

TANEYTOWN HAS FINE WATER PLANT.

Two Additional Wells and Doubled Pumping Capacity.

Taneytown now has an up-to-date and very efficient water plant, and a most abundant supply of pure artesian well water. Extensive improvements and additions to the plant have been under way for several months, and now it can be said to be finished, with the exception of needed improvements to the drive-way leading to it, and perhaps a little landscape gardening around the plant to add to appearances.

The power house is a brick building 25x45 feet with slate roof and concrete floor. It houses the openings to four wells with a capacity of from 70 to 115 gallons per minute, each with slightly less when all are in operation at one time. Each well has its separate pump. These pumps discharge into a large reservoir adjoining the power house, and from the reservoir the water is pumped into the stand-pipe in the town.

The pump mainly used to keep the stand-pipe filled is a 30 H. P. electric, just installed; but the old White & Middleton 15 H. P. gasoline engine has been reconditioned, and can be used in an emergency for first-class service.

At least 250-gallons per minute can be pumped into the stand-pipe, and Engineer Charles L. Kuhns says he can keep up that supply indefinitely, by having all of the pumps going. A pressure gauge in the building gives a pretty accurate measurement of the quantity of water in the stand-pipe.

When the plant was installed in 1897 there were but two wells and a single pump to the stand-pipe. A dam was built across Piney Creek that was supposed to furnish more water in case of a big fire, the water from the creek first passing through a surface filter before going into the reservoir.

This dam, and filter were not used, and proved to be a disadvantage in case of high water, causing the water in the reservoir to become muddy. The dam has been removed, and with the addition of two new wells there is hardly the likelihood of a scarcity of water at any time.

The stand-pipe and gravity pressure, at first depended on solely in case of fire, is now augmented by the addition of a La France engine that does not depend on gravity pressure, but is aided by it. This, with the chemical apparatus connected with the engine adds immensely to protection against fire.

And, not by any means the least of the advantages of Taneytown's water supply, is the quality of the water itself. It is not only about as pure as water can be, but it is cold, and has the proper quality of softness so much desired for household purposes.

Another and important feature connected with the plant, is that it is municipally owned, is being easily financed, and including the fire equipment is fully twice as efficient as it was when first operated, 33 years ago.

KILLS SELF IN LEAP FROM THE LeGORE BRIDGE.

George R. LeGore, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. LeGore, and chairman of the board of directors of the LeGore Lime Co., at LeGore, Md., committed suicide last Friday by jumping from the LeGore bridge over the Monocacy, near his home. After holding conversation with his mother and other members of his family on Friday morning he drove in his car to the bridge and spoke to several men on the way.

As he did not return home within a reasonable time searching parties were sent out, throughout the day and night, and on Saturday morning his body was found in shallow water in a small dam some distance below the bridge.

His automobile was found near the bridge and in it was a note stating that he "could not stand the pain." It is thought that he jumped from the centre of the bridge about 40 feet to the water. His right arm and left leg were broken from the fall.

Mr. LeGore had been engaged with the lime company for twenty-five years, part of the time on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. He was a member of the Lutheran church, of Woodsboro, and of numerous fraternal and social organizations. Besides his parents he is survived by three sisters; Mrs. J. H. Feiser, of Woodsboro; Mrs. Harold K. Dell, of Baltimore, and Miss Louise, at home; and by four brothers, Walter C. LeGore, Woodsboro; Harry LeGore, LeGore; James A. LeGore, Birmingham, Ala.; and Bruce LeGore, in Washington.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon, interment being made in Woodsboro cemetery.

FINED FOR ASSAULT.

Charles W. Shelton was found guilty, on Tuesday, before Justice Benson, of Westminster, on March 24, for assaulting Jesse P. Weybright, of Detour, with a hatchet, while employed on Mr. Weybright's farm, and was fined $25.00 and costs. A second charge of assault at the Weybright home, in Detour, on April 10, represented no actual personal violence, because of neighbors interfering. Shelton was committed to jail for 90 days on the charge.

Ignorance and prosperity make men bold and self-confident.

THE OLD SPELLING BEE

Some Recollections of an Old-time School Feature.

The chief recollection the editor of The Record has as to old-time "spelling bees" is as an alumnus of the old Priestland school, located between Linwood and McKinstrys—now abandoned. This school in its time was largely attended and many of its students have made good in numerous ways; but only a few of the old-timers are still living. It had as teachers men recognized for their fine scholarship and teaching ability, who would so rank even now. This was back in the time when there were very few lady teachers, and the men teachers were not of the school-boy class.

These "bees" were highly regarded as part of the solid foundation of an education, as a good speller meant then, as now, one having a wide acquaintance with words and their meaning, for a close study of the dictionary was essential. Of course, there were spelling classes in the regular curriculum of the schools, but the orthographic marathons usually held every Friday afternoon, were highly regarded, and furnished variety and entertainment as well.

We recall the old Sargent speller with the "blue back" such as was used at the big-bug contest in Washington, recently, but the standard authority used was Webster's Primary Dictionary, because it contained the "definitions" so frequently called for, in cases in which words were pronounced alike but spelled differently, and sometimes merely for the purpose of gaining time for deliberation before attempting to spell a word.

The crack spellers—of which there was a goodly number in every school often knew the Dictionary so well that being "spelled down" was more a matter of temporary confusion than of lack of know-how. Sometimes one school spelled against another, but the most of the matches were made up in one school by choosing sides by two leaders. The rule was for the contestants to be arranged in two rows facing each other, with the leaders at the head. Sometimes the spelling was back and forth between the two rows, but more frequently the contests were commenced by spellers at the head, or foot, of the rows, and working toward the other end, only two being engaged at a time. The objection to the plan was that it sometimes happened that a side was defeated before all on the opposite side had been called on to take part.

It was also considered a big advantage to have the "first choice" as that meant getting the first choice of the spellers, and often pretty sure victory for the side. The teacher always had the choice of the letter in which the spelling was to commence, and there was some chance of his being partial to certain contestants on account of giving them easy words; but as we recall it, the "bees" were fairly conducted and a good spirit prevailed with the keen rivalry, even when "our side" was defeated.

Some of the "bees" were held at night, when one school would spell against another and the house would be filled. In those days school buildings were not equipped with lights, and very frequently ordinary candles were used, set in a hole bored in a square block; and sometimes a little melted tallow was allowed to drop on a convenient flat surface, and the butt of the candle quickly placed on the soft tallow before it hardened. Necessity was the mother of invention.

Whether it was from choice, or mere timidity, the girls were not as a rule as good spellers as the boys, though in general scholarship they ranked up about equally, except in mathematics; yet we do recall one girl in the Union Bridge school who caused the writer to go down to defeat after a long contest—and it was considered something of a disgrace to be beaten by a girl.

Our modern school methods may be superior to those of the '60's. Certainly school equipment is far superior, and branches are taught that were not thought of in the old-time schools but we doubt very much whether the foundations are as solid now, as then, and whether some of our present practices might not more profitably be taken up by a revival of the "spelling bee."

SHERIFF FOWBLE TOOK FOUR.

Four persons were arrested Saturday night in Hampstead on a charge of drunk and disorderly conduct following an accident in which a man who gave his name as Brown, of Westminster, was struck by an automobile near the Hampstead dance hall.

Brown, witnesses said, had been attending the dance, and walked into the path of the car being driven by John Fourman, Arcadia.

The injured man was taken to the office of a Hampstead physician as fourteen stitches were required to close a gash in his head. Brown, it is said is a married man and about twenty-five years of age.

Following the accident the Carroll County sheriff was called and arrested four persons on charges of being drunk and disorderly. They were arrested at the scene of the accident.

FIRST CENSUS RETURNS.

Among the first returns from the census are from Middletown and Emmitsburg, Md. Middletown has a population of 818 as against 794 in 1920; Emmitsburg has a population of 1033 as against 940 in 1920. Precinct No. 5 Westminster reported 604.

MEMORIAL BOULEVARD HEARING NEXT WEEK.

Would Provide for a Survey of the Frederick Route.

A letter to the Editor of The Record from Senator Goldsborough, April 16th, says:

"The Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry will give a hearing on Senate Joint Resolution 150, on Tuesday, April 22nd, at 10:30 o'clock, A. M., at the Committee room 324 Senate Office building.

I am pleased to advise you of this hearing, as I assume from your previously expressed interest that you would like to be present."

This Joint Resolution relates to the proposed Washington-Gettysburg Memorial highway, as follows:

"Joint Resolution for examination and survey as to the probable cost of improving and widening the present Lincoln Highway feeder route between the District of Columbia and Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, with the ultimate objective of its designation as a National Memorial Boulevard.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to cause a preliminary examination and survey to be made as to the probable cost of improving and widening to a minimum width of one hundred feet, with an ultimate objective of its designation as a Lincoln Memorial Boulevard, the present Lincoln Highway feeder route between the District of Columbia and Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, via Rockville, Maryland, and Frederick, Maryland, as now traversed by Federal Highways Numbered 240 and 15, and to submit a report thereon to the Senate as soon as practicable. The cost of such examination and survey shall be paid from appropriations heretofore or hereafter made for examinations and surveys."

It will be observed that this proposed route is not the direct route that would pass through Carroll County, but would use instead, already improved and more circuitous roads through Frederick county.

SPRAY TREES AT ONCE.

All apple growers of the State are advised, if they have not done so already, to spray their trees with concentrated lime sulphur within the next week since the cold rains of the past ten days have ripened a large portion of the destructive mould-like plant or fungi of the apple scab and the orchards of the State are rapidly becoming infested, it is announced by Dr. R. A. Jehle, specialist in plant pathology for the University of Maryland Extension Service. The spring thus far has been an exceptionally wet and cold one, just the type of weather that apple scab develops best, it is said. Therefore, the trees should be sprayed before and after the fruit buds separate. The spray is made by mixing 2½ gallons of concentrated lime sulphur (32degrees Baume) with three pounds of arsenate of lead in 100 gallons of water.

The reason, according to County Agent Burns, is that cold, wet rains increase spread of the disease because the spores, which are the reproductive part of the apple scab fungus and which are similar to seeds in other plants, are produced in ball-shaped bodies that absorb water very readily. When they do, they burst open at the top and the spores, which are extremely small, shoot into the air and are carried by air currents to the young leaves and fruit buds with resultant infestation of the tree. Hence, spraying at this time with concentrated lime sulphur is strongly advised.

If you have not a spray schedule, you may do so by writing your County Agent or calling at his office, Times Building, Westminster, Md.

THE LUTHERAN COLLEGE FOR WOMEN.

Plans for a national college for women under the supervision of the United Lutheran Church were announced in Philadelphia, Monday night by the Rev. Dr. J. Henry Harms, president of the Philadelphia Federation of Churches and president of the Board of Trustees of the new college.

The institution, to be known as Grace College, will be located in Maryland, just outside Washington on the Washington-Gettysburg Highway Dr. Harms said. Students of any religious belief will be welcome.

Assets of $235,000 and pledges of $50,000 have been obtained toward the initial founding fund of $1,600,000, according to E. Clarence Miller, treasurer. The Board of Trustees has chosen Miss Jessie Truman, of Norwalk, Conn., a well-known educator, to be dean of the college.

Grace College will be the first Lutheran college for women Dr. Harms pointed out, although there are many for men and several co-educational.

The deed for a 189-acre tract of ground has already been signed by the Board of Trustees. Plans have been drawn for a group of Georgian buildings, including an administration building with library and auditorium, a dining hall, dormitories and gymnasium.

The man who always fights for his narrow aims, is bound to lack true friends; and while he may at times succeed in his efforts, it is usually a success that costs himself, or somebody, too much.

LARGE STILL CAPTURED

Located near Frizellburg, on the Uniontown Road.

Sheriff George C. Fowble, State's Attorney Theo. F. Brown, and deputies Cramer and Warehime, acting on a private tip, located an extensive distilling plant at a property along the Frizellburg and Uniontown road, on Tuesday night. The raid comprised a 100-gallon capacity still and equipment and about 400 gallons of distilled liquor, a large quantity of fancy bottle labels, 34 new 10 gallon kegs of liquor ready for shipment, many empty containers and two cases of empty pint bottles.

The six-room dwelling on the property showed signs of very recent occupancy, as though warning had been received and a quick get-away made. The ownership and recent occupancy of the dwelling seems unknown, the last taxes having been paid in 1928 by John Schweinhart, of Baltimore. The dwelling was equipped with electricity, water and bath, and contained some furniture. The property was once owned by the late Edw. Harver.

It appears that the authorities had a tip a week previous, and delayed acting on it with the hope of catching the boot-leggers, but in this they were disappointed. However, a number of clues are left to be worked out, and later developments may be more profitable.

FOREST FIRE DANGER.

The urgent necessity for extra caution at this season of the year to prevent fires getting out of control in the woods was stressed by Major R. Y. Stuart, Chief of the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, in a statement issued, says:

"This is perhaps the most dangerous fire season of the year in this region," Major Stuart said. "Dried out rapidly by the frequent strong winds, the litter of the forest floor is extremely inflammable, and once a blaze starts it may quickly get beyond control.

"The situation calls for the utmost care as to smoking in the woods, and for every precaution when burning trash and rubbish. Smokers and brush burners are responsible for nearly 50 percent of the forest fires in Maryland and Virginia each year. Rubbish should never be burned when the wind is strong, and at any time it should be done only in cleared spaces, with help enough to prevent the fire getting away. Landowners contemplating grass and brush burning should consider seriously whether the damage to tree growth and the risk to other property does not outweigh any possible benefits.

"State forestry officials are doing all they can to prevent and to suppress forest fires, but the co-operation of every landowner and every person frequenting wooded areas is necessary if fires are to be held in check."

DAIRYMEN AND BUTTER SUBSTITUTES.

Farmers urged to use real Butter and benefit Dairying.

Maryland farmers, along with those of other parts of the country, are at the present time thoroughly aroused over the present low price of butterfat, a condition which has been brought about by the enormous sales of oleomargarine and other butter substitutes which are made largely from vegetable oils imported duty free from other countries.

As a result of this chaotic situation in the dairy industry in the country, for which the farmers themselves are said to be largely to blame for the reason that instead of buying pure butter for their own use, they buy butter substitutes, a nation-wide campaign is being waged with the slogan: "Eat More Butter and Less Butter Substitutes."

In Maryland the situation has become so acute and the price of butterfat has dropped so low as to demand careful attention of officials of the Maryland State Dairymen's Association.

"We are told," says Mr. I. W. Heaps, Secretary of the Association, "that there have been some 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 pounds more butter in cold storage during the past few months than there were during the same period a year ago. This condition has brought about a destructive decrease in the price of butter which is approximately twelve to fifteen cents per pound lower than under normal conditions, and has forced into our eastern markets unlimited quantities of cream which has been sold at prices below those with which the eastern farmer and dairymen could possibly compete.

We are also told that there were about 30,000,000 pounds more oleomargarine consumed last year than the year before. Had this increased consumption of oleomargarine been replaced by the consumption of butter, our market for dairy products would not be in the condition in which it is found at this time, and yet we find our farmers complaining about the low price of their product, while they are willing to go to the stores and buy oleomargarine to feed their families instead of using their own or buying the pure butter."

"This, to my mind," says Mr. Heaps, "is one of the great detriments to the dairy industry, as I sincerely believe that every farmer should first consume the amount of dairy products needed for his family before offering such products to the public."

The increased use of dairy products has been recommended by nutrition authorities as the simplest and cheapest way for everyone, city and country dweller alike, to improve his general health and therefore his capacity for success and happiness.

Maryland farmers are urged to cut out the use of butter substitutes and to use only real butter for his family needs and to do all in his power to see that his neighbor does likewise. With every farmer following this advice, it is asserted that the price of butterfat will soon rise to something like what it should be.—Md. Farm Bureau Federation.

"INSIDE" INFORMATION FOR WOMEN.

Soda should not be added to vegetables in cooking. It has an injurious effect on the vitamins.

Cook green vegetables such as short a time as possible and cook them in an open kettle to help keep their fresh green color.

Serve all lamb piping hot on very hot plates. The texture of lamb fat is not always agreeable after the meat has cooled off somewhat.

An oblong kitchen is considered preferable to a square one for saving space and consequently for saving steps. On the two long opposite sides most of the larger equipment can be grouped in logical sequence. To test for waste space in a floor plan see whether the equipment can be packed into a smaller well-lighted area in the same relative positions, leaving room enough to work comfortably.

Gasoline for any sort of cleaning should never be kept in the house. It is so inflammable and so explosive that the fire laws of many States prohibit storage in the house of any but the smallest quantities. Keep the bottle or container tightly corked at all times, and do not open or use it in a room where there is a fire, a gas, oil, or candle flame, or in bright sunshine. Only a little liquid should be poured out at one time.

COOKING DEMONSTRATION.

On next Wednesday afternoon the women of Taneytown and the surrounding countryside will have an opportunity to attend an electrical cooking demonstration, which will be held at the Potomac Edison electrical store.

In towns and cities where these demonstrations have been held they have proven very interesting to housewives and always draw large attendances. Many new and novel baking methods and receipts are introduced and many little housekeeping problems are explained.

The demonstration in Taneytown is under the direction of Mrs. Edith Paris, Home Service Representative. Mrs. Paris, has had considerable experience in cooking demonstrations and is a very interesting speaker. The demonstration is free and a large attendance is expected.

OUR PLANS FOR THE FUTURE

Who Wants to Figure on what 1930 Reports Will Be?

In providing "for the future," as we sometimes say, we are apt to overlook just what the future outlook may be, considering population; for it is "population" that creates demand, and it is demand that we want to satisfy in our future plans.

It is a pretty well known fact that the population of the whole country, while increasing, is becoming centered in large cities and manufacturing towns, and that the rural sections are losing, in order to furnish the gain in the larger centres.

Carroll County, for instance, shows this trend, as the following figures will show, and for the purpose of further illustration we give the figures of Taneytown district, and Taneytown, separately from the District, the figures being taken from the last U. S. Census report.

	1900	1910	1920
County	33,860	33,894	34,245
Taneytown Dist.
including town	2,678	2,653	2,533
Taneytown	665	825	800

It will be seen from the above that the population of the county, in the 20 years from 1900 to 1920 was practically at a stand-still, the growth being only 385. Taneytown district showed a loss of 145; and the town a loss of 25 in the ten years from 1910 to 1920.

All of the districts in the county showed a loss except Westminster, Mt. Airy and Union Bridge, the latter place having been boosted in population by the location there of the Cement Plant. Taneytown is expected to show a material gain in 1930 over 1920, but the probability is that the district, outside of the town, will continue to show a loss.

Taking the county as a whole, the outlook seems to be that no decisive changes will be made, upwards, in the population in any of the rural communities—the tendency of the times is against it.

We will be pleased to furnish the figures applying to other districts and towns, on application from those interested; as we have the census reports (1920) complete for the entire state.

NEWS NOTES OF THE WEEK

What is claimed to be a successful termination of the Naval Conference, in London, has been proclaimed by Secretary of State Stimson. The final draft of the agreement between England, France, Japan, Italy and the United States, has not been published, nor has it been officially signed. President Hoover is confident that the Conference has materially strengthened the forces of peace.

Senator Nye, of North Dakota, who has no particular dislike for investigating things, has been appointed by vice-President Curtis, Chairman of the Committee to investigate campaign expenses of candidates for the Senate.

Professional baseball opened the season of 1930, on Monday and Tuesday, with large attendance. Most of the games were decided by small scores, indicating that teams pretty generally have been strengthened.

The census operations are already showing a decrease in rural population, and a loss of from 5 to 100 percent in thousands of small towns. Rural delivery, automobiles, the removal of small shops, and mechanics, are the main causes of the doctrine.

The agricultural schedule of the tariff bill as it comes from the Senate, was virtually passed by the Congressional conferees, thereby assuring higher duties on farm products.

It is expected that Judge Parker will be confirmed as Judge of the Supreme Court, though Labor leaders oppose him, as well as do those who seem delighted to antagonize every movement that President Hoover makes.

Senator Johnson, California; Goldsborough, Maryland, and Bingham, Connecticut, have declined to serve on the committee to investigate Senate campaign expenses. Senator Nye, of North Dakota, accepted the chairmanship. Vice-President Curtis is finding it difficult to name a committee that will stick. Perhaps the "investigation" policy of the present Senate is becoming monotonous.

LOCK YOUR CAR.

Automobile owners will be interested in learning that of the 300,000 autos stolen in the U. S. last year, all but 25,000 were recovered. And yet those had a total value of $20,000,000. The same bulletin also states that practically all of the cars stolen were unlocked at the time. That's something else to think about. Can the motorists of this country afford to donate $20,000,000 a year to their auto thieves?

Wouldn't it be better to turn the key in the lock before leaving the car, and spending your share of that $20,000,000 for gasoline and oil? The auto hoboe is now roaming the land. If your car looks better than the car he is driving he will often risk a chance of getting away with yours if he finds it unlocked. And especially is this true if you park it in the city. It takes but a moment to lock it, but a whole year's search has failed to locate 25,000 of them that were left unlocked last year.

Appointees to the Supreme bench are usually quite elderly men, particularly after the Senate gets through criticizing their appointments.—San Diego Union.

"Did that patent medicine you bought cure your aunt?"

"Mercy, no! On reading the circular that was wrapped around the bottle she got two more diseases."

BAD TEMPER IN POLITICS.

Hardly in the history of partisan politics in the United States, has there been as much bad temper, as now. The "dignity" and "courtesy" that should accompany the manners and deliberations of our big legislative bodies, are largely absent, since it has become the custom to widen individual liberties in thought and speech; and to find and indulge in powers of inquisition never before thought of.

Actual personal bad feeling must exist between leaders; actual disrespect for high public officials must prevail; actual contempt for opposing opinions, and even of the constitution and our laws, must influence many. Perhaps the temper of Congress is merely a reflection of the public temper. We think it is. But even so, it has not improved any virtue, nor added to the sum total of common sense, or honesty.

Certainly, the 18th. Amendment and prohibition enforcement laws have had much to do with political discord. The fact that we are growing a supply of would-be presidential candidates in excess of the demand, is another important factor. The noticeable growth of the "states rights" doctrine, is another; and the increase in wealth, and in the assumed importance of individuals and interests with their insistence on "personal liberty," and personal aims, must be added.

Taken as a whole, the country is afflicted with an assertive bigness that resents restraint; and as a matter of course, the only thing to do is "fight it out." Or, at least, that is what is being done, right or wrong.

MEXICAN IMMIGRATION.

Attention is now being drawn especially to Mexican peon immigration, rather than to immigration from Europe, and special legislation is being sought to prevent it. Of course, these peons do not make jobs for themselves—they must have employers, and these no doubt think it to their advantage to secure this cheap labor, whether so doing is patriotic or not.

Not only is there strong opposition to Mexican labor, on account of its cheapness, and its interference in the southwest with native white and negro workers, but it is charged that this cheap labor encourages—and in fact produces—surplus crops, thereby knocking down market prices, particularly of cotton.

This phase of the immigration questions comes from right at home, and is no longer "foreign." Besides, the Mexican incomers are said to lower social standards, and to represent no advantage except to the class of planters who employ them. To us, the situation looks like the need of an "American first" doctrine in active operation.

In connection with the general subject of foreign immigration, there has been distributed extensively in pamphlet form, an address by E. H. H. Simmons, President of the New York Stock Exchange, in which he speaks in the highest terms of Italian emigrants as a class, and especially of the Italian. American product; of the good character of its citizenship, its intelligence and industrious habits, and the ease with which it becomes American in fact. All of which, is no doubt true in a very large measure.

A REAL ROAD PROBLEM.

The good roads movement in the United States has been productive of so much enthusiasm that we are likely to reach the conclusion that our present highway mileage is adequate for all purposes and that there is no necessity for going to the expense of further building on a large scale.

The facts show differently. The United States has three times as many automobiles as the rest of the world, but Europe has four times our surfaced roadway.

We stand twelfth in the world in the proportion of highway mileage to square miles of territory.

A vast field for highway development remains almost untouched in this country. Great stress has been laid on construction of trunk highways. Farm-to-market roads now need attention.

At present there is a determined movement, led by the American Farm Bureau Federation, to provide the farmer with the all-weather, year round highways that he needs and deserves. This can be done, in most states, without excessive cost to the taxpayers by employing economical, low-priced, but long-wearing surfaces. So long as an overwhelming majority of American farmers live on roads that are impassable during several months of the year there will be a serious road problem.—The Manufacturer.

CENSUS TO AFFECT HOUSE MEMBERSHIP.

Washington, D. C.—Under the reapportionment act the 1930 census figures will cause sixteen states to lose part of their representation in the House of Representatives, while twelve will secure additional members, according to information from the Census Bureau.

It is estimated by the mechanical estimator in the Census Bureau that the present population of the United States is 122,187,583, and since there is to be no increase in the membership of the House, each member will be representative of approximately 280,000 citizens. Under the present apportionment, the number of Representatives would have to be increased to 536 to take care of the increase in population, but since this has been held to be undesirable, the reapportionment must follow, it was stated. Under the law this reapportionment will be done by the states themselves through legislation, but in case any state shall fail to enact such legislation, the new figures will become effective before the second Congress following the reapportionment.

California will gain more than any other state by the new figures, it was stated, the increase in that state in representation being six, while Missouri will be the biggest loser, having four less Representatives than at the present time. The total number of changes will be twenty-four, which will be the number to be divided between the states that receive increased representation. Michigan will be the second largest gainer, the representation in that state being increased by four. Other states that will receive increased representation and the amount of the increases are: Ohio, 3; Texas, 2; New Jersey, 2; Arizona, 1; Connecticut, 1; Florida, 1; Montana, 1; Washington, 1; Oklahoma, 1; North Carolina, 1.

The states that will lose by the new apportionment and the number of representatives lost by each are: Indiana, 2; Iowa, 2; Kentucky, 2; Mississippi, 2; New York, 2; Alabama, 1; Kansas, 1; Louisiana, 1; Maine, 1; Massachusetts, 1; Nebraska, 1; North Dakota, 1; Tennessee, 1; Vermont, 1; Virginia, 1. The other states remain the same, it was explained.—Ex.

MONEY COST OF WORLD WAR TO UNITED STATES.

Washington, April 7.—The World War and its aftermath cost the United States approximately the gross sum of $51,400,000,000 according to figures compiled by the Treasury Department on the event of the thirtieth anniversary of the declaration of war by this country, April 6, 1917.

The country is paying about $1,162,000,000 this year as a result of the war. Including in this expenditure is interest on the public debt and provision for its retirement, upkeep of the Veterans Bureau, war risk insurance and compensation and the settlement of the claims of German and other former enemy aliens for seized property.

War costs and the annual bill for national defense make up about 66 percent of all government expenditures. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, these expenditures amounted to $2,361,000,000. Indications have been that these costs would be greater this year than last because of the increasing expenses of the Veterans Bureau, the War Department and the Navy.

Including the present "value" of the war debts due to the United States from foreign powers $7,470,000,000 so-called war assets amount to $9,004,887,000. Sales of war materials, other items and war assets brought the net cost of the war to the United States to $37,573,960,000 up to June 30, 1929.

Of the costs of war which will continue for years to come interest on the war debt will cause the greatest outlay. Up to June 30 last, the interest payment had been $6,748,088,000. This will decrease as the public debt is retired but it will be an important item of expenditure for at least twenty years.

Care of the veterans of the World War cost the government $3,524,564,000 up to last June. The largest single item was in military and naval compensation, which amounted to $1,189,481,000. Other items were $560,000,000 for the adjusted service certificate fund, $663,085,000 for military and naval insurance, $493,990,000 for vocational rehabilitation and $255,463,000 for hospital facilities.

The War Department's expenditure for the fiscal years 1917 to 1921, covering the period of actual conflict and the years of readjustment was $16,283,569,000, of which $6,873,420,000 was for army supplies, $2,819,195,000, for pay and $3,203,479,000 for armament of fortifications. In the spent $3,480,781,000, and the Emergency Fleet Corporation $3,316,100,000. Operation of transportation system cost the government $2,276,872,000.

MR. COOLIDGE'S INTENTION.

Of all of Mr. Coolidge's recent writings, the most provocative, from the viewpoint of the professional politicians, is his contribution to the current Cosmopolitan. As in the case of his famous "I do not choose to run," there is a sort of Delphic oracular tone to some of his statements which has set the wisecracks to guessing. For instance: "When I left Washington I left public office." Left it permanently or for how long? The following sentence seems at first glance to supply the answer: "It is an incomprehensible relief and I have no intention of returning to it." But even this declaration, it is pointed out, leaves a loophole. Mr. Coolidge has no present intention of resuming the cares of office. It might be affected by future developments. As for the presidency, Mr. Coolidge does not say he would refuse it, but that "the service I could give to the people in that office I feel is done." And he concludes with the thoroughly Coolidgean remark; "I should like to be known as a former President who tries to mind his own business."

While there is nothing in Mr. Coolidge's article to suggest that he harbors ambitions for further presidential honors, it also contains nothing to discourage those enthusiasts who are talking of a movement to "draft" him in '32 or '36. His statements represent his attitude at the present writing. They do not commit him as to the future. What man, honest with himself, can say more? Even Colonel Roosevelt changed his mind regarding the acceptability of "a third cup of coffee."—Phila. Ledger.

THE DIGEST POLL.

We are not surprised that the returns from the Digest questionnaire are unfavorable to prohibition. They were unfavorable in the former inquiry and they were expected to be unfavorable in this one.

The form of question is absolutely unfair. The wets are given two questions, the drys one, and two questions will nearly always win against one. It is hardly playing fair to ask the persons queried if they favor a modification of prohibition to permit the sales of wine and beers when the editors and publishers of the Digest know perfectly well that legislation to establish any so-called "modification" must depend absolutely upon the repeal of the 18th. Amendment to the Constitution.

The method of selecting the list insures that more ballots will reach men than women, and there is a certain variation in sentiment; how great this variation is no one knows.

The lists also consist chiefly of city dwellers and here again the drys are at a disadvantage, for the rural people of America are overwhelmingly for prohibition.

Psychology also works in favor of the wets. Those who are out and want to get in will nearly always get the best of those who are in and don't want to be out, so long as the poll consists of straw. But make it a real test, let the "ins" see themselves in imminent danger of being converted into "outs" and a real fight will develop in a hurry. The drys are almost always profoundly indifferent to straw polls. We do not believe they ought to be, but they are.

If there is any way in which the Digest can prevent these ballots from being counterfeited in considerable numbers we would like to know what it is. It does not even call for a signature.

The drys may be consoled that the Digest was wrong in its former poll on prohibition. For instance, they showed California sentiment wet but a real test shortly thereafter showed California overwhelmingly dry.

But vote. Don't throw your ballot away if you get one. If you get more than one ballot give the extra ballot to some friend who is qualified and who has received none. No dry should ever lose an opportunity to show his colors.—Board Temperance M. P. Church.

North Carolina has a law making it compulsory to teach the evil effects of alcohol on the human system. Teachers who fail to give the prescribed numbers of lessons on the subject will be dismissed.

FAVORING THE FARMERS.

The general acquiescence of the House tariff conferees in the higher rates on farm products carried in the Senate bill will deprive the Democrats and Insurgents of considerable ammunition. When the Senate Coalition undertook the rewriting of the bill on the floor, it boosted the agricultural duties even higher than the Finance Committee's figures. Then when the Republican Old Guard under Mr. Grundy's leadership staged its comeback, its efforts were directed to obtaining more protection for the factory, but not at the expense of the farm. As a result, the Senate bill as finally passed contained the highest farm duties in history.

Mr. Borah now threatens to take the stump and campaign against the bill, while it is pending, if the debenture provision is eliminated. He quite ignores the fact that the farmers are getting more protection than ever. His proposal for an exclusively farmers' tariff gained little support, and there is not likely to be much more for his fight to keep the debenture. A practical argument against it is the virtual certainty of a veto should this ill-advised provision by any chance be in the bill when it goes to the White House.—Phila. Ledger.

Scissors Long in Use

It was formerly believed that scissors were invented in Venice in the Sixteenth century, but records show that implements similar to our modern scissors were in use very much earlier than this period. In the remains of Pompeii shears were found made of iron and steel as well as bronze. Scissors were also in use in various oriental countries from a very early period. It is stated that those manufactured in Europe were copied from the Persian. The oriental scissors were very much ornamented and frequently in the form of a bird, the blade forming the beak.

Wailing Wall Long Moslem

Jerusalem's wailing wall is not a remnant of the temple of Solomon and contains no remnants of the temple of Solomon, writes Vincent Sheehan in the magazine Asia. There are no remnants of the temple of Solomon anywhere. The wall does contain three courses of masonry in its lower levels which are undoubted remnants of the Greco-Roman temple built by Herod the Great to conciliate the Jewish nation, which did not recognize him as its king. The greater part of the wall is Moslem and forms part of the wall of the Haram es-Sharif. It has been Moslem property for 1,300 years.

"Humor" in Music

Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians says of the word "Humoreske" (Humoresque): "A title adopted by Schumann for his Op. 20 and Op. 68. No. 2, the former for piano solo, the latter for piano, violin and violin-cello. Heller and Grieg have also used the term for pianoforte pieces—Op. 64 and Op. 9 and 16, respectively. There is nothing particularly 'humorous' in any of these, and the term 'caprice' might equally well be applied to them. Rubinstein also entitled his 'Don Quixote' 'Humoreske,' but the 'humor' is there of a more obvious and boisterous kind."

Coue's Principle

Emile Coue (born 1857, died 1926) was a French psychotherapist. Coue's system of therapeutics deals principally with the power of imagination as opposed to that of the will. He claimed that by means of auto-suggestion ideas which tend to cause illness and disease may be eliminated from the will. Coue invariably stated that he was primarily a healer, but one who taught others to heal themselves. His famous formula was "Every day and in every way I am becoming better and better."

Californian's $780

Eaten by Tiny Borers

Los Angeles.—Microscopic bugs made $780 in currency look like a small helping of cold spinach for N. L. Biddle, eighty, who thought a tin tobacco box buried in the ground safer than a bank.

Unwilling to entrust his savings in the usual manner and fearing burglars might find them if deposited beneath the mattress, the aged man tied his $780 worth of greenbacks in a small sack and then sealed the sack in a tobacco tin.

The tin box was buried beneath his house. That was nine months ago.

The rains came, but Biddle did not worry. His can was waterproof. Recently he needed a little spending money. The can was dug up, badly rusted, and when Biddle opened it he found only a soggy mass of greenish paper.

Placed under the microscope, the former greenbacks were found to be filled with tiny bugs, invisible to the unaided eye.

Now Biddle is trying to convince the United States treasury that the masticated mess was legal tender. A handwriting expert dried out the lump and was able to peel parts of several bills. The silk threads which strengthen currency were intact.

The can, its contents and a full account of the burial are to be sent to Washington, D. C., to learn if the treasury will make a refund of the money.

POULTRY

PREVENTING ROUP IN COLD WEATHER

Poultry Require Feeds With Vitamine A Content.

What's sauce for the goose is also sauce for the gander, and some of the things which are healthful in the diet of the family, are equally so in the diet of the poultry flock. Carrots, cod-liver oil, and green vegetables belong on the table of the flock as much as on that of the family, according to P. B. Zumbro, extension specialist for the Ohio State university poultry husbandry department. "These foods carry vitamin A, a preventative of nutritional roup, a disease which often strikes flocks when they are housed during the winter and unable to obtain green feed on the range," says Zumbro.

Symptoms of nutritional roup include nasal discharges and swelling of the face, which are characteristic of ordinary roup, but the nutritional roup also causes lesions in the eyes and mouth. Post-mortem examination usually shows the kidneys to be very pale, and marked with a network of white lines, and a deposit of white material on the surfaces of the liver and heart.

Complete discussion of the treatment of nutritional roup and other diseases, as well as of problems of incubation, brooding, feeding, and management, are included in a correspondence course given by the poultry husbandry department of the university.

Feeding Poultry Flock for Profit During Year

Does your poultry flock return a good profit over the cost of feed during the year? It has been found that when laying hens are fed all the grain they will consume Leghorns and similar breeds eat from 70 to 80 pounds of grain a year. Breeds like the Plymouth Rock, Rhode Island Red, and Wyandotte eat from 80 to 95 pounds. All breeds eat from two to three pounds of oyster shells and about one pound of grit a year.

The average farm hen lays less than 60 eggs a year, principally from March to June, the season of lowest prices. Yearly profits in eggs depend largely on production in fall and winter, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Rations for laying stock should include scratch grains, mash, meat feed, green feed, mineral feed, grit, and drink. The scratch ration should be scattered through the litter in the poultry house so that the hens will get plenty of exercise.

Crushed Oyster Shells Are Valuable for Hens

New feeders of crushed oyster shell report an average of 30 extra eggs a year from each hen. According to other experienced poultrymen this is a modest estimate. Many who trap their hens and keep an accurate record of production find that the average is higher. If eggs are figured at three cents each that means 90 cents more in actual cash from each hen. As the bird will eat only about three cents' worth of oyster shell during the year, the net profit is 87 cents. Multiply that by the number of hens in your flock and you'll have a tidy sum.

People wonder why doing such a little thing makes so big a difference. The answer is simple. It's plain chemistry.

Turkeys Easily Picked if Killed in Right Way

For dry picking, the turkeys are usually hung by their legs at a convenient height for killing. The jugular vein is cut by the single stroke of a sharp knife and the point of the knife is then pushed through the roof of the mouth into the brain. The last operation is known as "sticking" and when properly done paralyzes the bird and loosens the feathers so that they come out easily. Turkey feathers can be removed more easily than can chicken feathers, the proper bleeding and sticking being the most difficult part of the operation.

Contented Birds

Contented, unworried pullets will get into production early and will tend to keep up their production. When pullets are first brought in from the range, they have a tendency to be rather excitable until they become accustomed to their new surroundings. When approaching a pen, whistle or call softly or knock on the door, so as to warn the birds of your approach. This practice may help to get several additional eggs every day from the pullet flock.

Ability to Lay

The ability to lay is inherited and thus depends more on breeding than on feeding; but pullets should be well developed in body before they start to lay. If the pullets seem to mature too rapidly do not feed them wholly on grain to slow up their inclination to lay; anything that checks laying is also apt to stunt permanently the growth of the birds. Feed a mash along with scratch grain, as it is more complete in protein minerals and vitamins.

Press Agents Unknown to Medieval Writers

"A striking feature of medieval literature is its general anonymity," writes W. H. Schofield in "English Literature from the Norman Conquest to Chaucer." Of the many who wrote, the names of but few are recorded, and of the history of these few we have only the most meager details. Nor is this a simple accident. Formerly, the importance attached to an author's personality was far less than now. In case either of a narrative or a didactic work, it was the substance above all that attracted attention. Originality of matter was deplored as a fault.

"Independence of treatment meant to our forefathers contempt of authority, a heinous offense in their eyes. It was as unsafe for a storyteller to depart from the well-marked lines of inherited tradition as for him to disregard orthodox beliefs. And even the greatest dared not present new views without at least claiming august support. A prudent author sought a powerful patron in order to insure success, or fathered his inventions on some ancient worthy who could not deny them. But the last thing he would have deemed wise would have been to copyright them as his own."

Summer When Old Sol Refused to Function

From various records, including the famous diary of Charles Pierce, ice and snow appear to have been mighty occurrences during the month of June, 1816. July, whose average temperature is said to have been less than 70 degrees, also experienced ice and frost. The mean temperature for the month of August dropped still lower than that of July, as much as an inch of ice forming on ponds during the colder nights, according to old chronicles. Six inches of snow had fallen on the eighth day of June, and in some parts of New England, it is said, the ground remained white with snow throughout the entire summer. Crops were generally frozen out and ruined, although one story relates that the more resourceful farmers managed to save a little corn by keeping fires burning in their fields at night.—Kansas City Star.

A Love-Tree Lived On

Plymouth (Mass.) has a big Linden tree which has an interesting history, recalls an article in the Brockton (Mass.) Enterprise, quoting the late William R. Davis, who spent his boyhood in Plymouth:

"The tree was planted by a youthful couple as a memorial to their engagement, but not long afterwards, in 1809, the engagement was broken and the memorial was no longer prized by the girl, in whose garden it had been planted. She pulled it up one day and threw it into the street. My father picked it up and planted it where it now stands. He lived in the house known as the Plymouth Rock house, where he died in 1822. Under his careful nursing the tree survived and has grown into a beautiful tree."

Royalty and Whiskers

Kings in the early and romantic days of France, to ratify a momentous document, stuck in the seal three hairs from the royal beard. There is in existence a charter dated 1121, in which declaration is made that it is so sealed. In Spain the beard prevailed until the time of Philip V, who being himself beardless set the style for smooth faces; and the people attested their grief in the saying, "Since we have lost our beards we have lost our souls." The pictures of King Henry VIII of England show us a royal visage; but without his marvelous whiskers he would be but a fat man.

Sea Lion Slaughter

The sea lion could hold his own against his natural enemies, but his real troubles began when man discovered that he was insulated with several inches of oil-bearing blubber and that his hide made good leather. Nearly 200 years ago the slaughter began on the West coast, says Nature Magazine. Countless thousands of sea lions died for the enrichment of the oil hunters, until by the beginning of this century only a remnant of the vast herds which once roared and fought on their off-shore rookeries is left to carry on the species.

Queer Coast Birds

On the Lincolnshire (England) flocks of small birds with ash-gray plumage, white breasts and long bills are to be seen. They are the Arctic migrants known as knots, so called, it is believed, on account of the queer twisted posture they adopt when resting on the sands or mud flats. According to tradition, knots were the favorite birds of King Canute, and some people consider that it is from him that their name is derived. When roasted, a gourmet states, they are a delicacy fit for any table.

Tough on Fat Men

In New York the seating accommodations are limited to 20 inches on the "L" and 18 inches in the subway. This calls to mind the late Phillips Brooks, who was said to be the polliest man in Boston because when he gave up his seat in the street car two women could sit down, and Mr. Taft, who was disappointed once when he found that the two seats he had reserved for comfort at a baseball game were on different sides of the aisle.—Boston Globe.

A Success Story

"Busy" was the word from the inner office when Mr. Salesman called. Nothing daunted, he wrote across his card: "That's why I am calling. I haven't any time to waste on loafers," and sent it in again. This time he got in.

Oh, Well—

for Economical Transportation

It's wise to choose a SIX!

It is wise to choose a six-cylinder motor—the only way to get six-cylinder smoothness. Six-cylinder smoothness takes out vibration and roughness. This saves motor, chassis, body, passengers, and driver.

The Chevrolet is a six. Yet it sells at a price that anyone can afford to pay. And it lasts longer, because of fine materials, oversize parts and a big, smooth, 50-horsepower six-cylinder engine that always "takes it easy."

With all its six-cylinder smoothness and power the New Chevrolet Six saves gasoline and oil, through modern efficiency—overhead valves—high compression power—latest carburetor—long-wearing pistons—crankcase ventilation—air cleaner. Thus Chevrolet brings truly modern transportation within reach of all who can afford any car. Chevrolet economy also means sincerity in manufacture. To illustrate:

Chevrolet valves are adjustable—to save replacing. Chevrolet molded brakelining greatly reduces brake upkeep. The rear axle inspection plate on the Chevrolet means accessibility. The whole car is full of such evidence that true economy comes from advancement and refinement. There are four extra-long, chrome-vanadium springs controlled by hydraulic shock absorbers. They are mounted lengthwise, in the direction of car travel, with self-adjusting spring shackles to maintain quiet.

Modern low suspension and extra wheelbase give the Chevrolet Six good proportions. The front view is distinguished by the honeycomb radiator. The gasoline tank is at the rear for safety and finer appearance.

Chevrolet beauty instantly says "Body by Fisher"—style, quiet, safety—Fisher composite steel-and-wood construction—non-glare windshield—adjustable driver's seat—deeper cushions—greater leg room—clearer vision—finer fabrics and fittings.

There is just as much extra value throughout. BY ANY STANDARD the Chevrolet Six is the wisest choice in the low-price field... with its six-cylinder valve-in-head motor... with full scientific equipment... with Body by Fisher... with four long semi-elliptic springs, long wheelbase, low suspension, rear-mounted gasoline tank, honeycomb radiator and all the other features of this day and age.

See your nearest Chevrolet dealer today and drive this six. Ten minutes at the wheel will show you what a difference six cylinders make.

In Sad But Loving Remembrance of our

MRS. ELIZABETH MCGUIGAN, who died Monday, April 14th, 1930.

O, dear Mother, thy gentle voice is gone
Thy warm true heart is still;
We have kissed thy loving brow,
And on thy pale and peaceful face
Is resting death's cold chill.

Thy hands are clasped upon thy breast;
Thy loving, thy dear, thy loved ones
Are in our aching hearts we know
We have no dear Mother now.

Her picture still hangs upon the wall,
With the loving face so true;
The words I seem to hear her calling,
My children how dearly I loved you.

By her daughter,
MR. and MRS. EDW. WINTER.

On you, dear Mother, I would always depend,
And know I had one sincere friend,
And all of the hours on earth with you
Spent in my dear home.

Your heart to me was always beat.
God called you home, it was His will,
But in my heart I love you still;
Your memory is as dear today
As in the hour you passed away.

By her son, GEO. B. FLEAGLE.

TRIBUTE OF RESPECT.

Resolutions passed by Taneytown Lodge No. 36, K. of P., on the death of Brother HARRY B. MILLER.

It having pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst, by the hand of death our Brother Harry B. Miller, while we are sorrowful for this affliction, we bow in humble submission to the will of the Father whose wisdom we can not doubt.

Brother Miller was ever a loyal member and one who worked for the advancement of the Lodge. At the darkest hour of its history, his untiring efforts were a large factor in turning the tide and starting it toward renewed victory.

While we realize the great loss we have sustained, we cherish his memory with loving thoughts.

We extend our sincere sympathy to his bereaved family, and commend them for consolation to God who by his love can heal the wounded heart.

We recommend that our Charter be draped for thirty days, that this tribute be entered on the minutes of the Lodge. A copy be sent to the family, and published in The Carroll Record.

ROBT. S. MCKINNEY,

CHARLES O. FUSS, Committee.

KEEP ON IN SCHOOL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

KEEP on in school, my son, And see it through. Soon schooldays will be done, New things to do, And if you do them ill Or do them well, Move upward, or downhill, These days will tell.

The more you know, the more You know of joy. Books are the open door To life, my boy. Each day new worlds you own. Some book the key, You never might have known, Might never see.

And, if you dream of gold, Of wealth to earn, The more your hands will hold The more you learn. To throw the chance away A boy's a fool. No matter what they say, Keep on in school. (© 1930, Douglas Malloch.)

Cold Water Thrown on That Milk Snake Story

I am reminded of a conversation that I once had in the pline barns with an old ducky who claimed to be an expert on snakes.

I had that day caught a large specimen of a king snake—that black and white serpent which is immune to the bite of any snake in North America, and which will kill in a fair fight any rattlesnake which it may meet. The sight of the king snake started my colored friend on a line of snake stories. Among them, I remember, was one about a cow on his father's farm that suddenly went dry. When she was watched it was found that every afternoon she would go down into the far end of the pasture and low invitingly, whereupon a milk snake would creep out of the grass and milk her.

When the snake was killed several quarts of milk gushed out of its mutilated body. After its death the cow plined away and died.

It was a very sad story and quite as true as most snake stories. The stomach of the largest milk snake holds about four teaspoonfuls, and it could no more milk a cow than could a bird.—Samuel Scoville, Jr., in "Wild Honey."

English King "Held Up"

Lawlessness was rampant in England during much of the Eighteenth century and the streets of London were so unsafe that even royal personages were stopped and robbed. A highwayman once dropped over the wall of Kensington gardens, and with every expression of respect took from George II, who was walking there alone, his purse, watch and shoe buckles. Mail coaches were special objects of attack and they proved vulnerable until in 1792 an armed guard for the mails was provided.—Detroit News.

Medical Confession

A young medical graduate was still in the stage when the scientific interest in the case concerned him far more than the welfare of the patient. A nurse told him one day that one of his patients had died.

"That is terrible—perfectly terrible," sighed the doctor.

"Was he a friend of yours, doctor?" asked the nurse.

"Oh, no," said the physician. "But I gave him two prescriptions, and now how shall I ever know which was the wrong one?"

Alarming Showers

Real showers of blood have been known. Some time ago a couple of falls of this kind occurred in the little town of Missignadi, in the south of Italy, causing much alarm. Samples were sent to Rome and pronounced by analysts of the Ecole d'Hygiene to be real blood. The suggestion was made that it emanated from some large flock of migrant birds caught up by a whirlwind and pulverized through being flung violently against other objects, which, being heavier, dropped out at sea.

Wide-Awake Lawyer

Court was jammed as usual. One portly man fell victim to after-luncheon drowsiness. Disregarding the court, he slumbered on.

The case of a negro charged with petty theft was called. The assistant district attorney almost finished with the first witness when the defendant, his face a perfect picture of something wrong, leaned over and asked the deputy sheriff:

"Mistuh sheriff, wud y'all mln' wak-in' up dat man—he's mah lawyer." The case was dismissed.

A Puzzler

Here was son again asking for another check! Every month he spent at college was costing father more.

"I had no idea," father said sternly, as he reached for his checkbook. "than an education cost so much."

"Oh, it's terribly high, father," was the reply. "And you know I'm one of those that studies the least!"

Casual Visitor Seldom Seen in Italian Home

If it is possible to reduce Italy to a number of cities, it is further possible to reduce those cities to a number of families. I have never lived long in Italy, but all my Italian friends—and I have had many—and all my non-Italian friends who have lived long in Italy, agree that family life is more jealously guarded from outside influences than that of any other European country. One can stay for a score of years in Rome and be intimately acquainted with nobles and politicians and officials and the middle classes and the masses, meeting them in assemblies and in clubs and getting on the most confidential relations with them; and still, at the end of a score of years, realize that one has rarely if ever been invited to cross the threshold of an Italian household and to mingle intimately with an Italian family.—From "Europe in Zigzag," by Slaley Huddleston.

Constantly Seek Alloys

In industrial research laboratories both here and abroad hundreds of metallurgists are carrying on studies to devise the specifications of new alloys to meet every specialized requirement of steel, and the versatility of alloy steels seems to have no limit. Alloy steels already are used in a multitude of products as diverse as jewelry and railroad freight cars.

MISS ELLEN'S WEDDING DRESS

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

"IF YOU must be going, Mrs. Harris, please stop just a moment longer till I ask your advice about something," said Miss Ellen Dobson, with excited importance as her caller, a newcomer in the neighborhood, rose to take leave. "I'm getting me a wedding dress and want your opinion of these samples."

"A wedding dress?" gasped Mrs. Harris in blank astonishment as Miss Ellen, a spinster on the stroke of 60, produced for inspection a handful of price-tagged dabs of satin, silk and chiffon.

"Yes, for Mary Rose's wedding." "O-o-oh!" Mrs. Harris breathed relief. "She's the pretty niece in the Middleton bank that you were telling me about?"

"Yes," beamed Miss Ellen. "One of my brother Jim's girls. But if she was my own child I couldn't have a more motherly feeling toward her. You see," she explained, laying out the samples on the fat arm of the crimson velvet chair, "when Mary Rose was little she was very delicate, and the doctor told her parents if they wanted to raise her they must take her into the country and keep her there until her health was established, as the sayin' is. But Jim had just gone into the grocery business and couldn't pick up and leave town, and Hattie hated to take the older children away from good schools. So, to make a long story short, I rented my house here in Centers and got me a little place with a cow and chickens out at Applegate, and had Mary Rose live with me. We was together seven years. The happiest years of my life. And oh, how I missed her when Mary Rose went back to her folks! There, I've spread them out. Which is your choice? Mine's divided between the heliotrope and pearl gray."

"But since your brother and sister-in-law had other children and you were so attached to Mary Rose, why couldn't they let her stay with you for keeps?" asked Mrs. Harris after she had expressed preference for a wistaria sample.

"They would if I'd asked 'em," replied Miss Ellen, "—being so grateful for what I'd done. But Jim was moving his family to Middleton that autumn, and I knew Mary Rose would have advantages there that I couldn't give her if she stayed behind at Centers. And it's all turned out for the best." she smiled through a mist of tears. "According to accounts, George Shipley, Mary Rose's young man, is as fine a fellow as they make 'em. And he belongs to an el-e-gant family," she proudly announced. "His father's the leading jeweler in Middleton. But it's no more than Mary Rose deserves," radiantly concluded Miss Ellen. "She's such a dear girl! So loving she writes me regular every week, and on her summer vacation trips, either coming or going, always stops over at Centers to see me."

Usually when Miss Ellen was replenishing her wardrobe, she had in Clementina Spinks. But the wedding dress was not to be entrusted to any home-dressmaking. And after due consultation and recommendation, it was put in the expert hands of "Lucile," in the Monarch building.

The finished product, boxed and tissue-paper-wrapped like rare flowers from a florist's, was sent home three weeks before the wedding day. But none too soon. For the wedding dress had to be exhibited to all the neighbors, and Miss Ellen found that she got the most pleasurable reactions by giving a "private view" to two or three at a time.

Then, after this prolonged excitement over the wedding dress—its purchase, its making, its proud display—came a shock to the neighborhood like a blow in the face.

The day before she was to leave for Middleton Miss Ellen announced that she had changed her mind and was not going to Mary Rose's wedding after all.

"But, Miss Ellen, you'll have to go!" gasped Mrs. Harris, breathless from astonishment. "There's your wedding dress!"

Miss Ellen had attempted a playful role of facetious excuses for her changed plans, but Mrs. Harris' reference to the wedding dress touched too sore a spot in her aching heart and her eyes brimmed with tears.

"I didn't intend a living soul should ever know the real reason for my changing my mind," said Miss Ellen in a grieving voice. "But I don't mind telling you, if you won't let it go any further."

"I give you my solemn word," pledged Mrs. Harris.

"You see, it was one of those coincidences of fate," began Miss Ellen dramatically. "My coming home from downtown in the car with the girl who reminded me so much of Mary Rose and overhearing her talk about the upsetting letter that she's received. The letter was from her Aunt Mamie living in a little western town and was to tell her that her aunt was comin' on to her wedding—for the girl's goin' to be married same as Mary Rose."

"I hadn't the remotest idea that she'd think of coming!" the girl mourned to her lady friend. "I love Aunt Mamie dearly and always have been as nice to her as I knew how. But that's entirely different from introducing her as a relative. Aunt Mamie belongs to another world from that of Dick's and his family. She's always lived in a small town and she hasn't any education to speak of and oh, dear, I'm just sick over it!"

Miss Ellen paused to wipe away her tears.

"Suddenly I saw it all as clear as crystal, as the sayin' is," she continued. "Mary Rose's honest-to-goodness feelings if she had to introduce me to Jack as her relative. For like the girl in the car's young man and her Aunt Mamie, him and me don't belong to the same world. I'm a small-town person, too—and I'm not educated very good. Not going to Mary Rose's wedding is a terrible disappointment. I won't deny it isn't. But after overhearing what that girl said, wild horses couldn't drag me, as the sayin' is."

One woman in a thousand, Mrs. Harris kept her word and Miss Ellen's confidence inviolate.

So the neighbors could only talk and wonder why Miss Ellen had so suddenly changed her mind.

Many and various—and often wild—were the conjectures made, but the consensus of opinion was that somehow Miss Ellen had found out that because Mary Rose was marrying her "higher-up young man," she was ashamed of her aunt.

"Well, at least I admire Miss Ellen's spunk," declared Mrs. Fairchild to Jane Arrowsmith, as the two neighbors were discussing the favorite topic the morning of the day that Mary Rose was to be married at high noon. "She's kept her mouth shut and not let on she cares. That's what I call sporting."

And as though to make good her words, at that moment Miss Ellen appeared in the doorway, head up, clear-eyed smiling.

"I've come to invite you both to my house this evening," she announced. "I just felt I couldn't let Mary Rose's wedding day pass like an ordinary day, so I'm goin' to have a company supper in her honor. Besides," she added with an attempt at playfulness, "if I didn't make an occasion, I don't know when I'd get to wear my wedding dress."

Of course every one invited went. They were too sorry for Miss Ellen to disappoint her. Moreover, Hattie Lewis, who lived across the street from Miss Ellen's saw—and reported at the telephone—all the things that delivery wagons brought to the house opposite—fried oysters, chicken pies, a freezer of ice cream, and a confectioner's wedding cake with fancy icing.

Never had Miss Ellen's little house so brimmed over with flowers and lights, and lively talk as that evening when the supper guests had congregated. Never had Miss Ellen looked so "regal"—the word was Jane Arrowsmith's—as in the lovely wedding dress.

"I think there's nobody else to come," she said at ten minutes after the given hour, "and if you'll all walk out into—"

A ring at the bell interrupted, and wondering who the late comer could be, Miss Ellen hastened to the front door.

There followed excited exclamations, excited laughter.

"We're on our way to Niagara but stopped over at Centers until the midnight express," Mary Rose's familiar voice finally reached the ears of the sitting-up-and-taking-notice parlorful of guests. "I just had to make up somehow for my disappointment over your not getting on to the wedding, Aunt Ellen. Besides, I'm so anxious for you and Jack to know each other!"

Immense Net Spread to Bar German Submarines

It takes about 15 years to make a full-fledged pilot so thoroughly must he learn navigation and, more important, the shifting shoals piled up by the channel currents in their battle against the ocean tide. Storms and accidents have taken many lives, too, through the years.

But it's a trade in which sons succeed fathers.

And a responsible lot are these navigators. Shipping's safety depends upon them, and more, as evidenced by the revelations of Charles Edward Russell, a one-time newspaper man, in a history of the service, "From Sandy Hook to 62 Degrees."

During the World war, he says, "the pilots of New York were intrusted with secrets about the defenses of the port and the operation of the American Navy department that would have been priceless to the Germans."

"No pilot ever mentioned one of these to a human being—to wife, child, brother, father, anybody. If the captain of a German submarine had known what every Sandy Hook pilot knew, the submarine could have appeared off the battery and thrown shells into Wall Street."

"Some of these things are still secrets. One it is permissible to mention."

"There was a great net across the Narrows with a hidden gate. The pilots alone knew where that gate was."

Need of Training

"Is that man a trained singer?"

"I shouldn't say so," answered Miss Cayenne. "He is vocally expert, but personally he still needs a lot of training to keep him from being classified as a wild man."—Washington Star.

AT LAST

A man decided he and his son would take a drive in their new car. As they entered the car, the father said to the boy: "Now, if you see a motor cycle cop coming behind us, you tell Papa."

They settled down to driving and the car crept up to 30 miles, 35, 40, 45, 50, 55 and finally to 60 miles an hour. Suddenly the little boy cried: "Papa, the man you were expecting is here."—Pacific Power and Light Bulletin.

eliminate the DANGER of FIRE and INJURY

COOK the "MATCHLESS" ELECTRIC WAY

Ever consider the danger of fire and possible injury which so easily can happen from the old fashioned cooking methods. No way to regulate the heat and soon you have a red hot stove. What follows? Perhaps, as is often the case the chimney, or the wainscoting on the wall takes fire. Too there is the danger of using matches to light the stove, a match is tossed away still smouldering and you know what follows. Old fashioned stoves, and matches have caused many a little child to carry the marks of burns all its life. Eliminate all this danger now, cook the "Matchless" electric way. No matches, no flames, no over heating.

Lesson for April 20

JESUS TEACHING FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:15-35, or Master Lesson, John 20:1-16.

GOLDEN TEXT—Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaching Forgiveness.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Practice Forgiveness?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Is True Forgiveness?

This lesson touches a most vital subject for our everyday lives. We are always surrounded by wicked men. Ill treatment we shall most surely receive, for all who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution (II Tim. 3:12).

In this lesson we have divine instructions as to our behavior in case of such ill treatment.

I. How to Gain an Erring Brother (vv. 15-20).

A sinning brother is lost. To bring him to a knowledge of his sin and restore him to fellowship in the church is to gain him. One soul is of greater value than the whole world. The method to be used is:

1. Personal (v. 15).

Go alone and tell him his fault. Personal effort is most vital in winning an erring brother. It is usually an effective method.

2. The help of a comrade (v. 16).

"Take with thee one or two more." The presence of one or two comrades helps in making known his fault.

3. Tell it to the church (v. 17).

Sometimes the church can accomplish that which the individual and the comrades fail to do.

4. The binding authority of the church's decision (vv. 18-20).

When the church follows the instruction of the Lord, gathers in the name of Jesus Christ, and is actuated by the Holy Spirit, its decisions are final.

II. Peter's Question (v. 21).

This question was probably occasioned by the ill treatment which Peter was then experiencing at the hands of his fellow disciples. Christ's confession of Peter brought him into the limelight. The question of the disciples, "Who is greatest in the kingdom?" shows that there was some jealousy of Peter among the disciples. This envy and jealousy was known to Peter. His patience being thus tested, he came to Jesus with a question regarding forgiveness. From the Lord's teaching as to the efforts to bring about reconciliation in case of offenses between brother and brother, he knew that the spirit of forgiveness would be required. Peter, disposed to be gracious, inquired, "till seven times?" showing his readiness to forgive his brother not three times, but twice three times, and a little over.

III. Jesus's Answer (v. 22).

This answer was an astonishing revelation to Peter. Jesus said, not until seven times, but until seventy times seven, showing that willingness to forgive should be practically limitless.

IV. The Two Creditors (vv. 23-35).

These two creditors illustrate Christ's principle of forgiveness.

1. The gracious creditor (vv. 23-27).

The king in this parable represents God. The servant who is greatly in debt represents the sinner, any sinner, every sinner—you and me. We were hopelessly in debt to God. Ten thousand talents are equal to some twelve millions of dollars. To meet this obligation would be an utter impossibility. This man's plea for time, promising to pay all, resembles man's vain imagining that he can pay his debt to God, that by his future good works he can atone for past sins.

2. The cruel creditor (vv. 28-35).

The man who was forgiven so much found a man who owed him a small sum—perhaps seventeen dollars. He shut his ears to this man's entreaty to have patience with him, flew at his throat, and cruelly put him into jail. The great mercy shown the one whose debt had been forgiven did not touch his heart, so he refused to be merciful. Being set free from so great a debt as our sins against God, we should not take up some slight consideration against our brothers, but should make God's act of unlimited forgiveness toward us a standard of unlimited forgiveness toward others.

(1) We, every one, continue to need every day the forgiveness of God. When we pray, "Forgive us our debt as we forgive our debtors," let us be sure that we have put away all thought of sin held against others. No mercy will be shown to those who have not shown mercy.

The New Life

On a Living Tree

Inkhorn Precursor of

Modern Fountain Pen

The inkhorn was one of the earliest ink containers in this country. Carried at the belt, this horn of plenty, taken from the head of some neat animal, could be resorted to by the attorney whenever and wherever business met him upon the highways. Another old ink case which was worn at the belt and included the short quill, was made of pressed paper, darkened with gum and oil to the semblance of leather and tooled with designs of tooth-mark and parallel lines. Its height was seven inches and it was made in three parts—the bottom containing the tiny glass bottle measuring about two inches high and one across and carrying a protecting cork, the second part slipping down firmly to cover the bottle, while the third part or top, covered the quill. After many years of use and later oblivion this old ink and quill case comes to light as hard as metal and, only where it rubbed against the wearer's belt, does it betray the fact that it is of ancient, rude paper and not of well-tanned hide.—Marion Nicholl Rawson, in the Boston Transcript.

French Nation Fosters

Time-Keeping Industry

The making of time-keeping instruments is one of the oldest and most highly developed of French industries. When the teaching of apprentices in the shops of watchmakers became inadequate for the development of the trade, professional schools were established, fostered by the state and supported by the industry. In addition, a municipal school of watchmaking was founded at Paris, a nationalized school at Lyons and a private school at Dreux. Each year 100 to 125 watchmakers graduate from these institutions.

The industry has not yet been affected to any extent by consolidation. Many of the factories are little more than workshops, where from 10 to 30 skilled workmen with hand tools and a few simple machines turn out carefully wrought products. It is thought that the small size of French establishments has the advantage of stimulating the worker's creative ability.—New York Times.

Hard and Soft Solders

Soldering operations are classified, according to the composition of the alloy used, as either soft soldering or hard soldering. Solders of low melting points, composed mainly of lead and tin in varying amounts, are known as soft solders, while those of high melting points, composed of varying amounts of copper, brass, zinc, silver and gold, are known as hard solders. The soft solder commonly used is made up of half lead and half tin, and melts at a temperature of 370 degrees Fahrenheit. The more lead there is in this alloy the higher is its melting point, and an alloy composed of one part tin and two parts lead melts at 441 degrees Fahrenheit.

Deadliest of Snakes

The king cobra is much more rare than the hooded cobra, for he is the most poisonous snake in the world. Yet, notwithstanding his rarer occurrence, he is responsible for many of the 20,000 deaths, which, according to official statistics, are caused yearly by poisonous snakes in India alone. A man bitten by a king cobra will rarely live an hour, and death has been known to come within five minutes after the bite. It is remarkable that the king cobra is as immune to the bite of the rattlesnake as he is to the bite of his own species or to that of any snake of his native clime.—Exchange.

Thousand Carat Gem

A sapphire of record size, said to weigh 1,000 carats, is reported to have been discovered near Mogok, in India, in a mine owned by some poor Burmans. The largest sapphire hitherto known was the jewel cut in the shape of a cluster of flowers which was displayed in the Bombay court at the Empire exhibition at Wembley. It weighed 916 carats. For many years the sapphire had been used as a paperweight by an Indian state official, who did not suspect its value and had allowed his children to play with the jewel. It was found to have a history going back to the Twelfth century.

Substances in Rain Water

The composition of rain water varies. Since rain is considered water vapor it would be chemically pure if it did not gather foreign substances from the atmosphere as it falls to the earth. Rain water washes down out of the air, dust, soot, pollen, spores of fungi and similar material. It contains a percentage of dissolved oxygen, nitrogen, ammonia and carbonic acid gas. In falling through the impure atmosphere of cities it sometimes shows traces of nitric acid, sulphuric acid and other components.

Land of Roses

At Blatna, in south Bohemia, Jan Boehm has created such a wonderful rose garden that a visit to it in the early days of September has become an annual event for many visitors from Czechoslovakia, Bavaria, and Austria. Blatna is a small country town, which would not in itself attract the foreigner. But as a "rose town" it can hardly be beaten. Flower parades and flower carnivals are arranged, in all of which the rose occupies the central position.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

MAGPIES

TO SEE one magpie is not so bad, though you may expect no good luck for some time thereafter. To see two magpies is a sign that some enterprise you are engaged in is likely to have an unfortunate ending, or at least that its success will hang a long time in the balance. Three magpies seen together is a most unfavorable omen.

This is a common superstition in northern Europe, including the British Isles, and in this country. Sailors on shore have gloomy forebodings when they see three magpies. Sir Walter Scott tells of a seaman who said to him, "I never saw three magpies but twice. One of those times I nearly lost my vessel and the other time I fell off my horse and was badly hurt. All the world knows that one magpie is bad, two are worse and three the very devil."

Our superstition in this country regarding magpies is an inheritance from German and Scandinavian folklore. In the days when witches flourished they were accustomed to hold high carnival on Walpurgis night—the night before the first of May—and at that time the said witches used to transform themselves into magpies and—according to the Scandinavian mythology—fly to Blakulle to consult the devil. In fact these birds are suspected of having relations with the Spirit of Evil at other times and today when the magpies molt, the Swedish peasants will say that they have been to Blakulle to help the devil get in his hay and his yoke has worn the feathers off their necks.

Much water has passed over the dam since the magpies flew to Blakulle: of the thousands who view the omen of three magpies askance how many ever heard of the place of the legend? Yet this most reprehensible custom of the birds in the dim days of old has given them an evil reputation which, apparently, they will never be able to shake off.

Army's "Weightiest" Report Exceeds 5 Lbs.

Washington.—Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of the army corps of engineers, probably is the author of last year's weightiest book. It is the official report of the corps of engineers, dealing with all of the river and harbor projects of the federal government, and weighs five pounds four and a half ounces. The report is more than nine inches long, better than five inches wide and is nearly four inches thick, printed on unusually thin paper. It contains 2,193 pages, considerably more than a million words.

How He Knew

"You know, dad, he always said he'd never marry until the right girl came along."
"Well, how does he know you are the right one?"
"Oh, I told him I was."

From the Mouth of a Child

"Grandma, close your eyes once."
"Why, my child?"
"Because papa says, 'When grandma closes her eyes we'll get a big bag of money.'"

Mace Not "Mere Bauble"

to British Statesmen

"Take away that bauble," was Cromwell's scornful remark, referring to the mace of the house of commons, and the speaker of the house in the federal capital of Australia must be some refreshing kind of modern Cromwell. Declaring that it is only a relic of barbarism, and represents nothing relating to the crown, he ordered the Canberra mace banished to some store-room, a fate that has struck horror to some in England. Old Subscriber there is writing to the press to say it does represent some flavor of royalty and to inquire whether a weakening of the tie with king and mother country is indicated.

Borrowing from the bundle of whipping rods and an ax head carried before certain Roman officials, the London house has long had an ornate club called a mace as part of its regalia, and the royal arms carved on it are generally held to be merely patriotic embellishment. Though given into the custody of an executive officer between sessions, it is looked upon as the peculiar symbol of the authority of the house itself, which not infrequently has been in collision with royalty. Under the commonwealth a mace was used with carved flowers and cross and globe, but it was hastily discarded after the restoration and a mace, with the old design and the initials of Charles II, "C. R." was substituted, the identical one still in use.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

We're After Luxuries

Frequently one hears that the fight for existence grows harder each year, meaning that it is harder for men to make a living, to get the necessities of life. We do not subscribe to that idea, for never was it easier for a man to get the necessities. The fight of 90 per cent of the people is for luxuries. Almost any man can go out and make a living, get enough food and clothing and shelter so that he will not suffer. But it is the luxuries of life that we all demand and not a mere living. We want motor cars, better clothes, a better education, amusement and a certain amount of leisure time, all of which is laudable and an ambition worthy of our time.—Newcastle Times.

Tree Is Sugar Factory

Plants require the same kinds of food as animals, with the important difference that the plant manufactures its own food and animals obtain theirs by browsing on plants or devouring other animals. The tree is a factory where starches and sugars are manufactured out of substances the tree finds in the earth beneath it, in the air above, and in the sunlight, says Forest and Mankind. There are just three principal groups of food for both plants and animals—carbohydrates, fats and proteins. These are all formed in the living plant, primarily from the simple sugars.

"All depends," said Senator Sorghum, "on what kind of politics he gets into. I know of underworld workers who appear to have learned more in jail than they learned in school."—Washington Star.

Why We Do What We Do

By M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE ENJOY A PRACTICAL JOKE

THE practical joke aims to place some one in an embarrassing position.

We all enjoy seeing a person thrown off his high horse. The situation is really humorous because the person off balance is likely to say and do ridiculous things. It is always a lot more fun to play pranks on one who lacks poise and is easily confused and acts foolish. Boys especially delight to pick on one who is likely to chase them, threatening all sorts of terrible punishment.

The practical joke is often dangerous and sometimes fatal. Among Fourth of July casualties was a victim of a practical joke. A sleeping man was too much of a temptation for some practical joker who placed a firecracker in the man's mouth and touched off the fuse probably with no other motive than to get some fun out of the surprised and embarrassed conduct on the part of the careless sleeper. But the explosion blew out the man's teeth and otherwise injured him severely so that he was removed to the hospital in a critical condition.

We usually refrain from indulging in practical jokes because we regard them as crude and dangerous. But the very need for suppression shows that there is an impulse to indulge. We enjoy the practical joke because the other fellow pays the bills. It is always at his expense. We don't enjoy it a bit when the tables are turned.

The other fellow not only furnished us cheap amusement but he also satisfies our sense of importance at the same time. The fun and elation is in proportion to the embarrassment of the victim. The favorable circumstances in which we find ourselves by contrast tickles us mightily and we laugh.

Woman Given Important Post in Soviet Regime

Moscow.—A woman, Varvara Yakoleva, has been appointed commissar of finance for the Federated Soviet Socialist republics. This is the highest post at present occupied by a woman in this country. Mme. Yakoleva, who is forty-four years old, for years has been assistant commissar of education.

Cactus Well Guarded

Against Its Enemies

Not the shining habiliments of the knights of old, but an outward protection from a too close approach of an enemy, is the covering of the cactus, which pointedly tells the oncomer to beware.

A giant variety is seen at its best in Arizona, not far from Phoenix. It is an unparalleled spectacle. These sashuaro rear their spiked branches as high as 40 feet above the desert. Some are said to be 200 or 300 years old. They retain the perennial greenness of youth and each spring become bride-like in a burst of white blossoms. The yellow centers of the flowers mingle pleasingly with the green.

Other varieties of cacti bear other colors of blossoms. Scarlet and pink, purple and yellow emphasize the beauty of the pure white flowers of the giant trees which tower above and appear to invite and greet their colored friends below.—Exchange.

"Climax" Forests

When undisturbed by man or fire, nature works constantly toward the perpetuation of certain forest types, says Forest and Mankind. These are called climax types, for they represent the type of forest best fitted to survive in that particular place. Although this climax type changes with the region, with altitude, and often with the soil, it is the ultimate type that nature will grow in that particular environment. Even on opposite sides of the same hill we may find different types of climax forest.

More Knowledge Superfluous

It is very difficult to discourage a book canvasser. But one of the tribe met his match when he tackled a solemn looking negro elevator attendant.

The negro listened while the canvasser enlarged on the vast stores of knowledge to be acquired from the work he was offering on the installment plan, uen remarked, quietly: "T'wouldn't be no manner o' use to me, sar. I knows heaps more now dan I gets paid for."

Cautious

Helen Jean was having a good time playing with the neighbor who was calling. Just as the neighbor was leaving she picked up Helen Jean's coat and asked her whether she wouldn't like to go home with her for dinner.

"Just wait a minute," said Helen Jean, "what are you going to have for dinner?"

Baked Beans Give Variety and New Value to Meals

By JOSEPHINE B. GIBSON
Director, Home Economics Dept.,
H. J. Heinz Company

THE time-honored New England custom of serving Baked Beans with Boston Brown Bread and Pickles every Saturday night is spreading in popularity. And this is an excellent time to call attention to the many other attractive ways of serving nutritious food. Baked Bean cutlets are both economical and delicious, while any family would vote steaming bowls of Baked Bean soup or a piping hot Baked Bean rarebit a special treat on a wet, cold night.

Recent experiments in one of our large universities show that Baked Beans are a rich source of copper, a little known but very valuable food constituent. Beans long have been known as a particularly excellent source of iron, and this recent discovery that they contain copper entitles them now to an even larger share of our attention, for the iron in foods functions more efficiently when accompanied by copper.

No doubt the following recipes will suggest many other welcomed ways to include this splendid food in your menus for the family:

Browned Chops with Oven Baked Beans

4 pork chops; 1 can Oven Baked Beans (Vegetarian Style); 1 teaspoon sugar; ½ cup Tomato Ketchup.
Fry pork chops until nicely brown. Pour over them 1 can Oven Baked Beans, add sugar and Ketchup, and mix lightly. Bake in moderate oven about 20 minutes.

Baked Sausages with Oven Baked Kidney Beans

Brown sausage in a skillet. Pour over it 1 can Oven Baked Kidney Beans, and bake in a slow oven for about ½ hour. Place the beans in the center of a hot platter, surround with the sausages, and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Baked Bean Cutlets

2 cups of Oven Baked Beans; 1 cup bread crumbs; 2 eggs; 2 tablespoons butter; salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce, Onion Juice to taste.

Mash finely 2 cups of Oven Baked Beans. Add a cup of bread crumbs, two slightly beaten eggs, and two tablespoons melted butter. Add salt, pepper, Worcestershire Sauce and onion juice to season. Shape into cutlets, dip in crumbs, beaten egg, and crumbs again. Brown in the skillet with three tablespoons fat. Serve with tomato sauce. (Tomato Soup heated and thickened with a small amount of flour makes a good sauce.)

Baked Bean Soup

2 to 3 cups Oven Baked Beans; 1½ quart cold water; 1 ham bone; ¼ teaspoon pepper; 1 stalk celery minced; 1 onion minced; 1 tablespoon butter or fat.

Brown the minced onion in fat, and add to the mashed beans with all other ingredients. Bring slowly to a boil, simmer for 1 hour. Put through colander and serve. This recipe serves six persons.

Baked Bean Rarebit

To two cups of scalded milk, add 1 medium can Oven Baked Beans, Boston Style, which have been mashed finely and blended with 2 rounding tablespoons flour. Cook until thickened, add ½ cup finely chopped American cheese, and stir constantly over a slow fire until cheese is melted. Cook for several minutes. Season with salt and pepper and Worcestershire Sauce. Serve on slices of buttered toast. This is an unusual and delightful supper or luncheon dish.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Items of news from town, or vicinity are always wanted for this column. Especially accidents, sales of real estate, fires, important happenings, visits to or from the community social events, and all matters of general interest to those at home, and away from home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Palmer spent Monday with friends at Medford.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Crouse, of Westminster, visited Mrs. Anna Koutz, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Houck and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Houck, of Walkersville, spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Mary Stover and family.

Mrs. Sarah Albaugh, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Overholzer, at New Midway, and Mr. and Mrs. John Eyer, at Ladiesburg.

Mrs. O. J. Stonesifer and son, Roland, of Union Bridge, spent Sunday afternoon at the home of the former's brother, Mahlon T. Brown, near town.

A special meeting of the Alumni Association of the Taneytown High School, will be held next Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the school building.

Mr. and Mrs. George Humbert, Mrs. Albert Biddinger and Miss Ada Cusick, of Littlestown, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Claude Biddinger, near town.

Posters are up announcing the meeting for making nominations for Burgess and Commissioners, on Monday, April 27, at 8 o'clock. The election will be held on Monday, May 5, from 1 to 4 P. M.

Taneytown High lost a rather weird game of baseball to New Windsor High, last Friday afternoon, the score being 17 to 9. Not many earned runs were made by either side, and Taneytown acted the generous host by presenting the visitors with most of their runs by wild pitching.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myers, Frizellburg, Mrs. Harry Freet near town, and Mrs. J. L. Zimmerman, of town, spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Engle, at Walkersville. Mrs. Engle who returned home from the Hospital, on Monday, is getting along as well as can be expected.

Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Upton C. Dayhoff and family were: Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Plank and children, Lola and Gene, of Westminster; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Weant and son, Ralph, of Emmitsburg; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hahn, near town; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. DeBerry and daughter, Mildred, and Miss Rosaine Hahn, of Detour.

"The Home News" published by the National Lutheran Home for the Aged, Washington, D. C., designated its last issue the "Englar Number" in honor of Rev. George W. Englar, D. D., pastor of Brethren Lutheran church, Pittsburgh, Pa. The number contains seven poems by Dr. Englar, as well as a brief sketch of his life. He is an uncle of Mrs. Walter Hilterbrick, near town.

Mrs. Margaret Angell, of York, aged 98 years, who feels very much at home in Taneytown where she lived so long, is now visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kemper. While here the funerals were held of her old friend, Miss Amanda Wolf, aged 94, and that of her sister-in-law, Mrs. McGuigan, aged 91. Mrs. Angell is in remarkably good health of body and mind for her years.

The news of the death of Harry B. Miller, noted elsewhere in this issue, was received with genuine regret by his numerous friends here. During his residence here he became actively identified with the public and social activities of the town; and though his stay was cut short by ill health, he regarded Taneytown as "home," and it was very fitting that his burial here was by his own request.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Myers and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Myers, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Foutz, of Coppersville, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keefer, near town, visited Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Boyd, near town, on Sunday. Callers at the same place were: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Humbert, Mrs. Albert Biddinger and Miss Ada Cusick, of Littlestown, Pa. Mrs. Boyd who had been ill for some time with rheumatism is somewhat improved.

The Taneytown Chamber of Commerce could do no better thing for the benefit of Taneytown, than to aid the Borough officials in securing the appointment of a competent man for Justice of the Peace, and some local official empowered to make arrests. Taking our local cases to Westminster is not only inconvenient, but may be unsatisfactory as well. Justice is the more likely to be fairly rendered by having a local Court; and it would discourage violations of the law, as well.

Miss Percy Adelaide Shriver is visiting in New York and Philadelphia.

It is reported that L. R. Waesche, of Thurmont, was the lowest bidder on the 2 1/2 mile extension on the Taneytown-Littlestown road.

Mrs. Louisa Fuss, near Emmitsburg, is spending several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hockensmith, and other relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Morlan Warehime and family, of Silver Run, spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bankert, George St.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haifly and family, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Smith and family, and Lawrence Smith, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith and family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harner, daughter, Thelma, and son, Junior; Mr. and Mrs. Luther Harner and sons, Ray and Elwood, near town, spent Sunday with Mrs. John Harner, at Littlestown.

There will be a card party for the benefit of St. Joseph's Catholic church, in the Taneytown Opera House, on Wednesday evening, April 23rd. Hostesses Mrs. James Sanders and Mrs. Joseph Smith. Prizes and refreshments free.

Burglars entered the hardware store of Reindollar Bros. & Co., some time during Wednesday night, by forcing a window opening into the office. The dial knob on the safe was chiseled off, but the door could not be opened. So far as now known, nothing was taken from the store. Perhaps it was the same thief who broke into the cleaning and dyeing shop, on Emmitsburg St., and stole two Men's suits of clothes and $10.76 in cash.

WORLD WAR VETERANS INSURANCE.

The Director of the United States Veteran Bureau, through the Regional Office at Fort McHenry, Baltimore desires to invite the attention of all World War veterans to their privilege in the matter of subscribing to United States Government Life Insurance.

As most veterans will recall the War Risk Term Insurance which they carried while in the service could be maintained only for a limited time after their discharge. The law required that this war term insurance be converted into other forms of insurance prior to a certain date. The time for reinstating and converting it was extended on two different occasions, but owing to the large number of veterans who did not take advantage of the right to reinstate and convert their war term insurance (only one out of seven having done so), Congress again amended the law in a manner which permits any veteran who applied or was eligible to apply for war risk insurance or converted insurance and who is in good health to make application at any time for United States Government Life Insurance up to the maximum of $10,000, but not less than $1,000.

The Government is issuing seven different forms of insurance which are as follows: Ordinary Life, Twenty Payment Life, Thirty Payment Life, Twenty Year Endowment, Thirty Year Endowment, Endowment at Sixty-two, and Five Year Convertible Term. Any firm, person, corporation or legal entity may be designated as beneficiary. Policies are free from restrictions as to residences, travel or hazardous occupations.

If any World War veteran who reads this article has any thought of taking advantage of his Government insurance privilege, he should act at once or impaired health may defeat his rights.

Full information and application blanks may be obtained from the Regional Manager, United States Veterans Bureau, Fort McHenry, Baltimore, Maryland.

FOR CHILDREN'S AID.

The contributions from Taneytown to the County Children's Aid Society, to date, as follows:
Previously reported $82.00
Mrs. Edgar Essig 2.00
Mrs. Allen Sanders 1.00
Miss Anna Davidson 1.00
Rev. Guy P. Bready 3.00
Birnie Trust Co 5.00

Total $94.00
As the quota for Taneytown District is $160.00, it will be seen that $66.00 is the amount still needed. Four of the districts in the county have already met their quota. Why not Taneytown next? Miss Eleanor Birnie or Mrs. Wm. F. Bricker will receive subscriptions.
