ABOUT CHRISTMAS IN FAR OFF CHINA.

Will be of Special Interest to American Boys and Girls.

Dear Editor:

I wonder if you have any boys and girls among your readers. If so can they imagine a place in all the world they imagine a place in all the world without Christmas and its joys? One such place is down here on the "bot-tom-side of the world." The slant-eyed "yaller" kiddies here do not have Christmas trees. They do not "hang up baby's stockings the big-gest you can get." Santa Claus with his sleigh and reindeer and bags of toys seldom finds his way to China. It may be because the roads are too It may be because the roads are too narrow and the reindeer fear getting their feet wet in the rice-fields, or because there is so little snow and ice, or it may be because Chinese houses have so few chimneys, or perhaps Santa Claus is afraid of falling off the "bottom-side" of the earth, or may be even because nobody has shown him the way hore the way here.

Chinese children do not wait up at night to get a sly peep at him. Nor do they run down stairs very early on Christmas morning to see what Santa has put on the Christmas tree or with what wonderful things he has filled their stockings. Just think of it! A land with no Christmas! I say "No Christmas;" but it is not quite "No," for once in a while some Eng-"No," for once in a while some Eng-lish or American Store will have a Santa Claus or a Christmas tree in the window for the sake of English boys and girls. Then lots of wee Chinese noses interestedly press against the window-glass. Then, too, I and my American friends, friends of little children, are trying to be Santa Claus to at least nine hundred little kiddies in my rag-gred Sunday Schools in Shanghai. The GRAND JURY CONDEMNS JAIL Recommends New Building or Ex-Extensive Repairs.

The Grand Jury, on Friday, after being in session five days, reported that they had examined 103 witnesses, and had returned 105 presentments and true bills. They also reported visits to the County Home and the jail. As to the former, with few minor exceptions, they reported general con-ditions good; that there were 34 inmates consisting of 24 men, 7 women and 3 children, all of whom appeared to be well provided for and contented. A number of specific recommendations were made. The report on conditions at the jail was not so favorable. General conditions, considering the old building, were reported as good as could be expected, with but few exceptions. The building itself, however, was con-demned as unfit, without entire re-placement or very extensive repairs. A number of suggestions in detail were made, having in view the reduc-tion of present hazards on account of contact with major criminals, and the likelihood of their escape. The whole tenor of their report was to the effect that the building was both unfit and unsafe. The main recommendations were; 1st That a warden, or full time bailiff, be appointed by the County Commissioners, and whose duty it shall be to take charge of the jail and the responsibilities thereof, such appointment to be made with due con-sideration to the qualification re-quirements of such appointee.

ON THE PRESIDENT CHILD WELFARE.

At the Opening of a Conferance on Subject in Washington.

President Hoover, on Wednesday, addressed 1200 experts who have been at work for near eighteen months seeking measures for the solution of the child problem—child health, pro-tection, stimulation, and to aid the physically defective and handicapped child. The meeting marked the open-ing of a White House Conference in behalf of children as a National move-

While the President addressed his distinguished audience, he also directdistinguished audience, he also direct-ed his message to the millions of fathers and mothers of the nation, many of whom listened to the radio broadcast of the speech. To those "unseen millions" the President issued a reminder that "these problems are theirs—it is their children whose wel-form is involved its helpful services fare is involved, its helpful services are for them and their co-operation is essential in carrying out a united and nation-wide effort in behalf of the children." His address was full of personal His address was full of personal earnestness, of caution, appeal, scientific facts, and above all that the problem was one worthy of the exer-cise of the highest statesmanship in its solution. He gave the following figures attested by careful research, that out of the 45,000,000 children of the patient: the nation;

35,000,00 are reasonably normal. 6,000,000 are improperly nourished. 1,000,000 have defective speech. 1,000,000 have weak or damaged hearts.

675,000 present behavior problems 450,000 are mentally retarded. 382,000 are tubercular. 342,000 have impaired hearing. 18,000 are totally deaf.

300,000 are crippled. 50,000 are partially blind. 14,000 are wholly blind. 200,000 are delinquent.

500,000 are dependent. Continuing he said in part; "And so on, to a total of at least ten millions of deficients, more than eighty per-cent of whom are not receiving the a larger proportion of happy, normal children than any other country in the world. And also, on the bright side, your reports show that we have 1,-500,000 specially gifted children. There lies the future leadership of the nation if we devote ourselves to their guidance."

business depression. What caused our depression? Let's look at it a moment. As I said be-fore, production and consumption have gotten out of line. We learned a lot of things during the war, and some of those things have helped us, perhaps some have harmed us. One of the things we learned during the war was how to speed up things. You and I know that during the period when America got into this great con-flict how everything was speeded up; and the result of it was that men were trained to do more than they were trained to do more than they had done previously. Then when the war closed that same speeding up idea was still present, and, as these young men came from the front after (Continued on Fourth Page) (Continued on Fourth Page.)

MAKING CANDIDATES FOR 1932.

Picking presidential candidates for 1932 has already commenced. It is a harmless, as well as interesting, pastime, but hardly a profitable one. A year and a half ahead in National politics, is a very long time-very long, very uncertain, and too many things can happen to upset even expert prophecies.

Of course, the prize ahead is a good field for the Frank R. Kentsfor the space writers who must agitate their brains and their imaginations for the benefit, presumably, of the class of readers to whom politics never grow stale, and who like to know possible candidates in a very familiar way, knowing them as Hoover, Roosevelt, Coolidge, Morrow, etc., without bothering about formality of title, or any other particular evidence of respect.

If a man is a candidate for the presidency, or may be one, he is just one man who happens to have reached the point of being "talked about," and therefore his estimated chances, fitness and record are common property, under that very much elongated privilege, "the freedom of the press," and what "the papers say," of course becomes common property.

* We have long passed the time when we first wait until a candidate announces himself, before dissecting him. If our favorite newspaper prophets think certain men may be candidates, that is all that is neccssary, and we just fall in line gabbling, showing our interest-or maybe ignorance—in visualizing the names at the head of the ballot in 1932.

And by the way, why do we have "primary" elections for all other offices and not for the presidency? It seems to us that what is good for the called "a nice old country gentleman," lesser offices, should be good for the but we rather like it-it's a reputation two highest ones. Like "every dog has his day" and every prize fighter fights once too often, the office holder finally gets his order to stay at home. It is the natural, inevitable, course of things; and | First Epistle to Timothy, said, "The while it is not always the best course for the public service, voters are quite apt to forget about that.

He is a wise man who knows just when to quit depending on public favors, or on personal ability and endurance that in some way or other rests on continued public patronage, and, it must be admitted that this law of natural consequences has some advantages, both to the public service and otherwise.

Having a "strangle hold" on a job, as we sometimes say, is unfair to others equally, or more competent, to fill offices. Once in a while, twenty years or more in office with the exercise for the benefit of the public of experience gained by long service, is very valuable; but the country is rapidly growing away from dependence on such men. The increase in eligibles is growing more rapidly than the offices, and there is much to be said of merit receiving its reward, and consequently the encouragement to keep on increasing merit, is altogether a a commendable and fair performance.

COMMENTS FROM EXCHANGES.

Who says exchanges and their editorials, are not read?

In the last issue of The Marylander, Baltimore, the president and moving spirit of which is the well and favorably known Paul Winchester, says in a symposium of comments on the election.

From The Carroll Record (Republi-can) we read "the fight was hardly a fair one and was pretty generally nastv.

THE ROOT OF EVIL.

St. Paul, in a famous passage in the love of money is the root of all evil." An elderly citizen, bred in habits of old time industry, recently remarked that the love of idleness is the principal root of evil. These two suggestions account for the major part of our crime.

The crooked element start in their evil ways, first, because they want money, thus verifying the saying of St. Paul. And second, because they are not willing to engage in laborious effort to obtain it, in which they verify the saying of our old friend. They want what they want now, and will not wait.

The lavish opportunities for entertainment of the present time have a powerful temptation over youth. They enjoy swift and smooth running automobiles, free travel about the country and elsewhere, lavish eating in the best hotels and restaurants, costly shows, sports, dancing places, swell clothes, etc.

They get a wonderful thrill out of spending money freely. It gives them enormous pleasure to pull good sized wads out of their pockets, and spend them on their girl friends. They must have money now, and they can't wait. So when some smart crook offers to instruct them in the ways of crime in return for their assistance, and tells them how easy it is to fool the police, they fall for that fool talk.

The need is to put better ideals in these silly youths. Sports are one thing that will do it. The boy who becomes skillful in any good sport finds plenty of thrills without spending much money. Interest in good books is a wonderful way to do it. The heart of youth can be shown the true way to look at money, if there is a real effort to do /it .- Frederick News.

DO THE DEMOCRATS WANT A SPECIAL SESSION?

As predicted, that high-sounding pledge by the seven distinguished Democrats of wholesome co-operation | knew much about the present execuwith the Republicans in Congress is in | tive, and just about now would be a danger of being regarded as "a mere scrap of paper." The good faith of the signers themselves is not affected. But there are accumulating evidences that they may have promised more than can be or will be performed. Their right to speak for their fellow Democrats has been challenged by several influential members of the party, of whom the latest is Senator Glass, of Virginia. His statement ex-

LET THE PRESIDENT ACT AS THE EXECUTIVE.

As President Hoover and his policies promise to be the target of his political enemies in the soming session of Congress; and as neither in the present, or the new Congress will the President have a dependable majority with which to back him up, it seems to us that the plain common-sense thing for the President to do is to place what recommenadtions he may see proper before Congress, and let it go at that, making it clear that Congress shall be responsible for what it does, and that there will be no more vetoes, except perhaps in the most extreme cases.

Heretofore, when vetoes have been sure before certain actions were taken the President has been at a disadvantage, and his enemies, as well as members of his own party, played politics with the assurance of vetoes to follow. This sort of business can be ended by the President himself, by letting Congress legislate and be responsible for the good or ill that may follow.

He should shut up the source of veto information, and at least let his opponents guess at what he may do. This sort of policy would possibly not disconcert a considerable portion of his political opponents-largely those that grow west of the Mississippibut it would have the effect on those more conservatively inclined, and on the wabblers in his own party, to watch their step as representing good legislation, as distinguished from good political buck passing.

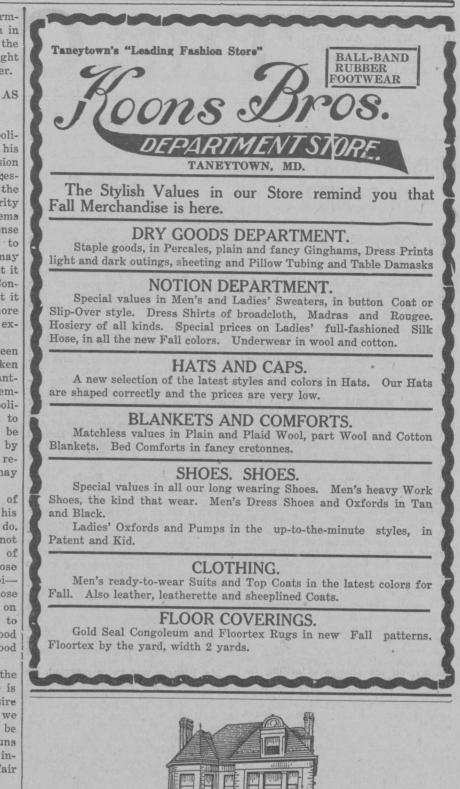

We would suggest, too, that the President let it be known that he is not possessed of a consuming desire to succeed himself in 1932, which we believe to be the case. This would be a relief to some, and spike the guns of others and make some current intimations seem what they are-unfair presumption.

Let Congress rule, and be responsible! That is its whole job anyway -to legislate; and the President's sole job is largely to execute, and the one not to be responsible for the acts of the other. The interference of the executive in matters of legislation, began very largely back some twenty years ago, long before the country good tome to stop it.

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING EARLY.

The weekly newspapers have already commenced their annual concern for shoppers and merchants, by | advising that "Christmas shopping be done early," giving a long schedule of very good reasons therefor. The Record used to do the same stunt, but long ago we have discovered that it is wasted effort. Folks get ready for Christmas when they feel like it, and that is all there is to it-good advice to the contrary, notwithstanding.

We used to get real pathetic over it; fearing that the little kiddies would be forgotten by careless parents; that the things specially wanted could not be had, because of delay; that the salespeople would be overworked; that the mails would be so overcrowded that they couldn't get there in time; that late shoppers would lose their temper, and overexert themselves, etc.

"Do your Christmas shopping earisn't wanted. Some do it, and some don't, and that's the way it is going to keep on-advice, or no advice. Folks seem happy in doing as they please; so let them keep on indulging "personal liberty," without wasting time and space in extending well-meant advice where it is not wanted?

Some folks seem actually the happiest when they have something to worry about. They like to get fussy and flustered and a little short-tempered occasionally, and "long about Christmas" is one of these occasions. When the "get there" finally, they feel that they have won a victoryand there's satisfaction in that.

NEWSPAPER IS DIFFERENT.

A mistaken idea with a few people in this neighborhood is that the newspaper is an individual proposition and if they don't like its personnel, they feel they must knock the paper and stand in the way of its success wherever possible. They fail to realize that the local paper is essentially as much a part of the community as the schools, churches or anything else. The local newspaper is different from any other business in that it is a community affair. It is for service to the people and not for any particular person or individuals.

It takes the people to make a good newspaper and without the help of the people no one can run a successful paper. Money is required to run any kind of business-even the churches. Newspapers are no exception to this rule and for this reason' they must have the patronage, not support, of business interests as well as their good will.

Few newspapers published make more than a comfortable living and coming fiscal year and also of the scarcely one is reported wealthy from money made in the newspaper business. They deserve to be trusted and to be understood by the people-it is The Insurgents have numerous pet ly" is mighty good advice, even if it the editor and not the plant that makes a newspaper useful in a community, although a liberal patronage is essential if the paper is to be a credit to the town .- Middletown, Md., the support of the Democrats, would Register.

It is easily within the power of the Democrats, aided by the Insurgents, so to block routine but vitally important legislation and also the emergency measures for relieving unemployment which the President has in mind that a special session of the new Congress will have to be called. It has been widely reported that this is the plan of the Insurgents. To the Demacrats, with their greatly augmented numbers, a special session would be a great temptation to tinker with the tariff and farm relief. Ever in their pronunciamento, designed to be so reassuring, the seven sages declared that the present tariff act must be rid of "its outstanding enormities." President Hoover has sent a communication to Mr. Robinson, Democratic leader of the Senate and one of the signers of the famous pledge, urging the kind of co-operation at the short session that will dispose promply of the appropriation bills for the emergency legislation, so as to avert the necessity for a meeting of the new Congress immediately after March 4. projects for the short session, including Muscle Shoals and the farm debenture. White House Restored When the British attempted to destroy the White House, in 1814, the fire gutted the interior of the building and badly damaged the exterior walls. All preparatory work and repairs to masonry were done in 1815 and early in 1816. Contracts were let for the cutting and delivery of timbers from nearby Virginia and Maryland, and the erection of the roof was commenced in October, 1816, and completed in December of the same year. By September, 1817, the work had progressed sufficiently to permit President Monroe to spend a few days in the building and in December of that year he took up his residence there.

PRESENTING THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Today the Chevrolet Motor Company presents the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six, a new model of the six-cylinder car which has enjoyed such wide popularity.

In both the chassis and body of this new six-cylinder Chevrolet you will find expressed, more impressively than ever before, Chevrolet's well-known policy of progress through constant improvement.

For—without departing from the basic features which have won the enthusiastic approval of over 2,000,000 buyers—Chevrolet has produced a six-cylinder car which represents an entirely new standard of quality, value and refinement in the low-price field.

Your first impression of the new Chevrolet will be one of striking fleetness, grace and beauty. The car is longer, lower and modernly smart. The radiator has been deepened and its appearance enhanced by a curving tie-bar lines sweep back unbroken to blend gracefully into the new Fisher bodies. And never were Fisher's fine artistry and finished craftsmanship more evident than in the bodies of the new Chevrolet Six! 11.3

Not only are the bodies roomier and more comfortable, but as you study them you will discover many gratifying new features and pleasing refinements — many examples of that painstaking attention to detail which is the basis of true quality.

Mechanically, too, the new Chevrolet Six is a better automobile. The wheelbase is longer. The frame is stronger. The steering is easier. The clutch is more durable. There is a smoother, quieter, easier shifting transmission. In fact, wherever finer materials and more advanced design could add to Chevrolet quality or increase Chevrolet's traditional economy of ownership —improvement has been made. Dairy Health Film Is Retired to Shelf by U.S.

Washington, D. C .- "Out of the Shadows," an agricultural film depicting the dangers of tuberculosis to cows, has gone the way of many other old pictures produced by the Department of Agriculture. After nine years of service in the fight against bovine tuberculosis, the film has been laid on the shelf.

The last remaining copy of the 42 put into circulation has been withdrawn because it is battered, "rainy," and full of sprocket holes. As it has done its work, no more copies will be printed.

No other film produced by the Agriculture department has made a record approaching that of "Out of the Shadows." It has been used in every fight against tuberculosis since 1921, and has been shown in almost every rural community in the United States where dairy cattle are important. The 42 copies put into circulation have been sent into the field 1,644 times.

Sixty-one copies of this film have been sold for use in foreign countries, including Uraguay, Belgium, Guatemala, the Union of South Africa, and Great Britain.

"Out of the Shadows" told the story of a hard-headed old dairyman to whom the tuberculin test was a "newfangled" idea until his daughter was sent to a hospital for tubercular treatment. A test showed her pet cow, the source of the milk she drank, reacted to the test. The dairyman learns his lesson, the daughter comes home well and strong again, and every one is happy. The film was acted by amateurs, but it proved to be of great. effect in field work.

Electrical Treatment of Soil of Little Value

There is a great difference of opinion among agricultural scientists as to the value of electricity in the cultivation of various food crops. Many English authorities claim that grain and some garden produce is quite materially speeded up so far as growth is concerned and the quality improved, by a current of electricity passing between the ground and a network of wires suspended above the growing crops. A Finland farmer reports an increase of 50 per cent in the amount of produce and grain grown in this manner. The United States Agricultural department has been experimenting with the subject for years and the final conclusion is that no benefit or at least very little has resulted from the electrical treatment of the soil. In fact it was noticed that a slightly prolonged exposure resulted in killing the seed placed in the ground. This conclusion is agreed in by some other authorities so that the preponderance of opinion is that the electrical treatment of soil is without result .--Exchange.

The well-known Mr. Williams, author and cartoonist, would have been delighted with a view of juvenile ambition, and to some extent of capitalistic oppression on State street recently.

Cleaning the sidewalk outside a candy store on the corner of State and Hancock streets, a youngster, hardly out of the stage of natural bowed legs, was sweeping with a broom, so large in comparison with him, that he scarcely reached above the brush.

SAVE EYES OF IN GUARDED AREAS 10,000 TOILERS Patrolled Districts Saved as

Use of Goggles Proves Boon to Workers in Industrial Plants.

New York .- More than 10,000 eyes and at least $46,000,000 were saved in two recent years among 583 plants, employing a total of 500,000 workmen, according to the report of a study entitled "Eyes Saved in Industry," just published by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness and the National Safety council.

The two organizations set out to discover the total of authenticated cases of workmen's eyes saved from serious injury or destruction through use of goggles or head masks.

The survey analyzes the records kept by the corporation during 1926 and 1927, disclosing that in addition to the financial economy 2,757 men and women were saved from serious injury or total blindness in both eyes during the two years. There were 4,654 recorded instances of workmen being saved from a similar fate to one eye, making a total of 10,168 eyes saved from destruction or serious injury.

First Study of Its Kind.

"In this study, the first of its kind ever made," explained Lewis H. Carris, managing director of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, "it was assumed that an object which hit a goggle lens with such force as to pierce or shatter the lens would most certainly have so damaged the eye, if the goggles had not been worn, as to cause complete or nearly complete loss of vision. It was assumed, further, that every instance of a goggle lens bespattered by molten metal or by corrosive or otherwise injurious chemicals represented an eye saved.

"The eye hazards of industry have come to be one of the most serious causes of blindness in America. There is, in fact, considerable ground for the belief that each year more persons are permanently robbed of their sight by occupational hazards than by any other major cause of blindness.

Huge Financial Loss.

"This is due largely to the fact that innumerable persons, employers and employees alike, still do not realize or do not believe that it is possible to prevent accidental eye injuries in the particular occupations in which they are engaged. It is due also to the failure on the part of employers or employees and communities at large to appreciate the tremendous financial loss resulting from the blinding of men and women in industry.

"Despite the splendid accomplishments of many individual firms in the prevention of accidents in general, and specifically in the prevention of eye accidents, such accidents are still considered by many persons inherent or unavoidable accompaniments of certain industrial processes. Despite the tremendous financial savings through accident prevention publicly and authentically reported by some of the leading industrial concerns of America, there are still thousands of employers who regard as an unavoidable (though evil) necessity the payment of thousands upon thousands of dollars for destruction or injury of the eyes of their employees."

SKILLET BISCUIT

There are two kinds of camp cooking-that which one enjoys simply because one is ravenous from the fresh air and exercise, and that which wins favorite favor on its own merit and would be just as delectable served in the home. In the latter class undoubtedly falls skillet biscuit, which is so quickly made that the most impatient appetite can wait upon it and so simple that even the amateur camp cook can achieve success. Another point in its favor is the fewness of the ingredients and utensils required.

Girls love to make "skillet biscuits" with a self-rising flour when out camping. It's fun to "flop" them. It's also fun to make them with a prepared flour which is so easily handled out of doors.

Here's all you need: three cupfuls self-rising flour (soft wheat flour that has the baking powder and salt already properly added and blended), three tablespoonfuls of fat and seveneighths of a cupful of milk. If dried, evaporated or condensed milk is used in place of fresh, dilute according to the directions on the can until you have the equivalent of seven-eighths cupful of whole milk.

First mix the fat and flour thoroughly, either by cutting or rubbing. Then add the milk and mix quickly. Roll or cut, of if that is not convenient, simply drop by the spoonful on a hot. greased skillet. When brown on one side, flop the biscuits and brown on the other. They must cook quickly. This recipe will make 24 biscuits, so let your appetites be your judge as to how many batches you're going to need!

Self-rising flour is the ideal flour for camping purposes. Time is saved because the baking powder and salt are already added in proper proportions at the mill.

CHEESE STRAWS

Cheese straws made at home are one of the most appetizing delicacies one can serve with soup or salad. The only way I can account for their not being served more frequently is that there must be some idea lurking in the back of most women's minds that cheese straws are difficult, tricky things to make successfully. If this is how you feel about it, do try this recipe at the first opportunity!

Take a cutful of self-rising flour, which is simply soft wheat flour that does not need any baking powder or salt to be added because these ingredients have already been perfectly blended into it in the right proportions at the mill. Sift just once before measuring. Add to this three-fourths cupful of grated slarp cheese (sometimes referred to as "bitey" cheese) and one-fourth cupful of fat. Half a teaspoonful of paprika and a dash of

To make good pastry, such as cheese straws, with self-rising flour, cut the shortening into the flour with a "dough blender." This combines the flour and shortening quickly and efficiently. The advantage of using self-rising flour is manifold. It is economical, dependable and a great time saver, as the flour, baking powder and salt are all properly portioned and perfectly blended by the miller.

cayenne pepper complete the ingredients with the addition of enough cold water to make a stiff dough.

Add the water a little at a time. Roll the pastry out till a quarter of an inch thick and cut into strips a third of an inch wide and five inches long, using a pastry jagger or sharp knife. Place the strips on a baking sheet in even rows and bake in a hot oven.

"In the interests of harmony," said the foreman, "and to make this verdict unanimous, I desire to change my vote from 'Yes, sir' to 'Si, senor.'"

Johnson's Impeachment

President Johnson was impeached by the house of representatives, but was acquitted by the senate in the impeachment trial. The Constitution gives the house the sole power of impeachment and the senate the sole power to try impeachment cases. An impeachment is similar to an indictment, in that an official who has been Impeached is not necessarily guilty, any more than is a person who has been indicted by a grand jury.

Salt Tax Is Old One

Modern Europe, it is commonly believed, inherited the salt tax from the Orient, or possibly from the Venetians who became noted makers and vendors of the sea-born commodity. France had vast natural stores of it, and was among the first nations of the western world to tax it. That resented impost, the gabelle du sel, or tribute of salt, was one of the causes of the French revolution, so heavily did the peasant have to pay the kings for a little seasoning in his pot.

The jury censured the father for not exercising sufficient vigilance over his son after the incident.

Metal Button on Cap May Cost Man His Life

Long Beach, Calif .- The metal button on the top of David Rizer's cap may cost his life.

Rizer, an operator in an electricity distributing station, was found on the floor in front of the station switchboard-the inside of his cap in ashes, and his hair burned off. The police said the metal cap button touched a switch, sending the full current through Rizer's head and body.

In addition to being a time saver, self-rising flour is dependable and this one feature, dependability, is worth its weight in gold to homemakers. To know that each day her products will be perfect and always the same is a godsend to every one of us who prepare three meals a day, 365 days each year.

In self-rising flour, a trained chemist has prepared the proper proportion of leavening, which is baking powder, and flour in a chemical laboratory, with the greatest of accuracy and with accurate weights and measures.

So the chemist in giving us flour blended with baking powder in the right proportion assures us of that accuracy that we cannot always get. In using self-rising flour, sift flour before measuring. Never add soda or baking powder.

The following recipes are delicious, and illustrates the efficiency of selfrising flour:

Drop Cookies (50 Cookies).

4 cups sifted self-2 eggsrising flour1½ cups sugar¾ cut fat3 tsp. flavoring % cut fat % cup milk

Place fat in a warm place until it becomes soft, though not melted. Combine with sugar. Stir in eggs. Beat well. Add alternately the flour and milk. Add flavoring. Drop small portions of the mixture on a greased baking sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.).

Doughnuts (40 Doughnuts).

 1 cup sugar

 1 cup milk
 ½ tsp. cinnamon

 1 tbsp. melted fat
 ½ tsp. nutmeg

Combine melted fat and sugar. Stir in eggs. Add flour and milk alternately; add flavorings. Roll out the dough about one-third inch thick without handling it any more than necessary. Cut out the doughnuts and fry in deep fat hot enough to make a doughnut rise to the surface quickly and to brown each side in about one minute (about 375 degrees

VACCINATION IS REMEDY FOR POX

New Method Being Used by Nevada Poultrymen

Control of chicken pox in Nevada has been facilitated in Washoe county by a method new to poultrymen of the state, one that has proved itself speedy, economical and effective, according to Edward C. Reed, county agricultural extension agent.

The method, which in essentials is similar to the vaccination of persons against smallpox, consists of plucking feathers from the leg or the wing of the chicken and applying a concentrated chicken pox vaccine to the follicles from which the feathers are removed.

Advantages over the subcutaneous method, by which the fowls are vaccinated with a hypodermic, consist in the much greater speed, often running as high as 2,000 vaccinations a day; less resulting illness among the pullets; and smaller expense for vaccine, as less is used.

Washoe county poultrymen are planning what they think will be an improvement on last year's method for innoculation. Instead of using a stiff bristle brush for the application, they propose to use a small rake-like metal instrument and to scratch the web under the chicken's wing.

Vaccine for the method is especially prepared and is secured through the veterinary control service of the University of Nevada.

The method was first used extensively in Holland, but experimental work in agricultural experiment stations in the United States, particularly in California and Oregon, has resulted in some improvement in the European method.

Time of Feeding Hens Very Important Matter

The old idea was to give the hens some grain the first thing in the morning, because they are hungry at that time and will eat readily. The new idea is to feed in the evening enough grain that a little will be left over for the morning feeding.

This left-over grain will in no way satisfy their morning appetities, so there should be a good-sized mash hopper filled with laying mash for them to finish off on. Cleaning up the left-over grain and eating mash should occupy the hens' time until ten o'clock.

At this time give them a light feeding of grain, about one-third of the total amount of grain they will get that day. The hens, being tired from a morning of continual eating, they will rest for a while, after the ten o'clock feeding of grain.

As soon as this feed is exhausted the hens will begin to eat mash and continue until the regular grain feeding in the evening.

Spreading Demand for More Beautiful Roads

Strange things are happening to the Great American Road.

For several years the American Civic association has been giving prizes for the most attractive, the most neatly kept wayside refreshment stands, in an effort to improve the looks of the usual rickety food purveying shacks of the traveled highways.

In New Jersey they have passed a law putting billboards under state control, charging a tax on space used, and reserving the right to bar excessively unsightly structures.

And in New York Governor Roosevelt has asked for an appropriation to be used in setting out trees along highways in certain districts. He says:

"These plantings would be primarily to demonstrate that the highways could and should be made more sightly. An increasingly large body of public opinion recognizes the beauty of tree-lined highways, as well as their economic value."

What the present concern with roads really means is that America, after spending its entire career to date getting ahead in the world, is setting itself in order for more civilized living. -Philadelphia Ledger.

More Action, Buddy

We talk too much and do too little. From the days when the expression, "There oughtta be a law," originated on the Texas frontier, we have had the notion that once we passed a law or even a resolution, our problem was solved ipso facto. Nowadays public officials attach the same weight to their own mere statements, and we the people too often accept their valuation. We might better use the words of the movie director to a posing in Japanese Shrines Four gigantic statues of Buddha have been erected in Japan. The largest one is located in the city of Kyoto, and dates from 1801. It is a wooden figure, consisting of only a head and shoulders; but even so it reaches to the ceiling of the lofty hall in which it is enshrined, and is 58 feet in height.

The next largest is 531/2 feet in height, erected in the city of Nara. It is made of plates of bronze soldered together.

The third in size of these images, but which perhaps gives the most majestic impression of the four, is located at Kamakura, erected in the Thirteenth century. It is 49 feet 7 inches in height, and is formed of sheets of bronze cast separately, brazed together, and finished off on the outside with the chisel.

The hollow interior of the image contains a small shrine, and the visitor may ascend into the head.

The next, and smallest of the four, was built in 1891 at Hyogo, in the precincts of the temple of Nofukuji. It is 48 feet high. It was largely through the efforts of a paper manufacturer of Hyogo, named Nanjo Shobei, that this statue was built. But it by no means equals the ancient statue at Kamakura.

Horse on Milk Wagon Is Trained to Keep Quiet

Washington .- Found! An ideal milk wagon horse. No longer will the residents of certain streets in Washington be disturbed at early hours of the morning by clatter of hoofs and loud shouts of "whoa" and "giddap." Bud, a diligent worker for one of the Capital city's milk companies, has carefully considered the feelings of a peaceful sleeper and has allowed his master to teach him the latest methods of keeping quiet.

X

With rubber shoes on his feet, Bud comes into the residential section without detection. When the time comes for his driver to deliver the milk, Bud is halted with merely a 'shush" instead of the usual "whoa." When his master is down the street there is no need for a loud "giddap" to bring Bud along. A wave of the hand starts the rubber-soled feet into motion and Washington's residents sleep on, unaware of the visit of the milk wagon until they find their milk in its usual place.

Scientist Finds Ancient

Idol of Pre-Aztec Era Mexico, City.-What is alleged to be the largest idol ever found in America was discovered recently near Tecoco, 40 miles from Mexico City, by a Hindu archeologist, Pandurang Khankloje. It is 3 feet high and is supposed to date back to pre-Aztec times.

Its existence is said to have been known in the days of Porfirio Diaz, president of Mexico in 1877-80, and again in 1884-1911, although no books mentioned it.

The stone idol represents the Goddess of Water and is called Chalcutlique. It has a thickness of 20 feet and is fantastically carved. Traces of the original green paint which ornamented the head are still visible.

The ancient image will probably have to lie in the deep ditch where it was found because it would be necessary to build a railroad to haul it out.

SCIENCE AND LOVE SAVE BRIDE'S LIFE

Navy Aids Stoker in Long Trip to Wife's Side.

London .- Science and love joined hands here to save the life of pretty Mrs. Margaret Bennett, youthful bride of a naval stoker.

The spectacular incident was watched with interest and sympathy by the entire nation.

Years ago Margaret and Will Bennett were childhood sweethearts in the Devonshire village of Newton Poppleford. Last December they were married and a few weeks later Bennett left to join his ship for a two-year cruise in the South Atlantic and Pacific Recently the young bride became desperately ill. At the hospital a staff of highly skilled physicians and nurses began the fight for life.

They despaired as they watched their tense, pale patient grow steadily worse until she fell into delirium. Here the great drama began. Through the long hours of the day and night she mumbled "Will" and "I want Will." They appealed to the admiralty to order the young stoker home. Stoker Bennett, then in South American waters, was given a special leave and raced for London. Newspapers reported his progress and his bride's condition. Physicians consulted colleagues and all was done to maintain the tiny spark of life until the 5,000-mile trip had ended. They succeeded and one day "Will" walked rapidly up a hospital corridor and into his wife's room. "My Will," she cried weakly, struggling to rise. "Thank God." Stoker Bennett isn't going back to his ship until she is fully recovered and the doctors now say this is virtually assured.

vacation season rolls around

Magnesium metal has been known to science 100 years. Though known for 122 years it appeared in its purest form a century ago and has been available commercially for more than 65 years, says Dr. John A. Gann, metallurgist, in a report to the American Chemical society on the development of the magnesium industry.

Since the date of its discovery it has been found that the metal is about seventy times as plentiful as nickel and 200 times as abundant as copper. Magnesium salts are also found in mineral waters and in the ocean. The important raw material for magnesium production in the United States at the present time is Michigan salt brines.

Interesting Old Castle

Lumley castle, near Chesterle-Street, England, it is thought, can establish its claim to be the oldest inhabited castle in the two counties of Northumberland and Durham, says an article in the Montreal Family Herald. It was originally built as a manor house about 933, and continued as such for about four centuries. In the Fourteenth century Sir Ralph Lumley had the castle remodeled by building the four corner towers or keeps and connecting the buildings on all sides but the west. The castle has been in continuous occupation of the Lumley family ever since its original erection in the days of the Saxon kings.

THE RICH YOUNG RULER, REFUS-ING A LIFE OF SACRIFICIAL SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 10:17-27. GOLDEN TEXT—And he said unto them all, if any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Failed Lesus

Failed Jesus. JUNIOR TOPIC-A Man Who Failed

Jesus. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choices Which Must Be Made. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOP-IC—What Following Christ Means.

I. The Young Ruler (v. 17). For a complete view of the characteristics of this young man see also Matthew 19:16-30 and Luke 18:18-30. 1. His virtues.

(1) He was courageous.

He was a man of high standing-a rich young ruler (Luke 18:18, 23). With manly courage he came to Jesus. (2) Earnest (Mark 10:17). He came and knelt before Jesus, thus showing his earnest sincerity. (3) High aspirations (v. 16).

He wanted eternal life. He felt the need of preparing for a life beyond. (4) Pious and moral (v. 20).

He professed to have conformed to God's only law from his youth.

(5) He believed that Christ could inform him of the "good thing" to be done to inherit eternal life. 2. His errors.

(1) About Christ (v. 16).

He esteemed Jesus to be good, but did not apprehend him as God. (2) Concerning himself. He was self-righteous. He thought he was good and that he could do something good. (3) Concerning eternal life.

He had a defective theology. He thought that eternal life could be obtained by good works. II. Jesus Dealing With the Young Ruler (vv. 17-22).

Jesus skillfully led the young man to see his errors and then put his finger on the weak spot in his life.

1. His question: "Why callest thou me good?" (v. 17). His object in this was to lead the young man to a correct apprehension as to who he was. Before giving him a chance to answer he declared that only God was good, as if to say, "I am good and therefore God."

2. Jesus' answer to the young man's question (vv. 17-20).

"If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." Christ met him here on his own ground; namely, that of the law. He took the young man's level that the young man's real worth might be revealed. If one insists on getting life by doing something, the law declares what must be done. It must be perfectly kept.

Without doubt a great value of the public roads is yet to be realized. They are used by motorists seeking natural beauty. A trifle more expenditure, with restrictive measures against eyesores, would make them what the traveler hopes to find.

Too Little Attention

Paid to Attractiveness

To some extent there has been a growing regard for attractiveness in building of dwelling houses and the design of premises; in both exterior and interior plans for business places, great and small; in the construction of hotels, office buildings and apartments, and even in filling stations. But we still have investors who insist upon putting up merely utilitarian houses, plain, unattractive stores, dry goods box styles of apartments and other merely serviceable construction, when for a little more outlay a much better investment could be made, or better results could be had even with the same expenditure of money and a little more application of intelligence. We still have home owners who could well afford to keep their houses and the lawns in order, but put no value on the factor of attractiveness; who do not appreciate the importance to themselves of making a 'good appearance"; who are content to live in relative dinginess when they could give themselves a brighter outlook on life from their private domain .- Philadelphia Ledger.

"Suddenly he paused. He glared down at all those nodding heads. Then he resumed in a loud voice: "'I was walking down Green lane

3. Christ's command (vv. 21, 22). Replying to Christ's citation of the commandments of the law, the young man glibly asserted that he had kept them from his youth up. He no doubt was sincere, but deceived. In Christ's command to go and sell his possessions and distribute to the poor, he put his finger upon the weak spot. 4. The young man's fatal decision

(v. 22).

His going away sorrowful proved that he was covetous and did not love his neighbor as himself.

III. Jesus Showing the Peril of Riches (vv. 23-27).

This teaching concerning the peril of riches was most timely. Covetousness was fast taking hold of the people. Even one of his disciples, Judas, was well under its sway.

1. It is difficult for the rich to enter into the kingdom (vv. 23, 24).

This difficulty lies not in the possession of riches, for a man may possess great riches and be an heir of the kingdom. The difficulty lies in trusting in riches.

2. Entrance into the Kingdom is possible, though difficult (vv. 25, 26). (1) It is possible for the grace of God to sanctify riches.

The very thing which hinders may become a great influence for good in the hand of a regenerated soul.

(2) It is possible for the grace of God to open man's eyes that he see his downward course and repent. (3) It is possible for the grace of God to change a man from self-seeking to self-sacrifice.

(4) It is possible for the grace of God to make men humble.

IV. Rewards for Following Christ (vv. 27-30).

Those who turn their backs upon their kindred and possessions for the sake of Christ shall receive an hundredfold in this life, and eternal life in the world to come.

Wheelbarrow Conscience

Most people follow their conscience as a man follows a wheelbarrow, pushing it before him the way he wants to go.-King's Business.

The Carnal Mind "The carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be."

Seed Thoughts

Nothing can make a man truly great but being truly good, and partaking of God's holiness .- M. Henry.

Teddy. "But I never expected a smart fellow like you would be wasting time listening to political speeches."

"And I never figured a smart feller like you would waste time makin' 'em," grinned Bill as the two shook hands.

Suresnes in History

Suresnes cemetery, a historic spot, has been the grave of soldiers since prehistoric times. It is situated on the gentle sloping hill of Mont Valerien, named after the Roman emperor whose forces there won a bloody victory. In the Middle ages Mont Valerien was frequently the scene of fierce battles between the Frankish tribes. Napoleon started to build a fortress there because of its strategic position. In the Franco-Prussian war Mont Valerien was the last French stronghold to surrender to the German armies besieging Paris, and was also the scene of an artillery duel between the troops of the national government and the bloody Paris communards.

Nineteenth Amendment

Wyoming was the pioneer suffrage state. It legalized the voting of women in 1869 and carried the provision into its state constitution when admitted in 1890.

Women of 12 states voted in the Presidential election of 1916. These states were Wyoming, Colorado, Utah. Idaho, Washington, California, Arizona, Kansas, Oregon, Nevada, Montana and Illinois. On August 26, 1920, the United States secretary of state proclaimed the Nineteenth amendment in effect, it having been ratified between June 10, 1919, and August 18, 1920, by three-quarters of the states.

Defining Lobbyist

The following are among the prizewinning definitions of a lobbyist submitted to the Forum in a recent contest: A lobbyist is one who uses his personal influence with members of a legislative body in order to secure the passage of measures which will be of benefit to him or to the interests he represents. A lobbyist is one who by persuasion, argument or artifice seeks to influence the thoughts and actions of a government body for the benefit of private or public interests .--- Washington Star.

aged by motor transport and electric railways, is creating new suburbs. Factories recently erected in the Greater London area are causing, according to Doctor Unwin, 20,000 people to move into it each year. A city which had all the potentialities of the most splendid in the world is spreading, not splendor, but dinginess, tawdriness, inconvenience and muddle over an area of 2,000 square miles. And all this spoliation is occurring, not because there is no room, but because there is no plan .- London Daily Chronicle.

Environment Counts

People reflect their environment. Those who live in shabby, down-atthe-heels houses are likely to feel depressed and discouraged. We borrow much of our confidences and spirit from our surroundings. If they have nothing to give-no hope or confidence, no pride in home or joy in living-then they become a liability of such proportions that only the most herculean strength can resist them .---Exchange.

Give More Character

When discussing plans for the new home it should be remembered that "character" and "design" are two different things. A house may be designed well and yet be wholly lacking in character, or a house may be designed badly and possess character. Good design is obvious, but character is elusive and hard to visualize from a set of plans.

Trees Hurt by Wires

Wires or heavy ropes drawn tightly around a tree trunk or limb may slowly strangle the tree by retarding or stopping the free circulation of water or food, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The careless use of a long pruning-hook or other implement for breaking off small dead twigs should be avoided, the department adds.

Pecan Trees Line Highways

Terrell county, Oregon, has a pecan highway. By means of donations from various civic organizations more than 1,500 pecan trees have been planted along the highways.

The Taneytown High School paper -The Flame-is a contestant for that silver cup offered by the Board of Education to the school that publishes the "best newspaper." The joker in the offer is that "the cup must be won three times by the same school before it becomes the property of the school." Anyway, our guess is that at the end of three years another cup will have to be included in the budget for schools, and that Taneytown school will start a collection of silverware.
