

TANEYTOWN WORKMAN LOSES RIGHT HAND.

Crushed in Embossing Machine in Littlestown Factory.

Carroll N. Riffe, aged 19 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albertus G. Riffe, Taneytown, suffered a serious accident at the Newark Shoe Factory, Littlestown, on Monday afternoon shortly before 4 o'clock, that resulted in the complete loss of his right hand—the same hand and wrist that was broken in February, while he was cranking an auto in Littlestown, at the factory.

He was rushed to the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, and was operated on about 5 o'clock, the hand being amputated at the wrist. His parents went to Gettysburg on receiving the word of the accident, arriving shortly after the operation was completed. His mother has been with him most of the time at the hospital.

He was operating a leather stamping machine that embosses the vamps of shoes under a pressure of seven tons, and by some means his hand became caught and completely crushed. The machine is said to be controlled by a trip operated by the foot. Just how the accident happened is not now definitely known, as young Riffe has not been in condition to say much about it, and no statement has been made by the factory officials.

He had not been working at the factory very long, due to his previous injury and is said to have been operating this particular machine only a short time. His condition at present seems as good as can be expected, but is complicated by a cold.

Shooting Case Near Union Bridge.

John Wetzel, near Union Bridge, is at the Frederick Hospital, in a serious condition from a gun shot in the abdomen said to have been fired by his uncle Charles Wetzel, and the latter is in jail pending the result of his nephew's injuries.

It is said that John Wetzel, his brother Elmer and a negro named William Dotson went to the home of the elder Wetzel near Union Bridge, Wednesday afternoon, where they began drinking.

When Charles Wetzel ordered the others away, it is said, a quarrel ensued, during which he picked up the shotgun and threatened to use it. In a scuffle the weapon was discharged, the contents entering the abdomen of John Wetzel. Mrs. Wetzel claimed that she was beaten by Elmer Wetzel.

Henry A. Utz Seriously Hurt.

Henry A. Utz, 24 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Utz, of Hanover, formerly of near Kump, this county, was severely injured at Conowingo dam on Monday, at noon, while assisting in the loading of a steam shovel, which was being loaded on a railway car for shipment by John S. Teeter, contractor, by whom Mr. Utz was employed.

The accident occurred while three men, including Mr. Utz, were using a steel bar, some three feet in length, to force heavy steel cables into coils, when the hold of the men slipped, allowing the steel bar to strike Mr. Utz with great force across the lower left cheek and under the nose, cutting clear through to the inside of his mouth, above the teeth.

Mr. Utz in an unconscious condition, was put in the automobile of Contractor Teeter, who sought the aid of three physicians in the neighborhood of Conowingo dam, none of whom were home, aid not being secured until the hospital at Havre de Grace, Md., was reached. Nine stitches were required to close the wound, and toxin-antitoxin was administered to lessen the chance of lock-jaw.

After receiving medical and surgical attention at the Havre de Grace hospital, Mr. Utz was brought to the home of his parents in Hanover and was taken to the Hanover hospital for the attention which his severe wound makes necessary.

TRADERS' LICENSE LAWS

Of Interest to all Merchants and others Who Need Licenses.

We call attention to an advertisement in this issue, that is of interest to all persons who are required to secure a county license for transacting business—licenses that are required for all traders, brokers, tobacco merchants, proprietors of billiard parlors, garages, laundries, soda fountains, bowling alleys, theaters, restaurants, cleaning, dyeing and pressing establishments and many others.

County Clerk Edwin M. Mellor publishes a letter from the State Comptroller covering the subject, and urges traders to comply with the license requirements as soon as possible, pointing out that a penalty is provided for all merchants who fail to secure their licenses within the specified time.

Attention is specially called by the Comptroller to Senate Bill No. 63, passed by the recent General Assembly under which there is imposed on persons who fail to take out licenses in the month of May a penalty of ten percent, or the cost of the license. In other words, licensees may take out licenses at any time during the month of May without having to pay a penalty, but on and after June 1, anyone applying for a license, who was in business in the month of the May preceding is required to pay in addition to the cost of the license a penalty of ten percent, per month or fraction of a month.

The Care of Chicks.

The numerous ills experienced by the poultry producers of the county are many says County Agent L. C. Burns. Clean chicks, clean houses and clean grounds are the three fundamental problems confronting the poultry industry not only in Carroll County but the entire State of Maryland.

Start with strong chicks and avoid disappointments. Hatch or secure your chicks from stock about which you know something. A good crop of potatoes cannot come from poor seed. Neither can a good crop of broilers or pullets come from poor chicks.

Failure to provide a clean environment for the chicks is one of the chief causes of chick losses. No matter how clean and vigorous the chicks may be to start, they may quickly become diseased if placed in an unclean environment. This environment must be planned and provided before the chicks hatch or arrive. Disease and contamination must be removed from the house before the chicks go in, if losses are to be avoided.

Remove all litter, manure and dirt from the house first by sweeping, then by scraping. Then scrub the floor and walls thoroughly with hot lye water, and then rinse. Follow this with a thorough application of a strong disinfectant. After allowing the house to dry, complete the job by spraying the inside of the house thoroughly with strained whitewash.

After the houses are thoroughly cleaned, with the team or tractor move them to ground which was not used by poultry the previous year and is not contaminated by poultry manure. This move is especially helpful in preventing outbreaks of coccidiosis or intestinal worms in the chicks. These troubles cause enormous losses in chicks and egg production each year in Maryland and can largely be prevented. Ground used by mature birds or by brooding chicks year after year, soon becomes "tainted" or contaminated with soil-borne diseases and parasites which attack poultry. Coccidiosis and intestinal worm organisms are the chief trouble makers in this class. These organisms live over from one summer to the next in heavily contaminated soil.

The safer plan, is to use movable brooder houses and place them on fresh soil each year.

One of the best plans to insure ground reasonably free of contamination for the chicks is to confine the mature stock to yards and provide three brooding fields, rotating the brooder houses so that one field is used for brooding once in three years. It may be folly to try to keep a single piece of ground free of contamination through expensive methods when there is fresh ground available on the farm.

The house must not only be clean to start, but must be kept clean if one is to afford the best protection for his investment in the brood of chicks. Avoid using any litter or floor covering which may become dusty. Dust is sometimes as dangerous as dampness in the brooder house, and may irritate the eyes and respiratory passages of the chicks. Clean shavings, free of sawdust, and clean straw make good litter. The house should be thoroughly cleaned, disinfected, and the litter renewed by the end of the first ten days of brooding. After this, the cleaning and disinfecting of the house and renewing the litter should be done about every five days.

4-Cent Gas Tax in Penna.

The Pennsylvania legislature has passed a 4-cent gasoline tax for one year, from July 1, 1929 to June 30, 1930, after which the tax goes back to the present 3-cent rate. The bill was specially sponsored by Governor Fisher, and met with considerable opposition. Many votes for the bill in both branches were because of administration pressure.

We may not know it, but we're being checked up all the time—the neighbors are busy when we least expect it.

MAN FELL ASLEEP AND DIES FROM SMOKE.

A lighted Cigarette causes Congestion of the Lungs.

Smoke from fire which started from a lighted cigarette he held in his hand when he fell asleep on a cot caused the death of George Francis Rosensteel, 55, near Emmitsburg, at the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, on Tuesday night.

Rosensteel, a bachelor, was found unconscious in a corner of the room in which he had fallen asleep, Monday morning by Walter Shorb, who rented part of the dwelling from the victim. The room was afire when Shorb was aroused by the smoke, but the blaze was extinguished before the flames spread.

A doctor from Emmitsburg, was called and succeeded in restoring Rosensteel to consciousness, but the smoke caused congestion of the lungs and resulted in the man's death.

Rosensteel evidently fell asleep on the cot some time after midnight on Monday morning while smoking a cigarette. The lighted cigarette then fell from the sleeping man's fingers and ignited the cot, carpet, window curtains and other furnishings.

Rosensteel was not burned. He is believed to have been awakened by the smoke and tried to escape, only to be overcome. And fall in a corner where he was found unconscious by Mr. Shorb.

A Sunday Evening Musical, at St. Mary's Reformed Church.

The fourth of the series of musical Sunday evening services will be held at St. Mary's Reformed Church, Silver Run, on Sunday evening, at 7:30. This program is a joint-recital on the organ by Miss Helen Kroh, a student at Hood College, and Merton Himes, organist at Zwingle Reformed Church, East Berlin, Pa. Both these young people are musicians of exceptional ability, and have studied organ for several years. The two manual Moller organ in St. Mary's Church is of moderate size and with its many combinations is capable of bringing very pleasing musical tones to the ear. Under the touch of these talented musicians one may be assured of an inspiring program. Miss Amanda Bell, Williamsport, Md., who is now a student at Western Maryland College, will assist the organists in their program by singing two vocal selections. The full program is as follows:

- Invocation Pastor
- Jubilate Hosmer
- A Midsummer Idyl MacDowell
- Pastorale (to a Wild Rose) Harris
- In the Forest Abbott
- Just for Today
- Largo (from Xerxes) Handel
- Allergia! Allergia! Armstrong
- Third Sonata in C Minor Guilman
- A Shepherd's Idyl Gebel
- The Voice in the Wilderness Scott
- Allegro Con Eric Roberts
- Moonlight Fryberger
- In a Monastery Garden Kettelberg
- The Offering
- Hymn No. 635 and Benediction Gounod
- Postlude. Theme from Faust

The first part of this program will be played by Miss Kroh, and the latter part by Mr. Himes.

These musical services have been attracting considerable attention. The church auditorium of 500 capacity has been practically filled at each service, and in one case it was necessary to put the overflow audience into the S. S. room.

Premiums for Careful Drivers.

Drivers of private passenger automobiles have been offered a real inducement for carefulness in the shape of a very substantial cash premium now allowed by the leading insurance companies, according to an announcement made by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

The new scheme for rewarding and encouraging carefulness is called by the insurance companies, "The New Merit Rating Plan." Under it the driver of a private passenger car will obtain a 10 percent reduction in his insurance rates for public liability and property damage providing he meets the following conditions:

- First: He has owned and operated a private passenger automobile for not less than two years prior to the effective date of the policy.
- Second: No private passenger automobile owned by him has been involved in an accident during the two years prior to the effective date of the policy.
- Third: His operating license has not been suspended or revoked, he has not been convicted of driving while intoxicated, evading responsibility after an accident, nor guilty of reckless driving during the two years preceding the effective date of the policy.
- Fourth: He will keep the brakes and steering gear of his automobile in good working condition and will have them inspected at least semi-annually.

This new rating plan and its conditions will apply to all private passenger cars including those owned and operated by physicians, salesmen, solicitors, collectors, adjustors and investigators.

This new idea has been under consideration for a long period by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters which has begun immediately to file its merit plan in all states. It will become effective in those states as quickly as the rules and regulations of the various State Departments of Insurance will permit.—The Manufacturer.

THE BANK ROBBERY

Jack Hart Linked with Gang that Did the Job.

The Baltimore Sun, of Wednesday, contained the following, concerning the escape of Jack Hart and the Westminster bank robbery. "The Westminster bank robbery, which links Jack Hart with a gang of former convicts sought, with a woman companion, as suspects in the hold-up April 5 of the Farmers and Mechanics National Bank of Westminster, has been obtained by Baltimore police, who have been investigating both the hold-up and Hart's escape on March 15 from the Penitentiary.

It is said Hart stayed for three days after his escape at a house in Northwest Baltimore with the gang and then left Baltimore.

Three of the five male members of the gang, it is said, have been identified through their pictures as participants in the Westminster hold-up, and detectives have been searching for them for some time for questioning.

It was in the search for the Westminster suspects that the detectives ran across the trail of Hart. They received information that the gang had been staying in a house in Northwest Baltimore, and it was surrounded and searched, but the men had left. Investigation revealed that on the day of Hart's escape a man answering his description joined the gang at this house and stayed for three days.

The woman, who is thought to have acted as the "lookout" in the Westminster hold-up, is the companion of the leader. It has been established that after they robbed the Westminster Bank of $14,000 they came to Baltimore, divided the loot and separated.

Whether Hart remained in touch with this gang and received any part of the Westminster loot is not known, but the detectives do not think it likely."

"Inside" Information for Women.

Asparagus should be cooked the shortest possible time to preserve its fine flavor and valuable food constituents. It may be cooked whole or cut up in inch pieces. Young, tender asparagus, cut up, will cook in from 10 to 15 minutes.

Vary the acid in your French dressing occasionally, and also the seasonings. Orange, lemon or grape fruit juice may be used in place of plain vinegar, or tarragon or spiced vinegar from pickles. Crumbled Roquefort cheese, minced green pepper or pimento, chopped stuffed olives chopped mixed pickle, celery seed, horseradish, or onion juice are other flavors which may be added according to taste, either separately or in any preferred combinations.

Sour milk and soda may be substituted for sweet milk and baking powder in making biscuits, cake, of cookies, and vice versa. When proportions are given in terms of sweet milk and baking powder, an equal quantity of sour milk may be substituted and enough soda used approximately to neutralize the acid, or a scant half teaspoonful for each cup of sour milk. In the case of thin batters the soda and sour milk usually furnish enough leavening, but for thick batters or doughs, baking powder is usually needed in addition. For example, if biscuits call for 1 cup of sweet milk and 4 teaspoons of baking powder, 1 cup of sour milk may be used, a scant half teaspoon of soda and 2 teaspoons of baking powder. When sweet milk is used in place of sour, baking powder is substituted for all of the soda in the proportion of 4 teaspoons of baking powder for 1 teaspoon of soda if no other acid ingredients such as molasses is used. If such an ingredient is used, some soda is required.

CONGRESS CALLED IN SPECIAL SESSION.

President Hoover Defines the Limits to Farm Relief and Tariff.

The special session of Congress convened, on Monday, and organized in both Senate and House, ready for business. The special items of business are Farm relief, and the Tariff there is no telling how far away from these questions the bodies may go. The desire of the leaders is to dispose of these questions at as early a date as possible, and to get away by mid-summer, but desire and performance are two very different things.

The main feature of importance in connection with these questions, and the session in general, will be the influence of President Hoover, and how far, or how ably, he may handle the situation. In other words, the President will be on trial as to his leadership, and his ability to direct both his party majority and public affairs; and in a large sense the session is expected to demonstrate whether the Hoover mind and temperament—his judicial grasp of big questions—amounts to strong and successful leadership.

The President's message was remarkably short and to the point, and covered but five points; (1) farm relief; (2) limited revision of the tariff; (3) immigration; (4) reapportionment of Congress and (5) provisions for the 1930 census.

Naturally the greater part of his message referred to farm relief. He called attention to the difficulties besetting the occupation; as to which he declared there was no difference of opinion, and then turned to the question of relief which he said is a question of method, and that no single plan, or principle can be generally applied. He further said:

The Government has a special mandate from the recent election, not only to further develop our waterways and revise the agricultural tariff but also to extend systematic relief in other directions.

I have long held that the multiplicity of causes of agricultural depression could only be met by the creation of a great instrumentality clothed with sufficient authority and resources to assist our farmers to meet these problems, each upon its own merits.

The creation of such an agency would at once transfer the agricultural question from the field of politics into the realm of economics and would result in constructive action.

The Administration is pledged to create an instrumentality that will investigate the causes, find sound remedies and have the authority and resources to apply those remedies.

Certain vital principles must be adhered to in order that we may not undermine the freedom of our farmers and of our people as a whole by bureaucratic and governmental domination and interference.

We must not undermine initiative. There should be no fee or tax imposed upon the farmer.

No governmental agency should engage in the buying and selling and price fixing of products, for such courses can lead only to bureaucracy and domination.

Government funds should not be loaned or facilities duplicated where other services of credit and facilities are available at reasonable rates.

No activities should be set in motion that will result in increasing the surplus production, as such will defeat any plans of relief.

Garlic in Milk Causing Loss.

Queen Annes County dairymen are facing a heavy loss on account of cooling stations refusing to accept milk with a garlic contamination. This is due to dairymen turning their cows in pasture fields as a means of saving the cost of feed.

County agents have been warning against this, and advising the building of larger silos and filling them with a sufficient quantity of ensilage to tide over the period when garlic is too plentiful in the pasture fields, but without much success.

The temptation to pasture seems too great for many of the dairymen, with the result that they now are facing a situation where they may lose large profits unless cooling-station officials relent in their attitude, which is quite improbable.

What is commonly called "pasture milk" which also affects the butter made from it, is very objectionable to most users, and it has been generally accepted as an annual nuisance from which there is no relief; but if the dairies and cooling stations refuse to receive the "pasture," or garlicky milk, that places a different, and very serious, face on the matter for the milk producers.

Cutting Seed Potatoes.

A good-sized piece of seed potato is preferable to a small-sized piece. Seed pieces with 1 to 3 eyes and weighing 1 to 2 ounces will, if planted from 12 to 14 inches apart in the row, give better results than smaller pieces cut to single eyes. Cut seed pieces are liable to rot if the ground is cold and wet after they are planted. Under this condition the small-sized pieces will not furnish as much plant food to the young plant as the larger pieces and they are also more likely to dry up and fail to germinate if the ground is very dry or poorly prepared.—U. S. Dept. Agriculture.

MARYLAND CROPS

Conditions far Ahead of Normal Growth for Season.

Synopsis of weather and crop conditions in Maryland for the week ending April 9, by Roscoe Nunn, section director.

Owing to extremely mild weather in March and the first eight days of April, all vegetation is much ahead of normal for this date. The months of January and February averaged nearly normal in temperature, with the usual variations of cold and mild spells, except that temperatures were persistently low from about January 26 to February 5. March was unusually mild except for brief cold spells about the 8th. to 10th. and the 17th. March averaged the second warmest March on record in the Baltimore section, and the week of April 3rd. to 9th. was the warmest week of record for this early in spring.

The precipitation of January, February, and March was nearly normal over most of the Section, and moisture conditions were quite satisfactory for crops at the beginning of the growing season. The winter's snowfall was unusually light, only one general heavy snow (that of February 21) having occurred.

Reports for the week just closed show that wheat, rye, and pastures have a heavy growth for this early in the season, and are generally considered in good to excellent condition. In some places wheat is thought to be rather overgrown for this date.

Early peas, potatoes, and oats are up and growing rapidly in the eastern and southern counties, and the planting of potatoes and garden truck is well advanced in other sections. A few early planted tomatoes are up.

Tobacco beds are generally sown and plants are well started in some beds.

Fruit trees are in bloom almost everywhere east of the mountains, peaches having bloomed two weeks ago in some places and apples early in April.

A few strawberry blooms are reported in eastern and southern counties.

Preparations for corn planting are well advanced in all sections.

Are you Going Ahead, or Falling Behind?

Substantially one-third of the year 1929 has now passed into history. What has it meant so far to you in personal progress?

Are you better off than you were when the year started? Have you gained a little in the race of success or have you fallen a little behind? Do you know exactly how much money you have wasted so far this year?

No doubt comparatively few persons could answer this last question and if the answer could be secured it would doubtless cause amazement. The small amounts of waste count up much more rapidly than we imagine.

Many persons are unable to make progress in their personal affairs simply because, unconsciously, they are paying just a little too much for about everything. Too much for rent, clothes, and recreation, too much for little luxuries here and there—these are the little things that bring failure and ruin.

Keep your expenses down to such a point that progress may be assured. No matter what you may do otherwise or how hard you may labor, failure will be the inevitable result of misadministration of your personal finances.

Watch your personal overhead. Keep down your fixed charges. Keep free of the yoke of bills that can't be paid. To do so is to grasp one of the essentials of personal upbuilding.

These are lessons to learn as we put the days and months of this year behind us.—S. W. Straus, Pres. American Society for Thrift.

An Old Prayer Still Good.

Here is an interesting old prayer in verse, which dates from the Eighteenth Century at least. It is of English origin, but its author is unknown. It is as appropriate today as when written, as a petition for Divine help in living a happy, healthy and useful life here on earth:

Give me a good digestion, Lord, and also something to digest;
Give me a healthy body, Lord, with sense enough to keep it at its best.
Give me a healthy mind, good Lord, to keep the good and pure in sight,
Which, seeing sin, is not appalled, but finds a way to set it right.
Give me a mind that is not bound, that does not whimper, whine or sigh.
Don't let me worry overmuch about the fussy thing called I.
Give me a sense of humor, Lord; give me the grace to see a joke,
To get some happiness out of life and pass it on to other folk.

The Tempter's Snare.

Without question, many of our best laws are nullified, or brought into disrepute because of weak officials who either accept bribes or misuse public funds. Our own state has recently had a very expensive illustration of this; and prohibition enforcement has suffered, here, and in other states, because of unfit enforcement officials who have given foundation for criticism on the part of those very willing to criticize.

Should Mr. Hoover find no other way of helping the liquor or situation than to weed out misfits, he will have accomplished much, and this we believe he will do, because it is the logical first thing to do in the way of securing more efficiency, and more respect for law enforcement, whether it be in the liquor law situation or elsewhere.

Blaming a good law for the acts of bad officials, is the sort of political ammunition that should be reduced to the minimum; which means that those who are unfit, by temperament, morality or otherwise, should be compelled to seek jobs elsewhere than in the public service, for no matter how small a government appointment may be, it should be a "public trust," and only the trustworthy should receive it.

There should also be notice served on Congressmen and others who dictate appointments—often for political services rendered—that they must be responsible for the character of their appointees, and not recommend them without personal knowledge of their honesty and fitness.

A Political Problem.

An interesting factor in the political field in the Southern States within the next year or two, will be centered around the anti-Smith Democrats of 1928, that may be influenced to a certain extent by the Hoover administration. That the greater portion of the Smith revolt will go back to the Democratic state and local candidates, seems to be an assured conclusion; and the best that the Republican candidates for Congress can hope for, is, that enough of the bolting voters may stay "bolted" in a few of the districts.

The tariff question, too, will likely add some strength to Republican candidates, as the industrial development of the South now wants "protection" as strenuously as does the manufacturing North and East. But, the South bids fair to be reasonably "solid" on state issues for Democracy, notwithstanding the activity of Republican leaders to encourage coalition, if not straight out Republican support.

The prohibition question, too, will likely cause many Southerners to lean to Republican policies, even though they do not fancy the name of the party, and certainly not the "Negro" connection the party has heretofore had in the South. Just what the return to the Democratic fold will amount to, whether heavy or light, will be a question that will not be fully determined until the election of 1930.

Farm Relief Next.

The special session of Congress, soon to convene, is called for the purpose of passing legislation on farm relief, and for the revision of such tariff schedules as affect farming adversely. The signs are at this time that a satisfactory solution of the farmer's troubles is still very much up in the air, about at the same place as are troubles in other lines of business.

The queer beginning to the trouble is that while farms are losing in cultivated acreage, production is increasing, and demand, if anything, is decreasing; the population increase is not keeping pace with food production increase.

Even the problems of women are said to be an important factor in the demand for food; what we recognize as slender figures, or the stream-line waist, is brought about largely by lightly stocked stomachs, which is very bad for the farmer, and Congress can do nothing about it. In commenting on the situation, the Philadelphia Ledger, says:

"Certainly there is no single answer that will serve. Better marketing and higher tariffs will help. Farm credits have been poured forth and will be again. Cheaper water transportation will cut down costs, but all these will not touch the overshadowing question of overproduction, and no man has been wise enough, or daring enough, to propose any plan for actually controlling production on 6,000,000 or more farms.

The farmer is trapped in the net of circumstance. His nights are filled with uncertainty and his days are the days of change. Fallow fields are on one side of him, and from the other come the roar and rumble of machinery. Little farms are being swallowed up into gigantic holdings as the "chain farm" spreads and big business ventures into mass crop-production.

And now Congress is about to sit as Committee of the Whole upon the question of farm relief. It will do its best, of course, but whatever it does can hardly be more than another expedient. The challenge is too great for Congress. The problem is too big, too complicated and is changing too swiftly. If the special session is able to work out a lasting and general remedy, that will work equally well over the whole industry, then the day of legislative miracles has come."

Comments on Road Traffic.

An editorial in the Show Number of Motor says, "Anybody can learn to drive a car." It says that thousands are shut in behind drab walls, thousands are robbing themselves of happiness. Yes, we agree and too, thousands are killed each year in motor accidents.

Of course there is room for more. If those thousands act upon the advice offered, they will be swallowed readily in the maw of traffic. Even though traffic is glutted and congested now, the problem will be solved the way all other material problems have been solved in the United States. Necessity still serves as maternal parent of invention. Special roads for buses and trucks, speed highways, express and local arteries, tunnels, bridges, double and triple deked thoroughfares will appear on the scene to swallow up the constant flux of motor driven vehicles bound upon work and pleasure.

We quote from the same editorial again, "The fear that holds back thousands is unfounded. Does the fear come from traffic? What is traffic? To the man at the roadside it is a dizzy mass of automobiles rushing by. But to the driver in traffic there is only one car—the one in front of him."

We wish that we could agree with this. It would be an utopian era for motorists. In our opinion there are other cars within the realm of his consciousness, one and maybe more ahead of him, one or several behind him, many steaming by on his left, and right—and one—in which he is the driver, his own car.

All of which proves nothing more than that the more eyes, ears, sense—and adequate and complete Automobile Insurance we have, the better.—News from Home.

Large Number of Aliens for First Eight Months.

Washington, D. C.—During the first eight months of the current fiscal year a total of 182,767 immigrants entered this country, according to statements made public by Commissioner General of Immigration, Harry E. Hull. About one-half of this number were of the class charged to the quota, 91,641 being admitted under the Immigration Act of 1924 as quota immigrants, while 67,777, or 37 percent came in as natives of nonquota countries, mainly Canada and Mexico; and 19,655, or 11 percent, were the husbands, wives, or unmarried children of American citizens. The remaining 3,694, or 2 percent, were ministers, professors, and the other miscellaneous classes admissible as nonquota aliens under the act.

In the same period, 131,531 non-immigrant aliens were admitted, 53.1 percent of whom came in as returning residents under the act, and 43.4 percent as visitors for business or pleasure or as transients. The other 3.5 percent were government officials, students, etc. A smaller proportion of the maximum annual quota of 164,667 entered the country so far this year, compared with the three previous years.

Europe supplied over half of the newcomers during February. Of 17,254 immigrants for the month, 10,047 or 58.2 percent, came from that continent, with Germany leading the list as usual with 3,437, while 1,372 came from the Scandinavian countries, 1,235 from Great Britain, 1,020 from Italy, 627 from the Irish Free State, and 561 from Poland. The other European countries contributed less than 400 immigrants during that month.—Scottish Rite News Bureau.

Signs on the Road.

The Chief of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads suggests that the United States Government refuse to help finance roads upon which unsightly and dangerous advertising signs are allowed.

These signs," says Mr. MacDonald, "are concentrated on the main traveled highways and are habitually placed at turns in the road where the motorists should be giving most careful attention to driving. In many instances they cut off the view of approaching cars at curves and at road intersections. Some even cut off the sight of approaching grade crossings. Those which carry the word 'stop,' and other words ordinarily employed on the legitimate warning signs weaken the force of the properly placed cautionary signals."

Special criticism is given automobile manufacturers and other industries who profit from the drivers for such customs. Although certain oil companies and others have discontinued such advertising, many others continue. Mr. MacDonald says: "There is little of fairness to the public in the fact that the industries which depend upon the highways for their whole business should be the worst offenders in erecting and maintaining thousands of glaring, disfiguring signs along our streets and roadways."

If newspapers or magazines made these statements many would think the editors were seeking to eliminate advertising competition, but when an official of the Federal Government in charge of highway promotion, protests no such motive can be charged. "In practically all cases these roadside advertisements merely repeat in the same form appeals that are made quite properly and insistently through other agencies. They are unneeded by the public and are of doubtful value to the advertisers," says the Bureau of Public Roads, which, also, adds that in many cases such advertisements are a positive hindrance and menace to the traveling public, especially when they contain misleading information about distances and the condition of the road ahead, which is belied in less obtrusive fashion by the public signs.—Mountain Democrat, Oakland, Md.

The Necessary Evil

Taxes are a necessary evil. We must have courts, roads, armies, schools and all those things which are a part of society.

It has often been said that the tax payer has no complaint; that for his tax dollar he gets a generous return. But no matter how true this may be, it is no reason for not protesting against inefficiency and waste.

Modern business is remarkable chiefly because, through sounder economic practices and greater efficiency, it has been able to give more for less money. Government has failed to keep step.

Our local units of government, especially, grow more and more expensive to maintain. Their slightest act entails duplication of effort and waste motion and unnecessary expense. And the taxpayer pays.

Only public protest and public action can raise the standards of government routine to a high state of efficiency and economy. There is too little sound business in modern government.—The Manufacturer.

His Pound of Flesh

It was Thursday and Wilkins was "broke" and hungry. Halting outside a butcher's shop, he gazed wistfully at the display of chops and sirloins in the window. Plucking up his courage, he entered.

"If I leave a security equal to what I take away, will you trust me till tomorrow?" he asked.

"Certainly," replied the butcher. "Well, give me a couple of those joints and keep one of them till I come back."

GOOD CREDIT IS A GOLDEN POSSESSION

A good credit standing like a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches. It carries with it prestige, influence, confidence, honor, trust, faith, and esteem.

One cannot afford to sacrifice this essential part of life, especially as it requires so little effort to maintain it. All that is required is to plan according to one's income, the modern phrase is "budgeting one's expenditures."

In making purchases on a credit basis one should always have in mind, "Will our income justify this, and leave us in a position to pay this obligation when due?"

This is offered as a suggestion in an effort to aid individuals in this community to maintain a high credit standing, one of the most valuable assets any one can possess.

WHO SAYS 5c CAN'T BUY A GOOD CIGAR?

Here's One That Accepts Every Challenge

A long-filler, ripe-tobacco cigar for a lowly nickel! Isn't that just about the most amazing cigar news you've read in years? Everybody knows that real ripe tobacco is usually considered too expensive to put into five-cent cigars. But you'll find it in Bayuk's Havana Ribbon. No bitter, raspy under-ripe top leaves; no flat over-ripe bottom leaves. Nothing but flavorful, savory fully-ripe middle leaves throughout.

But that's not the half of it. Bayuk's Havana Ribbon is made of long-filler tobacco. Not "ends," or "scraps." Bring out those nickels you've considered good only to buy newspapers with and flip 'em across the nearest cigar counter for some Bayuk Havana Ribbons. They sure cut down smoke bills and raise smoke enjoyment. Also Pocket Packages of five cigars.

Useful Little Animal

Victim of Ignorance

The shrew is a tiny animal which is to be found in many parts of the world, but not in any great numbers anywhere for the reason that it is, like the snake, greatly misjudged and is killed on sight by persons who are familiar with the superstitions surrounding it. This diminutive animal devours insects of all kinds and in this respect it is of great benefit to farmers in particular and mankind in general. In a book published in 1658 it is mentioned that the common shrew "is a ravening beast . . . it beareth a cruel mind, desiring to hurt everything; there is no creature that it loveth. They are fraudulent and take their prey by deceit and a lot more."

It was believed that the shrew poisoned cattle. In some English country districts it is still thought that if one passes over the foot of a man or touches a foot of a beast lameness is brought on.

The cure for this is a cruel one. A shrew is captured, a hole is bored in an ash tree, and the live animal is pushed in. The entrance of the hole is sealed. When it is supposed that the shrew's body is decayed sufficiently, the hole is opened, a twig inserted, and if this is passed over the lame part the man or beast is supposed to recover. It is difficult to believe that such ancient superstitions are still observed in some of the distant country districts.

The Limit

Little Anita was in the first month of the first year of her school life. Laboriously she had learned the consecutive order of numbers as far as seven. She couldn't imagine that anything in the counting line could exist beyond that figure.

Just at that time her mother reached another milestone on the road of life and the members of the family wished her many happy returns of the day. When it came to Anita's turn, she said:

"Many happy returns of the day, mother. I hope you live—" and then after a long and thoughtful pause, "for seven years more."

POULTRY

RAISING POULTS DIFFICULT JOB

Sanitation Essential to Prevent Dread Blackhead.

That the new methods of raising turkeys are about to revolutionize the industry is indicated by the success adventurous turkey enthusiasts have experienced in many parts of the country during the last season.

Word has gradually spread around during the last two or three years that the dreaded disease of blackhead could best be controlled by raising the poults under conditions where the sanitation can be carefully controlled. This has given rise to experiments with incubator hatching and artificial brooding and to keeping the growing poults on restricted range, says a writer in the Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman.

As the result of considerable experimenting, the new method has gradually taken the form of a rather definite program. Hatch the eggs in incubators; brood under artificial hovers; range on fresh, clean ground, and feed an all-mash starting and growing feed. This is a summary of the modern method now being tried with considerable success in many different places.

The writer has had the pleasure of being enabled to visit three turkey raisers in three different states who have been remarkably successful in raising turkeys by the method outlined above. These places were located in three different states—Michigan, Kentucky and Kansas, yet the methods followed were surprisingly similar and the results were uniformly satisfactory. The Michigan man has been using the same methods for two or three years and is specializing in turkey farming. He has a fine flock of more than 1,000 birds, and claims that his losses have been very low.

The Kentucky grower lives in the famous blue grass region not far from Lexington, and is a general farmer. He raises tobacco and other field crops, and in addition to the turkeys has a flock of more than 500 White Leghorn hens. It is worthy of note, however, that the turkeys and chickens are kept entirely separate.

There was nothing at all elaborate about his equipment as he used cheap portable brooder houses with small coal-burning brooders, and had homemade troughs for feed. He has about 250 turkeys left out of about 340 hatched. He claims that the losses were heavier than normal because the poults were chilled when he had some trouble with his brooder stoves.

The Kansas flock was found at the Kansas experiment station at Manhattan. This was an experimental flock, and the birds had been kept in close confinement without outdoor range, until they were sixteen weeks old. At that age they were transferred to a two or three-acre alfalfa field, and at the time of my visit, after four weeks on range, they were as fine and sturdy birds as could be wished for.

During their period of confinement, these poults were fed plenty of lawn clippings for green feed, but otherwise they had the same rations as growing chicks. This flock contained approximately 100 birds out of 135 that were started.

Sufficient Range for Success With Turkeys

A range of one acre of sod is considered sufficient for 100 turkeys from the age of eight weeks to marketable age. This area should also be divided into four sections and then each section used for only one month. The secret of successful turkey raising rests largely in providing fresh ground and the hopper feeding of all feed. In the selection of range it should be one which has not been frequented by chickens and should not be situated where drainage from the poultry yards may result in infestation. It is, of course, desirable to have all the turkeys of the same age. There is no question but that turkeys can be successfully raised in confinement and that it does not pay to allow turkeys to range for their feed.

Separate Turkeys

Keep turkeys entirely away from chickens because the excrement from chickens may contain the worms which are believed to harbor the germ that causes blackhead, the most deadly enemy of the turkey family. There is always more or less trouble from lice and mites with hen-brooded poults. The best stock you can buy will pay the largest profits. Experiments over a long range have shown there is no money in scrub turkeys.

Material for Eggs

Feeding affects the texture of the egg shells. It usually is necessary to supply layers with materials from which they may make the shell for the eggs. Crushed oyster shell is kept in hoppers so the birds may eat it at will, as it contains a large percentage of lime. Grit also is kept in hoppers, as it helps in grinding up the feed in the gizzard. Some kinds of grit also contain a certain amount of lime that helps the birds in the manufacture of egg shells.

CALIFORNIA'S CANNED FRUITS

CALIFORNIA'S canned fruit industry nets this great Western State today twenty times as much every year as its annual production of gold. How inconceivable this statement would have seemed to the Forty-niners who trekked across the prairies in covered wagons or circled the Horn in sailing ships in quest of California's precious yellow metal in the early days of the gold-rush.

Communities sprang up almost overnight at that time, and it is curious to recall that in California, today's land of plenty in whose peace and sunshine so many people go to spend their declining years, there was not enough food to support this sudden new population.

But there were a few far-sighted men among those pioneers who saw that California's real wealth lay in her sunshine and the soil of her fertile valleys. These were the men who started that State's great fruit industry.

Three-fifths of All Fruits

It was not long before California was producing not only sufficient fruit for her own consumption but gigantic quantities for export. Then canneries were established to make available for the rest of the United States, and even the lands beyond the seas, the luscious fruits that were being grown in such abundance. Today, as a result of these natural advantages of soil and climate, California produces more than three-fifths of all fruits that are canned commercially in the continental United States.

More than ninety per cent of this country's canned peaches and practically all of its apricots are packed in California plants. The canning of fruits there today has become a highly specialized industry, and many varieties have been developed which are particularly adapted to its needs.

An Army of Experts

Experts watch every step in the growing of these fruits, from the selection of the stock, care of the soil, cultivation and pruning, to the picking of the perfect sun-ripened product at exactly the right time. The orchards are carefully located in just those parts of the State where each variety grows best.

The canneries are located close to the orchards, so that the fruit may ripen fully on the tree and be canned at once, without loss of time in transportation. That's the best method yet discovered to seal in all their lusciousness, so fleets of big trucks rush the freshly picked fruits to the packing plants. There they are carefully inspected, and experienced workers—experts—with the aid of the most up-to-date machinery, peel, grade and can the fruit within a few hours after it arrives.

Modern Machinery

Specialized machines have been invented to keep pace with the growing demands of this industry, and the speed, thoroughness and skill with which each job is done is a constant source of amazement to the plants' many visitors. Spotlessly clean surroundings and constant inspection at every stage of the canning process insure the fruit's final tempting appearance and natural flavor.

As a result of this modern machinery and constant care both in the orchards and at every stage of the processing in the canneries, the public can be sure that California will supply it with the finest fruit that Nature produces—fully sun-ripened, delicious in flavor, its natural healthful goodness sealed in the cans and ready for enjoyment at any season.

The Man Who is Ahead.

In almost every paper
You are pretty sure to find
A lot of gush and nonsense,
All about the man behind;
The man behind the buzz-saw
And the man behind the gun,
The man behind the plowshare
And the man behind the son.
The man behind the whistle
And the man behind the cars,
The man behind the kodak,
And the man behind the bars;
The man behind the whiskers
And the man behind the fist—
Oh, you read of them often,
For they're always on the list;
But there is another fellow
Of whom nothing has been said;
It's the fellow who is even,
Or a little ways up promptly,
The man who pays up promptly
And whose checks are always signed
He's vastly more important
Than the man who is behind.
For every kind of business
And the whole commercial clan
Is indebted for existence
To this honest fellowman.
He keeps us all a-going
And his town is never dead,
So we all take our hats off
To the man who is ahead.

New York is still paying tribute to Captain Fried, who went to the rescue of the Florida, saving that vessel's crew without the loss of a man. If good people used the same common sense in fighting the devil that Fried used in fighting the sea, more menaced mariners sailing the sea of life would be brought safely into port.—Johnstown (Pa.) Jacobite Toast

When through an oversight no finger bowls follow your dinner, just be philosophical, remember that for 313 years the British royal family got along somehow without them. But it was far from an oversight that the kings and queens of Britain. After the exile in 1688 of James the Old Pretender, the Jacobites, his adherents, instituted the clever custom of lifting the glasses in such a manner as to bring them over their finger bowls, and so were in reality toasting the "king over the water." Suddenly finger bowls were conspicuous by their absence and the Jacobites knew their deception was detected. It was not until Edward VII began reigning in 1901 that the bowls reappeared.—Detroit News.

Furfural Is Now Cheap

Once a chemical curiosity, selling for $30 a pound, furfural, widely used as an insecticide, now sells for 10 cents a pound as a result of recent discoveries by chemists who have succeeded in producing it from oat hulls and other waste farm products.

A discovery by Prof. Orland R. Sweeney, chemist at the Iowa State college, has opened up an entirely new source for furfural in sugar beets. After the sugar has been extracted from the beets, the pulp is put through an additional process which extracts the chemical.

Death Valley in Java Exudes Poison Gases

For years travelers in Java have told of a "death valley" on the slopes of the volcano of Tangkuban Praho. The bottom of this valley, so they report, is paved with the skeletal remains of birds and lizards, and, according to some, even the skeletons of a few venturesome human beings who dropped dead there or staggered out of the fatal bowl only to die on its rim. This valley has now been definitely located by the chemist of the volcanological survey of the Dutch East Indies.

The Java valley, says Dr. E. E. Free, seems to deserve its name, for inconspicuous vents in its bottom have been discovered by the chemists to be discharging not only carbon dioxide gas, which displaces the oxygen of the air and might suffocate the unwary, but also a still deadlier poison, hydrogen sulphide gas. This compound is the evil-smelling gas given off by rotten eggs. In the small traces set from such decaying substances, or as used in equally small amounts in chemical laboratories, the gas is not seriously dangerous. Analyses made in Java's deadly valley show, however, as much as 10 per cent of this gaseous poison in the air—enough to poison any creature that breathes it for more than a few seconds.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Slumber Long, Advice of Woman Physician

Dr. Stella Churchill, repeating the saying that a man slept six hours, a woman seven, a child eight, and a fool nine, remarked during a talk at the Institute of Hygiene, London, "I am glad to say I am numbered among the fools.

"After the age of three, human beings do not require daylight sleep, except on Sundays, when the national bad habit of overeating makes them drowsy. The more one eats, the more sleep is required.

"For an average person I advocate between eight and nine hours' sleep. "Growing children should sleep on a hard mattress, and the bed should never be placed against a wall.

"One's judgment is impaired by lack of sleep. Girls have married the wrong man and refused to marry the right one because their judgment has been at fault following sleepless nights.

"People should not be wakened from sleep. We are still suffering from the old-fashioned idea that there is something shameful about being asleep, as exemplified in the hymn about the sluggard who is disinclined to wake up."

Investment in Pearls Brought Rich Return

Some years ago a woman received as one of her Christmas presents a pearl necklace from her husband. Not being in opulent circumstances, he was unable to spend more than $25 for them, but their luster pleased his wife, however, and for some years she wore them many, many times until recently the string broke and she carried them to the same jeweler to be restring.

She had hardly reached her home when she received a telephone call from the senior partner of the firm, who asked her to call the next morning. To her amazement, she found that what she thought were excellent imitations were the real thing and valued at about $5,000. They had been sold by an inexperienced salesman, it appeared.

Leaving the jewels she returned home and several days later was the recipient of a letter from the jeweler containing a check for $1,000 and a box containing another string of pearls worth three or four times as much as the original price paid for her first necklace.—Springfield Union.

The Prevention of Deafness.

In connection with the all-the-year-round activities for the advancement of the health and well-being of the children throughout the country, advocated by President Hoover in his proclamation setting aside the first day of May as Child Health Day, special thought is being given in many places to the needs of the child who has some physical or mental handicap—deafness, bad eyesight, or who is lame or otherwise crippled, or who is mentally retarded. Organizations in Maryland that are interested in helping children who have any of these handicaps are represented on the Maryland Committee for Child Health Day, of which Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, is chairman.

Some of the nation-wide organizations will have special exercises in connection with Child Health Day. Among them is the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing which is coupling up its annual observance of hearing week with Child Health Day and with the rest of the first week in May. The Maryland Branch of the Association, from its headquarters at 3 East Center Street, Baltimore, is arranging a program including a radio talk on April 30 by Dr. M. L. Breitstein, from Station WBAL, which will call attention to the possibility of preventing much of the deafness that is due to neglect or lack of care.

"In order that the possibility of preventing a large part of the deafness that occurs among children and in later life, may be better appreciated, there is great need," Dr. Knox said, "for a better understanding on the part of fathers and mothers, of the close connection between such deafness and neglected conditions of the ears, the nose and the throat, following certain infectious diseases, such as scarlet fever, measles, persistent colds, the so-called catarrhal infections, or as a result of adenoids or diseased tonsils. A recent survey of children of school age showed that there are over three million school children in the United States who are suffering from the handicap of defective hearing, ranging from slight imperfections to complete deafness. Inquiry into the causes showed that more than half of this deafness could have been prevented.

"The health supervision of children of school age through the periodical medical examinations made after they enter school and of the younger children in connection with the regular child health conferences, or by their family physicians before they are enrolled in school, is of the utmost help in locating children in the early stages of deafness. But after these examinations have been made and conditions requiring correction have been pointed out, the responsibility rests with the parents or guardians of the children. In many instances, prompt treatment will not only save much pain and discomfort, and be of benefit so far as the general health of the children is concerned, but it will protect them from the very serious handicap of either partial or complete deafness."

Had Not Really Done Much to Relieve Him

"Have you given him anything or done anything to relieve him?" asked the young doctor who had fared far into the backwoods to see a patient in the dead of a stormy night.

"Well, no, doc—that is to say, nothing to speak of," said the wife of the patient. "I had him soak his feet in almost 'Billin' water with a lot of mustard in it, an' I clapped a red-hot plaster on his back, an' another one on his chest, an' I've put a couple of blisters I had in the house under his arms, an' a bag o' cracked ice on the back of his neck, an' had him drink a pint o' ginger tea jes' as hot as he could swallow it, an' I flogged that with some yarb bitters one of the neighbors sent over, an' I had him take five or six pills out of a box I got one day from a man that come along, with medicine to sell, an' he's had three or four spoons o' Quakem's pain-killer an' one o' these sidleltz powders, but I didn't feel like as if I ort to give him much o' anything, or try to do much for him, until you come an' see what you think ailed him."—Credit Lost.

Chemistry Popular

More persons are engaged in the pursuit of chemistry than in any other science. There are approximately 22,000 chemists and assistants in the United States. The teaching of chemistry in colleges and universities, in medical and other professional schools, requires a large number of the most highly trained specialists in the field; in many university departments important research is carried on. Industries for the manufacture of chemical products, foodstuffs, gases, leather, metals, paints, petroleum, photographic materials, rubber, soap, textiles and other products maintain laboratories for the control of production, for development and for research, in which chemists are employed as analysts, research workers, department heads and chemical engineers.

Where There's a Will—

Under the will of a wealthy Sydney manufacturer who died recently, $400,000 was left for the provision of horse troughs, with the names of his wife and himself to be inscribed on each one erected.

A list of queer wills was compiled in New York a few months ago containing one which had a clause requesting the mourners to stop at a restaurant and have a good lunch before proceeding to the grave.

There was also the case of the Yorkshire gardener who left his wife one shilling and a cracked bowl.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS
By H. IRVING KING

CRYING BABES, BRIDES

PROBABLY the majority of people consider it a good sign if the baby cries at its christening. This is a superstition working by unconscious analogy. As the child when it is first born announces its advent by a wail, so when it is reborn through the sacrament of baptism into the Christian family it ought to announce its rebirth in a like manner.

It is probable, also, that in connection with this superstition there is some lingering unconscious idea of the connection which existed in the belief of the primitive man between the soul and the breath; an idea which had its most perfect exemplification in the primal superstition with regard to sneezing and might be supposed to attach in a lesser degree to the use of the breath in crying.

The less widespread superstition, that it is a prognostic of a happy marriage if the bride weeps on her wedding day, is clearly atavistic and relates to the far time when marriage by capture was the proper thing. Young Stonehatchet's bride, newly torn from her ancestral cave, naturally wept if she had any feeling at all. If she was so callous and hardhearted as to remain dry-eyed under such emotionally trying circumstances she was likely to be a lady who would lead her captor-husband a trying and tumultuous married life. Unnumbered generations have passed the idea on to us and though the whys and the wherefores have been lost by the way we still see the omen of a happy wedded life in a weeping bride.

FOR THE GOOSE—

A WOMAN can love a man that she knows is a dumbbell. But not one that she thinks is a fool.

They say these interior decorators that make our homes what they are today is all in the pay of the men's clubs.

Many a true tale is told in a gesture.

FOR THE GANDER—

A watch is just a little use when it goes as when it don't if the hands is broken off.

All marriages ain't the result of hard work on the part of the women. Only about 80 per cent.

Some comes about like a sort of natural explosion and by the time the smoke clears, the man finds the invitations just arriving from the engraver.

Vast Wealth Amassed by Old Time Monarchs

Among those in ancient times who could afford to turn over and take another nap in the morning, one of the wealthiest was Rameses III, according to a writer in the Detroit News. This Egyptian pharaoh some 3,000 years ago was dazzling the known world with his treasures. Diodorus estimated Rameses' wealth at about 400,000 talents, equivalent to the purchasing power of $10,000,000,000. Croesus, the best known of all rich men, probably was not quite as wealthy as Rameses, but he was able to give the equivalent of $200,000,000 to the Delphic Oracle as a bid for victory against the Persians. And, be it added, took his defeat like a man. Croesus had a relative, Pythius, who handed Xerxes $24,000,000 one day as a token of his esteem and when Xerxes hesitated, assured him that it was a mere trifle to what he had on hand. Considering that the money would have to be multiplied by 20 realize its purchasing power today, that was one of the largest gifts ever made.

Solomon's income was equal to $20,000,000 a year. Sardanapalus, Nero, Lucullus, the queen of Sheba and Cleopatra, if alive today, would be respected by some of our richest nabobs. Then there was William de la Pole, who, in the Fourteenth century, loaned his king $5,000,000 to tide over a royal embarrassment—and never got it back.

STATE OF MARYLAND WM. S. GORDY, JR., COMPTROLLER
OFFICE OF COMPTROLLER
ANNAPOLIS
April 11th., 1929.

MR. EDWIN M. MELLOR, JR., Clerk of the Circuit Court, Westminster, Md.
Dear Mr. Mellor:

Your attention is called to the provisions of Senate Bill No. 63, which has recently been passed by the General Assembly of 1929, under which there is imposed on persons who fail to take out licenses, in the month of May a penalty of 10% per month on the cost of the license. In other words, licensees may take out licenses at any time during the month of May without having to pay a penalty, but on and after June 1st, anyone applying for a license, who was in business in the month of the May preceding, is required to pay, in addition to the cost of the license, a penalty of 10% per month or fraction of a month. In the case of persons starting in business during the license year, they are only required to take out a license for the remaining part of the year, but they must take out their license in the month in which they begin business.

In order that you might avoid controversies and explanations to persons who find they neglected to take out their license in the month of May and are subject to the penalty, we suggest that you run an ad. in your local papers calling attention to the fact that if licenses are not taken out in the month of May the 10% penalty will apply. This is not merely a 10% flat penalty but 10% per month or fraction of a month, and because of our experience in the past in coming up with persons who are delinquent to the extent of five or six months, it would mean that in the future cases of this kind would result in the delinquents having to pay as much as fifty or sixty percent of the cost of the license as penalty for their tardiness in taking out their license. You might have your ad. show that you have no discretion in the matter and will be held accountable for the penalty by the State when your books are examined. The cost of the ad. in your local papers is a proper charge to the expenses of your office and will be allowed in your annual report.

There has also been passed at this session of the Legislature a bill requiring a separate license for each place of business. It has been the ruling of this office in the past, supported by an opinion of the Attorney General, that a separate license is required for each place of business, but because of some question raised by concerns having more than one place of business in the County, the Legislature passed an Act setting forth in very clear language that a separate license is required for each place of business. Please be governed accordingly and do not entertain an application for a license where the amount of stock involved in the case of a trader's license is supposed to cover the aggregate amount carried in several places of business, but require a separate application for each place of business.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) WM. S. GORDY, JR., Comptroller.

Swedish Superstition

One of the strangest superstitions is that believed by some in Sweden that when a man dies after having been a faithful husband his shirt goes to heaven with him. If the wife dies first and the widower is married again he must destroy his first shirt on the eve of his second wedding. Disregarding the assumption that there is no good reason why a shirt that has given long and faithful service should not be permitted to accompany its master to eternal reward, the origin of this superstition probably is to be found in the Viking burial custom that called for the warrior's incensement in his best battle clothes, for it was assumed that he would need them—even in Valhalla.

The Last Fence

At last the vicar had found time to accept an invitation to dinner from a wealthy parishoner.

As a special treat the host's little son had been allowed to stay up late and was seated at the table.

After holding back his ready flow of conversation and curiosity for the greater part of the evening, the little boy shattered a sudden silence with a voice like a cold chisel.

"Mr. Snookes," he began, while the family waited for the bombshell they felt sure was coming—"Mr. Snookes, did you take up the church 'coss you weren't any good at anything else?"—Lon Lon Answers.

Community Building

"Desecration" of Rural England Much Deplored

The destruction of countryside beauty by the building of modern highways and the "developments" that attend their course is evoking protest in England. Walls, fences and even wayside cottages, many of them old and picturesque, adorned by long-cultivated growths of shrubs and flowers, have been destroyed or marred, says the Kansas City Times. The villages have lost their quaint and restful aspects, and in many instances sequestered cottages and inns have given way to obtrusive modern structures of the most utilitarian type, bidding for the passing trade of the much traveled highways. These disfigurements and the increasing use of billboards are a grief to those of natural English pride.

With the exception of a few of the older eastern states, American villages have not been greatly marred by modern roads. In very many instances the advent of a highway and its passing parade of motor cars have been incentives for towns to adopt more progressive policies. Better paving, better kept premises and houses, attractive little parks frequently have been invitations for the motorist to stop to rest or trade.

With us there is no great problem of destroying the countryside by road building, although a new highway certainly is anything but attractive within its right of way. Whether in the course of years the roadsides shall be made attractive with the growth of grass, wild flowers, trees and shrubs—well, perhaps. In this country the pressing problem is the wayside shack and the ubiquitous billboard. These we shall have, and have more oppressively, unless there is a check on those whose greed has no respect for beauty.

Process for Rendering

Lumber Fireproof Found

A new process for fireproofing lumber discovered by H. A. Dorr, a fireproofing expert, has been announced. Maple, fir, yellow and white pine and white oak lumber treated by the new process have been tested by the Columbia university testing laboratory, and have been found acceptable for use in the interior construction of fireproofed skyscrapers by the bureau of buildings of New York city, whose regulations are regarded as the most stringent in the country.

The new process involves the impregnation of lumber with a non-poisonous chemical solution, after which it is kiln-dried for a period not exceeding 48 hours, according to the type of wood. Apparatus has already been constructed which treats lumber up to 2 feet in length and 1 1/4 inches in thickness. The treated wood retains its natural color, and can be worked as easily as plain wood, without injury to machines or tools. It accepts paint, varnish, shellac or other veneers and does not warp or rot. The process has also been tried out successfully with a number of the better-known insulation materials.

Blue Prints Keep Tab

on Where Money Goes

Building a house without blue prints and specifications is the easiest way to waste money. Properly drawn blue prints, with accurate specifications, are simply a detailed plan for the spending of your money. It means that you have things planned out in advance of building and that all expenses have been anticipated. You know what you are going to get from the beginning to the end.

Accurately prepared blue prints and specifications are worth many times more than they actually cost, for without them time is lost in trying to study out how the different parts go together, and there are endless opportunities for the making of changes and substitutions, with an accompanying greater expense and probably cheapening of the quality of materials.

Preparing Garden Soil.

Unmade beds in the garden are untidy. A good garden keeper will set them in order and have them neatly made for spring occupancy. It is an excellent plan to dig the beds, even if they aren't planted, allowing the soil to weather before working it next spring. The success of annuals is directly in proportion to the care given them in the way of soil preparation and fertilizer. A zinnia, for instance, is either a giant or a medium-sized bloom, according to the treatment given it. Seed from the same packet will show a vast difference in the bloom produced under varying conditions of fertility and culture.

Wisdom in Remodeling.

Want to remodel your home? Consult your local bank, your own local building and loan association, a mortgage company or co-operative bank. You will find these financial organizations helpful in assisting you to improve your home and to arrange the all-important money question.

Home's Worst Enemy.

Neglect is your home's worst enemy. Unpainted siding, trim and roof, weather and decay. Paint protects, preserves and beautifies.

COMFORT FOR GOD'S PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 40:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Love for Us.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Love for Us.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Secret of True Happiness.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of True Comfort.

1. God's Message of Comfort (vv. 1, 2).

1. It was addressed to Isaiah and his successors in office (v. 1).

He, as God's spokesman, was to make known the very heart of God to the people who were in great need of comfort. They were in a strange land, in captivity because of their sins. In spite of their apostasy from God—the breaking of their covenant with Him—His favor was about to return.

2. The mutual relation of God and His people (v. 1).

This is expressed in the phrases "my people" and "your God." The believer belongs to God, and God belongs to him. How blessed it is to be thus related to Him. Observe, this was said concerning a people who had sinned and backslidden.

3. Pardon received (v. 2).

In spite of their gross iniquity, their pardon was declared. The receiving of double at the Lord's hands does not mean that there had been undue infliction of punishment, but that the divine pardon exceeded the guilt. The period of the captivity was at an end. Their blessing was not through their own merit, but was to be realized through the sin offering of Jehovah.

11. The Preparation Required (vv. 3-5).

In order to secure the salvation which was to be theirs through the vicarious offering of Jehovah, it was necessary that certain preparation should be made. Observe:

1. The voice in the wilderness (v. 3). This voice was that of John the Baptist, and actually was heard at the time of the coming of Jesus Christ (Matt. 3:1-3).

2. Prepare ye the way of the Lord (v. 3). It was the custom on state occasions for some one to go in advance of the king or ruler and make preparation for his coming. This preparation consisted of the actual depression of hills, the elevation of valleys and the straightening of crooked places, so that the monarch could move forward with ease and facility. In its moral bearing, the meaning is that preparation for the coming of the Lord into the hearts and lives of the people consists of the subjugation of pride and selfish ambition, and the straightening of the crooked and perverse things of this life.

3. The glory of the Lord revealed (v. 5).

When there is proper preparation of heart, the Lord will enter, and His glory will be revealed in the life. It primarily refers to the manifestation of the divine glory in the person of the Messiah.

III. The Frailty of Man in Contrast With God's Word (vv. 6-8).

"All flesh is grass and all the goodness thereof is as the flower of the field. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, because the Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it. Surely the people is grass. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever." Just as the blast of the hot wind scorches the grass and destroys the crops, so everything loved and prized by the natural man will wither and die under the blast of God's judgment, but His Word shall stand forever. The Word of God abides from age to age with perennial freshness. God's promise of ultimate triumph should steady us because no matter through what stress and strain we may be called to pass, when the Lord comes there will be victory.

IV. The Lord God Coming to Zion (vv. 9-11).

1. Behold Your God (v. 9). When He comes to Zion there will be no need of fear. This blessed truth can be proclaimed aloud to the cities of Judah.

2. The Lord God will come with a strong hand (v. 10). The hope of the world is in the coming of Jesus Christ in power and great glory to establish His blessed rule over the earth. Righteousness and peace can come only with the Messianic rule.

3. He shall feed His flock like a shepherd (v. 11). The Good Shepherd will search out and provide for His own.

Always Content

We shall be made truly wise if we be made content; content, too, not only with what we understand, but content with what we do not understand—the habit of mind which theologians call, and rightly, faith in God.—Charles Kingsley.

Cautious

Housewife—I never give alms at the door, but if you wish you may have a little dinner.
Tramp—Madam, would it be considered immodest to inquire what the dinner bill is today?

Things She Did

He—Does your mother object to you petting?
She—Say, big boy! Anything you see me doing you don't need to ask me if she objects—she does.

Bent?

Cholly—I think I have quite a literary bent.
Mabel—Is that so? Well, just keep on and you'll be worse than bent. You'll be broke!

FOR EARLY SEASON

"Say, Bill, how do I look in my new hat?"

Not Double-Jointed

The optimist his soul anoints
With balm—is never disappointed.
With rheumatism in his joints,
Is glad he isn't double-jointed.

In the Same Boat

Fisk—That fellow Richeleigh must have money.
Risk—So must I. Introduce me to him.

Too Bad

Ethyl—Has Mrs. Chatterbox an impediment in her speech?
Methyl—Yes, there are only twenty-four hours in a day.

Kindly Shoppers Had

Consoled Mary Ellen

On a shopping expedition in the Christmas holidays, little Mary Ellen had a dollar with which to buy a present for dad. On the way downtown with her mother they met her aunt and little cousin. Arriving in a large department store, the children received permission to go to the toy department while some shopping in another part of the store was done by the elder folk.

After about an hour the mother and aunt saw a crowd collected at the basement stairs and found Mary Ellen in the center of the group in tears, with several of the women weeping copiously, she having thought she had lost her dollar.

Everything was lovely when mother explained she had her pocketbook and the present was then bought for dad.

The next day while on another shopping trip with her mother, Mary Ellen had 60 cents that her mother did not know she had.

"Where did you get that money, Mary Ellen?" asked her mother.
"You know yesterday, when I thought I had lost my dollar, those women made me take it."—Indianapolis News.

"Old Sol" Classed as

Quite Ordinary Star

The sun is a very humble unit amid the great stellar population according to a leading astronomer. It is, he says, a very ordinary star about midway in the scale of brilliancy. We know of stars which give at least 10,000 times the light of the sun; we know also of stars which give 1-10,000 of its light. But those of inferior light greatly outnumber those of superior light.

In mass, in surface temperature, in bulk, the sun belongs to a very common class of stars; its speed of motion is near the average; it shows none of the more conspicuous phenomena, such as variability, which excite the attention of astronomers. In the community of stars the sun corresponds to a respectable middle-class citizen.

It happens to be quite near the center of the local star cloud; but this apparently favored position is discounted by the fact that the star cloud itself is placed very eccentrically in relation to the galactic system (the Milky way), being in fact near the confines of it. We cannot claim to be at the hub of the universe.

Strange there aren't more women architects—so many of them are designing.—Joe Sims.

THINGS THAT COUNT—

With God are, eternal—character, consecration, open-mindedness.

In life are things that can't be counted—love, hope, kindness.

In religion are subject to no argument—honesty, sincerity, faith.

Birds Dashed to Death

According to authorities on bird life, the lighthouses of the New England coast cause the death of thousands of sea fowl every year. In their migrations to and from the southlands the birds, if caught in a storm, try to find a safe haven.

The fixed white lights seem to have the greatest attraction for them. Flying at high speed, they dash themselves against the thick lenses and are either killed outright or are stunned and fall to the rocks or the sea below and perish. Strangely enough, flashing lights and also red beams apparently repel them, but the blinding, steady white rays take heavy toll from their ranks.

Contrary to popular belief, the sea fowl do not seek southern climes to avoid cold weather.

One of the Band

Saturday afternoon was a day set apart for the village band to indulge in its weekly practice march.

On this particular day they happened to halt outside the local justice of the peace's house. The latter was a very irritable man who hated bands. Consequently, he was far from pleased when the sound of martial music fell upon his ears.

"Look here!" he cried, rushing up to the bandmaster. "If you don't stop that infernal din, I'll go and fetch our policeman!"

But the bandmaster was equal to the occasion.
"You can't do that, sir," he smiled. "That's 'im playin' the trombone."—London Tit-Bits.

Hats Denote Wealth

The Yamis, who live on a little island south of Formosa, have two ambitions—to build fine boats, whose sides they ornament with beautiful designs, and to possess silver hats—the larger the better, for by the measure of his silver hat is the prestige of the individual judged.

The first requirement is a quantity of silver coins, which are laboriously beaten with a stone into thin strips. The strips are then made into cone-shaped hats. Some of the hats belonging to the more affluent of the colony come down to the shoulders. An oblong opening is left for the eyes, so that the owner may survey the admiration his large hat attracts.

Word's Many Definitions

Of the 414,825 words defined in the Oxford English dictionary, completed after 70 years of labor, the one that gave most trouble to the editors was the three-letter word "set." It has many meanings and so many extensions of meaning. The Living Age reports that the editors were obliged to devote a 30,000-word treatise to it alone.

The sun sets in the west. A surgeon sets a broken arm. A woman gives birth to three sets of twins in five years. A yachtsman watches the set of his sails.

It is an untiring word, as useful as the 15-in-one tools that boys used to spend 25 cents for.

Wm. E. Burke, who has been ill from various troubles for the past six weeks, is reported to be improving.

Both common, and uncommon, colds, are prevalent, and its hardly anybody's fault but the weather man's.

Miss Eliza Birnie, of Washington, spent the week-end with her mother and sister, Mrs. G. H. Birnie and Miss Eleanor.

A serious auto accident is reported to have occurred at the culvert on the first hill in Tyrone, on Sunday evening, in which the auto was almost completely wrecked and two of its occupants badly hurt. The auto is said to have been from Waynesboro, and driven by a woman.

Burgess Miller's "Another snow yet to come" prediction did not quite put in its appearance among the nasty weather that we had this week, but it was near enough to qualify Burgess as a good weather prophet. Confidently holding out for "another snow" after three days of 90° heat, takes a lot of confidence, for it endangers one's reputation.

On Monday afternoon when Jesse G. Angell backed his Chevrolet car away from the curb in front of Reindollar Bros., hardware store, on Baltimore St., a car going east sidwiped the Angell car smashing the front and rear fenders and the running board on the left side of the car, and otherwise injured it. Mr. Angell thought he was safe in backing his car to the roadway but the other car, driven by a stranger, must have been closer than he expected. The situation was complicated some by the fact that there was a small Ford truck on each side of the street at the point of the collision, that narrowed the roadway. The passing car was very slightly injured.

Mrs. Helen P. Hill, of Waynesboro, is visiting friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sauble spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Emma Sauble, at Union Bridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hockensmith of Taneytown; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Roop and children, Betty Jane and Cassell, and Miss Lena Hoffman, of New Windsor, motored to Washington, on Sunday, to see the beautiful Japanese cherry blossoms.

The Lutheran Brotherhood held its annual banquet at Sauble's Inn, on Thursday evening, there being about 80 present. Merwyn C. Fuss presided; addresses were made by Rev. Dr. H. C. Alleman, Gettysburg, and Rev. A. T. Sutcliffe, and a number responded to calls for impromptu talks. Several numbers were rendered by the Hess male quartet, and by Ralph Davidson, violinist. The banquet, of course, was up to the usual high standard for which Sauble's Inn is noted.
