

SENATE VOTES FOR TWO COUNTY DRY BILLS.

Measures Affecting Carroll and Frederick Counties.

Annapolis, Feb. 14.—Indication that the majority of the members of the Senate are in favor of prohibition enforcement was given today when votes were taken on local option measures affecting Frederick and Carroll counties.

The Temperance Committee, reporting unfavorably on the bills which would strengthen the enforcement of the Volstead law in the counties, found that the bills were substituted each time for their report. On the first measure the four city Senators present voted against the substitution of the measures for the unfavorable report and with the aid of Senators David G. McIntosh, Joseph A. Coad and George T. Cromwell could muster only seven votes against seventeen.

The vote on the second bill was 18 to 7 for the substitution of the bill for the unfavorable report. Senators Harry O. Levin, Fourth district, and Edward J. Colgan, Jr., Third district, of the Baltimore delegation, were absent. The four city Senators present voiced their opposition with emphatic "no."—Balt. Sun.

As a rule, we think, when county delegations favor local bills the House passes them; and as the Carroll county delegation is solidly "dry" the bill for this county at least, seems likely to pass and become a law. The House Temperance Committee, of course, is "wet," but courtesy to the county delegation should carry the bill through.

Would Permit Justices to Perform Marriage Ceremony.

The House of Delegates adopted a favorable report, on Wednesday, on the amended bill providing for civil marriage ceremonies.

As the bill stands now, justices of the peace, clergymen and officials of a religious order or body, authorized by the rules and customs of the order to join persons in marriage, would be allowed to conduct ceremonies.

The bill, as introduced by Delegate Seymour Phillips, of the Fourth Legislative district, Baltimore city, included, in addition to the justices of the peace, judges of the State and the mayors of incorporated towns.

There was no debate on the bill as the amendments, which were proposed by the House Judiciary Committee, were passed.

40th. Wedding Anniversary.

(For the Record).

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin T. Fringer, celebrated the 40th. anniversary of their marriage, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 12, at their residence in Taneytown. The rooms were tastefully decorated with carnations, roses and potted plants, the color scheme being red and green, as it was their ruby wedding. At 6 o'clock the guests were invited to the dining room where the table was lighted by candles presented a most appetizing menu.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Calvin T. Fringer, Mary Fringer, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hesson, of town; Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Fair, of Carlisle Pa.; Mrs. Oliver Wentz, Lineboro, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Hesson, Mrs. Doty Robb, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Witherow, Mrs. Martha Fringer and Mrs. Lavina Fringer, of town; Walter Fringer, of New York City, extended congratulations by telephone. The guests departed at a late hour after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Fringer many more years of wedded bliss.

An Incorrect Story.

The article in the Westminster correspondence of the Hanover Sun, on Wednesday, describing an accident and upset to a bakery truck, near New Windsor, belonging to Baumgardner & Baumgardner, Taneytown, and said to have been driven by a Mr. Baumgardner, was incorrect in every particular, so far as the Baumgardner firm is concerned as they had no truck on that road, and no accident of any kind anywhere. Moreover, there is no Mr. Baumgardner living at the Centrol Hotel, Taneytown. A story something like this, however, occurred with a truck belonging to Mr. Shorb, from The Model Steam Bakery, Taneytown.

COURT AGAINST GAMBLING

Slot Machines a Menace to Young People of State.

We can think of no more worthwhile action with no more beneficial results than the recent decision handed down by the Maryland Court of Appeals, classifying slot machines as gambling devices and therefore are held illegal. We dare predict that this ruling which was written by Judge W. Mitchell Diggs and which reverses the opinion of Judge Eugene O'Dunne, of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore, will meet with universal approval in every section of the state, having to do, as it does, with the habits and morals of the youth of the state.

Previous efforts had been made to clean these slot machines out of the stores, lunchrooms, etc., in many parts of the county and in which it was shown that school children were becoming entirely too familiar, but, according to the report of a recent grand jury, it has been practically impossible to get sufficient evidence to warrant getting out indictments and subsequent arrests. The Court of Appeals has clarified the matter to the satisfaction of every right-thinking person in the country and the slot machines will disappear, as the way is now clear for their seizure and the prosecution of their owners.

The element of chance with which they were surrounded made them fascinating even to school children and according to reports many of them were known to be spending their change in this manner instead of for their mid-day lunches. We reiterate that the action of the Court of Appeals was meritorious and its effect for good in the local communities will be far-reaching.—Ellicott City Times.

With the Courts closing down on chancing schemes, and as slot machines and other customs and devices are being held that encourage the gambling habit among children, certainly all moral agencies—especially those having the care of children—should at least follow the lead of the courts.

We say that "customs make laws" but we believe that first of all public sentiment makes customs, and it is public sentiment that compels the courts to act. So let us not reverse the proper order of things, and certainly let us not hinder the good work the courts are now trying to do in this particular direction.

Fight Over Census Officials.

As the time for taking the 1930 census approaches, a patronage fight has already opened for the 100,000 or more jobs that will be created. The Democrats will make an effort to have all these jobs placed under the Civil Service, which might help many of the officials (mostly Democrats) of 1920 to win the appointments, while the Republicans are just as much concerned to prevent such appointments. Senator Bruce, of Maryland is leading the former effort, while Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, is the leader for the Republican side, the probability being that the latter will win eventually. These two Senators pretty fully discussed their respective positions in the Senate on Thursday.

Narrow Escape from Death.

Francis Brown, a surveyor for the Potomac Edison Company, narrowly escaped death when his automobile was struck by a freight train at the Ridgeville crossing and demolished, Friday night last. Mr. Brown, the only occupant, was on his way to Baltimore and did not observe the approaching train until about ten feet from the tracks. He made an effort to turn the car down an embankment beside the track but was too late. The train stopped and members of the crew found Mr. Brown pinned beneath the wrecked car. Physicians were summoned from Mt. Airy, but with the exception of slight lacerations about the face, and body bruises, he escaped uninjured.—Sykesville Herald.

"Inside" Information for Women.

As eggs become plentiful in the spring, a few may be put down in waterglass for use when the season of scarcity arrives. Only perfect eggs, not over one day old, should be selected for preserving.

If you like Boston brown bread, you will find a recipe for making it in Farmers' Bulletin 1236-F. Corn Meal and its uses as food, as well as many other good breads and dishes made with corn meal.

Salsify, or oyster plant, is a good winter vegetable. It is usually scraped, cut up, and boiled until tender, then served in a cream sauce. While preparing the salsify keep it in cold water or it will turn dark. It will be more tender if salt is not added until the end of the cooking.

"Sonny-Jane" at High School.

The play "Sonny-Jane" will be rendered by the Senior Class of Taneytown High School this Friday, Saturday, and next Tuesday evenings, in the school auditorium. The play is one of unusual merit, and will be rendered up to the high standard for which the school is noted. The business managers are Misses Mary Hahn Helen Bittle and Edith Graham, and the director is Miss Helen Baker. The characters are taken by Misses Mildred Annan, Elizabeth Lambert, Hilda Zepp, Janet Burke, Margaret Hitchcock, Madge Frock, Frances Utz, Messrs Frank Stambaugh, Murray Baumgardner, Elwood Crabbs, Daniel Teeter, Luther Ritter and Charles Ritter.

A NEW PENITENTIARY PLAN OFFERED.

Speaker Lee favors several Prisons Many Arguments Against.

Discussion is warming up over the proposed new state penitentiary, one being to erect four or five prisons in different parts of the state, sponsored chiefly by E. Brook Lee, Speaker of the House, each prison to be large enough for about 300 prisoners. Mr. Lee stated that from these points the prisoners could be taken to adjacent counties for road work. He explained that the prisoners could be used for road work eight or nine months a year and that during the winter months they could be occupied inside the prisons in producing materials, such as printed matter for the use of the State.

A feature of his plan, Mr. Lee believes, would be its possibilities for segregating confirmed criminals from youthful transgressors. He asserted that he had considered the defects in the proposal, one of which was the increase in expense. The other, he said, was that there would be little employment except road work.

Stuart S. Janney, Director of Welfare, argues against such a plan, calling attention to the greatly increased overhead expense. Each prison would require a separate warden and a separate staff to take care of it. Moreover, the State does not construct its roads, neither does it keep them in repair. Such work is done for the State by contractors who might not care to employ prison labor. The contractors' terms, involving the use of prison labor, may not be agreeable to the State and the State's terms may not suit them.

Evidently, the proposed change contains many points for consideration, which also involves the question of contract work which Mr. Lee thinks will soon be prohibited by the government, so far as inter-state sale is concerned; too many points to justify hasty action to be taken by the present legislation.

Warden Brady of the penitentiary, is unfavorable to the new plan as presenting too many difficulties. He thinks the separate prison plan should, if tried, be limited to 150 occupants.

With the average prison population about 1,150 persons this would mean that ten prison units would have to be erected. The minimum number of guards to work each unit properly would be sixteen, Mr. Brady said. Four would be used on the road work while four men would be required on each of the eight-hour shifts within the walls.

In addition to this, the warden said, each unit would require six additional officers, including a baker, and it would be necessary also to have a physician for each unit.

At present seventy-one guards are employed in the Penitentiary, with six officers and a physician. Under the unit system a minimum of 160 guards, 60 officers and 10 physicians would be required, according to Mr. Brady's figures.

Besides this additional expense, Mr. Brady pointed out that the cost of operating and maintaining ten units would be more than one large institution.

For a Summer White House.

Steps were taken on Wednesday to provide future Presidents with a country White House in the foothills of Virginia and future Vice Presidents with an official residence in the District of Columbia.

Long-standing agitation for a rural retreat for the President near the national capital bore definite fruit when President Coolidge sent a message to Congress asking an appropriation of $48,000 to make property, already owned by the Government at Mount Weather, Va., available for the purpose.

The property served as a weather station, but was found unsuited, and Congress, two years ago, authorized its sale. It comprises a large, comfortable residence with other buildings and eighty-four acres of rolling, scenic land, all situated high above the summer heat levels in the heart of the fashionable country estate belt in Loudon County, Virginia.

Incidentally, pheasants and other game abound in the region, and nearby are streams which yield good catches to the skilled fisherman.

Mount Weather is sixty-five miles from Washington by the route now used, but the Virginia State Road Commission contemplates a cut which would shorten this distance to approximately forty miles.

A bill providing for the acquisition of a residence in Washington for the Vice-President was introduced by Representative Gibson, of Vermont.

Disreputable Jails of State.

The Director of Welfare, of Maryland, has examined the jails of Maryland and reports that six—those in Cecil, Howard, Frederick, Kent, Washington and Wicomico counties are generally unfit and need general overhauling and rebuilding. Some of the others were fair, and in most of them improvements were needed.

Carroll County most of the beds and bedding were reported unfit for use. The report enters into details, even to rat holes, roach breeding places, empty bottles, that indicated that "moonshine" was being brought to prisoners, lack of privacy for bathing, and many like objectionable features.

When the inspection was made there were 339 prisoners in the jails, 46 held on Federal charges.

NEW C. E. FEATURE

A Series of Articles on Topic to Appear Weekly.

The Executive Committee of the Carroll County C. E. Union, at its last meeting, decided that each member of the committee should write an article on the Christian Endeavor topic (presumably each week) with the request that said articles be published in the county papers, the first of which, by Rev. J. S. Hollenbach, of Manchester, appears on another page of this issue.

The Record will be glad to publish these articles (not on first page) providing they are supplied regularly, and that their length is not over about one-half of a column, as a means of increasing interest in this non-denominational work, and perhaps supplying thoughts to those who participate in the weekly meetings. The articles must be received on Wednesday, or Thursday morning early, at latest.

Such a feature, if well prepared and kept up, should be of considerable interest to Christian Endeavorers in general, and perhaps to the general public.

Marylanders Live Long.

That Marylanders have a good chance to round out and exceed the scriptural allotment of three score years and ten as indicated by the records of the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health, which show that over half of the deaths in the counties in 1928, occurred in the two most widely separated age groups—the oldest and the youngest citizens. Of the total of 9,777 deaths reported in the counties (Baltimore City deaths are not included in this total) 5,026 occurred in these two age groups. Of the 5,026, there were 3,789 among adults of 65 years and older, and 1,237 among babies under a year old. Half of the deaths of the youngest citizens, 619 occurred among babies less than a month old.

The 3,789 deaths among persons 65 years old or older, constituted the largest number in any age group. Over one-fifth, 2,182 occurred in the group from 45 to 64 years old; the next largest number 1,873 being recorded in the group from 15 to 44 years old. The smallest number of deaths in any age group was 308 among the girls and boys from 5 to 14 years old.

Analyzing the totals, Dr. John Collinson, Chief of the Bureau of Vital Statistics said that of the total, 9,777 deaths, 7,312 occurred in the white population and 2,356 in the colored. The death rate in each group that is the proportion of deaths to each thousand of the population—was 12 per thousand for white and colored together; 11 per thousand for the white population separately, and 20 for the colored population.

"Heart Disease," Dr. Collinson continued, "with 1,699 deaths, 1,026 of which occurred in the group of persons 65 years old and older—was the leading cause of death in both white and colored populations. There were 1,365 deaths in the white population at all ages from that cause, and 333 in the colored. Chronic Bright's disease, with 1,095 deaths, 857 white and 238 colored had second place; apoplexy with 821 deaths, 686 white and 238 colored was third; tuberculosis with 797 deaths, 495 white and 301 colored was fourth; the pneumonias, broncho and lobar—with a total of 719 deaths, 615 white and 204 colored, came next, and cancer with 701 deaths 613 white and 88 colored had sixth place.

"There were 289 deaths from diarrhea and enteritis among children under two years old; a total of 143 at all ages from diabetes; 153 from influenza; 52 from typhoid fever; 15 from infantile paralysis; and 168 lost their lives in automobile accidents. June with 684 deaths had the smallest number reported in any one month, and March with 969 deaths, the largest number."

Littlestown Porch Damaged.

LeRoy Wintrobe, local tax collector, who resides with his mother, in the property, corner of North Queen and Newark Streets, heard a bump followed by a quiver all over the house Wednesday morning. On going out front, he observed a "sorrowful-looking" truck driver backing away from the front veranda, which gave evidence of a late "collision." The posts were moved several inches and the concrete blocks of the foundation were chipped by the impact. The veranda was only recently repaired when the house was moved to the center of the lot in order to build Newark Street by the property.

The accident happened when the truck driven by E. D. Bushman, of Arendtsville, tried to avoid striking the automobile of Roy Ginter, of Gettysburg R. D. 9, which made a sudden turn into Newark Street. Mr. Bushman promptly made report of the accident to local authorities, and the damages will be amicably adjusted.—Independent.

Bills Introduced by Carroll County Members.

The following bills were introduced in the legislature, this week by county members.

By Senator Englar, bill authorizing Hampstead to issue bonds for street and road improvements.

In the House, by Mr. Routson, bill to empower the Governor to issue commissions to members of General Assembly. A bill requiring 50 per cent of assessed value of farm animals be paid before removal for slaughter.

ROADS CASE IS STILL GOING STRONG.

Developments of the week may lead to Important Results.

Maryland's shameful road scandal is still dragging its slow way through investigating committees, spreading out to more people, and opening up more ground for further unwelcome possibilities. No doubt there is getting to be a great deal of mere "talk" in the whole case, and there is the possibility of some of the statements being shy of the truth, but the case has reached the point that the general public is about resigned to hear and believe almost anything, and not be shocked.

The first new evidence of the week was the appearance of Joseph Allison Wilmer, Republican floor-leader of the House, before the Nelligan Committee, who made statements apparently intimating that Senator Mitchell, Democratic leader of the Senate used undue influence regarding the letting of road contracts and to the working of the contracts themselves; to all of which, when Mr. Mitchell had the chance, he pretty generally answered through the denial route.

Messrs Butler and Robbins, convicted former road employees now serving terms in the penitentiary, are examining the books they formerly kept, in order to search the records for irregularities and more definite evidence, and the results of their efforts will be placed before the committee.

Among the items developed this week were the expenditures for three celebrations in connection with three openings of new construction or, as follows: Crain Highway, $19,109.84; Severn river bridge $7,537.62; Havre de Grace bridge $1350. The expenditures covered decorations, floats, balloons, box lunches, flowers, silverware, printing, etc., and apparently a lot of vouchers are missing.

Rumors persist that men "higher up" are implicated in the job, but the auditors are of the opinion that this is incorrect, and that only a comparatively few who got the money. Questions of extravagance in the expenditure of the state's money, however, may take a wider range; and the investigation of the allotment of contracts is yet to be cleared up.

Butler testified on Thursday that the state gave away three Army tractors, and sold a fourth to a contractor for $500, and was then obliged to buy two others. This is the former purchasing agent of the Commission, now in the penitentiary, and who knows pretty much all about the way things were done, and has for several days had access to his former books with which to refresh his memory.

He further testified that the evidence he was examining would show that $1,000,000 has been illegally spent out of the construction funds, and approximately $10,000,000 out of the maintenance funds, in eight years, meaning that contracts were illegally let.

Butler entered into details of contracts pretty extensively, but the evidence he gave will require a great deal of sifting. The one fact that he is convicted in the case himself may lessen the weight of his evidence and no doubt denials of many of his charges will be made. He asked for additional time to search the records and will be heard again this Friday. He named a number of what he called "favored" contractors.

Francis Scott Key, Layman.

About one hundred members and a number of guests attended the regular monthly meeting and supper of the Monocacy Club of the Evangelical Reformed Church, Frederick, last Friday evening, as reported in the Frederick News.

Edward S. Delaplaine, of the Frederick Bar, was the speaker of the evening. He gave a very interesting and instructive character sketch of the life of Francis Scott Key, native of this county and author of the Star Spangled Banner. Speaking on "Francis Scott Key, the Layman," Mr. Delaplaine described Key's service as a layman in the Protestant Episcopal Church, and explained, however, that a pastor of the Evangelical Reformed Church of this city, Rev. F. L. Henop, had been mentioned as the minister who baptized Key.

The speaker also referred to the evangelistic services of William Otterbein and others, which led to the organization of the United Brethren church and the supposition that Key's character was moulded, to some extent, by these early services. Mr. Delaplaine stated that Key was a "low churchman" and explained his broadmindedness and lack of formality in matters concerning religion. In the course of his remarks he presented a number of intimate glimpses into the thoughts and public opinions of the author of the National Anthem, which were received with much interest by the members and their guests.

In cold weather hides and skins may be kept safely for some time without salting, but care should be taken to prevent them from freezing. In spring summer and fall, however, skins should be salted promptly.

PROCEEDINGS OF COURT

Cases Disposed of by Judge and Jury This Week.

Several appeal cases were heard before Associate Judge Forsythe, on Tuesday, carried over to the February term.

C. J. Nicodemus vs. Halbert Poole. The case rested on a dispute over the charge made by Nicodemus for some paper-hanging for Poole, in New Windsor, the claim having been in dispute for about two years. Two bills had been rendered; one for scraping the walls and the other for the paper-hanging. Poole paid the latter, but claimed that the former was part of the paper-hanging contract. The jury brought a verdict for Nicodemus, amount $45.00.

Roy Houck, Union Bridge, vs Guy Keefer, near Taneytown; tried before jury. The case involved a number of pieces of work Houck had done for Keefer in the past three years, and had not been paid for them in cash. There was the appearance of work having been done by Keefer for Houck; also, the one claim off-setting the other; and the jury found a verdict for Keefer.

Cleve Neudecker, Patapsco, charged with possession of intoxicating liquor for sale contrary to law, etc. At a hearing before Justice Benson, following his arrest, he was found guilty and sentenced to pay fine of $300, and costs, and 60 days in jail. Case appealed to Court. Judge Forsythe found him guilty, but did not pass judgment.

Another appeal case was that of Raymond Clutz, Westminster, charged with illegal possession of liquor for sale. Tried before jury. The evidence appeared to show that the liquor was for personal and household use. Verdict not guilty.

Thomas Rheubottom colored was found not guilty by the Court of larceny of a gold watch, clothing, etc., last November from Russell Leister and Gladys Reese at the Leister home, near Westminster, where he was employed. He was however given to Sheriff Fowle to return to the Cheltenham training school, from which institution he was on parole.

Our Substitute Editor.

Our good friend and substitute editor, "L. B. H." put "one over" on us, last week, when he had the opportunity, that was not part of the contract, and was due likely to his admitted quandary as to "What to Write About," used as a caption.

It is pleasing to have nice things said about us, and as a rule we accept them—true or false—without very strong protest; but in this particular case we doubt whether his conclusions, even if very slightly true, are well drawn.

After our near 35 years experience we are compelled to say that we doubt very much whether "finely written editorials" are worth the effort required to produce them, or whether they actually add any names to the subscription list; and we equally doubt whether "definite ideals," and preaching-up moral standards, more than breaks even as a newspaper asset.

At any rate, we can knowingly say that the excellence that our substitute editor attributes to The Record has not brought it either fame or prosperity, because the actual fact is that it is our job printing patronage that largely enables us to keep the wheels moving. So, the "paper with a mission" is more a pleasing fancy than a material part of the foundation of said paper's bank balance.

But, the world would be a dreary place without ideals and fancies, and we admit that while ours are often weakly constructed and defended we hold to them, just the same, whether commended and believed in, by the general reading public, or not. So, we are at least glad to know that "L. B. H." and (a few) of the readers of The Record may think our efforts worth while.

Picking a Cabinet.

It is likely that few of us can understand the task that a new president has on his hands when he picks men for his cabinet. Whether people are to be surprised on March 5 or not, we believe "Mr. Hoover is wise in saying little in advance.

With forty-eight states anxious to be honored, and with an army of aspirants anxious to be recognized, it must be a tremendous task to select the group which is to be the president's confidential advisors.

We venture the guess that when the names go to the senate it will be a group of men worthwhile. We have confidence the questions of fitness will determine the matter, and that ordinary political considerations will have little weight.

Whatever the choice may be this is a matter in which Mr. Hoover is entitled to follow his own judgments. He must be responsible for his administration and has a right to direct it.

He ought not to be criticized, either by disappointed aspirants or by their political backers, if he follows his own counsel in making the decisions.

"Poor House" May Cost Million.

There is a striking contrast between the character and cost of public buildings erected now and those of a half century or more ago. We will probably have to drop soon the long used term, "poor house," if plans now being completed in York County, Pennsylvania are carried out.

A recent news item from York says:

"The expenditure of nearly a million dollars for the construction of a new almshouse for York county is a possibility confronting the taxpayers of York county. At the semi-monthly meeting of the board of poor directors on Saturday, George F. Gemmill and Billmyer, York architects, submitted to the directors preliminary plans for the proposed new county home, to be erected on the Cocklin farm, near Stony Brook.

It was estimated that the cost of constructing the new home as portrayed in the preliminary plans would be approximately $913,000.

This amount does not allow, however, for the construction of a green house where vegetables and flowers could be grown. And the amount does not include the cost of the land.

We are not questioning the wisdom of the plans. It pays to do public building well, but the old term, "poor house," does not seem to be in keeping with the cost.

Probably we will get accustomed to using the correct name for these places, "county home." But if they are made too attractive maybe a lot of us will want to put in our applications for admission. L. B. H.

Would Weigh Brains of Legislators.

In a recent letter to Governor Ritchie, Dr. Arthur MacDonald, Washington anthropologist, suggested that members of the Legislature submit to examinations to determine, among other things, their "cranial capacity and brain weight."

Dr. MacDonald informed the Governor that all legislators should undergo "specialistic so that any latent weakness or defects, often unknown to the general practitioner, may be found and provided for in advance."

The scientist's purpose are said to be the development of a new direction in political science, "which might be called legislative anthropology" and the improvement of the efficiency of legislators. The examination would be done by local physicians and anthropologists.

The measurements suggested by Dr. MacDonald are: Stature, weight, sitting height, arm reach, chest girth, strength of hand-clasp, length, breadth and height of head, length and breadth of face and nose; cranial capacity and brain weight (estimated); age, previous occupations and predominant lineage.

With his letter Dr. MacDonald inclosed a list of Washington and Johns Hopkins University specialists who have consented to examine, gratis, every member of Congress wishing to undergo the measurements.

What a wonderful spirit of service some of our scientists show! How marvelously such tests might improve legislation! But somehow we would feel just a little more certain about the matter if provisions were made at the same time for weighing the brains of the scientists themselves.

Why Do We Disagree.

Before we take such a positive stand; before we decide that we are unalterably right in our views on a certain question, and that all who take the opposite stand are unalterably wrong, it may be worth while to ask ourselves, why we disagree with others? or, why they disagree with us? and why we can set up and defend the positive conclusion that we are right, and they are wrong?

This debatable matter of who is right? extends a good ways. For instance, there is our church connection. Most of us, perhaps, concede that there are many right creeds and beliefs; but, a few hold pretty fast to the belief that only one—their church—is right. Then we disagree politically, often very radically. Our moral standards are not at all alike. Our habits and practices differ greatly; and yet, we are all pretty much alike, so far as mental equipment is concerned; the most of us strive to be good citizens; we are charitable, neighborly, and humanly much alike, and yet, we sometimes act as though we are some sort of superior beings to whom has been given Divine wisdom and of course superior judgment.

And, there isn't much to be said about it. The people of all ages from the beginning of time, have been much the same way. We have had wars caused by differences of opinion. The Courts have been kept busy and the legal profession prosperous because of our disagreements—many of them honest, too. And friendships have been wrecked and the whole current of history and things changed by mere personal disagreements. And so it will ever be.

And how would we change the facts? Well, we might practice more charity, and less selfishness; more of a disposition toward peace, and less toward mere contentiousness; more consideration for the right and opinions of others, and less desire to act the dictator.

Why do we disagree? Partly because it is a habit; partly because there are questions in which the right is so clear that one must disagree to wrong; but, largely the question is unanswerable in any wholly satisfactory manner. We disagree because we want to; because we are forced to; because of our various conceptions right and wrong—just because we always have, and always will, disagree.

Suggests New Wedding Law.

A plan to bar unfrocked clergymen and "wildcat" religious representatives from performing marriage ceremonies, is suggested in last week's issue of the Baltimore Southern Methodist, organ of the Baltimore Annual Conference Methodist Episcopal Church.

The editorial suggests that all ministers, priests, and rabbis register with court clerks before permitting them to perform ceremonies.

The editorial, while offering no argument against the civil marriage bill, now pending in the General Assembly, predicts:

"That should it pass, there will be far more ill-considered and ill-assorted marriages performed by justices of the peace than ever can be laid at the door of the wildest marrying parsons."

While believing that marriage should be a religious ceremony, the editorial holds the tolerant view that no one should be forced to subscribe to what they consider an empty and meaningless form when marrying. The article continued:

"We believe this is only fair and just to those persons who do not believe in organized religion."

The editorial suggests the civil contract as now used in Virginia and the District of Columbia.

The Losses of Illness.

The average American is ill about once a year, according to an investigation recently conducted by the U. S. Public Health Service. In a typical city inquiries were made at every home twice a month over a period of 28 months. It was found there had been an average of 1,050 cases of illness to every 1,000 inhabitants. These cases of illness are a heavy load for the people to carry. They cause expense for doctors, nurses, medicine, etc., they do much to enfeeble people's constitution. They cause loss of work they interrupt the regular operation of their places of employment. In the effort to cut out waste which is one of the keynotes of American business, more attention needs to be given to the losses due to this cause.

Many cases of dire poverty are due to the poor health of parents or children, and costly illnesses, which often result in loss of employment.

Sickness does not seem as common as it used to be. Those of us who were brought up in country towns where people knew what their neighbors were doing, will recall how all the time many of those people seemed to be sick. Much of the conversation consisted of reports from the bed-sides of the people thus afflicted. With the improvement of medical and sanitary science, many of these illnesses are averted or more readily cured.

But people have to co-operate themselves by obeying the laws of health. Many who are constantly dosing themselves with medicines of doubtful value need more fresh air, more sunlight, more outdoor exercise, more careful habits of eating, better cooked food, etc.

Many ignorant people have very little idea how to keep well. It would seem as if clubs and associations of all kinds would do a good job for their members, if they would have once or twice a year a lecture on the plain ordinary rules of health.—Frederick News.

Commuter Would Like Help in His Dilemma

His breakfast hadn't agreed with him, he had lost at bridge the night before and he had to run for the 8:05. As he hadn't finished his usual cigarette on the way to the station, he stood on the platform to finish it. The train started and just as it was gaining speed, a girl tried to hop to the last step. She missed the step and was hanging on, when the commuter grabbed her and pulled her up to the step.

He expected, after the girl composed herself, a smile of gratitude or at least a few words of thanks. He did not expect the torrent of abuse which she hurled at his head.

"If it hadn't been for you," she raved, "I would have pulled myself up and wouldn't have lost my new opera pump."

The commuter, stunned, found his way to a seat and hasn't made up his mind yet whether to help women in distress or let them—help themselves.—New York Sun.

Difficulties of Life Have Their Purposes

Very rare are those who have always had their every wish fulfilled or forestalled; but even these should not be envied.

Man is not made to live in perpetual sunshine, and would very soon tire of having all he desires, without having to wait and work for the materialization of his longings. The greater the ease of obtaining what he wants—the sooner it would pall upon him.

Life's difficulties and prolonged trials, says the London Chronicle, are a test of character. If we had no difficulties to overcome and our patience were not tried, we might continue to exist—but our claim to be called "men" and "women" would be slender.

Though we often groan under its weight, we should "respect the burden," and thus retain our cheerfulness and serenity.

Centuries Unable to

Dim Laurel Wreath

Laurel wreaths should be immortal, and it is appropriate that a laurel wreath recovered from an Etruscan tomb over 2,000 years old should still be green.

Who its hero was we cannot tell. His skeleton was wrapped in veils of white and blue. There were leather objects whose purpose is unknown, ornamented with geometrical designs, purses containing glass beads, belts with copper clasps and buckles, and the laurel wreath, but no name.

The tomb is one of a great number at Vulci, in Tuscany, Italy, whose existence was first discovered a hundred years ago. The wife of Napoleon's brother, Lucien, was watching a yoke of oxen plowing in a field when they suddenly disappeared, and it was found they had broken through into an Etruscan tomb. Over 6,000 tombs were opened in the next quarter of a century, their contents being distributed over Europe, after which the tombs were filled up.

Englishman at Rest in Odd Burial Place

Among the many curiosities to be found in Wimborne minster, in Dorset (England), is the quaint tomb of Anthony Etrick, the first recorder of Poole. He was for some reason of fended by the Wimborne people, and so made a vow that he would not be buried in their church or out, under the ground or over. To carry this out he cut a niche in the wall and placed there his coffin with the date 1693 inscribed thereon, believing that he should die in that year. He did not die, however, until 1703, when he was buried in the chosen spot in such a way that his body was neither above the ground or below, in the church or out. The date 1703 was then written over the other in gold. He left $5 a year for the tomb's upkeep, which is still paid.

Canning Machinery

The most useful canning inventions in recent years have been of machines for doing the work of the dressing gangs. The one commonly known as the "Iron Chink," now in general use in canneries where such machines are employed, was first used in 1903 at Fairhaven (now Bellingham), Wash. It removes the head, tail and fins and opens and thoroughly cleans the fish, ready to cut into pieces for the cans. By the use of these machines the dressing gang is almost entirely done away with, dispensing with 15 to 20 men. This same machine is now so arranged that the fish, after dressing, are also "slimed"—that is, the thick mucus covering the skin removed and the inside of the fish cleaned.

Timber From the Tropics?

It is recognized, says the American Tree association, that the forest resources of tropical America may be a very important factor in our own domestic timber problem. Some believe that those forests will be called upon to bridge the hiatus that is bound to exist between the exhaustion of our wild timber crop, and the harvest time of our man-managed forests. Others believe that they will form a permanent source of timber to replace some of our own special purpose hardwoods.

All are agreed that, in any case, we cannot fully and completely outline our own forestry problem without taking into consideration all the factors that may influence the outcome.

Special Oven for Pie

A huge brick oven was built in a disused corn mill near Huddersfield, England, so that the village of Denby Dale might surpass all its previous efforts in making giant pies. The pie dish, made locally of earthenware, was 15 feet long, 4 feet wide and 18 inches deep. The pie contained beef, mutton, kidney, potatoes and plenty of gravy. About 10,000 people partook of the pie. On the occasion of the last previous Denby Dale pie, in 1890, more than 60,000 people visited the village, which has a population of 1,500. A pie made in 1887 went bad, and was dragged by horses to a wood and buried in quicklime.

Moon's Movements

The Naval observatory says that the moon does not revolve in the plane of the earth's equator, but in a plane inclined to the plane of the equator at an angle that varies approximately from 18 to 29 degrees. In any month the moon may be seen at least 18 degrees south of the celestial equator, and after two weeks at least 18 degrees north of the celestial equator. In some years, as 1913 for instance, the moon may be seen nearly 29 degrees south of the celestial equator. The moon's rapid northerly progress occurs about one week later than its farthest south, and about one week earlier than its farthest north.

Shark Good Eating

Shark meat has grown in favor among the native population of Bermuda until it is now their favorite delicacy.

More than 200 kinds of fish can be caught in the warm waters around Bermuda and all are edible. Fishermen find, however, that young sharks are most in demand. These average about four feet in length and are caught alive just beyond the six-mile coral reef that surrounds the islands.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE LOVE OURSELVES

NARCISSUS, according to the Greek myth, was the son of Cepheus, a river god, and Liriope, a nymph. Echo, a nymph, fell in love with him and pined away because of his neglect; only her voice remained. In punishment Nemesis made Narcissus fall in love with his own reflection in a lake. Narcissus in turn pined away and was changed into the flower that bears his name.

Freudians make use of this myth as an illustration of a certain type of nervous disorder in which the patient fixes his love on himself even as Narcissus fell in love with his reflection in the water. The malady goes by the name of Narcissism.

In modified form Narcissism is applicable to normal people as well. Like all other pathological cases it represents a distorted picture of the normal.

We are all born egoistic and self-centered. Unless the tendency is effectively checked by social contacts self-importance may lead to self-love. There are various shades and degrees of self-love from plain unadorned conceit and egotism to megalomania.

The megalomaniac is insane on the subject of his own greatness. It is an obsession. In every insane asylum there are a number of such who regard themselves as superior mortals. They attribute their confinement to the lack of appreciation on the part of the public and find consolation in the idea that as soon as they die the world will realize the great error and make up for it by erecting monuments to their memory.

We are all in love with ourselves at the outset as infants and young children but manage to get over it after a while, after we have rubbed elbows with others and have discovered our fallings. There are those, however, who remain children in this and perhaps in other respects. They never get over their delusion of greatness. Others come back to it with a vengeance as the result of some real or fancied bit of success that quite sets them up. Fundamentally the drive of self-love is the self-regarding impulse of self-assertion and the desire to show off, to do something big and impressive.

SOME WOMAN

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHO brings the ship home from sea?

Some woman.
What makes some place the place to be?

Some woman.
With all the earth through which to roam,
Japan's pagoda, Peter's dome,
What is it brings the whole world home?

Some woman.

We walk the way, and then we meet
Some woman.
And after that one place is sweet,
One woman.

Whatever wealth we sought alone,
Whatever wealth we may have known,
Here's all the wealth we long to own:
Some woman.

For this is all there is to life,
Some woman,
Some gentle sweetheart, waiting wife,
Some woman.
And even when our hearts forget
The hands we held, the lips we met,
Who prays to God to save us yet?
Some woman.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The flower of youth needs the dough of old age.

It takes a lot of Christianity to drive that chilly feeling out of the average church.

Along life's highway are many pilgrims, but some of them are not making any progress.

Play safe. Never tell a man just what you think of him unless you are bigger than he is.

The man who really deserves the good opinion he has of himself says the least about it.

He who hides his light under a bushel is always surprised to find that the sun is still shining.

You can't always tell from the size of the family Bible how much religion there is in the family.

Blotbs—"I don't care what happens to me. Last night I kissed a girl with eczema." Slobbs—"How rash!"

"I've been married three weeks and was never so happy in my life," cried the groom. "Beginner's luck," growled the old-timer.

First Crook—"I hear all the cops are going to be vaccinated." Second Crook—"Aw, wot's de use? Dem guys never ketch nothin'."

The Cynical Bachelor observes that a woman is always terribly disappointed if her husband doesn't make a fool of himself after she lets him have his own way.

AROUND THE CITY

You can bawl a man out but you can't always keep him there.

Of course there are sermons in stones, but lots of churches are built of wood.

The Bible tells us to turn the other cheek, but it is just as well to not be too cheeky.

Success comes to the people who make the greatest profit from the fewest mistakes.

Virtue is its own reward. Vice is supposed to get what's coming to it in the hereafter.

We all yearn for the unattainable, but some of us have greater yearning capacity than others.

The dyspeptic philosopher defines remorse as the uncomfortable sensation of being found out.

You never can tell. Even the man who is famous as a story teller can't always put one over on his wife.

Hell is paved with good intentions. But as for that, even this world we are living in is full of people who mean well.

HAPPY THOUGHTS

People who are always full of themselves ought to diet.

Punctuality is the art of guessing how late a girl will be.

A swelled head usually makes a man too big for his shoes.

It takes two to make a bargain, but only one gets the bargain.

Theory may raise a man's hopes, but practice raises his wages.

If there's one thing a woman hates more than flattery it's lack of it.

Many a would-be bachelor gets married through a miss understanding!

Clothes may make the man, but woman gets more out of her dresses.

Many a man sends his wife away for a long rest because he needs it!

The reason why some men never know when they are well off is because they never are.

Money may not make a happy marriage, but it goes a long way to make up for an unhappy one.

CUFF AND PAD

Why resist temptation; there will always be more.

Do not play golf tomorrow that you can play today.

Unhappiness is in not knowing what we want and killing ourselves to get it.

It takes a lot of things to prove you are smart, but only one thing to prove you are ignorant.

Poverty must have many satisfactions, otherwise there would not be so many poor people.

Don't ever look at your program at vaudeville. Half the pleasure of vaudeville is in not knowing how bad the next act is going to be.

Economy? When one has worked so hard to get money, why should one impose on oneself the further hardship of trying to save it?—Los Angeles Times.

Frick First Motorist

Taken in Speed Trap

The first automobile speeder and the first speed trap in the New England district were described in the Boston Post. Condensed, it happened in 1897, in this wise:

The speeder, in his little high-wheeled contraption, was roaring down Arlington street, going every bit as fast as some modern concrete mixers and making an equal amount of noise. The legal limit was ten miles an hour and the local police chief told the court his prisoner had been making eighteen.

"Were you?" inquired the judge. "Why, your honor, my motor car won't even make the ten-mile limit!" protested the driver. The strange part of it is that the judge believed the driver and discharged him.

To maintain his reputation for veracity, the police chief secretly measured off a quarter mile, got two good stop watches and, with the aid of a sergeant, set out to catch conscienceless automobilists. The first victim was Henry Frick, the big steel manufacturer. This time there was indisputable evidence of speeding. Twenty-five miles an hour cost Mr. Frick just $50.

Fad Thought to Be

Relic of the Vikings

What is believed to be a padlock used by the ancient Vikings was recently found during excavations in what used to be the city ditch at St. Bartholomew's hospital, London, England.

The lock, 5½ inches long, is of the type known as the "barrel" lock. It was in common use among the Romans, though the principle must have come from Egypt and the East. This example is thought to be early Norman or of the Danish period.

The movable end of the barrel has several attachments rather like the ribs of a partly open umbrella inside. It can be pulled off only when a key pushed in compresses the ribs.

That Stopped Him

An official with a very annoying manner was making an inspection of a newly opened aerodrome.

On this particular afternoon parachute practice was being undertaken by a number of pilots, and the official asked question after question of one man about his experiences and sensations while falling through the air. "But supposing your parachute fails to open while you are coming down?" he asked finally. "What do you do then?"

The pilot had had more than enough by this time.

"Take it back and change it," he replied very tersely.

Everything for the Right

Contempt of all outward things which come in competition with duty fulfills the ideal of human greatness. This conviction, that readiness to sacrifice life's highest material good and life itself, is essential to the elevation of human nature, is no illusion of ardent youth, nor outburst of blind enthusiasm. It does not yield to growing wisdom. It is confirmed by all experience. It is sanctioned by conscience—that universal and eternal lawgiver whose chief dictate is that everything must be yielded up for the right.—Channing.

Aided the Cause

There was a burst of applause as the pianist finished his last solo. He bowed and, after thanking his audience, was about to leave when a man approached and presented a check. This the pianist refused, saying he would prefer it to be used for some charitable purpose.

"In that case," said the donor, "I suppose you wouldn't mind if we added it to our special fund?"

"Not at all," said the pianist. "What is the special fund for?"

"To enable us to have better entertainments next year."

Unfortunate Remark

Words whispered at a funeral led to the arrest of a woman at Seine, France, for the murder of a man. "In a few minutes all will be over, and our minds will be at rest," the woman was overheard to say to a friend as the coffin was lowered into the grave. Her words were carried to the police, and the woman finally confessed that during a drunken quarrel she killed the man by striking him in self defense, a blow behind the ear with a blunt instrument.

Persian Fruits

Persia is credited with having given many fruits to the world at large, including the peach and orange, but the real origin of these may have been eastern Asia or India. The greatest fruit crop of Persia is the grape, which grows in abundance. They are gathered during the latter part of August and just at that time there is a periodical rain which very conveniently washes the fruit or otherwise it would go unwashed.

Information Exchanged

At a military dance one officer said to another as they adjourned for refreshments:

"I don't know how it is, but my wife's lipstick always tastes different from any other woman's," and he carefully wiped his lips.

"Yes, doesn't it," remarked the other, absent-mindedly.—London.

The GREATER HUDSON

and Motordom calls for LARGEST HUDSON output of all time

Already in response to the public's demand, production of the Greater Hudson has been increased, and then increased again—by far the largest schedule Hudson ever found necessary.

In their own words, by their marked and recorded ballots, motorists by tens of thousands are telling us the Greater Hudson is truly the greatest of all time.

Voting in every Hudson salesroom in the country, these enthusiastic multitudes have piled up the most convincing endorsement in Hudson history. Perhaps even more important, they have bought these beautiful new Hudsons in such numbers that we must make thousands more of them to insure prompt delivery.

Every experience and suggestion of the world's largest 6-cylinder ownership is incorporated in the 64 improvements of the Greater Hudson.

As co-authors of these creations the 1,000,000 Super-Six owners are naturally first to want to see, inspect and drive them. It is particularly interesting to observe their special satisfaction in the numerous body improvements. In comment, these important developments in body design and appointment, fully equal the more dramatic qualities of the more than 80-mile-an-hour performance.

They definitely set Hudson apart from like-priced cars, just as Hudson performance stands alone among all cars.

Come, see and drive the Greater Hudson. We believe one ride will make it the car of your choice.

Toad's Marvelous Tongue

The Spanish toad that lives in the zoo has a tongue that moves faster than that of the busiest gossip. It moves so fast that observers could not see it pick up a worm placed before it recently. The worm simply disappeared, as if into the air. Furthermore, an ordinary slow motion camera failed to take a picture of that moving tongue. Another film was taken, this time at three times the speed, and in this the tongue was shown moving at a rate quicker than a sixtieth of a second, which means that if the Spanish toad could eat continuously he would devour nearly 4,000 meals a minute!

Land of Many Languages

The principal languages of Switzerland are German, spoken by 71 per cent of the people; French, by 21 per cent, and Italian, by 6 per cent. Other languages are Romansh and Latin. By the federal constitution of 1848 and 1871 German, French and Italian are recognized as national languages, so that debates in the federal parliament may be carried on in any of the three, while federal laws and decrees appear also in the three languages. The old dialects of Romansh and Latin do not have any political recognition by the confederation.

Small Boy Had Found Perfectly Safe Place

It was the evening rush hour. An intensive throng, regardless of everything but their desire to get home as soon and as best they could, stormed the various entrances to the subway elevated trains as they pulled into the central city stations.

The stroller was standing in the vestibule of the last car of the train. All seats, aisles and corners were crammed with humanity, a seething mass. At Eighth street the door opened to permit a few more to crowd in. A transit employee helped by shoveling them along.

"Out that pushing! There's a little boy here. Ain't you got any better sense?" This from an irate father, who was trying to shield his boy from the struggling mass.

ENERGY

The human body is like the storage battery in our radio set.

When our radio set starts groaning and complaining, we promptly correct the difficulty by recharging our storage batteries.

Why not apply the same remedy when we ourselves start "groaning and complaining" that we are "all in?"

SOMEBODY'S DARLING

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

LITTLE THINGS

HOW prone we are to estimate everything by its size.

The elephant gets his prominence in the circus menagerie almost entirely because he is the biggest thing there.

He really is not half so important nor nearly so interesting as a subject of study as the parrot in the cage of mixed birds which attracts only passing attention.

Nobody knows how it is or why it is that the parrot of all the animal creation is the only one that has either inclination or ability to speak human words and utter human sounds.

Everyone in the wide world, except those who think Doctor Cook found it, knows that Peary discovered the North pole.

Yet there is probably not one in a thousand who knows who discovered the fact that the mosquito was wholly to blame for the spread of the scourge of yellow fever.

The visiting of the North pole by the great explorer was a tremendous physical accomplishment, but the finding of that theoretical extremity of the earth's axis has not and never will serve to save a single life, fill a single hour with happiness or be commercially worth a penny.

While the discovery made by those miracle-working scientists and physicians who went into the swamps of Central America in search of the origin of the yellow fever germ have saved thousands on thousands of lives, and that saving will go on as long as time shall last.

If a hunting party made up of well-known men, whether they were scientists or just rich men bent on sport, were to start for South America to find and kill some animal about which the world knows little or nothing, there would be plenty of publicity, the "movie" men would grind their cameras and the world would be sure to know all about it.

Some time ago a group of men left London to go to the West Indies to gather a collection of a certain variety of fresh water snails.

These snails develop a germ which, transmitted to humans by means of drinking water, causes serious and frequently fatal illness to those infected.

It is a ten-to-one shot that you have not read a word about these voyagers or their mission, that there will not be a "movie" picture of them shown and that they will go and come back from their humane mission without having had as much notice as a second-class prize fight would get.

We pay altogether too little attention to little things.

After all the biggest thing in the world is only an aggregation, a bringing together of little things.

The highest mountain is made, so the scientists tell us, of electrons, millions of which could dance on the point of a needle.

A drop of water from the ocean has every scientific quality that the whole ocean has.

We let the idea of bigness run away with us. We let size eclipse other more important and necessary qualities.

Don't forget the little things. Watch out for them. Remember the little kindnesses, the little courtesies, the little words of cheer that go so far and cost so little.

Remember the story of the ant who saved a man's life because the man had once saved it from destruction. You never can tell when a little thing may mean or do a great deal.

What Does Your Child Want to Know?

WHAT MAKES US HUNGRY?

Our blood needs food to make it rich. And passing through the brain it tells our minds it's time to eat. Then comes the hunger pain.

HINTS FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

WASTEFULNESS is not only a wrong to the provider, but a mark of inefficiency.

It takes thought and some effort to plan wisely so that there will be no waste; but that is the housewife's business as it is the business of the man of the house to be the provider.

The following are only suggestions which every housewife will be able to fit to her own needs:

Never throw away a spoonful of peas or beans because there is not enough to serve; add them to a salad or a hot meat dish. Or serve as an individual dish to one of the family. Make it the custom to have a tray of individual dishes and let the family choose which one they prefer. Keep the tray covered and make it a surprise; food will disappear like magic.

The yellow strips of fat on steak in some families are cut off before cooking; others enjoy that tender portion of the steak. If cut off, try out and use as fat for various dishes in seasoning. The fat from roasts, bacon and all such meats should be saved. By pouring boiling water on bacon fat, let it chill, the fat will be washed of the smoke flavor, it that is objectionable.

The fat from fowl tried out makes excellent shortening for cookies and spice cakes, ginger bread, and suet fat makes fine shortening for pastry and biscuits as well as gems.

If fat becomes too old, save until you have enough to make a little home-made soap; it is real fun to know that you are capable of such old-fashioned duties.

To three pounds of fat take one can of potash, melt the fat, add a tablespoonful each of ammonia and borax and the potash, stir well and pour into a mold. When cold cut into cakes and you will have soap enough to last for months for dish washing and you will know just what it was made of.

When sandwiches have been left over and have become slightly dry place them in a toaster and toast lightly on both sides. Serve at once.

Ancient Writers Had Idea of Punctuation

Our present system of punctuation, which divides written language into sections by means of various signs and points, may be said to have grown out of a system developed by Aldus Manutius, an Italian scholar and printer, who printed Greek classics on his press at Venice in the latter part of the Fifteenth century and the beginning of the Sixteenth. Manutius was born in 1450 and died in 1515.

It should not be supposed, however, that Manutius was the sole inventor of punctuation, although the main features of the modern system are due chiefly to his ingenuity and that of the Greek scholars employed by him. Among the later Greeks various dots had been used for oratorical purposes. Aristophanes, a Greek grammarian of Alexandria who died about 180 or 185 B. C., is said to have devised a system of punctuation by means of dots.

Prose punctuation of a crude type was probably used even before the time of Aristophanes. In the early part of the Ninth century these earlier systems were so completely forgotten that Charlemagne requested scholars to revive them. St. Jerome, who died 420 A. D., knew nothing whatever about punctuation.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Effect of Light on Flowers and Plants

Spring violets have been made to bloom in the summer simply by cutting down their ration of daylight to the length of a spring day. The extra heat of summer had no effect on the growth of the plant.

In this controlling of plant growth, artificial light has the same effect as sunlight or the light of a greenhouse, and twelve hours of light (whether natural or artificial) is "summertime" for the plants, and six hours' light "winter."

An experiment conducted with irises is given as an example of the effect of light rationing on plants. Two lots of irises were sown in late October; the first were given eighteen hours of light per day, while the others (kept in the same temperature) received only the light provided by nature. The first lot reached normal size very quickly, and actually bloomed on Christmas day, but the others were dormant as late as the following February.

Queen's Watch

One of the oddest timepieces in the world belonged to Mary Queen of Scots, who felt a superstitious aversion to it and gave it to Mary Seaton, one of her maids of honor, who gave it in turn to Sir Thomas Dick Lauder. It was in the shape of a skull; the forehead was engraved with a scythe and an hour-glass between a palace and a cottage, signifying that time and death made no distinctions. At the back of the skull a figure of Time was pictured spreading destruction over the world, and on the top appeared Eve and the serpent in the Garden of Eden, and the Crucifixion.

Just Her Luck

A local business woman had bought a number of chances on an automobile, and on the night it was to be raffled off, went to bed in the firm belief that she was to be the winner. Shortly after midnight the phone rang, and she jumped up to answer it, preparing her "speech of acceptance" as she ran.

In answer to her "hello," the voice said that her niece had twin daughters at the hospital.

"Just my luck," she said. "If it was raining soup, I'd be out with a sieve."

Appropriate Designation

"Amerind" is a telescopic word composed of the first syllables of "American" and "Indian" and is a general term used to designate the races of man who inhabited the New World before the arrival of Europeans. It was suggested in 1899 by Maj. J. W. Powell, director of the bureau of American ethnology, who advocated it as a convenient substitute for the numerous awkward and inappropriate terms applied to the aborigines of America. "Amerind" is pronounced "am-er-ind," with the accent on the first syllable.

New Camphor Source

A native source for camphor, important in both medicine and manufacturing, has been discovered in a species of wormwood that grows on the sandy steppes of the government of Astrakhan, Russia. An oil extracted from this plant has been subjected to experiments at the Saratow experiment station, and was found to yield a good quality of camphor. The crystals differ in their physical properties from those of camphor obtained from camphor trees, but chemically they are identical with it.

Second question—What is a strait? Billy answered—It is not.

VOODOOISM OF MANY CULTS GRIPS CUBA

Find Right Cat Bone and You Are Invisible.

Havana, Cuba.—Mystic voodoo rites practiced in many parts of the United States have been linked by recent investigation with the cult of Nanigoism in Cuba.

Comparative analysis of African sacrificial customs have furnished unusual evidence that both had a common origin in the Congo jungles and that voodooism reached the American continent by the importation of slaves from Cuba and Haiti.

"Obeah," a mild form of voodooism, is practiced in Cuba and the British West Indies with virtually identical ceremonies. Negroes who came to labor in Cuban sugar cane fields have brought to this Spanish-speaking island not only the Obeah but also the far more terrible and sanguinary rite of Nanigo. The high priests and priestesses of these cults have shown great powers of resistance to the suppressive measures of the police.

Cuba has dealt severely with voodooism, and it is believed that its more ghastly forms have been eliminated. It was largely in connection with the government's campaign against Obeahism and Nanigoism that measures were adopted curtailing the immigration of illiterate workers from Haiti and Jamaica.

Takes Criminal Aspect.

Cuba has been particularly concerned because voodooism here takes on a criminal aspect entirely exclusive of the possibility of human sacrifice. In Oriente province, which lies nearest Haiti, the voodoo priests of that island wield large powers. In other parts of the island Nanigoism is dominant among the negroes who take their religion in this form.

Nanigoism is a combination of devil worship and gang spirit. Its priests promise occult powers to law breakers, and members of this cult are pledged to render all possible protection and assistance to each other.

As far as can be learned the symbolism of the cults is very similar. All include the sacrifice of roosters, black cats, goats and other animals. Cuban police records show cases where the perpetrators of murder in connection with voodooism have been brought to justice, but it is claimed that this type of sacrifice has been eradicated.

Havana newspapers continue to chronicle cases of Nanigo outrages committed against those who have incurred the enmity of the gangsters. It has been found that there is always some one willing to carry out the priests' orders, because a Nanigo neophyte fails of membership unless he has one capital crime to his credit.

At Nanigo funerals a black rooster is slaughtered in the home of the deceased. The fowl is then presented to some neighboring non-Nanigo family as a warning.

Cat Bone Is Charm.

One of the strangest superstitions in the Haitian cult is that a certain bone in a black cat's body will confer invisibility to its possessor. The rite takes place in the presence of three witnesses, and the cat is thrust into hot water. It is related by voodooists that supernatural manifestations, such as thunder and lightning, are an accompaniment of this process.

In the early years of the Nineteenth century Jean La Fitte, famous pirate of the Spanish Main, frequently brought slaves to Cuba and the United States. His principal market in the United States was New Orleans and this fact is now being used to explain the particularly close similarity between the voodooism of Cuba and that of the lower Mississippi valley.

There is a tradition that La Fitte's entourage included several African "conjurer doctors."

The successors of these doctors today have considerable knowledge of herbs and the curative properties of plant juices. In general they are employed to effect cures, but with other herbs the doctor-priests are said to be able to cause temporary or permanent loss of memory to their enemies. This belief appears substantiated by the recent discovery by United States marines in Haiti of a colony of negroes, dazed or hypnotized, working under their task masters on a plantation.

Priests frequently claim the power to take on animal or reptile form. This recalls the African "leopard" superstition where a certain clan were credited with power to turn themselves into leopards and prowl the jungle at night.

Manila Declares War

on 12,000,000 Rats

Manila, P. I.—Bubonic plague has broken out in parts of India and China and the Philippine health authorities have started a campaign against rats, the principal carriers of the disease.

It is estimated that there is one rat for every person in the islands, approximately 12,000,000. The chief of the health service issued a warning that until this number is reduced the outlook would be dangerous.

Sanitary inspectors are acting as pied pipers in the ports of Cebu, Iloilo, Zamboanga, Legaspi and Davao.

PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 6:5-13; Luke 18:9-14; 1 John 5:14, 15.
GOLDEN TEXT—If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ask whatsoever ye will, and it shall be done unto you.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Talking With God.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Talking With God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Should We Pray?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian's Prayer Life.

I. False Prayer (Matt. 6:5-7).

This consists in

1. Praying to be seen and heard of men (v. 5). Many prayers uttered in a public sanctuary are false for there is more consideration given to what the people think than to what God thinks.

2. In using vain repetitions (vv. 7, 8).
This does not mean that we should ask but once for the thing desired, for we have examples of both Christ and Paul praying three times for the same thing (Matt. 26:39-46, II Cor. 12:7, 8), but rather, it means the use of meaningless repetitions.

3. True Prayer (Matt. 6:6).
Since true prayer is a definite transaction of the soul with God, the communion of the human personality with the divine personality, there should be a real desire for fellowship with God, and then a going to Him in secret. God will abundantly reward those who thus seek His fellowship. We should have our closet prayers when all the world and its cares and pleasures are shut out, and we are shut in with God. We should meet with God's children and pray together.

II. The Model Prayer (Matt. 6:9-13).

1. A right relationship (v. 9) "Our Father."

Only those who have become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ can pray aright (Gal. 3:26). One must be a child of God before he can have communion with God.

2. A right attitude (vv. 9, 10) "Hallowed be Thy name."

When one realizes that he has been delivered from the power of darkness and translated into the kingdom of His dear Son (Col. 1:13), he cannot help pouring out his soul in gratitude and praise, intensely longing for the righteous rule of Christ on earth.

3. A right spirit (vv. 11-13).

(1) That of faith, which looks to God for the supply of daily bread. We are dependent upon Him for our daily food.

(2) That of love, which results in forgiveness of others. God will not listen to the prayers of one who has an unforgiving spirit.

(3) That of holiness which moves one to pray not to be led into temptation, and longs to be delivered from the evil one.

IV. The Proper Attitude of Soul in Prayer (Luke 18:9-14).

This is illustrated in the prayer of the Pharisee in contrast with the prayer of the publican. Observe

1. The prayer of the proud Pharisee (vv. 9-12).

He took a striking attitude (v. 11). He was self-righteous and trusted in himself. He congratulated himself upon his morality. He thanked God that he was not as other men. He congratulated himself for his religious merits (v. 12). He fasted twice a week and gave tithes of all he possessed. He thus informed God that he did more than what was required, implying that God was under obligation to him.

2. The prayer of the humble publican (v. 13).

In striking contrast with the Pharisee, the publican was too ashamed of his sins to even lift his eyes to heaven. He beat upon his breast as a sign of soul anguish and cried out to God to be merciful to him, a sinner. Christ declared that the publican went away justified, rather than the Pharisee.

V. Confidence in Prayer (I John 5:14, 15).

1. Its basis (v. 13).

Only those who have knowledge of the reality of salvation can pray with confidence. If one has assurance that he is God's child and possesses eternal life, he will come into the presence of his Father with boldness.

2. The scope of his prayer (v. 14) "Anything according to His will."
The believer has a right to bring to God in prayer anything within the scope of the divine will.

3. The blessed issue of the believer's prayer (v. 15).

"We know that we have the petition that we desired of Him." God's children coming to Him for that which is included in His will can be assured of receiving the things needed.

False Security of the Wicked

And your covenant with death shall be disannulled, and your agreement with hell shall not stand: when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, then ye shall be trodden down by it.—Isa. 28:18.

Faith

Out of suffering comes the serious mind; out of salvation, the grateful heart; out of endurance, fortitude; out of deliverance, faith.—Modern Painters (Ruskin)

FIGHT TO PUT SONS ON VACANT THRONE

Rival Widows Battle for Crown of Hungary.

Paris.—A bitter, undercover struggle is on between two branches of the Hapsburg family for the unoccupied throne of Hungary. Two widows head the rival factions. Each is scheming to place her son on the coveted throne. The two women are the former Empress Zita, widow of Emperor Charles, and the Archduchess Isabella, widow of Archduke Friedrich.

The sons in whom the two women have centered their ambitions are the sixteen-year-old Prince Otto, the crown prince, and his thirty-one-year-old cousin, the Archduke Albrecht.

The strife between the two women, their sons and their factional allies is just far enough beneath the surface to keep out of the news.

News Almost Broke.

Two months ago it almost broke in to the headlines. November 20 was Prince Otto's sixteenth birthday. The "legitimists," champions of Otto's candidacy, have long been chafing with impatience, and had decided that on that day they would take destiny in both hands and proclaim Otto king. They almost did it. But there were so many obstacles in the way that cooler heads prevailed, and the birthday feast was reduced to the proportion of a quiet, intimate rejoicing.

True, Hungary, according to her constitution, is a kingdom without a king. True that Otto is the legitimate heir. True that monarchists are in control of the cabinet, that they have a majority in parliament, and that they command the army. Within the country there was little to prevent the legitimists from carrying out their project. But without, there was the rub. The peace treaty declares that no Hapsburg shall accede to the Hungarian throne, and Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania, and Yugo-Slavia are ready to go to war to see that no Hapsburg is crowned. Another obstacle is that Empress Zita, who is fiercely desirous of making her son a king, has no money with which to finance the preliminaries. In any case it was decided that the time for Otto is not yet "ripe."

A Hapsburg May Reign Again.

Give Austria time to merge herself with Germany. Hope that Croatia will continue in her mood of secession and in seceding will weaken Yugo-Slavia. Let Rumania flounder a while longer in the confusion of a weak regency ruling for a six-year-old king, and the time may come when even a Hapsburg may be a king again.

Between the devil and the deep sea are the legitimists. If they enthroned Otto now, the allies will surely dethrone him again within a month. If they do not enthrone him now, the rival faction of monarchists may proclaim Albrecht the favored candidate, and may edge Prince Otto out of the running.

Albrecht, too, has the Hapsburg handicap. But his mother has plenty of money. She has saved almost all of her great pre-war fortune. His supporters believe that, though he is a Hapsburg, he is far enough removed from the direct line not to be absolutely taboo. They believe that if he were made an elected king the allies, though they might dislike it, would not go to war to dethrone him.

Another cousin of Prince Otto has recently thrown consternation in both camps with a sensational declaration that, despite his titles, Albrecht is not a Hapsburg. He is, according to this statement, the illegitimate son of the Archduchess Isabella and a handsome Hungarian army officer to whom Albrecht bears a striking resemblance.

This charge is made by the Archduke Leopold, who challenges Albrecht to prove by a blood analysis that he is a genuine Hapsburg.

From these bare facts, divested of the tangle of intrigue which surrounds them, it is apparent to the most sluggish imagination that the vacant throne of Hungary waits uneasily.

Modern Scales Changed Little From Old Ones

London.—There is little or no difference between the scales used today and those used in the days of ancient Egypt, judging by an exhibition in the Science museum, South Kensington, recently.

Illustrating the history of weighing as far back as is known, a steelyard used by a Roman butcher identical to the present-day "meat purveyor" was on show.

Modern scales of nickel and enamel, with multi-colored dials, on which the weight can be read in an instant, stood side by side with models showing that centuries ago Leonardo da Vinci designed a self-indicating machine on exactly the same principle.

Among the sets of standard weights was one row which had come down from pre-Norman days and which still is legal standard in the Channel Islands, although no longer used.

There were weights of glass and rock crystal and, in contrast with a Chinese balance of ivory which would slip into a vest pocket, were photographs of modern monster weights, weighing hundreds of tons.

"Sea Serpent" Caught

Noank, Conn.—A real sea serpent was hauled ashore near here in the form of a 7½-foot sea eel weighing 27 pounds. It fought 20 minutes and tore one net to shreds.

STRAY THOUGHTS

It takes about 70 years of hard living to know how.

Years do not make the man, nor lack of them, the boy.

Whether we start north, east or south, we all "go west" at last.

No one can do everything, but most of us can do more than we do, and do it better.

Many of us are so busy making good resolutions that we never find time to carry them out.

But for the stop signals on the streets, Americans would run themselves to death.

When commercialism develops to the point where it spreads concrete over the velvet of the golf links, we shall indeed be lost.—Grace E. Hall, in the Portland Oregonian.

HERE'S THE POINT

The only time some men work is when they are laboring under a misapprehension.

Following his arrest a beggar was found to have three wives. Cause and effect.

"I don't mind having 'rings on my fingers," he said, as he limped from the dance, "but hang me if I can stand 'belles on my toes!'"

"The life of a taxi driver," said one of them to an interviewer the other day, "is really a very monotonous one." He certainly never seems to have any change.

"How little things change," observed the cynic, in a discussion of modern fashion. "At one time women wanted to qualify for the ballot, now they look as though they were qualifying for the ballet."

A contemporary has had correspondence concerning the worst nightmares its readers have experienced. We might mention that the worst one we can remember was when we felt the pillow slip and the bed spread.—Detroit News.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"A RED HERRING ACROSS THE TRAIL"

THIS phrase, originally "to draw a red herring across the track," is frequently heard in everyday speech to signify a means used to divert one's attention, to throw one off the scent by injecting into the matter in hand a new object upon which the attention is then focused.

The expression dates back to the Seventeenth century for its origin, being a survival of the old practice of sportsmen to draw the carcass of a cat or fox or a red herring across the track in training dogs for hunting.

The uniqueness of the phrase made it stand out and it soon became popular in the figurative sense in which it is used today.

HOOVER'S GOOD WILL TOUR

SOME one has said that the best way to settle a dispute is for the interested parties to assemble about a table, and in an unpassioned spirit, talk the matter out. Such a method of procedure would not only help to solve vexed problems but would also avoid many misunderstandings from even arising.

The visit of Herbert Hoover to South America will undoubtedly have this wholesome effect. His purpose was to create that much needed spirit of good will. He was hopeful of establishing the most friendly relations possible between ourselves and our neighbors in South America. When governments, like individuals, know one another, difficult political problems are less likely to arise.

The wholesome effect of this visit upon our own country is also a noteworthy achievement. South America with her scattered population of about sixty million people will doubtless make rapid advances in the near future in her political and economic life. They will need the help and counsel which such a government as ours can offer. Such friendly relations will also have a most salutary effect in promoting equitable trade relations between South America and ourselves.

To what better use could Mr. Hoover have devoted part of his time, prior to his inauguration than to such a visit as this? The press of the country, through its editorial columns, have commented favorably upon it. Surely nothing but good can result.

In one of his recent addresses, Mr. Hoover said: "Through greater understanding that comes with more contact, we may build up that common respect and service which is the only enduring basis of international relations."

Soothe Doomed Shark by Tickling Its Hide

Few of us would like to tackle the tiger of the seas in his native haunts, but the brown men of Attutaki in the Southern seas have no such scruples. There, in the calm emerald waters of the lagoon, fringed about with waving palms, are great hollow. In the coral rocks; here, during the hottest hours of the day, the sharks love to bask in the welcome shade.

Ten feet of shark lies snug within the shadow, only a slowly waving tail proclaiming his presence. Then out from the beach creeps a canoe, with a rope of sinnet ready coiled. Silently the Kanakas paddle to the spot, where deep down in the clear water that slaty-gray tail moves slowly.

Poised for a moment while he inhales a deep breath, the brown man waits, the loop of the rope over his arm. Then, in a beautiful curve, he dives. Now he is beside the shark and his hand softly rubs the rasping hide. The shark likes it.

Suddenly the noose is fixed over the flukes of the tail, and a brown form is seen scrambling quickly over the gunwale of the canoe.

Then comes a rapid paddling of the frail craft, the line is hauled in and the shark is effectively dispatched with a blow of a club.

LAST PAGE EDITORIAL

"Feed the Brute."

A good while ago, a woman in answer to the question—"How to best manage a husband?" is said to have replied "Feed the Brute." This may have been only the product of a funny contributor, or it may have been a wise crack at the expense of the "husband," which means man in general.

Anyway, we are adapting the idea very generally in a business way, for back of a lot of our banquets and lunches is a scheme to be put over, after "the brutes have been properly managed" by being "fed up" until they feel as though they were worth a million dollars each; and when the "good thing" is sprung the fellow partakers of the feast are quite apt to be in a very genial and receptive mood and find it difficult to be so hard-hearted as to refuse the invitation.

There is no denying the fact that talking business in a bank, or office, or on the street, is very different from talking it over socially, as man to man, with feet under a table and the stomach co-operating. The personal touch of "breaking bread" together, good food well served, and genial company, is a power to be reckoned with.

Some years ago the writer heard a distinguished orator say—after he had partaken of a particularly poor meal—"I never before quite realized the close sympathetic relation existing between a man's stomach and his brain," which was meant to convey the information that he was not feeling in the best of trim for the platform effort that was before him.

And, it is a matter of very common experience that all persons—male or female—feel more jovial when well-fed than when hungry, and this applies to animals as well. So, we must recognize the investment of "feeding" as having an actual value, even when we merely want to have a good time, and do not have something to sell.

Many persons, however, are very wise to this old scheme and are not caught by it. They are willing to fill up, take all the cigars, and free trips offered, and still not be the victims of decoy; but this takes nerve, to say the least. If they are willing to be persuaded, that is one thing, but if it is merely a case of surrounding a lot of free feed, that is quite another thing.

Quinsey Jacobs and son, John, of Fairfield, visited Mrs. Sarah Albaugh, last Friday.

Mrs. George W. Shriner gave a 500 party, last Friday night, to twenty invited guests.

General health conditions in this section of the county are improving, and practically normal for this time of the year.

Attention is called to the advertisement in this issue, of the Francis Scott Key Auto Club, of an important meeting to be held Monday night.

Mrs. George M. Fogle still continues quite ill. Her daughter, Mrs. John A. Garner, of Baltimore, has been helping to take care of her.

Mrs. Chas. Hilterbrick and daughter, Catherine; Mrs. John Stambaugh, son Ervin, all of town, and Gladys Stambaugh, of Baltimore, spent the week-end in Baltimore, with relatives and friends. Harry D. Hilterbrick visited at the same place.

On Tuesday evening an orange social was held in the United Brethren parsonage by the Ladies Sewing Circle of the church. A program of instrumental and vocal music was given, after which refreshments were served. It was well attended.

The Annual Firemen's supper will be held next Friday, Feb. 22, starting at 5:00 o'clock, P. M. Anyone having a donation for same can leave it at any of the stores, and it will be taken care of. There will be a cake walk in the evening, and every one is invited to attend.

It may be a big to say "You never can tell."

They often get unstrung over on Bow street.

Is it still filthy lucre when you make a clean sweep?

MEETING OF SPECIAL INTEREST

The time has arrived, when the County Commissioners and the State Roads Commission are trying to agree upon the allotment and location of the roads that are to be built in 1929.

There is an organized effort being made and every effort and influence being advanced to prevent any road building on the Francis Scott Key Highway in 1929.

We ask all citizens as well as the Club members to attend a public meeting, on in Shriner's Theatre, when action will be taken to take care of the interests of the taxpayers of Middleburg and Taneytown District. Here is where organization counts. If you do not attend you are not showing the proper interest, and then do not know say "I KNEW WE WOULD NOT GET ANY ROAD".

Bees Seldom Inactive

Honey bees do not go into a true state of hibernation during the winter but remain active within the hive, although they do not venture abroad, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. To keep warm, the colony practices a marvelous system of insulation and exercise. A large number of bees form a more or less spherical cluster, those on the outside having their bodies packed close to each other, parallel and with their heads up.

This formation constitutes an insulation shell. Inside, the other bees keep up a constant twisting and squirming motion to create heat. This is so effective that the temperature inside the shell seldom drops below 57 degrees Fahrenheit.
