CLEARS ROADS BODY OF ALL RESPONSIBILITY

Places all Blame on Employees and the Auditors.

The Grand Inquest Committee made its report, on Tuesday, and cleared the State Roads Commission, including John N. Mackall, chairman, from fault in connection with the peculations of the employees of the Commission; and that the members of the Commission were entitled to rely upon the auditing of the accounts of the officials charged with that duty.

That the Chairman of the Commission, who was also chief engineer of the Commission, manifestly had no time to play the part of an auditor or detective on the work of the office

Under the heading of "Charges of Alleged Petty Dishonesty Against Mackall," the attorneys asserted that the accusations concerning top soil which had been placed on the former chairman's lawn and the testimony that he had given friends desk sets were "relatively trivial" incidents.

However, the attorneys regarded these charges as illustrating the importance of the necessity of "a rigid compliance with all legal requirements and proprieties so that even such minor subjects of criticism may not occur hereafter in connection with anyone holding public office."

The report failed to find that Mr.
Mackall had favored certain contractors, and in general failed to support any of the charges against him, or the Commission; and had nothing to criticise in connection with the celebration and opening of the Crain highway, but at the same time expressed the opinion that the law does not authorize the use of the state's 'money for such purposes without a special appropriation from the legislature.

J. Allison Wilmer, Republican

House leader, in a minority report, declared the investigation of the Grand Inquest to be "farcical" and abounding in "treachery" to the best interests of the state; that the members of the committee were "apparantly blinded by levelty to the present ently blinded by loyalty to the present administration"; that it was clear that the committee acted as one of 'exoneration and justification"; and that "the estimated cost of approximately $60,000 to the state" for the joint meetings," in disinterested service to the state, represented com-plete loss. And very much more along the same line.

Fruit Men Alarmed.

Fruit growers are still concerned about the fruit buds that are rapidly developing everywhere, due to the un usually mild weather so early in the Spring. The danger period is not considered safely past until after April 25 in this latitude. The outlook so far is excellent, the winter having gone by without damage from freezing, and nothing now will prevent a bumper crop of peaches, apples, pears and cherries but late freezes.

NO PAINT ADVERTISEMENT But Worth Reading and Taking into Consideration.

The following article appeared in Tuesday's Philadelphia Ledger, and sounds reasonable.

"This is the season for improvement of properties and for the maximum employment of paint in carrying out plans to give new beauty to dwellings, office buildings and stores. It is the time of year when the ravages made by winter stand out accusingly and call for remedy.

Only a few days ago we looked up-on structures that had been made dingy by the snows and winds of the cold, bleak months and hardly noticed that there was an air of shabbiness about them. But, with the first warm sunshiny days of spring we notice critically the rundown appearance of our homes and our places of business.

Paint is economical in cost and pays good dividends. It is marvelous how our impressions of a house or of an entire neighborhood can be changed from the indifferent to warm approval just by the pleasure the eye experiences in noting the clean, fresh beauty that is imparted by the intelligent use of paint. If colors are wisely chosen a dwelling may be changed from an appearance of age to a semblance of newness in a few days and the thing with which to do it is paint.

It has been my observation that nothing so increases the salability or tends to enhance the price of a home or business building as does the prompt use of paint. I once knew a real estate salesman in Connecticut who specialized in selling old farm-houses to city business men for use as summer homes. The buildings had been constructed like miniature Gibraltars. They were good houses, but they were hard to sell. Then the sales-man had an idea. He bought one of the old homesteads himself spent a few hundred dollars to paint it attractively and sold it at a handsome profit almost before the paint was dry.

That salesman kept a crew of painters busy for years. He told me that the increase in price resulting from his plan averaged about two and onehalf times the cost of painting the house. He made a moderate fortune from his intelligent, perserving development of his paint idea."

MUCH LEGISLATION STILL IN DOUBT

Some Bills Unreported, and Some are only Halt-way Through.

The Maryland Legislature, this week, had its usual experience; bills held back until the last minute, committee reports likewise, all playing into the hands of committee chairmen, and especially the presiding offi-cers and those holding the ropes, with only a few knowing what is happen-ing, and powerless to prevent or change what they may know is hap-

The probability is that all bills favored by the "organization" will get through, and some not so favored will be lost in the excitement and mixup of parliamentary procedure. Late presented bills, and those not favored by the inside manipulators will be the most sure to meet this fate; all of which is "majority rule" but not the kind that follows open deliberation and fairness. But, it is always so, and the present session will merely end like its long line of

Could not Walk to School-did not Have Shoes.

Ludlow Gilbert, of near Monrovia, was found not guilty after being arrested by County Constable Smith on a charge of not sending his young daughter to school. Testimony in the case showed that the child did have shoes to wear and would have to walk three-quarters of a mile to take the bus to go to school at New Market, the Monrovia school having been closed. Attention of the court Mrs. Michael E. Pue and others interested resulted in the statement that something would be done toward securing shoes, etc.

The father, a painter, stated that he was in rather poor circumstances until the "weather opened up" and he could begin several painting jobs. Justice Motter in finding him not guilty stated although Gilbert had endeavor-ed to teach his child at home, and she had attended school regularly before the building at Monrovia was closed, the fact that she was receiving some instruction at home was no excuse for non-school attendance, as 'parents were expected to have their children in school but that because of circumstances he was not guilty.-Freder-

OF INTEREST TO MOTORISTS Bill to Establish a License Office in Each County.

Speaker E. Brooke Lee, on Wednesday substituted a new bill for his measure, which provided for the establishment of four branch offices for the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. The new bill would place clerks for the vehicles office in each county seat in the State to take care of license and titling needs of Maryland mo-

The new measure, which was adopted by the House, sending the bill to the third reading, would place the clerks under the appointment of the Governor and subject to the regulations of the State Employment Commissioner. The seven leading counties in automobile registration counties in automobile registration would be provided with assistant clerks to aid in the facilitation of the licensing and titling.

Spring Puts New Life in Orchard Diseases.

Just as fruit trees emerge from their period of dormancy under the magic touch of spring certain dis-eases which attack them likewise come to life and start their unwel-come activities under spring influences, according to County Agent,

L. C. Burns.
Two of these diseases which are prevalent in Maryland orchards are the scab of apple and the brown rot of peaches. And losses from both of them, according to Mr. Burns, can be greatly reduced by cleaning the dead leaves and mummied fruits from under the trees and plowing the refuse under before the spring rains induce spore activity. The clean-up should be made as soon as possible, it is declared, as the warm weather often causes the disease fungus to develop before the trees put forth any growth

The fungus of the apple scab, it is explained, is carried through the win-ter on the dead leaves while the spores of the brown rot find a satisfactory winter home on mummied peaches. When the rains of spring arrive the organisms have developed to a point where they are ready to shoot their reproductive spores into the air. Many times these spores are discharged before the apple buds have developed any green tissue. While in such cases, there is probably little danger of infection, the disease may The Taneytown Home-makers' Club gain a foothold readily once the small buds and leaves of the trees begin to appear. Millions of the spores may float in the air for weeks, finally to come to rest on the trees and start infection. Apple trees affected with scab may lose many of their leaves and much of the fruit may be scabby. In extreme cases of infection there may be no fruit at all.. Control of the scab of apples and of the brown rot of peaches will be much less difficult if the dead leaves and mummied fruits which harbor the diseases are carefully destroyed early in the spring. Cleaning up the orchard, however, will not obviate the necessity of following the regular spray recommendations of the University of Maryland Extension Service. Spraying should not be neglected no matter how thorough a cleaning the orchard may receive.

The time was that April 1 was general pay day, at the stores and everywhere. These were "good old days" that should not have gone by; and that they have gone, is largely the fault of the creditors, who have not gained anything by their leniency, nor have the debtors gained anything, in fact.

Opposes Closing More Schools in Adams County.

Three petitions, signed by patrons of the Table Rock, Good Hope and Grape Vine schools, in Butler township, Adams County, voicing objections to the closing of the three oneroom school buildings at the end of the present school year, were filed with the school board of the district at a largely attended meeting of the Good Hope school.

As a result of the petitions, the board decided to defer action on the closing of the three buildings until the regular meeting, April 4th. The board at a previous meeting voted to close the Table Rock and Pine Grove schools, and planned to take action closing the Good Hope and Grape Vine buildings at the Thursday evening meeting.

RUM RUNNER SUNK

Brings Complications for our State Department.

The sinking last Friday of the Canadian rum-running vessel, "I'm Alone," by the American revenue cutter "Dexter" in the Gulf of Mexico, that resulted in the drowning of one of the crew who is now said to be a Frenchman, has brought about interantional difficulties that will call for adjustment. The remaining 7 members of the crew were landed in New Orleans, on Monday, and are held in confinement pending a settlement of the case.

The Commader of the "I'm Alone" has admitted that the only business of his vessel for several years has been the transportation of liquors to this country, a business that has been operated on a large scale, successfully until this time.

The sinking of the vessel followed a long chase, and the event occurred 200 miles off the Louisiana shore. The point at issue seems to be whether it started within the proper juris-diction of the United States, or whether it originated and ended on the freedom of the seas." The Dexter signaled the 'I'm Alone' to heave to for inspection, the latter refused and ran away, and the sink-ing occurred after a chase, the situa-tion at present being a triangular case for diplomacy. Great Britain objects to the practice of the United States in chasing her ships beyond one hour's sailing distance from shore, Canada is interested not only in this but in damages for the sinking of a Canadian vessel and the imprisonment of its crew. France is concerned with the killing of one of her citizens.

In the meantime, the state department is industrially engaged in get-ting the official report of the Com-mander of the Dexter, and in hunting for precedents in similar cases. As a matter of fact, it is a wonder that cases of this sort have not originated before, as numerous foreign vessels have been running liquors into this country in open defiance of our liquor laws, and doing it without any efforts on the part of foreign governments to prevent the trade, almost as though inviting serious trouble with our governments

Besides, the present case may be used as one to "get back" at this country for numerous grouches that have been developing since the world war, included in which is the efforts of the U. S. to collect legitimate war claims, as well as some strained relations with Canada growing out of business questions between the two countries.

The Commissioners' Proposition.

The proposition of the County Commissioners for financing the school building program will hardly conform to the plans of the Board of Education, but will likely appeal to the ideas of the majority. The proposition, of course, is largely suggestive, as the present Board can hardly plan beyond their own term of office; but if it meets with popular support and official acceptance, their successors would be practically obligated to see it through.

It is not an ideal proposition in some respects. It would delay the in the destruction of property. construction of new buildings, but this would be the result for two years as the situation now stands: it would not mean $60,000 to $90,000 school properties, but perhaps some changes in plans of construction, or delayed extensions; but all in all it is worthy drivers from securing licenses to opof careful consideration, as the situation is one that seems to require a give and take course.

Isn't it queer how we want modern that are uncommon.

There is of course a lot of more or less worthy sentiment connected with activities of police forces and the efowning good old pieces of furniture forts of national and local crime bered"? Or rather is it not that we that belonged to our parents, grandparents or farther back, but why should there be any special pride in the ownership of antiques that belonged to somebody else's ancestors, especially when they are neither as handsome, servicable or comfortable, as new things? But, why criticise the collector of presume to do that, because it isn't our money they spend, and is actually none of our business. Still one can't human mind, and wonder is a practice these days in a good many ways.

And, due to this particular "vagary" it is quite to have been expected that ingenius, but partly conscienceless, manufacturers are extensively engaged in the manufacture of "antiques" of various kinds, the chief justifica- rarity with which conviction and puntion for which is to supply a demand, ishment follow the commission of of York.

and perhaps at the same time articles really better than the genuine.

"Antique" buildings are not so much in demand, though to some extablish private museums, that is another thing, especially if we do not mind the money cost.

Safety on our Highways.

With the return of Spring weather creased, and as the peak of auto sales has not yet been reached, there will be many more of these pleasure vehicles on the roads than ever, which likely means more killings and accidents of every degree this year than last; a fact that seems to be encouraged, because the states are making practically no efforts to prevent them.

There are not only no additional restraints, but with the increase in autos there follows more demands for improved roads, widened ones, more bridges, and less grade-crossings, all alty.—Phila. The time has of course long gone by when automobiles and other mothat ought to be corrected.

But just now, our state legislators are largely interested in taking no drastic steps in the way of correction, but are most concerned in securing more roads to accommodate more fast traffic and in finding new ways of securing more taxes to keep things going at full speed, and are not even supplying an adequate police force to see that the laws we have are enforc-

Perhaps the auto situation is solving the problem of too great increase in population, and furnishing jobs for many who would otherwise be jobless. So far as we have been able to find out, not a single measure has been passed by the present legislature that in any way aims to give greater safety to pedestrians on public highways, or that in any way would disbar unfit erate motor vehicles, or that would increase the state police for the purpose of enforcing even present laws. If such has been done, we would be pleased to know it and give it public-

Do One Thing Well.

An eminent American psychologist emphasized in a public statement the importance of thoroughness in the order to obtain the lovely product scheme of human progress. His advice could be epitomized in the following paragraph:

"Do not scatter your mental forces. Concentrate on those lines of endeavor in which you naturally excel. Thoroughness will get you further along the way toward your goal than versatility. This is the age of specialization. Choose your work and then give to it your complete devotion and ability.

Not doing things well is about as bad as not doing them at all.

This is one of the lessons of thrift. Superficiality is the cause of many a personal failure in life. It is one phase of thriftlessness. The problems of life are so large and complex, and the range of human endeavor so far-reaching that effective individual effort must be restricted to certain definite and somewhat limited lines.

There is an old proverb to the effect that "the fellow with one idea generally grows rich, while he who calls him a fool dies poor."

It is enough to have succeeded well in just one thing. It is better to attain worthwhile results in a single department of life than to have tried many things and failed in all.

Do not be a jack-of-all-trades. Be thorough in whatever you undertake. Merely skimming the surface is selfdeception. Learn to do your job so well that no one else can do it as well as you can. In due time the opportunity will come for greater tests and responsibilities. It is in this way that the processes of progress unfold.

It is good thrift to concentrate and give the best that is in you. Men who do these things are among life's successes.—By S. W. Straus.

Was he not right? "Tipping," as this insidious custom has been popularly termed, has reached staggering proportions, and what was once a pleasure has become a thorn in the side of Mr. Average American. ## Never Take Medicine, Pharmacist, 84, Urges In one of the oldest parts of Rome (one of the oldest cities in the world) is to be found the oldest pharmacy in Italy, presided over by the oldest pharmacist of Italy. Founded in the Sixteenth century by monks, it was operated under religious auspices until 1730, when it came into the possession of the Prato family, which has conducted the pharmacy from that day to this-200 years in a single family. The store furniture and all the equipment are centuries old. Presiding over this venerable establishment in the Piazza della Maddalena is Dr. Recole Scaletta, who at eighty-four years of age is rounding out his sixty-second year of service there. Doctor Scaletta works 14 hours daily, as he has for three-score years. So vigorous is Doctor Scaletta that one would think him twenty years younger than his actual age. Asked for his formula for longevity and good health, Doctor Scaletta genially replied that his first principle is never to take medicine! He drinks a half liter of wine and smokes two cigars daily. "Eat heartily and take a bath daily" is another of the counsels of this veteran pill dispenser in an establishment which might well be one of the sights of the Eternal city.

Secret of Silk Was Long Kept in China

Although silkworms are now cultivated in many parts of the world in which they make, at one time the secret of producing this cloth was known only in China, where it was jealously guarded.

Raising silkworms was a great industry in China as many as 2,600 years before the Christian era. Try as they might, other nations were unable to learn the secret of making the fine cloth. But, according to the story, a faithless Chinese princess finally betrayed her country by carrying with her to India some of the eggs of the silk-moth and the seeds of the mulberry tree upon which it fed, concealed in her headdress. From India the secret gradually spread to the west, although it did not reach Europe until the Sixth century.

Old Records in Danger

The parish churches of England, long the hunting grounds of persons interested in genealogy, and their agents, have suffered so much from such hands that steps are being taken to save their records. These church records go back to the reign of Henry VIII, and until 1840 they were the only records of births, marriages, baptisms and deaths. Constant handling of these records, says The Pathfinder Magazine, has damaged them. Not only that, but unscrupulous genealogists have not hesitated to tamper with them, making alterations to suit their desires. Church officials declare that most of the persons coming to examine the parish records are money seekers. A large proportion of them are Ameri-

In one year he attended 130 public dinners, 85 receptions, 35 meetings and delivered 1,100 speeches.

Birds Endanger Airplanes

The United States War department once more has called attention to the danger of collision with birds by night-flying airplanes. In recent maneuvering in the dark a formation of observation machines encountered a flock of wild ducks. One bird hit the wheel of Capt. Ross G. Hoyt, spinning it violently. Had one or more of the birds struck a propeller the consequences might have been serious .-World's Work.

White Ant Lumber's Enemy

There is one insect that takes heavy annual toll in lumber, says the American Tree association. This is the termite, or white ant. These insects penetrate into the wood of floorings and walls and foundations. They eat their way through the wood, honeycombing it, and weakening it.

There are many ways to be thrifty besides merely saving the pennies, although we'll admit they are worth saving.

Here are a few of them: Save the moments—they are worth something to you if used properly. Be careful of your health—it may save you money for doctor's bills. Store wisdom away in your mind—where it will be valuable to you. In fact, keep sound mentally and physically. We can safeguard your funds—the rest is up to you.

DAIRY FARMER OF FUTURE IS ALIVE

Will Not Permit Cow to Eat Up Profits of Another.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The dairy farmer of the future wili own a modern farmhouse. He will be supported by a high-producing herd of well-bred dairy cattle, which will be fed largely from luxuriant, homegrown crops, raised on well-tilled fertile soil. In short, the dairy farmer of the future will know how to live better and will live up to the best that he knows. That is the prophecy of J. C. McDowell, of the bureau of dairy industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

"The dairy farmer of today is progressive," he says, "but in many cases he is passively progressive. He knows what to do but he does not always do it. The farmer of the future will never allow one cow to eat up the profits another cow is making. He will allow only high-producing and profitable dairy cows on his fertile

"At the present time the average dairy herd produces about 180 pounds of butterfat a year per cow. The time will come when our dairy herds will double that production. This, however, will not result in overproduction of dairy products, because we shall then keep fewer and better cows. By doubling the average production per cow, it is possible to triple the average income over cost of feed. Thus the dairy farmer will make more money.

"But why do dairy farmers want more money? They want it in order that they and their families may have a better living, which includes better homes and better schools. The time is coming when our dairy farmers and their families are going to have not only a good living and the advantages of the open country but also many of the opportunities and conveniences that are now enjoyed by the people of the cities."

Washing Udder Helpful in Stimulating Yield

When cows are stabled much of the time the udders and rear quarters usually become more or less soiled. This can be prevented in a measure by clipping the long hair around those parts but even then frequent washing is necessary.

If the best quality milk is to be produced the udder should be washed before each milking. One man should go through the barn with a soft cloth and a pail of warm water doing this just before milking is started.

Such a plan not only insures cleanliness but it induces the cow to let her milk down more freely so that when the milker comes to her the dder is ready for the process of milking. Some cows are slow to "give down" and for them the massaging or manipuation of the udder that is inevitable in the process of washing is especially useful.

Sterilizing Utensils Is

Recommended for Dairy Utensils such as cans and pails may be sterilized by inverting them over a steam jet, although this system is not to be recommended for general farm use. The effectiveness of the jet will depend upon the size of the opening through which the steam is ejected, and the length of time the utensils are steamed. It usually requires about a half a minute to steam a ten-gallon can thoroughly if the steam-gauge pressure is 20 to 25 pounds. If a steam jet is used, the utensils should be steamed until they are too hot to handle with the bare hands. After treatment in this manner, they will become dry from their own heat if placed right side up and uncovered for a few minutes before they are inverted on the rack.

Grading Up Dairy Herd

by Using Pure-Bred Sire At what rate will a grade animal be "bred up" by the use of a pure-bred sire and the resulting offspring of each cross? The offspring from the first cross of a pure-bred sire on a grade female will be 50 per cent grade and 50 per cent pure-bred. This offspring then bred to a pure-bred sire will produce an offspring whose makeup is 25 per cent grade and 75 per cent pure bred. By continuously repeating this operation, the grade blood will theoretically be bred out, though for registration such an animal can never become eligible. In the seventh generation the animal will be 99.219 per cent pure bred.

On most dairy farms quite a large part of the crops grown are market-ed through cows. The kind of crops grown and the way these are fed have a lot to do with their ultimate value when marketed as dairy products. It is true, of course, that the kind of cow fed has much to do with establishing the value of the feeds used but the right kind of skill in feeding cows avoids the sending of good crops to market through poor

Sky Is Dark at Night, Despite the Stars

The long-standing astronomical mystery of why the sky is dark at night instead of shining brilliantly like the frosted globe of an electric lamp was attacked by Prof. Heber D. Curtis, director of the Allegheny observatory, in a lecture to the American institute of the city of New York.

Explanation may be found, Professor Curtis said, in the fact that the universe is granular like sand grains in a dust storm, instead of being uniform all the way through like a mass of clear jelly. Men are so familiar with the dark skies of night time, illuminated only by the few bright points of the stars, that no one thinks of this as paradoxical. Yet if the stars are infinite in number at least one of them ought to be in sight at each possible point of the sky. No matter how faint they are their light should combine, astronomers have argued, into a general

The paradox is explained, Professor Curtis said, if one assumes, with the great Swedish mathematician, Charlier, that the stars are arranged in enormous clusters or galaxies, at great distances from each other as compared with their diameters. Mathematical reasoning proves, Professor Curtis said, that this arrangement would produce a sky that is dark, not bright, even for a universe infinite in

This is precisely the structure that seems to exist in the part of the universe visible in man's telescopes. The solar system is inside one of these galaxies or "island universes." Outside this are thousands of such groups of relatively close-packed stars; the groups lying at considerably greater distance from each other like a very few grapes scattered through a large amount of fruit jelly.

Why We Say Crooked Stream "Meanders"

"Meander," meaning winding or crooked, is derived from the ancient name of a river in Phrygia. This stream, which is proverbial for its winding and tortuous channel, flows into the Aegean sea opposite the island of Samos off the coast of Asia Minor. It is now known as the Menderez.

"We speak of meandering streams," says Mark Twain in "Innocents Abroad," "and find new interest in a common word when we discover that the crooked river Meander, in yonder valley, gave it to our dictionary."

Why Fireworks Are Colored

The bureau of standards says that the nitrates of various metals are used for making fireworks that burn with different colors. The nitrates are used because they supply oxygen for the combustion of the sawdust and other ingredients. For open fires the chlorides of the metals are preferable to the nitrates, because rapid combustion is not desired, but only a slow evaporation of the metal salt into the flames. The nitrates are quickly changed into carbonates or oxides in the fire, and these are less volatile as a rule than the chlorides. The chlorides for barium, strontium, calcium, lithium and potassium give colored flames. If too much sodium chloride is used, its yellow flame will tend to mask the colors of the other metals.

Why We Count in Tens

In ancient times when a man had to count, the logical implements on which to count were the fingers and toes. As there were ten of each he naturally began counting in tens. The total result would be 20. Then, so that he would remember the number of times he had "counted himself," he made a mark some place each time that he reached 20. That mark was a "score." That is why the word "score" today means 20. The whole decimal system is based on this fact that we have 10 fingers and 10 toes.

Why Call Them "She"

The use of the feminine pronoun in referring to automobiles, airplanes and other vehicles has been fairly well established by usage, following the older and recognized custom of treating ships as feminine. For this reason certain airplanes have been called "Jennies" and small automobiles "Lizzies." Poets have for centuries represented a ship as having feminine qualities and the Latin word for "ship" was a feminine word.

Why "Lyric Poetry"

The name lyric poetry was given by the Greeks to a kind of non-narrative poetry chanted or sung to the accompaniment of the lyre. The term has come to be used with less restriction, passing to poetry unaccompanied by music but constructed on the system of musical measure, then to any short poem of limited scope of emotion without regard to musical adaptation.

Why Overhand Throw

The reasons that soldiers were drilled to throw their hand grenades in a stiff overhand manner were that more distance could be gained in that way, and the muscles of the upper arm receive less strain than they would have otherwise.

Why Oil Is Iridescent

When water comes in contact with oil, a spectrum is sometimes formed because of the different refraction of light as it passes from one substance to the other and the colors of the rainbow appear.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT By F. A. WALKER

YOUR INCENTIVE

FOUR things, one or more of them, furnish the incentive for 99 per cent of men's endeavor-fame, wealth.

position, power. One thing furnishes the incentive for almost all women-love.

Aspiration to realize one or more of the quartet of achievements begins early in everybody's life. The desire to win the most valuable marbles is only a demonstration of the desire to attain wealth as it is represented by "glassys" or "agates."

What marbles are to the boy, dollars or bonds or wide fields or some other evidence of wealth will be to

The position the bully would possess as the "boss" of the school or of his associates is only the youth index of what the man would achieve whose greatest desire is for power.

The youthful bully may be a good natured boy and the man may be an "easy boss." They are one and the same thing except in years and ma-

Men will be dishonest to gain wealth. They will risk the penalties of the law to gain fame. They will sacrifice to the limit to gain power. But they will do all three and more to gain position.

And what they would give most for is the most flimsy and treacherous possession of all.

A man honest in everything else will adopt the tactics of the dark lantern and the jimmy to gain political preferment and attain official posi-

The social climber will bear almost any insult and practice almost any servility if by either or both one step may be gained to win that social recognition which is his overwhelming desire.

The groundwork of all these aspirations and the endeavor to make them into realities is ambition.

Without ambition we would go through life like snails, creeping and crawling towards a dismal end.

With a selfish ambition we would ride rough shod and heartlessly over every person and thing which blocked or threatened to block our path.

Neither career contributes to happiness here or hereafter; neither makes us better, in ourselves, nor helps us to contribute to the betterment of the world in general.

It is unselfish ambition, the desire to have wealth for the good we may do with it; position for the opportunity it gives to influence our fellow beings to be bigger and better; fame for the means it gives for the wider spreading of the real truths of life; power for the measure of good that it makes possible; by these does ambition change from a vice to a virtue and cease to be the sin by which Shakespeare tells us the angels fell.

There is but little space, too little to give it its just deserts, to say a word of that chiefest of woman's incentives, love.

Love is the only power on earth which can create something out of nothing, can make what only seems to be a living reality, can gild vice until it passes for virtue and makes a heaven out of what would otherwise be a hell.

Every mother in the world does all these things. The love of a mother knows only one great love and that the love which the Bible tells of God Himself.

In the cottage and in the palace love finds an equal place. if there be there a woman to truly express it. It knows no boundary of application. no restraints of expression. Use does not diminish or time exhaust it. It is greater than fame, more inexhaustible than power and more permanent than position. It is the one attribute of God that establishes our likeness to our creator. (© hy McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Fever Carried by Goats Malta fever, or, more technically, undulant fever, epidemic along the Mediterranean coasts, particularly on the Island of Malta, is carried by goats. It is common in the United States, principally in Texas, where goats are raised. Recently Dr. Edward Francis contracted the disease. He also was a victim of "rabbit fever" (tularemia), named after Tulare county, Calif., where, in 1910, it was first identified. Doctor Francis isolated the germ of the latter, and the ailment is March, 1929. known among the medical profession as Francis disease.

> In Sad But Loving Remembrance of ADDIE RUTH VALENTINE, who passed away just five years ago, March 27th., 1924.

Gone is the face we loved so dear Silent is the voice we loved to hear. Too far away for sight or speech But not too far for thought to reach Sweet to remember her who once was here And who, though absent, is just as dear.

There is a grave that is dear to me Over which no willows weeps, But under grassy sod, My dear wife sleeps.

We are sad within our memory Lonely are our hearts today; For the one we loved so dearly Has forever been called away. We think of her in silence,
No eye may see us weep;
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
Her loving Husband and Daughters,
ETHEL and HAZEL.

CARD OF THANKS.

I hereby thank the Fire Company and all who assisted in preventing a greater fire loss at my home, last Friday, while myself and wife were away from home.

Flowers on Icebergs The top of an iceberg is the last place one would look for a garden, or indeed any sort of vegetation, but strangely enough, plants blossom and flourish upon these mighty glaciers. The reason for this is the fact that very often moss attaches itself when the berg is at rest. This moss decays and forms a crude kind of earth. Birds flying across deposit dandelion and buttercup seeds; and soon almost what night be termed meadows come into ing the brief northern summer. The brilliant red poppy grows everywhere among the ice and snow during that period of the year.

Fish Carry Candles Some of the fish found at a depth of about 10,000 feet by one deep-sea expedition resembled the fossil species in the rocks of the Mezozoic era, when the earth's atmosphere was dense with carbon. These fish in many cases had special means of collecting light. Some possessed enormous eves occuping nearly the whole side of the head and some were supplied with telescopic organs. Others carried their light on their heads in a manner similar to that of the glow worm.

the evidence of history on the matter of the future life. The religions of the races of men in various conditions of culture and in widely separated climes have revealed a common faith in a life beyond the earthly existence. here and the now. This desire for immortality which has been attested by history and is confirmed by our own experience has been fully satisfied in Jesus Christ, the final authority on all things spiritual. He transformed the hope of the ages into a marvelous realization. It was Jesus who brought life and immortality to light through the gospel

Jesus taught the fact of the future life. In a number of instances He spoke of the life everlasting that is for all those who appropriate it by faith. He revealed it as a present reality as well as a future promise. "He that believeth hath eternal life." So he indicates that eternal life is not merely a quantity of endless days but a quality of character. Yet Jesus has definitely revealed that the eternal life comes to its fullest glory and its highest consummation in the Father's House where their mansions are prepared and are awaiting the redeemed. To live in abiding fellowship with Himself is the assured reward which the Master has laid up for all who live cerning the future of the wicked. the Parable of the Talents, and in the Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus, and in His Portrayal of The Final Judgment, Jesus has shown that there is a future life for the wicked as well as for the righteous. ## Moles Long Cherished as Marks of Beauty

For centuries, it would seem, moles have been considered a real mark of beauty. The truth of the matter is, of course, that some people with moles are ravishingly lovely to look at, and some are as ugly as they can be.

Wyatt, a poet and artist of the court of Henry VIII, says of Anne Boleyn, "Likewise there were said to be upon certain parts of her body small moles, incident to the clearest complexions." Certain it is that Anne Boleyn had a lovely complexion and the courtiers of the time referred to her as "fresh and young." Santa Teresa's three moles have come down in history and so far from being looked upon as a blemish on her beautiful face, they were considered a contribution to her beauty. The biographer leaves nothing to our imagination and tells us that "she had three moles on her left cheek which became her much-one below the bridge of the nose, another between her nose and mouth and a third below

A Review of Reviews

Measuring backward by the breadth of one or more centuries, 1928 was notable for the number of its memorial observances.

Men of letters seem to have claimed most of such attention during the past 12 months, while music, art, philosophy, statecraft and exploration each have been singly represented in the list. By means of general observance, or by more or less restricted attention, the people have been brought to recall the achievements of John Bunyan, Ibsen, Jules Verne, Tolstoy, George Meredith, Edmund Burke, William Tyndale, Captain Cook, Francisco Goya, Dante, Gabriel Rossetti, Franz Schubert and Oliver Goldsmith.

Weighs Half of World's Gold

More than half of the gold produced in the world is now passed through the weighing rooms of a refinery at Germiston, near Johannesburg, South Africa. Unrefined blocks of the yellow metal are placed on scales in dust-proof cases by the official weigher to be recorded before going to the refining plants. Latest available figures show that of nearly $400,000,000 worth of gold produced in the world in a year $200,000,000 comes from the Transvaal

Wouldn't Need a Horn

A couple of cute young ladies who were visiting a western city decided that they would go horseback riding. we are told, and the head groom asked one of them whether she would prefer the flat English saddle or the western saddle with a horn. "The flat saddle," said the young thing, "because we aren't going to ride in any traffic and won't need a horn."-New Yorker.

They All Do!

A mother who had been explaining the meaning of "turning over a new leaf" to her small son found him teasing his little sister.

"Bobbie," she said, reproachfully, "I thought you were going to turn over a new leaf?"

"So I did, mummy, but it got crumpled!"

Wood Turns to Agate

Next time you come across a petrified tree it may interest you to know that in a few centuries more it will become agate from which the jewelry and marbles of another age may be made. Up to a few centuries ago, notes The Farm Journal, this woodstone was highly prized as a magic charm, and was believed to be able to do everything from stopping the flow of blood to calming a hurricane.

Grasping the Opportunity

SINE CERA

SINE CERA, a latin phrase which means, "without wax." It was a phrase used by the Romans when they wished to express the idea that the marble contained no scars and the canvas neither blemish nor cracks. From to spell happiness. But really there's this phrase has come our English word sincere. Without sincerity, confidence is impossible. Sincerity means truth, whether expressed in testimony, conversation, advertising or charac-

"Still she is not so terribly old-I mean such as she would be if she were ten or eleven years old, or something very ancient like that. "Now I've been made especially for her. Her Aunt Marian was making some biscuits and she said to herself: "'I'll make some cookies, too, and I will make a special cooky for Muriel.

"So she made me-making my handsome shape herself. Of course, it's not a perfect shape, but it's pretty handsome, I think.

"Well, you see, I am also dressed up for an occasion. And that occasion is when Muriel shall eat me.

"I have raisins to look like buttons on a suit—they give me a handsome look, don't they, Billie Brownie? And you will forgive me for praising myself up a bit. Others have years and years in which to say nice things about themselves, or else hear others say them, and I've so little time that I want to get in as many nice things about myself as possible.

called upon a Cooky Man before." "Pray pardon me," said the Cooky Man, "if I don't offer you a little food. I have to save myself for Muriel. And I'm all I have in the way of food,

I hope that is clear.' "Quite," agreed Billie Brownie. "But the story I wanted to tell you was this," said the Cooky Man. "I wanted to tell you that it would be nice if you could send the suggestion about to other aunts and grandmothers and mothers that when they're baking it would be nice to always make a Cooky Man for any little girl or little boy there may be in the house, For, Billie Brownie, a Cooky Man is a treat.

"That is why I am so happy and why I don't mind being eaten. If you're going to be a treat you're only too willing to be eaten—at least, that is what a Cooky Man thinks.

"Hush! There comes Muriel. And now she's to have her Cooky Man. Don't forget to send around the good word, Billie Brownie."

"I won't," said Billie Brownie, as he hurried away. (Copyright.)

WHY WE HATE TAXES

MEN have always hated taxes. Taxes have kept bad company. Tribute was collected by force from those who could not defend themselves. What was wrung from the hard hand of peasants was squandered by the overlords on selfish extravagances. The tax gatherer was looked upon as a traitor, a highwayman.

Something of this odium carries over to modern times. We look upon taxes as at best a necessary evil. Lack of confidence and charges of graft in the administration of public funds have done much to create a feeling of hate for all forms of taxa-

The money we pay in taxes is for the benefit of the whole country or for a district and only indirectly beneficial to us personally. Abstract benefits are less appealing. The good of the community is so vague as compared with a fine suit of clothes, a nice vacation trip, numerous concerts and prizefights, we could get with our money. We make the mistake of assuming that we could get all of these things instead of just one for the price of the tax.

There are so many people involved that we think our money will not be missed. Many otherwise honest people try to get out of paying taxes. Not infrequently they hedge a little and sometimes a whole lot. We are willing to let the other fellow pay the taxes. There is the same peculiar attitude towards large corporations.

Witness the number of honest people who try to cheat the railroad or smuggle goods into the country to avoid duty charges. Taxes come in the same class.

We hate to pay taxes because it hurts to part with a lump sum of money all at once. The best kind of a tax is one that is extracted gradually over a long period and in small installments. The gasoline tax does not frighten anyone. And yet the average driver pays out in the neighborhood of twenty dollars a year. ASTER, the first day after Lent, is fittingly the day for a party -either a luncheon or a break-Because Easter is a day of joy, the colors used at the party should be light and delicate; pink, yellow and green are the most desirable ones—especially as they give an opportunity to use your colored glassware and modern, gaily-hued linens. ## Limitless Variety of Nature Seen at Doorway We are up and away nowadays, speeding fast for change; yet in meadows near my own doorway I have learned more of the limitless variety of nature than I have learned in following marvels very far. The trees that I know best are never twice the same, because of the way of the wind with their leaves, of the sun upon them, of their noonday shining and their evening shadow. Can the sea with its waves give more of change than a June meadow of long grass, where the wind has its way through a long afternoon? Where can you find beauty that will surpass these green waves, rising, falling, breaking, strewn with blossoms of buttercup, daisy, and red clover? The salt ocean has no such fragrance as that which comes from hay and clover and sweet grass newly shorn. Have you ever watched the winds and tides in fields of wheat and rye, the long golden waves, the swift shadow of bird wings across them, and, just above, against the sky, slow-sailing white clouds wat drift and drift in summer seas of dim-blue haze?-Margaret Sherwood, in "Familiar Ways."

Seek Sound Devices as Reliable as Ear

In spite of constant attempts to devise a sound recording instrument, there has as yet appeared no apparatus as sensitive and reliable as the human ear. Something of the difficulty in meeting such a problem is evident from a statement by Alexan-Institute of Electrical Engineers at the Royal institution. "If an alternating pressure amounting only to 1,000-1,000.00 of the pressure of the atmosphere is produced in the ear passage, it may be detected as a sound," says Mr. Wood. "This corresponds to a to-and-fro movement of the air through a distance of about one-tenth of the diameter of a molecule."

King Ate Caterpillar

The genial King Edward was lunching with his son and daughter-in-law when his grandson, little Prince Albert, tried rather excitedly to attract When ne took me to the opera he inthe king's attention. The king, who was talking, merely interrupted him- which of us was to pay for the tickets self to tell the child to contain him- and the supper afterward." self until the conversation came to a stop. Lighting the Train's Exterior After some tests and experimentation, the Indian government is about to make use of a system by which the trains are lighted on the exterior for the purpose of intensifying the illumination at country stations as a safeguard against trespassers. Several lights are placed on either side of each car and these are automatically switched on when the train is running below a certain speed and off again when the prescribed limit is exceeded. Thus the lights are on as the train slows down to enter or pass a station. but on the road the presence of the lights is not essential.

Fly Fishing in 200 A. D.

We are indebted to the Missouri Fish and Game News for the discovery that fly fishing is far from a modern sport. In the Second century of the Christian era, a Greek, Aelian, wrote as follows:

"I have heard of a Macedonian way of catching fish, and it is this: They fasten red wool around a hook and fit on to the wool two feathers which grow under a cock's wattles and are in color like wax. Their rod is six feet long, and the line is the same length. Then they throw their snare, and the fish, attracted and maddened by the color, comes up, thinking from the pretty sight to get a dainty mouthful: when, however, it opens its jaws, it is caught by the hook and enjoys a bitter repast, a captive.

I. The Resurrection of Jesus Christ (Luke 24:1-12).

The supreme test of Christianity is the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. It matters little what Jesus said and did while alive if His body remained in the grave. If He did not come forth in triumph from the tomb, then all His claims are false.

1. The empty sepulcher (vv. 1-3). (1) The coming of the women (v. 1). As an expression of affectionate regard for the Master, they came with spices for His body. If they had believed His words, they would have known that His body could not be found in the sepulcher.

(2) What they found (vv. 2, 3). When they came to the sepulcher they found the stone had been rolled away, but they found not the body of Jesus. For them to have found His body in the sepulcher would have been the deity and power of the Son of God-

2. The message of the men in shining garments (vv. 4-8).

(1) "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" (v. 5).

This question, uttered by the angels, has been reverberating through the centuries.

(2) "He is not here, but is risen." Jesus had told them that the Lord that on the third day He would rise again. Had they given heed to His words they would have been relieved of their perplexities.

3. The women witnessing to the eleven (vv. 9-11).

Their thrilling testimony concerning the empty tomb and the words of the figures from the study "favor the angels appeared to the apostles as idle tales and they refused to believe. 4. Peter investigating (v. 12).

While the testimony of the women seemed as idle tales, Peter was not of the temperament to dismiss the matter from his mind, therefore he ran unto the sepulcher. Upon investigation he found the linen clothes lying in such a way as to prove the reality of the resurrection.

II. Jesus Preparing a Place in Heaven for His Own (John 14:1-3) These last words of Jesus were disciples were utterly shattered when clearly established." Jesus told them about the cross. He consoled them by pointing to the reunion in the heavenly Father's house.

1. He asked them to trust in Him. even as God (v. 1).

Faith in the God-man, Christ Jesus. will steady the heart, no matter how intense the grief, or how great the

2. He informed them that He was going to the Father's House in heaven to prepare a home for them (v. 2). He assured them that there was abundant room there for all. He said, there were many "abiding places." Heaven is an eternal dwelling place for God's children.

3. He assured them that He would come again and escort them to heaven (v. 3).

Jesus will not depend upon nor wait for His own to come to Him, but will come and call forth from the grave those who have died; transforming living believers, and take them all together to be forever with Himself in the heavenly home.

III. Jesus Christ Is the Way to the Heavenly Father (vv. 4-6).

Jesus informed the disciples that they knew the place to which He was going, and the way. To this Thomas interposed a doubt, in answer to which Christ asserted that He is:

1. The Way (v. 6). Jesus Christ is more than a mere guide to God. He is the way itself.

2. The Truth (v. 6). He is not merely the teacher, but the Truth incarnate. In His incarnation the spiritual and material worlds were united; therefore every line of truth, whether spiritual or material. converged in Him.

3. The Life (v. 6). Christ is not merely the giver of life, but He is the very essence of life. Only those who receive Christ have life in the true sense.

MEN ARE SAFER THAN WOMEN AS DRIVERS

Facts Established During Year's Tests.

Washington.—The perennial family argument as to whether man or woman drivers get into more automobile accidents can at last be backed up with some facts and figures that indicate sex differences.

Records of man and woman taxicab drivers in a Pennsylvania city have been watched for an entire year by Dr. Morris Viteles and Helen M. Gardner of the University of Pennsylvania.

The results, reported in the Personnel Journal, show that the woman taxi drivers were responsible for three times as many accidents as men, though, judging by claims following accidents, the women were more successful in keeping out of serious

These men and women operated the same kind of car and all equipment was regularly overhauled. Both drove in stormy weather and in the same traffic conditions.

Women Were Less Experienced. The men, however, were more experienced, on the whole, than the women, for some of the women were not experienced drivers when hired, but were given a thorough course of training and immediately placed on cabs. This would seem to be an important psychological factor, but the taxicab company records could not be kept in such detail as to show whether the new driver offsets inexperience with excessive caution or whether this caution oversteps the mark and leads to an excessive number of cases of collisions.

About 2,000 men drivers were on world's greatest tragedy. The empty the employment rolls at a time and tomb spoke most eloquently of the about forty women. The men drove 28,431,719 miles in the year and had 7,311 accidents. The women drove 348,979 miles and had 268 accidents. In terms of revenue the women had three and one-half times as many accidents per thousand dollars as the Women Dodge Accident Claims. A special study of accident costs in one representative month showed that there were 191 claims in the accidents must be betrayed and crucified and of man drivers and four claims in cases involving woman drivers. The claims indicate that women got into less serious mixups than the men, for the total cost of claims against men was $14,605, as compared with $75 against woman drivers.

The psychologists conclude that the point of view that the present generation of woman drivers is more susceptible to accidents than the present generation of man drivers."

They also state: "The extent to which this is the result of relative inexperience in driving or of a sexdetermined difference in susceptibility to accidents in traffic cannot be finally determined from an examination of the present data. The fact, however, that a sampling of women suffer more accidents when driving under the same conditions as a somewords of comfort. The hopes of the what similar sampling of men is

Seeks to Minimize Tin in Silk Dresses

State College, Pa.—Silken dresses already are light in weight, but they may be made even lighter through research started by Miss Winifred Mather Forbes Pennsylvania State col-

She is investigating the amount of metal necessary for weighting silken garments to enable them to keep their form. Tin is used often for this purpose. Excessive weighting is said to shorten the life of the fabric. Dresses ranging in price from $6 to $12 sometimes carry more than 50 per cent of their weight in tin.

Miss Forbes' work will be under a fellowship awarded by the textile section of the American Home Economics association.

French to Demonstrate

Value of Air Ambulance Washington.-The airplane, which has already proved its worth as a passenger, mail and express carrier, is now to become an ambulance. An international congress will assemble in Paris next May to consider air transportation of sick and injured in both military and civil life, the Commerce department has been advised by its representative there. Actual demonstration of the airplane ambulance will be given at Le Bourget field, where a pseudo patient will be bundled aboard, carried to some provincial village, and returned.

Asserts All Creatures Create Cosmic Waves

Paris.-Claim of discovery of a new group of waves, or "cosmic rays," generated and sent out by humans and all other living creatures, is made by Georges Lakhovsky, protege of Prof. Arsene d'Arsonval of the Academy of Medicine.

His theory is that the waves may be likened to electric currents, controlling health and sickness in plants

Long Way Back

Quesnel, B. C .- Pete Pavich, fur dealer of Prince George, recently drove his car here, 82 miles. The fastest method of return home necessitated a trip of 1,000 miles. Snow blocked the highway.

HOW=

STUDY OF SOAP BUBBLES HELPS THE SCIENTISTS .-Blowing bubbles, once an exclusively childish pastime, now is a research activity of vast scientific significance. The lowly soap bubble has already demonstrated its usefulness as a replica of the internal combustion engine, as a miner of gold and other precious metals: as an object in studying the properties of light, and, for the first time. defines the rates at which gases explode.

Formerly regarded as an extremely simple thing, science has disclosed that the soap bubble represents a complicated process. This is true to such an extent that the heat division of the bureau of standards is consulting this flimsy mixture of soap and water to determine the exact behavior of our motor car and airplane engines. In fact, when the bubble is filled with a charge of explosive gases, Uncle Sam accepts it as a perfect internal combustion engine-operating without bearings, cylinder or piston.

.The gaseous bubble is fired by a spark from the center. The extreme delicacy and transparency of the soap film permit a continuous photographic record to be made of the progress of the explosive reaction, from the instant the ignition spark passes to the moment the reaction is completed. The phototained by virtue of the light from an electric spark, indicate that the behavior of the bubble is not haphazard and erratic but is in conformity with a well-ordered scientific process. -Popular Mechanics.

How Maggots Get Into

Meat Left Uncovered It was once universally believed that maggots are produced on dead flesh by abiogenesis or spontaneous generation, namely, nonliving matter produced living maggots. Aristotle taught spontaneous generation and stated as an observed fact that some animals spring from putrid matter. This belief persisted through the Middle ages and was not disproved until 1668, when an Italian named Francesco Redi established the fact that every living thing comes from a pre-existing living thing. Redi exposed meat to the air during hot weather. It soon began to putrify and was covered with maggots. He then placed similar meat in a jar covered with fine gauze and exposed it in the same manner. The meat began to putrify as before, but no maggots appeared on it. Blowflies, however, swarmed over the wire screen on the jar and in a few days the gauze was covered with maggots. This proved that the maggots were not generated by the corruption of the meat, but were hatched from eggs laid by the flies, and that the putrefaction of the which passed through the screen from

How Paper Is Fireproofed

The bureau of standards says that a measure of fireproofing for papers can be obtained by spraying them before passing through the presses with ammonium chloride, ammonium phosphate, ammonium sulphate, or sodium borate, whichever is best adapted for the particular product. Paper so treated should not be considered as incombustible or greatly fire-retardant, since it will char and burn at the high temperatures incident with fires in buildings, although it will not ignite or support combustion as readily as the untreated paper. The more fireresistive papers are usually made from asbestos fibers with a small admixture of ordinary paper, and a binding composition, such as glue and borax. They are rendered suitable for writing upon by calendaring. Special inks are prepared for use with such papers, both paper and ink standing up well under protracted exposure at temperatures that would completely consume the ordinary combustible papers.

How Salt Lake Was Formed

Scientists say that the physiography of the surrounding country shows clearly that the basin occupied by Great Salt lake is one of many left by the drying up of a large Pleistocene lake, which has been called Lake Bonneville. Well defined wave-cut cliffs and terraces show two distinct shore lines of this early lake, one the "Bonneville shore line," about 1,000 feet above the present lake, and the other, the "Provo shore line," about 625 feet higher than the present lake.

How to Tell Platinum

One of the most important properties of platinum is the fact that it is not easily attacked by acids. Pewter, on the other hand, is composed of tin and lead, with sometimes an addition of copper and antimony. All other metals are easily attacked by nitric acid or hydrochloric acid. The metal could be simply tested with one of these

How Much Is a Micron

One micron represents one one-millionth part of the usual atmospheric pressure, which is 141/2 pounds per square inch. The interior of the usual incandescent lamp represents a vacuum down to about 150 microns.

Picturesque Old Wine

Carts of Rome Passing

The picturesque old wine carts of Rome are giving way to the onward march of progress, and soon the plodding horses are expected to retire altogether in favor of the fast-moving motor truck. Speed and traffic regulations have much to do with the passing of the wagons piled high with their casks of beverages.

It has been the custom from time immemorial for the drivers of the wine carts, who start for Rome at midnight, to sleep on their seats, while the faithful, well trained old horses find their way into the city and to the wine shop for which they are headed.

New traffic rules, however, call for vehicles to keep to the right instead of the left, as formerly, and accidents have been numerous, as the horses, ambling along around turns on their left-hand side of the road, have met autos keeping to the right.

Severe penalties have added to the problems of the drivers following these accidents and gradually the older men are following in the footsteps of the younger, and are turning to the use of the auto truck for transporting their products.

Trees Grow Without

Soil in Cuban Swamp

Huge trees growing without any visible means of support are a striking feature of the great Zapata swamp of southern Cuba. This swamp, nearly 1,800 square miles in extent, includes an area of limestone that is filled with holes and covered with a variety of tropical trees. Silk-cotton trees four feet in diameter, big mahoganies, and many other kinds are found growing on this limestone area, where not so much as a single spoon of soil could be gathered from an acre. The trees make their start in small pockets and holes in the limestone, where collections of leaves and slight accumulations of disintegrated rock furnish them with cover for growth. The roots stray about over the surface of the rock in search of food, finally plunging through holes to find sustenance in soil hidden deeply in the cavernous recesses of the coral stone.—Kansas City Star's Science Service.

Making Royal Purple

Royal purple, once the envy of the many and the privilege of the few, is now available to even the most humble of men. The dyestuff used to obtain this color, once so rare, is made synthetically now, and the cost no longer excludes all but the wealthiest from decking themselves in this noble

Prof. H. A. Schuette of the University of Wisconsin, in discussing the history of royal purple, declared that the first chemist to make purple synthetically used 12,000 snails of the same species in order to obtain a gram and a half of the dye. This perhaps explains why purple was so rare in the days before the chemist.

Maine Islanders Going

The islands a few miles off the Maine coast, where for generations meat was caused by smaller bodies | fishermen and their families have dwelt are slowly becoming depopulated. While the old folks may be content to remain in the isolated environment, the younger generation will not stay. The lure of the mainland, with its automobiles, good roads, theaters, schools and other advantages, is too strong. Then, too, since fast motor boats have replaced the slow sailing craft, many fishermen find they can cover so many more miles in a day that they can operate just as well from the mainland, as from points a few miles away.

Appreciation

A group of American tourists were being taken through the National gallery in London. In one alcove was a giant-sized picture of one of the saints suffering the agonies of martyrdom. A reverential hush fell over the group as they stood before the painting. Then one of them, with a loud checked suit and a derby hat cocked over one ear, remarked:

"Gee, don't that guy look miser-

Insects Destroy Trees

There are 200,000 known kinds of tree-attacking insects, and their attacks upon the trees are going on all the time. It is estimated, says the American Tree association, these pests cause a loss of $100,000,000 every year. Some experts are of the opinion the loss due to the ravages of insects is far greater than losses due to forest fires.
