THE CARROLL RECORD

Be as cheerful as possible, even when things go wrong—our troubles are made worse by worrying over them

A HOME-COMING IDEA HERE OUTLINED.

Are Patrons of The Carroll Record Sufficiently Interested?

The Wayne County Press, Fairfield, Ill., has issued for several years, a "home-coming" edition in which it prints many letters—all it receives—from former residents of Fairfield and community, who are subscribers, or should-be subscribers, to the Wayne County Press.

These letters mainly contain information as to where the writer is now living, what he or she is doing, or thinking, or remembering; something of the old-home, and of the new home that the back-home people would be interested in. Something like a personal home-coming; only, through the means of a letter, and the home paper.

What do the Taneytown away-from-homes think of the idea? The Record is willing to try it out, if you are. These letters likely could not be published in a single issue, but we would be willing to make a department for their accommodation. The letters would not be limited greatly as to length—say to about 500 or 600 words, which would mean a letter ten or twelve inches long, in type.

In order to make a successful go of it, we would want our nearby subscribers to give us the names and addresses of friends of theirs, who have lived a considerable distance away, for quite a number of years, and we would "follow up" this information with our invitation to persons mentioned.

We might get some new subscribers through the plan, or we might not. We would not operate it for this chance alone; but mainly in order to publish an interesting new feature, for all of our readers. It has been quite a success in this Illinois town—why not also for Taneytown and the field covered by The Carroll Record? What do you think, and have to say, about it?

Some little time would be required to place the feature in operation—perhaps not before early in January—and, The Record can not do it without the needed interest being manifested in advance. Now let us see how closely you read The Record, and how much interested you are in this sort of "home-coming."

DID NOT HAPPEN IN THE RECORD OFFICE.

The following incident, being purely imaginary—but possible—never exactly happened in The Record office. Scene, country weekly newspaper office. Visitor enters with an important, 15 cent, Special Notice, and hands it to the office scribe, along with a dime.

Scribe—"Our lowest charge for special notices is 15c."

Visitor—"I thought, as everything is 'down,' the price might be only 10c."

Scribe—"Sorry, but it's 15c—and mighty good advertising, too."

Visitor—"Well, all right, here's a Nickel."

Scribe—"Are you a subscriber to our paper?"

Visitor—"No, but I borrow my neighbor's every week."

Scribe—"Oh yes, I see—do you take The Daily Banner?"

Visitor—"Yes, (a little huffy) but what's that got to do with this special notice—don't you want my 15c?"

Scribe—"Yes, of course; thank you for not sending it to The Banner."

Visitor—"That's what I thought. O, yes, my sister says, maybe you have a big sheet of heavy paper you don't want—she wants to mail a package."

Scribe—"Who has been correcting three mistakes in the Special, and entering the 15c in cash book, before taking up his interrupted work, replies."

"Certainly, wait a bit until I can get it and roll it up for you; and give you a heavy string for the package."

Visitor—"O, yes, I almost forgot—have you a nice calendar for me and one for Aunt Sally?"

Scribe—"Of course, here's a lot, take your pick, and I'll wrap 'em for you."

Visitor—"Well, now I think that's all. No, I forgot some news for your paper this week; our G. A. F. N. Society is going to hold a sale of eats this Saturday night, and everybody is invited; and my 13 hens laid 44 eggs last week; and my cousin Kate from Wayback, and her seven children visited us last Sunday. I know a lot of folks would like to see these in the locals."

Scribe—"Of, course, of course, thank you—by the way, I see you gave me a Canadian dime, but that's all right."

Visitor gets busy with her packages and solemnly makes for the door.

Scribe—"What's your hurry—well, call again."

AN ERROR CORRECTED.

In the first page article last week with regard to the will of Mrs. Alice C. Brown two slight errors occurred, the one due to misinformation and the other to a typographical error. The general statement that the will was sustained was correct. The statement that the court directed a verdict for the caveators on the first three issues was incorrect. The directed verdicts were for the caveatees. With regard to the fourth issue submitted to the jury the machine turned "caveatees" into "caveaters"—just one "r" too many.

MARCHING TO WASHINGTON

A Movement that May Cause Very Serious Trouble.

Marching to Washington by the unemployed is a misguided movement fomented by mischievous agitators, and attracts those naturally inclined toward being trouble-makers "against the government." The pathetic side of the movement is, that if the foolish "Coxey Army" idea is kept up, many will suffer serious consequences.

Relief agencies all over the country are already functioning in a manner to take care of all needy cases, that are made known in an orderly manner. The so-called "jobless" agitators need not go marching far from home to receive help; and when they do, they are likely to cause greatly more harm than accomplish any good.

The report that 300 marchers may be expected in Hagerstown, on Saturday, is a case of this kind. They are said to be due to arrive in "motor trucks," and an advance agent is reported to have asked for meals and shelter for the "marchers," which has been refused by the Mayor.

Other like cases are reported to be in prospect, but it is hardly possible that the movement will reach serious proportions.

THE OLD TANEYTOWN. Part III.

The public school house was the only place for entertainments, away back, and there were not many held, but there were "magic lantern" shows and once upon a time a really good entertainer held forth, one of his best selections being, "How Ruby Played." This was the time, too, when Christmas trees in the churches were real attractions, and were used to some extent for the distribution of family gifts. Real candles and Chinese lanterns were used to produce a pleasing lighting effect on the tinsel trimmings.

Many will remember the first street lighting system that was installed by private subscriptions. The lamps had a gasoline tank attachment that furnished a vapor gas, which made a very satisfactory light as long as the burners were good. These lamps burned until the supply of gasoline ran out, which was usually shortly after midnight; but on special occasions an extra supply of gasoline was used making light for a longer time.

Burgess S. Miller was the first lamp lighter, and he had no easy job, trying to keep the lamps clean, and pleasing everybody. But, these lights were much better than none, and led to acetylene gas and then the present electric system. The town had a "moonlight" schedule, the biggest objection of all—but, it saved money.

Along about 1880, the town had an ingenious watch-maker named Henry Kappes. With the aid of some of "the works" of an old town clock he rigged up a clock with three dials, each about 6 feet in diameter, and installed it in the steeple of the Lutheran Church (the building that was remodeled in 1896.) The clock struck the hours on the church bell, and was never a finished success, especially the striking arrangement; but, had the maker been more plentifully supplied with cash, he would likely have kept it going. As we recall it, the clock "stopped, never to go again," when a heavy load of old iron of various kinds, used as a weight, dropped and made a hole in the ceiling under it, when the whole outfit was removed.

Another prominent feature of early incorporation was the "Craver grade," named after the surveyor, which was interpreted in a very flexible manner to suit certain properties.

PENNSYLVANIA'S RELIEF PLAN.

Leaders in the Pennsylvania legislature, on Tuesday, agreed to the following program for unemployment relief, involving about $20,500,000, to be raised by taxation; 1 cent additional gasoline tax for a period of 15 months, estimated to produce $12,500,000; and 2 cents on every package of 20 cigarettes, expected to produce $8,000,000, the latter to be in effect until the end of 1932.

The adoption of the plan is a defeat for Gov. Pinchot who had nine bills introduced involving the expenditure of about $120,000,000. The two main features were the issuance of $35,000,000 in bonds, and the creation of a commission to supervise the disbursement of relief funds. The funds to be raised by the new measures are to be divided by the Department of Highways to the various counties, one-half according to population and one-half according to unemployment needs about $4,000,000 going to Philadelphia.

The bills will be introduced early next week, and are expected to be passed promptly. Other bills introduced disagreeing with this new plan are to be killed.

CHRISTMAS ADVERTISING.

The Carroll Record never solicits extensive Christmas advertising, for the reason that its force of help is always, during this season, busy with job printing about up the limit. However, we would like to fill up all available Adv. space, and from now on must insist that reservations and copy for Christmas ads be placed not later than TUESDAY MORNING EACH WEEK. We will NOT be able to give choice of position, but will do our best to please all.

One robin does not make the Spring time, nor does advertising, just once or twice a year, bring much increased business. It takes readers some little time to get over their surprise, and to realize that the occasional advertiser means it.

WINTER ROAD BUILDING

Commission Plans to Give Winter Work to Unemployed.

The State Roads Commission plans to spend $2,800,000 this winter in road and bridge building, is announced in the Baltimore Sun, from Harry D. Williar, chief engineer. This is a radical departure from the former custom of discontinuing road work from Nov. 15 to April 15, and is due to the need for work by the unemployed, this winter.

No detailed program of the proposed contracts has been announced as yet, which means that the sections to be benefited, are as yet unknown; nor has any recent news been published concerning probable activities in Carroll County in this direction, this winter.

The contracts so far announced as having been awarded are in Cecil, Kent, and Montgomery counties, largely bridge contracts.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

The glory of a nation lies not in its natural but its human resources. The care and proper development of child life is the most important problem which society faces. A government which busies itself getting material wealth, and neglects to provide for the care and protection of the life of the youth upon whom depends its future prosperity and power, is building upon the sand. The thirty representative women who attended the Westminster District Children's Aid Society meeting Thursday of last week, proved by their interest and activities in the work, they believe the child the most important asset in the nation today.

Mrs. Albert Mitten, Chairman of the district presided. Miss Marguerite Shunk in her Secretary's report told of the last district meeting. The district treasurer, Mrs. E. P. Brunidge, reported the district over the top in its apportionment from the spring drive. The reports of the chairman for the different departments of work were most gratifying, and proved without a doubt each woman was deeply interested in her work.

After the reports were heard and discussed, Mrs. Mitten, district chairman asked Mrs. Frank T. Myers, President to tell of the work throughout the county. Mrs. Myers gave a very comprehensive report of the many problems confronting the society both in the town and county, of the families who had been helped and of those who continued to need help.

Mrs. Myers invited questions and many were asked. She particularly stressed the object of the social worker was primarily to raise the standard of living in the families with whom she comes in contact.

The following chairmen were appointed to serve for the coming year: Layette, Mrs. J. Thomas Anders; Girls dresses, Mrs. Wm. Young; Girls blouses, Mrs. Joshua Hesson; Girls skirts, Miss Blanche Bair.

The friendly visitor to foster homes to keep in touch with the child placed in the home by the social worker is Mrs. John L. Bennett.

LUMBER SHIPMENT TOUR.

The Community Reporter, Mt. Airy, last week contained the following article concerning an interesting tour taken by a shipment of lumber to Mt. Airy:

"A shipment of lumber received yesterday by the Peoples' Lumber & Supply Company traveled more than 7,000 miles before reaching its final destination here. The reason for the excessive mileage was laid to the fact that the shortest distance between two points is not always the cheapest—indeed, in this particular instance, the longest way 'round is by far the cheaper. Even so, the freight charges on this 26,000 feet of white pine shipment is approximately one-third the cost of the lumber.

Bought from the Potlatch (Idaho) Lumber Company, this particular lot of white pine was shipped by train to Everett, Wash., an inland journey of several hundred miles. At the county seat of Snohomish (Washington) county, the cheapest mode of transportation to the east coast was sought and that, incidentally, was by water. The 26,000 feet of white pine, consigned to the local building concern, made up part of the freight on the steamer "Hegira," booked for Baltimore via the Panama Canal.

The "Hegira" weighed anchor at Everett, Wash. on October 22, steamed down the California coast and then took an easterly course to clear the Panama Canal. The Gulf of Mexico and the Florida Keys were passed in the voyage up the Atlantic coast to Cape Charles, Va., where the lumber ship entered the Chesapeake Bay. On November 22—exactly one month after the date of sailing—the "Hegira" arrived at the Locust Point piers in Baltimore. Unfavorable tides and fog delayed her docking until 3:00 P. M. Monday.

Had the lumber been routed to Mt. Airy via Omaha and Chicago by rail, the mileage would have totaled 3,283, but the freight charges would have been considerably more than one-third of the cost of the shipment. From Everett to Baltimore by water, via the Panama Canal, the mileage totals 6,783."

One robin does not make the Spring time, nor does advertising, just once or twice a year, bring much increased business. It takes readers some little time to get over their surprise, and to realize that the occasional advertiser means it.

CONGRESS MAY VOTE ON PROHIBITION.

Both Parties Uncertain as to how the Test will be made.

The outlook is that leaders of both parties in Congress will agree to a test vote being taken on prohibition, at the coming session. This is something of a surprise to the "wets" who have been urging for the chance, but are not so sure now that they want it after all. They are beginning to think the "drys" may get the most benefit out of it.

There appears to be but little doubt of a good sized dry majority in both branches, that will see to it that nothing is done to seriously annul present laws; and a vote by Congress could not repeal the 18th. Amendment, even with a wet majority.

That prominent "dry" leaders favor a record vote of some kind, seems to be evidence that they are not afraid of the result. And such vote may be taken early in the session, in order to get it out of the way for more important legislative questions, such as those that relate directly to the economic problems confronting the country.

The chief difficulty with the "wet" forces is, that they have not agreed on any one specific plan. Some want absolute repeal of the 18th. Amendment, some are for "state's rights" on the whole subject; some are for "light wines and beer;" and while but few are favorable to the old licensed saloon, there has been no clearly outlined plan generally agreed on, for the sale of liquors in case prohibition should be finally annulled by a constitutional vote of states.

The whole question is also "loaded" as a political issue, and for both parties. And this means that leaders outside of Congress are about as much concerned as those inside, as to the effect of a vote in the country at large. At present, repeal, modification, state control, are in a jumble, awaiting the magic leaders who can succeed in drafting a popular program that the parties throughout all of the states can get back of with enthusiasm.

DON'T BROADCAST GERMS.

"If you find yourself developing a cold, take the best possible care of yourself. Get rid of it as soon as you can, but have some thought for the other fellow also. Keep your cough, your sneezes and your germs to yourself. Don't broadcast them. If you have to cough or sneeze, do it into your handkerchief, please. Wait until you are well to shake hands. Show your friendliness in other ways."

This is the advice of Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, to victims of the ever-present and so-called "common" cold.

"We talk about catching a cold," Dr. Riley continued, "but usually the cold catches us. It usually finds us when our powers of resistance are lowered; the germs enter and take possession. Each person who develops a 'cold,' becomes a carrier of the disease, temporarily at least. While in that state, he is a menace to all who come in contact with him. A sort of endless chain is established that is hard to break.

"What we call a 'cold' is brought about by organisms so minute that they cannot be seen even by the most powerful microscope. These organisms are found in the secretions from the nose and throat of those who are suffering from a cold. When they cough or sneeze the germs are sprayed out into the air, or into the face of persons nearby.

"Some of this infective material is also left on the hands every time the victim of a cold touches his mouth or nose, and the germs are carried to everything the sufferer touches. On that account, handshaking is one of the things that should be omitted by the person who has a cold. Another way by which the person who is suffering from a cold can help to protect others is by washing his hands frequently and thoroughly, with plenty of soap and water.

"The person who has a cold needs rest, quiet, a very light diet, the advice of his own doctor, and proper care. The quickest way to get rid of a cold, and the best way to prevent other people from getting it, is to go to bed, to send for your doctor, to stay in bed until the symptoms have disappeared and your doctor tells you that you can go back to work or to school."

C. E. NEWS OF THE CARROLL COUNTY UNION.

The Union requests that all societies send representatives to the meeting in the Westminster Armory, Sunday, Dec. 13, at 7:30. Also representatives to the Mt. Vernon M. E. Church near Washington's monument, Baltimore, Dec. 13, 14, 15, each evening, at 7:30. The meetings in Westminster and Baltimore, will be the interest of the Allied Youth Movement for Prohibition. Dr. Poling will be the speaker in Baltimore, on Sunday. The other members of his party are speakers of removal.

Again, our publicity Supt., is asking you to keep all posters, newspaper clippings, and black board drawings; so that we can enter them in the state publicity campaign for the loving cup.

REAL LIBERAL GIVING.

Edward J. Clark, janitor at the Friendly Inn, Baltimore, a relief agency, who receives the very small salary of $8.00 a week with board and lodging, has contributed $100.00 to the Community Emergency Relief Fund, of Baltimore, and $10.00 to the Citizens Relief Committee. His statement accompanying the gift was, "There are others who need it more than I do; I've got food, and a place to sleep." There's considerable of a good sermon in such a short text.

WARNINGS AGAINST FIRE.

Careless handling of kerosene and gasoline is one of the chief causes of farm fires. Kindling fires in stoves or furnaces with gasoline or kerosene is dangerous. Be careful in handling lamps, heaters, stoves, incubators, brooders and lanterns or lamps with flammable liquids for fuel—never fill them while they are burning. Use a non-flammable liquid such as carbon tetrachloride for dry cleaning. Keep kerosenes and gasoline in tightly covered metal containers. Don't leave them near stoves, furnaces, or rubbish.

THE COMING CHRISTMAS.

The near approach of Christmas is no doubt receiving the solicitous attention of many. Largely because it represents the universal gift-giving season that attaches to the Christmas spirit; and especially because many are feeling the financial pinch of the times, accompanied with numerous unusual demands on ability and generosity for relief work.

Unquestionably, the season this year carries with it, not so much rebellion against these demands, as it does real regret that retrenchments must be made and economics practiced. Spending as usual, while a very attractive form of optimism, should be considered along with rational self-denial and situations as they actually exist.

Unfortunately there are many who, on the slightest pretext, keep their purses tight shut, magnifying "hard times" out of all proportion to their actual presence, and refuse all appeals for help. To such, there is hardly any thanksgiving time, and but little thought of making those less fortunate, happy. To them Christmas, and Christmas giving, is more or less a nuisance, and only another scheme for getting their money.

Visions of "over the hills to the poor house," or something near like that, prevents them from knowing anything of the happiness connected with "giving," for it is "getting" that is the object of their lives. On the other hand, the normally liberal-minded ones, do not act the miser, but their real regret is that they need must, for the best of real reasons, smother their generosity to some extent, and give only in accordance as they have been prospered.

At this Christmas season, it is fortunate for all communities and for all homes that there will be a Christmas spirit; somewhat subdued, but still alive and functioning. The majority of folks will skimp a little, but still exercise the "Polly Anna" spirit of thankfulness and generosity, without which the world would represent a bleak and uncheerful place for mere existence.

RIGHT AND WRONG.

The whole world, in recent years, has lost much of its accord on the great questions—What is right and What is wrong? It is a National and international quandary. Agreements are matters of policy—combinations of self interest. The truth, for truth's sake—for righteousness sake—is in the discard, for who can establish a code of truth and righteousness that will be broadly accepted?

When we follow what seems to be right, we must confess that it is merely "right," as we see it. And so do Nations, like individuals set world standards for the time being only. What one nation considers right from its own standpoint, other nations consider wrong from their standpoints; and so, we have world-wide quarrels—and wars.

In the light of Old Testament history, and the ancient histories of the then powerful Nations when wars were frequent, perhaps the world today is not worse than in the remoter ages. The main difference may be that now the desire for peace is stronger, and better organized. Or, it may be that the interests of the many nations are now so interwoven by commerce, that wars are seen in a more unprofitable light.

However we may moralize over the questions of right or wrong, whether by nations, states, political parties, or corporations, we must not lose sight of the inevitable application of the personal equation that follows into the growth of all large debated questions. As we are, individually, so are large masses, collectively. National thought is largely the thought of the people of that nation.

The importance of peace movements therefore, or of movements that centre around prohibition, for instance, is not so much to make large numbers of people right-minded, as it is to make them peace-minded and anti-liquor minded. The much debated word "right" may be left out of the argument, when it is offensive; for if we can bring about the need desired, personal interpretations of words are unimportant.

We have had the Ten Commandments almost since the beginning of time, yet the world is still disobeying them. This is no reason for "scrapping" them, nor urging their amendment, nor for holding a referendum on them. In the case of prohibition enforcement, a referendum would not change the mind of a single voter. There would still be "drys" and "wets;" with legalized beer, there would still be "moonshine" whiskey, and violations of the amended laws.

The "right" or "wrong" of the sale and use of liquors, will never be settled to the satisfaction of all. Therefore, why not accept the 18th Amendment as a sort of Eleventh Commandment, and "stet" it? Certainly, peace must be right, and sobriety must be right, unless we disregard the vast preponderance of testimony in their favor.

FIGURING ON DEATH AND ILLNESS OF CONGRESSMEN.

The struggle for the control of both branches of Congress has been going on, through outward manifestations, for months, by party leaders. We have been having vacancies in both Senate and House, caused by death, and these have been fought over and filled with almost indecent effort and promptness. And now, the figuring is on cases of severe illness existing between members of both parties, is the seriously important news of the day.

News concerning the condition of sick members is accompanied with concern as to whether members may be fit to attend, or whether they may be brought in on stretchers to vote when presiding officers are elected. The concern is not so much for the member, as for his vote, and for the advantage of power and the distribution of minor places that falls to the party electing its presiding officers.

Politics on a large scale, is a heartless game, very largely, for we have not by a large degree discarded the motto that "to the victor, belongs the spoils." Offices still mean power and financial gain, not so much for parties, or the country, as for those who are elected to office, and for their natural hangers-on.

After the first of December, and the organization of Congress, the life and health of members will not call for so much solicitude. A member, more or less, who may die, or be confined to his bed, will largely be represented by inconspicuous headings in the newspapers, just the same as in thousands of like cases, not members of Congress.

That is, not until their votes may be needed later on, to head off the enemy in the passage of legislation held to be important for partisan reasons; but again not especially important to the country at large, for the big prize of all is being played for that is to be won in November 1932. No good Democratic nor Republican Congressman has a purely individual right to die, or get very sick, until after that date.

THE P. R. R. AND RELIEF WORK.

The following announcement has been sent by W. W. Atterbury, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with reference to relief work among its own employees and their cooperation with community relief agencies: "To the Officers and Employees of the Pennsylvania Railroad:

"Under the leadership of public-spirited citizens throughout the Country, practically every community has undertaken some plan of unemployment relief, so that in a sympathetic and effective way those who have, may share with those who have not. The magnitude of these efforts emphasizes the seriousness of the needs. I am sure that everyone in the Pennsylvania Railroad regards this as a cause that appeals to his sympathy and worthy of his support.

"The purpose of this message is not merely to direct attention to an obligation, which we all naturally feel, to contribute to the relief funds now being raised in our own communities. It is to call to your attention also an opportunity which we should welcome, to co-operate actively with other citizens in these communities who have unselfishly assumed the great work of gathering these funds and administering the necessary relief.

"This Railroad operates in thirteen States and the District of Columbia. It serves most of the large and small cities in this part of the country, a section in which the need for unemployment relief is probably greatest. We have as fine a body of citizens in our organization as it is possible to find. I urge, therefore, the individual members of this organization to take an active part, as citizens, in the relief work in their communities, by contributing not only as much money as they can afford, but also wholehearted interest and co-operation in forwarding the work of relief.

"The railroad business, in common with all industry, is at a low ebb.

Many thousands of employes have been furloughed and many more are working only part time. The Management feels that its duty in relieving distress is to these men.

"Fortunately, we have had on the Pennsylvania Railroad for many years an organization of employes and their families whose year-in and year-out function is to help our people in their individual problems and in emergencies. This organization, the Women's aid, parallels the Railroad's operating organization. Its business is relief work. It is exceptionally well equipped to handle the present situation, and has already disbursed from its own funds during the first nine months of 1931, well over $200,000 in relief work. It is our purpose to strengthen this organization with personnel wherever indicated, and with funds appropriated by the Board of Directors so that it can undertake and effectively carry out the greater amount of relief that may be needed during the coming winter. Your Board of Directors has already made $100,000 available for this purpose.

"By providing relief to a large number of unemployed, and part-time employes, through the Women's Aid, and by assisting as individuals in the financial support and active work of local community organizations, we render a real and substantial public service, both as a railroad organization and as individual citizens.

W. W. ATTERBURY, Pres.

LOOKING TO CHRISTMAS.

It is well known to those in retail business that few of their customers think seriously of Christmas until Thanksgiving is over, though for many months before the factories are making ready the merchandise which suits the season. But the turn toward the year's chief occasion of giving and good cheer is as marked as the weather change which followed the feast of harvest. And Christmas is suddenly very near, indeed, and much to be done before it arrives.

What needs most to be done is to safeguard the spirit of the season with all the gracious customs which belong to it. If there must be economies this year, they should not represent a niggardliness of good intentions. If giving must be scaled down somewhat in respect to hard times, there should be no friends forgotten on the day of friendship's greatest festival. And though there may be a few who can spare the traditional thrill and excitement of Christmas, it must be remembered that children look forward to them with undiminished faith.

It may be maintained, indeed, that this should be a Christmas made memorable by generosity and thoughtfulness for others. For when the need is greatest the gift is most esteemed. Those to whom Christmas giving has been merely a custom can make it this year a very pleasant privilege by remembering those who are most in need of a token of remembrance. If this spirit takes possession of the Christmas season which has just begun, it will lack nothing of the color, glamour and busy excitement which have belonged to it in better years.—Phila. Ledger.

GENERAL WASHINGTON, HOST AND HUNTSMAN.

That General George Washington was an enthusiastic huntsman is evidenced in many of his own writings and letters, according to the Division of Information and Publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission. He was a superb horseman; many contemporaries in their writings noted his splendid appearance on horseback. Lafayette, in describing him in a letter home, spoke of him as the most magnificent figure he had ever beheld, when mounted on his white charger.

General Washington loved his horses and his dogs, and enjoyed the keen sport and excitement of the chase. In fact, he joined in hunting and all sports and games more for this reason than for honors or success.

He was in the habit of hunting three times a week if the weather was favorable. During the hunting season, Mount Vernon entertained many sporting guests from the neighboring estates, from Maryland and elsewhere. These guests arrived, often with their own retinues of servants, their own mounts, and remained for visits, not of days but of weeks, during which time they were entertained in good old style.

Breakfast was served at candlelight, the table groaning with the bounty of delectable southern dishes. Washington himself, however, rarely partook of anything but Indian corn-cakes and milk. He often asked the blessing at his table, unless there was a clergyman present, all standing during this ceremony.

At dawn the cavalcade would be ready to start, Washington mounted on his favorite hunter, Blueskin, a fiery animal of great endurance, dark iron gray in color. For hunting he wore the fashionable costume of the times, a blue coat, scarlet waist-coat, buckskin breeches, top boots and a velvet cap. He carried a whip with a long tassel.

Billy, who was Washington's body-servant during the war, rode with the hounds, mounted on Chinkling, a French huntsman's horn slung across his shoulders, riding fearlessly through brake and tangled wood, in a style which would strike terror to the heart of most modern riders.

Washington took great pride in his hounds and had his pack so critically drafted as to speed and bottom, that in running, if one dog lost the scent, another was immediately at hand to recover it. When running in full cry, you could "cover the pack with a blanket."

Mt. Vernon had a large kennel of hounds and a fine stud of horses. Washington kept with his own hands a careful register in which could be found the names, ages and marks of each. Had the records of horse-breeding during the Revolution, and the time immediately following, been more carefully kept, there is no doubt that the stables of the present day could boast descendants of the renowned stable, which included the fiery Blueskin, the famous full-blooded Arabian, Magnolia, Ajax, Valiant, and Chinkling. Some of the hounds were named Vulcan, Ringwood, Singer, True Love, Music, Sweetlips, Forester and Rockwood.

Following these early morning hunts, the party would return to Mt. Vernon for dinner, usually finding additional guests who had arrived from neighboring estates to learn the result of the hunt and to enjoy the afternoon's gayety.

A bounteous dinner was served, after which some of the guests would play loo, the preferred game of the times, others would gather about the harpsichord, and with the accompaniment of lute and violin, raise their voices in pleasing choruses.

After supper which was served about nine or ten o'clock, there was usually dancing—the minuett, and jolly country dances which the young people especially enjoyed. As all rose early for the hunting, the hour of retirement was not late.

All sports were suspended during the war, and hunting was never revived at Mt. Vernon on its old-time scale. In 1785, Lafayette presented Washington with a pack of hounds, but increasing private and public duties caused him to give up such pleasure.—From the George Washington Bi-centennial Commission

Islands Once Peopled by Races of Indians

Before the arrival of the white man in the West Indies, the inhabitants of the islands consisted almost entirely of two branches of the American Indian race, the Arawaks and the Caribs. These had made their way from the South American mainland, through the whole chain of the Antilles as far as the Bahamas. The Caribs had come later and had ousted the Arawaks from all of the Lesser Antilles and from some of the larger islands. The Caribs were warlike and aggressive, while the Arawaks were more peaceful agriculturists, with well-developed arts. The people of the Bahamas called themselves Yucayos and the chief tribe of Cuba was the Ciboneys, these also being branches of the American Indian race.

Old records declare that Haiti had over a million inhabitants. The forced labor demanded by the Spanish conquerors, together with the actual massacres and war losses, practically wiped out the native population of Haiti, Cuba and other islands in less than a century. The importation of negro slaves began as early as 1505, at first for the mines and later for the plantations, and Haiti became predominantly negro. Part of the island had become a French colony during the Seventeenth century, and the outbreak of the French revolution led to the proclamation of universal freedom in 1793. A few years later the Haitians, former negro slaves, declared their independence of France and successfully maintained it against the French forces.

NEW USE FOR CORKSCREWS

The veteran was on his favorite topic—his experiences as a soldier in all parts of the world.

"I remember the time when we were stationed near Babylon. The heat was terrible. Why, it was so hot we used to toast our bread in the sun, and—"

"Yes, I know," interrupted a bored listener, "and they supplied you with corkscrews to draw your breath."

Jones said it was.
"Come and have a round of golf?"

"Oh!" dubiously from the other end. Then, brightly, "Oh, well, what about nine holes?"

After the Wait
The very fussy housewife had kept the butcher a long time before she decided on her purchase.
"But," she said, after a five-minute inspection of a piece of meat, "I don't think this is lamb. I looks to me like mutton."
"I'm sorry, madam," the butcher replied, "but it was lamb when I first showed it to you."—Answers, London.

FEESERSBURG.

December—the beginning of winter butchering, much hurry, special services, music in the air, evergreens, cherry greetings, gifts, and the birthday of our King.

Snow, all day on Friday—after unusual warmth the first of week, and now a blessed rain. Yes we have variable weather in the north temperate zone.

We attended the Union Thanksgiving Service in the Lutheran Church in Union Bridge, and it was good to be there. The Pastor of the church presided, and read the President's Proclamation; Rev. Wm. Schmeiser, of the M. P. Church, read the 103rd Psalm; Rev. J. Wimmer, of the Church of the Brethren, offered prayer; and Rev. W. E. Culp, of the M. E. Church preached a thoughtful sermon, on the subject: "Will our thanksgiving for 1931 be a Mockery?" Mrs. Culp, pianist, played "Holy, Holy, Holy," with variations; Rev. Schmeiser and Howard Gray sang "Sometime, Somewhere." The offerings were devoted to the Council of Religious Education in the county.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Kalbach entertained the following friends from Baltimore, on Thanksgiving day, to a roast goose dinner: Francis Kesselring, his mother, Aunt Lizzie Kesselring, Miss Kathryn Frohenhausen, and Dr. Samuel Pressman, of Providence, R. I. The kind friends brought and installed a radio for their host.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Huffer and two children, of Monocacy, near Detour, spent an evening last week with the Rinehart family.

Mrs. H. B. Fogle, her mother, Mrs. G. W. Baughman, and Mrs. Brough, of Uniontown, were callers at the Birely home, on Thanksgiving Day.

Birely and his sister, Lizzie, with their friends, Miss Mary Ebbert, Mrs. Sallie Ebbert Spurrier, and Mrs. Chas. Ebbert, of Bloomfield, Iowa, visited the Battlefield of Gettysburg, last Thursday, and found it as interesting as ever.

The program of the Thanksgiving service at Mt. Union, on Sunday evening, consisted of music with organ and violin, an opening Devotional, short thanksgiving recitations by young girls, the reading of origin or histories of some of the most familiar hymns, which were then sung in solos, duets or choruses. Mr. H. B. Fogle, of Uniontown, spoke earnestly on "Our Blessings and Our Gifts," and told of the thank-offering President McKinley gave on the recovery of his wife from a Hospital operation, for the founding of a Rescue Mission in Chicago, thro an old friend. Readings of the first and last Thanksgiving Proclamations were given by J. Edw. Dayhoff and E. Scott Koons. Thank-offerings equaled $32.15.

A letter from Orlando, Fla. informs us that Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Haines are pleasantly located there for the winter in a 3-room apartment with bath and having fine drives with friends from Baltimore, who dwell near them. The temperature for some time hovered around 86 degrees—but a shower of rain had reduced it. The children mostly are barefoot; more than half of them are colored. Autos are more plentiful than in Baltimore.

Our friends in Southern California were shivering last week; snow in the mountains, and cold, cold, cold! Such weather is indeed unusual.

Mrs. Addie Crouse Crumbacker and two daughters spent the week-end with the Chas. Grumbaker family, on Clear Ridge, and enjoyed the turkey dinner, postponed from Thanksgiving, because of sickness.

Mrs. Ruth Ritter, her daughter, Mrs. Savilla Devilbiss and her daughter, Esther, spent Sunday with the Frank Keefer family; and Mr. and Mrs. E. Rice Fogle, of Friendship, were evening callers at the same place.

MRS. DAISY ALICE CREBS.

Daisy Alice Fink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Fink, was born in Adams County, Pa., January 30th, 1872, died at the home of her son, in West Salem, Ohio, Nov. 25, 1931, at the age of 59 years, 9 months and 25 days.

She was married to Charles H. INNOCENT WAIFS GET CLEAN BILL

Bar Sinister Removed by New Illinois Law.

Chicago.—Approximately 300 waifs of unknown parentage, adopted recently in Chicago, have been granted official birth certificates under a law passed by the last session of the legislature. Hundreds of similar certificates have been and are being issued throughout the state, thus removing the bar sinister from innocent infants.

Regarded as one of the most humane and righteous measures ever enacted, the bill was drafted by William E. Golden, deputy clerk of the Cook County court at Chicago. Representative Edward Skarda of Chicago, introduced the bill which was passed unanimously by both houses of the legislature at Springfield and promptly signed by Governor Emmerson.

Attorney General Carlstrom has formally pronounced the law valid and mandatory, and also retroactive, so that thousands of individuals may now be availed of the opportunity to erase the "scarlet letter."

Here is the "meat" of the bill, effective as law July 1, 1931:

"Whenever a decree of adoption has been entered declaring a child adopted in any court of competent jurisdiction in the State of Illinois, a certificate of the decree of adoption may be recorded with the proper department of registration of births, and a certificate of birth shall issue upon request, bearing the new name of the child as shown in the decree of adoption, the names of the foster parents of the said child, age, sex, date of birth, but no reference in any birth certificate shall have reference to the adoption of the said child."

Prior to the passage of this law almost endless trouble had been caused in and out of courts, and bitter shame and distress to those unfortunate who have been unable to obtain a formal birth certificate.

One Child's Infirmity Brings Aid to Others

Detroit.—A gray-haired, feeble old gentleman from Ohio wandered through the Children's hospital of Michigan the other day, his eyes lighting up with pleasure as he noted the modern devices for aiding and treating the maimed children.

It was Quincy Stubbs, of Cincinnati, eighty-four years old. He looked with justifiable pride on the modern buildings and scientific care, for in the United States he probably has spent more time fighting for crippled children than any other person.

Stubbs' uphill fight for deformed children began in 1896, when he was a poor laboring man, without sufficient funds to purchase a $40 brace for his daughter, Clara, suffering with curvature of the spine.

"When I could not buy the brace, I canvassed hospitals for aid," Stubbs said, "but there was none coming. There were no provisions for poor children. I guess the rich were taken care of, but the poor had to shift for themselves."

It was then Stubbs began a campaign for children's aid in Ohio. It was nineteen years before his fight bore fruit. Today many states have hospitals for crippled children.

Mexican Objects to Two Baths in Nine Months

Mexico City.—The city's campaign to enforce a compulsory bathing regulation met its strongest opposition in Jose Maria Velazquez, who submitted to the cleansing process only when subdued by sanitary police.

Velazquez first sought to prove the injustice of the officers' suggestion about a bath by producing a soiled certificate proving that he had had an official bath last December. He contended the police were unduly invading his private rights by insisting upon two baths in nine months. Velazquez warned them he would sue the city if the two baths in nine months injured his health.

Law's Long Arm Nabs 2 in Prayer at Church

Philadelphia.—Two young men, a little late for the opening of services at St. Alban's Protestant Episcopal church, hurried to take places at the center of the congregation and join in reading from the prayer book.

A minute later the services were interrupted by a patrolman who stalked to the center of the church and charged the two late comers with stealing an automobile.

The patrolman said the youths had stolen a parked automobile, crashed it into a tree while fleeing, and hurried into the church to avoid arrest.

Pennsylvania Farmers Warned Against Crooks

Harrisburg, Pa.—The Pennsylvania department of agriculture advised farmers to stick to their own business to "get rich quick," or at least to keep what money they have.

The advice was included in a warning against schemes into which promoters allegedly seek to lead farmers. "Quitting the poultry, or the dairy business entirely after becoming experienced and fully equipped and going into a new enterprise is very likely to prove a short road to increased financial difficulties," the department bulletin said.

LIGHTS of NEW YORK

What is the use of seeking adventure in Amazon or Congo country when you can drive a taxicab in New York? The dark continent is a Great White Way compared to some of our shady spots. And you may have noticed that every time there is a street battle—things we have in our town—some taxi driver is sure to be in it. If the gunmen don't commandeer his car, the police do. Take our recent war, in which six were killed on supposedly peaceful streets in a civilized country, and men, women and children were wounded, and you will remember that at least three taximen were concerned in the chase and acquitted themselves with credit. It is true that one of them, a youngster, said that he had been in the taxi game just four days and now expected to spend the remainder of his life in some other pursuit, but he cannot deny that he got a lot of action for one in business such a short time. What is adventure except seeing life and death, and going places? And a taxi driver does all that.

The police are a bit tired of having gunmen speed through our fair Tammany precincts shooting people up, especially policemen; so they are suggesting many things, such as short-wave radio sets and an augmented force. Lack of policemen scarcely appears to be the trouble. Plenty of them joined in the pursuit of these latest killers, without thought of personal danger. Our policemen, when it comes their time to look in the bright face of danger, do not blink. Many of them have walked steadily into blazing guns and gone out in the smoke. They have plenty of courage, but they do not appear to be properly equipped. If radio will help them, they should have radio. At any rate, it is about time the citizens of New York did something to stop the slaughter of little children, even if we have to get the marines back from comparatively peaceful Nicaragua.

But, speaking of taxi drivers, he was young, new on the job, and driving the night trick. That is, the day man came in about five in the afternoon, turned the cab over to him, and he did the best he could with it until morning. He was cruising on Broadway, where the lights keep customers up late, when three men hailed him and told him to take them to Columbus circle. After he started, one of his fares leaned through the window and told him to put his flag up. He protested that he couldn't do that; it would mean a summons, if he was caught at it, or perhaps the loss of his license. A hand came through the window, holding a gun.

"Don't argue," said the man. "Do as you're told. We are going to use you for a long time, but we are good fellows and don't want you stuck for what would be on the clock."

The driver, inexperienced, was scared to death. He pictured himself involved in some holdup or shooting, but was afraid to take a chance of stopping beside a policeman and jumping out. The chances were, he thought, that the men might shoot them both. But they were not on that kind of expedition. They made him drive them to a number of obscure speakasies, and each time they took him in with them. The boy doesn't drink, but was afraid to refuse. He took beer, because he heard that was not so intoxicating. Finally they ordered him to drive to a town 100 miles away. He pleaded with them.

"Give me a break," he said. "I have driven you fellows around most of the night and lost any money I might have made. I have a wife and baby. If I drive you there, the man who owns this cab may think I've stolen it, and my wife will be scared to death, because it would take me until some time tomorrow to get home."

One of them told him to shut up, but the one who seemed to be the leader asserted that the driver had been a good guy and that they would give him a break. He told him to draw up at the curb. There they waited until another taxi came along, hailed it and transferred. It may not have been such a break for the other taxi driver, but between the strain and the beer, the first one didn't consider that. He drove back to the garage; he had a terrible time making the boss believe his story. Then he went home; his wife smelled his breath and doesn't believe him yet.

STOLEN KISSES ARE RATED AT $10,000

Rich Man Assessed for Caressing Nephew's Wife.

Columbia, S. C.—When a wealthy man kisses the wife of his nephew against her will the young woman is entitled to receive $10,000 in cash—that is, if the kissing occurs in South Carolina.

Mrs. Ethel Kirven, pretty young wife of a prominent Darlington county man, has just been awarded that amount as a result of a decision by the State Supreme court, which John K. Kirven, her husband's uncle, had appealed after the young woman had been awarded that sum by a jury in a lower court.

Mrs. Kirven alleges that she was "greatly humiliated, shocked, frightened and unnerved" by the incident, and she sued her husband's uncle for $100,000.

Files Two Complaints.

On two occasions, Mrs. Kirven charged in her complaint, her husband's wealthy uncle "without warning assaulted and rudely laid hands upon her and ruthlessly, over her protest and before she could tear herself away from him, took liberties with her person by kissing her and taking her in his arms and that he made "improper proposals" to her.

Kirven, who is well known in South Carolina, denied the accusations, and the trial in a Darlington county court was one of the most sensational in the history of the county.

Mrs. Kirven, a comely young matron, was the principal witness against her husband's uncle.

Kirven contended that he had always admired and respected the plaintiff and that he did not intend his actions to be construed as "improper."

Divided Opinion.

Owing to the prominence of the two principals, the case attracted statewide attention.

The opinion in the case was written by Acting Associate Justice C. T. Graydon. A dissenting opinion was written by Associate Justice Thomas P. Cochran, who pointed out three errors.

Chief Justice Eugene S. Blease also dissented, agreeing with Justice Cochran that the presiding judge erred when he charged the Darlington county jury "in effect that it was against the law in this state for a man to caress a woman."

Safety Measures Reduce

Fear of Mine Disasters

Washington.—The awful fear of being crushed and buried alive, or blown to death, with which coal mines have constantly threatened their workers, is being alleviated by rapidly improving safety records.

There were 838 fatalities for the first seven months of 1931 as compared with 1,159 for the corresponding period of the preceding year, a reduction of 27.7 per cent. The production of coal, however, was reduced 16.2 per cent, accounting for a part of the safety record gains.

There was a decrease in the death rate under every one of the five main causes of accidents in coal mining, Scott Turner, director of the United States bureau of mines, reported—namely, falls of roof or coal, haulage, gas or dust explosions, explosives and electricity. There were only four major explosion disasters, with a death toll of 46, in 1931 period, as against seven, reporting 88 deaths, in 1930. Turner likewise pointed to the absence of a catastrophe since January 28, the longest period of immunity in bituminous coal mines in 30 or more years.

Rare Chinese Tapestry

Is Found in New York

New York.—Lost for nearly three centuries, a rare Chinese tapestry, valued by Manhattan art connoisseurs at $150,000, reappeared here in a strange manner.

The treasure was unearthed in an obscure little antique shop by Paramount's officials while in quest of objects d'art for a motion picture.

Unaware of its value the antique dealer rented the tapestry for a relatively small sum.

Research experts discovered that the piece was a genuine tapestry of the Ming dynasty, which survived in China from 1368 to 1644. As near as can be figured, the rare woven ornament was one of the many valuable objects stolen from the royal palace in Peking when the Mings were overthrown by the Manchus and driven to the Burmese border of Yunnan.

His Suit Wore Out

Hanging in Store

Hamilton, Ont.—When Robert Baker was unable to meet the payments on his suit, it was confiscated and returned to the store where he had bought it. Mysteriously, the suit continued to wear out. First the pants became shiny, then a button tore loose. Each Monday, the suit, apparently unused, needed a pressing.

Under questioning, Baker confessed to police he entered the clothing store every Saturday night for the past few months, "borrowed" the suit and then returned it Sunday night.

LIGHTS By WALTER TRUMBULL of NEW YORK

Francis Wallace, who once was publicity man for Knute Rockne's teams, later worked on a newspaper with me, and later still started writing short stories and novels, has returned from Hollywood and tells me that his latest book, "Stadium," is about to flicker forth on the screen. I learn that another old friend of mine, William Slavins McNutt, wrote the continuity and that Richard Arlen will play the lead. Wallace likes Arlen. He says the movie star ran away at sixteen and served in the royal flying corps, where he saw active service. That is why he was able to fly his own plane in "Wings." Dick Arlen is married to Jobyna Howland, who gave up a screen career for housekeeping. They have a baby and spend all their spare time on a boat. Arlen is one of those rare actors who hates to have anyone double for him. He does all his own rough stuff; was hurt once in a picture shooting; broke both his hands in a movie fight.

Among other things, Richard Arlen was once a newspaper reporter in the Middle West. They sent him to interview a prominent visitor, who kept him waiting around a couple of hours while he fiddled with a typewriting machine. Arlen went back to the office and wrote something to the effect that he had been sent to interview an important man, but that if the latter's time was worth so little he could spend two hours of it fussing with a machine that any repairman could fix in fifteen minutes, at a cost of fifty cents, he couldn't be such a big shot after all. Somehow the thing got into the paper and Arlen lost his job. That was a good break. He might have developed into a columnist instead of making a fortune in the movies.

Women have advanced a bit since our grandmothers were young—at least, they have in New York. A very modern young married woman was driving her roadster home from a bridge party recently, when she passed a red traffic light. There was no officer on post but a motorcycle cop drove up beside her and prepared to make out a summons. He, too, belonged to the youthful school and didn't look as stern as an old-timer.

"Listen," said the woman. "My husband will be furious if I get another summons. I got one yesterday for parking. Be a nice fellow and put that book back in your pocket. If you do, I know a nice respectable speaker near here and I'll buy you a drink." The officer looked at her and laughed.

"All right," he said. "I was just going off duty. The station house is a block from here and if you will drive around there until I change into my street clothes I'll come out, get that drink and we'll call it square."

True Story

An excited foreign gentleman was awaiting the arrival of his first-born in one of our hospitals.

He was so certain it was going to be a boy that he had invited all his friends to an elaborate banquet that evening and had broadcast the joyous news all over town. Thus, when the nurse came to tell him that the arrival was a girl, his rage knew no bounds. Hurriedly, he made several telephone calls, canceling the feast.

Then, summoning the nurse, he announced: "I'm going to get into my automobile and go home. You tell the wife when she's ready to come home to take a street car."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Survey Shows Seasonal Jobs of U. S. Workers

Philadelphia.—Of the total of 5,690,000 wage earners in 126 manufacturing industries in the United States, at least 797,790 are regularly thrown out of employment because of seasonal variations in productive activities, according to a survey by Dr. J. Parker Bursk, assistant professor of economics and social statistics at the University of Pennsylvania.

The study is one of a series made under the auspices of the industrial research department of the university's Wharton school of finance and commerce, and is based on reports sent to the bureau of census by industries over a period of 21 years.

According to the department of industrial research, it is the first comprehensive quantitative study of seasonal variations in industrial employment and is particularly important because in any program for the regulation of employment, seasonal variations, due to their complex character, offer a logical point of attack.

Coal Age "Reproduced"

A restoration of the Coal age with its luxuriant carboniferous forests and strange primeval animal life of over 250,000,000 years ago is on exhibition at the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago.

The exhibit represents a landscape of the so-called Pennsylvania period when the land flora of the paleozoic era was reaching its culmination in vast swamps that covered much of the territory then raised above the sea in the northern hemisphere.

In Europe and in northern Asia, as well as in North America, these forests gave rise in the course of time to the enormous accumulations of plant materials that now constitute the world's principal coal beds.

ROME AND BEYOND

GOLDEN TEXT—I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith.
LESSON TEXT—II Timothy 4:6-18.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Finishes His Work.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Missionary Work Goes On.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Unto the Ends of the Earth.

I. Paul's View of Death (v. 6).
This he sets forth under two metaphors:

1. An offering (v. 6). "I am ready to be offered." This figure, meaning a drink offering, or libation, shows that Paul was looking forward to a violent death. The shedding of his blood was to be an offering poured out on the sacred altar as an act of worship. Death can only be an offering to God when the life has been wholly yielded to the doing of God's will.

2. A departure (v. 6). "The time of my departure is at hand." The same idea is expressed in Phil. 1:23. "Departure" is a nautical term which signifies the loosing of a ship from its moorings in order to enter upon its voyage. It is not the end of the voyage, but its beginning. It indicates that the vessel is outward bound. The anchor is being lifted, and the sails are being spread for the homeland. The same idea is expressed in Luke 9:31, where the theme of conversation on the Mount of Transfiguration is said to be the departure or exodus which Christ should accomplish at Jerusalem. What the exodus meant to Israel, and more, death means to the Christian.

II. Paul's Backward Glance at Life (v. 7).

God has a definite purpose for each life. Life should be so spent that at its close one may look back with a definite consciousness that the divine purpose has been accomplished. This backward look is presented in three figures:

1. "I have fought a good fight." The figure here is that of a soldier. The Christian life is a warfare. Conflicts, dangers, and temptations must be met.

2. "I have finished my course." The figure here is that of an athlete who sets out to win a race. The Christian life is a race to be run.

3. "I have kept the faith." The figure is that of a husbandman to whom had been entrusted a treasure. This treasure was the Christian faith. In a peculiar way Paul was made steward of the Christian faith. He was conscious of having been faithful to the trust committed to him.

III. Paul's Forward Look to the Future (v. 8).

This is a beautiful picture of the calm at the end of a period of faithful service. Knowing that death was awaiting him, there was no dark cloud.

1. He saw before him a life with God. Eternal fellowship with God is a prize greatly to be desired.

2. A prize was laid up for him—a crown of righteousness. This reward will be given at the coming of the Lord to all who love his appearing.

IV. Paul's Associates (vv. 9-12).

1. Demas, the deserter (v. 10). Demas has become immortalized as one who was religious, but because of its attractions went after the world. The love of the world caused him to turn his back upon principle, friendship, honor, and duty.

2. Luke, the faithful (v. 11). What a comfort it must have been to have with him this one faithful soul. Perhaps he was the best fitted of all to minister unto Paul. Luke was faithful in shipwreck, imprisonment, in journeying by land and sea.

3. Mark, the restored runaway (v. 11). Mark had gone back but was restored. This is a beautiful picture and most comforting. Though we have failed, we can redeem ourselves and become trustworthy. Everyone who has taken to heart his failure should be given another chance.

V. Personal Matters (vv. 13-18).

1. Bring the cloak, books, and parchments (v. 13). In the jail the cloak would be needed for his comfort. The books and parchments would be required for his study and writing.

2. Wronged by Alexander, the copersmith (vv. 14, 15). We have no way of determining just when this deed was committed.

3. Defended by the Lord though forsaken by man (vv. 16-18). Paul in his last trying hours was like his Lord—left alone. He says, "All men forsook me. It was said of Christ that all forsook him and fled. Paul manifested a like spirit. 'I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge.'"

The Spiritual Christian

Normally, the spiritual Christian will be occupied with effective service for his Lord. This is not a rule. We need only to know that we are yielded and ready to do whatever he may choose. To "rest in the Lord" is one of the essential victories in a spiritual life. "Come ye apart and rest awhile." We are just as spiritual when resting, playing, sleeping, or incapacitated, if it is his will for us, as we are when serving.—Christian Cynosure.

Special Christmas Offer.
READ IT CAREFULLY!

Until 100 NEW subscriptions have been received, or on or before December 21, 1931, all present subscribers to THE RECORD who are PAID IN ADVANCE at the time of accepting this offer, and all of our regular Advertisers and Correspondents, may have THE RECORD sent to relatives, or friends—who are NOT NOW subscribers—at our

Christmas Offer Price of $1.00

for ONE year, to Dec. 23, 1932. All such subscriptions will be discontinued at that time, unless renewed.

Subscribers already paid in advance, need only remit $1.00 for each NEW subscriber. All NOT paid in advance, who would like to avail themselves of this offer, must pay at least $1.00 on their own subscription, and $1.00 for each NEW subscription.

These Christmas Offer subscriptions will be accompanied by a Christmas card to the new subscriber announcing the name of the giver of the gift. If desired, subscriptions will be commenced when received, without waiting for the Christmas issue of Dec. 24th.

Our main object, of course, is to add 100 NEW subscribers before January 1, 1932—we trust, with the willing co-operation of our subscribers. It is also intended to encourage giving The Carroll Record for a CHRISTMAS GIFT; but we give no assurance that the same plan will be operated next year. In a sense, the success of the plan will also operate in the direction of giving The Carroll Record Co., a Christmas gift. It is an experiment.

Better Breakfasts

IN making your plans for the winter it is just as important to lay in a goodly supply of sustaining breakfast menus as it is to see that the furnace or steam-heating apparatus is in order, or that there is plenty of coal and wood on hand. One type of fuel heats the house and the other the body—which would you say was the more important?

Just about November the family develops a man-sized winter appetite—everybody wants a good breakfast and needs one. It doesn't make any difference whether the order of the day is business, school or stay-at-home, when the sparkling November sunlight shines in on the breakfast table, when a fire in the house feels good and the home becomes a cozy refuge in a brilliant wintry world, then is the moment to be prepared with "better breakfasts." Here is one which answers that description:

- Grape Fruit Halves
- Corned Beef Hash
- with Poached Eggs
- Toast Coffee Apple Butter

Corned Beef Hash with Poached Eggs: Mix one twelve-ounce can corned beef, two cups finely chopped boiled potatoes and quarter cup milk; season to taste. Flatten out in a skillet with a little hot fat, and brown well on one side, turn over and brown on the other. Slide out onto a hot platter and lay six hot poached eggs on top. Serves six.*

1618 Marylanders Died Last Year

According to recent statistics compiled by the National Tuberculosis Association, tuberculosis is still the leading cause of death in the productive years of life or between the ages of fifteen and forty-five. Last year 1618 Marylanders died from this disease, making the tuberculosis death rate in Maryland 98.9 per 100,000. The counties of Maryland and Baltimore City showed a slight decline from the previous year's rate. The table below indicates the deaths from all forms of tuberculosis in the State of Maryland by county and color:

	Total	White	Colored
Baltimore City	812	433	379
Total Counties	806	473	333
Allegany	32	29	3
Anne Arundel	53	12	41
Baltimore	111	105	6
Calvert	16	2	14
Caroline	20	9	11
Carroll	120	24	96
Cecil	22	16	6
Charles	27	6	21
Dorchester	34	19	15
Frederick	85	83	2
Garrett	3	3	..

Somerset	30	13	17
Talbot	23	6	17
Washington	33	32	1
Wicomico	39	28	11
Worcester	24	11	13

The number of deaths in Baltimore, Carroll, Frederick, and Wicomico counties appear high, due to the fact that a sanatorium is located in each of these counties. The number of residents in these counties that died from tuberculosis are as follows: Baltimore 82, Carroll 24, Frederick 22, and Wicomico 35.

The counties that showed an increase in the number of deaths over the previous year are: Anne Arundel, Calvert, Caroline, Carroll, Charles, Howard, Montgomery, St. Mary's and Somerset. Dorchester had the same number of deaths as the previous year, and the other counties showed fewer deaths.

STAGE COACH TALES
By E. C. TAYLOR

From Stage Driver to Railroad President

THE Hon. Ginery Twitchell rose from obscurity to become one of the leading figures of the era of stage coach transportation, then president of the railroad that put his stage lines out of business, and then a member of congress.

Many a New England child, hearing the cry of "Ginery's coming! Ginery's coming!" and probably wondering what a "ginery" was, watched with delight as a great stage coach with six prancing, reeking, foaming horses came to a stop in front of the Bay-state house, in Boston, or the taverns of Worcester, Mass., or Brattleboro, Vt.

Seated atop the magnificent vehicle was a dignified, self-contained man, ruddy of face, his stout body swathed in a heavy greatcoat and on his head a tall silk hat. Ginery Twitchell would sit erect on the coachman's seat, gather the reins well in hand and suddenly be off with a great rattle of wheels and blowing of horns.

Ginery Twitchell was called "Honorable" even then. Probably it was because of his vast reputation for integrity, and probably also because he was an inveterate politician, and always had a finger in the political maneuverings and plottings of his part of New England.

His stage coach was one of the most famous that ever rolled over the rough roads of the early days of the United States. It was built in 1837 by Henry T. Breck of Worcester, and never was repaired beyond occasionally getting a new coat of varnish. In 1840, at the request of the citizens of Barre, Vt., seats were added to the top, so that the great coach carried 32 persons, 12 inside and 20 outside.

It once carried 62 young women from Worcester on a blackberry excursion, with eight horses drawing this record load. During the presidential campaign of 1840, it carried the political leaders to and from meetings around Quinsigamond.

His last driver, Henry S. Miner, narrates that Twitchell before the days of the railroad collected election votes on horseback, and once rode from Greenfield, Mass., to Worcester, a distance of 54 miles, in four and a half hours. He had relays of fresh horses every six or ten miles, and made the ride at night.

In the days when he was a post rider, before he had accumulated sufficient funds to buy an interest in a stage coach line, he once slept in his clothes, including buckskin underwear, in the American House in Worcester for a week, waiting for despatches from British steamers. He also had men and fresh horses waiting the entire week along the road to Norwich, Conn.

When the boats arrived, Twitchell mounted his horse and started for Norwich. He met the boat, and delivered the despatches in New York hours ahead of any other post line.

Ginery Twitchell was a great favorite with those who rode with him, and the seat beside the driver was eagerly vied for, even in bad weather. He had an inexhaustible fund of racy anecdotes with which he regaled his acquaintances. The people along his post and stage routes trusted him with their business commissions, and he performed a service similar to that of the express companies of today.

After a long period of self-denial in his early days, he bought a stage coach and two horses from a Mr. Stockwell, and established a stage line between Brattleboro and Worcester. In 1843 he owned and operated a line between Barre and Worcester, and later established a stage line from Greenfield to Brattleboro.

In that year the postmaster general at Washington advertised for contracts to carry the mail and Twitchell, instead of bidding for one route, went to Washington and obtained several. Within a short time he was the largest stage operator in New England, owning a large number of fine stage lines and coaches.

One of his feats was driving a coach from Worcester, Mass., to Hartford, Conn., a distance of 60 miles, in 3 hours and 20 minutes, through deep snow. That was on January 23, 1846.

When the railroads came, Twitchell turned to the new mode of transportation, and became first president of the Boston & Western railroad.
