

SCHOOL BOND ISSUE WITHDRAWN.

County Delegation Opposed Bill Without Referendum.

The following article, received this Friday morning from Dr. A. N. Ward, announces the withdrawal of the School Bond bill for the present session.

A meeting was held at the Westminster High School, Saturday afternoon, March 9th, in the interest of a Bond Issue of $600,000, without a referendum, for the schools of Carroll County. More than 400 persons attended this meeting, coming from most every section of Carroll County.

Dr. A. N. Ward, the President of the Parent-Teacher Associations of Carroll County, presided and made an address. The Bill for the Bond Issue was read by Mrs. W. Lee Hoke, the Secretary of the Federation. The Union Bridge Boy Scouts Band furnished music for the occasion. To this meeting were invited the friends and workers for the Bond Issue, and a special invitation was given to the State Central Committees of the Republican and Democratic parties of the county, the Board of County Commissioners, the Board of Education, and the Carroll County delegation in the Legislature.

It was announced at the meeting that nearly 3,000 persons signed the petition, requesting the Legislature to pass this bill. After careful tabulation it was found that the signers to the petition were divided as follows among the various interested sections of the county:

Westminster	748
New Windsor	505
Sykesville	545
Manchester	292
Mt. Airy	225
Union Bridge	257
Winfield	19
Uniontown	29
Pleasant Valley	52
Taneytown	65
Charles Carroll	82
Total	2819

A committee representing the Federation appeared before the Carroll County delegation at the State House in Annapolis, Wednesday, March 13, at 11 o'clock. The committee was very courteously received by the delegation. After hearing the representatives of the Federation, the delegation replied to the effect that they were not willing to introduce or sponsor a bill without a referendum in this Legislature, as they had been elected to office on a promise not to introduce such a bill unless a referendum should be attached to it.

This closes the incident for the time being. The Federation did not wish to embarrass in any way the members of the Legislature, and they were not willing to assume the responsibility of having a bill passed with a referendum and calling for a special election.

It will be the purpose now of the Federation to do everything in its power to secure the passage of such a bill in the next Legislature. The canvass recently made for signers to the petition covered only about half of the county. The bad weather and the almost impassable roads in some sections of the county, made it impossible to complete the canvass in the time specified. But the work done in a week's canvass which secured nearly 3,000 signers, is an indication that there is a great awakening on the part of the citizens in the interest of the schools of the county. We could have secured more than 1,000 additional signers to the petition if the canvass could have been continued another week. The school housing conditions in Carroll County are exceedingly deplorable, and the people who represent the interests of the children of this and the coming generation intend to see to it that these conditions are remedied. We appeal to all citizens of the county who are interested in the schools to get behind the movement which is just beginning, and which before long will be very clearly stated in an appeal to the people.

A. N. WARD, President.

You Never Can Tell.

And still some folks think advertising don't pay. Read this from last week's, The Observer, Baltimore.

"From the advertising columns of the Taneytown Record we extract: 'Fat Hogs Wanted. Who has them? Harold Mehring.'

If Mr. Mehring will write us that he means business, we think we can tell him where to find a fat hog, or maybe two."

(To the above, we add that Mr. Mehring means quadrupeds. Can the Observer be thinking of bipeds, and some recent Maryland $376,000 history?—Ed.)

Friday Morning Articles.

Again we must request our contributors to remember that we must go to press at about 11 o'clock Friday morning, and that only a limited amount of articles received by us before that time can be used, preference always being given to our regular correspondence and to important news events. Please let us have articles on Wednesday, or Thursday, that can just as well be prepared then.

Has Almanac for 71 Years.

Mrs. Anna Naill, of Dennings, Md., who has passed her 95th year, has in her possession every Hagerstown Almanac from 1858 up to the present date, 1929, and she has kept an account of many things of interest.

ORGANIZED FIRE-FIGHTING

Suggestions to Fire Companies and Outlying Communities.

The various Fire Companies of this county should get together and plan for better regulations than now exist, in the matter of calling out fire companies for out-of-town fires. These regulations should consider, first of all, the location of hard roads as they reach outlying sections. For instance, certain sections can be best reached from Taneytown, others from Union Bridge, others from Westminster, etc., throughout the county.

Account should also be taken of available water supplies, and as to whether more than one company would be of actual service when they arrive at the scene of a fire; and when at all possible the calling of Companies by phone should be placed in the hands of responsible persons, authorized to do so.

There should also be some plan of insurance devised, if possible, through which firemen would be paid for injury, or damage to clothing, when giving their free service in attending fires.

And, there should be more local Companies equipped at least with ladders, buckets and chemical extinguishers. There are at least twelve or fifteen towns in the county not so equipped, in most of which a proper local effort would result in securing the necessary money to supply the equipment.

In some cases, within the past year, two and three companies have responded to calls, when one company would have been sufficient; and this waste of effort and wear on the heavy engines should be prevented.

There is not much to be said against calling companies to chimney fires, as they sometimes lead to real fires; but owners of dwellings should keep the chimneys sound and clean, and know how to handle a chimney fire, at least to the extent of the plentiful use of salt in a stove leading to the burning chimney, as salt has demonstrated its value in such cases.

The writer is neither a fireman, nor an expert in handling the existing situation, but the suggestions made seem to him to represent good common sense, and to point the way to trying to better the general question of fire-fighting in unprotected sections, as to conserve the value of expensive fire-fighting equipment and prevent unnecessary labor.

Of course, there are many ways by which ordinary care might prevent fires, the chief of which apply to the care of stoves and chimneys; but to some extent to the prevention of the accumulation of rubbish near buildings, the danger of outdoor fires, the use and handling of kerosene and gasoline, careless use of matches, etc., etc. Statistics show that the largest percentage of fires is due to pure carelessness of some sort. The Insurance Companies know this, positively, as it is their business to know it.

The Fire Companies are naturally in a position to take action that will help the situation, at least in so far as their own activities are concerned; but the prevention of the need of their services rests largely on the public itself.

Does Cow Testing Association Work Pay?

The question has just recently been asked Mr. H. E. Roser, of New Windsor, who is a prominent dairyman of that section, and a leading member of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association. Mr. Roser gives his answer as follows: "I have been a member of the Association for three years and feel that the money expended for keeping this record on my herd has been the best investment I have ever made in the dairy business. This is the only way, as pointed out by Mr. Roser, that any dairyman can tell where and how much profit he is making from his herd."

Another question asked the above dairyman is, "How much should a man be able to make under average Carroll County conditions?" Answer—"This will depend, of course, on the type of cows and the management, but my record will give you some idea of what has been done. The twelve cows that I have on test have made me an average of $204.44, above all feed cost. The highest individual bringing in a net income of $312.17, and the lowest individual at total of $176.82. This, to me, is conclusive proof that cow testing association work tells the story of each individual in your herd, as it can be told in no other way."

How many dairymen of Carroll County know that his dairy herd made him in 1928, and how many herds there was in the herd? Mr. Roser points out that he would not consider an individual in his herd that did not net him above all feed cost $150.00 profit per year. This can all be done by weeding, feeding and breeding, as it is done by Cow Testing Association members.

The herd referred to above comprises around thirty head of registered and high-grade mature cows, heifers, and calves, and is headed by a sire, named Sir Akkrummer Barbara Omsby, the dam of which produced 19,615 pounds of milk in 305 days, and 831.01 pounds of butter in the same period. His sire is the treat $10,000 bull owned by Ailken Bros. of Waukesha, Wisconsin. This record also goes to show that a good herd sire is a necessary factor in building up a herd in production and show type. The above herd has passed 3 clean tuberculin tests and is classified as an accredited herd.

If it is important to learn how to work, it is equally important to learn how to rest; for there is no good work without good rest.

The third measure would empower the commissioners to issue bonds for $200,000 for six sections of roads in the county.

Letter from Harry E. Fleagle.

The following letter from Harry E. Fleagle, who is spending the winter in Tampa, Florida, was received to late for publication last week, so we give it now. He is just one late on the "Airmail" letter as his is the second one we have received, but the first one from the South.

"I want to surprise you by sending you perhaps the first airplane letter that you have yet received. It was only inaugurated on March 1st, from here to N. Y. via Baltimore. It leaves here daily at 12.00 o'clock and is doing a most extensive business, as it is somewhat of a curiosity or novelty affair. Just in its infancy.

Sunshine every day with occasional showers and the thermometer in the 80's every day. We are certainly enjoying ourselves having the time of our life. A most picturesque scene for this time of the year is orange trees with their fragrant blossoms, and oranges at the same time."

H. E. FLEAGLE.

To Bean Growers.

Growers of beans are again cautioned to use every means possible to kill the dormant bean beetles, that are hibernating over the winter in all sorts of litter on the fields. All gutters should be cleaned out, and all accumulations of straw, fodder, leaves, or litter of any kind, should be destroyed by burning. Consult the packers, or the County Agent, for complete instructions before planting time. After planting other instructions will be in order about spraying.

PRICE FOR SWEET CORN

Question Discussed in Westminster last Saturday.

At a meeting of some of the sugar corn growers of Carroll County at Westminster, on Saturday, March 9 it was agreed after consideration of the many factors, that a price of $15 per ton for Stowell's Evergreen and $16.00 for little grain Stowell's would be the price that the growers of this county should receive this year for their crop.

The meeting was called and held under the auspices of the Carroll County Farm Bureau. R. Smith Snader, President of the Maryland State Dairymen's Association and newly elected President of the Carroll County Farm Bureau presided. Senator Snader stated, "This meeting was called so that all those interested in the growing and canning of sugar corn could counsel together and so co-operate that the industry could grow on a basis profitable to both grower and canner. We need the canner to sit around the table and calmly consider all the facts pertaining to the problem. We work in harmony and as a result, the milk industry has been put upon a sound, stable and profitable basis."

County Agent Burns spoke of the willingness of the Extension Service to aid growers in producing a better product for the canner to pack and especially to try and help the grower get a larger yield per acre, thus helping him to lower his production costs and thereby increase his profits. He said it was not the province for the Extension Service to inject itself into a price contest or controversy between the growers and the canner. It was his job to help both sides all he could.

After much discussion by the growers present, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in view of the information and cost data presented to us this day by a group of disinterested parties, we the growers of sugar corn, meeting this 9th day of March, 1929, under the auspices of the Carroll County Farm Bureau, do express as our belief that $15.00 for Stowell's (and $16.00 for little grain Stowell's) is a fair and proper price. We believe our canners at these prices will be paying all they can properly afford and we recommend to the growers of Carroll County that they contract their 1929 crop at these prices, and be it further

Resolved, That we urge our farmers not to increase their acreage, but to do all in their power to lower their cost by increasing their yield per acre and that they so plant and pick their crop as to deliver the highest quality of corn to the canner.

Auto Facts for Maryland.

Increases in all departments under his direction in 1928 were announced by E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, in his annual report to the Governor. Extracts from the report follow:

"The gross income amounted to $3,022,856.98, as compared to $2,980,816.20 in 1926-27. This is an increase of $42,040.78, as compared to the previous year.

"The increase in the number of cars registered amounted to 27,812, the figures being for 1926-27, 286,131, and for 1927-28, 313,943.

"With respect to the actual titling of cars, new and used, there was a slight increase over this branch of activity as shown in the preceding year. For 1927-28 the cars titled amounted to 134,790, while for the year previous this figure was 134,481 an increase of 209 cars.

"The total income from the title department was $141,639.62, as compared to $141,398.84 for the year 1926-27.

"The department issued 135,304 driving licenses of all kinds, while in the preceding year 138,442 were issued.

"Fines imposed in the Baltimore Traffic Court and before the various magistrates in the counties amounted to $235,962.45. This, compared to the figures for the year 1926-27 ($213,048.87), shows an increase of $22,913.58.

MORE OF STATE ROAD INVESTIGATION

Mr. Mackall on the Stand Gives Testimony at Length.

John N. Mackall, former chairman of the State Roads Commission, was before the Grand Inquest Committee three days this week. He placed responsibility for most of the frauds on George H. Dawson, former acting auditor of the commission. That he considered it his own job "to build roads and not keep the books" and said that he had not disbursed a dollar of the commission's funds with out the approval of Mr. Dawson, and that the commission always relied on the reports made by Dawson and the auditor's office.

Declaring that "a favorable atmosphere has been created for the reception of all kinds of reckless and irresponsible statements" regarding the commission, Mr. Mackall made a blanket assertion that, aside from the $376,000 disclosed as peculations, the State "has never lost any money during the time when I and my associates on the commission conducted its affairs."

"I want to say without equivocation or reservation," Mr. Mackall said, reading from a prepared statement, "that at no time during my long connection with the commission as an engineer or as its chairman have I ever profited, directly or indirectly, one cent in the awarding or execution of any contract or the purchase of any materials or supplies."

Mr. Mackall's contentions that Mr. Dawson primarily was responsible for the defrauding of the State and that the State Auditor's office was a second line of checking which should have disclosed it, were corroborated in substance by Mr. Carroll, who preceded him on the witness stand.

"Isn't it true that some of these irregularities were so obvious that the commission's auditor would have had to close his eyes to miss them?" asked Earl Berman, Republican, Baltimore, a member of the committee. To which Mr. Carroll replied he thought that was true.

Mr. Mackall explained that Mr. Dawson, at that time a deputy State auditor who had made annual examinations of the commission's accounts, was employed in June, 1920, to be roads auditor. Asked the occasion for his employment, Mr. Mackall replied:

"He was named to fill a vacancy in this position created by the dismissal of the man who had been auditor because he stole $2,500 in cash from the commission."

In the course of this testimony he admitted the following:

A lily pond was constructed in his yard by a concrete mixer supplied by the State Roads Commission, at his direction, although he expected to pay for this service. He never received a bill for the work.

He received two thermometers, paid for by the commission, and failed to make a reimbursement.

Commission employees dumped several loads of top soil on the lawn of his home for which no charge was made.

He now regards the gift of a desk set bought out of State Roads Commission funds to Harry Heffner, salesman for the U. G. I. Company, as "not very wise or prudent."

He regards the purchase of silverware out of State Roads funds, as planned in connection with the Crain Highway opening celebration, as improper and asserted that his judgment when he approved this plan was "very bad."

Mr. Mackall charged that there was a road fund theft of $2500, under his predecessor, Frank H. Zouck; to which Clyde H. Wilson, who was secretary of the State Roads Commission at the time has replied that the amount was $1900., only $1400., of which belonged to the Commission, and all of the money was cash. Mr. Wilson also said, "It didn't take us 8 years to find out that something was wrong. We caught him in a week." Also that the case was turned over to the Mackall administration, but the man was never prosecuted.

Changes in U. S. Senate.

There are a good many changes in the new Senate, George P. McLean, Republican, of Connecticut, made way for Frank C. Walcott, also a Republican. Charles Curtis, of Kansas, translated to the vice presidency, will be followed by another Republican, Wm. Cabell Bruce, picturesque Maryland Democrat, gave way to Phillips Lee Goldsborough, Republican, and Edw. I. Edwards, Democrat, of New Jersey, surrendered his seat to Hamilton F. Kean, Republican.

The Delaware Democrat, Thomas F. Bayard, was displaced by John G. Townsend, Republican, and Peter G. Gerry, ornate Rhode Island Democrat, made way for the Republican, Felix Herbert. Earle B. Mayfield, of Texas, Democrat, was succeeded by Tom Connally, another Democrat. M. M. Neely, Democrat, of West Virginia, went out and William D. Hatfield, Republican took his place.

The most significant change, however, is in the passing of James A. Reed, Democrat, of Missouri. The seat that has been his for eighteen years and which he surrendered by his own volition is now filled by Roscoe Patterson, Republican.

"It is to live twice, when you can enjoy the recollections of your past life."

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Work to be Commenced on Charles Carroll Building.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education, was called to order at 10 o'clock in the office of the Board on Wednesday, March 6, 1929. Commissioner Zepp was absent.

The minutes of the previous meeting were approved as read. The lists of bills as presented to the Board were approved and ordered paid.

The Board accepted the invitation of Dr. A. N. Ward, President of the Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations of Carroll County to attend the meeting of the Association on Saturday, March 9, at 2:30 P. M., in the interest of the bond issue for schools.

The Board authorized the Superintendent to continue the contract with Mr. Clayton Bloom for another year to transport the Salem School children.

The Board approved the appointment of Miss Mildred Ensor as secretary in the office of the Board of Education to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Miss Catharine H. Miller to take effect July 1st.

The Board authorized Mr. Unger to inform Mr. Thomas S. Jones that in view of his failure to co-operate cheerfully and willingly with the teacher at the East View school, and to discipline his children who annoy and interrupt the school, it would have to remove him as trustee of the East View School.

The Superintendent reported the condition of the Hampstead roof, and that the contractor is correcting the leaks according to the provisions of his contract.

The Superintendent filed charges of insubordination and breaking of contract by Miss Roselda F. Todd, who was an assistant in the high school at Manchester, by leaving her position on February 8th. The Board unanimously confirmed an action of dismissal based on the action of Miss Todd.

The Superintendent read the resolutions of the Charles Carroll Parent-Teacher Association, with reference to rebuilding the Charles Carroll School, and was authorized by the Board to acknowledge them.

Resolved, That the Board of Education file the funds it now has in hand, amounting to $43,734.42, and that the balance necessary to finish the Charles Carroll School, including the plumbing, heating and equipment be put into the annual budget, and until the funds necessary to complete the building are supplied, the building will not be in condition to operate the school.

The meeting adjourned at 11:45 A. M.

Home-makers' Club News.

Three hundred Carroll county women attended the seventeen "Arrangement of Furniture" demonstrations that were held during the month of February. We are wondering how many of you tried to rearrange your living room for more comfort and convenience. Report at the March meeting any changes you have made since the meeting.

As important as convenient arrangement is the beauty and charm of restful colors. Are the walls of your living room a pleasing background for your furnishings? Do the curtains and upholstery material carry out a pleasing color scheme? May we help you plan your room colorings? Interesting color effects are not hard to get. The application of a few principles of color will create a restful atmosphere, and add cheer to your living room. "Color Schemes that are Pleasing" will be the demonstration for the March meeting.

Two more clubs have reported club projects for this year. The Hampstead Home-makers' Club are planning to purchase linen towels for the Home Economics room of their local High School. The Myers Home-makers' Club are planning to reserve a fund for equipment for the new school building when built. The Pleasant Valley Home-makers' Club has decided to purchase a number of folding chairs for community uses.

If you have not already received a program for the year, you may get one from your club president. Keep in mind the goals for the year and make your club work more effective by your interest, attendance and reports.

This is just to remind you that club dues are paid at the beginning of the year. Have you paid yours? Your club has county Council dues and Health project dues to pay and would appreciate your promptness in paying your dues.

We have been able to secure a series of slides in Home Furnishing and Gardening which you will enjoy. The first one will be on artistic furniture and artistic home furnishing, and will be given at the Extension Service Office on Tuesday evening, March 12, at 8 o'clock. Anyone interested in these series of lectures and pictures is welcome to attend any or all of them.

"Make your home the most attractive place for every member of your family."

AGNESS SLINDEE,
Home Demonstration Agent.

A County Library.

Reading for fun spells more than recreation. Books help to build character and help to develop imagination. To deprive children of books—hero stories, adventure, history, poetry, fairy tales—is to impoverish them during the period of mental and emotional growth. A county library will fill your children's hands with books and their minds with greater happiness and opportunity. It will mark a step toward equalizing the privileges of all children.

Wets Hard to Please.

One is apt to become mystified in trying to analyze the position of the wets, on the basis of true logic. We have so many conflicting arguments to follow, that if we actually tried to follow them as strictly honest paths, we would get nowhere but lost. First of all, perhaps, is the argument that there is more liquor drunk now than before prohibition; which if actually true, would seem to call for the question—Why not be happy and encourage more prohibition, and continue to get our various stimulants easily?

Then, there is a vast amount of concern manifested over the apparently opposite argument, that enforcement is a farce, a failure, and one of the things that "can't be done"; and follow this with all sorts of blocks and opposition to enforcement, opposition to appropriations for it, antagonism to law enforcement officials, and making it easy, whenever possible, for the illicit business in liquors to flourish.

Again, the same wet propaganda is directed against the penalties that are imposed on offenders. Heavy fines and long imprisonment are horrible examples of legal extremity, when all one has to do to avoid these penalties is to stop getting in their way. And the heavier these penalties the prediction is made that the result will merely be still greater determination to still further disrespect the law, which happens to mean the Constitution of the United States.

The Jones bill, for instance, that has just passed Congress, is, in the opinion of the wets and their high-brow advocates of the wet press, the culmination of iniquity against a free people. And, they are not satisfied to wait for a trial of it, but are positive that it will make matters worse rather than better, which means encouragement of bootlegging and law violation, as has always been the wet attitude.

Majority Sentiment.

Every once in a while one man with a lot of what we call "personal magnetism," and who attaches his talents to an interesting side of a public question, secures a great following and sometimes succeeds in being chosen to high public office; sometimes, not always. The late William Jennings Bryan, one of the greatest orators this country ever produced is a conspicuous example of the not always. Mr. Bryan drew admiring throngs to hear his eloquences, but did not succeed in getting the votes of his crowds. He had many followers, too, but not near enough for the success of his strongly exercised personal influence.

As a notable example of the same truth from another angle we had here in Maryland, last fall, the election of Mr. Goldsborough as U. S. Senator, and Mr. Clark, as Member of the House from the Second district. Neither of these men had the influence of a single Baltimore city newspaper, but their opposition. Newspaper influence could not defeat them.

What happened in both illustrations, was, that there was something stronger than Mr. Bryan's eloquence, and the influence in a controlled field by the Baltimore newspapers; and the "something stronger" in both cases was the intelligence and self-determination on the part of the voters. No longer can a monopoly of a newspaper field, or the brilliant championship of a few individuals, put an issue over contrary to aroused public sentiment.

Men who occupy the pulpit are better equipped than ever before to preach the Gospel, but there is hardly any evidence of a substantial character that they are producing greater results. More of what we call "salesmanship" is now required to "put over" increased sales than was required fifty years ago and so is more and better advertising required.

What we are trying to establish, is, that the general public is now less susceptible to spell-binders, and to those whose business it is to direct public sentiment; and that there is more independence of thought and less of individual following of mere leaders than ever before in the history of this country.

Does this mean that the masses are more intelligent? May it be that there is merely more of individual smartness? Have we more of conceit and hard-headedness among the masses? We are not so much interested in what the answers may be, as in the fact that the experience of the average business or professional man is, that business transactions with the people are decidedly more difficult to carry on now, than at any time in the previous history of business.

Is this then an argument that newspaper influence is entirely lacking, or that eloquence is no longer a power, or that preaching lacks effectiveness, or that advertising is a foolish expenditure. Not at all. We rather emphasize the fact—as we see it—that public sentiment is growing less easy to direct; that majorities no longer depend on the registered vote recorded by party affiliation; that majority rule is nearer than it has been for a long while; and that those who aspire to leadership, have greatly more chance of succeeding if they follow the crowd, than if they try to lead it where it is in doubt about going.

Call For a New Party.

The Dry Democrats of America must be prepared either to become Republicans, or to accept Smith leadership and go in for a wet party and program, or to form a new, dry liberal party. There now seems to be no other choice. Their main hope would seem to lie in the formation of a new party, for the platform and policies of Smith so radically changed and upset old time Democratic traditions on tariff, finance and other time-honored Democratic principles that a Jacksonian would hardly recognize his party in its new Tammany-Raskob trappings.

The call, then, is for a new party. The call comes to the Bryan-McAdoo elements who can no longer follow a Smith-wet program and be true to their inmost convictions. A new liberalism must arise out of the wretched, shifting policies forced upon democracy in the recent campaign. We are at 1954 and 56 again. The greatest moral issue since slavery has again split a historic party, and may have killed it, so that from its ashes can rise a new party to express once more the hopes and the visions of men.—The Woman Voter.

A Nine Billion Dollar Congress, and Why.

While the Seventieth Congress, by appropriating $9,291,000,000 at its two sessions, broke all peace-time records, the charge of extravagance does not lie at its door. The only unsatisfactory feature is that at its second session, Congress, for the first time since the institution of the budget system, authorized outlays exceeding the estimates. But this excess amounted to only about $6,000,000. The budget called for $4,657,700,000 and the short-session appropriations were $4,663,000,000. The Seventieth Congress spent half a billion dollars more than its predecessor.

When Mr. Coolidge submitted his budget at the beginning of the late Congress, a year ago in December, it was apparent that the reduction of governmental expenditures, which had been in progress during the liquidation of the post-war burdens, had about reached its limit. He continued to preach rigid economy and warned against radical reduction of taxes, but forwarded estimated outlays for each of the departments in 1929 larger than the actual appropriations for 1928. They marked an increase of $244,000,000 over the preceding year's budget. Later he was compelled to add to the estimates.

The increased cost of running the Government is accounted for not only by the sums allotted to flood control, public-building construction and tax refunds, but by a multiplicity of smaller items reflecting the normal expansion of ordinary public services. The investment for national defense, including the air forces, has been steadily increasing.

The first "billion-dollar Congress" frightened the country. Now appropriations almost five times as large at a single session are received with equanimity because it is realized that the country has grown and the Government is doing much more for its citizens than formerly. Treasury officials predict that the "five-billion-dollar session" will soon be the rule. The essential factor is the balanced budget. With this in effect, the public debt decreasing according to the prescribed program and perhaps some additional relief to taxpayers, there will be small complaint regarding congressional "extravagance." And President Hoover is pledged to continue the policy of economy which, it is well to remember, consists in wise spending as well as in prudent saving.—Phila. Ledger.

Ailing Heart Requires Quiet, Rest to Get Well

Take care of your heart. You have only one. You give it a huge amount of work to do and it does it without telling you how you are mistreating it. But when it does rebel and tells you, pay attention to the warnings.

This is the advice of Dr. Louis M. Warfield, writing in Hygeia, the health magazine published by the American Medical Association.

Doctor Warfield describes the evidence of a worn-out heart. You are short of breath on exertion that had not previously produced distress. You may notice that your shoes are tight in the evenings, but that you have no difficulty in putting them on the next morning. Then one day you take cold; the next day you are short of breath. You have a distressing cough and your feet are swollen.

As soon as the symptoms are relieved the average person wants to get up, rather than go about slowly and gradually getting back to his usual activity. It would not be unmitigated bad fortune for a person with a bad heart to have a broken leg, too, Doctor Warfield declares.

One Birthday Present Bobby Surely Needed

"Next Thursday is my birthday, daddy," Bobby announced one evening.

"Uh-huh," grunted dad, without looking up from his paper.

But Bobby was not to be put off that easily. He came over and climbed up on dad's lap.

"I say, daddy, next Thursday is my birthday."

"Well, well; so it is," dad agreed. "And how old will my little pal be?"

"Six," Bobby answered importantly.

"Six years old," mused dad. "Quite a lad, aren't you? And what would you like to have for a birthday present?"

"There's lots of things I'd like to have."

"But you can't have a lot of things, Bobby. Tell me just one that you'd like to have most of all."

Bobby studied desperately. This was an important occasion.

"Well, dad," he decided, "I believe I'd like to have a new bank that mamma can't get nickels out of with a hairpin."

Origination of Term "Old Glory"

The origin of the term "Old Glory" is contained in a letter written by Robert S. Rantoul, president of the Essex Institute, Salem, Mass., where the flag about which it was said is still kept. According to a report, Captain Driver of Salem in 1831 commanded the brig Charles Doggett, which sailed on its famous voyage which resulted in the rescue of the mutineers of the British ship Bounty. A letter acknowledging this service contains Driver's autograph, dated November 16, 1880, and bears the words "My ship, my country and my flag, Old Glory." It may be fairly assumed, therefore, that the phrase "Old Glory" originated with Captain Driver. The flag which was so designated by him was presented to him by a friend before starting on this voyage.

An Odd Letter Box

A quaint letter box is to be found on one of the front doors of Connaught place, London. It is in the form of a man's head, through the vertically elongated mouth of which the letters are put. The mouth is so very widely opened that it almost makes one's jaws ache in laughing sympathy.

The bell (an old-fashioned wire-pulling one) is still more quaint. Again a man's face is the model, and, in order to ring the bell, you must catch hold of his protruding tongue, and pull it well out!

In Stratford-on-Avon they have been making use of William Shakespeare as a door knocker for very many years, though not with such liberty as this existing in London.

Thumb Index to Mentality

The thumb is said to be an excellent indicator of character. Those who are in full possession of all their faculties make good use of their thumbs. Wherever there is a tendency to insanity this generally useful and active member falls out of work. A physician in charge of a lunatic asylum states positively that if you see a person whose thumb remains inactive—standing at right angles and taking no part in the act of writing, salutation, or manual exercise generally—you may be sure that he has a diseased mind. He may talk intelligently and appear sane in every respect, but undoubtedly a tinge of madness is lurking within his brain.

Breaking the News

Husband—Did she win?
Wife—She won $50.
Husband—My goodness! I'll say she was lucky.
Wife—And, honey—
Husband—Yes?
Wife—I was the only one who lost.

Plying His Trade

Magistrate (to prisoner arrested for gambling)—What trade do you follow?
Prisoner—I'm a locksmith, your worship.
Magistrate—What were you doing when Constable Jones entered the room?
Prisoner—Making a bolt for the door, your worship! Montreal Star.

THE WAY OF TODAY
OUR telephone rings. It's 'way downstairs. And, of course, you are 'way upstairs. That's always the way. Life is just full of such handicaps. There's only one thing for you to do—run downstairs as quickly as possible, for telephone calls must be answered promptly.
How much better it would be if you had extension telephones upstairs—perhaps two or more,—in the bedrooms and guest rooms. An extension should also be in the living room, another in the pantry—in fact, there should be a telephone wherever and whenever needed.
THE TELEPHONE WAY IS THE WAY OF TODAY
THE CHESAPEAKE & POTOMAC TELEPHONE COMPANY of BALTIMORE CITY
Extension telephones give a world of comfort and convenience, and at very little cost. Ask your Business Office people about them.

A Benefactor Of Mankind
THE monument, shown below, to Louis Pasteur, was recently unveiled and dedicated in Grant Park, Chicago, at the west end of the Field Museum in the fine open plaza between that structure and Michigan Boulevard. It is peculiarly appropriate that this monument should have been erected in this great center of our nation's food supplies. Pasteur was the man, who, among other things, perfected the process of canning discovered by Nicholas Appert, another Frenchman. Without the modern commercial canning industry, neither Chicago nor any of our other great cities could exist, since it would be impossible to assemble sufficient food in any other form to feed their teeming populations.
A Great Discoverer
Pasteur was eminent in many fields. This latest monument to him was built by local subscription from more than a thousand contributors, including medical societies, Chicago French societies, and other organizations and individuals. On the opposite side of the shaft from that shown in this picture is a bronze plate which explains their motives as follows:
LOUIS PASTEUR 1822-1895
Benefactor of Industries, Revealer of Mysteries of Diseases of Man and Animals and Discoverer of Methods for Its Control, Whose Discoveries Have Lessened Suffering and Prolonged Life and Added Immensurably to the Comfort, Security and Dominion of Man.
The most dramatic of Pasteur's discoveries was his treatment for rabies, now in practically universal use wherever civilization has spread, but it was his perfection of the canning process which undoubtedly "prolonged life and added immeasurably to the comfort, security and dominion of man."

RESOLUTIONS

From Taneytown Lodge No. 36, K. of P., of Taneytown, Md.

Whereas, the Angel of death, that Messenger of whose vibration no mortal is exempt, has called to his eternal rest our Brother WILLIAM W. WITHEROW, thereby taking a link from the chain of our earthly fraternity and adding a link to the golden chain, that binds us to the innumerable brotherhood in the great beyond, and

Whereas, We deeply feel our loss, and how in humble submission to the inevitable summons, therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend to the family and friends our heartfelt sympathy in this hour of sorrow, and further

Resolved, That our charter be draped with the emblem of mourning, and that a page of our records be devoted to the memory of him whose loss we are called upon to mourn; be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be inserted in The Carroll Record and a copy sent to the bereaved home.

Radio Sets All Over World.

Radio sets are now in use in practically every country, with nearly half the world total in the United States, Department of Commerce records reveal.

Broadcasting stations are operating near the Arctic Circle, on the Equator. And far down in the Southern Hemisphere. From Greenland to Ceylon and from Yugoslavia to China radio sets are being tuned in to catch practically the same type of programs as are given in the United States.

There are in use throughout the world today, according to Lawrence D. Batson of the electrical division of the department who made the survey, more than 20,000,000 radio sets, nearly half of these being in the United States. Great Britain and Germany have approximately 2,500,000 each; France has 1,250,000; Japan 550,000; and Argentina 530,000. The countries next in order of importance are Sweden, with 371,000 sets; Austria, with 325,000, and Czechoslovakia and Italy each with 250,000.

More than 95 percent of the radio sets on the continent of North America are in the United States, and Japan has about the same proportion of the total for Asia. Argentina possesses more than half the sets in South America, while in Europe, Great Britain, Germany and France together account for 75 percent of the total. The Union of South Africa has about 90 percent of all the radio sets in Africa.

Outside of the United States it is the general rule for owners of radio sets to pay a license fee to their respective Governments. These taxes ranging from as low as 5 cents in France to $18 in Salvador. The British tax is $2.45, the German $5.70, the Australian $5.85, while the Japanese owner of a radio set must pay in the vicinity of $9.—Balto. News.

"Inside" Information for Women.

The flavor of pineapple combines unusually well with that of cream or cottage cheese. Honolulu salad consists of a slice of pineapple on a bed of lettuce with a ball or cube of cheese in the center and mayonnaise dressing. The cheese is sometimes mixed with chopped nuts or green pepper or pimento, and seasoned with salt. It may be put through a potato ricer and sprinkled over the pineapple. Chopped pineapple and cheese make an excellent sandwich spread.

Carbon tetrachloride has been found to be the best solvent for removing stains made by cod-liver oil on non-washable materials. If the material may be washed, soap and warm water may be tried first. For very fresh stains, part of the oil may be absorbed by blotting paper, fuller's earth, brown paper, or other absorbents. If the stain is old a bleaching agent may be necessary on white fabrics after using a solvent. Farmers' Bulletin 1474 on stain removal gives detailed directions for taking out stains of all kinds from fabrics.

Fry small fish over a low even heat, in a small amount of good-flavored fat, using a heavy skillet. Such fish as perch, butterfish, spots, or smelts, are wiped dry, rolled in flour or corn meal, and put into hot fat without crowding. Reduce the temperature and cook evenly and slowly until a brown crust is formed. Turn carefully and cook on the other side. If turned too soon the fish may break and soak up fat. Filets of flounder and haddock are often rolled in egg and bread crumbs and fried in deep fat, but they may also be floured and cooked like small fish. Serve a section of lemon for squeezing over the fish with each portion. Send fish to the table very hot on a hot platter as soon as cooked.

Variety in London

Odd conditions are frequently brought to light in connection with the boroughs in London. Often opposite sides of streets are in different boroughs. One pavement will be illuminated by incandescent gas; across the road electric light is used. The dustbins of the "odds" are more frequently emptied than those of the "evens." A child living at No. 41 may attend a school from which No. 42's infants are debarred. And in certain districts it is quite common to see, at the closing hour of a public house on one side of the road, little groups crossing the street to where an extra half-hour's license permits of "just another!"

"Corn" or "Maize"

An English writer says: "What a pity it is that we cannot come to some agreement with North America about 'corn' and 'maize.' Corn with us means wheat. Across the Atlantic it means maize. So when I read, as I have done just now, that paper has been successfully made from 'corn stalks,' I don't know what is meant. On this paper a daily journal has been printed in the state of Kansas. This looks like being a discovery of far-reaching consequence."

WHAT PRICE SUCCESS?

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

BILL met Celia in the public library by appointment. It was raining or they would have gone for a walk. It was impossible ever to have a quiet talk at Celia's home, where the five rooms were crowded with grownups and children. Here they had a corner to themselves. With a book propped open upon the table before them they carried on an earnest conversation in whispers. The elderly librarian ignored their conference, which was just a bit against the rules. But she had been young herself. Besides, she recognized the fact that this boy and this girl were in the midst of some sort of crisis. The way they looked at each other spelled romance with a tinge of tragedy.

Bill was slim, supple, vigorous. He had gray eyes, dark hair, a clear skin. Only his hands showed how hard he worked for a living. He was a line-man for the local telephone company. Celia was slight, strong, blue-eyed, auburn-haired. She looked almost smart in last year's hat and a made-over suit. She was a stenographer in a law office.

"What's the matter with our getting married?" asked Bill.

"We can't be married at all," Celia turned her eyes from his hurt surprise. But she went on desperately. "It's all foolishness our ever having thought we could get married. Listen to me—and to reason, Bill. You've got to help your folks. I've got to help mine. We haven't a cent to get married on." She paused abruptly, aware that in the force of her argument she had torn her handkerchief into bits. Even though it was an old handkerchief she shouldn't have done that. Handkerchiefs cost money like everything else. Except love. And it looked as if that was going to cost something, too; more than she could afford. "I can't play the slacker when dad is doing all he can," she said. "Prissy and Dot want to go through business school just the way I did. They want good jobs, too. They went without things while I was taking my course. Oh, don't you see, Bill, I can't pass it all up and get married and leave dad to buck the game all alone! Especially now when the leg he hurt that time is troubling him again."

Bill was doing sums with his forefinger on the polished top of the table. There was a deep line between his gray eyes.

"You mind being poor, don't you?" he asked.

A painful flush dyed Celia's face. Yes, she did mind being poor. She was ambitious. She wanted to get ahead. A tidy sum in the bank against a rainy day was Celia's idea of security. She knew what rainy days meant. So did Bill. But he wanted Celia with his whole soul and heart. "I don't want to stand in your way," he said, after he had studied Celia's face a moment. "I—I want you to have whatever you want. Maybe we'd better call it off."

Next day Celia found that he had given up his job and left town. He had gone out West somewhere to one of those remote sections where a good lineman, provided he doesn't mind loneliness and hardship, can get splendid wages.

Celia had never dreamed of such a thing. Even though she didn't see her way clear to marry Bill she still wanted him near, where she could speak to him occasionally. Her world went suddenly void. Nothing seemed to matter but her work.

She got an evening job in a clipping bureau and almost doubled her pay. She began to save every cent she could rake and scrape. Some time, perhaps, when Prissy and Dot had the good jobs she would help them to, they would pay her back.

At first she heard from Bill through mutual friends. She understood. He was trying to forget her. Well, she hoped he wouldn't have as bad a time of it as she was having. Somehow she felt that she would never again want to marry any man. Bill was all in all. No other man could ever measure up to him in honesty, truth and honor, and she would have no less.

Bill's family began to look prosperous. His mother had a nurse when she was sick. As soon as she recovered she took the boys and went West to Bill.

Celia's family, too, began to show the effects of her money earning. Her mother went marketing mornings with an assured air. They had a good beef roast Sundays. Dad got a new suit. Prissy and Dot began to look forward to business school.

Then suddenly the manager of the clipping bureau which employed Celia evenings had a nervous breakdown. She was ordered away for rest and quiet. And Celia gave up her law office job to handle the affairs of the bureau.

For two years she slaved to keep the business running on a paying basis. But she didn't have the chance she wanted. Mrs. Grant had ways that didn't coincide with Celia's ideas. There was little hope of Mrs. Grant ever coming back to take charge of the bureau herself. Celia talked things over with her family. Prissy and Dot had just finished their business courses. They agreed to help their sister for nominal wages or none at all until she could get things going good. Dad had a bit of cash to offer. And so Celia became owner and manager of the bureau, which was conducted on the dimly lighted top floor of a shabby old building where the rent was cheap.

Eight years passed. The history of those eight years if written would consist of just one struggle after another, struggles to pay bills, get subscribers, keep accounts, gather in necessary data. Prissy and Dot after a year of it got other jobs. Celia didn't blame them. She couldn't afford to pay them what they deserved. She hired a couple of rather inefficient but willing workers and did the rest herself. Her day began at six and ended at eleven. Always when she locked the door she found dad waiting to accompany her home. And mom had hot soup waiting for her.

Gradually Celia won. Gradually she began to find herself possessor of a bank account, a business reputation, a sense of self-confidence.

She moved her business into a new block, where she had plenty of space, fine windows with lettering on them, heat, light, good ventilation. She added to her working force. She went to the city for her clothes. Trim, shingled, marcelled, she looked the ideal business woman who has won success. Her town folks admired and envied her. Only she knew what her success had cost her.

Gilbert Owen asked her to marry him. She looked into his kind eyes and hesitated. Why not? He was wealthy, healthy, reputable. As mistress of the wonderful house his wife had left vacant a year or so before she could have everything which is supposed to make a woman happy. And she could rest. She realized that she was really tired. Brief vacations at the seashore or on motor trips did not bring the required ease. She wanted a home of her own, not just the best room in dad and mom's new house.

"No," she said with a final shake of her head, "I can't. I have a notion that marriage isn't marriage without love. I don't love. So that's that."

One morning she sat down at her desk before a stack of mail that had come in answer to a form letter that her secretary had sent out. Among the letters was a formal message from Bill. He wanted her to send him a scrapbook of clippings about himself. "My family and friends demand it," he added. "Your form letter was handed to me by a friend."

What had Bill done? Celia didn't know until she started to make that scrapbook. Then she found out. Why, Bill was manager of a big corporation, up for office. His pictures showed him a trifle stout, but hearty and genial. Bill, too, was a success.

Celia made the scrapbook with her own hands and sent it with a congratulatory note. Bill's secretary sent a check signed by Bill. Nothing else.

Two months later Bill walked into her office. They shook hands, sat down for a visit.

"How do you find the top of the ladder, Celia?" he asked.

"How do you find it?" she retorted. "Darned lonesome."

Celia looked away from his eyes. She smiled faintly. "If you want another scrapbook—" she began irrelevantly.

"I want you!" said Bill.

Horned Toads Used in War on Insects

There has developed a growing business of collecting horned toads and selling them to tourists. The specimens so vended as a rule are taken from their native homes, maintained in captivity for a time and in most cases finally starved to death. In any event they are certainly removed as possible breeders of their kind. Fear has been expressed that the horned toad business is making too great inroads on the stock in some regions, and there is demand that the business be controlled.

Friends of the horned toad have reasons for their demands for protection, because these animals are valuable allies in the never-ceasing warfare between man and insects, according to the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. They feed almost exclusively on insects, and take such destructive kinds as grasshoppers, caterpillars, wireworms, blister beetles, leaf beetles, weevils and chinch bugs. They prey especially on ants, pests of man, which are troublesome in temperate and calamitous in tropical countries. Horned toads make ants a considerable proportion of their whole food and have been known actually to exterminate a colony of the large and destructive harvester ants.

Horned toads in reality are lizards, as shown by their scaly covering, and not toads, animals that have smooth, moist skins. They have short tails, while toads in the adult state have none. Horned toads give birth to living young, and have the extraordinary power under certain conditions of ejecting fine jets of blood from the eyelids. Horned toads occur in states from Missouri to Idaho and South and West. They are interesting as well as useful members of the native fauna, and states should see to it that they are not commercialized out of existence.

Salt Box Houses

A salt box house has a lean-to built against it, usually on the windward side, so that the line of the roof slope on that side is extended almost down to the ground. It is said that a colony of salt makers built the first houses of this type; also that the salt-boxes of colonial days were of something the same shape.

It was a frequently used style of New England colonial house.

GHOSTLY BANDS PUT SOUNDS IN MOVIES

Snores and Snorts Linked to Pictures at Night.

Hollywood, Calif.—It is the darkest middle of the night and the great studio sprawls like a town of fantastic shadows between the dry river bed and the barren hills.

One supposes there is a night watchman somewhere on the lot, but apparently he does not see the dim figures slinking one by one toward a barnlike structure, each carrying something, and each disappearing through the same small door in the building.

Heading away from the studio, they might have been taken for burglars escaping with their loot, but under the circumstances it is more reasonable to guess they are conspirators of another sort.

The interior of the building is dimly lit, but by mingling casually with the crowd one can see very clearly what they carried in—two saxophones, a galvanized-iron washtub full of tin cans, a cornet, a tuba, a clothes wringer, three phonographs, a school bell, several cowbells, a hand-operated alarm gong, three sizes of electric bells, innumerable tin, brass and wooden whistles, many assorted pieces of wood and metal, half a dozen panes of window glass and a metal cylinder of compressed air.

Jolly Looking Conspirators.

Obviously these are not the paraphernalia of arsonists or dynamiters; and, besides, even in the dim light, the conspirators have a jolly look.

It begins to look more like preparations for an old-fashioned charivari. Before one can ask who was married, however, the head conspirator explains everything:

"Our job tonight," says he, "is to synchronize Oswald the Rabbit."

Oswald, one learns, is the pen-and-ink hero of an animated cartoon which, in keeping with the modern craze for screen sound, must be embellished with music and noise-effects.

Six musicians, skilled in leaping nimbly from tune to tune in harmony with the action on the screen, take their places under one microphone.

Another microphone hangs near the table where all the bells and whistles are spread. A large man in overalls sits near the tubful of tin cans with a wooden paddle in his hands, as it waits for the cauldron to boil; the other conspirators stand here and there between the microphones, ready to make the right noises at the right times.

Rehearse at Showing.

They rehearse with the picture running on the screen in front of them. As the main title of the comedy appears on the screen the orchestra leaps into an overture, while the other sound-smiths stand tensely waiting for their cues.

When the opening scene discloses Oswald sleeping in his bed, the orchestra dodges quickly into a cradle song while a lad within whispering distance of a microphone snores rhythmically and another specialist imitates the squeaking of the bed by running sole leather through the clothes wringer.

After each rehearsal the recording engineer in the sound-mixing booth, who hears all this as it will sound to an audience, suggests improvements.

And again and again the mixed symphony of harmonies and discords is rehearsed; then, "This is the picture, boys," and they go through it once more, with the sound-recording apparatus registering everything on celluloid.

Along about sunrise the sound-smiths call it a night and go home, tired and hungry, but with a little glow of pride at the thought that their artistry has made it possible for the world to hear as well as see Oswald the Rabbit.

Metals Found in Scotland

The precious metals exist in several Scottish counties. The ancient Celts made their wonderful brooches, and other trinkets of native gold, probably gathered from the beds of streams. In the sixteenth century the metal was extensively mined in Lanarkshire. Pennant describes a nugget weighing one and a half ounces which was discovered on Crawford Muir. Some years ago, a local writer, Doctor Watson, collected a fair amount of gold in small grains from the Wanlockhead district.

Popular Scottish Stone

One of the stones that has never waned in popularity is the Cairngorm. This splendid stone is a variety of rock crystal found in the Cairngorm mountains in Inverness-shire, Scotland, and also in the Grampians. In color it ranges from light orange to deep brown. The Cairngorm is made into various articles of jewelry, which find a ready sale, especially amongst tourists visiting Scotland. From time immemorial it has been used to decorate the dirks and brooches worn with Highland dress.

Get Set

This thing of jumping around from one job to another may make you acquainted with a lot of scenery. But it will never make you acquainted with success. Stick with your job long enough to call it by its first name. —G-r

Persia Has Salt Lake Larger Than Dead Sea

Five thousand feet above sea level in Persia is to be found a huge, salty inland lake. It is known as Urmia and is 250 miles around, covering an area of 1,600 square miles, and boasts of some 56 islands. It is among the highest bodies of salt water on the globe.

Ninety miles long by some thirty wide, it completely dwarfs the Dead Sea, something like a mile and a quarter lower in level, and contains a greater percentage of salts in solution.

Urmia is fed by a number of small streams and is the catch basin for a considerable area, but as it has no outlet whatever except evaporation the salt that comes in stays in. Constant leaching by the streams brings in a continuous supply of salt, and given enough, this results in a salt lake, for while the evaporation takes care of the water it must leave the salt behind.

And this is what has happened to Urmia. For years and years it has been becoming saltier and saltier, probably exceeded in this respect only by Karabugas, the salt water annex of the Caspian sea. No fish live in it.

Many English Words Are Arabic in Origin

The Arabs have given the English-speaking people more words to express their thoughts than any other of the Semitic, Asiatic or African groups.

"When in summer you wear your 'mohair' or 'cotton' suit, avoid 'alcohol,' enjoy 'sherbet' with 'candy' and 'coffee' with 'sugar,' or lie on a 'sofa' or 'mattress' reading a 'magazine,' you are drawing on that vocabulary," Prof. Philip K. Hitti of Princeton told the Linguistic Society of America.

"In a complete English lexicon, Arabic would figure in no less than 198 entries under the letter A alone."

Many of these words have come into English indirectly through the romance languages, he said, but Arabic also has served as a medium for transmitting a number of words of Greek, Latin, Persian, Sanskrit, Egyptian, Turkish, Coptic or Hindustani origin, such as apricot, azure, borax, camphor and ebony.

Legal Knots Untied by Chinese Solomon

In a village near Peking, China, four tradesmen clubbed together to buy cotton. To protect it from rats they procured a cat, and agreed that each of them owned one of the animal's legs.

Soon afterwards the cat hurt one of its paws, and the owner of that particular leg bound it up with a rag soaked in oil. But the cat went too near the fire, the bandage ignited, and the terrified animal rushed amongst the bales of cotton, which flared up and were destroyed.

The three owners of the uninjured legs sued their partner for loss and damages. The judge ruled thus:

"Since the cat was unable to use the injured leg, the cotton was set on fire by the action of the three uninjured legs on which the cat ran among the bales of cotton. Consequently these three legs were guilty, and their owners must pay damages and costs."

Home

The word "home" is indeed like unto an alabaster box of ointment, very precious, whose fragrance fills the life. Into it has been gathered our most sacred memories, our tenderest associations, our brightest hopes. It matters little whether the home of one's childhood has been a cottage on the hillside or a house in some city street—round it is woven a romance of interest that grows with the years; to it, from distant places alike of work and thought travels back the heart with wistful regret.—Exchange.

Drake's Drum

There is a legend in Devon, that in times of danger to England a booming sound is heard, as of the playing of a gigantic drum. This has been called Drake's drum. It being popularly supposed that the famous admiral is thus endeavoring to awaken the people to the realization of danger. There is no actual drum, of course. After the World War broke out there were many who declared that they had heard this "drum" on the night of the 4th of August, 1914.

Modern Superstitions

School children in London still wear charms against various evils, according to a recent survey. Blue beads are worn to ward off colds. Forty per cent of the youngsters are addicted to wearing amulets of various sorts.

No Law Against Thinking

Even very small girls have their quarrels and following one of them this little girl came home to her mother much exercised over their little difficulty.

"Mother, Mary Lou is a cat," the one little girl said, probably echoing a term she had heard older people use.

"Oh you mustn't say such things," her mother reprimanded, "you mustn't say things like that about your little playmates. Lots of times we may think things that we shouldn't say." "Well, then, I think Mary Lou is a cat," was the reply.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for March 17

THE CHRISTIAN'S SABBATH

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:8-11; Matthew 12:1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—For the Son of man is Lord even of the Sabbath Day.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Day, Sunday.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Day, Sunday.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Keeping the Lord's Day.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Lord's Day in Modern Life.

The designation "Christian's Sabbath" is a misnomer. The word "Sabbath" has a definite meaning. It signifies rest, cessation from action. When God had finished the heavens and earth, He desisted from creative action (Gen. 2:1-3). Since God's creative work was completed in six days, He ceased from action on the seventh day, which was therefore called the Sabbath, or Rest Day. Five definite objects may be assigned to the Sabbath:

1. To commemorate the work of creation (Gen. 2:3, cf. Ex. 20:11).
2. To keep alive the knowledge of the true God. Creation witnesses of a creator. Keeping the Sabbath in mind kept in mind the creation, and the creation made real the Creator.
3. A forward look to the time when man shall enjoy full fellowship with God (Heb. 4:1-10).
4. To Israel it was a sign of the covenant between them and God (Deut. 5:12-15).
5. It was made for man's well-being (Mark 2:27).

At least while man's earthly condition continues, the Sabbath is needed to keep a proper balance between his body and his soul.

I. The Fourth Commandment (20:8-11).

1. Obligations enjoined (20:8-11).

(1) Work through six days.

The command to work six days is just as binding as the command to rest the seventh day. In fact, it can be no rest unless there first is work.

(2) Rest on the seventh day (v. 10).

There must be cessation from all work on the Sabbath. Since God gave the example and then sanctified the day, it should be kept holy. It was not only to give relief to the physical body but to be a time when man's thought would be turned to God. It was designed to keep fresh in his mind the consciousness of God and His mercies. The human spirit should be refreshed by the study of God's Word.

2. How this commandment may be broken.

(1) By engaging in labor or pursuing business interests on this sacred day.

(2) By devoting it to amusements, since it was designed to keep fresh in mind the consciousness of God.

(3) By making it a day of feasting.

II. The Son of Man is Lord of the Sabbath (Matt. 12:1-8).

1. The hungry disciples plucking corn (v. 1).

This took place on the Sabbath day and became the occasion for criticism.

2. The Pharisees finding fault (v. 2).

They asserted that Christ's disciples were breaking the law, when in reality they were only violating the traditions with which the law was encumbered. The Lord's purpose in instituting the Sabbath was to conserve man's highest interest and contribute to his happiness. It is extremely unfortunate when human tradition is elevated above the Word of God.

3. Christ's reply to the cavils of the Pharisees (v. 3-8).

In this reply He shrewdly answered the Pharisees and pressed His transcendent claim as to the dignity of His person. This claim moved them to plot His death. As to His claim, observe:

(1) He is greater than their greatest king (v. 3, 4). David, when rejected, was forced to do that which was unlawful for him to do (I Sam. 1). Because they had rejected the one greater than David, the plucking of the ears of corn became a necessity.

(2) He is greater than their sacrifice and priesthood (v. 5). If the priests, because of their position and services, could violate the Sabbath laws and be blameless, much more the One greater than they in performing His work of sacrifice and redemption for them should be considered guiltless. He was the true sacrifice and priest.

(3) He is greater than the temple (v. 6). The temple, with all its gorgeous rites and ceremonies, was typical of Christ. Much more then did He have the right to do what He did.

(4) He is greater than the Sabbath (v. 8), because He is Lord of the Sabbath.

Great Task of Happiness

It was for the joy that was set before Him that our Lord endured the Cross, despising the shame. The joy of the Ascension is but an echo of the joy of Bethlehem, and the task of Christ was one "great task of happiness."

To Gladden Our Hearts

Loves' labors often precede His sufferings. He lifts to get rid of the shaft, and He lifts to gladden our hearts.—Selected.

Faithy to Her "Folks"

Old "Mammy's" Passion

Unswerving faithy to her "white folks" was an outstanding characteristic of the old-time "mammy." The instances are many where even after her emancipation she remained with the family to which she had belonged to succeeding generations. She not only waited on "Old Miss" during life and closed her eyes when she fell asleep in death, but she was present at the birth of all the children and helped to rear them, and mayhap to perform the same office for the grandchildren and great-grandchildren. When "Young Miss" was married "mammy" usually exercised her prerogative of being the first to kiss the bride and "mammy's" osculatory evidence not only was sincere and genuine, but it was regarded as good luck.

Often "mammy's" own "white folks" became financially embarrassed and lost everything, but "mammy" did not desert them. On the other hand, she invariably stuck to them through thick and thin and was willing to share any reverses to which they might be subjected. Hers was a devotion that was strong and lasting.

Her "white folks" might forgive an enemy, but "mammy" never forgot or forgave one who wronged any of her people. Often she took the family name with which she was so long identified and in death many of the old-time "black mammies" sleep in the family burial plot in a grave reserved for them. In many graveyards the epitaph on her tombstone bears witness to the fidelity of some negro "mammy."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Differ Over Beginning of First Civilization

There are two independent theories as to the origin of civilization. The older theory is that the human mind is such that, given an opportunity, it will produce a civilization. But this does not account for the similarity of customs found in all civilizations, and so there exists the alternate theory that civilization started from a definite center, from which it spread.

In his book, "In the Beginning: The Origin of Civilization," Elliot Smith, the chief exponent of the latter theory sets this center in upper Egypt, on the banks of the Nile, and the time about 4000 B. C. The determining cause he believes to have been an abundant crop of wild barley, which caused man to give up his roaming life for a favorable climate and an assured food supply. Leap periods led to the invention of methods of storage, and this taught the greatest thing ever discovered by man—the function of the seed in plant growth. Having reached this stage, the further growth of civilization is not difficult to visualize.

No Perpetual Motion

Perpetual motion has never been successfully demonstrated. The views of the Patent office are in accord with those of the scientists who have investigated the subject, and are to the effect that mechanical perpetual motion is a physical impossibility. These views can be rebutted only by the exhibition of a working model. Many persons have filed applications for patents on perpetual motion, but such applications have been rejected as unoperative and opposed to well-known physical laws, and in no instance has the requirement of the Patent office for a working model ever been complied with.

Shaking Dice

It's rather discouraging that so many bad habits should be so old. One would think we would have outgrown many things that are almost as old as history and which we show no signs of outgrowing. It is said dice throwing was so popular in India centuries ago that two kings, who had unpronounceable names, staked and lost their kingdoms on the spotted cubes.

As far back as history goes there has been too much of something or other of which there is still too much.

All of which calls for a sense of humor and much patience.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

Farther Still

An Irishman and a Scot found themselves seated side by side at a certain Christmas club dinner and each tried to impress the other with the distance he had traveled.

After much discussion the Irishman admitted that he had sailed the Seven seas amongst other trifles, and that he had been to the end of the world. "An' what did ye see there?" asked the Scot.

"Sure, and there was a great big wall reaching to the sky, me boy," replied the other.

"Ah, weel," said the Scot, "it's a peety ye didna look owre yer wall for I was behind it fishin' ye ken."

Skyscrapers' Value

The Greeks probably were the first to build roofed structures of extensive area, for they are credited with the first use of wooden beams. The Romans made the erection of buildings with even greater area possible by use of the arch and dome. The development of the steel I-beam made really high buildings possible. Our present-day builders have developed skyscraper construction to a degree where valuable ground space can be completely utilized by the erection of a tall building of extensive floor space.

Masterpieces of Pen and Brush Forgotten

A pine tree brings forth many seeds but among the millions that it scatters over the mountainside perhaps but one may survive—treasured, say, by a squirrel, stored underground, springing to life when the uncertainties of existence deprive the squirrel of need for food.

Charles Wesley, it is said, wrote 6,000 hymns, but from this 6,000 probably but one has assurance of immortality—"Jesus Lover of My Soul." Wordsworth was prodigious in sonnets but of the thousands he drafted he published but a few more than 450 and of these less than half a dozen have taken root in popular memory. La Farge burned many of his drawings, left between 50,000 and 60,000, and some critics say he will be fortunate if one of them be remembered a few hundred years from now. Raphael painted scores of madonnas, doubtless sketched hundreds that he never painted, and the world really treasures two—the "Sistine Madonna," and "Madonna della Sedia." The "Sistine," it might be remarked, was not thought much of at the time of its painting, a critic then dismissing it with four lines of comment.—Detroit News.

Determining Mental Age

Mental age is most accurately based upon the individual Terman-Binet test of intelligence. A child is said to have a mental age of ten years, for example, when he passes the tests on the Terman-Binet scale which, it has been found, are passed by a majority of normal ten-year-old children. Terman defines mental age as follows: "By a given mental age we mean that degree of general mental ability as is possessed by the average child of corresponding chronological age."

A Wee Bit Tune

A millionaire who wrote a rather illegible hand took a "place" in the north of Scotland. One night before retiring he sent the head keeper detailed written instructions for the morrow.

Next morning he was awakened very early by the persistent skirling of bagpipes beneath his window. Summoning his man-servant, he asked: "What's that racket?"

"Oh," said the man, "that's Donald, the keeper, playing that wee bit tune ye sent him last night."

Wit of Conversation

The wit of conversation consists more in finding it in others, than in showing a great deal yourself. He who goes out of your company, pleased with his own facetiousness and ingenuity, will the sooner come into it again. Most men had rather please than admire you, and seek less to be instructed and diverted than approved and applauded, and it is certainly the most delicate sort of pleasure, to please another.—Franklin.

"Penny" is Unofficial

The term "penny" has been in general use in this country since the Revolutionary war, but it has never been the official designation of any coin minted in the United States. It is and has been a recognized coin of Great Britain and the coinage of England was used in this country for a number of years after the Revolution, and the use of the term became an established custom at that time and the name became applied to the cent as it was about the same value. The first cents actually minted under the Constitution appeared in 1793.

Teacher's Helper

A kindergarten teacher, who was obliged to leave the room for a few moments, returned just in time to see one mischievous little chap sneaking up the aisle toward the front of the room.

"What are you doing, James?" the teacher asked.

James hesitated a moment; then he replied hopefully:

"I was just coming up front to see if everybody was good."

Sheep Helpless When Turned on Its Back

There are so many ways in which sheep can and do die that it is a wonder any of them are left alive. The most peculiar method of all is that called "dying on their backs." writes A. B. Gilliam in Atlantic Monthly. When horses or dogs roll they either roll all the way over or roll back to the position from which they started; they are unable to balance themselves on their spine, as it were. But when a sheep rolls and reaches a position with its legs pointing upward it is often unable to complete the turn, especially if it has a heavy coat of wool, as is the case in spring.

The reason for this is that a sheep's legs, being very thin, are not able to exert any pull to one side or the other and thus aid the sheep in righting itself. Its only chance is to twist itself violently, in the hope that some movement may turn it on its side. If unsuccessful in this the unnatural position for so a reason causes gas to collect in its body and it begins to bloat. Finally the pressure of this gas on its heart and lungs becomes so terrific that these organs cease to function. If the ewe is found at any time before life is extinct and is turned over on her stomach she will get up, stagger off and deflate, looking meanwhile like a misshapen balloon.

Brides Cling to Old Beliefs About Luck

Wedding superstitions are dying out very slowly, according to a British authority on matrimonial problems.

Although the superstitious bride is now the exception rather than the rule, the question of lucky or unlucky hours, days or months still holds a place in the mind of many a young woman contemplating marriage, he said.

May is usually a lean month for weddings, and there are couples who hesitate to get married on Friday. Others have a dread of the 13th of the month.

More remarkable still is the fact that one o'clock—the thirteenth hour—is very rarely chosen for the wedding ceremony.

Green—which, worn as an emerald, is believed to be a talisman against evil—was long viewed with disfavor as a portion of the wedding dress. In recent years, it has been used more frequently.

Recently, a prospective bride stumbled on the doorstep while about to enter a register office. Had she actually fallen there is little doubt that the ceremony, which was taking place on a Friday, would have had to be postponed till a more propitious time.

Little Change in Scales

There is little or no difference between the scales used today and those used in the days of ancient Egypt, judging by an exhibition in the Science museum, South Kensington, London, recently. Illustrating the history of weighing as far back as is known, a steelyard used by a Roman butcher identical with one of the present day was on show. Modern scales of nickel and enamel, with multi-colored dials, on which the weight can be read in an instant, stood side by side with models showing that centuries ago Leonardo da Vinci designed a self-indicating machine on exactly the same principle.

Flemings in England

Flemish weavers were first established in England by Henry I in Pembrokeshire at the beginning of the Twelfth century, and they seem constantly to have come to England after that time. In Edward III's reign immigration was stimulated when the king offered special rights to the Flemish on condition that they teach Englishmen their trade. Later, in the Sixteenth century, the religious troubles resulted in a substantial emigration of Flemish weavers to England. These immigrants played an important part in the birth of the English woolen industry.

Meat Not Exclusive Food of Red Indians

Among all the American Indians there were no pure hunter tribes. In the north portion of the continent the diet was three-fourths animal food, in the southern part it was three-fourths vegetable, and with the tribes of the coast, mountains, lakes and plains it varied according to the food supply. As a rule the Indian women were cooks of considerable ingenuity and contrary to popular belief the Indians preferred cooked food. They were good at husbandry and after drying their vegetables they sometimes built granaries wherein to store them. Animal food was often dried or frozen, but sometimes was smoked. Fruits were pulped or dried. Nuts were often ground before being stored, as were also maize, grass seeds and the legumes. Potatoes and squashes frequently were stored in holes dug beneath the frost line. The Indians liked salt to flavor their dishes and obtained it sometimes by evaporating the water from salt springs and sometimes by taking the crystals from salt lakes and caves. Many of them were fond of chewing gum, which they got from spruce trees. Savors, flavors and condiments were valued highly.—Detroit News.

Fortune Had Part in Doubling of "Talent"

A Sunday school teacher, after telling the class the parable of the talents, gave each boy a dime, explaining that they were to use their capital during the week and report on the following Sunday how much they had made.

"Now, then," he said to the first boy when they gathered a week later, "how much has your talent gained?"

The boy produced 20 cents and the teacher was delighted.

"Splendid!" he exclaimed, then turned to the second boy.

"And how much have you brought?"

"Nothing, sir."

The teacher's expression changed.

"There, you see," he told the class. "George has used his talent and brought one talent more, while Jimmy has lost the talent he had."

He turned sternly to Jimmy.

"And what has become of your talent?"

"I tossed up with George, sir, and he won."—Weekly Scotsman.

Old American Flag

In 1775 a committee, under Benjamin Franklin as chairman, designed the first flag of the United Colonies. This is said to have been the first official flag, and was hoisted by Washington over his camp in Cambridge and by Capt. John Paul Jones over his fleet early in 1776. It had 13 red and white stripes, representing the 13 United Colonies, with the king's colors, the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew, in the blue canton. The presence of these crosses in the blue field meant that the Colonists were fighting for their rights as Englishmen. It has been called a "flag not of separation but of protest." In those days it was often designated as the congress colors, or the Cambridge flag, and was officially known as the Grand Union flag, and is said to have been designed by Washington.

Daily Thought

Our business in life is not to get ahead of other people, but to get ahead of ourselves. To break our own record, to outstrip yesterdays by today, to bear our trials more beautifully than we ever dreamed we could, to whip the tempter inside and out as we never whipped him before, to give as we never have given, to do our work with more force and a finer finish than ever—this is the true idea—to get ahead of ourselves.—Malbie D. Babcock.

All Life a Struggle

Every man who makes headway in his chosen field of effort must struggle against the current. The fact that a man is a success doesn't mean that he has never experienced adverse conditions, but that he has met and overcome them.—Grit

Destructive Locusts

The cicada or harvest fly is not a locust at all, the true locust being a grasshopper. The periodical cicada or 17-year locust is a large insect about an inch and a half long with wide blunt head and with prominent eyes on the outer angles. It is black, banded and marked with some orange on the abdomen, and it has six reddish legs. It has four shiny transparent wings with network of orange-colored veins. Its life cycle is about 17 years, most of which is spent as a larva or pupa underground. The locust has long hind legs with thickened thighs and narrow leathery wing covers.

Beware "Friendly Enemy"

The original saying, "I fear the Greeks bearing gifts," appears in Vergil's "Aeneid." The reference is to the siege of Troy. The Greeks besieged the city of Troy without success. Finally they resorted to strategy, offering a huge wooden horse to the Trojans as a gift. The horse was taken into the city, and while the Trojans slept the warriors, with which the horse was filled, came forth and opened the gates for their Greek comrades. The conclusion is that one should fear an enemy most when he seems friendliest.

Our Super-Righteousness.

It rarely pays anybody to become so obsessed with the super-righteousness of their own opinions as to condemn all who oppose them. It rarely pays, providing one has a proper regard for the truth that equally honest persons may honestly differ. If one can not concede that, of course there is no ground for argument, and each side must go its own way battling over details, and perhaps laying the foundation for lasting ill-feeling.

"We the people," are just bound to follow different paths. It is not only human nature but liberty of conscience that they should do so. We have this in our religions, in our political convictions, in our moral standards, in our ways of doing things, and in our ways of going somewhere. It is an immovable, unchangeable attribute of life; and without it, life would be a tame experience.

And, it isn't a fact to worry over, and certainly not to seriously quarrel over. Rather, we ought to be glad that there are enough things on which we do happily agree, to make life altogether worthwhile; especially as we do not habitually disagree with the same persons all of the time and on all things.

And we can hold to our own opinions, and lose out on them, without surrendering any vital principle; and there is such a thing as holding them and trying again with more success. All things are not settled right on the first trial. But, whether we win or lose, we should accord to others the same liberties we hold for ourselves.
