CHRISTMAS FIRE DANGERS

Care Should be Exercised in Interior Decorations.

Many Christmas decorations are very inflammable. The use of electric lights has greatly increased the dangers, but still they exist, especially where candles are still used, and be cause the decorations are usually very susceptible to fire. Even the use of electric lights should be in charge of those who understand safe wiring. Christmas trees are themselves very inflammable, and burn rapidly. The use of cotton or paper decorations should be avoided, and tinsel or asbestos used instead. Do not use Japanese lanterns. Never leave the house while even electric lights are turned on. Never allow the children to use matches, candles or lamps. Avoid crowding, or romping by chil-

Be sure to have the Christmas tree safely anchored, beyond the possibility of its toppling over, and keep it away from heat or light fixtures. Some of the toys are dangerous, especially those using rescaling or oil to pecially those using gasoline or oil to operate, and never include cap pistols in the list of gifts. Fire crackers and fire-works, are of course always

Never forget the motto, "It's better to be safe than sorry."

If candles must be used on trees, do not permit children to light or relight them. Frequently clothing or tree is set afire. Always extinguish candles before beginning the removal and distribution of gifts. Better no lights at all than to run the risk of an innocent child losing its life through neglect to observe this pre-caution which is one of safety.

HAUVER MURDER CASE Trial of Lewis and Clark on hand This Week.

The trial of Charles Lewis, Thur-mont, and Leslie Clark, Hagerstown, charged with the murder of Deputy. Sheriff Clyde Hauver, of Frederick county, last July, got under way in the Washington County Court, Monday day. Hauver was shot during a raid on a still in Frederick county mountains, Lewis and Clark being accused of the crime, and on their appeal the trial was removed to another county. Wm. L. Poole, of Baltimore, was the first witness, and he was brought into Court on a stretcher, having been badly injured in an auto wreck, last Friday. He testified that Lewis told him in a restaurant in Frederick that he was "going to get Deputy Sheriff Redmond."

Redmond, who accompanied Hauver on the raid testified that Lewis approached him a few days before the shooting and told of a big still that was in operation and offered to "tip them off" at the proper time. Arrangements were made for the raid, and were to have met Lewis at a certain place, and on arrival there Lewis deserted the officers who proceeded toward the still, and after doing so,

Hauver was killed.

Deputy Sheriff William Steiner, of Frederick county, a member of the raiding party was the last witness of the day; he recounted the incidents relating to the raid, and testified that on two occasions Clark said that Lewis fired the fatal shot. Steiner also testified that on one of these occasions Lewis was present and heard Clark accuse him of the killing, which

Testimony on Tuesday was to the effect that Clark was brought to Hagerstown by Clarence Fogle and son on the night of July 21, while drunk, and made remarks about the raid in which he said "We killed a man but it wasn't the one we were

Another witness, McAfee, testified that shortly after shooting was heard at his house, Lewis came from the direction of the shooting carrying a pistol and asked that he might hide it until the next day.

The defense set up the argument that Hauver had been accidentally shot by one of the raiding party, but three deputies testified that he had been shot before any of the deputies did any shooting, and that the first shot fired was one that killed Hauver. Lewis testified in his own defense, alleging that he did not shoot Hauver

Clark then appeared and the two of them were or-dered to "get away" by McAfee, and it was while they were both away that the shots were fired.

the defense attempted to have the case dismissed, but failed, then followed with testimony intending to show that the accused could not have committed the crime. We have been unable to get the proceedings of Thursday in time for publication.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present at the exercises on Monday, Dec. 23, beginning at 2:00 P. M. Should the weather prove unfavorable it will be held on Tuesday at the same hour. All children present up to High School age, will be presented with a package of candy.

The lighting of the tree, which will be of many colored electric bulbs, will commence on Saturday night, and continue each night until the New Year. Current for the tree will be furnished free by the Union Bridge Electric Co., while the business men of the town will finance the gifts.

The I. O. O. F. Band will furnish the music and escort Santa Claus to the tree, starting from Sauble's Inn, at about 1:30. How Santa will arrive at Sauble's is not positively known, but it may be by airplane from the north. Anyway, he will be on hand at the tree, which will be erected in the vacant space on Baltimore St., adjoining the Central Hotel.

The program will be as follows: Parade to the tree, headed by the I. O. O. F. Band; Selections at the tree by the band; Christmas Carol, "O, Little Town of Bethlehem" by High School Glee Club, in charge of Miss Estella Essig; Prayer, by Rev. Guy P. Bready; address by Rev. A. T. Sutcliffe; band selection; Christmas Carol, "Silent Night, Holy Night." The program in general will be in charge of Merwyn C. Fuss, President of the Chamber of Commerce. The Most Serious Question that Confronts Farm Taxpayers.

With the beginning of the new year at hand, we have a right to look ahead as far as possible toward the problems in front of us, and try to find out how they can best be met. Some of them we can figure out for ourselves, because they largely rest on our personal efforts; they are things we can eithed do ourselves, or pay for having them done, or in some pay for having them done, or in some way manage to bring about desired

But, there are problems too big for us, and which very seriously interfere with our work, our conveniences, and our proper rights; and one of these main problems is the present deplorable condition of our so-called "by-roads," or "lateral roads," better known as "dirt" roads.

This class of roads greatly exceeds in mileage our improved state roads; and while the latter have the advantage of connecting up towns and representing main "through" roads; the country they run through—so far as taxpaying farms is concerned—is no better than that adjacent to the un-improved "dirt" roads, and this fact represents the main injustice of our present road-building system—not intended, of course, but the fact nev-

There are so many of these roads that the mention of just, one seems unfair; but as an outstanding specimen, we can not help mentioning the once largely traveled road from Taneytown, by Copperville and Trevanion to Uniontown. The condition of this road for most of the way is a disgrace to the county and state. If any one unacquainted doubts this assertion lot those traveled to the county and state. sertion, let them try a trip over it for themselves.

What is to be done about it? Perhaps the Federal Government may solve the problem in part, by great-ly increasing the allotment of the Federal appropriations to states for road improvement. At present, it is wholly unfair to blame the present County Commissioners; for no new County Commissioners; for no new Commissioners elected next year can possibly do any better, because at the present tax rate, and the numerous other demands on it, no more can be spent in roads than at present.

In addition to this, our tax-payers yote down bond issues whenever the apportunity presents; and the farmer opportunity presents; and the farmer tax-payers, especially, feel that they are already overburdened with taxation, and instead of favoring an increase, want a decrease. So, the problem of-what is to be done about it? is a real one, because, more good roads means more money-very much more-from some source. Back only 15 years, when the total county tax rate was around 80c, these roads were much better kept up than now, and they were then given some-His testimony went into detail as to his movements during the day and the present state roads are, because to his movements during the day and after the shooting, and stated that he told Redmond "You got me into this, and you are setting the way to have me hung," and blamed Redmond for "double crossing" him.

The state closed its case Wednesday with testimony by the officers connected with the raid, following which the defense attempted to have the case dismissed, but failed, then following which the defense attempted to have the case dismissed, but failed, then following which the defense attempted to have the case dismissed, but failed, then following which the defense attempted to have the case dismissed, but failed, then following which the defense attempted to have the case dismissed, but failed, then following which the defense attempted to have the case dismissed, but failed, then following which the defense attempted to have the case dismissed, but failed, then following which the defense attempted to have the case dismissed by the failed that he present state roads are, because most of them were then "dirt" roads. The present district supervisors are mot to blame, because they can not get an appropriation sufficient to keep the mileage under their charge, in repair; and while, we are trying to find those "not to blame," we must not forget those most interested—the farmers along those regions are most of them were then "dirt" roads. in securing good tenants.

There must be some way of working out this big problem, and of establishing the cause for a condition that has become acute. There must be, through some means, a remedy. There must be some changed conditions that have added immensely to the tax-burden on all, without bene-fiting all. Even sufficient funds to

We should not like to say, positively, that the Pennsylvania by-roads are all much better than ours; but we can say that those with which we are familiar, are better. We do not know how the total of the Pennsylvania rate of taxation compares with ours. It of course varies, as the "It seems to me," Judge Stern said,

And this, too, in spite as we might, with greater credit to of the greater efforts made toward preventing accidents-more rules of the road; more signals, greater care in issuing licenses, inspection of cars, etc., etc.

Considering all of the facts, we are of the opinion that the adoption of measures for safety are still in their infancy. SEASONABLE THOUGHTS.

Mostly-the male of the species, at income. We are hunters, as much so as the man with his dog and gun, out after game; and much like the hunter, we do not consider the best interest of the game, but rather how full we can fill our bag by using destructive ammunition, shooting where we may.

We are rather heartless when it comes to pursuing that which-by a little effort—we find that we can get. And the "other fellow"—well, it's up to him to do his own best, and not our fault if we do not consider him at all, for, "Business is business."

And, strangely enough for human beings-church members, lodge members, fellow-townsmen, perhaps near neighbors-we just don't get the angle that anybody's interests are quite as important as ours. Actually, we feel hurt if somebody fails to patronize us: but as for ourselves, we elect to patronize whom we place, and nobody has a right to be "hurt" over that. Of course not!

But, just for a little while; at least, during the Christmas season-if we are ever going to feel really fraternal and fair-minded at any time-surely that time should be now. The coming of the Christ-child, away back in the centuries, should make some appeal to us; and especially should we realize that the "coming" was not specially for us, but for all; and we, taking due notice of this fact, should act accordingly.

There are some who manage fairly well to practice the Christmas spirit throughout the year-men and women who are real friends and neighbors, and not mere "hunters" for their game bag. Some who are ever alert to do favors, acts of kindness, and who avoid being forgetful of the wel- the trail of every bus driver, but it fare of those who perhaps can not protect themselves so well as we can.

Yuletide Happiness CHRISTMAS time! That man must be a misanthrope, indeed, in whose breast something like a jovial feeling is not roused -in whose mind some pleasant associations are not awakened -by the annual recurrence of Christmas.—Dickens.

HEY all came tumbling forth. "We're in plenty of time," they said.
"Well," said one, "you time improvements and deeds. They know we hear so much will work to do these days about doing away with poverty your Christmas shopping and trouble. That early that we wanted to would be the most be just as punctual."

"It's nice to see every one again," mas every one in one of the others said.

"Oh, yes, and this cold, crisp air does agree with us so well. We feel so glowing and so full of health and

At that the word "Glowing" and the word "Health" and the word put away, to see "Gayety" all looked so pleased.

It was their very own season. Each word had all its family along, too.

They were quite large families. In fact it seemed as though they were quite large enough to fill the world's orders for them.

All the words were feeling so pleased. There was the word "Helly" and there was the word "Mistletoe." There were the words White "Christmas Greens." There was the word "Merry." There was the word There was the family of "Compliments of the Season."

There were all the "Good Wishes." They were an enormous family. There were the words "Yuletide" and "Christmas Day" and "Christmas Eve," and there was the family of the "Spirit of Christmas."

And the word "Evergreen" came out, too, and the word "Snow" and the words "White Christmas."

Then came the words "Christmas Tree" and the word "Ribbon" had linked arms with the word "Red." The word "Tinsel" looked as bright and sparkling as could be, and the "Stocking" just looked as though it would burst with pride.

The word "Children" was right in its element, and the word "Peace" looked so happy, so relieved. The words "Good Will" were on hand, too. And all these words, such beautiful, happy words, had come tumbling out of the dictionary to stay until the Christmas season was over, for they knew they would be in such great use. They had come in plenty of timethere was no fear about that. And then the word "Peace" spoke.

"Peace," "if human beings, all over the world, would make a real friend of me. There is no one who will be a better friend. I will make it so that instead of troubles, agonies, miseries, waste and destruction coming along people will be able to do great deeds and think great thoughts. They will be able to make life richer and more beautiful for all about them. They will accomand deeds. They wonderful Christthe world could give to every one else in the world. "Oh, I should like to see suspicions and doubts trust and belief in how one always appears one's best with a person who thinks a lot of you-so with trust and faith the world will think more, each of the other.

"Then, beautiful Christmas Words, we could be around so much more of the time than just at Christmas.

"There is no season like Christmas. But to make the spirit of Christmas last throughout the whole year would be the greatest gift that human beings could make to Christmas. For years Christmas has given people cheer, happiness. Now, wouldn't it be a good idea for people to give Christmas a great and mighty present?

"I should so love to be a present to the world—a real, lasting present."

And all the words looked more delighted than ever. "That is a beautiful idea, Peace," they said, "and we all hope that that idea of yours will really, really grow until all, all take you as a gift not only to themselves but to every one else in the whole

So the Words were ready for the great Christmas season. But of all of them Peace was the one hoping the greatest, greatest hope of all! (©, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

R. SAMPSON had not noticed that silence had fallen in the outer office. The clatter of typewriters was stilled; the hum of activity had ceased. Deferentially his door was opened, and Jones, the head clerk, entered. "I just thought I'd drop in and say; 'Merry Christmas,' Mr. Sampson. Tomorrow's Christmas, you know."

"So it is, Jones, but I don't see anything to be merry about. People buying things they can't afford, and eating more than they can digest. Isn't Jones hesitated. Mr. Sampson was a man of strong opinions. "Well, speak up! If I'm wrong-show me!" "I think you are wrong, sir, if I may say so. If you'd a little flock of kiddies you'd see it differently." "But I haven't, and that doesn't convince me."

"You see," the head clerk went on, emboldened, "to be happy, any day, you have to think about other people, and that just comes natural at Christmas."

Mr. Sampson was silent for some moments, while he gazed through the window at the dusk settling over the When he spoke the crispness of his voice was mellowed. "To be happy I have to avoid thinking of other people," he said. Jones felt himself dismissed, and silently withdrew. He knew something of his chief's unhappy love affair, which had left him worse than a widower, and had turned all his great ability toward making money, a pursuit in which he had been particularly successful. But from happiness he seemed to be permanently divorced.

At the door of the office building an hour later Mr. Sampson was confronted by an urchin with the challenge, "Buy a paper, sir?" Ordinarily he would have ignored the child, but Jones' injunction, 'You have to think of other people,' was insistent in his ears. He bought a paper, and, on an impulse, questioned the lad. "Had your supper?"

"No, sir. I don't get supper 'til I get my papers sold."

"How would you like to come and have supper with me?" The boy looked his surprise. "You mean it?" "Yes, I mean it. Come along." But the boy demurred. "Can't go 'til I sell my papers. This is the best hour, and I got to keep busy." He made a deft sale to a passer-by without interrupting the conversation. "How many papers have you left."

"Twenty." Mr. Sampson counted out forty cents. "I'll buy them all. Now we can go to supper." He led the puzzled boy across the street. His first thought was his club, but he changed his mind and turned into a cheap but wholesome restaurant. Here he ordered a meal and they ate together. Once convinced that there was no trick about it the boy attacked his food with gusto, while his host looked on with more enjoyment than he had experienced for many a day. By judicious questioning he learned that 'the boy's name, like his own, was George; he lived upstairs at 18 Garrett street; he had a father and mother, an older sister, and a younger brother.

He ventured a more delicate question: "Does Santa Claus come to your house, George?"

"He used to, but dad's been out of work for a long while," he boy replied, wistfully. "And the baby's sick, so mother can't go out to work, and it takes all Jean and me-and I-can earn just to keep things going." "I'm sure it does," said Mr. Sampson. "Well, I must get along now. You can go home early to-

He parted with the boy, but immediately went to a telephone. "Hello, is that Doctor Morgan? Frank, I want you to run out at once to 18 Garrett street, upstairs. There's a sick child there. Take him to a hospital, see that he has everything he needs, and send the bill to me." "I'll run right out," said the doctor. "Merry Christmas, George." "Merry Christmas, Frank!" Mr. Sampson replied. And, as he hung up the receiver, he wondered at the new ring in his voice. (C). 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Christmas Greetings

HAT A WONDERFUL THING is the spirit of Christmas. Somehow it just makes everybody have kind thoughts about folks in general and a special fondness for their loved ones.

A feeling of wanting to make other people happy seems to get in the air. It must be contagious, for the whole world wants to give generously and spread happiness and good cheer. It is a time when gladness and merriment rule supreme. What a blessing to the world—this great unseen thing—the Christmas spirit.

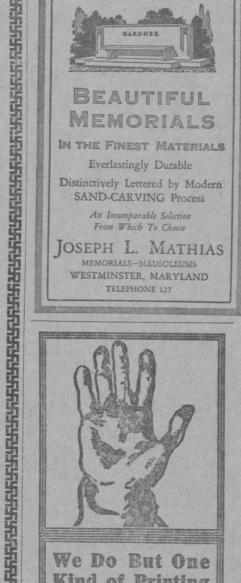

We Wish You a Happy Christmas

MR. GEORGE W. MOTTER.

Mr. George W. Motter, one of the best known among the older citizens Taneytown, died suddenly at his home on Frederick St., shortly after 1 o'clock, Thursday. He had been in failing health for several years, and recently was confined to the house, due largely to the infirmities attaching to his age. He was in his 80th.

Mr. Motter was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Adam Motter, and had lived in Taneytown for the past 50 years except for a term as Sheriff of Carroll County, 30 years ago, when he lived in Westminster. During the most of his life in Taneytown he was actively engaged in the market produce business, from which he retired only a few years ago. He was a man of fine character and business ability, and leaves a host of friends. His wife, who died quite a number of years ago, was Miss Anna Reindollar, and since her death he made his home with his son, W. Rein Motter, who is his only near relative, the next being two nieces, Mrs. Alice Douglas, Baltimore, and Mrs. John O. Crapster, Taneytown; and a grand niece, Mrs. Jere J. Overholtzer, and two grand-nephews, Augustus Crabbs Taneytown, and Earl Crabbs, Balti-

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the house, in charge of his pastor, Rev. A. T. Sutcliffe. Burial in the Lutheran cemetery.

TANEYTOWN.

The supper and bazaar held jointly by the School and Parent-Teacher Association was quite a success. An excellent supper was served and the manner in which it was served showed that it was well planned and organized. The school wishes to express through these notes thanks and appreciation to the ladies, business men, firemen, pupils and patrons for the help and donations. This shows a splendid spirit of co-operation between patrons and school. The following is a financial statement:

SIGHT-SAVING OF CHILDREN.

Through the stirring appeal made by Miss Helen Keller, at the recent annual meeting of the Maryland So-ciety for the Prevention of Blindness in Baltimore City, for the protection and safeguarding of the eyesight of young children, much interest has been aroused in the sight-saving classes that have been established in existence for many years, but the idea of conserving the sight of children with partial or defective vision by having special classes for them in connection with the regular courses in the public and parochial schools is I heard the bells on Christmas day comparatively new. In 1913 there were only two such classes in the United States. Ten years later the number had increased to 181. Now there are more than 300 classes of that sort throughout this country.

"In proportion to the population, the Maryland Society for the Pre-vention of Blindness estimates that we should have 30 sight-saving classes in Maryland—approximately 14 in the counties and 16 in Baltimore City. So far, only two have been established and both of those are in Baltimore City. Since classes of this sort require not only special equipment but special training on the part of the teachers, their growth is nec-essarily slow. But as a result of the interest that is being taken by some of the service organizations, we can expect more rapid development in the near future. Within the last year, through scholarships provided by the Lions' Club, three Maryland teachers have had special training at Columbia University for sight saving work. "The special classes in the schools are not the only ways by which children's eyesight may be safeguarded. By observing the habits of their children when handling their books or toys, parents may often discover eye conditions that need the attention of occulists-that is, of physicians who have had special training in the care of the eyes. It frequently happens that children who have been regarded as dull or stupid in their school work are found to have some trouble with the eyes. Correction of the condition under the advice of a properly qualified physician is often followed only by improvement of the child's general health but by marked progress in his school work."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC.

Topic:-How Christmas Sets the Whole World Singing. Luke 2:1-14.

Written by Mrs. Chas. R. Cluts, of Keysville.

It seems that at Christmas' time, more so than any other time, the whole world is filled with joy and gladness, and rightly so for it is the birthday of our King. The lowly origin of Jesus, His birth in a stable, His cradle a manger have been made the center of thought and discussion at this time. The story however old yet new, has a wonderful message for us today.

The news of the birth of Christ was first proclaimed to the shepherds who were watching their flocks by night on the hillside. It was pro-claimed by an angel of the Lord and the glory of the Lord shown round about them and he said, "Fear not for I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all people, for unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour which is Christ the Lord." Suddenly there was a multiude of the heavenly host with the angel praising God and saying, "Glory to God in the highest and on

If we study some of the finest words that have been written about Him we will give a new touch to our Christmas worship, and expand our appreciation of Jesus. He has come down through the centuries exalted in the highest praise that men can bestow. Let us make these thoughts of others of other years, our own thoughts of adoration for our Lord.

Christmas should sing in our hearts. If it does not, then other songs will not help us. The carols which we sing so many times at this season have many of them stories behind them that would give them a new meaning to us. One of the oldest Christmas hymns is "Adeste fideles," translated from the Latin by Rev. Frederick Oakley. The English version starts, O, come all ye faith-

This hymn as used in the ancient churches was the processional song of the religious orders on their way to the sanctuaries when they gathered in preparation for the Christmas ed in preparation for the Christmas morning service. Among some of the other carols used are "Hark! the herald angels sing" by Charles Wesley. "Joy to the World" by Dr. Watts. "It came upon a midnight clear," by Rev. Edmund Sears. We must not forget Martin Luther's cradle hymn sung by our little broth. cradle hymn sung by our little brothfor children with defective eyesight.
Dr. H. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health says;
"Schools for the blind have been established ers and sisters the world around, "Away in a Manger". And the best known carol of all is probably the beautiful German hymn "Holy night," because the property of the second of the property of the same and sisters the world around, around, around the same and sisters the world around, around the same and sisters the world around, around the same around the sam

Worth, the famous designer of women's styles, once remarked at a Paris

"I have nothing but admiration for that great English playwright, Shakespeare. What a blend of drama and philosophy! And yet he made one great big mistake when he said that love was blind. "I have found out by experience that love is blind to everything but fat. Love sees fat, all right."

Wedding Rings for Curtain That the curtain before the tabernacle in the chapel of the Blessed Sacrament of Westminster cathedral in London is hung on a golden rod with wedding rings has just become generally known. Forty-nine women of various nationalities made an offering of their wedding rings for the purpose. Some were widows, but many were wives who, for the embellishment of the cathedral, desired to give that which they most prized.

Getting in Trim

This is the story of a gambler. He runs the game in a New York club that is patronized by wealthy men. He weighs upward of 200 pounds, or did, last spring. He disappeared in May, and when he came back in the early autumn all his surplus fat was gone. He weighed about 170, and his excess waistline had disappeared. There was a chorus of admiration and congratulation when he came back. Everybody was guessing how he did it, and the majority opined that he had spent the summer at some expensive health farm. But he told me the real story.

He went to a little farm, which a New York friend had just bought in Pennsylvania. The gambler had been a farm boy in his youth. He looked over the rough, uncultivated place and

"Bill, I'll fix it up for you, for my board and room."

The friend agreed, and the gambler went to work. He got up every morning at six and worked till sundown. He spaded up a huge tract for a garden and planted everything imaginable, from radishes to canteloupes. He dug post holes and put up fences and repaired buildings.

The gambler stayed nine weeks and never faltered in his hard work. He grinned when he told me about it.

"The trouble is that when most people go to the country to build up," he said, "they just sit around and do nothing. They might just as well stick in town. All they need is good hard work. Golf-bah! A spade beats a golf club any day for putting a man in real trim."

Education

With all this fuss in the newspapers about the pros and cons of education ringing through my mind, I stepped into a little fruit and candy shop on Forty-eighth street, just off of Sixth avenue. The place is run by Nick, who doesn't speak too good English. It is about ten by ten in size and cluttered up with the usual array of fruits, candies, cigarettes and soda equipment. As I turned to go out, my eye was caught by a tall bookcase, beside the door. I stopped and looked the books over. There was a shelf of books on general knowledge, and another devoted to works on science. The bottom shelves were taken up with formidable works in Greek.

"Do you read these?" I asked. "Sure I do," said Nick, with a pleased smile. "That's my library."

"Do you read the Greek, too?" "Sure," said Nick. "It's just mod-

And as I staggered out to the sidewalk, I remembered that I had a letter in my pocket, from my kid brother in college, telling pridefully how he fell asleep every day in his English

Anyway, He Looked Fine

Eddie Dunn, long associated with George M. Cohan, is breezing along toward seventy, but looks twenty years younger when he steps out on Broadway. An old-time fellow trouper hailed him recently with "Hello. Eddie, you're looking younger than ever. How do you do it?" "I'll tell you." said Eddie. "I've cut out cigarettes."

Two nights later the same friend stepped up to Dunn.

"Eddie," he said, "you're still looking young, but you've got to give me another reason this time."

For Eddie was pulling deeply and joyfully on a cigarette.

A Good Trick

In a small and very strict preparatory school was a young electrical wizard who ruined the 10 p. m. light-out rule-until he was caught. This lad had discovered fifteen or twenty oldstyle wall telephones in the hasement of the dormitory, and went to the head master with a suggestion.

"Don't you think it would be a good idea if we put these phones in our rooms?" he asked. "We've been studying electricity, and installing them will give us practical experience. I'll put the switchboard in my room."

The head master saw no harm in that. It would, as the boy had pointed out, be good experience for the students. So the instruments were installed. Some weeks later the head master, on a prowl to see that everyone was in bed after 10 p. m., visited the young electrician's chambers. There he was, hunched over the switchboard, reading a detective story to his pals. He had been charging them twenty-five cents a week each for the service.

Topeka, Kan.-Colby, Kan., will levy no taxes this year, becoming a taxless city for the second year. Its municipally operated light and water plant under the direction of E. V. Singing for Exercise

Besides being a pleasure to the singer and sometimes to those around, the act of singing is a better exercise than most persons have any thought of. It is good exercise for the throat. lungs and chest and now it is recommended for the ears. A western physician who is call upon to do a great deal of riving over the country says that after a particularly hard experience of this kind his ears always seem to be affected, probably by the noises of the car and vibration of the engine. In this event he raises up his voice and sings to the best of his ability, and this treatment soon relieves the

Mean Millionaire

The late Benjamin N. Duke of tobaceo fame, advocated a liberal rather than a penurious spirit in the handling of money.

Mr. Duke said one night in a Y M. C. A. address in Durham:

"If you are mean and grasping in your youth, the habit will grow on you, and you'll get no enjoyment out of money in your old age, even if you're a millionaire.

"An old millionaire of this kind bought a cheap radio set. Somebody asked him afterwards how he liked it. "'Oh,' he grumbled, 'it's pretty fair to listen to, but the bulbs aren't much good to read by."

His Favorite Selection

Do you like to hear music while you are dining? Some folks do and others don't. Cheerful, pleasant airs are thought to aid digestion, but those that are sad or so striking that they quite absorb the listener's attention are deemed not so good.

In a Boston restaurant where the versatile orchestra will play anything a diner may request, a patron was asked what he would like the orchestra to play.

"If it is agreeable to everybody else," said the diner, "I wish they would please play checkers till I finish my dinner."—Boston Globe.

Ligurian Lost Language

The Ligurian language which was spoken in Europe 3,000 years ago survives only in the names of a few rivers, lakes and mountains, says the Living Age. One of these names is that of the Rhone. A contributor to the "Journal de Geneve" has traced the history of that stream back to the Bronze age, when a dark-haired race inhabited the forests of France and Switzerland and left behind them no written language, but only such familiar words as "Alp, "Seine" and "Leman."

Columbus' View of America

On August 1, 1498, the same year that John Cabot explored the coast of North America, Columbus visited the mainland of the American continent in Central America. He again visited the mainland in 1502, near the mouth of the Veragua river, in Central America. These were the only occasions upon which the great navigator actually saw the mainland of either of the great western continents. -Pathfinder Magazine.

I. The Greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven (Matt. 18:1-6).

Jesus answered concretely the disciples' question as to who is greatest in the kingdom of heaven, by placing a child in their midst and declar

1. The condition of entrance into the kingdom (v. 3).

In order to enter the kingdom one must become childlike. He thus showed to these ambitious disciples that a change of neart was necessary in order to even enter the kingdom. let alone having an honorable position therein. Birth from above is essential, even to see the kingdom (John 3:3, 5).

2. Those who possess childlike bumility are the greatest (v. 4). The child is dependent, lowly and modest. Such characteristics are only possible to those who have been regenerated II. Little Children Brought to Jesus.- (Mk. 10:13-16). 1. The mothers' desire that Jesus might touch their children (v. 13) Doubtless they had witnessed the healing power of His touch and coveted it for their children. All Christian parents want their children to come into contact with Jesus Christ 2. The disciples' rebuke (v. 13).

They thought the children were too insignificant to be allowed to interfere with Jesus' work, therefore they rebuked the mothers for bringing them to Him.

3. Jesus' reply (v.14). He declared that the kingdom belongs to the children, therefore the children have a right in the presence of the king.

4. Jesus blesses the little children (v. 16).

He took them up in His arms and blessed them. Christianity is peculiarly favorable toward children. Only where Christ is known is the child duly recognized.

III. The Child Jesus (Luke 2:1-20) 1. His birth (vv. 1-7).

It took place at Bethlehem according to prediction (Micah 5:2). The Lord moved upon the emperor to en force the decree of taxation just in to bring Mary to Bethlehem. His surroundings were of the most humble sort. The eternal God condescended to be thus incorporated with humanity, to be born in a manger, becoming the poorest of the poor that none might be hindered in coming unto him.

2. Jesus' birth announced (vv. 8-14).

(1) By whom. An angel of the Lord was the first to give the gospel message.

(2). To whom. His birth was an nounced to the shepherds who were keeping watch over their flocks by night.

(3). The nature of the message. It was good tidings of great joy. It was good tidings because the darkness of heathendom which had so long covered the earth was beginning to vanish; the casting out of Satan, the prince of the world, was about to take place. Liberty was soon to be proclaimed to those who were in bondage. The way of salvation was to be open to all. So glorious was this message that a multitude of the heavenly host accompanied it with their song of praise.

3. The shepherds investigating

(vv. 15, 16). They did not stop to argue or raise questions, though these things were no doubt passing strange to them. They went immediately to Bethlehem where they made investigation and found everything just as represented. They had the privilege of first gazing upon the world's Savior, the Lord of glory. The shepherds witnessing (vv.

They found things as announced When they beheld the Lord of glory they could not remain silent, therefore they went back praising God and mak. ing known what their eyes had beheld. Those who really hear the gospel cannot be silent-they must tell it out to

Earth a Rebuke to Atheism

God never wrought miracles to convince atheism, because His ordinary works convince it. It is true, that a little philosophy inclineth man's mind to atheism; but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion.-Francis Bacon.

Good Breeding Shows

There are few defects in our nature so glaring as not to be veiled from observation by politeness and good breeding .- Stanislaus.

HRISTMAS eve and Judith Ross found herself alone at last but still very lonely. Her only relative, her kid brother, Paul, had just gone away, taking a bride with him.
"One of these days, Judith, Paul will go and marry some one; and then you'll be left alone," her sweetheart, Ralph Reed, told her two years before on Christmas eve, just after Judith had refused to go with him into Canada. Ralph's prophecy had come true—Paul had not sacrificed his love affairs to remain at home with her and she hadn't expected it, and yet she was thinking how unfairly life had treated her.

Judith gave a sigh and looked about her, for there were the wedding decorations, including the mistletoe, the flowers, the wreaths, the huge bell and the banked altar in the library.

Just as she donned a great coverall apron the electric buzzer warned her that some one stood in the cold awaiting admittance to her cozy home.

"Ralph," was all Judith could say. "Yes, it is me, Judith. Two weeks ago tonight I listened in on the radio in my little shack up there in the woods and heard a Pittsburgh radio station dedicate a number to Paul and his bride-to-be, and then it was that I knew you needed me, Judith. I imagined they would be marrying about Christmas, so I started out the very next morning to reach here in time, but old Tim down at the station told me they had gone already." Ralph blurted it all out and then opened his arms and Judith crept into them,

"How Did You Know I Would Still Be Waiting for You."

knowing her troubles were all at an end, and she was to be repaid for the years she had sacrificed for her kid brother.

"How did you know I would still be waiting for you, Ralph?" she mumbled from the depths of his great coat.

"Love takes a lot for granted you! know, dear, and then, too, a few weeks ago, I heard you sing "Still Waiting For You, Dear," from the radio station, and didn't I recognize that favorite song of mine even before I heard them announce the singer? I knew you'd not be singing that if some one else had claimed you."

Just then the buzzer brought them; back to earth and Judith arranged her tumbled locks as she went to answer the ring. There stood the little old parson who had just left the house a few hours before.

"Have you forgotten something?" asked Judith.

"No, I believe not; I've my book! and the promise of two witnesses who will be along in a minute," Parson Henderson assured her.

"Witnesses?" she asked. "Yes, dear," Ralph answered, for he had followed her into the hall. "I took a lot for granted, phoned the parson, and now we can be married on Christmas eve, just as we had planned to do, when Paul refused to go back to Canada with us."

True to their word, a few moments later the parson's sister and her. daughter joined the little group at the Ross home. Underneath the same wedding bell, before the same flowerbanked altar in the library, in the shadows cast by the same flickering tapers that had furnished the setting for her brother's wedding, Judith promised to "love and cherish" Ralph. There had been oceans of food left over from Paul's wedding feast and the little bride, Judith, herself, set out the remaining salad, cold pressed chicken and the other goodles. "Just a pot-luck wedding dinner, folks," she proclaimed.

torted: "It might be a pot-luck dinner but &'s not a pot-luck Christmas eve, for it is the happiest Christmas eve in my whole life, folks." As he made the statement he slipped a most generous fee into the parson's hand, for the parson, too. Judith had noticed his movement, so she followed by slipping to the two women folks two tiny jade pins which she had purchased sometime ago to give as presents, but hadn't found a place for them before. "After all," thought Judith, "Christmas is synonymous with love, and love is a synonym for

"Why don't you organize a Christmas corporation and put on a Christmas of your own?" responded Mr. Munson. able to be present. He went on to explain a co-operative company could be organized and shares sold and a Christmas given to the trough with the money. You could be president. I will buy a few shares. And I know a rich lady, a Mrs. Bennett, who will be here this afternoon, and I will ask her to be general manager of your corporation.

The young man went to his desk, took out a corporation blank and filled it out in regular form for a co-operative corporation. He gave it the name of "The Sammy Christmas Corporation," and fixed the capital stock at $2,000, to be subscribed per share. Sammy was named as noon, and after she had talked a few moments to Mr. Munson, Sammy was called over to the clerk's desk. Mr. Munson explained the proposition and making it the happiest Christmas eve all the details. Sammy was in the seventh heaven of delight when Mrs. Bennett consented to become manager and subscribed for fifty shares of stock. Mrs. Bennett said she knew the superintendent of the Mission Sunday school in the trough and she would ask her to take charge of the tree. Sammy told her about his home, his mother and little sisters, and something about the children in the trough.

Two newspaper reporters came in and were told about the corporation and the proposed Christmas for the the poor. Cameras clicked, and in the morning papers big headlines told the story. There was a picture of President Sammy. The article played up the story of poverty and made a plea for help. It told what was needed to make the tree a success, and pointed out that the name of Mrs. Bennett guaranteed the integrity of the corporation.

Sammy's employer called him into the private office and asked about the trough, about his corporation and his own family. He also subscribed for twenty-five shares in the corporation. The mails commenced bringing letters with checks for

Santa Claus is Coming

I received a letter from a little girl in Taneytown, written on a circular advertising a Bazaar for Dec. 21st-, in the Firemen's Building.

I have decided it will be a good time to meet the boys and girls in Taneytown, at this Bazaar.

I will be there with a good supply of presents. As it is necessary to go somewhere before the 24th., I request every boy and girl not to unwrap their presents until Christmas morning. Meet me at the Firemen's Building next Saturday evening, Dec. 21, 1929.
