SUPT. UNGER REPLIES TO COMMISSIONERS

States General Disagreement to all Recommendations.

Supt. of Schools, M. S. H. Unger, in a lengthy article published last week in the Westminster papers, week in the Westminster papers, charged that the recent published statement by the County Commissioners contained a "number of fallacies, half-baked assumptions and incorrect mathematical conclusions dispersed most ingeniously throughout, the article is nothing more than a barefaced attempt to befuddle the public and to build up the political fence for the next general election, which the late petition campaign conducted by the Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations so sadly broke down. The record of this official body for the past several years, so far as schools have been concerned, has been only a series of broken promises and political subter bugs to get by without doing anything."

In the matter of the proposed $45,000 per building construction proposition he says that such a building on unit as that amount building, or unit, as that amount would build, would not accommodate the present enrollment in Sykesville, New Windsor, Union Bridge or Man-

The matter of building costs was nen taken up, saying; "The state then taken up, saying; "The state architect requires the same standards of construction here" as in other surrounding counties, and that the same opportunities be given the children in Carroll as in other counties."

Then follows the construction figures for schools in Frederick, Baltimore and Anne Arundel county, ranging from $47,000 to $80,000, and the cost of three schools in Carroll, at Hampstead $52,500; Taneytown, $58,821., and Charles Carroll $52,500. The cost per room also appeared in the table, all showing that building construction costs in Carroll have been less than in other counties, though the intimation is made that their construction could not be as good, in view of their cost.

He then calls attention to the alleged $40,000 worth of property to sell, by the Board of Education, by sen, by the board of Education, by saying, "Such a statement coming from a body of men who have the finances of this county to handle, amounting to $700,000 annually, is pathetic, what property would we have to sell? None whatever except a few rural schools that as every one knows will not bring at public sale $500. each."

The figures of the Commissioners' table is then criticised as an arithmetical exhibit calling attention to the fact that there was a $45,000 item that they forgot to multiply by two. (We think the publication of this portion of the statement in The Record was correct, where the multiplication was made to conform with the total on our copy $470,000—though it was badly type written.—Ed. Record.)

In conclusion the article says; "For the past seven years promises have been made to build suitable buildings in various places, and the amounts necessary have been at different times placed in the budget for the County Commissioners but in every case they were stricken out. If the County Commissioners are sincere, which I do not believe. them say to the Board of Education, that as the law makes it the function of the latter Board to prepare plans and specifications to meet the needs of each separate community they, the County Commissioners will approve the application and grant as much as is needed for building each year as suggested in their letter, which amount is to be sum of the lowest bids for the barnyard. various items that go into the con-struction of each building. The Board of Education can not admit the authority of the County Commisefforts to bring it to a high state of sioners to set a fixed amount as the proper amount for each and every building, especially when such amount is far below the prevailing costs both here and elsewhere. If they are unwilling to do this, then their whole willing to do this, then their whole willing to the ground as when it becomes generally recombined that an egg is an egg and

A Travelog at Piney Creek Presbyterian Church.

There will be a travelog with stereopticon views given in the Piney Creek Presbyterian Church, under the auspices of the Brotherhood, on Monday evening, April 8, at 7:30. This lecture and 125 Stereopticon views illustrate a trip made to California by the Rev. A. Brown Caldwell who will deliver the lecture.

These views include scenes from the Grand Canyon and other interesting places. An enjoyable evening is promised. A social hour with refreshments will follow. A silver offering will be taken. The public is cordially invited to be present.

very generally unpopular.

In place of the requirements contained in the declarations of intentions act for determining qualified residents of the State, the bill now provides that persons not born in Maryland may vote for the first time by appearing on any registration day before a board of registry and making an affidavit that he or she has lived in a county of the State or in Baltimore city for at least a year.

This affidavit, accompanied by affidavits from two "creditable register-ed voters" of the same registry district, asserting that the applicant to vote has been a resident for at least one year, will entitle the applicant to register, provided he or she meets all other qualifications of the Maryland

Provision is made in the law giving any person who feels aggrieved at the failure of the board of registry to permit him to register after produc-ing such affidavits the right of appeal to the courts. False swearing would be perjury and punishable as such.

An Important Announcment.

As announced before Mr. Frank Mellor, Tenor, will give a concert in Alumni Hall, Western Maryland College, Friday evening, April 12, at 8 o'clock. (We are compelled to omit program for want of space).

Mr. Mellor is one of the leading tenors in the United States and has achieved great popularity as a singer. He is a native of Carroll County, and his coming to Westminster will give great pleasure to his many friends.
Admission will be by ticket only, but there will be no charge for the tickets. Alumni Hall seats about 1100 people. After reserving seats for the student-body and the faculty, there will be 600 tickets to be distributed to those who ask for them. These tickets will be given with the distinct under-standing that they are to be used. If any holder of these tokets finds that he cannot attend the concert, he is asked to give his ticket to some one who will attend, or to return them to the College Office not later than Thurs day afternoon, April 11th. Seats will be held for ticket holders until 8:05 P. M. At that time the doors will be open to persons who do not present tickets. present tickets.

Tickets will be mailed to those who ask for them in the order of their application. Those desiring to attend the concert should write or phone at once to Miss Helen E. Ohler Western Maryland College, West-minster, Md., who has full charge of the distribution of tickets.

White and Brown Eggs.

There was something of novelty in recent reports from the New York the Court. were bringing a premium over white. That city has been the center toward which white eggs have flowed from all points of the compass and from most distant parts of the country. It has been the mainstay of the hen whose chief claim to distinction was to excel in large numbers of chalk white eggs.

These reports suggest that there may be a revolution coming; that market preference which has had little more behind it than a consumer's whim may be on its way to extinction. There can be no question that this preference has exercised a marked effect upon poultry breeding. The eye of the city consumer who seldom, if ever, sees a living fowl has changed the very form and type of a large part of Jeremiah Blizzard, deceased, reof the feathered occupants of the Farm Population Shrinks.

The farm population of the United States is now the smallest in 20 years, reports the Bureau of Agricultural conomics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, which estimates the farm population of 27,511,000 persons on January 1, 1929, as compared with a peak of 32,000,000 persons in 1909.

The bureau's estimate also shows a decrease in farm population during the past year, despite improved agri cultural conditions and a slight slackening in industrial employment, the January 1, 1929, figure comparing with a farm population of 27,699,000 persons on January 1, 1928.

The "I'm Alone" Case.

International difficulties of a serious character over the sinking of the Canadian rum runner "I'm Alone," by a Federal revenue cutter, are not anticipated. Convention of Men's Bible Classes.

Preparations are now being made by the Men's Bible Classes of Baltimore for working out a program for the convention of the National Fed-eration of Men's Bible Classes in that city May 4 and 5th. It is ex-pected that a number of local dele-gates will attend from this county. Further plans for the convention will be announced next week by the National President, Mr. Joseph B. Montgomery, of Philadelphia.

The aim of the federation which was formed in New York in 1920, was formed in New York in 1920, is to organize every State in the Union in an effort to weld the various isolated group of Men's Bible Classes into one co-operative body so that through interchange ideas and the resultant co-operation "Christian churches may become stronger factors in the upbuilding of the church."

The opening session of the convention will be held on the afternoon of May 4 in the Fifth Regiment Armory, which has a seating capacity of over 25,000. It will be followed by a street parade in which 35,000 men are expected to take part. In Authorizing the Clerk of the Court to instal an index of the records of the Court.

A STATE WIDE CLEAN-UP WEEK IN PENNA.

An Observance that should be imitated in Maryland.

Our big neighbor just north of Mason and Dixon's line, has an an-nual clean-up week, which this year will open on Monday, April 15, which might be imitated with good results by Maryland. The week has been set aside by the State Departments of Health, Welfar, Forests and wa-ters and the Bureau of Fire protection, State Police, as clean-up week. Cities, boroughs, communities and individuals throughout the Common-wealth are respectfully urged to designate this period for a proper observance.

Needless to say, each community may use its own judgment regarding the program. However, the follow-ing is suggested as a guide for the week's activities.

Monday, April 15, Highway Day— Streets and sidewalks should be cleaned, gutters cleared, ditches opened, sewers flushed, etc.

Tuesday, April 16th., Forestry Day
—Brush, branches, briars and other inflammable material about houses and cabins, in gardens and fields and along all trails and roads should be removed. One of the best methods of disposition is by burning, caution of course being exercised that the fire does not escape control.

Wednesday, April 17th., Fly and Mosquito Day. Cess pools should be cleaned and lined. Out-houses made fly proof, stable and stable yards.pig pens and chicken coops cleaned. Water holes should be filled, spouting mended, garbage cans scoured.
Thursday, April 18th., Junk Day—
All junk and trash such as old books, papers, clothes, rags, bottles, cans and ashes should be removed. Cellars should be thoroughly cleaned and white washed.

Friday, April 19th., Moving Day— Transportation should be obtained for the hauling away of all refuse to a suitable dump. Saturday, April 20th., Finish-up Day—Gather together the loose ends, put on the finishing touches.

Gapes in Chickens.

To avoid losses of chicks from gapes, keep them away from turkeys; the turkeys may show no signs of the disease, but they can pass it on to chicks with fatal results to the latter. Gapes is caused by a parasitic worm that gets into the chick's windpipe, and the male and female worms have the curious habit of attaching themselves so firmly to each other that at first sight they look like a single worm with two heads and two necks. It is pretty difficult to extract the worms and it is better to put your faith in prevention. Put the chicks, as soon as hatched, on clean ground, and keep them away from turkeys or ground occupied by turkeys. Adult chickens seem to be immune from

THE MEXICAN WAR

Real War on a Big Scale for Such a Country.

Not a great deal of interest is manifested in this country over the war in Mexico, but for a country like Mexico, it is pretty considerable of a war, and that desperate fighting is taking place and with great display of personal bravery, can not be denied. Just what it is all about, is not fully understood here, and the fact that war is something of a regular occupation on the part of some class-es of Mexicans, leads to lack of our serious interest

But, it is a real war, more or less modern, with cavalry, artillery, in-fantry and airplanes all coordinating; and the outlook now is that it will be a to the finish fight, with the chances on the side of the Federal forces, though the rebel forces are well officered and apparently well equipped, as though having made extensive advance preparation.

Mexico is a large country, and portions of it are peopled by indians, half-breeds and mangrel faces of various sorts. It is also largely an undeveloped country, with poor roads and poor transportation facilities, and the telegraph and telephone lines are such as to prevent rapid communica-tion over wide distances, or the very rapid concentration of troops from widely separated paints.

Moreover, the national resources of the country, so far as feed supplies are concerned, seem to be so meagre as to make it impossible for a widespread war to operate for a long

Early Spring Pasture not enough for Cows.

Permitting the cows to whet their appetites on the first green blades of spring grass is neither good for the cows nor the grass although many Maryland dairymen and farmers still follow it as a time-honored custom, says Co. Agent L. C. Burns. Results will be much better, if the cows are kept off the grass until it is three or four inches high. Even then the animals should be accustomed to the process of the proc ed to the pasture gradually, remaining in the fields for only a few hours daily, the grass being supplemented with grain, hay and ensilage.

Early pasture grass contains relatively little dry matter. Furthermore, if pastured too closely it will be injured for grazing later in the year. A heavy grass diet at the out-set of the season moreover, tends to produce a grassy flavored milk which s not desirable.

From the standpoint of feeding rom the standpoint of feeding value, early spring pasture is worth considerably less than equivalent quantities of more mature grass. Early spring grass, it is pointed cut, contains less than ten pounds of dry matter per hundred while from twenty to twenty-five pounds will be found in meture grass.

For cows producing in excess of thirty five pounds of milk daily, at least one high-portein concentrate, such as linseed or cottonseed meal, is neces-

President Hoover Breaks up Patronage Machines.

Perhaps the most important of President Hoover's rather numerous changes, so far, has been his breaking up of the old patronage game in several Southern Coast states. It is at least his most important purely "party politics" act, and as such has caused some gasps of amazement, especially in the states affected, while in the North his act is regarded as the decent thing to do.

In short Mr. Hoover has served notice that no one individual so-called leader, or small group, can continue to auction off Federal appointments, whether the recipients are fit or not; but that hereafter all appointments must be high-class, and representative of good public service, and not such as are justly open to public criticism, and not at all representative of profit to the appointing power.

Heretofore, the little powers that handed out the prizes could be depended on a deliver their state's vote at the National Republican convention, which in the past has been of value in determining who the nominee for President should be. So, it would appear that in this respect Mr. Hoover is not laying any wires for renomination.

The situation heretofore has been intolerable to the best men in the party, and at the same time it has resulted in squabbling and contests between delegations from states having not the least show of delivering any electoral votes; but it remained for Mr. Hoover to take the initiative in breaking up the situation, as well as improving the public service.

It may be, perhaps, that his act will help to popularize Republicanism in the South with white Democrats, and to encourage the break that was made last Fall; but those who know the President best do not believe that he had any such purpose in breaking up the patronage brokers' business.

La Follette "Wets" Help.

The La Follette Progressives continued their anti-Republican history, last week, by announcing before the vote in the Illinois legislature their opposition to the state's prohibition enforcement act. The statement made was in part as follows;

"The Volstead act is a Federal law. It should be enforced by Federal machinery and responsibility for its enforcement should rest with Federal authorities. There is not another Federal law where the States have been asked to set up an auxiliary enforcing system. Why this exception in the case of the prohibition law?"

The bill, of course, is a "wet" movement, forced largely by wet and Representative Cramton of Pennsylpretty generally lawless Chicago, which meets with great sympathy in Wisconsin, the former home of numerous noted beer breweries-"the beer that made Milwaukee famous" having once been a well known slogan. So, the La Fallotte group reached over the line to lend a friendly hand.

Some Advertising.

Much of the patent medicine advertising of today has been reduced to a fine art, mainly in the line of very accurately describing symptoms of human ills, and fitting the advertised preparation to these ills in such sufferers are induced to "try a bottle" or two, with the hope of receiving great benefit, if not a complete cure.

Salesmanship is personified in these write-ups in a very skilful way; not actually claiming cures but strongly intimating the prospect of cures foundation for any claim of exempthrough discoveries purporting to be tion of diplomats from the prohibicontained in particular preparations, perhaps accompanied by more or less stitution of the United States. supporting testimonials; and the hope is held out that perhaps, after all, the regard for producing sales than telling the exact truth. Certainly, attractive advertising, and playing up the merits of 'investments is legitimate enough, providing always that the truth is strictly adhered to; but merely saying a thing is true does not make it so, and this is a matter that must largely be left to the discrimination of the general public. The strictly honorable and conscientious advertiser is therefore frequently placed at a disadvantage, and advertising as a legitimate business investment, or as a commodity for sale, is to some extent discounted; and this is one of the reasons why the question is still asked by some-Does advertising pay? And the reader—the supposed consumer—also has his doubts.

Anything like satisfactory censorship of advertising "copy" before it is used, is impossible. An Editor may not inquire too closely into his patrons business, and can do no better than accept pretty much all that is offered, and pass it on, leaving the reader who has more time, and a better opportunity, to investigate for himself before buying. Of course, known frauds are never advertised.

Mortgaging the Community.

Nothing can be more detrimental to a community's progress and prosperity than a burden of bonded debt. Private citizens and industries alike are wary of any locality, no matter what its other advantages, that has a constantly increasing tax rate. Improvements which require bond issues are liable to turn into white elephants The debt often remains long after the improvement has been forgotten. And a generation or more of taxpayers must pay for it.

Should Obey Our Laws.

Diplomatic representatives of other nations at Washington should have sufficient respect for the laws of this country to obey them. While they are not subject to arrest, the United States is not defenseless if they flagrantly violate our law, because their recall can be suggested. We do not think sentiment for law observance is assisted by open disrespect shown by some diplomats, who are supposed to cultivate our friendship.

Liquors being imported for the Siamese Legation were recently seized and this attracted public attention to the situation. While many diplomats respect our constitutional provision a minority, according to vania, do not. "This minority," he says, " has blantantly and conspicuously made manifest on repeatedly occasions their lack of regard for provisions in the Constitution of the United States. By their course in this they have embarrased alike the people and law enforcement agencies of the United States and their colleagues in the diplomatic corps in Washing-

The act of importation and act of transportation are unlawful. There is no problem as to what is the law. The only problem is of enforcement."—Oakland Democrat.

The Hard-luck of a Runaway.

There may be such a thing as too much diplomatic courtesy as well as too much "red tape" and the so-called "Senatorial dignity" in our own Congress, to the extent that both may at times defeat not only the majority, but plain common sense.

And when such courtesy, or finespun distinctions, reach interference with the Constitution of the United States, it would seem to be high time that some of the former privileges enjoyed heretofore by foreign nations especially, should be called off.

A case in point is the recent sinking of the Canadian rum-runner, "I'm Alone" which was admittedly in the business of nullifying the liquor laws of this country, and which now defends its actions on claimed "freedom of the seas" outside the limit of arbitrarily claimed miles.

The real point, is the character of the business transacted by the Canaer 20 years over $1.50 must be paid dian, and the fact of its trying to back. If the issue runs 40 years over circumvent the intent and purpose of $2.00 must be returned. And at the our Constitutional laws. Whether the end the community has often paid out rum-runner was 3 miles, 10 miles, or of all proportion to the value of the 200 at sea, when sunk, is therefore beside the real issue.

The mere attempt in the case was to slip clear of our revenue cutter service, and that it did not obey the "heave to" warning, but accepted the ment is necessary, or if it will place a chance of running away, with disasfurther serious burden on industries trous results, it should be the hard and individuals, and if its benefit will | luck of runner, and nothing more—the be equivalent to its cost and the in- same as that attaching to a caught run-away thief.

An Arithmetic of 1649

In the Garcia library of the University of Texas is the oldest arithmetic in America. Upon touching its vellum covers and back skin thongs your memory may go back to that proud but unwelcomed day when your own schooling arrived at the portal page of "Fractions." With awe one discovers that pupils of 1649 had to wade through seven chapters of mathematical quicksands. The pioneers voted to the formation of military companies in squares, hexagonal units and other strange geometrical forms. Otherwise the book shows pupils struggled with the same problems that perplex modern youngsters.

Poet a Pleasant Companion

Matthew Green, an English poet who was born in 1696 and died in 1737, proved himself a witty and pleasant companion for his friends and his employers. While working in the customs house and wishing to supply with milk the cats which were kept there, Green wrote a successful petition in their name.

At another time when a water man insulted him as he was bathing by calling out. "Quaker" and a friend asked how his sect could be detected when he was wearing no clothes. Green replied, "By my swimming up-

In many of his writings his humor is apparent, especially in "Spleen," a poem published posthumously.

Loyal Fox Terrier

A delightful little story of the faithfulness of a fox terrier is told in a Budapest (Hungary) newspaper. The liftle dog was a great friend of a street flower seller. One day he missed her from her place and moped. The next day she was still absent. He rushed into the restaurant where he belonged and made such a disturbance that the waiters set to work to discover what it was all about. They made inquiries about the flower seller, and learned that she had been run over. A collection for her was made in the restaurant as a tribute to the dog. Perfectly true, says the news-

Color of Planets

Venus, Jupiter and Mars are of difterent colors. Venus is a silvery white, Jupiter is yellowish and Mars is red. The hue of planets represents their true colors, while the color of stars is caused by the temperatures of their surfaces. Observed through a telescope, Venus is seen to be covered with brilliant white clouds, while the clouds of Jupiter are saffron. Mars is not obscured by clouds, however, and through a telescope its surface can be observed. This shows wide expanses of what has been described as red desert, possibly a red sand or

Tongue Twisters Ever

Bob Up to Harrass Us

We all had sad experiences during the war disentangling word forms and their pronunciation, as we strove to: keep track of events in the Near East, instance Lwow, Pryepolye and Prisecnice, which were by no means the worst. And now from another direction our eyes and ears are newly assailed, namely, from out Honolulu way, where an interisland transport company has had its vessels baptized and christened with names that ought to wear raffia skirts, so perfectly do they harmonize with "uke" music.

The eastern European words suffered from too many scrambled consonants, those of Hawaii from a superfluity of oleginous vowels. When you make your next trip to the former Sandwich islands you may have the option of traveling on board the Hualalai, the Himuula, the Haleakula and the Waieleele. We will back that last name for the vowel championship. Seven letters out of nine are of the softer sex.

Shysters Hung Around

Courts 3,500 Years Ago Shysters hung around the courts of 3,500 years ago and made promises to "fix" cases for trembling clients just as it is alleged they do today. A tablet exhumed with others from the records of an Assyrian palace of justice that droned through drowsy afternoons of 1,500 B. C. tells of a poor woman going to court and complaining that she had given a "government agent" one sheep as a bribe to take care of her lawsuit. He failed to keep his promise of protection and when pressed about it struck the woman, kept the sheep and compelled her to pay six minas in bronze, stating that this was an additional fee for his her case is missing.

Methinks our souls in old age are subject to more troublesome maladies and imperfections than in youth; I said the same when young, when I was reproached with the want of a beard; and I say so now, when my gray hairs give me some authority. We call the difficulty of our humors, and the disrelish of present things, wisdom; but, in truth, we do not so much forsake vices as we change them and, in my opinion, for worse; besides a foolish and feeble pride, an ingertinent prating, forward and unsociable humors, superstition, and a ridiculous desire of riches when we have lost the use of them, I find therein more envy, injustice and malice; age imprints more wrinkles on the mind than it does on the face; and souls are never, or very rarely, seen, that, in growing old, do not smell sour and musty.-Montaigne.

The Solar Year

The exact length of the solar year, or the time taken by the earth to complete one revolution around the sun. is 365.24224 days. This is slightly less than 365¼ days or the average length a year would be if every fourth year were a leap year. To approximate to this exact length, therefore, only 97 leap years are provided for in each ing only 365 days in such years as 1900, 2100 and 2200 and 366 days in 2,000, which is exactly devisible by

How to Be Better

Some one once said that pretending that the people can be better off than they are, is sheer radicalism.

There never was more nonsense uttered in an equal number of words. The people can be better off than they are; this should be their aim, their religion. And all they need do to be better off is to behave better; work more, save more, earn the respect of their neighbors; be more honorable, polite and effective.-E. W. Howe's

That Was All

There had been a burglary, and a police-inspector was making a list of the things that had been stolen.

"Ten spoons, six forks, a clock, and four vases," repeated the officer, as he finished writing in his notebook.

"Correct," replied the housekeeper. The inspector paused, his pencil poised in the air.

"Now," he said, "you're sure there's nothing else missing?" "No, nothing else," was the reply;

"barring the man who took them."

STANCHIONS ARE NEEDED FOR CALF

Turned Loose Too Soon, They Get Bad Habits.

If young calves are not given good attention during the first few months of their lives they will become undernourished, lack in size, and often become practically worthless for breeding animals. When fall and winter calves are given good attention they will generally grow into better cows than spring-dropped calves, as they will be old enough to go onto pasture in the spring and make satisfactory

Milk is the food provided by nature for calves and man has never found a substitute that equals it. Whole milk is needed for the first month, or at least during the greater portion of it. After that time skim milk may be gradually substituted as the calves will commence eating grain and hay. The maximum amount of whole milk to feed is twelve pounds daily and sixteen pounds should be the maximum amount of skim milk used.

Individual stanchions are needed in feeding calves by hand. In this way each calf will get its own allowance of milk. Grain can be put in the pails after the milk is consumed and the calves will gradually learn to eat. If the calves are turned loose too soon after they are through drinking they will often acquire the habit of sucking ears, etc., which will result in poor gains. After two or three weeks the whole milk may be gradually substituted with part skim milk and the proportion of skim milk gradually increased as the calves gain in size and age. The milk from the calf's mother should be fed for the first few days as it is laxative in character and will help get the bowels properly cleaned.

Cleanliness in the calf stables and feed buckets is essential in preventing scours and other similar troubles. Sunlight is necessary if the calves make the best gains. Fresh water should also be supplied as the calves will drink a considerable amount. A sunny, protected lot, where the calves may run during warm days will not only give them exercise but will help to keep their stables in better condition and furnish them sunshine.

Calves Need Some Whole

Milk to Get Good Start Calves which are only one week old need some whole milk if they are to get the best start. However, some people follow the practice of buying calves from dairymen and raising them on substitute rations. The United States bureau of dairying recommends the following formula which has been used with considerable success by many dairymen: Fifty pounds corn meal, finely ground; 50 pounds linseed meal; 15 pounds oats, finely ground and rolled; 10 pounds of dried blood flour; 10 pounds skim milk powder; one-half pound salt.

The above combination of feeds are carefully mixed together. One-half pound of the mixture stirred into four and one-half pints of boiling water and fed when sufficiently cool makes a feed for a calf which is one month old. Two feeds are necessary daily. The amount may be doubled by the time calves are two months old. Calves may gradually be shifted to a ration that is less complicated at that time.

Pumpkins are a good feed for dairy cows. One ton of pumpkins is equal in feeding value to about 400 pounds of mixed hay or 800 pounds of corn silage. This includes the seeds with the pumpkins.

The bureau of dairy industry says that milk produced by sterile cows that are otherwise in good health is just as good as milk produced by other cows as long as it is normal in appearance and flavor.

One of the greatest sources of sour milk and low-grade dairy products is the unsterilized utensil. The tiny bacteria that cause souring, off flavors, and sometimes sickness, grow very fast on the moist surfaces of unsterilized pails, strainers, cans, etc.

Famous French Chef Discusses Secret of Vegetable Cookery

Chef of Ritz-Carlton, New | understand. It does York, Tells of French Method of Cooking Vegetables.

TY HY, in spite of all the advances which have been made in American cooking during recent years, do we still hold a position inferior to the French in the culinary art?

The answer, according to Louis Diat. chef of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, New York, lies largely in a difference in attitude. The average American housewife looks upon cooking as a form of drudgery. The French housewife knows it is one of the fine arts. Because of her attitude, the American woman is often content to prepare a merely passable meal. She seldom bothers about developing the delicate nuances and blends of flavors. The French woman, on the other hand, feels that any dish which falls short of its full potentialities is a serious reflection upon her ability. Restoring Lost Flavors

"Take American vegetable dishes," Monsieur Diat says. "So frequently they are almost tasteless. There is, though, no reason why they should be, although we have here a condition you do not find in other countries. Most French and other European cities are surrounded by truck farms. The farmers bring their vegetables into the cities in the evening of the day on which they are picked, and they are sold the next morning. In America, many vegetables are brought from points four and five days distant from the market. During all of this time they are losing some of their natural sweetness.

"But although the vegetables purchased by the French housewife are usually fresher than ours, she takes pains to bring out and accentuate their distinctive flavors. Over here, we do not take such pains. Most of us have not learned, for instance, how to use sugar in cooking vegetables. not change the flavor, but it restores any sweetness that has been lost, and makes the vegetable taste as if it had just come from the garden. Only recently have American cooking experts discovered this secret, and it is not yet shared by many housewives.'

The original flavors of canned and dried vegetables can also be restored to a great ex tent by the use of sugar, according to Monsieur Diat. No more sugar should be used than will make up the sweetness which has been lost.

The amount varies with the difference in the natural sweetness of the different vegetables. In cooking

"There is nothing magical or mysterious in French cooking," Monsieur Diat says. "Nor is it ever extravagant. The French cook sticks close to nature, and tries always to preserve her original flavors. Cooking is looked upon as an art requiring subtlety and imagination. It is recognized that the cook makes or mars the dish. Here, too, the cook is almost wholly responsible for the quality of the product. If American vegetable dishes are often tasteless, the remedy lies in

A Question of Giving.

A husband found some holes in his socks and said: "Wifie, dear, why haven't you mended these?"
"Hubby, darling, did you buy me that coat you promised?"

"Well, if you don't give a wrap, I don't give a darn."

According to Law. The farmer marched into the little grocer's shop with a firm step.
"I want that tub of butter," said, "and that lot of sugar, and all that other stuff."

"Good gracious!" said the widow, who kept the shop, "whatever do you want with all them goods?"

"I dunno," said the farmer, scratching his head, "but you see, I'm the executor of your husband's will, and the lawyers told me I was to carry out the provisions.'

Needed Cigars. A cigar dealer in Philadelphia owed a cigar firm in New York $250. The bill was long past due, and the New York firm sent their representa-tive to see him. When he presented the bill the Philadelphian said, "I am sorry, but I can't pay you today." The representative said, "When can you pay me?" The Philadelphian said, "I don't know, but I would like your firm to send me another thousand cigars." The representative said "I am going back to New York tonight, and I will turn your order in." When the representative returned to New York and gave the order in and told the firm about presenting the bill, the firm wired the Philadelphian "When you pay balance of account, will send cigars."

The Philadelphian wired back,

Appeal to Men Through

"Can't wait that long".

Vanity and Vainglory Almost every woman has something about her which, carefully nurtured, will make her seem desirable-not, of course, to every man in her world, but to one or two. The charm, which may be anything from piquant conversation to good cooking, will find appreciation somewhere if it be well displayed. "Men are appealed to through their vanity and vainglory even more easily than women, which means that most men would rather be seen about with a woman who patently did credit to their own powers of fascination than with the worthiest creature in the world if she had no means of making the beholders envy them.

"There may be men who dislike

'mere flirtation,' and coldly ignore a woman who attracts them, but you will have to look for them in monasteries and other retired places. They are not of this world. "A man likes to look upon a woman as one who is subject to a hundred weaknesses and follies, and yet remains at heart a staunch friend, 'a really good sort.' "A man falls in love with a woman who helps him to appear at his best." -"The Technique of the Love Affair,"

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

C. E. Topic for April 7th.—Using the Bible as a Daily Guide Ps. 19:7-11; Rom. 15:4-7; Neb. 4-12

Written by Merwyn C. Fuss, Taneytown, Md., Junior Supt. Carroll County C. E. Union.

The topics of the past month have been very helpful indeed and because of their consideration we have found new interest in our work. It would be very difficult to imagine a more needed topic for our meditation than the one assigned for this

We are living in the day when the automobile has come to play an important part in the life of our nation. Many are the uses to which these cars are placed. Especially do they ing that almost every day we find tourists on the highway. Some are from neighboring communities, others are hundreds of miles from home. How often have we noticed these travelers eagerly scanning their guide books. In fact no thoughtful tourist would start out on a journey of any extent without one of these guide books in his possession. He does not know the road. He must keep close to the guide book or lose his way. How valuable this little book is to him. He just could not get along without it. It has made his journey so much more pleasant. It has saved him so much worry. It has brought him to his destination.

we realize the necessity of every Christian having a guide book. One that can be depended upon as a safe and sure guide that can be consulted day by day as we journey through life. One that will not give deceptive information, but that can be relied upon with the utmost con-fidence for it is accurate in every defortunate we are that such a guide book has been provided for us? Our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom realized the need in the life of every christian of a book of this kind that would serve as a daily guide. So he gave to us the Holy Bible, the book divine the greatest book in all the world. It is historical, it is educational. It is inspirational. It tells us all we need to know about ourselves and all we need to know about our Creator. It covers every step of the way we must travel on the journey of life. It points to the one and only way to life everlasting. Perhaps in all our homes the Bible is esteemed a Holy book to such an extent, sometimes, that we try to protect it from hard use. We assign it to some place of honor or pack it away where no harm can come to it. We seem to feel all that is necessary in order that we derive benefit from it, is to have it in our possession, so day by day we run across difficulties. We yield to temptations. We start out to do some work in the church or community and we meet with failure. The more we endeavor to do, the less we seem to accomplish? We have lost all sense of direction.

What is the trouble? We have the guide book. Well, whoever heard of a closed guide book helping a tourist; neither has anyone ever heard of a closed Bible helping a Christian. If we had used this blessed book. If we had opened it every day and read from its sacred pages—carefully—thoughtfully—prayerfully—many of the heartaches would never have A pleasant old gentleman with a very long beard passed our house every morning. As he did, my little come into our lives. Many of the discouraged moments would never have been known. Instead of failure ou efforts would have been crowned with glorious success. Instead of losing direction, not knowing what to do or where to go, we could have gone straight ahead, lead and directed by a loving Heavenly Father.

Let us resolve this day that we are going to give the Bible the rightful place it deserves in our lives. Introduced in the second health in the stead of it being a closed book in our homes, may we take it down from the shelf, wipe the dust from its pages, and start, not tomorrow or next week, but right now, to make it our daily guide. As we read its word of wisdom it will become more precious. As we partake of the Heavenly manna it offers, our spiritual strength will be renewed. As we drink of the life giving stream that lows from its pages, we will be uplifted and our spirits will be re-freshed. We will be inspired to bigger and better things, and our lives will be fuller-higher-deeper.

Faithful Friends. Al had wired his wife that he would be home Friday night. At midnight he hadn't shown up. His wife became nervous and wired four of the Ohio branches asking if Al was staying

At about six in the morning, Al came home, clothes wet and muddy, having had to change tires and fix several punctures. Shortly afterwards, telegrams began to come in. They all read: "Yes, Al is staying here tonight."

Spanish Sailor First

to Discover Australia While in South America, Doctor

Rosenbach of Philadelphia is said to have acquired many interesting papers, including one which bears the only known signature of the discoverer of Australia, Capt. Pedro Ferdando de Quiros. It commissions Gaspar de Gay and Manuel Noble as sailing masters of the ships San Pedro and San Pedro y Pablo, about to proceed on "the discovery of the unknown austral regions of this South sea by order of the king," and is dated Lima, July 27, 1605.

On leaving Callao harbor Quiros was, it is related in records of him. asked to lay down a course, and he replied: "Let her go as she is; God will take her somewhere." The ships came to the land fringe of Australia -"southern land"-and were separated by a storm. Returning, Quiros, now penniless, got a new oufit from Spain to continue the exploration, but died of fever on reaching Panama.

Eskimo Musicians Not Enthusiastic About Jazz

The Eskimo must be the great music-lover. It is said of him that he, will sit on his native ice for hours listening to the graphophone. His own music he makes on an instrument which consists of a skin tightly stretched over the frame of a hoophalf drum and half tambourine. Eight players of eight of these instruments make an Eskimo orchestra. With each man striking the one note of his instrument with a rod, the eight notes of the octave are produced. Also, the musician sings as he plays. Needless to say, the people nourished on this music are amazed by the more civilized music, and it is said of them that they greatly appreciate graphophone records of singers. Strangely enough, too, they prefer most other music to jazz.

One of the strangest tribunals in England sits at regular intervals in a upper room in St. James' street West, in the center of the great art world of London. It is the antique dealers' "High Court of Justice," to which any of the 550 members of the British Antique Dealers' association has the right to appeal. Its judges, who sometimes number as many as 20, include some of the world's greatest experts on precious stones, old china, tapestries, pictures and antique furniture.

Disputes arising out of the sale of an antique of more than ordinary importance are often referred to the court for arbitration, and if they think fit, the judges have the right to call in independent art experts. It is to protect the interests of antique dealers and safeguard the honor of their industry that this tribunal has been established.—Hartford Courier.

One day a stranger dropped into the shop, and had a good look at the monkey sitting in a far corner staring intelligently at a comic paper. By and by the barber was called to the door to answer some query or other, and in his absence the monkey seized the lathering brush and proceeded to work diligently on the customer's face. Afterwards he grabbed a razor and started to strop it with equal diligence, but in a grossly careless manner. Then he clambered up on the arm of the chair and made as if to begin shaving the alarmed customer.

"No, na, ma wee mannie!" said the latter, jumping to his feet and pushing the monkey aside. "I've no objections to ye soapin' me, an' yer stroppin' maybe a' richt, but yer father'll hae to do the shavin'!"

Even in Lancashire quietly padding rubber and leather steadily replace the clatter of clogs and wooden shoes. The silent shoe is a modern notion. Noisy boots were formerly something to be proud of. The gallants of Alexandria let people know when they were coming, the London Macaroni of the Eighteenth century wore heel-tips that clinked, and a Northampton boot manufacturer says that some of his West Indian orders used to stipulate that the boots must squeak!

Says Cohn Found Bacteria

That Dr. Ferdinand Cohn, the botanist, and not Robert Koch, the chemist, was the discoverer of bacteriology, was brought out in Germany during the recent celebration of the centenary of Koch there. Cohn is said to have examined the frontier regions between plant and mineral. Then came his investigations of the bacteria. He discovered a number of mysterious carriers of sickness and grouped them into a system. He influenced a young physician to pursue his scientific studies in bacteriological research. The young physician was Koch.

Objected to Knitting in London Co. Council Knitting needles may not click an accompaniment to the debates in the

This unwritten law was laid down large, hairy, and particularly ugly with emphasis by an irate masculine objector when Dame Beatrice Lyall, member for East Fulham, produced a pair during an all-night session and proceeded to click off interminable hours of debate with as many inches of warm woolen sock.

No woman has yet had the hardihood to produce knitting needles in the house of commons, but in the past men M. P.'s have done so.

The most famous knitter in parliamentary annals was one of the Wason brothers, who were well known to a former generation at Westminster. They were such big men that they were prominent figures wherever they appeared, and the spectacle of one of them, a man six feet tall and proportionately hefty, plying his knitting needles throughout debates in the house must have been incongruous. His fellow M. P.'s apparently thought nothing of it, however, for there are no chronicled objections in parliamentary archives.

Skates of Bones Used in Ancient Britain

Skates were not always made of en's "History of England," it was customary for young men in the Twelfth century to fasten the leg bones of animals under their feet by means of thongs and slide on the ice, pushing themselves along by means of an ironshod pole. Specimens of the primitive skates have been found from time to time in the marshy fields near London.

Just who invented skating is not known. Holland, with its extensive water surfaces, is sometimes looked upon as the birthplace of the sport. But the Twelfth-century bone implements are said to indicate that there were some followers of the sport in England before the Dutch spread it abroad in the Thirteenth century. In Twelfth-century England the skaters on bone are said to have jousted at each other as in a tournament.

Butterfly Has Heart That Beats Backward

The butterfly, immemorially the symbol of inconstancy, has a heart that often beats backward, Prof. H. Gerould of Dartmouth college told the American Society of Zoologists. He has dissected numbers of these insects, and has demonstrated this strange behavior many times. The heart of an insect is in its back instead of its chest, and consists merely of an enlargement in a long blood vessel, much like the bulb in the middle of a rubber syringe tube. A beat will start at its rear end and travel forward, squeezing the blood ahead of it. After repeating this several times, the heart will pause, and then a beat will start at the forward end, sending the blood in the posite direction. Occasionally the beat will start in the middle, sending the blood both ways. It seems to make no difference to the butterfly.

SANDWICH FILLINGS

EVERY mother has many occasions to use sandwich fillings and a variety of ideas will be of help. It is a good plan to keep a list of good combinations, for often the makings are at hand and they are forgotten. Here is a good one: Chop fine two large sardines, one cupful of cold boiled ham and two cucumber pickles. Make a paste by adding a tablespoonful of mayonnaise. Spread on thinly sliced, buttered white bread.

Take one pint of finely chopped chicken, turkey or game, one-half cupful of ground almonds blanched, mix with mayonnaise dressing, adding a little cream. Spread on buttered brown bread.

Chop enough olives and mix with mayonnaise dressing to spread on the number of sandwiches to serve.

Chop equal quantities of veal. tongue or chicken, moisten with stock from the meat, season well and add scraped onion, a grating of nutmeg, mix well and spread on graham bread.

Neufchatel cheese softened with a little cream, adding nuts, makes a delicious filling. Use one-half the quantity of pecans, a few chopped olives and spread on buttered brown bread.

The coarse breads, using the whole wheat and corn when possible, are the best of breads for children, for it gives the teeth and gums the proper exercise in mastication to keep them healthy.

To one cupful of ground ham, add two cupfuls of chicken, one green pepper, finely chopped and mix with mayonnaise. Use on buttered graham bread. Soften cream cheese with cream and spread on whole wheat bread. Cover with a little chopped candied ginger.

Crisp lettuce leaves dipped in French dressing and served at once makes dainty and tasty sandwich fill-

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS By H. IRVING KING

EAGLESTONES

THE idea of an eaglestone being a good luck talisman is easily traceable to the Greeks, whose ancient writers frequently mention it. The stone is a variety of argillaceous oxide of iron, found generally in masses the size of a walnut, is hollow and has in it a movable kernel. The Greeks called them eaglestones from the belief that the eagle transported them to her nest to facilitate the laying of eggs. Sir Thomas Browne, in his "Vulgar Errors" (1646), speaks of the eaglestone as having medicinal properties ascribed to it by the ignorant. In these days the carrying about of an eaglestone in one's pocket is supposed to bring good luck. Not long ago an English paper stated that John D. Rockefeller, who is not generally considered to be of a superstitous turn of mind. habitually carries about with him an eaglestone "for luck." This connecting up of the Oracle of Delphi with oil is certainly interesting and if the statement regarding Mr. Rockefeller is true in his case the eaglestone seems to have "worked to a charm."

"IN HIS TRACKS"

By JEAN NEWTON

HEY followed in his tracks" would be said today about any one who was followed or pursued. It might be in a big city that the way lay, through streets and over pavements that would show no tracks. Not so, however, the early travels in which the phrase had its origin. The expression "in his tracks" and

"making tracks" comes to us from the Far West, where not so long ago men literally did blaze trails and make tracks.

The specific circumstance in which the latter phrase was first used was If you feel an irresistible urge to when a squatter deserted his claim sneeze and nothing, absolutely noth and set out to explore an unknown ing can head it off-observe traffic region. Then it was said that he rules, girlie, and steer it to the right | was "making tracks'; and the expresfor that brings money—but a sneeze sion, though no longer literal, has survived in our language until this day.

THE TWO KINDS OF WATER-SPOUTS ARE FORMED .-Waterspouts at sea are composed chiefly of fresh water, not salt water, as commonly supposed. That is the conclusion of those who have investigated the subject in recent years. According to the weather bureau, there are at least two different kinds of waterspouts.

One kind starts at the surface of the water, somewhat like dust whirls start on hot, dry plains. It may rotate either clockwise or counterclockwise. The other kind, the typical waterspout, starts at a cloud level and burrows down. It is essentially a tornado over water, although it is usually less violent than the average tornado over and.

Such a waterspout appears as a rapidly whirling, funnelshaped column of air, extending from a storm cloud to a water surface. The axis is visible as a column of water or water vapor. A strong upward indraft beneath the base of the cloud produces the formation and the air supplying the indraft acquires a rapid rotary motion as it ascends. This produces a decided low pressure in the central axis of the eddy, and the rising air flowing into the column expands as it passes into places of low pressure. This in turn causes the air to cool and become visible by condensation of part of the moisture.

How Danes Originated the Drinking Pledge

The phrase, "I'll pledge you," in drinking is said to have first been used shortly after the Danes came into England about the year 800. Doctor Harrison, in his "History of Great Britain," says: "If an Englishman presumed to drink in the presence of a Dane without his express permission it was deemed a mark of disrespect that nothing but his instant death could expiate. Nay, the English were so intimidated that they would not venture to drink even when they were invited until the Danes had pledged their honor for the Englishman's safety; which introduced the custom of pledging each other in drinking, of which some vestiges still remain among the common people of the north of England, where the Danes were most predominant.

"These people, the Danes, at that time, had the unpleasant habit of waiting until a person was drinking and then either stabbing or cutting the drinker's throat."

How Senate Stops Debate

Until the senate rules were amended on March 8, 1917, there was no limit of debate. On that date the rules were amended so that: "If at any time a motion, signed by 16 senators, to bring to a close the debate upon any pending measure is presented t the senate, the presiding officer shall at once state the motion to the senate, and one hour after the senate meets on the following calendar day but one, he shall lay the motion before the senate and direct that the secretary call the roll, and, upon the ascertainment that a quorum is present, the presiding officer shall, without debate, submit to the senate by an aye and nay vote the question: 'Is it the sense of the senate that the debate shall be brought to a close?' And if that question shall be decided in the affirmative by a two-thirds vote of those voting, then said measure shall be the unfinished business to the exclusion of all other business until disposed of. Thereafter no senator shall be entitled to speak in all more than one hour on the pending measure, the amendments thereto, and motions affecting the same, and it shall be the duty of the presiding officer to keep the time of each senator who speaks."

How Pearls Should Be Kept

It is a popular belief that pearls deteriorate readily, yet the observance of a few rules is sufficient to care for them properly. They should be kept in as even a temperature as possible, for they expand and contract on exposure to heat or cold. The composition of the pearl is 92 per cent carbonate of lime, 6 per cent organic matter and 2 per cent water. It is essential that this water be retained in the pearl. In order that this may be accomplished pearls should be kept in a container lined with a fine quality of oil silk rather than in a receptacle lined with absorbent material.

How Sharks Catch Fish

The shark known as the thresher shark has a method of catching its prey differently to its relations. This shark is endowed with a long curved tail, which it uses as an oar to lash the water when it is swimming along. This "lashing" frightens any smaller fish that are in the neighborhood and in the usual manner of fish they flock together in a mass. This is just what the shark is waiting for, and directly the fish have congregated together he turns rapidly, opens wide his large, vicious mouth, and gathers in the whole appetizing meal.

Cinnamon is the pale, yellowishbrown inner bark of the cinnamon strongly aromatic.

Death Certificates Should

Be Reported Certificates of death are important factors in the keeping of accurate vital statistics. The bureau of the census of the Department of Commerce at Washington has arranged standard methods of reporting and the states that conform to its requirements are grouped into what is known as the United States registration area.

The bureau sets forth the following reasons why reporting of death certificates is important:

1. Certificates of death or certified copies of them are constantly required in courts and elsewhere to establish necessary facts.

2. Pensions or life insurance may depend on proper evidence of the fact and cause of death.

3. Titles and rights to inheritance may be jeopardized by the failure of

4. Deaths should be registered that public health agencies may know the causes of death and act promptly to prevent epidemics.

5. Deaths should be registered promptly that the success or failure of all measures attempted in the prevention of disease may be accurately determined.

6. Deaths should be registered that individual cities and localities may learn their health conditions by comparison with conditions in other communities and determine thereby the wise course of public health ac-

7. Deaths should be recorded that home-seekers and immigrants may be guided in the selection of safe and healthful places to live.

Why the New Metal, "Carboloy," Is Hard

Even if the new hard metal, variously known as "carboloy" or "widia" or by other names, does not manage in actual use to be quite so revolutionary of engineering methods as its most optimistic promoters hope, it already provides opportunity for a travelogue into the microscopic world of metallic interiors. The new material consists of tiny crystals of tungsten carbide, one of the hardest chemical compounds known, embedded in and intimately attached to a matrix of metallic cobalt. Cobalt is not by itself a particularly hard metal, but it can be made unusually tough. With the tiny grains of crystalline carbide scattered through its substance, the reinforced cobalt adds a cutting edge to its toughness and even becomes able, tests have shown, to cut a screw thread on a rod of porcelain or of glass. Thus comes to its latest step, although doubtless not its last one, a process of invention and discovery which began at least with the first bronze.

Why London Has Fogs

The weather bureau says that the London fogs are caused, as are most inland fogs, by the cooling of humid surface air to a relatively low temperature. This occurs only on clear nights and when there is practically no wind. The city smoke, remaining in place for the most part and not ing blown away, adds greatly to the darkness and density of the fog-a mixture of smoke and fog. The smoke, of course, does not evaporate. and some have insisted that the smoke furnishes an oily film to the fog particles which keeps them from evaporating; but, according to the weather bureau, the existence of this film has not been definitely established.-The Pathfinder.

Why Called "Naval Stores"

The origin of the term "naval stores," which commercially is applied to the great turpentine and rosin industry of the southern United States, is uncertain, but it is probable that it is derived from the fact that these and other materials broadly included in this designation were at one time chiefly used by shipping. The forest service says that the term "naval stores" in olden times referred to pitch alone which was carried on the old shipping vessels for use in calking the seams of the boat. This now includes tar, turpentine, pitch, rosin, etc. The term, no doubt, was applied to supplies which were stored in shipping vessels and in this way were called "naval

Why Upholstery Frays

Use generally is regarded as the chief factor in rapid wear of the upholstery. Tests, however, fail to sustain this judgment. It is the dust that works its way into fabric that does the damage most rapidly. That is why the makers of fine cars advise buyers to have the upholstery brushed with a whisk broom at least once a month and, after the brushing, subjected to a thorough cleansing with a vacuum cleaner. It means a valuable extension of upholstery life and much better appearance.

Why Water Whirls

The bureau of standards says that the rotary motion of water passing down a pipe is caused by the shape of the opening and the friction of the sides. The direction in which it runs depends upon how it started, and it is not always the same direction.

Why Snow Is White

Snow is white because the crystals are so minute that each cell of the retina receives a general impression produced by the combination of differtree. It is dried in the sun, and is ent wave lengths reflected from innumerable minute facets.

THE MINISTRY OF ISAIAH

LESSON TEXT-Isaiah 6:1-13; 20:1, GOLDEN TEXT-Then said I, here am I, send me

PRIMARY TOPIC-Being God's JUNIOR TOPIC-Being God's Help-

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC-Finding a Life Work. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—Obedient to the Heavenly Vision.

I. Isaiah's Call (Isa. 6:1-13).

1. Isaiah's vision of the Lord (vv. (1) He saw the Lord on His throne

(v. 1). The supreme need of a servant of God is to have a vision of Him. (2.) He saw the seraphim above (vv. 2, 3). Their position indicated that they were in readiness to do His bidding. The six wings showed their ability to execute the divine will. One pair veiled the head from the divine glory, one veiled the feet which had been soiled in contact with the world, white the third was held in readiness to depart on the divine errand. Their continued cry was, "Holy, holy, holy." (3) He saw manifestations of majesty (v. 4).

As the seraphim cried, the very door posts moved and the temple was filled with smoke. Smoke symbolizes the divine presence in anger (Exod. 19:8; 29:18). This indicated that the selfishness, idolatry and wickedness of Israel had provoked God's wrath.

2. Isaiah's conviction of sin (v. 6). When he saw the vision of the Holy God, he was smitten with a sense of sin. The reason men think well of themselves is that they have never seen God. Face to face with the Lord. Isaiah saw himself as wholly vile.

3. Isaiah cleansed from sin (vv

Having been convicted of sin and made confession, a burning coal sent from the alter purged away his guilt. 4. Isaiah's call (v. 8).

His call from God did not come until after his cleansing. The purged soul is ready for the Lord's service. 5. Isaiah's dedication (v. 8).

As soon as he was cleansed he responded to the call for service. He did not inquire as to the issue, but freely gave himself to that service. 6. Isaiah's commission (vv. 9-13).

Because of the unpromising outlook. Isaiah shrank from his responsibility. The Lord assured him that the people's blindness and sin would not endure forever. They would continue in sin, be taken into captivity, and the land left desolate. Their life, however, would be as the oak which sheds its leaves and is for a time apparently lifeless, but still retains its

II. Isaiah's Prophecy Concerning Assayria and Egypt (Isa. 20:1-6).

The increasing power of Assyria alarmed the Jews who were inclined to turn to Egypt and Ethiopia for help. Isaiah severely rebuked them for turning away from God to Egypt

1. The prophet's action (vv. 1, 2). He removed his outer garments and walked about Jerusalem as a beggar in order to make a deep impression upon the people.

2. The significance of the sign (vv. 3-5).

For three years he went about in the dress of a beggar. As he had wandered about paked and barefoot, so would Egypt be led away in shame by the Assyrians.

3. The warning (v. 6).

The people are made to say, "Such is our expectation, whither we flee for help to be delivered from the king of Assyria: how shall we escape?" III. Isaiah's Message to Hezekiah

(Isa. 38:1-8). Hezekiah had inclined somewhat toward seeking help from Egypt. 1. Hezekiah's sickness (v. 1).

For this disloyalty God sent sickness as a means of chastisement.

2. Isaiah's first message (v. 1). "Set thine house in order for thou shalt die and not live." This doubtless is to be understood as a prophetic warning rather than a positive pre-

3. Hezekiah's prayer (vv. 2, 3). He plead with God for consideration on the basis of his faithfulness.

4. Isaiah's second message (vv. 4-6). God sent Isaiah to tell Hezekiah that his prayer had been heard, his life would be prolonged by fifteen years, and that Jerusalem would be delivered out of the hand of the king of Assyria.

5. The sign given (vv. 7, 8). The sign was the going back of the shadow of the sundial ten degrees.

INDIAN MAP ONLY CLEW TO TREASURE

Kentucky Man Leases Land to Hunt Cave.

Lexington, Ky.—Six barrels full of precious silver and coins valued at about $400,000 is the objective of J. D. Stamper, who has taken a lease on land in Carter county, about 80 miles from Lexington, where the treasure is reported to be. Mr. Stamper said: "I feel confident the treasure is there and that I will find it. I am the only man that has ever found all the earthmarks noted on the map and that actually came across a cave such as described in my treasure map."

The treasure is said to have been buried by Indians who left Kentucky after the arrival of the white man. Silver was plentiful with the redskins. and when they made their hasty exit they buried the treasure in a cave in Carter county.

They drew a map of the cave, its location and the ground marks that distinguished it, and in 1811 one Robert King, a fugitive from Europe, came upon a band of Indians camped in Kentucky. King made himself at home with the tribe.

King had no intention of leaving Kentucky with the Indians, and when the tribe left they gave him the buckskin treasure map as a farewell gift.

King searched for the treasure, but was forced to give up, due to lack of aid. When he died in that vicinity he gave the map to an Indian by the name of Robert Tinder. Tinder was unable to find the cave, and when he felt the approach of death called an old friend, J. A. Rhoden, now living near Nevada, Ohio, to his bedside and gave him the map.

Rhoden gave the map to Stamper, who is a native of Carter county and familiar with the land in the section where the cave is located.

Gold-Lined Tomb Built

for Argentine Family Buenos Aires.—Simple and unpretentious in its exterior appearance, one family vault in the Chacarita cemetery holds a vast store of wealth.

It is completely lined with gold and cost approximately 1,000,000 pesos ($420,000). It also contains a small statue of a woman, a work of Bitolfi, said to have cost 70,000 pesos. Frescos of inestimable value adorn the upper part of the golden walls. The vault was constructed 19 years ago by Angel Roverano. Designs which were being worked out in the floor in small gold blocks were never completed, because the will of Roverano provided that the tomb must be closed on the death of his only surviving relative, a brother, who died several years ago.

Rural Schools Needs

Must Be Considered Rural schools in the farm lands, and district schools in some of the so-called urban areas, exist under a system inaugurated in 1789. The hundred and forty years of practice has established a precedent which proves difficult to alter. But to obtain better schools the existing order of control must be either entirely abolished or radically changed, says Alson Secor, editor of Successful Farming. "Why should a mistake of 1789 be made perpetual?" he asks. "Just because we have grown up with this system does not make it right. Why, then, did not the colonists go back to the centralized school system? The same answer holds true now what did then: it is easier to create political offices than to abolish them. The politicians of 150 years ago were as anxious to hold their little school jobs as the politicians of today are anxious to hold their jobs.

"Consolidation," writes Mr. Secor, "is not essential, however. It may not be economical or desirable. But state aid for the weak schools will put them on a parity with the better schools. This must come. Our school units are too small. The county unit is small enough. But any change that will equalize the opportunities should be made and made quickly. Because farmers can get aroused about equality for agriculture and make a tremendous political fight for that, they should be right in line for equality in rural education."

Home Owners Helped in Modernizing House

There is no doubt that the home modernizing movement will bring about in the near future a class of service from legitimate sources which will enable home owners desirous of remodeling to secure funds on time payment for the purpose.

At the present time savings banks, building and loan associations, life insurance companies, trust companies and mortgage companies are evincing a real interest in the financing of remodeling programs.

Not long ago there started a movement which has been nationally recognized as of extreme importance; the organization of the home modern izing bureau of the national building An organization this, not only to assist home ownership, but to encourage and make possible home better-At present financing of homes and home improvements is being carried on effectively. And all signs show that this effectiveness will be even more marked in the near future.

Landscape Improvement

St. Louis county is engaged in one of the most ambitious road-paving campaigns ever launched by a single 105 miles of new roadways have been completed with 27 miles remaining to be built. A total of 132 miles is anticipated by the county engineer as a result of a bond issue of $3,-

Now that the county is to be beribboned with concrete highways, it is opportune that those in authority should embroider these new thoroughfares with shade trees, ornamental shrubbery and flowers, preferably using those native to Missouri. How charming the landscape if unsightly wayside signs and ragged fields could be displaced with stately sycamores and maples, hedges of alder, buckhorn, native currants, sumac or climbing roses!—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Proper Care of Lawns

Rolling is necessary to keep the lawn in a desired condition, but damage often can be done if the work is not done at the right time or in the right way.

It is important that rolling never be attempted when the soil is in a soggy condition; that is, rolling should be done when there is no excess of moisture in the soil. This is especially true in the case of heavy soi's.

The weight of the roller to be used and the amount of rolling required depends upon the type of soil. Light or sandy soil requires and will bear more rolling and the use of heavier rollers than will heavy soils. On an average a roller should weigh from 175 to 225 pounds.

Record to Be Proud Of.

South Windsor, Mich., has more than 37 miles of paved streets, 35 miles of water mains, 27 miles of sidewalk, 40 miles of sewers, 10 miles of gas mains, 15 miles of telephone lines and 12 miles of electric power lines. This is the record of a community scarce three years removed from the pioneer stage of cow pastures, plowed fields, and barbed-wire fences.

Team Work Builds City

The way to build up a community is with community spirit, co-operation, team-work. The local manufacturer the home producer of any community of general use, should be given preference. Each industry should give consideration to the other in the same community. Consumers can force this condition if the matter is given proper support.-Portland Oregonian.

Black Ants Valuable

to Worry Coco Louse

"Without Black Ants No Coco" reads a sign posted at the entrance of a great plantation in central Java. It does not go unheeded, for the natives hand in some four million nests of these little creatures every year, and receive payment in return. These black ants live only upon trees infested by the white coco louse. Neither the louse nor the ants injure the trees. The real enemy is a tis, which also attacks the tea plant. It has been found that when the black ants are present the Helopeltis fails to injure the trees. Apparently this sap-sucking pest is disturbed by the activity of the ants, for the latter do not attack the beetle.

This is why the black ants are protected. Food is provided for them by picking the white coco lice from the shells of the fruit, where they congregate, and placing them on the coco trees to attract the ants and disturb the beetles.

The Difference Between 'You' and 'Me'

One has to step very properly, these days, to be fully consistent in all of our transactions and all of our atti-We still want privileges and advantages for ourselves that we do not want others to have; and we trim our convictions to suit our own interests—in other words, we "dodge" do-ing things we think are right, because we fear that in so doing we will lose some of our popularity, or some of our financial interests may be injured.

We quite frequently have to take to cover on a question after we find out who is on the other side. Politics is that way too. We oppose certain policies, or bills, for others, because there is "nothing in it" for us; but just let us see how we get in on it too, and we change our tune instanter. Actually, we favor laws that tax others, but not the laws that tax our-

And, very often we are conscientiously against a thing, but because the thing benefits a son, or brother, we keep our conscience in the background and "pass by on the other side."
Actually, we are not so far removed from the beasts and fishes in some of our actions as we make believe; and if the element of self-interest could be eliminated from our actions, they would be substantially different in character.

"He who knows nothing, is confident of everything."

"He who would eat the kernel, must first crack the shell."

One cannot expect everybody to be as clever as one's self.

"The short and sure way to good reputation, is to take care to be, in truth, what we would have others think us to be."
