

OUTLOOK IN DETROIT NOT SO GOOD.

General Comment on Industrial and Governmental Situation.

I had intended to do a little bragging about the weather we have been having. The winter has been a hard one, with lots of snow and bitter cold weather. And so after two weeks of ideal Spring weather, with buds coming out on shrubs and trees, we were hoping that the back-bone of old winter had been broken, and that all the promises of an early Spring would prove true; but this morning, March 18th., we have several inches of snow, and it is about as disagreeable as it could possibly be. About the only thing we can do is to take it as it comes, and hope, for the sake of the coal pile, that this relapse is only temporary.

Well, that's one paragraph about one of my standard subjects—Detroit's weather. I may have a little more to say about another—the industrial situation here. I have an idea that this city is different from any city in the United States in this line. As I have stated before, the principal industry is the building of automobiles, trucks, etc., and the making of accessories for the same. I do not know of anything that would kill the city quicker than to take away all the automobile factories. Consequently, when work is slack in these, we have hard times here.

This is true of the present time. Factories that, other years at this season, were running full blast—day and night—with plenty of overtime, are now almost silent—some running three or four days a week and others less. As this business is seasonal, and the first six months of the year always better than the last six months, if this condition holds good this year, we are in for something we have not yet struck since coming to Detroit, before the year is up.

An observer can see the difference in the sale of new cars, at least in this city, by watching the almost solid stream of cars on the streets and Boulevards. Last Spring, there were new cars everywhere, while this year, you see very few. Either the manufacturers made their cars too good the past few years, so that people do not want to change, or else the lack of money prevents them from trading off, and getting new cars this year, as is usually the custom. There is an old saying here, that "if you can't make the money in the shops, you can't buy the cars," and I suspect this is true.

Of course the Reds here who take their orders from Russia, do not let any chance go by to make the discontent, usual to such a situation—greater. On the day set by the Russian Soviet for a general demonstration all over the world we had our troubles here, although they did not amount to much, and if those who were simply drawn down town through curiosity, would have stayed at home, I do not suppose any one would have been even arrested, as there were only 400 or 500 out and out Reds in the crowd, while the papers stated that from 75,000 to 100,000 people were on the side walks as on-lookers. Observers say that this crowd of Reds were about the dirtiest and most miserable looking crowd they ever saw. They looked as if they had not seen water and soap for months.

Of course, the President of the Labor Unions here was prominent, and was scheduled for an address. I did not see if he made it or not, but do not think so, as the Police took a hand and kept the crowd moving.

As it was, to get back to the Red demonstration, only a few heads were cracked, and quite a few arrested and fined for disorderly conduct, among them being two or three High School girls, showing that the Reds are even getting in their work in our public schools.

Then there is the reorganization of the Police Force, promised by the new Mayor, Bowles, in his speeches during the campaign. Just before he took office, one of the inspectors, a man named Garvin, was shot up by bandits, and following the investigation which showed that a large number of the force were not exactly straight, the heads of the higher-ups in the Department began to fall. The Commission, Superintendent and a few dozen lower in rank have since been retired, some voluntarily, knowing what was to come, and others by request.

The new Commissioner says that the force needs younger blood to cope with the crime wave, which in my opinion, is no wave, but a permanent thing caused by the lenient laws of this state. So all men, no matter how high in office they are, who have been on the force 25 years or over, are retiring on half pay, and the younger men are being promoted. As all of these retired men have their friends you can imagine what a "mess" this is making.

Then, we have the fight between the Mayor and officers of the Municipal Street Railway, on the one side, and the Council on the other, over the matter of raising the fare from 6c to 8c. As their system is one of the pet schemes of Senator Couzens, and his son is on the D. S. R. commission, there has been quite a scrap, with the result that the fares remain the same, notwithstanding the fact that the service is poor, and the department not paying for itself by a larger sum every year.

A BAD BEGINNING

1930 Promises to Break the Record for Auto Accidents.

If the early season crop is a reliable guide, then the year 1930 will be a record-breaker in deaths due to auto accidents. On last Sunday there were at least six deaths in the state, all due to speeding or reckless driving, and three seriously injured in the same accidents. On Saturday, a young man was killed near Frederick and three others painfully injured. On Friday, also in Frederick county, eight out of nine were injured in a crash; and numerous other accidents occurred over the week-end of a similar character.

Does this mean the need for more stringent laws for the control of speed? We hardly think so, for the reason that present laws are not enforced, and drivers show little, if any more, desire to keep their cars under perfect control at all times than in the years past when cars were less speedy.

We talk more or less glibly of the failure of prohibition laws to prohibit, but if the facts could be known it would likely be shown that the prohibition laws, even in wet Maryland, are better enforced than are the laws for safety in highway travel; which means that there is a growing public sentiment that favors the enforcement of such laws as do not run counter to the exercise of our "personal liberty." We are making great pets of our habits and preferences, these days, without much thought of those who may be hurt by them.

The daily papers—and especially those of Monday each week—continue to tell the most distressing stories of death, injury and wrecked cars. And in nearly every case somebody was at fault; high speed, usually; sometimes booze; sometimes pure recklessness. And all of this means, danger on the highways to those who are competent and careful but who can not escape the faults of others.

HOME-MAKERS' MEETING.

The Home-makers' Club met in the Fireman's building for their regular monthly meeting, Friday, March 14, at 2:00 P. M.

The meeting was opened with a song followed by the business session. The club voted to give $5.00 to the Children's Aid Society.

Miss Slindee gave an instructive demonstration on the making of various kinds of muffins, plain muffins, muffins with prunes, whole wheat muffins and corn muffins with dates. They were sampled and pronounced delicious.

The recreation consisted of a recitation by Miss Betty Ott and an instrumental duet by Betty Ott and Jean Frailey.

CHILDREN'S AID FUND.

How deeply grateful we feel to the citizens of Carroll County for their courtesy and response to our solicitations for the Children's Aid Society. While New Windsor District is the very first to complete their quota for the year's work, all the districts are doing well, and in the name of the children and families who will benefit by this work for the sake of humanity, we thank you.

The following districts have reported the sums named:

New Windsor	129.76
Manchester	119.00
Westminster	394.09
Sykesville	8.00
Uniontown	9.00
Woolerys	9.00
Myers	12.00
Taneytown	59.50
Total to date	$640.35

MRS. FRANK MYERS.

DEATH OF DR. BRUMBAUGH.

Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, former Governor of Pennsylvania and president of Juniata College, Church of the Brethren, died last Saturday, at Huntingdon, Pa., and burial took place on Tuesday at Marklesburg, Pa., beside his parents. Dr. C. C. Ellis, vice-president of the College, officiated assisted by Rev. F. B. Statler pastor of the stone Church of the Brethren on college hill adjoining the Campus.

Dr. Brumbaugh was known as the "War Governor" of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania's three living former Governors, Edwin S. Stuart, John K. Tener and Gifford Pinchot were among the honorary pall-bearers, as well as present Governor Fisher, and other state officials and Mayor Mackey, of Philadelphia.

The church was filled to capacity with relatives and friends and Juniata College Alumni, and many stood outside in the rain. The funeral rites were divided into separate meetings, one of which was in the College Chapel. Dr. Brumbaugh was one of the most prominent members in this country, of the Church of the Brethren.

iciency, as has been done time and time again thus adding to the city's debt, and raising the tax rate still higher.

I suppose I have said enough about the affairs of this city, as no doubt not many will be interested in what I have already written. I just want to add a few words to inform the many friends of B. O. Slonaker, that he is about the same, but is now at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. R. Cooley, 3115 Coplin Ave, where he will be glad to hear from any of them. The rest of the Taneytown folks here are well, and all the men have work, something we are all thankful for.

NO SPORTSMAN'S RIGHT TO FREE HUNTING

The Private Ownership of Lands Restricts Privilege.

The following article by William Manthe, Chairman Conservation Commission, of Wisconsin, explains the rights of the state, property owners, and the people, in the matter of taking game or fish.

"All fish in lakes and streams, and all wild game in field and forest, are the property of the people, held in trust for them by State governments. Migratory game belongs to the Federal Government. This is so well established by the State and Federal laws that it does not admit of dispute.

But the people's ownership means little to them. While in theory the people retain the right to take this game, subject to the rules and regulations, in actual practice their claim to this property is limited.

Except for State and Federal lands, all the surface of this country is in the hands of persons holding title to the lands. Subject only to certain police powers vested in the State, landowners have absolute control of their respective holdings. This control includes the right to say who shall come onto the land, and when.

The result of this set-up is that the hunter, though he actually owns a share of the game and may have purchased a license to claim his share wherever he can lawfully find and take it, still is barred from exercising this right unless he either owns the land or arranges with the owner to go upon his land for the purpose of hunting.

Much the same thing is true relative to fish in lakes and streams. Private owners have established ownership of the shores of lakes and banks of streams. It is impossible in many cases either to wade in or float a boat upon publicly-owned waters without first trespassing upon private lands or securing the consent of the owners.

But this situation is not new. It has obtained for many generations. We are only beginning to study some of these phases of the set-up.

When the State found that ownership carried with it responsibilities, it got down to business. Laws were passed stating when game could be taken and what rights could be exercised when reduced to possession.

Gradually commissions were established to look out for the State's game and fish. Warden forces were built up, and ways were studied as to how the game stock could be maintained.

It was decided that all members of the public who wished to take the State's game and fish to their own use should pay for this special privilege. Thus the hunting and fishing license system was established.

More and more the value of wild life in the State was being appreciated. As time went on, State commissions were receiving moral and financial support from the public. Private agencies were moving along with the State in propagation of game and fish.

While these things were going on, another set of circumstances was developing. With increase in population came increase in the price of land, new and intensive methods of farming, the placing of practically all tillable land under plow, the pasturing of large herds of pure-bred cattle, the fencing of practically all agricultural lands.

Although some hunters showed due regard for the rights of the landowners, the development of farming made it less and less desirable for the farmer to allow hunters to tramp over his fields. To both farmers and other landowners came the conviction that wild game had a value that could be translated into cash. And so we see larger and larger areas where "No Hunting and Fishing" signs are posted.

In the exercise of its police powers the State can send conservation wardens onto a man's land to enforce the laws. The State can tell a private landowner when he may, and when he may not start a brush fire, and what use he may make of streams and lakes.

But the State may not send its conservation wardens onto private land to administer its own wild life property without consent of the owner. The State may liberate game upon his lands; but, without his consent, the State may not thereafter go upon the land in the interests of that planted game stock.

It is an elementary principle of wild life administration that unless game can be surrounded with favorable conditions it will not prosper. But the conservation commission, after producing additional game stock has no right to go upon any man's land without his consent to prepare the ground for favorable conditions after planting.

This is the fundamental check upon the State's efforts to properly administer its wild life stock."

COUNTY MAN HIT BY AUTO

Causing a Double Fracture of his Left Leg.

Mr. David A. Hahn, tenant on one of the B. F. Shriver farms in Bachman's Valley, was run down by an automobile driven by Charles McCaffrey, of Littlestown, Wednesday night, and suffered a double fracture of the left leg. The accident occurred near the Charles Carroll school, south of Silver Run.

Mr. Hahn is said to have been walking behind his wagon drawing the brakes on the grade, when the auto struck him from the rear. He was preparing to remove to a farm near Hanover from which he was returning when the accident occurred.

After examination by a local physician he was removed to the Hanover Hospital. An investigation is being made by the Carroll County authorities.

THE PRICE OF SUGAR.

Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough of Maryland in commenting at his office in the Senate Office Building upon the apparent wide-spread impression that the duty on sugar fixed by the Senate would greatly increase the price of that commodity, said:

"Statements appearing in the press and communications received by Members of Congress indicate that there is a general confused state of the public mind with reference to the effect of the duty recently voted by the Senate on sugar, for many are under the impression that should the Senate rate become effective the price of sugar would be increased two cents a pound, when, as a matter of fact, the increased cost—due solely to the proposed rate, would be only 24 cents for each 100 pounds—or less than one-fourth of a cent a pound; and, based upon present consumption, it is estimated that the increased cost would amount to only seven and two-tenths cents a person per annum.

"The present rate of duty—applicable to sugar imported from Cuba—based upon the tariff Act of 1922, is $1.76 a hundred pounds. The bill passed by the House of Representatives carried a rate of $2.40, while the bill reported by the Finance Committee of the Senate proposed a rate of $2.20. The Senate, however, a few days ago voted in favor of a rate of $2.00; and, should that rate be agreed to in conference, the increase in duty would be the difference between the present rate of $1.76 and $2.00—or 24 cents for each 100 pounds."

"INSIDE" INFORMATION FOR WOMEN.

If the clothesline has been left out, wipe it carefully with a damp cloth before using. Clothespins must be perfectly clean.

Pockets made like shoe bags and hung on a sewing room screen or a closet door in the sewing room provide a handy way of keeping patterns and findings.

Do you know Leaflet 39, Eggs at any Meal, issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture? At this season of the year eggs are plentiful and the bulletin suggests a variety of uses in the menu.

Children who profess not to like eggs or milk will often eat custards, omelets, milk puddings, milk-vegetable soups, and egg-milk drinks if they are well-flavored. The wise parent will not call attention to the ingredients of such dishes, but will simply offer them as a matter of course in their regular place in the meal.

Mercerization is a process used in finishing some cotton fabrics that adds not only beauty, in a glossy finish, but durability. Sometimes mercerized yarns are combined with plain ones to make stripes, checks, and figures of unusual attractiveness. The more or less temporary glossy finishes applied to fabrics by means of paste mixtures should not be confused with mercerization, nor should rayon, which is quite different from mercerized cotton.

Bright colors like red, green, orange, vivid blue, or yellow, are desirable for children's out-of-doors play clothes, especially if the little ones must play where automobile traffic is passing. Motorists see these colors easily, although they may not notice the browns, grays, and other dull colors used for outer wraps which blend with the landscape. Children like the bright colors best, and are protected by wearing them. Much the same is true of bathing suits in bright shades. The child is visible wherever he ventures.

THE MAILING OF UNORDERED MERCHANDISE.

So great has become the business of sending unordered packages of merchandise, to selected lists—mainly hosiery, neckwear and greeting cards—that a bill has been introduced in Congress that would prohibit the custom. The business interests—and very large ones, as the merchandise so disposed of runs away up into the millions of dollars a year—are very naturally protesting; while other business interests hurt by this class of selling, favor the bill.

Although the Postoffice department profits largely by the business, it is said not to be a strong indorseer of it. Most of the protests against the sending out of unordered goods, are to the effect that the government is aiding a plan that causes great loss to local small dealers, chiefly in the small towns and rural sections.

Some who receive these packages find it a nuisance to retail them back—possibly some do not; while others keep the goods and remit the price.

Be sure not to divide the spoils until after victory is surely won.

NEWS NOTES OF THE PAST WEEK.

Numerous Important Happenings in Condensed Form.

The Pennsylvania Railroad proposes to spend nearly $100,000,000 during 1930 in its road and equipment budget, according to an application filed March 14 with the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue and sell bonds to a value of $60,000,000.

The United States Steel Corporation and its subsidiaries have been awarded a refund of taxes by the Department of the Treasury for the years 1918, 1919 and 1920, amounting to approximately $33,000,000, according to an oral announcement March 14 by the Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon. The refund, part of which will be credited against the steel corporation's taxes as shown to be on the income-tax return which it will file March 15, brought to an end litigation over taxes that stood among the longest on record and involved among the largest amounts which a taxpayer ever has recovered from the Federal Government.

Agreement, in the big Naval parley that has been in course of discussion for the past two months, has not yet been reached. The trouble seems to rest with France and Italy who have rival interests in the Mediterranean that depend for protection largely on naval forces.

Mr. Wickersham, chairman of the Law Enforcement Commission says that while the dry law is not being enforced 100 percent, it is being enforced better than any other Federal statute.

Although the world's wheat supply is 200,000,000 bushels less than a year ago, a reduced demand for it has depressed the price below that of last year when supplies were unusually large.

The Gulf Oil refining plant at Girard Point, near Philadelphia, suffered a loss of about $2,000,000 by fire Wednesday night. Fire is one of the outstanding reasons why there must be a big profit in oil to the refiners.

The second poll by the Literary Digest on the prohibition question, shows 191,909 for enforcement, 224,141 for modification, and 287,885 for repeal. It will be noted that the repeal vote is 128,165 from a majority over the first two votes. 20,000,000 ballots have been sent out; this is to be followed by 1,000,000 more for physicians, lawyers, clergymen and school teachers.

Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Maryland State Republican Committee, is being boosted for candidate for Governor. Mr. Tait is said to be surprised at the effort, that seems to be mainly backed by opponents of Mayor Broening.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jacobs, of Baltimore, aged 78 years, was instantly killed on Thursday, by being struck by an auto truck. She was crossing the street a few doors from her home.

Ex-Gov. Harry Floyd Byrd, of Virginia, was boomed as the next Democratic candidate for President, at convention of Ninth District Democrats of Virginia, on Thursday.

Reported to have been operating for several months within two miles of Ruthsburg, one of the largest stills yet uncovered on the Eastern Shore of Md., by Prohibition Enforcement officers, was raided Monday and because of its tremendous size the agents were forced to use dynamite to wreck it. The still was a mammoth egg-shaped outfit, similar to those used by the Kentucky moonshiners. Agents found 4,100 gallons of mash and 77 gallons of liquor. A fifty-gallon "doubler" was also found in conjunction with the paraphernalia.

WHEAT TOP DRESSING.

According to figures compiled by F. W. Oldenburg, Extension Agronomist, University of Maryland, wheat top dressing in spring with a nitrogenous fertilizer, such as sulphate of ammonia or nitrate of soda, may be a very profitable practice.

Five demonstrations were conducted in 1925 using nitrate of soda for top dressing. Four of these showed a profitable increase, the gains being from 6.3 bushels to 8.3 bushel per acre. One demonstration proved unprofitable.

In 1929 eighteen demonstrations were conducted using sulphate of ammonia as a top dressing and five using nitrate of soda. Three of these failed to show a profit, two broke even, and the rest showed increases in yield from 4/2 bushels up to 21.4 bushels per acre. The average gain in yield per acre for the two years averaging all the demonstrations was 7.4 bushels on the Western Shore and 6.7 bushels on the Eastern Shore, or 7.1 bushels for the state as a whole.

Three demonstrations in Carroll County last year using sulphate of ammonia as a top dressing at the rate of 100 lbs. per acre showed good profits. On the farm of Francis Herzig the gain was 12.4 bushels per acre; on the Harry Elnhart farm the gain was 21.4 bushels per acre and on the farm of Harry Snyder the gain in yield was 8.4 bushels per acre.

The amount of fertilizer to apply depends upon how much will probably give profitable returns. On the dairy farms of the Piedmont and Western Maryland, where manure is applied, nitrogen would probably not give paying returns. On fields which have had only a small amount of manure in addition to the fertilizer applied in the Fall it still gives very profitable returns to top dress fields.

THE DRYS HEARD FROM

Strong Testimony Presented for Present Laws.

The drys have been putting up strong evidence in their time before the House Judiciary Committee in defense of the 18th Amendment. On Wednesday Horace Taft, a brother of the late Chief Justice, introduced evidence showing that the latter, after his appointment to the Supreme Court, supported and indorsed the law.

He said in a private letter that after eight years of operation believed "the result is glorious and points the only way we have to work out the problem presented," and declared that prohibition after a time would "achieve a satisfactory result."

Joseph Daniels, of Virginia, Secretary of the Navy under President Wilson, made it clear that his plea for prohibition was as great now as ever. He argued that the repeal of prohibition would mean a return to the old saloon days. He said no Congress could ever be elected that would set up a dispensary system, and that the saloon or the dispensary system are the only alternatives for prohibition.

Mr. Daniels, the first representative of the Southern dry element, whose votes and influence played such a large part in the adoption of the 18th Amendment, to appear at the prohibition hearings, insisted he would continue the effort to enforce prohibition if it takes a hundred years.

In his original statement, Mr. Daniels criticized the wets because they were not united on a single program. On cross-examination, Representative Le Guardia asked him what program he would suggest for the drys. "I would do everything that is necessary to enforce the law," he declared.

Mr. Daniels' testimony closed a day in which the drys brought up some of their most important witnesses. In addition to Mr. Taft and the former Secretary of the Navy, the witnesses included William E. Bennett, former member of Congress from New York, and Col. Walter F. Jenkins, personal representative of Commander Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army.

Miss Booth expressing unqualified indorsement of prohibition "as an unimpaired blessing" for the classes with which the Salvation Army has to deal. Under cross-examination she admitted the Salvation Army Hotel in the Bowery still cares for 600 guests every night, but insisted that the proportion of inebriates in this number has dwindled almost to nothing.

Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the W. C. T. U., appeared before the committee on Thursday, in an impassioned address attacking the brewers for spreading enemy propaganda during the war with Germany and picturing total abstinence from harmful things as the only true temperance. Mrs. Boole predicted that the 18th Amendment would stay in the Constitution as long as women retain the vote.

"In these hearings," she affirmed, "much has been said about the personal liberty of men as guaranteed under the Constitution. I call attention to the fact that women and children are people and that they, too, are guaranteed life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The intuitions of women, confirmed by the logic of events, indict the drink habit and drink traffic for contributing to loss of life, for interference with their liberty and the destruction of their happiness."

MR. COLLIDGE'S SAYINGS.

Mr. Coolidge is likely to be a much quoted man, in the years to come, for his many proverb-like sayings, for which he was noted during his public life. Indeed, it would be quite worth while for some collaborator to go over his public addresses and compile in handy form the many hundreds of gems of thought that he scattered abroad during his public career.

Mr. Coolidge is not a brilliant speaker, so far as oratory goes; and certainly not a wit, but for honest-to-goodness common sense, and saying much in little, he is an outstanding character of his time. Already his name is being attached to a lot of short "fillers" that appear in various publications, and sooner or later many of them will appear in standard books of quotations.

Washington and Lincoln were not much quoted during their public career. Indeed, both were criticised—the latter very severely—but in the years after, when the public sees and hears more clearly, men get due credit for their wisdom; and this seems likely to be the case with Mr. Coolidge.

A NATURAL RESULT.

All over the country, protests are being made to taking trains off the railroads. These acts are forced by reduced patronage, due to auto and bus travel, and to freight truck service. The railroads do not voluntarily reduce their service, but very naturally can not be expected to continue service at a loss. So far as the public is concerned it is simply a case in which said public "can not eat its cake, and have it, too."

The loss of railroad service is but one practical evidence of more like situations to be expected in the future. We are so bent, these days, on "looking out for ourselves," as we think, that we are overlooking the fact that we may overdo the thing. Usually there is a law of compensation at work, and we are sure to find eventually that we are more dependent on "neighbors" than we think we are.

The mail order houses are doing an immense business, and from the published rates of dividend paid on their stock, are making money. A large percentage of the public wants such stores, and patronize them as a personal privilege. But, after a while—like the railroads—local store service will be compelled to quit for want of patronage enough to pay expenses.

How far this trend may extend, it is now difficult to forecast. It will not by any means be confined to the railroads and stores. More classes of business now in existence are sure to be starved out of existence, and with them many local causes not of a business character, must suffer. There are very many things that we will want to get at home—sometimes—that we will not be able to get.

MEN OUT OF WORK.

The number of men unemployed comes up for consideration at least once a year, usually during the winter. It is partly a seasonal question, in that during the cold months outdoor work is necessarily much curtailed; and when, as often happens, workers have not laid-by for the slack season, distress naturally follows unemployment.

But there are at least two factors that encourage—actually compel—increased unemployment among men at all seasons of the year; and these are, improved machinery that requires less help to operate and that turns out more finished work than heretofore; and second, the increased employment of women for men's jobs.

This latter fact is most important. To a large extent it was brought about by the world war when man power was very greatly reduced, and in most cases women have made good and continue to hold jobs formerly held by men; and not only to hold present ones, but to compete in the open field for still more. Unemployment of men, too, depends on the increase of unemployment of capital. The high wages so much demanded, and the shorter days to make the days last longer, are means of stretching out the jobs that exist; but, the probability is that if labor would make use of lower prices as an attraction for service, they would be better off in the end. Demand for labor is decidedly more apt to be present when wage scales are attractive to capital. There can be no work when there is no demand for it; consequently it would seem wise to attract more demand—more money in circulation—through the best means—an attractive price.

A BILL IN THE INTEREST OF RETAILERS.

There is a bill before Congress in opposition to the sending of unsolicited merchandise through the mails, as introduced by Representative Watson of Pennsylvania, who states that his Bill is indorsed by various Chambers of Commerce and many business concerns.

The bill is opposed by interests mainly in New England states who represent that their constituents are selling approximately $3,000,000 of greeting cards alone that are mailed out on approval, and it is also argued that the Postoffice department would lose millions of dollars a year if this class of selling is abolished.

It is also developed that not over 8 percent of the cards alone, remain unpaid for; and that from 70 to 80 percent of the business is transacted in the rural districts. The total volume of this business is placed at $70,000,000 a year.

On the other hand, Representative Watson claims that the Postoffice Department has recommended the legislation for the last four years. The business is participated in chiefly by makers of greeting cards, hosiery, neckwear and perfumes.

This class of business is but one of the many agencies enlisted against the business of local merchants throughout the country, who are already hard-hit by mail order and chain stores, and that it is conducted directly by the co-operation of the government, but adds to its unfairness.

WHAT IS "MODIFICATION?"

The Literary Digest is conducting an extensive poll designed, apparently, to show popular sentiment on the prohibition question. It is asking three questions.

1—Do you favor the continuance and strict enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment and Volstead law?

2—Do you favor modification of the Volstead law to permit light wines and beers?

3—Do you favor a repeal of the prohibition amendment.

The results of the poll so far tabulated seem to show that the "modification" figures contains the vote needed for a majority for either the wets or dries, which stresses the importance of just what is meant by "modification" and "light wines and beers?"

The probability is that the modificationists include those who want whiskey, more or less occasionally; and the inclusion of "light wines" in the questionnaire raises the question of how many, during open saloon days, actually drank wine of any kind—light or heavy, or light or dark in color?

And, when we flippantly say "light wines and beer" do we not mean light beer as well as wine? If we mean one, or both, how are they to be kept light? as it is to be assumed that they would be sold generally, and without much, if any, restriction. To us, the word "modification" means the opportunity to harden, or darken wines and beer, according to taste and demand, which would mean nullification of prohibition entirely.

No matter what may be the result of the poll being taken, it will leave a big question mark, and fail in settling the question. Even the Literary Digest can not define the word "light". It might give its interpretation of it, but the actual definition would be given by Congress, just as the word "intoxicating" has been defined. In order to have secured anything like a tabulation of definite public sentiment, the second question should have been omitted; and even then, the wets would have voted and the dries would not have gone to that trouble.

The first report of the Digest's poll was a total of 291,558 votes divided as follows:

For Repeal	118,934
For Modification	91,915
For Enforcement	80,739

From the above it will be seen that the combined enforcement and modification votes amounted to 172,654, to 118,934 for repeal. We therefore repeat—What is "modification?"

MAKING A BAD START.

Sometime ago a survey was made of men who had been out of college for a number of years and it was found that a large percentage of them drifted from one position to another for about ten years. At the end of this period they seemed to "find themselves" and their real progress in life then began. One of those who made the survey commented as follows: "We were constantly impressed with their average low earning power in their first ten years after graduation."

It is likely that inquiry among general groups of young men would reveal the same tendency—i. e. that numbers of them waste many years before they finally settle down to the line of work for which they seem best fitted.

One of the worst forms of waste of time is to follow a profession or trade for which you are unfitted.

The writer's attention recently was called to the story of a successful lawyer who began studying law at the age of 41. He had wasted fully twenty years before he finally went into his natural profession.

Almost every young person early in life has a definite idea of the line of endeavor they wish to follow. As a rule, these aspirations are the result of natural aptitude for the work desired. Too often parental interference, financial limitations, lack of educational background or some other circumstances of life make it seem impossible for the young person to carry out his desires. In most of such cases this means a serious waste of time. Years go by before the young man or young woman finally gets around to the type of work for which nature seemed to have fitted them.

Let us remember that herein lies a great thrift lesson. What could be a more serious form of waste than to spend years in a type of employment that does not harmonize with one's ambitions? Seldom, if ever, is real progress made by those who do not love their work and love of work can spring only from a natural aptitude for the tasks being performed.

If you have a worthy ambition for some particular line of work and are spending your years in some other form of employment, you are wasting time and opportunity. There can be no complete concentration and efficiency of effort where one has no heart for one's work. The ingenuity, zest and indomitable determination necessary to great success come only to those who are performing a service which they love and for which they were created by nature.—S. W. Straus.

RESTRICTION OF ALIENS AIDS OTHER COUNTRIES.

Washington, D. C.—One of the points contended against the restriction of immigration from countries of the Western Hemisphere has been that such a policy is likely to cause unfriendly relations between those countries and the United States. Statistics, recently issued by the Labor Department, indicate that such legislation would be as desirable for many of those countries as for the United States.

It was stated that a number of countries are losing valuable citizens, native born, who emigrate to the United States, while desirable citizens of the United States do not in proportionate numbers move to those countries. In certain cases these countries are underpopulated and can ill afford to lose any considerable number of the inhabitants, especially in view of the fact that they have, in many instances, erected immigration barriers of their own, about as strict as those of this country, which discourage immigration to those countries, and consequent growth of population.

Canada was cited as an instance. In the last fiscal year 50,000 native-born citizens of Canada and Newfoundland came to the United States to reside permanently, it was stated but only 15,481 native Americans went to Canada to live during the same period.

The figures are more significant when it is considered that Canada has a population of about 9,000,000 as compared with 120,000,000 for the United States. Canada is, therefore, losing a much greater percentage of the desirable native stock than is the United States.

Since Canada has been conducting an extensive campaign, and an expensive one, both here and in the British Isles, with a view to gaining more colonists, it would appear that any restrictive immigration legislation passed by this country which would tend to discourage the removal of Canadian citizens to the United States would be desirable from the Canadian point of view, it was stated. Several other countries of this hemisphere should look favorably on such legislation for similar reasons.

IMPORTANCE OF SPELLING.

"Spelling bees"—commonly designated as "old-fashioned"—are coming back into their own in some parts of the country and with all ages. Properly enough, newspapers are giving them space and organizations dedicated to serious aims are sponsoring them. Revival of these competitions between spellers reflects a revival of public interest in spelling, which, along with the three R's, has been somewhat neglected of late, according to a popular suspicion.

When business men criticize the public schools, colleges and commercial schools their criticisms are usually directed against the poor spelling of the products of these institutions of learning. And yet a great many successful business and professional men would be painfully embarrassed in the composition of their correspondence if competent stenographers were not available and a great many of the latter would be handicapped if a copy of Webster were not constantly at hand.

Those older heads who pride themselves on their spelling powers and invite challengers from the younger generation to "spell them down" may be indulging in their vanity without warrant, just as the "little red school house" once laid false claims to superiority over city schools. But the misspelled words of yesterday do not excuse the present epidemic of bad spelling.—Frederick News.

"Ornery" Long Employed To Express Contempt

"Ornery" and "onery" are corrupted forms of "ordinary." They are dialect or colloquial terms meaning insignificant, low, mean, contemptible, and they express a higher degree of contempt and disapprobation than "ordinary" does. "Ornary" as a contraction of "ordinary" was a common provincialism in England in the time of the Stuarts, although it is now nearly obsolete. We find the phrase "upon ornary time," in the Easthampton records as late as 1679. In Ireland and the United States this form persists in the still more corrupted forms or "ornery" and "onery," which were brought to the American colonies and perpetuated largely by Irish and Scotch-Irish immigrants, who settled in the South and West. This explains the fact that "ornery" and "onery" are generally regarded as southernisms or westernisms. In 1830 the New York Constellation published the following as a southern expression: "You ornery fellow! Do you pretend to call me to account for my language?"—Pathfinder Magazine.

Got Something From Nothing

The resourcefulness of the archeological explorer enables him to do some wonderful things in the field that savor almost of the magical. Mr. Woolley, working at Ur of the Chaldees, for instance had his attention called to the presence of two small and cleanly cut holes in the ground which were so very much alike that he thought they might mean something. So the work of excavation in that particular spot was halted while a thin mixture of plaster of paris was made and this was poured into the holes and allowed to set. When the cast was finally uncovered it was found that they had secured the lines of a Sumerian harp which had been shaped of wood which had long since decayed and disappeared. The cast was perfect in all its details and comprised a valuable specimen.

Chevrolet announces

A NEW SERVICE POLICY

The Chevrolet Motor Company and its dealers are pleased to announce a new service policy—one of the most liberal ever offered on a low-priced automobile.

Put into force as a written agreement given to the purchaser by the Chevrolet dealer when the car is delivered—it offers the following provisions:

- 1 Every Chevrolet owner receives his car from the dealer in perfect condition—thoroughly lubricated, properly adjusted, and ready to operate efficiently from the first mile of ownership.
- 2 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection and adjustment of his car at the end of the first 500 miles of usage.
- 3 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection of his car every 1000 miles thereafter, so long as the car is in operation.
- 4 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free replacement of any part which may prove defective in workmanship or material, within the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty. This includes both parts and labor.
- 5 Provision number 4 will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States. As a result, the Chevrolet owner may travel to any part of the country, with assurance that the guarantee on materials and workmanship will remain in force.

This new policy constitutes proof of Chevrolet's high quality—for such liberal provisions could only be made in connection with a car built of fine materials to exacting standards of workmanship.

Back of this policy, and assuring its successful operation, is one of the most complete and efficient service organizations in the world.

There are more than 10,000 Authorized Chevrolet Dealer Service Stations in the United States alone. Each employs skilled mechanics thoroughly trained at Chevrolet Service Schools. Each has specially designed tools and machinery developed exclusively for Chevrolet service work. And each has on hand, at all times, an adequate stock of genuine Chevrolet replacement parts.

Chevrolet's flat-rate charges, including both parts and labor, are the lowest in the industry on many service operations!

In considering the purchase of a low-priced automobile, think what this service means—in terms of lasting satisfaction, as well as in increased economy.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC.

Topic:—What Barriers Keep People Away From Christ?
Mark 10:17-22; Luke 14:16-20.

Barriers that keep back:
Too absorbed in "things."
Prizing pleasure above joy.

Mistaken ideas about Christianity.
Half-hearted attempts that failed.
Slaves to appetites or habits.
Imaginary intellectual difficulties.
Indifference.

LIGHTS FROM TOPIC TEXTS.
Mark 10:17-22—A self-righteous money lover rejects Christ.

Luke 14:16, 17—A sheaf of poor excuses will sound weak at the judgment.

Luke 14:18—We are invited and notified. Are we going?

Luke 14:19—Open before Christ is a poor bargain.

Luke 14:20—Every wedding needs Christ's blessing.

Cowardice a Hurdle.—The back of moral courage to stand for right things, keeps many away from Christ.

A forest ranger had a number of men under him fighting a forest fire. Some of them were eager to get to the fighting. A few shrunk back, looking for a chance to sneak away, when they caught the glare and roar of the flames. The world is on fire with crime and corruption and sensuality and some do not want to stand up and fight them under Christ.

Sin Tastes Sweet to many people. They are like swine feasting in a pile of rotten fruit. In a section where they have "hog-callers," one of them was making his loudest efforts to bring the hogs home to their feed of corn. But they would not come.

When search for the reason was made, they were found feeding ravenously on an overturned load of garbage. Men want divorces, drink, jazz, prizefights, and will not hear Christ's call.

Bubbles for Bread—Many people cannot get rid of the exploded mistake that there is more enjoyment in doing as one pleases than as God pleases. They are like the man who thinks he is getting bread in beer.

They mistake bubbles for bread. The real joy of life has its base, peace—peace with God, one's self, and others.

Staggering at Miracles.—Some people shy at Christianity because of the miracles. They cannot deny that Christianity is, and that some way, it has grown from two disciples who left their nets and followed Jesus, to a multitude estimated by statisticians at 685,000,000 in the world. That is the great miracle of all that can't be gainsaid. Why squibble about lesser ones?

Lands that have Received Christ.—

Some one has said that the best answer to those who doubt that Christianity is a blessing is the map of the world. The lands that have received Christ most fully are the most blessed, and those who know nothing of Him have the least comfort and good.

Broadcasting Uses Big Wire Network

Chains Use 30,000 Miles of Circuits Daily; Require 300 Trained Men

Interconnecting radio stations by telephone lines for the simultaneous broadcasting of programs has now reached such proportions that well over 30,000 miles of circuits are in use

"Here they are." Amos 'n' Andy, radio entertainers extraordinary of the National Broadcasting Company.

In the United States. Transcontinental broadcasting by means of such telephone wire lines is now a daily occurrence.

Chain radio systems in this country are operated on telephone circuits, which engineers of the telephone company say must have transmission characteristics materially different from message telephone circuits

The manner in which these lines are tested and controlled requires an elaborate network of telegraph circuits which now aggregate more than 40,000 miles of wire. A corps of 300 specially trained men are required to operate these broadcasting circuits.

The SANDMAN STORY

THE PROUD BIRD

HIS beak was long and he had a fat body but his legs, or rather his long feet, were very thin.

"My picture was sent to a little boy the other day," he said.

"Ah, yes," he continued, "I am so handsome a creature that they send my picture about on post cards, anyway at all."

"People so love to see me! For I'm a handsome, colorful bird, as you can see. My beak is strong, and I've a good, powerful voice. My picture makes a better pet than I do."

"I wouldn't be a very good pet. I might become nippy. That is a word I thought of myself. Pretty bright of the Amazon Tiger Bittern."

"Of course, I praise myself, too. Well, anyway, when I say nippy I mean that I might nip at some one

"My Beak Is Strong, and I've a Good, Powerful Voice."

just as an animal snaps at some one, and he is called snappy."

"We all understand," shrieked the other birds.

A great many new ones had been added to the zoo that year, and though there had been new animals, and new reptiles, sea lions and lots of creatures brought to the zoo, there had been more birds than any others. "Of course," the Amazon Tiger Bittern continued, "I'm not bad like those vulture creatures."

"There is the South American condor. He is perfectly huge and has no kindness."

"He will go after a poor, weary old animal and eat him. He is of the vulture family, you know, and his beak is very strong and hooked so that he can tear food into small bits easily.

"He has a bald head and he looks old because he has so many wrinkles, but he isn't so old, and he is very strong."

"He can fly so high, and he has wonderful eyesight, and he also has some friends."

"That is because he is cleanly, and he likes to go about cleaning up places and eating all the old trash."

"Of course, all creatures must have some good points."

"The children are coming from school now to see us."

"Ah, how they rush to see us. They're so pleased to get away from lessons for a while and see really interesting creatures such as we are."

"They will call on the deer and the zebu family, and the monkeys, and they will come to see us, too."

"Sometimes they will not close their mouths all the time they are here."

"For one thing they will be so amazed at the wonderful ways we act and also at our marvelous looks, and then they will talk so much to each other and to us."

"They will say:

"See, isn't he a beauty? Oh, what a magnificent creature!"

"They will mean me, of course," the Amazon Tiger Bittern explained.

"And they will say:

"Well, he alone is worth coming here to see."

"Ah, they are in front of me now."

"Well, I must say that it was a visitor who sent my picture away, and Billie Brownie brought the news that the little boy sent a picture of himself to the visitor who had sent my postcard picture."

"It was a most lovely picture of the little boy, his mother said, so Billie Brownie told me."

"You see, I get my news in rather a round-about fashion."

"But the little boy didn't say so about himself. Billie said he was very, very handsome, with bright eyes and such a bright, beautiful expression, and that he looked like a real boy, and very handsome, besides."

"It seems to me the boy would have praised himself up, too, but he didn't. Well, I'm glad he got my picture. If he is handsome he can appreciate a picture of a handsome creature."

But the other birds were cackling with laughter as the children appeared.

For no one could talk more or boast more than the Amazon Tiger Bittern had just been doing—all for his own benefit and pleasure.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

CATS SUCKING BREATH

THERE is a superstition—common all over the country and one believed in probably by the majority of people, with at least a half-belief—that a cat should not be left alone with a sleeping infant as the cat is liable to kill the child by "sucking its breath." This is evidently an echo of the story of Isis and the misfortunes which happened to infants with whom she was brought into contact during her search for the body of Osiris.

The cat was a moon-animal. Isis was the great moon-goddess of the Egyptians. The cat and Isis were intimately associated and Pliny says that the moon may fairly be considered "as the planet of breath"—and the breath of the ancient was the life and the soul as well. Now while searching for the body of Osiris Isis came to the house of a widow who denied her admission. A scorpion crept into the house and killed the widow's child. Isis gave birth to Horus and left him in a swamp where she afterwards found him dead. Thoth restored him to life. A king and queen took Isis in and set her to nurse the child. But they caught her burning away all that was mortal of the infant in order to make him immortal.

Considering these unfortunate occurrences with regard to infants in the career of the moon-goddess, that the cat is her creature and that the moon is "the planet of breath" the modern superstition that cats suck the breath of sleeping infants will be seen to have ancient and legitimate pedigree.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"JACK ROBINSON"

OPINION differs as to the proper duration of a social call. "Anywhere from ten minutes to a half hour," says the woman who has a social secretary and whose daily job is "calling," to the tune of tea and wafers. "All afternoon," says the bourgeoisie, who takes along her knitting and sits down to coffee and cake. "And then," say some, "it all depends upon the call. On some occasions and with different people we stay longer than others."

But Jack Robinson was a man whose calls never varied. He never stayed long enough to wear out his welcome. In fact, hardly had he been announced, hardly had the servant who admitted him spoken aloud his name than he was gone.

So, as you see, "before you can say Jack Robinson" has no reference to the time it takes to say it. "As long as you can see Jack Robinson" would be more in order with its origin and significance.

BURNS LIGHT FOR SLAIN DAUGHTER

Mother's Health Breaks Under Long Vigil.

New York.—The light that has glimmered for nearly five years in memory of Florence Kane, who was murdered in 1925, will soon be extinguished, for the Kane home in Brooklyn is to be sold.

For 1,616 nights, now, Mrs. Lydia Kane has seen to it that the candle burned for her dead daughter. At dusk every day Mrs. Kane walks up a short flight of stairs to the second floor of the pretty frame cottage and lights the beacon, as she calls it. She has sworn to keep it burning in the girl's room each night until the slayer is captured and punished.

But the police have never succeeded in penetrating the mystery of the death of Florence Kane.

Five-Year Mystery.

The murderer has never been apprehended and no new clues have been unearthed in nearly five years.

The long strain of waiting has told on Mother Kane. Day in and day out she sits by the window. And at night she ascends to Florence's room and lights the candle. In snow and in cold, in heat and in rain, she waits for news and prays and cries.

Relatives say her health has broken down, and upon advice of physicians have decided to sell the house and take Mother Kane away from the many reminders of the tragedy.

On the morning of May 29, 1925, a milkman, passing through East New York avenue on his route, found the body of the twenty-four-year-old girl, a sister of Detective James Kane of the Atlantic avenue station.

The spot where the body was found is a lot 200 feet from the girl's home and on the boundary line of the Liberty and Atlantic avenue precincts. Detectives from both station houses were rushed to the scene, among them the brother.

Many Suspects Taken.

Detective Kane made the identification of his sister. The murder was carried out with maniacal boldness. During their investigation the police learned that the girl had attended a theater in Manhattan and left some girl friends at midnight on the Utica avenue station of the I. R. T. line. She then started to walk home.

When she was within a couple of hundred feet of home she was attacked, apparently by a maniac, and killed. The slayer had torn loose a gold crucifix and a gold religious medal from the chain by which they hung around the girl's neck and carefully arranged them on her back. All the man took away with him was the gold chain, first communion rosary, and the green silk underskirt that Miss Kane wore.

No crime in the history of the police department stirred the police to more feverish activity than this, the brother of the dead girl being one of the best known and liked of the younger detectives in the department. The police never got very far in learning who the slayer was.

Many suspects were brought in and grilled by the detectives, but had to be released for the lack of evidence. Finally the case became a "brick wall" to the police. It ran along and soon was forgotten by the people of Brooklyn.

Claims to Eliminate Auto Exhaust Fumes

Baltimore.—Dr. J. W. C. Frazier, professor of chemistry of the Johns Hopkins university, has announced the discovery of a means to eliminate carbon monoxide, the deadly fumes of auto exhaust gas which has claimed many victims.

Tests conducted by Doctor Frazier and his assistants have proved that the engine of an auto equipped with the new device may be safely run in a closed garage without the usual accompanying discharge of carbon monoxide or any other dangerous gases.

The Johns Hopkins professor claims that universal equipment of the new safeguard would make asphyxiation impossible.

Carbon monoxide results from incomplete combustion of gasoline in the motor, Doctor Frazier pointed out. His discovery includes the affixing of a catalyst, a substance which completely burns the carbon monoxide, releasing carbon dioxide through the exhaust. The discovery follows a search which has been conducted since early carbon monoxide poisonings led scientists on a quest for a relief measure.

Abandoned Donkeys Are Worry to Madrid

Madrid, Spain.—New York has the problem of disposing of abandoned automobiles, but in Madrid it's abandoned donkeys. Every once in a while a little donkey is found on the streets, either lost, or abandoned by an owner who could no longer afford to feed the animal.

The difference between an abandoned automobile and an abandoned donkey is that the automobile occupies space, but eats nothing, while the donkey does both. The city of Madrid spends quite a bit of money every time a donkey is found on its hands and is therefore anxious to get rid of him as soon as possible. Auction sales are announced, but frequently no buyers are immediately found.

They must depend on feed for so many things! They get them all in Purina Chick Startena (mash) or Purina All-Mash Startena Chow... 12 different ingredients in every thimbleful. Cod-liver oil... dried buttermilk... alfalfa flour... granulated meat... these and eight others are there!

These 12 ingredients... think how carefully they must be mixed to make every thimbleful alike. Purina Startena and All-Mash Startena Chow are mixed over and over again... 960 times just to be thorough! You will find the same care taken with Baby Chick Chow (scratch)... to be fed with Startena until your chicks are six weeks old... and with Purina Growena (mash) and Purina Intermediate Hen Chow (scratch)... to be fed from then on until the pullets are laying at 16 weeks. How little feed a chick eats... just one thimbleful a day... yet how important it is... how much depends on it... the chick's very life... its growth... what the pullets will do for you next fall and winter when eggs are sure to be worth good money. You can afford to feed only the best... Purina Poultry Chows.

Lesson for March 23

JESUS TEACHING AND HEALING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:53-16:12.
(Print Matthew 15:21-31)

GOLDEN TEXT—Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' Kindness to a Stranger.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Kindness to a Stranger.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Faith that Wins.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Faith Tested and Triumphant.

The material embraced in this section of Scripture is too abundant to attempt to cover in one lesson, therefore selection should be made in keeping with the lesson topic.

I. Without Honor in One's Own Country (13:54-58).

Jesus shared the common fate of men—unacknowledged in His own country. Even His own brothers did not believe on Him till after His resurrection (John 7:3-8; cf. Acts 1:14). Familiarity has a paralyzing effect, and at times breeds contempt. Because of unbelief only a limited work could be done there.

II. Jesus Healing the Multitude (14:13, 14).

1. He retired to the desert (v. 13). The news of the cruel death of John the Baptist brought grief to the Master's heart, and He withdrew to a place of quietness to commune with His Father. The best thing to do in time of sorrow is to flee into the presence of God. Jesus accepted John's death as typical of His own.

2. Followed by the people (v. 13). He could not be concealed. The peoples' interest was such that they followed Him on foot. Where Jesus is, the multitude gathers.

3. Jesus healing the sick (v. 14).

Although the rulers had broken with Him, He did not abandon His work. He continued to preach and work for the good of those who would hear. Though desperate and hopeless cases were brought to Him, nothing was found too hard for Him. The peoples' great need excited His sympathy. He is just the same today.

III. Jesus Healing the Daughter of the Woman at Canaan (Matt. 15:21-31).

The first twenty-one verses of this chapter should be considered in connection with this topic. The force of the lesson can only be seen in contrast with the failure of the people. Verses 1-20 represent the apostasy of Israel and her rejection of the Savior. In sharp contrast, we see in the healing of this woman, salvation typically going forth to the Gentiles.

1. The mother's awful distress (vv. 21, 22).

Her daughter was grievously vexed with a devil. The sufferings of the mother were perhaps as intense as those of the child. This Gentile woman had doubtless heard of the fame of Jesus. His power to heal had come to her notice and many times she longed for Him to come her way that her daughter might be healed. Now that He was in her neighborhood she came straightway to Him. Let parents be encouraged to bring their children to Jesus, even though they be demon-possessed.

2. The woman's fervent appeal for help (vv. 22-25).

She fell at His feet and pled for mercy. She besought Him to cast the devil out. Her appeal may be considered as a model prayer.

(1) She was sincere and earnest.
(2) The prayer was brief and definite.
(3) It was personal and humble.
(4) It was believing and persistent.

3. The woman's faith rewarded (vv. 26-28).

(1) The Lord's apparent refusal (v. 23). He answered her not a word. The reason for His silence was that He was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. This woman was a stranger to the Covenant people. Her appeal was on the wrong basis. She addressed Him as the Son of David, which only a child of the kingdom had a right to do. She must come in the right way. (2) The woman's quick response (vv. 25-27). As soon as she perceived the difficulty, she worshiped Him as Lord and cried for help. While only the Israelite could approach Him as the Son of David, all could come to Him and own Him as Lord. She willingly took her place as a Gentile "dog," recognizing that salvation is of the Jews. (3) The glorious issue of her faith (v. 28). She received more than she asked. Her daughter was healed at once and the instruction she received was worth much to her. She goes down in history with the Savior's commendation of her faith.

Life Needs a Good Pattern

Remember how swiftly the shuttle flies and how a broken thread may mar the fabric. Remember that without a good pattern, all weaving is to no purpose; take much thought, therefore, as to the pattern of a good life and be greatly instructed by that life which is the exemplar for us all.—Gaius Glenn Atkins.

Love, Faith, Obedience

Love, faith, and obedience are sides of the same prism.—McDonaid.

"Shieling of My Sorrow"

Typical Highland Legend

The following legend is associated with Aueda No Dhubbach, the sloping ground lying to the east of Loch Drom, on the way from Garve to Ullapool, in the highlands of Scotland. Three young men from Strathmore were returning home from the low country where they had been working all summer and autumn. They reached Loch Drom in the evening, and as the night was stormy, they decided to stay in a shieling that was near. One of the men was a piper, and had his pipes with him, and to pass the time away he struck up a tune on the pipes, while his two companions danced to the music. One of the lads said it would be fine if they had some lassies to dance with. He had hardly spoken when three women entered the shieling, and joined the dancing. The dancing and playing went on for a long time, and at last the two men sat down on the seat, and the women seated themselves beside them. The piper, feeling all was not right, looked at his two companions, and was horrified to see them dead. Slipping out, leaving his plaid with the women, he ran for his life as fast as he could. The women followed, and continued to pursue the poor, exhausted piper until dawn, when he came in sight of Fasgriach, and escaped from his evil pursuers. When the mothers of the dead men arrived at the shieling the next day they bewailed their loss, repeating the words "Aueda No Dhubbach"—"Shieling of my sorrow."—Montreal Family Herald.

Golf, in Its Infancy,

Looked On as Puerile

It is rather curious, in view of the extraordinary vogue of golf in this country, to reflect that the few American and English visitors to St. Andrews in the '60s and '70s were simply dumbfounded at the sight of grown men hitting little white balls and playing a game with extraordinary gravity. These visitors would have viewed with pitying contempt any prophet who had told them that the United States and England would soon be spending millions on golf and that more adults would be playing it than had ever played any game since the first one was invented. Even at the beginning of this century, when golf was the game of the rich man, few could ever have believed that the golf links at St. Andrews were to make the old town one of the best known places in the world.—Exchange.

Embarrassing Moment

The most embarrassed man in town unquestionably was in the Hotel Commodore the other day. A sophomore at Columbia university had a date with a girl friend. He was to meet her in the lobby at noon—"sharp." He arrived late. Looking about the lobby he saw her sitting not far from him. He conceived the idea that it would be ultra clever if he sneaked up behind her and put his hands over her eyes in a "Give a guess! You're right! Here I am!" fashion.

He tried it. The girl fought desperately to free herself and finally succeeded. Yes, you've guessed it. She was the wrong girl.—New York Sun.

Not So Fast

The train was pulling out of the platform. The old gentleman was just settling down comfortably. Suddenly the door burst open, and a young man tumbled into the carriage and seated himself, panting and puffing, opposite the old gentleman.

The latter looked on with obvious disapproval.

"You must be very unfit, young man," he said, after a while. "Why, when I was young I never panted and got out of breath like that after a run."

"Perhaps not," returned the other, regaining his breath a little. "But I missed this train at the last station."

Training Pedagogues

The first genuine effort for the professional training of teachers undertaken in the world was undoubtedly by Jean Baptiste de La Salle at Rheims in 1681. At the beginning of the Nineteenth century the development of institutions to train teachers took on a new life and the Prussian system of normal schools was firmly established. Six normal schools had been organized in that country. It was about this time that the subject of preparing teachers for public schools began to receive attention in America.

England's Largest Home

Wentworth Woodhouse, Lord Fitzwilliam's "stately home," is the largest private house in England. So vast is it that even its owners have failed to explore all its recesses. Lord Fitzwilliam's immediate predecessor one day took a notion to explore the basements, and wandered without meeting a soul. At last he came upon a small boy, and asked him who he was. "I'm the chap," was the answer, "what does all the work that is done in this house. Who are you?"

Letter Hunt

"My wife is an ardent pursuer of new vitamins," said the husband of the food faddist. "She has discovered F's in potatoes, O's in doughnuts, Q's in pigtails and X in hash. But she's still hunting for V's in trousers pockets."—PatHunder Magazine.

Oh, little man with big, blue eyes
That now are filled with tears,
I wish that you could realize,
Despite your tender years,
That Daddy does not like to cause
Your carefree heart such pain—
And yet, he must enforce those laws
That govern and restrain.

I wish there were some other way
For little boys to live—
That you might go about your play
And never need to give
Consideration to the rights
Of others; I'd be glad
If your instinctive appetites
Could rule, instead of Dad.

But wisdom says that boys must grow
To be so kind and good
That folks will all be glad to know
They're in the neighborhood;
So, that's why Daddy wants to see
His precious little kin
A better citizen than he Himself has ever been!

Lenten Recipes for Fish to Give Appetite a Fillip

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

ONE of the signs of a good cook is her ability to keep appetites alert; and the advent of Lent, with its opportunity to feature a variety of fish courses, gives many a housewife the chance to establish a new reputation for cookery. Fish cocktails, for instance, are very simple to prepare and offer an appreciated change from the familiar fruit-cup. For an evening party, halibut a la king is both unusual and delightful. It is so entirely out of the ordinary that the hostess may feel assured it will not be forgotten by her guests.

Creamed tuna fish on toast is another dish that the children especially will welcome; and it gives mother a splendid opportunity, too, for introducing more milk into their diet.

The full, rich flavor of ripe tomatoes always is an excellent addition to fish courses, and the old Creole recipe for halibut quoted below, will enable many a housewife to win new culinary laurels this season. Try some of these recipes yourself this week:

Fish and Olive Cocktail in Green Pepper Sauce

Flake one small can tuna fish. Cut ½ cup Stuffed Spanish Olives and 6 red radishes into eighths lengthwise. Mix all ingredients together, chill and moisten with French Dressing or Russian Dressing (Mayonnaise Salad Dressing and Chill Sauce). Serve as a cocktail in halves of small green peppers from which the seeds have been removed.

Halibut a la King

Arrange mounds of finely flaked boiled halibut upon toast and cover with the following sauce: Melt 3 tablespoons butter; fry in it 1 cup fresh mushrooms, broken in pieces, or canned button mushrooms, sliced lengthwise. Add 4 tablespoons flour and ¾ teaspoon salt. Stir until frothy, add 2 cups rich milk, and stir until the sauce boils. Set over hot water. Cream 2 tablespoons butter, add beaten yolks of 2 eggs, ¼ teaspoon onion juice, 1 teaspoon Pure Cider Vinegar, ½ teaspoon paprika and ½ teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce, and stir into the hot mixture.

Continue stirring until the egg is set, then add ¼ cup chopped Stuffed Spanish Olives. Pour sauce over fish and serve.

Creamed Tuna Fish on Toast

Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 2 level tablespoons flour and stir until well blended. Add 1 cup milk and stir constantly until thickened. Season with ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce, 2 tablespoons Tomato Ketchup, and a dash of pepper. Add 1 cup flaked tuna fish and serve on buttered toast.

Halibut Creole

2 pounds halibut; ½ cup Tomato Ketchup; 1 teaspoon onion juice; 2 cups water; 2 tablespoons butter; 2 tablespoons flour; Salt and Pepper to taste. Place Tomato Ketchup, water and onion juice in a pan and heat until boiling. Mix butter and flour together and stir into the sauce. When it boils, season with salt and pepper, and cook for several minutes. Pour boiling water into a deep pan to a depth of one-half inch. Lay fish in it for one minute, skin side down. Remove from water and take off skin. Place in a well buttered pan, and season with salt and pepper. Top with slices of Sweet Gherkins and pour half the tomato sauce over the fish. Bake 30 to 45 minutes, basting with remaining tomato sauce. Serve the fish surrounded with sauce from pan. Garnish with parsley.
