extreme Senator Hen ry Teller, chairman of the delegation from the silver-mine state of Colorado, make it plain that his followers would secede if the convention did not declare for silver. Delegates from some other states were equally emphatic.

In these circumstances the convention resolutions committee found itself unable to frame a money plank. Hanna let the committee members argue the question for two whole days, while the real business of the convention was at a standstill,

Finally the gold men, resolving to take the bull by the horns, went to Hanna's hotel room and tried to browbeat him into accepting a gold plank, threatening that unless he yielded. they would carry their fight to the floor and defeat his candidate, Mc-Kinley. They gave Hanna just one hour to yield to their ultimatum.

It must have made the wily leader smile up his sleeve. They had played directly into his hands.

In less than the prescribed hour, Hanna announced himself a gold man. The plank which he had wanted all the time was incorporated in the platform, and he was in position to demand additional convention support by the gold faction for McKinley. Seldom has a smoother convention deal been put through with such suc-

A number of men have claimed credit for the gold plank. Herman Kohlsaat, Chicago newspaper editor; Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, Senator Platt of New York and others have maintained they were the ones who had the word "gold" inserted in the plank.

As a result of Hanna's shrewd manipulation, the convention had its way, with an overwhelming adoption of the gold standard. Then it proceeded, on the first ballot, to do what the Ohio hoss most wanted to do, nominate McKinley.

The gold stand of the party was not taken without the dramatic withdrawal from the convention of Senator Teller and the Western silver Republicans, but their defection was not

It was a whim of McKinley's that he bore a resemblance to Napoleon. As he won the nomination, a delegate raised on top of a staff a cocked hat such as is seen in pictures of the French emperor, whereat there was vociferous cheering.

Democrats did not fail, at this, to note that the nomination was made on June 18, the anniversary of Napoleon's crushing defeat at Waterloo, and they professed to see ill-omen in the coincidence. But their own candidate, Mr. Bryan, was destined to be the vanquished leader in the Waterloo of

NEVER until William Jennings Bryan made his "cross of gold" speech at the Chicago Democratic convention of 1896 had any American won a Presidential nomination merely on the strength of a single piece of his own convention oratory.

The convention plea that Garfield made against retention of the unit rule, that would have permitted the nomination of Grant for a third term in 1880, may have moved many to cast their votes for him as a dark horse in that year. But Garfield had in addition a record as a leader in congress which the "boy orator of the Platte" had not established in his short service in the house of representatives.

The fact that Bryan got into the convention at all was a fortunate turn of fate for him. He was admitted as a Nebraska silver delegate only when the Nebraska gold delegation had its credentials rejected, putting it out of the convention entirely.

The Democracy in '96 went to its convention leaderless. It was divided into two factions, gold and silver, on the money question.

President Cleveland's sharp differences with his party had deprived him of any considerable following. The convention would not even indorse his administration, though Senator Hill of New York, representing the eastern gold faction, strove valiantly to have it indorsed. Not a single delegate cheered at the mention of the President's name.

The attempt to insert a simple plank commending "the honesty, economy, courage and fidelity of the present Democratic national administration" gave Mr. Bryan his chance. Senator Hill and others spoke ineffectually in support of the plank. Mr. Bryan came forward to the platform to reply.

The tumultuous multitude before him felt the magnetic thrill of his presence. He was serene, self-possessed and splendidly conscious of his own power as he faced the crowd. The commotion was hushed as he began to speak in his mellow, penetrating voice "in defense of a cause as holy as the cause of liberty—the cause of humanity."

The convention that had been stilled in his presence followed with tense eagerness his eloquent periods, that rose to a climax in his peroraation, with its famous closing sentence: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns, you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold.'

It was a speech such as Bryan had been giving for several years before gatherings out on the prairies where the Populist tide was rising with almost a seething religious fervor. But never had he had such an occasion as this to wield the spell of his eloquence over a great gathering of the leaders of his party.

The huge auditorium had rocked to mighty shouts as he reached high points in his address. Each sentence of his closing paragraph was punctuated with a crash of applause.

As he finished the scene was indescribable. The tumult was like that of a great, thundering sea. He had met the mood of the gathering. He had played upon the heartstrings of the 20,000 persons before him. Their emotions gave vent to a tempestuous roar of acclaim.

Senator Hill's plank was rejected, with cries of derision, and the free silver platform was adopted by a vote of more than two to one.

The leaderless convention had found its leader and its master spirit. On the fifth ballot next day William Jennings Bryan, the little-known youthful son of the West, was made the standard-bearer of the party, of whose radical wing he had become the inspired champion.

The last great political battle of the century was a momentuous one, with Populist fervor setting the emotions of the West aflame and rousing fear in the East. "Probably no man in civil life has succeeded in inspiring so much terror, without taking life, as Bryan," observed the Nation at the close of the campaign.

Fervor and fear made the vote an unprecedentedly large one, but when the tumult subsided, William McKin ley was found to be a half million votes ahead in a total of some thirteen millions-an unexpectedly decisive result for what was, in many respects, the most eventful political struggle that America had witnessed since the first election of President Lincoln.

Among the 80 species of toads known there is one, the water toad of Central America, which presents many curious and interesting features. These toads employ a strange way of hatching their eggs. #### All Potential Cowards

While I think that the three classes, cowards, fearless men and courageous men, embrace all males on this earth, including the insane, I do not hold the categories iron-bound. The coward in a corner may become brave and run amok. The courageous man is essentially a coward at heart, and the fearless man may, in a bad enough situation, be either courageous or cowardly. Personally, I am a great physical coward, but get a quart of hooch in me and I'll fight a saloonful and have, to the best of hazy recollections, attempted it.-G. D. Eaton in Plain Talk Magazine.

Forming pictures and designs of colored sands on the interiors of bottles is the interesting art hobby of a California man who got the idea from a natural group of "painted rocks." #### Better Conduct

Better conduct should be the first ideal of every man and woman; it is the most important aid in living. This is true not because better conduct is recommended by religion, but because it is recommended by Nature. A man who behaves better in his feeding is rewarded; so is the man who behaves better in associating with his fellows, in his business, in his ders the fruit which should serve for family affairs. Behave better is the the encouragement of integrity and one maxim that all should accept as the reward of excellence.—Sophia the greatest in the world,—E. W.

Large Sums of Money

Forwarded by Wire Money orders to the number of 3.-798,548 and calling for the payment of more than $250,000,000 were handled last year by the Western Union Telegraph company in its money transfer service, according to Dots and Dashes, a monthly publication of the company. The largest single sum handled was $250,000, while the smallest was 1 cent. The $250,-000 order was in connection with a motion picture contract.

The 1-cent transaction grew out of a difference arising when a person in New York sent an acquaintance in Chicago a postcard bearing a 1-cent stamp. The latter, in a sarcastic mood, complained that the communication had been received with postage due. Upon receipt of this letter, the man in New York went to the telegraph office, sent the cent with a caustic message and went off less $1, the cost of transmission. Instances of 2-cent money orders are said to be quite frequent, involving in practically every case valuable mail held for postage due.

The three greatest sources of money order business are listed by the company publication as workmen employed on jobs away from their home town, out-of-town visitors and tourists caught short of funds on their travels, and traveling salesmen. Many firms encourage their representatives to ask for expense money by wire. They regard that as more economical than to have salesmen waiting for money while hotel bills accrue.

Remodeled Barn Made

Into Camp for Girls How an old gray barn in the country near New York city was remodeled into a girls' camp by the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor is told by W. H. Matthews in Hygeia Magazine. It was an enormous barn, with numerous stalls, three floors, a silo, harness rooms and a magnificent view of the Catskill mountains. Extensive remodeling was necessary, but it proved less expensive than the original plan to build a group of cottages, and the result was a unique camp. Fifty-five girls were accommodated for five weeks at a time. The time was a radical departure from the usual plan of keeping children for two weeks. Congenial counselors, opportunity for wholesome outdoor play and substantial gains in health made the visit at "Greybarns" a strong influence for good in the lives of girls whohad never had such an opportunity before.

O horse, you are a wonderful thing; no buttons to push, no horns to honk you start yourself, no clutch to slip; no spark to miss, no gears to strip; no license-buying every year, with plates to screw on front and rear; no gas bills climbing up each day, stealing the joy of mot'ring away; no speedcops chugging in your rear, yelling summons in your ear. Your inner tubes are all O. K. and, bless your heart, they stay that way; your spark plugs never miss and fuss, the way they do in some old bus. ## For State Builders

They who preach patience to the peoples as the sole remedy for the ills by which they are oppressed, or who while they admit the necessity of a contest, would yet leave the initiative to be taken by their rulers, do not, to my thinking, understand the state of things coming upon us. . . . It is not enough to precipitate a monarchy into a gulf; the gulf must be closed up, and a durable edifice erected on its site.-From "Faith and the Future," by Mazzini.

Bobwhites and Quails

Many people think that the bobwhite and the quail are distinct species of birds. "Bobwhite" is merely the common name for the native American quail, particularly the "Colinus Virginianus" or Virginia quail. The quail is called "bobwhite" from the note of the male, which is accented on the second syllable and sounds like "bobwhite." In the Southern statesthe same bird is called "partridge," a name used in the North for the ruffed grouse or pheasant.

Forged Cameos

Hundreds of treasured cameos and intaglios, for which large sums have been paid, are spurious, although many of them are masterpieces of art. To such an extent have cameos been forged that, after a certain Frenct count had spent $25,000 in forming a collection, so many forgeries werefound among them that, in despair of separating the false from the true, he parted with the lot for a fraction of what they had cost him.

Eased His Conscience

In 1882 David Nightingale bought a pair of shoes in John Dickman's. store at Peekskill, N. Y., and then left for California without paying for them. Recently Nightingale returned to settle his forty-five-year-old debt. He found the shoeman had retired from business, but was still living. Nightingale counted out $4, the original price of the shoes, and then $35 more, which he estimated was the interest to date.

Lesson for October 7 PAUL IN EPHESUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:8-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—We are his workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Bravery

Against a Crowd.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Bravery Against a Crowd, INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC—Outgrowing Superstition, YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-

I. Paul Preaching in Ephesus (vv.

IC-Growing Together in Christ.

1. In the synagogue (v. 8). Paul's custom was to go to the Jews first with the gospel, though they were his inveterate enemies. His preaching here was characterized by: (1) Boldness. He knew that God had sent him and therefore that he was backed by divine authority. This should characterize every Christian worker.

(2) Argument. The gospel message is in accord with the highest reason.

(3 Persuasion. It is not enough that the minister come boldly with a reasonable message. It must be accompanied with persuasion. "Knowing the terror of the Lord, we persuade

(4) The message should have definite content.

It was concerning the kingdom of God. Paul's supreme theme was salvation through Christ.

2. In the schoolhouse of Tyrannus (vv. 9, 10).

Paul's earnest scriptural and persuasive preaching only hardened the hearts of the Jews, even causing them to speak evil openly of this way of salvation by faith in Christ. It was for this reason that Paul separated the disciples from them and retired to the schoolouse of Tyrannus, where he continued his ministry for two years with glorious results.

II. God Working Miracles by Paul (vv. 11-16).

Ephesus was noted for its wonder workers, therefore if Paul's ministry was to be successful God must in an extraordinary way put His seal .pon the work. So wonderful was the divine power manifested that even handkerchiefs or aprons brought from Paul's body healed the sick and cast out evil spirits. Everywhere the supremacy of the Lord Jesus Christ was recognized. Seeing the marvelous power operating through Paul, certain strolling Jews who went about the country practicing the magical arts at the expense of their poor unfortunate fellows, u dertook to use he name "Jesus" in their incantations. Knowing that the connection with Christ was not real on the part of these Jews. the use of His name by them only enraged the evil spirit who struck them and overcame them. The name of Jesus is only powerful on the believer's lips.

III. A Glorious Revival at Ephesus (vv. 17-41).

1. Fear fell upon all (v. 17). News of the casting out of these evil spirits created impressions favorable to Christianity. 2. It brought to the front those who professed faith in Christ, while not living right lives (v. 18). They believed but had not broken from sin. Great blessing would come to the church if some awakening could come to those whose lives are not in keeping with their profession and cause them to openly confess and make a new start.

3. Gave up the practice of Black arts (v. 19).

This means forms of jugglery by use of charms and magical words. All such are in opposition to the will of God, therefore no one can have fellowship with God and practice them. They proved the genuineness of their actions by publicly burning their books.

4. The uproar of the silversmiths at Ephesus (vv. 23-41).

1. The occasion (vv. 23, 24).

This was the power of the gospel in destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his fellows. 2) The method (vv. 25-29).

Demetrius, a leading business man, called a meeting and stated that because of much people turning from idolatry business conditions were threatened and that the market for their wares was weakening. He stated, "This our craft is in danger." The world is willing to tolerate any kind of religion or moral awakening so long as it does not interfere wi' its business or manner of life He further sa'd, "The temple of the great goddess Diana will be destroyed." He became quite religious when he saw that business was being interfered with.

BEES ARE ENABLED TO FIND FOOD'S LOCATION .-For a long time naturalists have been trying to solve the problem as to how the honey bee reveals the location of his "find" to his comrades. At last science has found out the methods whereby a bee, after securing nectar from a flower, can make certain that others of the swarm will go to that same flower without erring in their path to the treasure trove. C. K. Ogden, in Science Notes of the Forum, explains the matter thus:

When bees are about to swarm they produce a humming noise even before the hive is left. Yet it is known that the sense of hearing in bees is far from acute. It is difficult to make them respond to even a loud noise. It was observed that at the same time as the bees made the humming noise spoken of they emitted a peculiar odor. This smell is produced by certain minute glands situated on the back of the abdomen of the bee. The hum is due to a beating of the wings and it appears that this wing movement is really made with the object of blowing the scent away from the body of the bee. The odor, then, is the real means of communication. It is emitted from the glands on the back, and wafted away from the body of the bee by movements of the wings.

When the first bee finds the food he at once brings his scent gland into action, emitting the odor. This he continues to do on his flight home, when inside the hive, and on his flight back again to the food; feaving a trail of scent in the air behind him. It is this trail which is followed by the workers on their way to the source of the food. We see now why they fly in a straight line, and why, when occasionally they sally forth before the messenger, nevertheless they go directly to the food.

How Fast Wind Blows Is Easy to Ascertain

The leaves and branches of trees give a good indication of how fast the wind is blowing. When leaves are still there is no appreciable wind, it being less than two miles an hour. light breeze of about five miles. Branches stirring slightly show a moderate breeze of about ten miles, and when branches bend a little the wind has increased to fifteen miles.

Branches rocking and swinging and poplars bending indicate a wind of twenty miles an hour; leaves torn from trees, twenty-five miles; and when light branches are broken, a tempest of thirty-five miles. A violent tempest of fifty-five miles breaks strong branches, while a hurricane or tornado of about eighty miles an hour damages house roofs.

How to Test Porcelain

Collectors of old china will be interested to know that the authenticity of certain types of old porcelain can now be determined by chemical tests. Under the direction of Dr. Alexander Scott tests have been worked out in the laboratory of the British museum that have helped classify several doubtful pieces in the museum collections without disfiguring the specimens. Old patent acts were consulted to determine the chemical composition of Old Bow and Chelsea china, and tests were then resorted to, to detect the presence of various phosphate components known to have been used in its composition.

How Depth Is Measured

There are two methods of measuring the depth of the ocean. The old way, still in use, is to let down a wire on which is fastened a heavy weight. The depth can be ascertained by measuring the wire. The new method uses an instrument called a sonic depth finder, invented by Dr. H. C. Hayes of the experiment station of the Navy department in June, 1922. The principle is that a sound impulse emanating from a point near the surface of a body of water will be reflected back to that point by any submerged surface within its range of

How Island Got Name

The Spanish name of the island Yerba Buena is due to the former prevalence of the fragrant herb. The alternative name of Goat island is explained by the story that some goats were brought from the Sandwich islands in 1835 and turned loose on Yerba Buena, where they multiplied so rapidly that by 1850 they numbered more than 1.000.

Modern City Getting Away From Old Ideas

Occasionally there are reproduced from the magazines or newspapers of past periods the somewhat crude woodcuts which portray more or less faithfully street scenes or buildings indicating conditions in the then sparsely settled sections of some of the larger American cities. They are studied with much the same interest one devotes to the contemplation of a daguerrotype of some more or less famous ancestor, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor.

Strangely enough, in nearly every one of these former villages and cities which have lost their identity as separate units through the merging and coalescing process to which they have submitted, gracefully or otherwise, more than a semblance of the once boasted Main streets remains. Another century or more must pass before these ancient landmarks will be obliterated. But their complete elimination is forecast by the increasing trend toward centralization. Great industrial and commercial units are still being welded and compressed into more and more compact form. Beyond these there possibly will spring up new centers, each with its own Main street, the converging point of residential villages peopled by auto and tramcar commuters. But these new streets will not be replicas of the old. The hitching posts and racks will be absent. The corner blacksmith shop will be nowhere visible. Even the rivalries which once existed among neighboring communities to determine which should be greatest will be forgotten.

Co-operation Is First

Step in Advancement Interests of a community and the public utilities serving it are identical, according to Philip L. Thompson, president of the Association of National Advertisers.

He told of manufacturers searching for a factory site. "When they find a city where for political or other considerations the utilities are not being allowed franchises and rates sufficient to enable them to earn a fair return, they turn away, because they are looking for locations where there is community harmony, where the people Leaves feebly agitated indicate a have learned that their interest is a mutual one with their utilities.

"When labor and employers of labor," Mr. Thompson continued, "and the merchants and the chambers of commerce and the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and the public utilities and the city or county officials and granges learn the value of sitting down around the table on a give-and-take basis, then there is no power on earth strong enough to hold back the development of that community."

Dry Rot in Timber

ings of our country is a menace of great magnitude and yet little is done to eliminate this disease. Its causes are well known, also its habits and effects, but the property owners seem willing to run chances of having their buildings undermined by this disease, and then pay the cost for demolition and rebuilding. Dry rot can be prevented if proper precautions are taken to destroy the fungi.

The losses suffered by property owners from this disease are unbelievable, and more unbelievable is the fact that no effort is being made to prevent these tremendous losses. Recently in England, the Royal Institute of British Architecture has appealed to the British Science school for discussion on this subject, which they feel is of national importance. It would seem that not only architects, but property owners as well should combine and take immediate steps to preserve the buildings of the nation.

Home-Town Faults

It is a time-honored American tradition that a man must never speak anything but good of his native town. He must blind his eyes to its faults; or, at least, he must never say anything about them. This is the tradition that has given rise to Boosters' clubs, to slogans of "Boost-don't knock" and the like. Not a bad idea, this praising your home town. Civic patriotism is a fine thing. But many times the highest form of civic patriotism lies in criticising your town for all you are worth. Faults don't drop out of existence if they are ignored. The only way to make a town all it ought to be is by calling attention to its defects until people are ready to abolish them. Boosters are good. But sometimes a good knocker is worth a lot more.-Frankfort Morning Times.

Individuality in Houses

Many feel that duplication of house designs in a row is conducive of economy. Perhaps it is, so far as first cost is concerne... But is it economy when it is considered that higher prices could be asked for houses whose exteriors were all different designs, with an attempt made to create an architectural composition out of an entire row of such house units? Correct planting of trees and shrubbery would add immeasurably to the value of building operations, and lend to them that feeling of restfulness so generally lacking.

RULES OF HEALTH

E VERY month or so some prominent individual comes out with the announcement that he works eighteen hours a day and sleeps five. Or perhaps he eats only once a day but has a violent session with a pair of dumb bells every morning. To these habits of work, eating, sleeping or exercise, he attributes his success. And he usually manages to convey the idea that if others would follow his example in such matters they would be much better off.

The habits of prominent persons are always interesting. But their rules of living are not necessarily suitable for everybody.

Not everybody, for instance, can habitually work eighteen hours a day and retain his health. Nor can the average individual get along with four hours' sleep a night.

Most people usually like at least two meals a day and even five are not too many for some

One man's health is best maintained with moderate exercise. A more vigorous man requires more violent exercise to keep him fit.

In short, no one system of living fits everybody.

There are, of course, certain general rules of health which all persons should observe, whether they actually do so or not. It is axiomatic that fresh air is healthful and that irregular habits of eating usually occasion indigestion.

But the fact that one man thrives on big black cigars or on three boiled eggs a day does not mean that you will find them beneficial.

You may not like eggs, and cigars may be rank poison to you.

Considerable experimenting may be necessary before you discover what rules of living suit you best. And the system you evolve may be utterly different from that of the person who does the same kind of work as you do and leads the same kind of life. For your bodily needs may be quite different from his.

Don't try to regulate your health by another person's system of living. The chances are that it is not cut to your pattern.

Get a first hand system that is suited to your body and your mode of existence.

If you can get along with six hours sleep a night you will have that much more time to devote to other things But if you find that such regimen is detrimental to your health it would be foolish to continue with it.

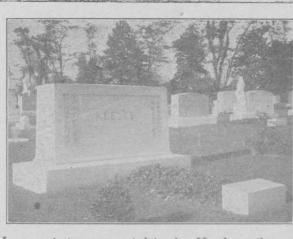

The same applies to exercise eating, smoking and other habits. The rules of health of one person are not necessarily beneficial for another

So the next time some genius comes out with his ideal plan of living don't jump to the conclusion that it is the plan for you.

Get a plan of your own, suited to your own needs. But don't take on one second hand.
