WARNER DIES AT BALTI-MORE HOSPITAL.

From Result of Auto Collision on Taneytown Road.

Amos O. Warner, aged 54 years, proprietor of the creamery at Frizellburg, died at the Maryland General Hospital, on Wednesday, from fract-ure of the skull received in a collision with an auto on the Taneytown-West-minster road, about midway between Taneytown and Frizellburg, on Sunday morning, Oct. 26, while returning from Taneytown where he had made a delivery of milk. Warner was driving a light truck, when by some means not yet clearly established he came into collision with an auto driven by John J. Long, Delaware County, Pa., near Philadelphia, an account of which appeared in last week's Record. Long left the scene of the accident without giving his name or any information, but was located by means of the license number on his car that had been taken by others who came on the scene.

The Carroll County authorities will take action in the matter in order to arrive at the facts in the case as far as possible. He is survived by his wife and five children. Funeral services will be held this Friday afternoon, burial following in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Frederick.

Another interesting feature was the ghost story, which was told in a way as to hold the crowd in awe to its very close. The games were well planned, and were greatly enjoyed by all present.

Refreshments consisting of chicken sandwiches, pickles, doughnuts apples and coffee were served to all. After refreshments, the witch remained in her hut and told fortunes.

At the close of the social the witches hut held approximately 175 cans On Saturday morning these cans were packed into two cars and presented to the Hoffman Orphanage.

NOT TANEYTOWN BREAD!

A weekly exchange recently contained the following, on "Bread" not baked in Taneytown.

"Why is it that most bakeries cannot make good bread? The old-fashioned hame-made loaf was crusty, tasty. It had body to it; "kept fresh". A slice of the bread that mother used to make was a real treat; fresh and spread with butter, it was a feast for the gods. The modern bread lacks weight. A slice can be blown off the plate. It has the flavor of a paper napkin and the consistency of sawdust. It might make a good meal for a rag-eating goat or a stalwart ostrich, but as a staff of life for hu-man beings it falls as far short of be-

TWO PRISONERS BREAK OUT OF JAIL.

One Captured. Sheriff Fowble a Victim of Assault.

George A. Zepp, held on the charge of attempted burglary, and George Crumbacker, charged with the lar-ceny of chickens, overcame Sheriff Geo C. Fowble, last Saturday morning, and escaped without further difficulty into the open country.

The Sheriff was attacked by Crum-

He was struck a heavy blow bringing him to struck a heavy blow bringing him to the floor, and then struck over the left ear by his own revolver, rendering him partly unconscious. His keys were taken by which they proceeded to open the way to freedom. Hearing the sounds of the scuffle Sterling Fowble, son of the Sheriff, and Mrs. Fowble rushed upstairs to aid the stricken man, but were threatened with death if they interfered. The two then disabled the telephone and made off.

Sheriff Fowble had by this time re-

Sheriff Fowble had by this time recovered sufficient to attempt pursuit but was compelled to desert. He at once made use of another telephone in the building, and gave the alarm to various police and detective bureaus, as well as summoned local help that formed into a posse to go in the trail of the escaped.

THE LATE CAMPAIGN.

The political campaign and election is over for another two years, for which the average voter and citizen should be fully thankful. The fight was hardly a clean and fair one, but was pretty generally nasty, or a few degrees more disreputable than that; and this is our opinion as it applies both to county and state. Evidently, during the campaign some folks were badly informed or only mistaken and refused to admit it, and kept on telling-whatever it was-over and over again. Of course, they may have lied.

Such campaigns do a lot of harm, They create the impression, with new voters especially, that there is more crookedness in public office holders, than there is; untrue statements are made, afterward denied and corrected, but only the original statements may be heard; many voters are misled because they fail to discover the personal animus and self-interest often back of the activity of vote scouts; violent partisanship friends, and unfriendly recollections are left that last.

Carroll County had an exceptionally fine lot of candidates in both camps; and so far as we know, made a clean fight. Whether they have won, dates horizontally, should be heavier or lost, they likely have clean con- than the lines dividing the names of sciences along with their satisfaction or regrets; but just how much farther this belief should apply, we would not be heavier than "vote for one." The like to try to define in exact terms, because our feeling is that the latter portion of the campaign, especially, was as stated in first paragraph nasty, if not worse.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

One of the main causes of unemployment, is due to the slack-up in buying by farmers, due partly to the continuous drought, consequently no and work generally. has slacked up in sympathy with the buying movement. Politics, or the Hoover administration, has absolutely nothing to do with it.

The fact is, a drop in "prosperity" has been due ever since the World War. It has been considered good business to "keep on whistling" in the face of trouble, and to put on a cheerful front, but the drought took a hand in the situation, and with it has come a lot of held-back truths that must now be faced, and which may develop into a serious situation before another season of good crops come along.

But with it all, those who have practiced thrift and who have not lived in a come easy, go easy style, will not likely be so badly off until the tide turns again, as it is sure to do. Certainly this is not a time for either lavish spending, nor for gripping the dollar too tight. All who can, should spend judiciously; this is a splendid time for keeping the unemployed busy in making needed repairs, or buying ahead a bit; and this should be encouraged by labor itself in not discouraging such help by holding out for extravagant pay.

The kind of counsel that is given out now, will have a great deal to do with bettering the situation, or making it worse. This is a good time for co-operation and sane reasoning, and the worst possible time for trying by force to overcome the natural results of natural conditions, or for not calmly as possible trying to see things | the poor of the cities; but, they dojust as they are and avoiding the placing of blame where it is not due.

Unemployment is a world wide fact and this country will recover from it all the sooner if everybody faces the situation honestly, and helps.

MARYLAND'S BALLOT.

The typographical style of the ballot used in Maryland was never designed by a printer as a specimen of good typography. It is so plain and ugly as to be difficult to understand and mark. The use of plain capital letters for every purpose, on the ballot makes it not only inartistic, but confusing; and the same is true of the all the rule lines used and especially so where they divide groups of candidates into three columns.

That this sameness represents an educational test, is far fetched. Men or women of real intelligence do not need such horrible examples as tests of their education, to be exercised once every two years. The recent ballot made it easy, for instance, to vote for Charles W. Klee by making the X mark in front of his name in the square intended for an x mark for Broening; and in the same parallel, one might easily have voted for Klee, drives fairness away from between while intending to vote for Berwager, by making the x mark before, instead of after, the candidate's name.

The perpendicular lines dividing the columns of names, as well as the lines dividing the groups of candicandidates in each group. The type used for the name of the office should width of the columns is also an inch wider for each, than necessary.

Our opinion has always been, and still is, that a square should be given, as on the Pennsylvania ballot, by which the making of one x mark would count for a "straight" party vote, for all candidates, without interfering with voters who want to vote a "split" ballot. If a voter wants to vote for all candidates of one party, that ought to be his personal privilege to do so as easily as possible, and there would be nothing partisan about such a ballot.

The Maryland ballot, as it is, tends toward marking "defective" and uncounted ballots; it gives unfair advantage to good eye-sight; its makeup discourages timid voters; it encourages the making of a few X marks and letting the remainder of the ballot go unmarked.

The whole make-up of it seems to favor the classes of voters with good eye-sight, accustomed to filling out blank forms, and discriminates against men with work-hardened fingers, who are unskilled with the use of a pencil and who, even by the use of spectacles, find it difficult to vote their sentiments, that this year required the careful making of 21 \times marks, when one mark would have been sufficient for nine-tenths of

DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH AND DISCOMFORT.

The publication of the fact that $1,000,000 represented the gate receipts of the recent world's series baseball games, and the easy expenditure of many other millions of dollars for the unnecessaries of life, largely by those living in the large cities, are hardly matters that should seriously concern the hard workers and small earners in the country sections, nor

The easy money in the cities raises a number of questions, among them being the one-why should the distribution of wealth be apparently so unequally divided? And this is followed by the conclusion that the millions of those who feel hard times, first, and most, are the victims as ultimate consumers of city products, of too high profits at the producing end; a rule that does not attach to the producing

The saving truth about the whole subject of the unequal distribution of wealth, is the fact that wealth in itself is not the chief end and aim, nor the real riches, of life. Contentment, happiness, clear conscience, are each worth more than lavish riches, and its dissipation or accumulation. Every individual life has its sure end, and it is the peace and satisfaction that accompanies the end that is the wealth that counts in the final analysis.

Well Made Famous by Whittier Is Restored

It is located on a corner of the Amesbury high school grounds at the self-same spot where Capt. Valentine Bagley dug the original well in 1796. It still offers a cooling drink to thirsty passersby. But the well's romantic rusticity has been removed. It is now fed by the town water department through prosaic pipes.

The well might have been forgotten long since but for Whittier's poem, penned in 1890, reviewing the history of the well, which inspired local residents to restore the landmark at that time. The latest restoration was made possible through a $15,000 gift by former State Senator James H. Walker.

Whittier's poem tells how Captain Bagley, after barely escaping death from thirst when shipwrecked and lost in the Arabian desert, finally returned to Amesbury and dug the well "for the Lord alone" out of gratitude.

NEEDS FOR RED CROSS SERVICE ON INCREASE, SAYS CHAIRMAN PAYNE

Disaster Relief and Service to War Veterans Make Heavy Demands—First Aid on Highways New Plan.

Demands upon the public services that the American Red Cross is organized to give are increasingly heavy, and will continue to be so in the future, John Barton Payne, chairman, has announced.

The two major services of the society-service to war veterans and their dependents, and relief in disasters-show each year a greater number of persons helped by the Red Cross.

Pension legislation passed recently for World War Veterans, and increased allotments to all Spanish-American War Veterans, have given to Chapters and the national society many thousands of additional cases to handle, Judge Payne said.

In the past year help was given in 108 disasters. Ninety of these were in the United States, twelve in foreign possessions and six were in foreign countries.

Health activities of the Red Cross also are being extended, especially in the rural communities where all health authorities agree the greatest need exists. Red Cross, with 794 nurses in its employ, is the greatest employer of public health nurses in rural areas in the United States.

In its campaign against accidental deaths, begun twenty years ago with its life saving and first aid programs, the Red Cross now has adopted an additional program—that of combating the huge toll of life from automobile accidents on the highways. Expenditures of the Red Cross in the past year were $4,254,796.34, of which $1,208,151.09 was spent in disaster relief, the chairman pointed out.

"The Red Cross depends upon the public for its support, through their memberships enrolled once each year in the period from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day," Judge Payne said.

"We do not receive any support from the Government, or through other taxation, although as the President of the United States is president of the society, and one-third of its governing members are representatives of U.S. Departments, it ranks as a semi-govermental agency.

"By joining as a member, in the local Red Cross Chapter, once each year, during the annual Roll Call, every citizen will have a part in carrying on this great humanitarian

Motor Injuries Treated By Red Cross First Aid

In line with its work for the preservation of life and prevention of accidental death, the American Red Cross has adopted a new program of emergency first aid stations on the highways of the nation, where victims of automobile injuries will be helped.

In the last year 31,000 persons were killed as the result of automobile accidents and more than 1,000,000 were injured. As its contribution to the nation wide safety campaigns of other organizations, the Red Cross will aid through the emergency stations. A number already are in operation by Chapters on such important traffic arteries as the Westchester County, N. Y., park system, the Valley Forge and Gettysburg highways in Pennsylvania and the White Horse Pike in New Jersey, connecting with Atlantic

Saving Mothers and Babies Is Important Red Cross Task

Saving mothers' lives and better babies were important features during the past year of the Public Health Nursing Service of the American Red Cross. About four-fifths of the 794 nurses in the Red Cross work made more than 100,000 prenatal and maternal visits, in addition to assisting doctors in the examination of 1,309,409 school children.

Statistics reveal that the lives of two out of three American women who die in maternity cases could be saved if they received proper medical and nursing care. As more than 15,000 women die in the United States each year from various diseases of the maternal state, this means that more than 10,000 of these deaths are pre-

Comfort Kits Sent 40,000 Service Men by Red Cross

Gay patterned cretonne bags, or comfort kits, containing articles useful and amusing, are sent by the Red Cross to 40,000 soldiers, sailors and Marines, on foreign service, as Christmas remembrances.

The little gift bags are donated and packed by women in Red Cross Chapters all over the country. They are despatched by Army transport in the early autumn in order to reach the foreign ports and posts of the U.S. services in time to be hung on the Christmas trees. Giving the remembrances from home is the outgrowth of a plan adopted by the Red Cross prior to the World War when so many National Guard regiments were on the Mexican border.

When Fowls Are Removed Pests Do Not Survive.

Under ordinary temperatures a louse will not live more than a week removed from a bird, so if louse-free chickens are to be placed in a henhouse previously occupied by other poultry, it is necessary only to clean the house a week or so in advance, according to F. H. Wilson of the department of entomology of the New York state college of agriculture. Incubator-hatched chicks can be reared louse free quite easily if they are isolated from other chickens, he says. To rid birds of lice the sodium fluoride treatment is recommended. Pinches of this material distributed among the feathers is the usual procedure. It is a rather irritating subtance so precautions should be taken to prevent its getting into the eyes or widely distributed over one's skin, Mr. Wilson warns. If the bird is dusted over a paper, the dust which does not stay on the bird can be saved and used again.

A new method to kill lice suggested by the makers of nicotine sulphate is to paint the upper surfaces of the roosts with the sulphate, undiluted. It is thought that the fumes from this material rising among the feathers of the roosting chickens will kill the lice and cause them to drop off.

To merely clean the henhouse and leave it a few days will not kill red mites, however. These are small reddish colored creatures that live in cracks and crevices and crawl over the birds at night to feed, and then they return to hide during the day. Painting or spraying the roosts with kerosene or a properly diluted solution of nicotine sulphate usually eliminates the mites.

Weed Out Boarders and Save High-Priced Feed

Weed out boarders that cost thousands in feed. Failure to weed out and sell the unprofitable hens during the summer costs poultrymen thousands of dollars each year. Profit that could be realized from the laying hens is used to feed those boarder hens that eat high-priced feed without producing any eggs. This loss can easily be stopped by culling the flock about once each month during the summer. Culling at regular intervals makes it possible to remove from the flock of unprofitable hens shortly after they cease production.

Cod Liver Oil Helps

Build Up Ailing Hens Adequate roosting room is essential to the proper development of chicks on range. Chicks that are crowded at night are overheated and weakened. From four to six inches of roost space should be allowed for each bird. If there are too many birds for the size of the colony houses, summer shelters should be built. A summer shelter consists of a root, sides and door covered with wire and with roosts on the inside running from end to end.

* Poultry Facts

Pullets thrive better if separated from the cockerels soon after sex can be distinguished.

Leghorn chicks will usually start roosting on low flat roosts in two or three weeks while the heavy breeds still prefer to stay on the floor at that . . .

A board or concrete floor, either is suitable for a poultry house. Concrote has the advantage of not warping and being more easily cleaned than a board floor.

Careful market men no longer buy thin, sickly birds. Since the grower has been responsible for the condition of the fowls, it is only fair that he should stand the loss.

The only difference between white and dark eggs is the color of the shell. The insides are exactly the Hens are rarely profitable layers after two or three laying seasons. Production drops sharply after the second or third years.

The best treatment for sick turkeys is the ax. Ordinarily there is little that can be done after turkeys become affected and run down physically.

. . . Training turkeys to roost while they are quite young helps avoid crowding in f.e brooders and may save many poults from being crushed or smothered. Laths tacked on four-inch blocks make good perches for the small turkeys.

To control red mites, paint the wood with some strong, oily penetrating material. Carbolineum, crude ca bolic acid and kerosene mixed in equal parts; whitewash; waste crank case oil; and lime sulphur are all recommended.

Why Mention of Thrift

Grates on Auto Driver Charlie when he had his other car developed a system that saved him a lot of pennies-perhaps as many as 100 in the months he labored with it. Charlie lives in a street off Main street, in Montello, where it is possible to coast the length of it because of the grade, and ride right into his garage. Faithfully he always turnéd off his ignition at the head of his street and saved gasoline the rest of

Recently when fortune smiled on him, he traded for a new car. On his first trip home with it from the club at night he turned off the ignition and coasted down the hill. However, he forgot that the new motor was equipped with a gimmick which automatically locks the steering wheel when the ignition is shut off.

Just as Charlie was about to turn into his street the front wheels failed to answer his tug and he rammed a telephone pole with the right fender before he could bring the machine to

"It'll cost at least a sawbuck to straighten that out," he moaned, "and all to save a little gasoline."-Brockton Enterprise.

Significance in Name

Clemens Made Immortal Probably the best known nom de plume ever adopted by an American writer is that of Samuel Clemens, "Mark Twain." Usually it is regarded as just a proper name, chosen by the humorist from a book or some family record, as most such names are chosen. But the fact is that it wasn't a proper name at all until Clemens made it such, says the Golden Book Magazine, which tells the story:

"From the carefree days of his life on the Mississippi, Clemens passed to setting type on his brother's newspaper, to piloting a steamboat, and to wandering in the West. Shortly after, he began writing articles for a Nevada paper-clever, fun-poking skits. It was in 1863 that he first adopted the name of Mark Twain. 'I want to sign them Mark Twain,' he wrote. 'It is an old river term, a leadman's call, signifying two fathoms or 12 feet. It has a richness about it; it was always pleasant for a pilot to hear on a dark night; it meant safe water."

Women Geographers

The Society of Woman Geographers is a society, organized in 1925, by a group who felt that there should be some medium of contact between women distinguished in geographical work and its allied sciences-ethnology, archeology, botany, natural history, sociology, folklore, arts and crafts, etc. For active membership in this society only those women are eligible who have done distinctive work whereby they have added to the world's store of knowledge concerning the countries in which they have traveled. Corresponding members are those who fulfill the requirements for active membership, but who reside outside the United States of America and Canada. The associate membership admits widely traveled women who are interested in furthering all forms of geographical exploration and research.

Ancient Norwegian Town

Voss is situated about sixty miles from Bergen by rail and resembles very much the "Ostlandet," as the eastern part of Norway is called, being broader and having many pine woods. Voss is a very old village: how old is not quite certain. The inhabitants were christened in 1023, according to Snorre's Heimskringla, by Olav the Saint. The name occurs hefore that in the old sagas, and is once mentioned as a kingdom. There is a famous old stone church in the town proper and a Finne, a short distance from the railroad station, there stands the oldest wooden building in Norway, a so-called Finne-loft. The town itself is usually spoken of as Vangen, and the surrounding uplands as Voss, although the latter name is generally used for either.

Choosing His Own Name

At one time it was the custom in the Shetland islands for a man to select his own surname, and the last man to do this was Gideon Manson. The custom followed was for a son to twist his father's Christian name and make that his surname, a fact which explains why Gideon Manson's grandfather was called Magnus Robertson and his father James Manson (Magnus' son).

According to custom, Gideon should have called himself Gideon Jameson (i. e., the son of James), but he chose to be known by his father's surname. This ancient custom led to considerable confusion and was finally prohibited by parliamentary enactment.

Farthest From Land

The farthest distance a ship can sail from land is 1200 miles. This may seem strange, for the Atlantic ocean is more than 4000 miles wide, and the Pacific even wider than that. But there are islands in these oceans, and never can a ship be more than 1200 miles from some point of land. The spot of greatest distance from land, is in the Pacific ocean, half-way between New Zealand and South America.

Community Building

States Awake to Needs

of Beauty on Highway In the past quarter of a century new roads have destroyed the beauty of picturesque countrysides. All attention has been given to utility, and none to beauty. While highways have made the forests and open country available to millions of people, they have probably done more than anything else to destroy the attractions of the country through which they pass. And close on the heels of the road builders come the outdoor advertising companies with their hideous billboards.

In the next 25 years highway construction doubtless will continue at a rapid rate, but in all probability special emphasis will be placed on beautification. A highway commission will no longer be allowed to cut through a beautiful section of country and leave that part which is most noticeable to travelers defaced with scars and broken ground. The problem has already been taken up in a number of the states. New Jersey plans to replace each tree removed in widening its roads with two new trees. Connecticut has undertaken to plant rambler roses, woodbine and honeysuckle vines over newly graded slopes. Massachusetts is credited with having set out 60,000 trees along its state highways. Michigan and Indiana plant evergreens along their roadways, and a similar practice has been adopted in California.-Washington

Proper City Planning Seen as "Good Business"

More than 800 American cities now have city-planning commissions and zoning regulations, according to figures published in the American Arch-

The rapid growth of the city-planning movement, which got its real start at the beginning of the present century, is due to the business man and property owner's realization of the fact that money put into well-kept parks, pleasant streets and beautiful buildings is not an extravagance but an investment, the architectural magazine observes.

"Even the intelligent remodeling of a single house may raise the standard of an entire neighborhood," it says, pointing out that the difference between profitable and unprofitable rental of either home or business property is often dependent upon the attractiveness of its surroundings as well as the features of the building itself.

Benefit of Home Owning The new home is not unlike the first watch possessed by a small boy. The watch is probably of the one-dollar variety, bought by some thoughtful uncle or father with the thought that it would probably crash on the sidewalk within a few days. But the mental effect of that watch upon the boy is not in ratio with its intrinsic value. Now he can tell people what time it isnow he is an important person-he has become somebody.

How much more does home ownership mean to the average grown-up boy! He is somebody in his community from the moment he moves into this home of his own. He is consulted about the new street paving and begins to take an interest in other civic matters. The new home has aroused his ego. It has made him a better citizen in the community in which he lives. It is a mark of thrift. -Washington Post,

Community Advertising

Industry and commerce ceased long ago to ask if advertising pays. The presence in all towns and cities of whatever size of chambers of commerce, boards of trade and other bodies, a part of whose function is to sing community praise, testifies that the value of public advertising is equally demonstrable. It is helpful, no matter how haphazardly or incompletely projected. When put upon a sound, thoroughly businesslike basis, when a city is advertised as intensively as a commodity reaching out for world markets, results are astonishing.

Alive to Benefit of Trees

In the last three years 350,000 trees were planted in New Hampshire. The offer last year of free trees was largely responsible for the year's total exceeding that of the three previous years combined. Boys and girls under sixteen were allowed 250 trees, and those between sixteen and twentyone were given 500 trees.

This number of trees would plant a solid block of 400 acres, and if properly cared for, would yield 15,000,000 board feet of white pine lumber in 50

HUNTS FOR RUSSIAN PAIR IN ODD TEST

American Seeks to Prove His Sleep Theory.

Paris.—Search has been renewed for a Russian couple suited to the strange experiment by which an elderly American philosopher hopes to prove that man's natural position, like that of the four-footed beasts, is reclining.

Park Hammer of St. Louis, sixtyseven-year-old retired paint manufacturer and experimental philosopher, was revealed as the author of a series of unusual advertisements appearing in the newspaper La Renaissance. When Hammer's latest advertisement appeared he disclosed that he had not found a couple suitable for the test, although there were many who were willing to try it. Must Come to America.

Hammer said he wanted a couple who would go to the United States for one year to live in bathing suits, eat vegetables and fruit and obey his instructions concerning sleeping. The couple would be required to sleep in short periods stretched out on a log and to spend their waking hours

In explaining his belief that his proposed experiments would aid in regaining the horizontal position he thinks natural to man, Hammer said that death is unnatural and that longevity is possible if a perfect balance of the body's action and inaction, recomposition and decomposition is attained.

He said that such a balance could be attained through a raw herbal diet, fresh air and sleeping on a log.

Holds Sleep Unnecessary. "I believe sleep is unnecessary if the body functions properly and frequent rest intervals follow mental or body exercises," Hammer said. "I am going through with this experiment myself when I find a suitable Russian couple.

"So far I have examined 100 candidates but have not found exactly what I desired."

The St. Louisan said he hoped the new advertisement in the newspaper would be successful and that he would he able to sail for the United States in the fall to start his experiments near St. Louis. Later, he said he planned to remove to a beach either in California or in Florida.

5 Win Lottery Riches; Only One Retains Gold

Buenos Aires, Argentina.—The proverb that wealth easily acquired is destined to be easily spent has been justified by the experience of five Englishmen who, in December, 1927, won the first prize in the Christmas lottery here. No. 4 became involved in commercial speculations which went wrong and has disappeared from the country.

The remaining winner so far has contrived to escape the fate of his companions, and may be said to constitute the exception which proves the

Males Alone Vocal

The fabled henpecked husband may well look with envy upon life in the insect world, for there, according to Raymond L. Ditmars of the New York zoological gardens writing in Boys' Life, it is the male who makes all EDW. S. HARNER & JOS. HARNER the noise, the female being condemned to eternal silence.

The chief singing insects, says Mr. Ditmars, are crickets, locusts and katydids. The males of "all these insects sing by rubbing the forward edges of the wings, which, when closely examined, look like mica. These are the resonating or stridulating organs. In the female they are lacking. However, the males more than make up for their mates' silence. The volume of sound produced by these small creatures is astonishing."

Origin of "Charity"

"Carus" is the Latin for "dear," and 'caritas," the abstract noun from it, means "dearness." St. Jerome, who translated the Bible into Latin avoided the use of the ordinary Latin word for "love," which is "amor," because of its worldly associations. He substituted for it, wherever the Greek or Hebrew would naturally have required it, one or other of two rather colorless words, of which "caritas" is one. Being colorless, "caritas" was capable of taking the color of its Biblical surroundings and came to mean the specifically Christian love of one's neighbor, and especially of the poor. The English word "charity," derived from it, perhaps owes its sense particularly to the great passage about charity in I Corinthians, 13.

A salesman and his wife were making a hurried automobile drive. On a very narrow road a cow was placidly parked. No amount of tooting of the horn could persuade the animal to give the travelers room to pass.

Loving Remembrance of my dear husband HARRY G. LAMBER, SR., who departed this life October 29, 1930.

A precious one from me has gone, A voice I loved is stilled; A place is vacant in our home, Which never can be filled. God in His Wisdom has recalled The love he has given, To a precious soul, Which is now safely in Heaven.

MARY FOX who died Nov. 4, 1918, twelve years ago. Although you could not speak to us,
Or could not say goodbye,
We know your thoughts were with us all
When you were called to die.
The hands that did so much for us,
How helplessly they lay;
God knew they worked continuously
But they are gone today.

Rest on, dear mother; thy labor's o'er; Thy willing hands will toil no more, A faithful mother, both true and kind, A truer mother you could not find, For all of us she did her best; God grant her eternal rest.

A wonderful mother, woman and aid, One who was better God never made; A wonderful worker, so loyal and true— One in a million—that mother was you.

Just in your judgment, always right; Honest and liberal, ever upright; Loved by your friends and all whom you knew— Our wonderful mother—that mother was BY HER HUSBAND & CHILDREN, MURTY and EARCY.

WILLIAM PHILIP ENGLAR. An Appreciation from The Carroll County Savings Bank, Uniontown, Md.

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths.
In feelings; not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart-throbs; he he most lives
Who thinks most; feels the noblest; acts the best,"

who thinks most; feels the noblest; acts the best."

When in the perfect wisdom and grace of God there goes out from our midst a life of conspicuous unselfishness and influence, it is fitting that we, who remain, should pause to consider the elements making up such a character of fidelity, strength, and usefulness as found in our much esteemed Director, Wm. P. Englar. Giffed intellectually and spiritually, he had a great sphere of usefulness, both in the world of business and religion. The happy combination of mental and spiritual power, and acumen, is rather unusual, and merits more than a passing notice. Courteous, sympathetic, and alert to the best interest of the institution he represented for many years, he filled a valued place on our board of directors. The genial, unselfish spirit he carried into his works exerted a beneficient influence over his associates. We loved "Phil," as he was always familiarly called.

A life so well-lived is at once an inspiration and a benediction. We cannot think of it as ended, but rather as having entered into that larger life of blessedness and usefulness. We shall cherish his memory.

Resolved, That a copy of this memorial be sent to the family of the deceased, be published in a newspaper of the county, and entered upon the minutes of the Bank.

JESSE P. GARNER,
MILTON A. ZOLLICKOFFER,
G. FIELDER GILBERT,

Talcum Production

North Carolina powders the nose of the United States, having one of the biggest talcum mines in the country near an abandoned gold mine and much more valuable than any gold mine. From the same rock which provides the finest and softest talcum for the faces and arms of women comes the talcum used in roofing and automobile tires. Much of that is sold to the motor industry, while the finer kind that goes into dainty powder boxes measures 80,000 particles to the inch and is guaranteed to shed water, resist fire and weather and protect all underlying surfaces.—Capper's Weekly.

Three Was the Limit "You must give your husband five teaspoonfuls of this mixture every night before he goes to bed," ordered the doctor. The patient's wife looked a little disconcerted. "Five!" she said. "I can't doctor. I'm afraid that's quite impossible." The doctor frowned.

"Impossible?" he said. "Oh, nonsense! What on earth do you mean?" "Well, sir," explained the woman, "I don't think we've got more than three in the house."

CIVILIZATION MAY WIPE OUT ESKIMOS

Arctic Visitor Says Race Faces Extinction.

New York .- Mrs. Maude Radford Warren, writer and traveler, returned recently from a three months' journey within the Arctic circle, in the northwestern part of Canada with Aklavik as her headquarters. She traveled alone, with the aid of Indian and Eskimo guides, except when she went by airplane, the most comfortable means of travel in the Northwest.

Of strong physique and indifferent to hardships, Mrs. Warren found the life of the frontier villages the "most thrilling adventure" she had known since her work in first aid stations during the war, but does not recommend the trip to the average woman traveler. "Bulldogs," or moose flies, as big as wasps and twice as voracious, impaired the pleasure of sleeping out of doors, she confessed.

Influence Wiping Out Race. Mrs. Warren returns an enthusiastic admirer of the Eskimo, a cheerful and industrial people, but she is alarmed lest they vanish from the Northwest within 50 years. "The Eskimos are dying off in great numbers from the ravages of influenza and other diseases brought in by the white man," she said. "They have learned to eat white man's food instead of the good caribou meat and fish which used to be their chief diet. This summer I saw them eating soggy pancakes covered with syrup three times a day.

"The Indians have an arrangement with the Canadian government by which they 'take treaty,' becoming the wards of the government, and are thus guaranteed against starvation. But the Eskimos, being a more independent race, have no such arrangement. The white man could not survive within the Arctic circle without the Eskimo and the Indian."

Village Life Simple. Mrs. Warren found village life in Aklavik charmingly simple for one who longed to escape the trivialities of modern America, but confessed she would not care to endure it perma-

"In the winter there is no amusement at all, not even a pool table, in the entire village," she said. "They read all winter, after their day's work is done. The newspapers are brought in during the summer and they save them, in order, and read them later day by day.

"There are seven nuns in the village and five other white women connected with the Anglican missions. There is also one American woman who runs the restaurant.

"The people in Aklavik prefer the long lonesome winter to the uncertainties of summer, when strangers come poking into their peaceful village, and inspectors and all sorts of officials disturb their routine.".

Schools Brattleboro, Vt.-Perfection of a method of visual instruction which will be made available to musical educators for the first time through automatic pipe organs now being built for New York public schools was announced here at the organ works where seven of the instruments are under construction. The new construction is based on inventions of Harry F. Waters of Larchmont, N. Y.

In the new automatic reproducing organs each stop tablet will have a colored electric light directly over it. This light will flash as that particular stop or set of pipes is brought into the composition by playing of the roll. Under full automatic operation, these stops will be both indicated by the lights and played by the action of the roll, so that an entire classroom can observe and identify the stop with the tone quality as it is registered.

For individual instruction in organ registration, the roll can be played semi-automatically; the stops to be used will be indicated by the lights, requiring the person at the key desk to depress the stop tablets as their use is called for in the composition.

Railroad Fare Is High When the King Travels

London.-Former President Coolidge's action in dispensing with a special train in the interests of economy were recalled here when it was revealed that the royal pocketbook is nicked considerably when the king and queen and members of their party go to Balmoral castle in Scotland.

The journey costs the crown $3.20 a mile for use of the royal train, in addition to first-class fares for every member of the party.

Every precaution to prevent accident to the train is taken. Before the departure the entire route is carefully inspected and plans made for signaling the train in case of a line breakdown or fogs.

Miocene Age Fossils Found in Colorado

Danish History Centers

in Old City of Viborg Viborg is one of the oldest (some maintain the oldest) cities in Denmark. As far as history goes back, there has always been a city there. It is beautifully situated on two hills and along the shores of two lakes. For centuries the Danish kings had to be crowned there before they were actually regarded as kings.

The city has always been a religious center. In the Twelfth and Thirteenth centuries there were 22 churches and many cloisters, although the town at that time had only about 2.000 inhabitants. The city has burned several times, which accounts for the fact that most of the buildings dating from the Middle ages are gone.

Even now, Viborg is one of the most beautiful cities in Denmark, and thousands of tourists visit it each year. The cathedral is one of the main attractions. It is decorated with frescoes from ceiling to floor, depicting the old and new testaments. The cathedral is said to be the only one of its kind north of the Alps. "Higher Place" Explained

Jack was the cause of much trouble to his parents. At school he was always at the foot of the class. One day, however, he came flying home. "Dad-mum, I have got a higher place in the class," he cried.

His father gave him a dollar. "Now, Jack," he asked, "how did you gain promotion to a higher place?" "Well, it's like this, dad," said the young hopeful. "My desk is being mended."

COPS WONDER WHOM THEY HAVE JAILED

Some Say One and Some Sure of Another.

Rocky Mount, Va.—Strange as any story in fiction is the case of the man held in Franklin county jail called Ira J. Turner by persons who claim him as their long absent relative, and called Edward D. Saul by county authorities who have indicted him for Those who have seen the prisoner and tried to identify him are divided into two camps. Those who have known Saul say he is Saul; those who have known Turner say he is Turner.

Photographs of the men resemble the prisoner equally. Yet Saul and Turner were not related and probably never met.

Twenty-three years ago, July 5, 1907, Saul went for a walk in the woods near Henry, 15 miles from Rocky Mount, with Marshall King. The young men, residents of Henry and rivals for the affection of Hattie Ramsey, appeared friendly. Saul, however, carried a shotgun, which he had borrowed. He had, neighbors said, threatened to kill King.

Saul Disappears.

There was a shot in the woods, heard by one person who is still living near here, and King was found dead with a bullet wound in his back. Saul disappeared and was not seen again, although rewards totaling $4,000 were offered for his arrest.

The story of Ira J. Turner is more obscure. It is about Turner that the mystery centers. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Turner, and his home was near Harrisonburg. The prisoner, who claims he is Turner, said he was thirty-two years old when arrested last month. Now he agrees with the man who identified him as his son that he was born in 1888.

Turner seems to have spent his early life in the vicinity of Harrisonburg and had never been to Rocky Mount. In 1912 he is supposed to have left his home to travel about Virginia and nearby states as a jockey at fairs and horse shows. In 1918, authorities say, he was drafted into the army and died a few months later in France. His family, they say, collected his insurance.

According to the story which the prisoner tells, Ira J. Turner was called in the last draft and never even entered a training camp. Since the war, he explains, he has continued his itinerant life as a jockey and has not communicated with his family for nearly ten years. Stories told successively by the prisoner have varied so widely that county authorities are bewildered.

Arrested as Drunk.

He was arrested last July 5 in Ashland, Ky., on the complaint of Mrs. Lola Philpot Walker of that city, charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct. As soon as he was behind the bars Mrs. Walker changed her charge and said he was the slayer of Marshall King.

The man about whom this puzzle turns when questioned insisted he was living in Logan, W. Va., at the time of the draft and escaped it because he has a wife and six children. His wife and three of the children are still living there.

1918 Slacker Safe for Ten More Years

Hackensack, N. J.—The signs are right for another war because Henry Allen is going to jail again. He pleaded guilty to robbing five Englewood homes and was sentenced to serve 10 years in the penitentiary.

The last time Allen went to jail was in 1918, when he and two friends figured out "a very clever" way to evade the draft. They broke into a post office in Tampa, Fla., and left a note to the police where to find them. Instead of facing shot and shell in France, they passed a comfortable term in Atlanta penitentiary. Allen did not say what he hoped to evade by his latest sentence.

TRACES CULTURE OF MOUND BUILDER

Texas Caves Yield Important Discoveries.

Washington. - Caves of eastern Texas, inhabited by an ancient people, may help science to explain how the mysterious mound builder culture found its way to the Mississippi valley, where it flourished in prehistoric

Matthew W. Stirling, chief of the bureau of American ethnology, has just returned from exploring this western region, which is still practically untouched by archeologists. He reported finding caves bearing traces of human occupation and apparently well worth investigating by Smithsonian institution expeditions.

The Indians, who built fires in the cave shelters, and left their broken tools and dinner bones there to be buried in dust and debris, were probably similar to the basket makers of the early Southwest, Mr. Stirling's trial digging revealed.

Greatest interest in these caves hinges on the fact that they are along the route where the mound builder culture presumably advanced if it spread overland from Mexico to the Mississippi valley. Here may be preserved some evidence of those ancient happenings.

One question to be answered, Mr. Stirling explained, is whether there was an actual migration of Aztec or some other tribe from the south, or whether the Mexican Indians merely passed along by trade contacts their ideas of building high places, and art designs, and other knowledge and customs that they shared with the Mississippi valley mound builders.

Forty Soldiers Shot for Share in Mutiny

Paris.—A sensational dispatch comes from Fez, in Morocco, to a Berlin newspaper, with dramatic details of an alleged mutiny in the French Foreign Legion. It is said to have resulted in 400 men being sentenced to death, the sentence being actually carried out in 40 cases.

The newspaper, the Nationale Sozialist, states that the Third battalion of the Second regiment of the Legion mutinied on July 10 when about to go into action north of Skuras. The whole battalion was disarmed and court-martialed, and every man-400 of them-was sentenced to death.

According to the French custom, one man in every 10 was told to fall out and was shot. The 300 survivors had their sentences commuted to penal servitude for life and have been sent to work in the mines at Kenadso and labor on the roads.

Among the men put to death are said to have been 24 Germans, three Austrians, two Bulgarians and 11 Russians.

The German newspaper adds force to the story by publishing the names and places of origin of the Germans and Austrians who are said to have been executed.

Senate Office Building Gets a Beauty Parlor

Washington.-The senate has taken a long step toward equal rights for women. A beauty parlor has been established in the senate office building! It was installed primarily for the convenience of the many stenographers and secretaries employed by senators, although the senate candidacy of Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois also may have had something to do with it.

The senate, known as a club for "men only," first showed signs of weakening last session when it permitted women in the senate chamber for the first time.

"Petticoat Rule" of Town Opposed on Pound Law

Yellville, Ark .- The feminine city government of Yellville is having its troubles. As a remonstrance against the "petticoat rule," the city pound fence has been cut repeatedly, liberating stock which has been impounded.

One of the first measures adopted by the women after they won in a city election was an ordinance prohibiting stock from running at large.

Father Too Particular

Paris.—Some men are too particular. Because his son was served before him at dinner, Robespierre Godin, a Paris florist, father of 25 children, fired a revolver at the young man. But he missed his son and hit his wife, the bullet cutting off the end of her nose.

Citizenship in Athens

Looked Upon Seriously In modern days the affairs of cities and states and nations are discussed and acted upon, not by all the citizens, but by a few representatives of these citizens, elected by them or chosen by a higher authority. These comparatively few legislators assemble at the designated place and act for the people they represent. But in ancient Athens it was somewhat different. All citizens were invited to join in the debates in the assembly halls and all citizens so invited had a right to vote directly for or against the laws that were discussed. And they listened to the great men as they talked about the measures up for a vote or the populace, such great ones as Themistocles, Pericles and Demosthenes, among the greatest orators the world has ever seen. And then they voted.

The Pnyx, as this place of assembly was called, is partly in ruins now, but some of it is still to be seen on a hill across from the Acropolis of Athens. The speakers' platform, with its three steps, is immediately in the foreground of the picture. The listening Athenian citizens sat on the ground now sloping away to the left, but at that time probably level. The ground they occupied was inclosed by a circular wall. This was an open-air "congress," and a lively place at times, particularly when some important question was up for debate.

Two other famous buildings, the Acropolis and the Parthenon, are just to the left of the Pnyx, across a slight depression and on the neighboring hill overlooking the modern city of Athens.

Provincetown Not the Oldest Cape Cod Town Provincetown, because of the fact that the Pilgrim Fathers stayed there while they were looking for the right site for their colony, has sometimes been regarded as the oldest of the many famous towns on Cape Cod. But properly that honor belongs to Sandwich. The first permanent settlers at Provincetown came in the neighborhood of 1680, but Sandwich was founded in 1637.

Sandwich, like Boston, was an intolerant town in the early days. We worry a good deal over intolerance in our own era, but it is well to be reminded that tolerance has always been a rare virtue. The first settlers passed a law that no other families could come to live in the town until they had secured the permission of the minister and the church authorities.-Exchange.

"Man on Horseback" The phrase "Man on Horseback" was first applied to Gen. George Ernest Boulanger, of France (1837-1891), a politician who sought popularity in the most pronounced fashion, one of his methods being to appear in public on his black horse. It is commonly applied to any military dictator or a person who curbs the violence of mob-rule to re-establish law and order. The same expression or a similar one, "Robespierre on Horseback," is said to have been previously used by Barras in speaking of Napoleon Bonaparte; in this sense it was used to denote any ruthless leader that ld willingly trample the people un der foot, if such proceeding would further his own selfish ends.

A Prototype The Calais police station is located in the basement of the City building, with its barred windows facing the sidewalk that leads to the rear.

Commercial Principle Gresham's law is a principle in finance and political economy, formulated about the middle of the Sixteenth century by Sir Thomas Gresham, founder of the London Royal exchange. The principle is: "Bad money drives out good money from circulation. The good coin (full weight and standard in purity) will be hoarded and the worn and thin, or light coins, will be used. Good money will also be used for export to other countries, where it will obtain more in exchange, while the light coins will be used at home, thus depreciating the national currency."

When Washington Fled

In 1818, when Trumbull exhibited in Faneuil hall (Boston) his famous picture of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, he prevailed upon the venerable John Adams to inspect Approving the painting, the latter pointed to the door next to the chair of Hancock and said, "There, that is the door out of which Washington rushed when I first alluded to him as the man best qualified for commander in chief of the American army."

MEXICAN LEADER LIVES IN EXILE

Manzo Lost Fortune When the Rebels Were Beaten.

Tucson, Ariz.—There resides in this border town a rancher who has a good idea of how Napoleon felt when he was banished to St. Helena to ponder the vicissitudes of war.

He is the former General Francisco Robles Manzo, 260-pound ex-undersecretary of war of Mexico, commander of Sonora and the conqueror of the Yaquis. Today he is a political refugee from his native country.

In the 1929 Escobar rebellion General Manzo served as a commander of all rebel forces in northwestern Mexico. With the defeat of his army by the federals he was driven across the international boundary, leaving behind him a fortune accumulated after years of labor in his home at Ortiz, Sonora, Mexico.

Despite his comparatively low estate here, the once noted military leader may look across the boundary of his mother country to a number of economic achievements which still stand as monuments in Ortiz to his enter-

In making his escape he left behind 5,600 head of cattle, a $25,000 light and power system, a modern water works which he founded, extensive ranching interests, some 200 miles of improved highways in and adjacent to Ortiz, and modern barracks housing some 2,000 soldiers whom he commanded.

"Whatever glory that was once mine was wiped out in a moment," he said, smiling sadly. "But I still have my wife and four children and I am a good rancher—so perhaps I should not be despondent. There still may be brighter days ahead."

And the once highly honored federal officer, clad now in dungarees, goes about his work as any other Mexican laborer. And occasionally from his lips sound Mexican national anthems he loves so well.

"Glamis" Castle Most

Mispronounced Name

London.-The name of Glamis castle, where the duchess of York was in retirement, is said to be the most mispronounced word heard these days in the United Kingdom.

Much of the confusion, some say, is due to the fact that Shakespeare in "Macbeth" wasn't too sure of its pronuncation.

It has been variously pronounced "Glammiss," "Glamme," "Glams," but the correct pronunciation, authorities maintain, is "Glarms."

While waiting, he took a nap and loosened the strings on his new calfskin shoes. Sometime later he arose, only to receive a shock when his unshod feet hit the cold floor. His shoes had vanished during his long nap.

DEATH CORNERS OF SEA TAKE BIG TOLL

Most Dangerous Spots for Shipping Pointed Out.

Washington.-Salvage operations to recover gold worth millions in the S. S. Egypt, sunk off France in a famous graveyard of the sea, revive interest in wrecks in other waters. Pointe du Raz, off which the Egypt was sunk after a collision, is one of the most dangerous headlands of France because all ships coming south out of the English channel bound for Bordeaux, the Mediterranean, Africa, or South America, must clear its toothed and hungry rocks.

"Nantucket is credited with snaring 500 ships from the time of its settlement down to 1876," continues the bulletin. "Lighthouses, buoys, light ships, better weather report service, increased use of motor power, and, now, radio direction finding, have made the death corners of the sea less dangerous, but they still exact their toll.

Writer's Closing Hours

Soothed by Scriptures Sir Walter Scott died September 21, 1834, at Abbotsford on the Tweed. The health of the poet and novelist had been on the decline for several months before his death. Several weeks before he breathed his last he seemed to be getting better. One morning, says John Gibson Lockhard. who was Scott's biographer and sonin-law, "after again enjoying the bath chair for perhaps a couple of hours out of doors, he desired to be drawn into the library, and placed by the central window, that he might look down upon the Tweed. Here he expressed a wish that I should read to him, and when I asked from what book, he said-'Need you ask? There is but one.' I chose the 14th chapter of St. John's gospel; he listened with mild devotion, and said when I had done—'Well, this is a great comfort. I have followed you distinctly, and I feel as if I were yet to be myself again." The first two verses of the chaper read to Sir Walter are as follows: "Let not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you."

Great Conflicts That

Involved Whole World

We often call the last war the World war. Actually there are others that better deserve the title. Take the Seven Years' war. That was relatively in the Dark ages, so far as transportation and communication was concerned. But the fighting more nearly covered the entire globe than did that of the last conflict, which was pretty well confined to Europe.

During the Seven Years' war not only did men, as it has been said, fight but the military and naval activities of the belligerents encircled the globe. At the expense of France the British established their supremacy in North America and their empire in India, while they assailed on land and sea the dominions of Spain in America, and in the Pacific.

Again, the wars growing out of the French revolution and the Napoleonic wars more nearly involved all of Europe than did the late war, to say nothing of their fateful effects elsewhere.-John Bassett Moore, interviewed for the American Review of

Where Time Takes on

Some Puzzling Changes

Roughly along the 180th degree of longitude there is fixed what is called the "international date-line," and here today and tomorrow actually meet each other. If a vessel were steaming from the Fiji islands toward Samoa at 11:55 p. m. on Monday night and crossed the "date-line" ten minutes later it would actually have the whole of Monday before it again, as the time would then be five minutes after midnight on the morning of the same day. Had the ship been sailing in the opposite direction, it would have approached the "date-line" in the first few minutes of Monday, and, on crossing this ine, it would have started on day-Tuesday-and thus have lost an entire day. So in this locality it is possible for yesterday to become today in a few seconds, or today to change into tomorrow in the same short space of time.

IMARY TOPIC - Learning to Trust Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Thomas, the Man
Who Wanted to Be Sure.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR
TOPIC—Learning to Trust Jesus.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value and Peril of Doubt.

The name Thomas means "a twin." His alternate name, Didymus, means the same. From the linking of his name with Matthew in the listing of the disciples, it is commonly inferred that Thomas was a twin brother of Matthew.

Thomas is constantly presented in the Scriptures as a man of skeptical mind, yet of unquestioned character. He was an honest doubter. The Lord is not displeased when men put him to the test. No honest skeptic has ever been left in darkness. The truth of Christ's declaration still obtains, "If any man will do his will, he shall know" (John 7:17).

1. The Fidelity of Thomas (John 11:14-16).

When Lazarus, the beloved brother in the Bethany home, was sick, the distressed sisters, Mary and Martha, sent for Jesus because they had come to know him as more than a mere man. Jesus, after a strange delay, went to Bethany. He knew, and apparently the disciples knew, that going to Judea at this time meant death. His mission in going unto Judea was twofold: to strengthen the faith of the disciples (vv. 11-15), and to restore to these sisters their dead brother.

Jesus fearlessly discharged his duty, though his life had been threatened. He plainly declared that Lazarus was dead. Thomas was skeptical as to Jesus' ability to raise Lazarus from the dead. In spite of this fact, his loyalty moved him to cast his lot with Jesus.

II. Jesus, the Way to the Father's House (John 14:5-8).

Jesus asked the disciples to trust in him even as they trusted in God, assuring them that he was going to the Father's house and would come back and escort them to heaven. Christ asserted that he is:

1. The Way to God (v. 6). Jesus is more than a mere guide to the Father's house or a teacher. He is the way itself.

2. The Truth (v. 6). He is not merely the teacher of truth, but he is the truth incarnate. In him we have the truth about man, what he is and what he ought to be and what he shall be in the future. In him especially we have the truth about God. Only as Christ reveals

God can men know him (John 1:18). 3. The Life (v. 6). Christ is not merely the giver of life. He is the very essence of life. III. Thomas Makes Absolute Demands (John 20:24-29). 1. Jesus manifests himself to the disciples. Thomas being absent (vv.

24. 25). He was absent at Jesus' first appearance after the resurrection, just why, we may never know. His absence deprived him of a vision of the Lord. Absence from the assembly of believers always occasions loss. The other disciples went to Thomas with the glad news of the resurrection, but he did not believe their testimony. His stubborn disbelief was such that he doggedly declared that unless he saw the nail prints and put his finger therein and thrust his hand into the Lord's side he would not believe. 2. Jesus manifests himself to the disciples, Thomas being present (vv. 26-29).

Observe:

(1) The Lord's kindness to those who have difficulties (vv. 26, 27). Thomas deserved rebuke, but the Lord quietly supplied the evidence demanded. (2) The Lord reveals himself to Thomas (vv. 27, 28).

Upon this revelation of himself Thomas was transformed from a doubter to a confessor.

3. The superior blessing of believing without sight (v. 29). Having patiently furnished Thomas with tangible evidence of his resurrection, Jesus instructed him that to believe in him without such tangible evidence as he demanded was a higher and better state of mind than his.

IV. Jesus Reveals Himself After the Resurrection (John 21:1, 2). Thomas had learned his lesson. He was on hand the next time the Lord revealed himself.

Popular Medicines on Sale in Mexico City Although clinics are opening everywhere throughout Mexico City every market still has its stalls where popular medicines are sold. There are flowers called "the Hands of God" which are put in alcohol, and the alcohol is then rubbed on the chest for heart trouble. They are the size of a small child's hands, a bright red, ghastly in their actual resemblance to a long, thin human hand, even to the and short thumb, all of ittle tips like finger nails.

of the hand, which is bent and ciuiching in shape, there is a bony outline which bears the pollen. The flower comes out of five thick green leaves shaped like a tulip. It is beautiful, but very sinister. Another mild medicine which is very popular is tea brewed from the leaves of the orange tree. It is said to be good for the nerves.

The counters of the medicine stalls are piled with dried bones of all kinds, strings of vertebrae, antlers of deer, the shells of turtles, dried starfish and anemones, pits and seeds of fruits, and herbs and dried flowers of every description. The flowers are spread out on the roofs to dry, much as our grandmothers spread out sweet clover to make pillows for the linen chests. -New York Times.

Widely Used Quotations

Too Frequently Garbled Usually when we think we are quoting some thoughtful expression of the past, we are only misquoting. And the chances are we don't know whom we are misquoting!

The Golden Book Magazine supports the truth of this statement with a list of frequently misused quotations, all part of our everyday speech, some of which have been changed only by a word, but others of which have lost their original meanings

Today, for instance, we say: "All the world loves a lover." But Emerson said "All mankind loves a lover." We say: "Accidents happen in the best regulated families." What Dickens said was: "Accidents will occur in the best regulated families."

Cervantes in the Sixteenth century gave birth to the modern phrase, "Familiarity breeds contempt." what he said was: "I find my familiarity with thee has bred contempt.'

Adventurer's Heart Won by Beauty of Virginia

The swash buckling chevalier, Capt. John Smith, who landed with his three little ships, Sarah Constant, Discovery and Godspeed, on the shores of Virginia in April, 1607, had a few words of praise for the area when he reported his discovery to his king. Here is what he wrote more than 300 years ago:

"There is but one entrance to this country, and that is at the mouth of a goodly bay, the wideness whereof is near 18 or 20 miles.

"Heaven and earth never agreed better to frame a place for man's habitation. The mildness of the air, the fertility of the soil, and the situation of the rivers are so propitious to the use of man that no place is more convenient for pleasure, profit and man's sustenance under any latitude or climate.

"So then, here is a place, a nurse for soldiers, a practice for mariners, a trade for merchants, a reward for the good."

Original Speed Law?

The first speed law passed in America was drawn by the board of selectmen of Boston in 1757. The ordinance follows: "Owing to great danger arising oftentimes from coaches, sleighs, chairs and other carriages on the Lord's days, as people are going to or coming from the several churches in this town, being driven with great rapidity, and the public worship being oftentimes much disturbed by such carriages, it is therefore voted and ordered that no coach, sleigh, chair, chaise or other carriage at such times be driven at a greater rate than a foot pace, on penalty to the master of the slave or servant so driving of the sum of ten shillings."

Might Become a Habit

Billy was one of a large family, where the children were accustomed to wait on themselves. Usually he dressed and was out of the house an early hour. One morning he was found sitting disconsolately on the edge of his bed making no move to

"Why, Billy,' said his mother, "why don't you get your clothes on? You are old enough to dress yourself now, you know."

"Yes, I can put my clothes on all right," replied Billy on the verge of tears, "but if I commence to dress myself, I'll just have to keep it up, and I ain't goin' to do it."

Salt Superstition

The story which gave rise to the belief that to spill salt is unlucky is this: For some reason salt is thought to be a mystic substance. To spill it places you in the power of evil spirits. Your good angel is posted at your right shoulder, while your bad angel holds forth on the left. When you spill the salt, if you fling a bit in the bad angel's eyes, it blinds him so that he cannot take advantage of your misadventure and saddle you with something unpleasant.

LIGHTS | By WALTER TRUMBULL of NEW YORK

Emmanian manifestation of the commence of the We had the jig-saw puzzle, mah-jongg, the cross-word craze, which swept the country like a tidal wave; but it is doubtful whether any of them ever exerted as much effect on the country at large as this midget golf game has done. It has swept the hills like a winter wind and the plains like a prairie fire. One of its peculiar aspects is that, unlike most crazes, which spread from the big cities to the country, this game started in the small towns and extended to the big

Midget golf goes under many names. In some parts of the country it is called Putt-putt; in others Pee-wee; in still others Tom Thumb. There is a course just outside New York which bears the name of the Demi-Tasse Country club. But the game is the same at all of them. I am told that there is a man who holds a patent on some essential part of the outfit and that he is collecting plenty in royalties. Whether this is so, I do not know.

The value of the game is, of course, the turnover. By that I mean that the players pass around in an endless chain, and when they get to the end, either have to get out or buy another ticket, as they might on a scenic railway. Moreover, the player behind always is trying to hurry the player ahead, so there is little delay. It is a game that a man can step right in off the sidewalk and play, without changing any of his clothes or making any special preparation. It also is a game that a boy can play with his girl, and at which she has an equal chance.

Horace M. Albright, director of national parks, believes that sooner or later landing fields will have to be provided for those who visit the parks by plane. Thousands of visitors now use the automobile, but it will only be a few years before families will put the tent in the airplane and start on a vacation.

This didn't happen in any village, but in the main post office of a large eastern city of the United States. A man took to the stamp window a package he wished to mail to a town in New Mexico.

"You'll have to take this to another window," said the clerk. "We don't figure foreign postage here."

It was one of those pathetic cases. Life never had given her a break. She never had anything; but she found something down in Wall Street. He was a chap with a big heart, who had sold short and put it away in bonds. So pretty soon the girl had the closet filled with fur coats and a simple 2-carat ring on every finger. The ones on the thumbs and the earrings were larger, and, if she had been a centipede she still would have had two slippers for every foot. The man was forced by circumstances to go to a fashionable resort. Soon he telegraphed the girl to join him at another hotel. She failed to arrive, so he wrote asking for an explanation. She replied that she was eager to be with him, but that she had no siut-

able clothes for such a place. "Get all the clothes you need. Have opened account in your name," he wired, naming a smart Fifth avenue

"Use it." The girl followed instructions. She selected and charged a trousseau and eloped with another man.

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder-for somebody else." * * *

There is a Scotchman in New York who has worked out a new method of saving time. If he wishes for motives of policy to accept an invitation to one of the so-called banquets that are always being given in some one's honor, he goes early, mingles prominently with the 500 or 1,000 guests in the reception room, and then, when everybody flocks in to the actual dinner, he goes home. The chances are 100 to 1 that those who notice his absence merely think he is at some other table or perhaps has gone out to telephone. If he tried this at a small dinner, of course, he would have small chance to get away with it. His absence would be as noticeable as a cauliflower ear.

There is a tall, straight, old man who usually is to be found walking on Eighth avenue. In one hand he carries a cane which he frequently flourishes as if it were a sword. Over the other arm invariably is draped a carefully folded United States flag. I don't know who he is or why he does

William F. Cutler, president of the Southern Wheel company, has got himself a new exercise. On the roof of his apartment he has a pole with a tennis ball fastened to it by an elastic cord. The game is to sock the tennis ball with a racket and then get out of the way before the tennis ball socks back. When a couple of persons play the game the tennis ball has more than one chance to sock somebody. This is a great exercise for the dodging muscles.

Person of Unusual Size

Classed as Monstrosity Many persons admire giants, perhaps envy them, and imagine that they are examples of a superior humanity. A complete error; for gigantism is an anomaly, a monstrosity, as much so as dwarfism. It is really a disease. The work of anthropologists has shown that the giant is a man that is still a child, in whose case growth does not stop at the age when normally he ought to have ceased to grow. The giant is rarely well-proportioned; his hands and feet are almost always too large. his face is generally distorted.

Physicians who have studied gigantism say that giants are all diabetic. Professor Landouzy says also that almost all of them are candidates for tuberculosis. They are subject to all sorts of other morbid troubles; they tire sooner than normal persons; they are unfit for all violent labor; their muscles are weak in spite of their size; their nerves lack resistance, and they are often affected with neurasthenia. Handsome giants are rare .-Jean Lecoq in Le Petit Journal, Paris.

Artists' Troubles

Apropos the alleged neglect by the public of modern artists, Miss Frances Dodd, A. R. A., tells the story of a wealthy lady who had come to a certain artist's studio to look at his pictures.

At the end of two hours she made no indication that she would like to buy one, though the artist had patiently gone around explaining their different points. At last she said: "My dear man, I wonder if there is anything vainer in the world than you artists over your pictures."

"Yes, madame," was the reply, "our efforts to sell them."

The Boy and the Pin

The business man was telling a friend of the beginning of his successful career. "I got my start in life," he said, "through picking up a pin in the street. A wholesale merchant that I had asked for work had turned me down, and on my way out I saw a

"Yes, yes," interrupted the friend. "You picked it up, the merchant was impressed by your carefulness, called you back, and made you the head of the firm. I've heard of that boy very often." "Not at all," retorted the business man. "I picked up the pin and sold it. It was a diamond pin."

St. David's Day Holiday

for Grecian Youngsters The Welsh are not the only folk who keep holiday on St. David's day, says an article in the Montreal Family Herald. In Greece it is called Swallow day, the festival of spring, when the children go from house to house gathering small gifts and carrying wooden swallows, which they spin around to the accompaniment of folk songs. Some of these "swallow songs" have a long history. One of them has been traced back, indeed, more than 2,000 years.

Jesus college, "Little Wales in Oxford," as the facetious have called it. because of the preponderance of Joneses there, has its own method of celebrating St. David's day. For one thing there is the toasting of St. David in "swig," an exclusive and potent Jesus college brew. This is dispensed by a ladle that holds half a pint, from a beautiful silver bowl presented for the purpose by Sir Watkin Williams-Wynn in 1732.

His Alibi

Billy, age seven, had acquired the habit of biting his little playmates as a means of self-defense, and offense. His mother had related the last violation of social etiquette to his father and had asked that he talk with Billy and do something about it.

So father said: "Billy, don't you know that you must not bite people? We have talked about this before. You simply must learn that you can not bite people."

"Yes, I know that," said Billy. "I know that I should not bite Harry. But, you see, when I get mad, I get so absent-minded that I cannot remember what I am supposed not to do. I only think about what I want to do."

All but Twelve

Harry was very ill. The doctor who had been called was interested in finding the cause of the illness.

"What have you been eating?" he "Oh, a few apples; they don't hurt anybody," said the boy.

"Were they green?" asked the doc-"Some of them."

"How many green apples can a boy eight years old eat?" "They weren't all green-exactly green. Only two of them were green; the other twelve were rather ripe. Two green apples wouldn't hurt anybody," he insisted.

Relatives

Benny, age eight, had attended a family reunion and was one of the most interested of all the guests. He heard his mother later telling a friend about the gathering. "And all our 'in-laws' were there, too," she said.

Next day Benny was assigned to entertain a caller, president of the culture club his mother belonged to while his mother slipped into another

"Please Stand By"

This phrase, so commonly used by radio broadcasters, signifies "Be ready, in wait for further messages or program, keeping the receiver in operation and tuned to the same frequency." This use has probably been adopted from the nautical term "to stand by," because the radio at first was employed largely in connection with shipping. The sailor is ordered to stand by the anchor or the main sheet, in readiness for the next order with regard to it. A control of the cont

The Guiding Instinct

As the traveler who has lost his way throws his reins on his horse's neck and trusts to the instinct of the animal to find his road, so must we do with the divine animal who carries us through this world. For if in any manner we can stimulate this instinct, new passages are opened for us into nature; the mind flows into and through things hardest and highest, and the metamorphosis is possible.-Ralph Waldo Emerson.

No More "Beef and Beer", As Athletic Records Fall

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Lawson Robertson is without question one of the greatest trainers known to the American track. He not only has coached many famous runners and weight men, but he also was a notable athlete himself, competing in the Olympics at St. Louis in 1904 at Athens in 1906, and at London in 1908. He was trainer and coach of the American Olympic teams in 1912, '20, '24, and '28. In view of the new records constantly being established, we have asked Mr. Robertson to explain the improvement in speed and stamina of the present day ethlete. Surely no one is better qualified to speak authoritatively. -EDITOR.

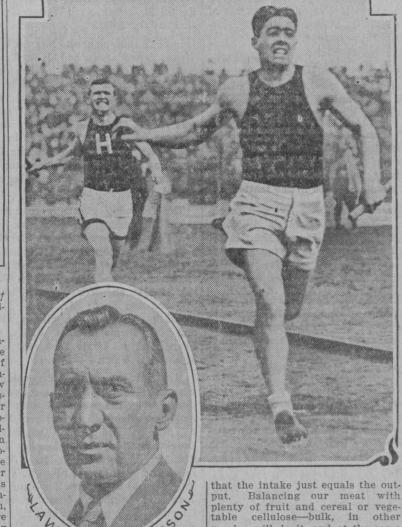

By Lawson Robertson (Famous coach of the University of Pennsylvania, and trainer of American Olympic teams)

THE balanced diet now is so common in the training of the American athlete, that I doubt if many of the present day track enthusiasts ever stop to consider how comparatively new this present system really is. We take it more or less for granted that runners, jumpers and weight men naturally balance their meat and other protein foods with certain cereals and fibrous or leafy vegetables to provide the bulk so necessary for proper elimination. Whole rice, which is nearly ideal because of its smoothness and volume of bulk-spinach, lettuce, carrots and beets-all are found regularly on college training tables these days. ever. I don't advocate putting a lot of taboos on certain foods. As a matter of fact, I let my men eat pretty much what they like, so long as they keep a proper balance of roughage in their diet.

When we consider the almost complete revolution in the dietary habits of our present day athletes, it is not hard to understand why competitors go right on breaking records. The men of today aren't the super-beings that some authorities would have us believe. MEMORIAL DEALERS OPEN ROOMS IN HAGERSTOWN.

Hammaker Brothers, memorial dealers of Thurmont and Gettysburg, have recently opened a show room at 40 East Washington St., Hagerstown, under the management of Ernest I. Stouffer. The proprietors, who are Frank E. and Ernest P. Hammaker, succeeded the elder Ham-maker's in business some years ago. The Hammakers have been in the monument business for more than a half century when the late B. Frank and Peter N. Hammaker, brothers and residents of Washington county, moved to Thurmont and began business there. Since the first plant started in 1874 the Hammakers have established an enviable reputation for quality materials and workmanship

The present proprietors are morning, due to the burning of some stables used as garages. The local Company had the fire about under control when our equipment arrived, and no extensive damage was done.

The present prophetors are two enterprising young men. Their plants are modernly equipped and manned by skilled craftsmen. A fine display of finished memorials may be seen at their show room on East Washington St., Hagerstown.

THANKS TO VOTERS.

CHAS. B. KEPHART.

Washington recently entertained 250 lawyers from Europe, most of them from England. As a body, they refused to drink while in America. It is just that attitude of good sportsmanship and respect for law which has made Great Britain great and will keep it great.
