THE FAIR NEXT WEEK The Managers Busy Making Necessary Arrangements.

The report has been circulated to some extent that on account of the weather conditions, the Carroll County Fair, may be postponed. This is incorrect. The Fair will be held next week and should the drought continue the management will do all in its power for the comfort of visitors. As the location is elevated, there is apt to be a good breeze, even should the heat continue.

As attractions, Wednesday will be "Democratic Day" with Governor Ritchie, candidate for re-election, present; and Thursday will be "Republican Day," with Mayor Broening, of Baltimore, candidate for Governor

The prospects seem to be that there will be the usual amount of exhibits, and a very large exhibit of cattle. The free attractions Hoaglan's Hip-podrome, will be the best ever shown on the ground.

The night attendance is sure to be very large and even should the heat and drought continue, the nights will e comfortable.

CATTLE OWNERS ARE IN A QUANDARY.

To sell, or not to sell, dairy cattle, is a perplexing question. On the one side is the scarcity of feed and water, and on the other is a market price too low to make selling attractive. Department of Agriculture advises farmers not to sell, except as a forced They claim that meat consumption during the heated term has been extremely light, causing a slack demand for live cattle, and that prices will soon rise again.

But, the country is beginning to believe that the Department merely guesses, like anybody else, in these extraordinary times, and the chances are that individual cattle owners will follow individual opinions. Cattle without feed and water must either die, or be killed. Even with early rains, the pastures are said to be burned out, in many places, beyond recovery this year, while available feed is high in price.

Whether to feed wheat to cattle and save them, or let the cattle go and save the wheat, is a consideration; but, hogs eat wheat too, and so do orses; so the cattle do not have the field clear in the matter of considera-

THE GREAT DROUGHT IS UNBROKEN.

Conditions Daily Become More Intensely Serious.

What everybody knows, is not news, but the drought and heat subject is an overpowering, inescapable one. No one can explain it. ble one. No one can explain it. No one ever saw the like before. No one can estimate its loss, and no one estimate what is yet to come. We give only a few of the high-points of what is a National record-breaking experience.

The greatest forest fire on record in Maryland is raging in the mountain region adjoining Cumberland. It is raging on a 20-mile front on Dan's mountain, and in scarcely less proportions on Wills mountain, the Wills Mountain Inn having been among the buildings destroyed. The territory extends from near Frostburg, including Lonaconing and West-burg, including Lonaconing and West-ernport sections. Nearly 2000 men are engaged in fighting the fire. Fires are also extensive in Virginia.

The U. S. Department of Agricul-ture is making a survey of the wide-spread loss. President Hoover has promised relief measures.

The dairy interests are hard hit, but the canning and fruit interests are close seconds, and in most cases rain now would be too late to be of much value. There are, however, sectional salvages that will mean much to the favored ones. much to the favored ones.

These sections have experienced material relief; Eastern Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Western Nebraska, Southern Kansas and central

The estimates now are that between 75,000,000 and 100,000,000 bushels of wheat will be used as feed. In Illinois and other states farmers are conveying water for miles for house and farm purposes. In some instances milk cans are being returned from the cities filled with water.

Should the drought in Missouri continue another week or ten days a milk shortage is expected in St. Louis and conditions may prove fatal to live stock. The loss in crops and live stock in that State alone was estimated at $100,000,000. The drought has caused the decrease of from 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels of corn, it was estimated.

Pennsylvania is drought-ridden and crops are tinder dry. Temperatures ran as high as 108, registered at Carlisle. A strange combination of blood poisoning and erysipelas has broken out in the State as a result of the heat wave. No deaths have resulted. In Kansas the State Board of Agriculture reported most of the early corn in the Southern and Eastern portions of the State apparently beyond recovery. Pastures are burned and grain sorghum crops are suffering.

What the cost will amount to no-body can foretell, Government experts say. Estimates have been received showing that the staple crops will show a loss of no less than $500,000,-000, as matters now stand. This sum will be increased, of course, with each additional day of drought. Wheat was grown and most of it harvested before the weather condi-tions became acute, Government offi-cials say, and some of them add that there is irony in the fact that the one crop which the Government is trying to cut down is the only one not disastrously affected by the drought.

All of the large railroads of the country have offered President Hoover the assistance of their lines, in helping to lessen the troubles connected with the drought.

Failing Water Supply is Causing General Alarm.

Rigid water restrictions are in force at Brunswick, Middletown, Thurmont, Emmitsburg, New Market, Myersville and other towns of Frederick county. The Monocacy and Potomac rivers are lower than at any time in thirty years. The Monocacy at Frederick Junction has been dammed to supply the tanks of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

In Gettysburg the scarcity of water is acute, the Marsh Creek supply having almost completely failed. Old wells are being opened up and are helping the situation. The town au-thorities are taking unusual precautions against fire, by employing additional firemen to be constantly at

Hanover, Pa., is experiencing a similar situation and is using the same remedies as Gettysburg. Rigid economy of water is in force. FEDERAL FARM BOARD INFORMATION Concerning Feed of Wheat, and Cutting Down Acreage.

The following statement was broadcast by Alexander Legge, Chairman, Federal Farm Board over radio sta-tion WLS, Chicago, Ill., at 12:45, day-light saving time, Monday, Aug. 4th.

"The present severe drought has reached a point where the shortage of feed and forage threatens serious losses to livestock growers and dairy-men over a wide area. The hay crop is the smallest we have had in years. In some sections the corn crop will be reduced 40 or 50 percent or even more Hay stocks are being fed out, and the prospect for sufficient winter supplies of feed is not encouraging. Under these conditions there is danger that farmers will dispose of beef cattle and dairy animals at a sacrifice. If this movement is not headed off may mean that a large number of animals in poor condition will be forced on the livestock markets, and still lower levels of livestock prices.

"While this situation has been developing we have been faced for some weeks with an excessive carry-over of wheat, with continued low wheat prices. Receipts at several of the terminal markets have continued to break all records, despite the fact that if the average grower would carry what he now has on hand over to the next season ne would have a supply at a price substantially less than it would cost him to produce an equal number of bushels in 1931.

"There is absolutely no relief possible from this situation through any of the plans that have been suggested contemplating the disposal of the surplus abroad at prices below the domestic level. Many of the most important wheat importing countries of the world now have legislation in effect that could be applied to prevent mer. or penalize any such action on the part of the growers of this country, and others are seriously considering such action. As we have exactly the same legislation in effect here to protect the American producers, we can not reasonably complain of other nations taking similar action to protect their growers, bearing in mind always that practically every nation has wheat growers of its own.

ADVICE TO SWIMMERS.

Because of the large number drownings that have occurred recently in the State, Mr. W. Perry Bradley, Secretary and Executive of the local organization of Boy Scouts, has outlined, at the request of Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, precautions which should be taken by all swimmers and bathers. Mr. Bradley's recommendations follow:

"From the standpoint of health, there is probably no exercise better calculated to keep the body in good condition than swimming. But certain necessary rules should be observed: First of all, have an examination made by an experienced physician the gray ray have no boart of the standard of the standar cian to be sure you have no heart condition or organic defect that would make indulgence in the sport dangerous. If your physician says that it is safe for you to go into the water, lose no time in learning to swim.

"But: Don't swim right after eating. Wait about two nours.
"Don't swim while overheated. Wait until you have cooled off. "Don't swim until you are completely exhausted. Stop before you are all tired out. "Don't dive unless you are sure the water is deep enough. Serious injury or death is likely to result from fool-hardiness in this respect. "Don't go into the water if you are not well. Think of the other fellow as well as yourself. Colds, pink eye, eye, ear, nose and throat infections and other communicable diseases are spread through swimming pools and bathing beaches "Last year there were 152 deaths from drowning in Maryland. ANOTHER ANNIVERSARY

The 200th. of the Birth of George Washington in 1932.

This country is strong on "celebrating" birthdays, and anniversaries of events—looks ahead for them and meets them on the way. The next big event of this kind will be the celebration of the 200th. anniversary of the birth of George Washington, that will begin on Feb. 22, 1932. A "George Washington Bicentennial Commission" has already been formed in Washington, the object of which is to

Washington, the object of which is to plan "the greatest celebration thus far known in history."

We do not know just what the plans contemplate—nothing of the proposed expense, national, state or popular; but, that a year and a half is considered necessary in which to make preparations, there is evidently found to be an immense expense involved, much of which will likely involved, much of which will likely be expected from State appropriations, which means—taxation—appropriations by state legislatures.

And this brings up an important question, as it indicates mounting, rather than reduced, taxes. It is proposed that this colonyation he Notice. posed that this celebration be National, as well as by the states, the extent of the celebration of course, being left, to individual legislative bodies; but equally "of course" most indus-trially by the Commission having the matter in charge. Just how the Commission originated, does not seem

WATERING TREES.

Trees need watering rather than rees need watering rather than sprinkling during the warm weather season, according to Martin L. Davey, conservationist and head of the Davey Institute of Tree Surgery.

Trees, like human beings, will die far more quickly of thirst than of hunger. When they display signs of impending death that are evident to the layman it may be too late to save the layman it may be too late to save them. The only safe rule, according to Davey, is to keep trees adequately watered throughout the entire sum-

Sprinkling for a brief period in the evening, in real hot weather does not help trees at all, Davey explains. It may even do harm to them by attracting the new roots too close to the surface of the ground.

Proper watering is made possible by perforating the soil with a spading fork to the full depth of the tines. A series of these perforations should be made in the circumstance described by the spread of the branches. At least once every two weeks in the summer, water should be run into the perfora-tions for several hours. During a drought this should be done at least

The drought of last year weakened the vitality of most trees so that their battle against this season's arid weather is of special importance. In addition to an ample supply of water most trees should be fed this year with a high grade of tree food.

CATTLE DIE FROM THIRST.

Kraft Bros., beef butchers of near Ellicott City, several weeks ago pur-chased a small drove of steers for fattening. When the cattle arrived at their farm, these gentlemen turned them into a field used for that purpost, and one day this week, when Mr. Kraft went to see how they were getting along, he found fourteen of them dead in the field. Searching for the cause, he found that a branch, which had always watered the cattle, had dried completely, and the animals had died from thirst.

UNAPPRECIATED COSTS OF THE WEATHER.

The very remarkable and unusual heated term that we have been passing through, costs more than we imagine. We can easily see the loss to the crops, the gardens, the lowered streams, and drying up vegetation in general; but what we do not so readily see and estimate is our loss in energy—the things that are being left go undone; the plans we would normally be working out; the lack of interest that overcomes us generally.

The effect of the heat and drought combined has even had a discouraging influence over engaging in our picnicking and pleasuring. It has caused much loss to business of various kinds, and has brought about a feelfor a long while.

In short, it has taken the "pep" out of us-something like the effect of what we call "Spring fever," and perhaps in some instances, personal vitality has been lowered almost beyond replacement.

Of course, it is more or less the common thing, for us to be influenced by our surroundings—by contact, by example, habit, temptation and the like. We are affected especially by the things we see and hear, that are disagreeable. But at this particular time, just one thing, "the weather," qualifies in full as a champion demoralizing influence.

WHERE WAS THE RAIN?

One of the most difficult facts to accept, is, that every particle of matter, and every drop of moisture that was in the world at its creation, is still in it somewhere, in some form. A large building weighing hundreds of tons may be destroyed by fire, with only ly, this principle is still in effect in ashes and bits of junk remaining, and our states. Actually, however, we has remained within the radius of the attraction of gravitation. Somewhere

This is true with application to the drought—the lack of rainfall. Where is the rain? Possibly there are sections, somewhere in the world, where rainfall has been as excessive as our drought. It must be somewhere, for the very good reason that it could not get off the planet, and be lost, without upsetting entirely the law of gravitation of all things toward the centre of the earth, which would in turn upset the regulation of the universe.

Both solids and liquids may change their form-they do. Even the air has weight, and at different times has different weights; and different liquids also have different weights, unless our understanding of the laws of physics are at fault, but pure air and pure water we understand to be practically unchangeable, so far as weight and bulk are concerned; but not in so far as their shifting about is concerned.

And, it is this "shifting" that makes the big problem, and the difficulty in answering our question-"Where was the rain" when we needed it so much?

FAMILY REUNIONS.

One of the finest new social developments in recent years, is the now very general "Family Reunion" that is held annually, during the months of July and August, mostly at the same place each year, or turn about at two or more places. Many of them are held on Sunday, often preceded by a brief religious service, while many are held on week-days and are more on the pic-

Out of some of these family reunions the compilation and publication of a Family History has developed, tracing the family name-or a particular branch of it-back to the original stock in England, Germany, France, Switzerland-or to the country from which the family emigrated; which, if well and carefully done, makes a most interesting volume to be handed down to future generations

Whatever the plan may be, if the organization is substantially founded and officered, the day must be one of general benefit and social enjoyment. And, this is proving to be the rule, as previous one, and members of families come to know each other better and become better friends.

The finest feature, perhaps, about the reunions is that the most prominent members are apt to take the leading part; and while mere family name, or the length of its known descent, or the "blue-blood" of some of its old-timers, are not things to be overly vain about, we do, almost unconconsciously perhaps, find something to be properly pround of in our 'family tree" and our reaction to this is an inspiration for ourselves and our families to "live up to" the best history and tradition that has preceded

The most important family history for each one of us, is our own. What our ancestors did of fame or honor, or how highly they stood as citizens in any walk of life, carries no credit to us. It is for us to live up to the best, and to overcome the worst, that has preceded us in our line. We live our own lives, and furnish the facts for our own history.

POPULATION AND FOOD.

So far as we know as yet, the poplong ago, it was 75,000,000, and later the past ten years, the increase has been around 17,500,000, and from these figures speculation as to the future may run into astonishing figures, entailing many problems too deep for the human mind to solve.

One of the strange accompanying results of this rapid growth in our population-without considering the rest of the world-is, that food products are increasing more rapidly ing of discouragement that will last than its consumption. And in spite of this, we are inventing many ways | gerous places and curves? Have you of living longer, and decrying wars. We are fighting disease with increasing success, to the end that more food will be consumed percapita, and our recent peace efforts with the nations of the world have the same end in view.

What is to be done about the prospect, is a question that we need not worry about, even if it appears that the trend of the times, worldwide, is against the business of producing food. We need not worry about it, because worry can accomplish nothing. There are some things that are simply infinite, and this is one of them.

FAIR TAXATION.

The principle behind all democratic systems of taxation is that the cost of government should be equitably distributed over all property in accordance with its value. Theoreticalwe say the building "went up in have strayed far away from it. Cer- what's ahead of him so he will know noke," but every ounce of the weight | tain types of property have been tax- how to proceed? A small, simple, ed out of all proportion to their val-

Hardly a single year passes without agitation of some sort to levy more of the tax burden against the 'corporations"—as if they had some magical way of creating wealth and didn't have to take it from the pockets of those to whom they sell services or commodities. Inequitable taxation benefits no one in the long run. It discourages industry and is a detriment to steady employment, good wages and high living standards for workers. It amounts, in effect, to class legislation. No business is entitled to prosper at the expense of another business.

It is safe to say that a great many of our economic problems would be at least partially solved if we returned, in fact as well as theory, to the principle that taxes shall be distributed fairly among all property.-The Manufacturer.

OTHER.

The Baltimore Observer, a little weekly, is mainly a sort of political "yellow jacket" out of which we get some pictures both on the inside and outside of state politics, and at times more than passing thought, one of which is the following:

a great daily paper we shall issue or-ders to all our assistants to avoid getting excited over the movements of the thermometer. We will try to educate them to the fact that in the United States of America very few are killed by the cold or the heat. And also that most of the deaths published as being due to the heat are caused by something else.

Nor shall we try by constant repetition to make our readers believe that times are very hard and that the crops have failed and that the farmers are starving to death."

The first paragraph seems to imply that what everybody knows, is not news, so why talk about it? and | the past several years. the second is a reminder that there is no use in encouraging a grouch over something that can't be helped-no use in "meeting trouble half way." And we agree with both of these as-

ward to and better attended than the | "a great daily paper" we would suggest that the bathing season is rather over-worked, so far as pictures of nude beauties are concerned, because "legs is legs" and they are commonly seen everywhere. A bathing beauty without legs, would be real news.

And another feature that "a great daily" might with propriety let up on, is continually telling the public of the horrible examples of prohibition, and soft-pedaling on its many good features, even when so poorly enforced because of the moral aid to the wet forces so prominently paraded by one must almost ask-How much do they get for it?

'NO PARKING OPPOSITE WHITE LINE."

Touring over the roads of other States makes us revise our notions about the Maryland system of highways. At one time we sang praises about our fine roads and the whole country joined in the chorus. There were none better. We have been frantically clinging to that idea. We wanted to believe it, because of our pride in home things. But the truth is other States have been going ahead ulation of the United States is in of us in road building so that our road round figures 123,000,000. Not so system is no longer a source of such great pride. And to see how they 100,000,000. The estimate is that in have been doing the job in some sections with wider and better thoroughfares makes us feel rather depressed that we are not keeping up with the

But that is a big system. The particular thing we have in mind today is much more simple. It is the matter of danger and caution signs. After coming home from other sections, have you not been impressed with the need of something better on our own roads to guide the traveler as to dannot gotten the feeling that those who have marked our highways are obsessed with the idea that the most important of all considerations in using the State highways is not to park opposite the white lines? One would think that our roads are frequented the most by those whose primary object is to park.

Some time ago when tires were not so good, there may have been need for such signs, as one never knew just when or where he had to change a tire. But the would-be parkers on curves and brows of hills are few and far between. Do you know of any spooners who would stop their car opposite the white line? They do foolish things, and not infrequently, but where are the lovers who would stoop to such indiscretions? The idea of parking opposite the white line!

And those clumsy "Warning Curve" signs. Who knows which way to go when they see them? Why not give the traveler some information of inexpensive sign with an arrow showing which way the road turns would be a great improvement. Some of our roads do not have enough signs to indicate the dangers of the road. If we could eliminate some of those "Don't park" signs, we would have room for signs that are worth while. -Frederick News.

AS PROHIBITION FACES ITS SU-PREME TEST.

When the re-organization of the Federal enforcement agencies went into effect the first of July it was widely recognized that national prohibition was about to undergo its supreme test. To the wet contention that prohibition never could be adequately enforced the Drys had been replying that it had never been given a fair chance because of the illogical, inefficient system of administration, the weakness of the personnel, numerically and in other respects, and the ONE LITTLE WEEKLY TO AN- failure of State and local authorities to co-operate with the Federal officials.

A month ago the main enforcement activities were transferred from the Treasury to the Department of Justice, the Treasury retaining supervision over industrial alcohol permits. some other things that are worth The burden of detecting and prosecuting bootleggers, rum-runners, illicit distillers and other violators of the "When it comes our turn to direct prohibition laws was at last placed where President Hoover had insisted it should be.

> A new Director of Prohibition, Colonel Woodcock, with a reputation for ability and aggressiveness, tempered by common sense, was appointed to operate the improved machinery. And this week, after a month's experience, at a meeting of his principal assistants he made a declaration of his policies and, incidentally, of the manner in which he proposes to remove the handicaps under which enforcement has been struggling for guarded against by the institution of a brand-new policy. It suggests also Mr. Hoover's recognition that the 'experiment noble in motive" is still on trial and will probably stand or fall, according to the success or failure of this latest plan on which he has set his hopes. He is evidently determined to meet the criticism from both Wets and Drys that real enforcement has never been tried. At the same time, he is resolved to remove the causes of complaint that have resulted from over-zealous and unwise methods of enforcement and illegal "great dailies," to the extent that interferences with the rights of citi-

> It has long been apparent that if national prohibition is ever to be enforced, it must be along the lines laid down by Colonel Woodcock for his subordinates. It is a waste of effort for officials to concern themselves with the "pitiful, picayunish, noncommercial cases," as he calls them, instead of getting after the main sources of illicit liquor. The practical effect of this petty snooping and harassing of "slight and casual" offenders has been to strengthen public hostility toward the prohibition laws. The director recognizes this when he refers to the "blunders and misconduct of agents and investigators." which he traces to lack of care in selecting and training the prohibition personnel. A few days ago representatives of a number of dry organizations had the wisdom to condemn these methods as inimical to the cause which they support.—Phila. Ledger.

Scot Saw Possibilities of Under-Water Craft

The story of the evolution of underwater boats seldom makes mention of a Scotsman's idea which, had it been translated into practical form, might have given Scotland the honor of producing the first submarine, says a writer in the Weekly Scotsman. That distinction falls, actually, to a Dutchman, Cornelius Van Drebbell, who constructed a submersible craft which was tried out on the River Thames, near London, in the early part of 1624, but did not prove much of a success.

It is a remarkable fact that nearly thirty years before Van Drebbell's invention John Napier of Merchiston, the celebrated inventor of logarithms, announced that he had in mind a similar innovation in methods of navigation. In a pamphlet which he published in Edinburgh on June 7, 1596, Napier referred to "devices of sailing under the waters," which he "hopes to perform." He does not appear to have attempted to realize that hope, however, and no more is heard of the idea of a Scottish submarine which, we may take it, would have given the Firth of Forth an additional measure of fame.

Women Doctors Banned by Colonial Lawmakers

Though American women have gained, in recent years, considerable prominence in the medical profession, their achievement has not been effected without effort, writes Capt. John Lee Maddox in the New York Evening Post. About the year 1638 Mrs. Jane Hawkins was threatened with deportation from the Colony of Massachusetts if she did not get out within three months, and she was warned not to meddle, in the meantime, with surgery, physic, plasters or oils.

Again, about the year 1750, a Boston physician wrote concerning a piece of recent medical legislation: "It was one of the happiest fruits of improved medical education that by this bill females were excluded from the practice of medicine, and this only had been effected by the united and persevering efforts of some of the most distinguished men in the profession. The act enjoined women not only from the general practice of medicine, but also from that of obstetrics."

Beautiful English Cathedral

England's most beautiful cathedral, at Salisbury, has been called England's finest poem in stone. It is, indeed, the most harmonious and best proportioned of the English cathedrals, for it was built within the short space of 40 years (1220-1260), where many others have taken centuries to complete them. It is a pure example of early English architecture, unalloyed by foreign influence. Its spire, rising from the very middle of the church. is the loftiest in England.—Detroit News.

Not So Modern

Youth sometimes finds it isn't so strictly modern in its ways after all. A high school lad was making some mysterious telephone calls at home. He talked in that strange, garbled language known as "pig latin," so that his mother wouldn't understand his conversation. For a week the strange words echoed over the family telephone. Then suddenly the telephone conversation went back to straight English. The boy's mother knew the "lingo" well. "Why we used to talk it when I went to school," she told her son.-Detroit News.

CHURCHLY WAYS LAND MAN IN JAIL

Is Recognized as Man Wanted on Bigamy Charge.

New York.—A man was arrested because he went to church recently and now is held in $3,000 bail. He faces the possibility of not attending church, outside prison walls, for quite a while.

John Willis, seventy-six, is a pious man. Being out of work he dropped in one week day afternoon to a session of the New York Methodist Episcopal conference, taking place in the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Eighty-sixth street and Park avenue. There Rev. L. B. Haines recognized Willis as a man for whom he performed a marriage November 23, 1928, a marriage he later learned was bigamous. Reverend Haines went outside and called a policeman who returned with him and arrested Willis. Willis' latest spouse appeared in court and signed the complaint against her husband.

Willis married Mrs. Molly Smith, then living at 573 Palisades avenue, Weehawken, July 3, 1917, according to the charges. He admitted to police that he left her because her grown son by an earlier marriage habitually abused him.

After marrying the later Mrs. Willis, who was then Mrs. Ella Acker, sixty-three years old, of 558 West One Hundred and Seventieth street, Willis said she found bills in his pocket addressed to his former wife. She confronted him with the bills and he admitted his earlier marriage. He then left the city, after six weeks of married life, and his wife had not heard from him until phoned by the minister who caused the arrest.

Willis, who is a former dry goods merchant, was loud in his praise of his most immediate wife and present complainant. He said he thought he should be punished for deserting her. His chances are excellent.

England's Unexplored Caves

An archeologist says there are numbers of caves yet to be explored in England with good prospects of "finds" throwing light on prehistoric periods. In Derbyshire at least a dozen caves have been explored for the first time. Here there were human jaws and other bones, remains of cave bears, and antlers of the giant elk, a creature from ten to thirteen feet high, which is not to be met with in Derbyshire nowadays. Cave exploration is an exciting pursuit, and its results in various parts of the world have added a great deal to the knowledge of early man and the beasts he had to contend with.

A Mistake

Architects, whom I admire chiefly because they have the knack of figuring out in advance just where the hot water pipe will go in every one of 200 apartments in a building, do make mistakes sometimes. I went backstage at one of the newer and better theaters the other night to speak solemn words with a comedian, and found him in a funny little coop of a dressing room. "Not much for a star, is it?" he said. "When they built the theater they didn't figure on dressing rooms, and had to put them in later." (©, 1930, Bell Syndicate.)

"When herds of either beef cattle or dairy stock are unduly depleted by such conditions as are now threatening, it takes years to work back to a normal position. Bankers and business men in agricultural communities are warranted in extending every assistance possible to help cattle growers and dairymen to purchase the feed necessary to maintain their herds. The Farm Board receives thousands of letters from business men expressing sympathy for the farmer and interest in the agricultural problem, and asking what they can do to help. By rendering aid to the livestock men in this emergency they will be helping in a very substantial way.

"While the use of wheat for feeding purposes will help in meeting the present emergency, the growing of wheat for livestock can not be considered as a profitable enterprise under normal conditions. The only way to improve the wheat price situation permanently is to work definitely to-ward reduction of the annual wheat production of the United States.

"The Federal Farm Board is receiving many communications from people throughout the wheat-growing section to the effect that the American farmer is planning to make a substantial reduction in the acreage seeded to wheat this Fall. It seems rather certain this will be done, not merely because this Board has suggested such action, but for the more convincing reason that even low-cost producers can not raise wheat profitably at present prices.'

Anesthetic in Capsules Being Tested by Doctors

New Orleans.-Doctors here have described a new anesthetic with which they had been experimenting during the last year. "Take these," a hospital nurse may say, and give the patient three capsules that look like quinine but contain sodium amytal, the new sleep-inducing anesthesia.

After a comfortable sleep of five or six hours the patient may ask, "When is the doctor going to operate?" This will probably sound odd to the nurse, for the doctor has operated almost immediately after the capsule dosing.

The new anesthetic has not been put on the market yet, but its continued success will bring a great demand for it soon, doctors said.

It is best used in combination with ether and some of the older anesthetics, it is explained. "This counteracts the spasmodic awakening that usually accompanies the use of amytal alone, and induces a long continued sleep."

'It's advantages are obvious," doc tors claimed. "The patient misses the uncomfortable hours of nausea immediately following the operation. Amytal is sleep producing rather than pain resisting. It is a sort of hypnotic anesthesia."

ried a flaming cross. Righteously indignant, the militant minister of the gospel threw open his front door and made a rush toward the intruders. Amazed and dismayed, they dropped their flaming cross and

OLD-TIMER RECALLS STAGE COACH DAYS

Says 72 Miles 8 Hours Was Hard Work

Glacier Park, Mont.-Jack Brown, veteran Glacier park guide, used to "drive" on a western stagecoach line in the days of horse-drawn vehicles and he gives some interesting information about life in the West in those days. He says:

'When I came to Montana it was a territory and travel, of course, was all either by horseback or by the old horse stagecoach. All these coaches were Concords, drawn by six horses. We lived on the old Holiday line. The coaches ran night and day from Helena to Corrine, Utah. As a boy I used to mingle with the drivers a good deal and when I was twelve years old I could pull the ribbons on a six better'n a green hand.

Changed Horses Often.

"My first job at stage driving was on the old Allard line in 1891. We used to make the round trip, Ravalli to Polson Landing, which was seventy-two miles, in eight and one-half hours. We changed horses four times. That may look slow to automobile drivers today, but when you've sat perched up on one of those high coaches that distance and handled six horses that are nearly all bronchos, you'll find that the motorist at a wheel has a pretty easy time of it.

"I never was held up while driving stage, but I've had my piano players up several times in my life in the West and I know how it goes. I know that it's an occasion when even a woman wouldn't argue much.

"One time when driving stage I had a lady riding up on top with me, and she said: 'Mister Driver, how is it you've got such a ruddy complexion?' I just kicked a bottle of Old Crow from under a mail sack at my feet and said: 'There's the paint I use, lady.' It was rather a chilly day and I found that I had to paint her face several times before we got in. It just showed that all good drinking people in the West in those days weren't stage drivers. However, all good stage drivers were good drinking men. Seemed like it was the qualifications to drink, hold yer head and the hosses, as they used to say face-

Horses Still Have Place.

"Of course, the horse is out of date now in most places, but I still find lots of places in the old West where a good saddle horse is the best means of travel. Bad roads and trails have no terrors for the old cow pony. We had some good ones in the old cattle days in Montana. I rode one horse eighty-two miles in one day once. I guess even Teddy Roosevelt would've admitted that was too much for one horse, but when the sheriff don't like a fellow it makes it necessary to leave lots of country behind you. I made that ride in nine hours. I suppose the motorist of today would laugh at that as slow driving, but I swear I thought I got along at a lively clip.

"In the earlier frontier days of freer personal libertles the cowpunchers didn't think anything of riding forty miles across country to a dance. And we took the girls along with us. Guess they must've been tough girls, because I know now, when guiding tourists through Glacier Park in the summer time, after some of 'em have ridden nine miles they're ready to eat their supper off'n the mantel. But, then, these are automobile riding days and not many people are used to horseback riding."

Fountain Pen Pistol

Rouses Gotham Police

New York .- An innocent-appearing fountain pen pistol found on a Chinese could be converted into one of the deadliest of short range weapons by substituting a lead bullet for the tear gas cartridge the pistol was designed to shoot, Detective Harry Butts, police department ballistics expert, reported to Commissioner Whalen and Chief Inspector O'Brien, after an experiment.

A .38-calibre lead slug fired by the pistol was split in half, lengthwise, by a steel wire in the tube. At one foot the halves tore through a board seven-eighths of an inch thick. The effect was that of a dum-dum bullet. for the holes were larger at the point of exit. The holes were three inches

The bullet is projected by a powerful spring. The wire is intended to break the gas cartridge, releasing its contents.

The pen-pistol is manufactured in Chicago, and sells for $7.50. Police intimated they would attempt to have the weapon barred from New York. The pistol in the test was found on Yee Kim, who was arrested in the Bronx on March 15 by Detective Herman Rave. Detective Butts will demonstrate the gun in Bronx special sessions, when Yee Kim goes on trial.

Rothschild Maxims Put

in Alphabetical Order

The following maxims were hung in Baron Rothschild's bank where he could show them to ambitious young men: Attend carefully to details of your business; Be prompt in all things; Consider well, then decide positively; Dare to do right, fear to do wrong; Endure trials patiently; Fight life's battles bravely, manfully; Go not into the society of the vicious; Hold integrity sacred; Injure not another's reputation, nor business; Join hands only with the virtuous; Keep your mind from evil thoughts; Lie not for any consideration; Make few acquantances; Never try to appear what you are not; Observe good manners; Pay your debts promptly; Question not the veracity of a friend; Respect the counsel of your parents; Sacrifice money rather than principle; Touch not, taste not, handle not intoxicating drinks; Use your leisure time for improvement; Venture not upon the threshold of wrong; Watch carefully over your passions; Extend to every one a kindly salutation; Yield not to discouragement; Zealously labor for the right.

Marvels of Space Who can comprehend the distance of "twelve millions of billions of miles" at which a picture, reproduced in the Sphere, was taken of a spiral nebula in Ursa Major-familiarly known as The Plough? Even astronomers find such figures unwieldly, sothey cut them down, in drastic manner, to "light-years" of measurement. This is a trifling unit of six million million miles, making Ursa Major, in easy language, only 2,000,000 lightyears away from us! Incidentally, that means the light we see left The Plough two million years ago.

Cape Hatteras Claims

Three-Masted Vessel

Ocracoke, N. C.-Cape Hatteras has claimed another victim in the threemasted schooner Levinia M. Snow, pushed into the breakers and onto the beach by a "sou'easter."

The vessel will never sail the seas again. It has been sold for $450 to four Hatteras residents, who bid it in at auction.

Capt. John A. Stevens, the master, has returned to his home in Rockland, Maine, where the craft was built 37 years ago.

A coast guard cutter from Norfolk attempted to remove the Levinia M. Snow, but failed. The captain and his crew of five men were rescued by means of a breeches buoy.

The vessel will be stripped by its present owners.

Roger Williams' Home

Providence (R. I.) was founded in 1636 by Roger Williams, who bought a tract of land from the Narragansett sachems and built a house at the confluence of the Moshassuck and Woonasquatucket rivers, and with a few followers set up a town government. In 1637, after a few more settlers had arrived, the plantation covenant was adopted embodying a complete separation of religious and civil affairs. It was incorporated as a town by the colonial assembly in 1649. The name of Providence was chosen by Roger Williams in recognition of "God's merciful providence unto me in my dis-

Fascinating Monkey

Uncle Charlie was showing little Lavonne through the zoo. When in the monkey house, he could hardly get her away from the cage of an extremely ugly monkey. Finally he asked, "Do you like him, Lavonne?" "No," she answered. "Then why do you want to stay here?" Uncle Charlie asked. "I don't know," she said, "I just have to." After going through the rest of the zoo, Lavonne wished to go back to the monkey house. "Which one do you want to see?" Uncle Charlie asked. "The one with the sad face," she answered solemnly.

Why We Do What We Do by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE RATIONALIZE

A NYONE can think up good reasons for doing what he really wants to do.

You know you cannot afford that new car at this time but if you want it badly you think up all sorts of reasons why you must have it right away. For example such perfectly convincing argument that you need it in your business, that it will be an investment in creating greater prestige among the people who count, etc. We do the same for a new expensive dress or a yacation trip or anything else.

No doubt many a criminal justifies his act before hand. If it is murder he is contemplating he might justify the act on the grounds that he is doing the world a favor by putting such a scoundrel out of the way.

Thinking up reasons for doing what you really want to do is sometimes called rationalizing or rationalization. We rationalize or justify an act or the motive for the act. Frequently It is a means of easing conscience and also of preparing arguments for others who might question us about it or whom we imagine might question us. We rationalize to convince the inner self that we are right when all the while we know we are wrong.

The reason we do what we do is primarily because we want to do those things but we often want things that are not good for us or for our reputation or for our conscience: Hence the tendency to rationalize. Rationalization means covering up the true motive, dressing up the ugly wish with a nice looking suit so that It looks good.

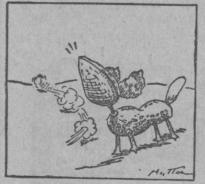

Many of our motives are decidedly against the dictates of conscience and the social taboos. We dare not allow those things to appear in our lives in their true light. We would suffer loss of pride and self respect if we We rationalize as a means of avoiding criticism both from within and from without.

NUTTY NATURAL HISTORY + BY HUGH HUTTON +

THE ALASKAN ARFF

THE peculiarity of this beast lies I in its curious method of locomotion. An arff will happen to be out in the middle of an Alaskan prairie and, feeling lonely, will raise his head to howl. He catches sight of his tail, however, and at once leaps over backward for it. He leaps again and again, always missing it, but turning faster and faster. When his speed reaches 2,300 R. P. M. he throws in the clutch and zip! off he goes across the prairie. Arffs often hit as high as 75 miles per hour and would afford wonderful transportation for the Alaskans if some one could invent a harness that would work.

The arff is put together rather easily, as all you need is an almond kernel for the head, a double peanut body, clove legs, cornflake ears and puffed rice tail.

MOVING THINGS AROUND

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

SHE'S always moving things around. Why, just last night a chair I found That she had put against the wall Where once there wasn't one at all. Of course, I'd not have minded that, A chair, or where she put it at, Or anything she chose to park, But I found this one in the dark.

She's always moving things about. I find she took the cookies out Of that blue jar, and that's all right, But I went out there just last night To lunch before I went to bed And she had put in lard instead. Now, I like cookies, as I say, And even lard, but not that way.

Gone to the Dogs

It was one of those houses which seem to spring up overnight. The landlord had called to collect the rent, only to be met by an irate tenant demanding a new front door.

"New front door? What ever do you mean?" the landlord gasped, equally indignant. "Why, man, it's a new house.'

"Yes, I know," replied the tenant, "but I merely tied my dog to the door knob-a cat went by-and now we haven't got a front door!"

Lesson for August 10

HANNAH, A GODLY MOTHER

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 1:9-18, 24-28; 2:19.
GOLDEN TEXT—My son, hear the instruction of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother.

PRIMARY TOPIC-Hannah's Prayer JUNIOR TOPIC-Hannah's Prayer

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOP-IC-How Can We Honor Our Parents? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—The Value of a Godly Home.

1. Hannah's Sore Trial (1:1-8). Elkanah had two wives in violation of God's law. God's primal thought for man was one wife. Therefore, for Adam he made Eve. Hannah's sore trial grew out of jealousy which naturally springs up between two women, wives of one man. The violation of this law of God concerning marriage has always been attended with trouble.

II. Hannah's Prayer (1:9-18). She had the good sense to take her troubles to the Lord. This believers should do, even though the troubles result from sin. 1. Her bitterness of soul (v. 10). Though Elkanah loved her and sought to lighten her burden, he was unable to bring to her the needed solace.

2. Her vow (v. 11). Hannah prayed, asking God for a son. The name Samuel means "asked of God." In connection with her asking this gift from God, she vowed to give the child back to God. Much can be expected of children born into the world under such circumstances. 3. Hannah misjudged by Eli the priest (vv. 12-16).

The priest observing the motion of her lips and not hearing the sound of her voice concluded that she was intoxicated and demanded that she put away wine. She defended herself against this inference.

4. Blessed by Eli (vv. 17, 18). Following her explanation he pronounced a blessing upon her, joining in the prayer that God would grant her petition. III. Hannah Gives Samuel to the Lord (vv. 24-28). For a time she cared for Samuel in the home. Always the best nurse for a child is its mother. According to her vow, at an early age she took Samuel to the sanctuary and gave him over to the charge of Eli, the priest, to minister therein. We thus see in his tender years Samuel's ministering before the Lord.

IV. Samuel's Ministry (ch. 3).

1. His call (vv. 1-10). (1) The occasion.

From his birth Samuel was dedicated to the service of the Lord. While going about his regular duties the Lord spake unto him. In Samuel we have a striking pattern of child religion. In the Scriptures we have set forth two types of experience: First, the one who experiences God's saving grace after having lived in sin; second, the one brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord from infancy.

(2) His obedience. When the divine voice was discerned Samuel rendered immediate obedience. He expressed his willingness before he knew what was required. He did not inquire what was wanted and then let his obedience depend upon the agreeableness of the command. 2. Samuel's prophetic message (vv.

The time has now come for him to pass from the authority of Eli to that of the Lord. The first message entrusted to him was a most terrible one. He hesitated to tell it to Eli, but being pressed, he manifested true courage. It must have been a bitter experience to Eli to see Samuel recognized and himself passed by. This fearful visitation of judgment upon Eli's house was due to the sins of his sons. Eli was held responsible for not restraining them. He seems to have been a good man but lax in the discipline of his children. Parental laxity is most cruel. To tolerate evil When one has the power to restrain It is to become party to it.

V. Samuel Established in the Prophetic Office (3:19-21).

"And Samuel grew, and the Lord was with him, and did let none of his words fall to the ground. And all Israel from Dan even to Beersheba knew that Samuel was established to be a prophet to the Lord." Little did Hannah know that the boy who had been given in answer to her prayer Would one day become the spiritual head of the nation. Truly, he that honors God shall be honored by God.

Character Most Important

The great equipment of the soul-Winner is character. It is a false notion that we must meet the world on its own level-drink to win the drinker, smoke to win the smoker, and play the world's games in order to win it to Christ.—Richard Hobbs

An Offering

Mirth is the sweet wine of human life. It should be offered sparkling with zestful life unto God .- Henry Ward Beecher.

Rock Oddly Carved by

Erosion of Centuries If there is any character that predominates in the infinite variety of form and outline among the smaller Galapagos islands, it is perpendicularity. They seem to specialize in it.

On some of them the rock walls, rising directly out of deep water, are so nearly vertical that a landing could be made upon them only with great difficulty, if at all. On some I imagine no human foot has ever trod.

In many cases the waves have cut the shore line inward in a deep groove, so that at ten or twenty feet above low water the rock actually overhangs, and one walks or crawls, if he can keep his feet at all, under a sort of stone portico whose roof is carved into innumerable coigns and arches and inverted pinnacles of the most fantastic form.

Not seldom the unceasing erosion of the waves has worn the rock away into huge caverns and flying buttresses and natural bridges, and here and there a great promontory or a whole island, like Watson island or Kicker rock, has been pierced clear through from side to side in a passage high and wide enough to take a boat.—Gifford Pinchot in the Saturday Evening Post.

Millions Thrown Away

by Wasteful Methods How much water is wasted by a driping tap? An answer was provided when New York decided to levy a fine of two dollars for every tap found leaking. In two years 40,000,000 gallons of water were saved. It seems absurd to worry about the amount of steam wasted when a locomotive blows a whistle. But Doctor Foley of Indiana university has calculated that 2,434,026 tons of coal are consumed annually in generating steam to blow United States locomotive whistles, and that if the whistles were moved slightly forward and adapted to a single high-pitched note, more than 1,000,000 pounds a year could be saved. But this loss is small compared with that involved in throwing into the dustbin cinders that would still give a lot of heat. It is estimated that a third of the cinders thrown away retain from 50 to 70 per cent of their heating value.

Dogs' Instincts Changed

The wolf dog undergoes a decided change of nature in the service of Uncle Sam's rangers in Glacier National park. These dogs, bred down from the wolf that attacks and kills wild deer, now haul hay on sledges to the various feeding stations where the government rangers scatter hay for famishing deer when winter leaves only a sparse supply of natural food for them. It is related that two fawns came within "camera shot" of one of these dog-sledge trains in the mountain forest en route with a supply of hay. These fawns followed the dogs with their burden, and the ranger reported he dropped off a large wisp of hay to hold 'em while he stepped back and took pictures with a kodak.

How Fledgling Cuckoo

Ousts Its Bedfellows Early birds, says the New York Times, lured north by early spring warmth, do well to avoid cuckoos as neighbors when they start nest build-

The cuckoo mother lays its egg in the nest of some other bird and flies away without another thought for the cares of motherhood. The fledgling, newly hatched, rewards the hospitality of its hosts by shoving their eggs out of the nest and wolfing all of the food the devoted pair continue to bring to the nest.

Fresh proof of the unsocial habits of the cuckoo was brought forward at a meeting of the Linnean society in London by an English scientist. Last summer he photographed the young birds in the very act of ousting their bedfellows.

The pictures taken show that the bird slips one wing under the egg, rolls it up on his back and then slowly shoves it up to the edge of the nest and over, "like a human workman walking backward and rolling a heavy barrel up a steep incline with his shoulders."

The scientist reports that one cuckoo, only a day and a half old, threw out the same egg 15 times within the hour, it being caught and replaced each time.

Latin and Greek Names Popular With Learned

In medieval times a custom prevailed among learned men of changing their names into Latin or Greek appellations, says a writer in the New York Times Magazine. Desiderius Erasmus was formed out of the family name Gerard, which in Dutch signifies amiable-Gar, "all," and Aerd, "nature." This was first changed to the Latin name Desiderius, of much the same significance, and later into the Greek Erasmus. An amiable reformer, originally named Hertz Schwartz (black heart), elegantly turned this into the Greek name Melancthon.

The celebrated Reuchlin, whose name in German means "smoke," considered it more dignified to smoke in Greek, by the name of Capnio. The vulgar name of a great Italian poet was Trapasso; but when the learned Gravina resolved to devote the youth to the Muses, he gave him a mellifluous name-Metastasio.

New York in Early Days

Near where the Tombs now stands there once was a deep, clear pond of fresh water, which the Manahatas believed had no bottom, writes P. B. center of the pond was a tiny, picturesque island. The outlet of this pond was a little stream which flowed into the East river near where James street now lies, and this stream enabled the villagers to paddle their canoes down to the big river for the fishing. An inlet occupied what is now Broad street. There was a high hill at what is now the corner of Grand street and Broadway, which

value of silver, big holders of that metal must wish themselves back in ancient times when, strange as it may seem after centuries of contrary ex-Cole, in the New York World. In the perience, gold was the less valuable of the two, writes a columnist in the Manchester Guardian.

True, it was a very long time ago, back in the Bronze age, but probably few people knew that such a topsyturvy state of affairs ever existed. However, the Greek historian Agatharcides, who lived in the Second century B. C., records that in ages past his ancestors reckoned an ounce of silver to be worth ten of gold, and

The present drought, while very unusual, and not likely to occur again very soon, nevertheless raises the question as to how long Taneytown's present water supply—excellent as it is-will continue to meet all demands on it, for ordinary uses, fire and industrial purposes? At any rate, we have several good nearby elevations for another stand-lipe.

SMART FEEDERS.

They know good feeds.

From start to finish there is no substitute for quality Feeds.

We are entering the age of Common sense, after chasing the illusion of FEED Fads.

Feeders' intelligence is no longer deceived by trick Compositions called FEEDS. Quality feeds always have lead, they are gaining because they are the cheapest.

The sun has set on the FEED manufacturer who manufactures FEED for a price, the Manufacturer of high quality FEED has come in

It is not near so important to buy FEED at a price as it is to buy what you want, when you want it. Don't shop for price, but shop for quality.

FEEDS not so good as The KEY FEEDS can be found everywhere, feeds just about as good can be had if you pay the price; feeds good as THE KEY FEEDS must be hunted for and bought, uusually at a higher price.
