THE MUD ROAD QUESTION MUST BE MET.

If any one has the slightest doubt as to public sentiment on the road building question—whether for more very expensive through roads, or for improved by-roads, all he needs to do is take a few days off and get back from our concrete and macadam roads and interview the property owners living on the "back roads."

Or, he hardly need do any more than interview the roads, and not the peo-ple. The roads speak for themselves. They are indescribably BAD. Men have gone to war, for less reason than present neglect of the dirt roads. They are worse than many times in the years gone by, when all roads were made of mud and stones, except the

made of mud and stones, except the few toll turnpikes.

One reason for this, is the severe damage that trucks do to cheaply constructed road-beds. Money is wasted in the ordinary grading of mud roads and the filling up of mud holes, it trucks are allowed on them.

It is becoming almost a question, whether the state, or county, may not be held liable for damages sustained through the ordinary use of the roads. Talking about "bad roads," no longer

The time is here, right now, for the demand for by-road improvement to be practically considered; and very much less consideration given. much less consideration given to Automobile Clubs and pleasure drivers, for more expensively payed highways need should be considered, rather than

zThe Taneytown Fire Company is considering the advisability of pur-chasing a new fire engine. If the cost of repairing or rebuilding the old truck is too expensive or considered not advisable then they will have to consider the new truck proposition, as the old truck, as the committee that was appointed to examine it, says, "Its dangerous to the lives of the firemen due to the fact of the solid tires and worn parts. It has become obsolete when it comes to fighting fires, compared with modern fire engine."

The Company feels that it is responsible for the protection of the cock. town and community and does not Jos wish to betray that trust by having inadequate fire fighting equipment.

Some definite action will be decided upon at the Company's next meeting, Monday, March 11, 1935.

WORK AT ANNAPOLIS IS PROGRESSING.

More Important Measures soon to be Disposed of.

U. S. Senators Tydings and Rad-cliffe, on Monday, issued a 1500 word letter to Governor Nice and Maryland, urging the state to raise $22,400,000 for relief in the coming three-year period—$8,000,000 for 1935; and $7,500,000 for each 1936 and 1937. This is the answer of the Federal Emergency Relief Association to the state's pleas for smaller relief funds.

The letter pointed out that FERA had for the past two years paid two thirds of Maryland's relief bill, and that Maryland has therefore fared at least as well as other states. The further intimation was made that the Federal government intends to retire from the relief field, and return the matter to the individual states, which will be required to find the money.

There is a fresh egg bill pending before the legislature, that has been widely indorsed throughout the state.

The measure deals with low-grade eggs shipped principally from distant states in direct competition with Maryland eggs of a higher quality. The bill sets standards of quality which eggs sold in this state must meet, if they are represented as being fresh. While many farm and poultry organizations in the state are supporting the measure, there is opposition in some sections. The bill sets a standard of fresh eggs and an appropriation of $10,000 is asked to carry out the provisions of the measure. A penalty of from $25 to $50 fine is provided for the first violation and from vided for the first violation and from $50 to $100 fine for any second or sub-sequent violation. The act, if passed is to take effect June 1st.

Th House, on Wednesday, killed jury service for women, by voting down both an optional and mandatory bill on the subject. The debate lasted over an hour, but both proposals were defeated by decisive votes -75 to 33, a c 69 to 40.

system of unemployment insurance for the state, was introduced in the Senate, on Thursday, by Senator Baile, that provides for financing by industry, and placing the state in position to participate in possible Federal benefit legislation. The meas-

COLLEGE STUDENT KILLED In an Auto Wreck near Reisterstown. Others Injured.

Paul Wissinger, 24 years old, of Johnstown, Pa., a member of the W. M. College freshmen basketball team, died at University Hospital, Baltimore, from injuries sustained when an automobile in which he was passen ger crashed into a telephone pole on the Reisterstown road near Woodley Ave., early Wednesday morning.

Young Wissinger, son of E. G. Wissinger, of Johnstown, was unconscious when he arrived at the hospital, suffering from cuts, bruises, con-cussion of the brain and a fractured skull. When word of the accident reached the college six other students and Dr. F. M. Miller, dean of men, hurried by automobile to the hospital to offer blood for a transfusion operation. But the operation was not

TWO FIRES IN UNION BRIDGE.

Two fires occurred last Friday night in Union Bridge, that seems to add to the opinion that somebody in the town has been setting buildings on fire during the past month. This time the fire was in the old Union Bridge Hotel owned by George P. Buckey, the buildnot now being in use for hotel purposes, At near the same time at attempt was made to start a fire on the tempt was made to start a fire on the porch of the tenant house of Clayton Devilbiss, not far from the hotel building, occupied by a colored family by the name of Clark. The citizens living in the territory served by the Westminster Fire Department are urged to help make the supper being held by the department on March 14, 15 and 16 a success.

In the past year our department answered 90 fire calls. Don't you think that is sufficient alone for you to lend your assistance? And another feature was that the firemen suffered hardships many times. Take for instance in one day four alarms were answered with the thermometer at zero, and riding on an open apparatus was terrible on the men. Don't ter. you believe you owe them your sup-

GEN. JOHNSON STARTS SENATE UPROAR.

Senators Long, Robinson, and Father Coughlin, involved.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, on Monday night, in a public address, defended the administration of President Roosevelt, then vigorously attacked Senator Huey F. Long, of Louisiana, and Father Charles E. Coughlin, of Michigan, who he characterized as "two pied pipers" organizing the "lunatic fringes." His address through out contained a varied assortment of Johnsonian phrases aimed at the two Johnsonian phrases aimed at the two victims of his attack.

For instance, he said, "Between the team of Huey and the Priest we have the whole bag of crazy or crafty tricks possessed by any mad Mullah or dancing Dervish who ever invited a tribe or people though illusion to it. tribe or people though illusion to its doom"—"and if you don't believe they are dangerous you just haven't thought much about it, or you don't know the temper of this country." And much more at length on this same Naturally, there was a quick comeback from Senator Long, of Louisiana on the floor of the Senate, on Tuesday, who opened up in his best form without consideration for very choice language; and this started Senator Robinson who urged that it was time for the Senate to put the Louisiana Senator "in this proper place," calling his remarks "ravings, egotism, arrog-ance and ignorance." This brought from Long with a threat to go into Arkansas next year and campaign against him (Robinson) for re-election. Long kept the Senate in an uproar the most of the day, that drew numerous other Senators into the fray. that developed into numerous side is sues, bringing about an entire absence of what is called "Senatorial dignity." At times the vice-president had difficulty in maintaining semblance of order.

The double event caused all sorts of comments, favorable and unfavorable, from the public, both as to General Johnson's speech, and the aftermath in the Senate, with Father Coughlin yet to be heard from. On the whole, it seems reasonable to conclude that the whole affair, from be-ginning to end, will not help the gen-eral mixed up condition of National affairs, when clear-headedness and statesmanship are very decidedly in order, in the Senate and out.

COLD WINTER IN FLORIDA.

The following portion of a letter was written by Mrs. Ethel Sweicgart Moline, Monticello, Florida, a former resident of Keymar, who operates. The Dixie Hotel is of interest to Carroll countians. When we keep in mind the fact that our Maryland Weather Bureau has reported a snow fall of seven feet, we can conclude that even northern Florida, with the lower than usual temperature, was a great improvement over the weather we have been having. She writes—

"We have had such a very cold winter. Usually it is cold a day or two and then all fires out for a week more, but this year it stayed cold for two straight weeks, and fires all the time. I have three good furnaces and keep it good and warc, for the traveling men are cold and tired when they come in the evening. The summers here are most delightful. Always a breeze in the shade and at night al-tho the sun may be hot a sun stroke among humans or beasts is unknown Very few mosquitoes in this part of ate. CHRISTMAS IN CHINA

How the Little "Brownies" Over There Enjoyed the "Treat."

The following portion of a letter from Rev. H. G. C. Hallock, who for many years has been conducting missionary work among the children in China, largely through funds contrib-uted in this country, will be read with interest by those who care for missionary work.

"I know you have been interested in my Brownies, and tired as I am after a most strenuous day, I want to tell you of good times and send you my wee ones' greetings. I was up at 5:30 to be sure to be all ready in time. We took 250 packets of presents to our Endeavorers' Church where we were to have our first treat. Here we had to have our first treat. Here we had a number of our Sunday Schools gather at one place to save time. Though this treat was to begin at 9:30 a number of children came an hour ear-

Soon the beautifully decorated church was packed full of excited little Brownies each holding a used picture post card with Luke 2:10, 11 and John 3:16 printed in red on white paper pasted over the original message. This card with my initials written on it was ther admission ticket and also their proof of Sunday School membership and their right to Chirstmas gift-packets. How I wish you could have been with us to see my China Chinks in all their funny clothes and shining faces! The leader began by having the 250 little ones sing "I am so glad that Jesus loves me," and they sang as only those who are glad can sing. Then they sang, "Jesus my Lord, my Jesus." Then the leader had them all stand and sing a prayer together after which a lady teacher led in prayer. Then a young man gave an earnest talk of 20 minutes on the birth and life of Jesus; but wisely had the little ones sing sketches of Xmas praises and action songs so that they would not get restless. Before closing he arked for decisions asked for decisions.

Many held up their hands. he had finished talking, the leader had a number of the little ones take part. Two very small boys played the mouth-organ beautifully. Then ten little people with musical instru-ments that I never saw before played Christmas music interestingly having their own little band-master guiding the different parts and responses wonthe different parts and responses won-derfully well. Then three wee girls sang, "Messiah is King." After oth-ers took part, the leader asked me to give a brief message. I spoke of the text on wall "Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners" and of the message on their cards. I had them repeat the texts so they could say them by heart in concert.

Then I said, "As God so loved, that He gave, so friends in America so love you little Chinese children that they sent gifts to you with their greetings and they hope you will love Jesus and give your hearts to Him. These gifts tion after Congress acts.

The main feature seems to be, the restriction of code provisions entirely to "these trades and industries actually engaged in inter-state commerce.

Another, is giving to the President the power to impose limited codes the power to impose limited code of eager hands went up. Then they sang another Christmas song and the distribution began. What an eager crowd they were! As they received their presents they said gratefully, "Zia-Zia Noong" and went off glad.

At 2 o'clock we had another treat in a borrowed church where we had 400 little ones. At 3:30 we had another treat with 120 little ones. Besides these three one of my helpers took charge of a far off S. S. treat for 60. So we have had quite a day of it and a happy one.

If you sent currency it is gone. Whoever is stealing letters does it for currency. If he finds check or M. O. he destroys it. If you sent to my brother and I have not thanked you, that means my brother's letter to me has been taken but your gift is safe. If you have not sent and would like to make my Brownies' happy at Easter, please send gift to my brother, Rev. G. B. F. Hallock, D. D., 10 Livingston Park, Rochester, N. Y. wishes for a prosperous New Year.

Random Thoughts HELPERS.

There are persons, and organizations in every town who are appealed to for all sorts of help. It pealed to for all sorts of help. It seems a natural and habitual course to pursue. But, how often does it occur to those who ask and need help, that the "helpers" need help too? That they have limitations to the extent of their generating? erosity?

Literally, some folks operate in the direction of killing "the goose that lays the golden egg." Either that, or they deliberately attempt to get all they can, free, without decent consideration for the "Good Samaritans" who are "too easy" for their own good. Because one "good turn" is done, does not indicate that doing it can be continued indefinitely. The fact is, "begging" has developed into a game—an unscrupul-ous "get all you can" policy that is pursued almost as a legitimate

"TOO LONG AT THE WHEEL."

Last week, a booklet came to our office from the National Safety Council, Chicago, giving 48 pages of in- property, and deserve fair treatment, stances in which auto accidents occurred, due to the fact that drivers had fallen asleep, mostly from fatigue, the whole being accompanied all papers, but not so in Carroll. Our by numerous illustrations. The title of the booklet was, "Too Long at the Wheel."

Both the title and subject matter appealed to us as having wider appli- ers are concerned, and the tax-payers cation than to driving an auto, even though the accidents and deaths due to literally being "too long at the wheel," were appalling. The cases cited ran away up into thousands, and covered the entire country.

But, there are other than auto "wheels" that are taking the same toll. More "driving" cases that are off the highways. More cases of loss and waste that result from too long and close application to them. Cases of apparent necessity, perhaps, but often cases in which no real necessity exists. We persist in "driving on," long after our fitness for the work has disappeared.

"Too long at the wheel" is but equivalent to "too long" at any job. But, the pathetic side of such cases often is, that we do not want to admit that we are a "back number." We still have the grit to keep on, and on, until at last we have no further option in the matter—the inevitable happens, and we are removed, possibly by death. How shall we decide when "Too long at the wheel" is a plain fact? In its way in this and that the very definite public life, perhaps the public decides for us. We are simply "dropped" as a candidate for election, or appointment; and, the younger set helps to bring about the decision. Naturally, they want their chance; and it is but fair that they should have it.

And, there's such a thing as a "dead line" that has been set up in indusyears, find jobs are hard to get, and at 50 years—when one should be at his or her best, mentally—they are still harder to get.

It is also true that when one reaches the "has been' stage, one needs employment the most. If he happens to be his own master, he can stay at the wheel, and take chances. He may be compelled to stay, or enter some sort of dependent class. So, as we can not always decide the question, we should devote our best efforts toward trying to keep from "going to sleep." That is the main trouble, after all.

AGAINST DIVERTING GASOLINE TAX FROM ROADS.

A number of oraginzations have adopted resolutions opposing the diversion of any portion of the revenue derived from the gasoline tax for other than highway construction and | It will take place under the joint aumaintenance purposes.

These organizations are sixteen Grange units, the Baltimore Section Service, State, city and county deof the Society of Automotive Engineers; the Uptown Lion's Club, of Baltimore; the Maryland Motor Truck Owners Associations and the Highway Users Conference.

While a few of these organizations would not agree with others as to how all of the gasoline money should be spent for roads, the most of them no doubt are strongly in favor of more against diphtheria, tuberculosis clinics mileage of what are termed "secondary" roads, or, as best known in the favoring sections, as "dirt" roads.

11 HYSTERIA ENDING.

The beginning of the turnover in public sentiment from an attitude of swallow it-whole to one of critical examination of Mr. Roosevelt's program will be dated by future historians, in our opinion, from the decision of the Sur eme Court in the so-called hot-oil case, followed quickly by the Court's condemnation of the Prestdent's effort at repudiation through his monetary policy.

The only preliminary sign-post was the Senate's action on the World Court, and its refusal in that action to adhere to the President's wishes. Bue we do not believe that the World Court test can be construed as an effort to check the Brain Trust in its work of making America all over

But the action of the Supreme Court, the other independent arm of our Government, in telling the Administration that the Constitution barred its way in this and that direction has, effect of tending to bring the people of our country out of the spasm of mass hysteria from which they have their bitter enemy. A drastic cut in been suffering since 1933.

We are an emotional people. Mr. Hoover's experience proved that. His for the simple reason that billions election was an overwhelming tribute, now taken by the tax-gatherers would but four years later he retired one of the most discredited presidents we try, and the professions, measured have ever had. Mr. Roosevelt was create jobs, purchasing power and elected by an even greater majority, and the wave of popularity which began with his inaugural address had swept on until recently. Now it has begun to recede.

The danger to Mr. Roosevelt's administration and his reputation lies in the possibility that the pendulum will swing as far one way as it did the other. Personally, we hope it will not, for such an extreme reaction will not be healthy

Indeed, we hope that in this reaction there will be no emotion at all, or at least a minimum of it. Sound sense is a better guide, and we trust we shall resume the use of it. Heavens knows we have kept it in the discard too long already.—Eastern Shore

PAY ROLLS DESTROYED BY TAX ROLLS.

The moment a tax becomes excessive it limits the activities and opportunities of every business and individual. It strikes a blow at purchasing power and private employment. It is a barrier to investment and industrial development.

The perfect government would be a government which cost nothingwhich did not need to levy taxes at all. That Utopian ideal is unobtainable. But we should confine government expenses to the cost of governing. We should make governmental operations efficient and non-wasteful. We should keep government out of business projects and confine it to governmental functions as outlined in the constitution. When government goes into business it not only spends tremendous sums of tax money-but inflicts great damage on the individuals and industries with which it competes, while taxing them to maintain that competition as well as to keep government going.

The foregoing principles apply to all units of government, federal, state and local. Political power stems directly from the people. If the people demand economy and retrenchment they will get it-if they permit government extravagance, and sanction government competition in the business field, they will have no one to blame but themselves for high taxes and lost opportunities for individual enterprise.

The great need of the hour is for vment, investment, industrial expansion. Exorbitant taxation is the cost of all government would be the greatest contribution to recovery, be spent by individuals and industries new taxable wealth.—Industrial News

BEAUTY RETURNING TO "HEART OF GOLD"

Chorus Girl Declares Love Comes Before Riches.

London.-He told her he had a fortune in gold in the vaults of New York banks. And so the beautiful English girl married the hoarder and came over the seas to find that her American millionaire was just a journeyman electrician. No wonder she left him and went back to merry England!

But now she has found out that, although her wire-patcher had no gold in the banks his heart is made of solid gold-and so she is coming back.

Vera Milton, beautiful platinum blond, was a sensation of the London theaters four years ago. Nightly, while she was appearing at the Palace in a Cochrane revue, a stout pleasantfaced American would have a frontrow seat-and nightly he would send expensive flowers back to the ravishing chorus girl. Of course they met.

He whispered to her of his wealth in America. Would she share it? She in turn whispered she would. They married and came to New York-and Vera learned that her husband, William Krohm, was just an electrician.

But the little girl was game-albeit angry. She went over to Earl Carroll, got a job in his "Vanities."

She was as good a wife to Bill Krohm as ever a show girl could be to an electrician. But one day some months ago they quarreled and Vera went back to London-and to a greater success than ever.

But by and by she got to yearning for honest Bill and the rugged simplicity of his overalls and plugs and wires. So Vera Milton, with London at her feet and New York in the same place-just for a nod of her pretty head-is coming back to Bill Krohm's

Double Bass Is Larrer

Than the Player Himself The double bass, which stands beside its player at the rear of the orchestra is larger than the player himself. Like the cello, it has a spike which rests upon the floor. Owing to the thickness of its strings and because of the great size of the instrument, exceptional strength is required to press down the beavy strings. The bow is very sturdy.

Solo playing on the double bass would seem at first sight to have all the delicacy of an elephant dancing. The double bass harmonics are of little value, yet there have been great solo players on the double bass, such as the Italian Dragonetti, (1763-1846).

The very deep tones of the double bass are essential as support for other instruments, writes an authority in the Washington Post. It is the giant member of the violin family.

The tone-color of the double bass is heavy, gruff, ponderous. It may be used to burlesque the effects of lighter instruments. In swift passages it can never be entirely clear; for its long, heavy strings are slow to cease vi-

The double bass, then, may be used for the most part as a humble drudge, giving the foundation of orchestral music. But it has capabilities, and the great composers have given it passages that are of the utmost significance and importance.

War Weapons of Romans

Hurled Rocks and Spears Many of the modern weapons of war are based on improvements which have been made on ancient arms. This is revealed by two weapons used by the ancients. The chief armaments used by the Romans, for example, were the onager and ballista, the former comparing to light field artillery, the second to longer-range guns.

The onager, says the Montreal Herald, consisted of a throwing arm of very hard wood to which was attached a slug which held a stone ball about the size of a man's head. The ballista was a much heavier wooden framework upon which was mounted a crossbow of enormous power, the tension of which was obtained by windlass and cogwheel arrangement. The ballista threw long spears of hardwoods a distance of nearly half

Armored elephants with scythes fastened to their trunks were used as "tanks" by the ancient Persians. Their airplanes were flocks of flerce falcons trained to fly into the face of enemies, clawing at eyes and features. The Babylonians and Carthaginians had liquid fire similar in deadly effect, to the modern poison gas.

Walter Raleigh at Guiana

The coast of Guiana was first visited in 1499 and 1500 by Ojeda, Vespucci and Pinzon. The Spaniards planted a few settlements in the region, none of which seem to have had any long existence. Missionaries visited the interior during the Sixteenth century. Sir Walter Raleigh, however, first made the name of Guiana widely known when he began his search for El Dorado, in 1595. He described the city of El Dorado as on an island in Parima lake, in Guiana, and it was placed on the maps. plorations almost entirely to the river. although the sailing masters in 1591 and succeeding years carefully explored the coast to the east.

Who Said It First?

Various explanations of the origin of the phrase "by hook or crook" have been urged; but the simplest, and probably the best, is that formerly poor people were allowed to collect firewood in the woods of a neighboring manor, both for personal use and for sale, and they often carried a hook or a crock with which to bring down withered and rotten boughs. A much more far-fetched explanation is that the phrase implies "foully, like a thief," or "righteously, like a bishop," the hook being the instrument used by footpads to lay hold of unwary travelers, and the crook being the hishop's crozier .- Tit-Bits Magazine.

Early Use of Razors

Razors seem to have been used at a very early period in the world's history, at least 6,000 or 7,000 years ago. The ancient Egyptians shaved not only their beards but their heads also, the first known razors being of flint. Copper or bronze razors appeared at an early period in history. Razors with much the same form as the long bladed ones of today, and dating from about 1500 B. C., have been unearthed in Crete.

First Editions of the Bible

The Bible had a hard time finding its way into the English language, The first two editions had to be printed outside of England, one in Zurich in 1535 and the other in Paris in 1539. It America, the first Bible was printed in the Indian language in 1663 and the second in German in 1743. Not until 1782, or 143 years after our first printing press started, was an English Bible printed in this country.-Collier's Weekly.

Acoustics Play Tricks

Noise plays many tricks. In the great cathedrals of Milan, Cologne and St. Peter's an organ note lasts so long that any rendition is a confused jumble. In St. Paul's in London and in the Hollywood Bowl it is possible for two people 90 feet apart to have a whispered conversation, owing to the acoustics.

Serves 22 Years in Cell Then Finds Fiancee Wed

Molinara, Italy.-"Women are fickle." said Michaelangelo Gentilcore, still downhearted because his childhood sweetheart did not wait for him while he was serving 22 years in a Minne sota penitentiary for murder.

Villagers tried to console him and suggested he marry the widow of the man he murdered.

Gentilcore received a letter each month from his supposed fiancee while he was in prison. He came back recently to find that she had been married for many years and that the letters were the result of unwillingness to add to his troubles.

During his imprisonment Gentilcore learned to be a shoemaker and sent money he earned to the widow of the man he killed in a quarrel over money He says he will stay here and make

Luther Haar, secretary of banking asked the Court's approval of the special plan of liquidation of the bank. The schedule of distribution of assets filed shows that the total liabilities of $1,087,799.44. At a meeting of town council the budget for 1935 was adopted and the tax rate to be the same as last year general borough purposes 8 mills, street 3 mills, for water sinking fund ½ of 1 mill. There will also be a severe reprimand and maybe a fine imposed. The parents are urged to co-operate. Don't blame the children. It is the parents fault for buying the guns. This is a good move. How about the speeding by the automobile. Just wait till some one gets hurt then there will be a lot of trouble. When the horse is stolen, then lock the door.

DESERT WAR HERO FOUND GUILTY OF SLAYING COLONEL

French Colonial Officer Had Clandestine Affair With Wife of Superior.

Sousse, Tunisia.—A story of the manner in which passions boil under the desert sun of colonial Africa, where so many Frenchmen live in patriotic exile, was told in court recently. Lieut. Pierre Cabanes, a young hero of desert battles, was convicted of the murder of Col. Jean Caillon, his commanding officer and friend, after a quarrel whose development and climax showed the strain to which France's colonial troops are subjected. He was sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

Colonel Caillon fell deeply in love with and married Mlle. Madeline Jeudi, a pretty nurse with a past. Gossip pursued her from army post to army post until Caillon asked for a transfer to Tunisia. He was made commander of the Fourth regiment of the crack Sphai cavalry at Sfax.

He did not even there escape from gossip and, perhaps thinking of the price he paid for his love, refused his official permission for Lieutenant Cabanes to marry a young woman who, like Mme, Caillon, was charming and popular-with the officers of the garrison.

He Finds a Substitute.

Angry, Cabanes, dashing and handsome, found a substitute for his fiancee in the colonel's wife.

Caillon seemed not much worriedbecause he was cementing a friendship with the wife of one Major Perrin of the medical corps.

Caillon and Cabanes continued to respect each other as soldiers, though they were actually enemies.

The colonel lost his life because he made the mistake of proposing a vacation motor jaunt to the southern Tunisian desert, including in the party not only his wife but Cabanes and the medical major's wife. Trouble began at the first halt, at Cabes. There was a quarrel between Caillon and his wife and the colonel ate dinner alone. Colonel Caillon spent all his time with Mme. Perrin. His wife reproached him.

A Fight Ensues. Cabanes found the colonel threatening to kill his wife and commit suicide. He interrupted furiously. Caillon tried to choke Lieutenant Cabanes, who struck him on the jaw, a serious military offense. Others in the club separated them. They left, all together, next morning, for the lonely oasis of M'Chiguig, with some other officers accompanying them.

Then Caillon publicly told his wife he was through with her. He repeated his determination to her privately after dinner at the oasis. Mme. Caillon went to her room. She found Mme. Perrin already there. They quarreled and fought. Lieutenant Cabanes went in and told Mme. Perrin the party had had enough of her. Colonel Caillon arrived. He and the lieutenant quarreled bitterly. The lieutenant left, saying he was going o return to Sfax to the group and found that Mme. Caillon had fainted.

Caillon had made good his threat to kill her. Anyway he drew his revolver and fired three times. The colonel fell dead. The shots revived Mme. Caillon.

Perhaps Lieutenant Cabanes thought

Rabbit Hops Over Alps and Crosses the Danube

Munich.-A copper plate was found in the ear of a large rabbit shot near the south Hungarian town of Babolnspussta. It recorded that the animal was released near Berlin in 1931. It was one of a number of baby rabbits sent from south Hungary to improve the rabbit stock of Germany, and experts here say that to return to the home it loved so much it must have hopped its way across the Austrian Alps and the Danube river.

CASE AGAINST COBLENTZ OVERRULED.

The Howard County case against Enory L. Coblentz, was ruled out of standing by Judge George L. First Real Estate Deed in Ohio Executed in 1762 Probably the first real estate deal in Ohio took place in 1762 in what is now Tuscurawas county.

Christian F. Post, a Moravian missionary of Pennsylvania, went to that section to determine the practicability of establishing a religious post there. Believing the Indians would receive him kindly, he began clearing the land and building a cabin, said to be the first cabin on Ohio soil, except the temporary shacks of traders.

With a village on the opposite side of the stream, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, the redskins became suspicious and an investigation committee called him over for a conference. Post explained that he had come to instruct them in the arts of living and agriculture and to administer the word of God. The land, he told them, was needed for raising vegetables.

His manner of presentation, manifesting sincerity, so impressed them that they agreed to let him lay off a square tract 50 steps on each side. Captain Pipe stepped off the plot, drove stakes at the corners and in Indian fashion deeded to the missionary his right to the land. The agreement was evermore respected by the Indians.

Grim Tong War in New York One of the grimmest tong wars fought in New York's Chinatown had its climax in the Chinese theater in Doyers street in 1909. Things had been quiet for weeks and, as it was a holiday, the audience was in a gay mood. Near the end of the show, some one threw a bunch of loud firecrackers into the aisle. The disturbance was soon quieted and the play resumed. Shortly it was over and every one arose to leave except five "On Leongs" who, unnoticed during the firecracker explosions, had been shot dead .- Collier's Weekly.

Airplane Machine Gun Inventor

Roland G. Garros, French aviator, is credited with the invention of the synchronized airplane machine gun. He is known in France as the father of air dueling, which changed the mode of air fighting considerably. In February of the year 1914 he mounted a gun in such a position that it was able to fire through the propellor of an airplane, which was a mode of fighting. In 18 days he is creditel with shooting down five enemy planes. He was brought down on the day of his last victory, April 19, 1915, and was taken prisoner by the Germans. He was unable to destroy his plane, which the Germans copied, and his invention was no longer a secret. He later escaped and returned to France. He was killed in aerial combat in October, 1918.

Worship the Buffalo

Experienced and hardened world travelers not infrequently giggle themselves into a state of hysterics when they get around to visiting the Todas of India, says the Detroit News. In cone-shaped temples the Todas bow down and worship the buffalo. The notion that the buffalo is sacred is only one of their many ideas. Among the Todas woman occupies a very inferior position and upon meeting man greets him by touching his feet with her forehead. On the other hand. polyandry prevails. It is customary for several brothers to share the same woman.

Speed of Comets

Comets do not have constant rates of travel, speeding up as they near the sun. Those that approach the sun closely attain speeds in that position as high as 300 miles a second, or more than a million miles an hour. Meteorites travel at speeds as great as 40 miles a second (144,000 miles an hour), but slow up when they invade the earth's atmosphere, striking the earth at rates of speed of from 400 to 500 feet a second.—Chicago Tribune.

Trumpet Was Important Even in the Trojan War

The trumpet was widely known in ancient times, playing its part in the fall of Jericho, and even in the Trojan war. Trumpets were martial and royal instruments through the Middle ages, and the trumpeters' guild became important and influential. The trumpet is a cylindrical tube about 8 feet long doubled back on itself for ease in handling. The trumpet has three valves or pistons, the use of which enables the player to produce all the tones in the chromatic scale within the compass of the instrument.

The trumpet, like the horn, is provided with a mute, a pear-shaped affair that can be held in the bell in the place of the performer's fist.

The cornet, sometimes mistaken for the trumpet, notes a writer in the Washington Post, is a tapering brass tube a little over 4 feet in length. Its natural key is B-flat, though crooks may be used to set it in A, A-flat or G. The cornetist can give rapid passages, trills, and other embellishments with great ease, but the tone-color of the cornet is below that of the trumpet, which has a bold, martial tone that can be heard through the entire orchestra.

In the classical period of Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven, the trumpet was not very prominent. Wagner employed it extensively in some of his operas, and he used muted trumpets to imitate the tiny trumpets of the toymakers' guild in "The Mastersing-

Irritation of Mantle Is

Cause of Pearl's Growth A pearl is a growth in a pearl oyster or other shellfish caused by a persistent irritation of its mantle. The persistent irritation which causes pearl formation is usually due to the presence of some foreign matter which has entered the shell-sometimes a grain of sand or a fragment of broken shell. Probably in most cases it is the larvae of a parasite worm or a minute crustacean. Whatever the nature of the cause, the mollusk endeavors to reduce the irritation by inclosing it in a lager of the same kind of motre of pearl nacre of which the inside of its shell is made. Once started, the covering of nacre continues to grow by the addition of layer over layer until after a lapse of years the minute seed pearl formed may have grown into a pearl of large size. As a natural pearl is a consequence of the accidental introduction of an irritant, it would seem that pearls could be cultivated by merely introducing the irritant by artificial means. But the successful cultivation of pearls has proved to be a complicated process accomplished by the Japanese only after years of study and experiment. The nucleus of the culture pearl is a small seed pearl or it may be a minute ball of mother of pearl or other substance. This is first inclosed in a sack made from the mantle of a pearl oyster.

Changing Civilizations Jerusalem and the Holy Land have been violent enough, from the days of Isaiah and Sennacherib to the present, but the marks of violence are overshadowed by the peaceful reverence that lies over the land. A crusader's tower reminds one of the Saracens and Richard the Lion-Hearted. The British cemetery recalls the World war. Jaffa was besieged by Napoleon. But the most important memories are those surrounding the many Christian, Jewish and Mohammedan shrines. Bethlehem, the Mount of Olives, the Garden of Gethsemane, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Mosque of Omar, the Wailing Wall, Rachel's tomb, Bethany, the Sea of Galilee, round out a picture of changing civilizations. - Chicago Daily News.

Cracking of Oil

The cracking of oil is said to have been discovered by a refinery workman who day-dreamed on the job and let the still get too hot and build up too much pressure. How this careless person escaped being blasted into the next world is not told by the legend. As a matter of fact, the first success ful cracking process was patented by Doctor Burton of Standard Oil about 1912. Cracking consists of heating the heavier fractions of oil under high pressure.

Pine Most Useful

For general construction purposes no wood excels pine. This does not mean that hardwoods should not be used but rather that pine has that combination of acceptable properties which espe cially adapts it for structural use. These qualities are: Strength, stiff ness, ability to hold shape and ease of working. They also season well and hold paint.

Early Political Corruption

Back in Eighteenth century England, political corruption was carried on in an open manner. Gentlemen wishing to buy government positions and officeholders having them for sale advertised in the newspapers. Often, too, prices were mentioned, some running as high as $15,000.—Freling Foster in Collier's Weekly.

Speediest of Birds Can

Fly 100 Miles Per Hour Game birds, such as the quail, prairie chicken, ruffed grouse, snipe, mallard. black duck, spoonbill, pintail, wood duck, and pigeon, fly 60 feet a second, or at the rate of 40 miles an hour. Geese and brant in flight do 70 feet a second, or at the rate of 47 miles an hour. Redhead ducks and bluebills fly 85 feet a second, which is a rate of 57 miles an hour. Canvasback ducks attain a speed of 61 miles an hour in flying 90 feet a second. Blue-winged and green-winged teal are capable of 100

Rapid as are the rates of flight of the above mentioned birds, says the Chicago Tribune, they are by no means the greatest for feathered flyers. Speediest of birds are credited with flying as fast as or faster than 100 miles an hour. The duck hawk, for instance, according to apparently authentic records collected by the American Museum of Natural History of New York, does well over 100 miles an hour, or more than 146 feet a second.

The rate of speed of birds on the wing depends a great deal on whether they are flying with or against the wind and on the velocity of the wind at the time. It is re called that in a famous pigeon race in Europe in 1876 the winning birds flew 270 miles in 31/4 hours, flying at the rate of 83 miles an hour. All conditions were favorable for record speed. In the race of 1877 it took the pigeons 30 hours to fly the same 270 miles.

First Musical Art Forms in 1100. Writer Relates

Lacking concrete materials, music lagged behind the other fine arts until 1100, when the same spirit that was stimulating architecture began pervading music. Construction of definite musical art forms resulted. Music became measured, and the multiplicity of details which grew up showed definite proportions and relations each to each, says Lynne B. Greene, in the Kansas City Times.

A monk of St. Amands, Hucbald, is responsible for the staff in musical notation. This invention made a remarkable change and paved the way for part-music not heretofore used.

This system of harmonies Huchald called organum, for they were played upon a large instrument of that name, unknown since the fall of Rome. In these harmonies a melody was supported by a second voice singing a third above or a fifth below.

In the Fifteenth century musical composition in its present form began, and early in the Eighteenth century composers became more numerous many of whose names are household words today. Music, unlike painting and sculpture, scarcely can be said to be national in its schools. The great musicians belong to the world, and their compositions are familiar.

We are given a higher psychic that responds to the highest, truest and most beautiful in life. Music is one of the principal means through which nature is expressed.

Plebiscite Long in Use

in European Arguments

In 1802, Bonaparte, when the senate refused to make him consul for life, determined to "consult the people" on the subject of his status. It was unprecedented that a simple consular decree should order a plebiscite. The fact that it did was rather a coup d'etat. The results of the plebiscite were a singular success for Bonaparte, observes a writer in the New York Times.

The right to name his successor was openly demanded by Napoleon in the Senatus-Consulte. Only one step feet a second, a speed of 68 miles an more was needed to make the right hereditary and to enable him to give himself a monarchial or imperial title. This final step was taken in 1804 when the first consul of the republic became emperor of France. The proposition was submitted to a plebiscite which was taken by universal suffrage in the same form as its predecessors, in May, 1804. There were 3,572,329 affirmative and 2,569 negative votes.

Probably the best known example of the use of the plebiscite in French history was in 1852, when the coup d'etat of 1851 was confirmed and the title of emperor was bestowed upon Napoleon III. It was his use of the plebiscite that made the term familiar and connected it with the idea of despotism posing as liberalism. He has even been described as "a plebiscite adventurer."

Cashew Nut Produces an

Oil Used in Many Ways The cashew nut grows in a leatheryskinned shell at the end of a swelling of the stem, which looks like a juicy fruit. The apple, as the swollen stem is called, is delicious, if sometimes a little astringent. It is used by the Brazilians to make the soft drink cajuda, and also a strongly-flavored wine. The nut in the cooked condition is tasty.

The pericarp or shell of the nut, which is the true fruit, contains a dark reddish oil of great chemical interest, which burns the skin of sensitive people. This non-drying oil is used for making wood immune from whiteant attack, and by the natives of the Andaman islands to protect their fishing nets from decomposition.

A scientist has spent years in taming this unusual liquid, adapting it for use as a coating, and for purposes where few other materials appear to be as suitable.

Among its uses is the painting of all types of cement surfaces, especially when these are subject to continual wetting. It is also useful for coating metal, wood, and concrete in industrial plants, when ordinary paints may not withstand the corrosive influences. It appears to be well adapted for use as a ship-bottom paint and has been selected as the ideal paint for coating wooden laboratory table tops.-Tit-Bits Magazine.

Rhinoceros Hide

The rhinoceros hide is generally regarded as tougher than the elephant hide. It is not true, however, as generally supposed, that a bullet will not penetrate this skin except between the deep folds. It is naturally soft and easily penetrated by a bullet or hunting knife. When dried it becomes exceedingly hard and was forused by Indian princes in makmerly ing shields for their soldiers. Big game hunters use large caliber rifles when hunting the rhinoceros, though sometimes guns of small caliber are employed. The favorite shots are the heart shot and the neck shot. It does not appear that the one animal is much harder for a big game hunter to kill than the other.

Smooth; Smoothe There is no known reason for spelling smooth without a final e, for it rimes with soothe. In the period about 1870, in England, an attempt was made to introduce a final e, but the effort gained no permanent following. In 1830, the verbs to wreathe, to loathe. to seethe, and to soothe, were all spelled without a final e, although breathe, bathe, sheathe, and clothe (though spelled cloathe) had the final e to indicate a soft th. This inconsistency was remedied in most instances; but we still have the verbs to mouth and smooth, and the prepositions beneath and with without a final e, though in each instance th is properly soft .-Literary Digest.

Early Evening

By PAUL M. VEST ©. McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

BOB DRAKE drained his glass and set it back on the table beside his chair. A warm, comfortable glow possessed his body. He leaned his head against the back of his chair and endeavored to see the face of his friend, Don Chapman, opposite him.

It was early evening and the two men sat before the great fireplace in the spacious library of their club. For years Chapman had known Drake. Had always considered him a quiet, temperate fellow. It was something of a shock now to see the man almost completely in his cups; even more of a shock to hear him boasting garrulously of numerous affairs with women.

"As I was saying," Drake continued, "nothing should stand in the way of love; friendship, honor, every other human relationship should be sacrificed for the Grand Passion. What are these stupid conventions that we must bow to them? So many old wives' tales not to be considered by intelligent men. Love is love, take it where you find it."

Chapman did not reply immediately. At last he said slowly: "Frankly, you rather amaze me, Drake. You see, I've always believed you a one-woman man. Oh, I know you ran around a bit before you married Helen, but for the last twelve years I thought you had never so much as looked at another woman."

"Oh, Helen's all right. But Lord, man, you can't expect a fellow to be tied down to one woman for twelve

"Many other women during those twelve years, Bob?"

"Many?" Drake raised his eyebrows quizzically. "Honestly, Don, I don't remember just how many. And—here's a greater shock for your Puritan morals-some of the affairs were with the wives of my best friends, none of whom ever suspected a thing."

"And no question of honor ever bothered you, Bob?"

"You would take that attitude, Don. You're too much of a prude. I'll bet you haven't had a real affair with a woman in the last ten years."

Chapman hesitated a moment, then very quietly he said: "Possibly I am a prude, Bob, but you know it's a question of how one looks at things, To me love means just one woman, Somehow I can't conceive of a lot of surreptitious, sneaking little affairs having anything to do with sincere emotion. I have loved only one woman all my life."

"Heaven help you! Loved only one woman and here you are an old bachelor. Tell me, Don Juan, were you ever bold enough to kiss her?"

Chapman ignored the sarcasm. "She is not free to marry, and I'm afraid both she and I place honor before love."

"I'd expect you to be such a fool," Drake sneered. "Forty years old and what have you got out of life! Honor be hanged; take your pleasure where you find it. You'll soon be an old man."

Chapman leaned forward in his chair, the muscles of his face tense. "But you do love Helen; she means more to you than any other woman, doesn't she?" he asked in a strained

"Oh, Helen's all right. She makes a good home for me. She looks well presiding at a dinner table. . . .

Chapman interrupted. "You mean you could conceive of a life without her; it wouldn't break you up entirely to lose her?"

Drake laughed easily. "You and your old-fashioned ideas, Don! Of course it wouldn't. I'll admit it might be a bit inconvenient, but not for long; any number of women would be only too happy to take Helen's place. She didn't do so badly when she married me."

Chapman stared at Drake in blank amazement. Then abruptly, he got up from his chair. "Sorry, old man," he said quietly. "Think I'd better hurry along. Going my way?"

Drake shook his head. "Not just yet. But for Lord's sake take my advice and stop being a d-d fool. Get something out of life, man, before you die."

"Perhaps I will, Bob-perhaps 1 will." When Chapman went out of the door his eyes were those of a very eager young man in love and his chin was resolutely set.

Alone. Drake sank down in his chair. His eyelids closed and he dozed off into a light sleep.

A few hours later he wakened and looked dazedly about the room. It was deserted except for a small Oriental boy emptying ash trays. He stared into the glowing coals and sighed heavily. From his inside pocket he extracted a letter which he wearily read:

"Don Darling: Our love is utterly hopeless. Neither of us would hurt Bob for anything in the world. Please do as I ask and go away somewhere if only for a while-we must forget-it is the only way. But believe me, dearest, I love you and shall always love you with all my heart. Helen."

As he read it over and over again. he swallowed hard and his eyes were suddenly wet. Then abruptly, he got up and went to a desk telephone. In a moment he had his butler. "Is Mrs. Drake in?" he asked.

"No sir," came back over the wire, "Mrs. Drake left with Mr. Chapman a short time ago. She said she did not expect to return. She left a note for you, sir." He dropped the receiver and walked with bowed head back to the fireplace. With moist eyes he looked down at the dying embers. "Only ashes," he whispered huskily, "only ashes. . . ."

Chicago.—A census of the infinite! A counting of the uncountable-of the unknown, ancient stars, stretching into the timeless, limitless darkness of space!

Plan Health Resorts in

Land of Northern Lights Moscow.-Because of the healthful qualities of cold, pure arctic air and northern mineral waters, the Soviet government is considering the establishment of health resorts in the land of the northern lights.

Such a plan, quite in contrast to the usual theory that health resorts should be located in warm, sunny lands, is recommended by Dr. A. I. Shishkina, a Soviet woman specialist on health resorts, who was sent to the Arctic by the government to select sites for a sanitarium.

Shishkina, who has just returned from her explorations, recommended two sites. One of them was on the shores of the Pomorskaya bay, an arm of Matthew's strait, running through the arctic island of Nova Zembla. The other was on the northwestern coast of the same island. "I have discovered exceptional pos-Zembla," Shishkina said. "I found the water there very useful in treating artic scurvy and anaemia. In the future persons with tuberculosis or faulty metabolism will go to arctic resorts just as they now go to the Crimea."

Heart That Whistles

Drives Man to Suicide London.-A whistling heart is strange to medical science, but stranger still to the man who owns one, and Robert Lockyear, a Devonshire saloonkeeper, owned one for some time.

At every beat the heart would whistle, often so loudly that people passing by could hear it. It worried Lockyear, and he went to doctors seeking a cure, but none could help him.

He was found dead recently, a suicide. The inquest revealed he had taken his life rather than go on living with a whistling heart.

TAKES HINT FROM SOLOMON'S AWARD Shell Shocked Soldier Given to Three Families. Paris.-Confronted with one of the most poignant problems arising out of the World war-the case of a shell shocked and amnesia victim who is claimed as a lost relative by twenty different persons-the court in the little town of Rodez in the south of France adopted a solution reminiscent of the judgment of Solomon.

Selecting three claimants who seemed the most serious, the court ruled that "Private X" should live for three months in turn with each of them. A special commission named by most star was old when Alexander the court will supervise the experiment and try to determine whether "Privat X" shows any signs of recognizing the surroundings or supposed relatives. the court will give a definite judgment consideration of the experts' report.

The center of this strange legal tangle has been an inmate of an insane asylum since 1918. He originally the stars. Professor Shapley's talk turned up in a batch of returned prisoners at Lyons at the close of the war.

He could not remember his name or what had happened to him before being made prisoner. There was no way of identifying him.

For years no one claimed him until authorities appealed to the press. Stories were written about him. His photograph and descriptions were printed. Last, but not least, readers were reminded that the state owed him 300,000 francs-about $20,000 today-in pension arrears, and that naturally since he is incapable of managing his affairs the money would go to his legal guardian

Almost immediately letters started pouring in from families who thought they recognized "Private X" as a lost son, brother or husband. Of all these letters, three seemed to the court to be worthy of consideration.

The three candidates are the Monjoin family who believe that "Private X" is the son of Octave Monjoin and who was reported missing in action; Mme. Gensac, who declares that he is sibilities for medicinal baths in Nova her son, Henri, missing since 1915; and Mme. Le May, proprietor of a tobacco store in the center of France, who says he is her husband, Marcel.

The Monjoin family started the litigation to obtain custody of the soldier, thus forcing a decision by court. Mme. Le May gave the court a very detailed description of certain marks on her husband's body which corresponded with those on "Private X."

FLOORED BY JUDGE; HE WILL BE GOOD

WIFE BEATER IS

Husband Admits His Guilt, Then His Honor Steps Down and Gets Busy.

Vincentown, N. J.-Recorder William H. Grady of this town is a mild man of 175 pounds and the age of fifty. But he has the Grady inclinations.

Haled before him was John Senski, thirty years old, a 190-pound laborer. The warrant had been issued on the complaint of Senski's wife, Elizabeth, who complained that her husband had beaten and kicked her and had thrown their son, John, Jr., seven, violently against the wall.

"Well, now, what was I to do?" Recorder Grady said. "He had pleaded guilty to the charge. He admitted it was not the first time he had beaten his wife. Out here in the anthracite fields, when these fellows get through work, they say, 'Let's go home and throw the old woman around a bit.'

Had No Good Reason.

"When I asked him why he had done it, he couldn't give an adequate reason except that his wife and child deserved a beating every once in a while. 'Well,' I thought to myself 'should I fine him the $1,000 stipulated by law? He'd never pay that in his lifetime. Then he'd have to go to jail for a year in default of the fine.

"'Well,' I thought, 'I might have him withdraw his guilty plea and then I could hold him in bail for the action of the grand jury and get rid of the whole business like that.' But I knew that Senski couldn't post bail of 5 cents, so he'd have to be locked up until the d jury meets and that ain't till

"'So, your wife and child need a licking now and then, eh? I asked Senski, and he says 'Sure.' 'And so do you,' I told him, and then I let him

Just Slapped Him.

"I was easy. I just slapped him." "How many times did you hit him, judge?" the recorder was asked. "Oh, quite a few times."

"Did Senski fall down?" "Yes, he fell down, but he got right up again; that is, every time except the last time. He sat on the floor a few minutes while I told him he ought to be ashamed of himself. He promised he wouldn't do it again. And, you know, I don't think he will." Mr. Grady retired from engineering three years ago after assisting Soviet Russia with its five year plan. "Faint Heart"

By EVELYN GORDON ©, McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

MILT MARRICK'S fingers drummed with soft impatience on his desk. Then he got up and for the tenth time stopped to listen at his open door. No, she wasn't coming yet. Past nine now. Ruth Royal during these two years as his secretary in the Marrick Advertising agency never had been late. Until this morning.

And this morning of all mornings! When fate lay in what would be revealed in her lovely face when she would emerge through that door connecting their offices. Would it be yes.

For months he had been like a timid swimmer atop a springboard, but with insufficient courage to take the actual leap. And now it was as though he had positively cast off by proxy. Because of yesterday; yesterday, when he had walked firmly out and bought an expensive engagement ring.

He wrote a letter then and placed it inside the velvet case beneath the

Now, how to get it to her? It was like a voice from Paradise when on the way out at five, Ruth said, "My mother's with me for a week. She's keen to meet the man I'm working for. Couldn't you drop into the apartment?"

Ruth had the merriest fire crackling in the grate when he arrived. Some one said, quietly. "Miss Ruth, the coffee's served.' And Milt decided that when the ladies preceded him to the dining room he would place the precious box on her door where she would discover it. He had not slept, thinking of Ruth and of Joe Allerton-he'd seen them together lately more than enough.

pillow as he passed Ruth's bedroom

The electric light button clicked in the adjoining room! Instantly Milt's eyes focused on the connecting door. His heart leapt like a racehorse taking final hurdles in competition with other aspirants. He yearned for the light of acquiescence on her face. Some one was with her. "Let it be anyone but Allerton," he

"It's serious, Ruth." The voice was low, secretive; and Milt knew that voice-Joe Allerton's. "We've simply got to get together," (he failed to catch the next pleading words but read his own suspicions into them) "otherwise the bottom will drop out of everything."

After a curt "Good morning," she said firmly: "Let's get these orders straightened out first, I've had so many complaints about mistakes-" Her words all pertaining to business, bumped up in a huddled mass in his brain through a telephone buzzer on Ruth's outer desk. She hastened to answer it.

And suddenly he was alone again when the door opened gently. Some one peeped in, then entered noiselessly. Milt's face paled. "Why-Anne!" His eyes were gray clouds. "You! What have you come here for?"

"I'm glad you're going to marry her, Milt. Any girl would give her ears to fine, staunch." She hesitated as though her throat were blocked. "Only -she doesn't know yet."

"You see, Milt, it's my one bad habit. I'll always steal. Because I can't seem to help it, somehow. I took Miss Royal's ring; found it on the pillow when I went in to turn the hed down. I go from place to place, you know. But I left there this morning."

An aching void for the girl he had once adored gaped in Milt's gentle heart. He had helped her so many times to escape punishment.

Anne opened her purse, took out the square-cut purple box with reverent care; put it safely into Milt's hands. It was only then that her dark eyes misted. "Don't do it this way, Milt," she begged. "I mean-not the writing part. Tell her. She'll like it better, Milt. It seems sort of cowardly to do it this way."

Milt looked hard into her thin face. "Thank you, Anne," he said with difficulty. "I will." Suddenly he straightened up to his full six feet and slapped his thumb over the buzzer mightily. Ruth came running in. Her eyes were red, strained. Without a doubt she had been crying. "Come here, Ruth. What's the matter?" Her lips quivered. "Oh, everything that was ever the matter in the whole world. The business is going to ruin and you can't see-can't see-" "-the reason why," he supplied in a thick certain voice. "Well-this is it!" His arms closed tight about her.

"This is why!" "Oh, Milt," she was saying breathlessly, "what's been the matter with you? This curious hedge you seemed to have around you! I felt you cared about me, but somehow we couldn't get through to one another."

He kissed her hard. "We have now," he said triumphantly.

'And all the time you were getting more absent-minded than ever. Sending the wrong material out. Mixing up the merchandise; making clients mad until Joe Allerton and I were almost beside ourselves. Only this morning Joe said the bottom would fail out of everything unless we could do something; get together-"So, that's what Joe was saying! That I was going daft." He kissed her again. "My sweet brown bird!" There was a roguish gleam in his eye. "The hedge is down-and the Marrick agency still floats-with you at the helm!"

PETER PREACHES TO GENTILES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 10:1-11:18.

GOLDEN TEXT—Of a truth I perceive God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. Acts 10:34b, 35.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter Learns That God Loves Everybody.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter Learns Something New.

The missionary program of the church having broadened to include the Samaritans in Philip's preaching in Samaria, we see in this lesson the program still widening and embracing the Gentiles. Through the conversion of Cornelius, the middle wall of partition was broken down (Eph. 2:14). I. The Man Cornelius (10:1, 2).

1. His official position (v. 1). He was a centurion, a Roman officer over a company of one hundred soldiers.

2. His character (v. 2). a. "A devout man." b. A benevolent man. c. A praying man. d. Highly respected by his family.

The Lord chose Cornelius as the channel of the transition of the gospel to the Gentiles because of his character and position. II. Supernatural Preparation for the Transition of the Gospel to the Gentiles (10:3-35).

In order to bring this about, observe:

1. Two visions were given.

a. The vision of Cornelius (vv. 3-8). While engaged in prayer, an angel of God instructed him to send to Joppa for Peter, who would tell him what to do. Cornelius sent at once for Peter.

b. The vision of Peter (vv. 9-16). While Peter was praying (v. 9) he saw a certain vessel containing clean and unclean animals let down from heaven, and heard the command, "Rise, Peter; kill, and eat." Peter protested that he had never eaten any unclean thing. God replied, "What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common." This vessel, let down and taken back, indicated that both Jews and Gentiles were accepted on high.

2. A messenger sent from Cornelius (vv. 17-22). Peter was greatly perplexed over what he had seen, but not for long, for a messenger from Cornelius made inquiry at the gate for him. The Spirit informed Peter of the matter and bade him go, nothing doubting.

3. The meeting of Cornelius and Peter (vv. 23-33).

great importance he must have wit-

c. Cornelius, about to worship Peter (vv. 25, 26), was told by Peter that he himself was but a man.

d. The reciprocal explanation (vv. 27-33). Peter explained how God had taken from him his Jewish prejudices. Cornelius explained how God had instructed him to send for Peter.

III. Peter's Sermon (vv. 34-43). 1. The introduction (vv. 34, 35) showed that God is no respecter of persons (see Golden Text). 2. His discourse (vv. 36-43) touches briefly upon the mission of Jesus, showing that he was qualified for his work as a Mediator. He then exhibited the work of Christ.

a. In his life (vv. 36-39). He went God was with him (v. 38).

suffered for the unjust that he might bring us to God (I Pet. 3:18).

c. In his resurrection (vv. 40, 41). God raised him up the third day, showing openly that Christ was his Son (Rom. 1:4) and that his sacrificial work was satisfactory (Rom. 4:25). In this discourse Peter sets forth

(1) The basis of salvation—the sacrificial death of Christ (vv. 39, 40) (2) The scope of salvation-"whosoever" (v. 43). (3) The method appropriating salvation-"believeth on him" (v.

IV. The New Pentecost (vv. 44-48). As the gospel was entering upon its widest embrace the Holy Spirit came in new power. V. Peter Vindicates His Ministry to the Gentiles (11:1-18). Being called to account for visiting and eating with Gentiles Peter's defense took the form of logical argument, showing how God had set his seal on the work by the miraculous gift of the Spirit.

MATERIAL MORTALITY.

In a recent period of six weeks, in a large American city, more than twice as many women died during or following childbirth as during the same period last year. The figures, precisely, are as eighteen to eight.

In the largest American city, a committee of the Academy of Medicine carefully survey a total of 2,041 maternal deaths, and found it necessary to render a collective opinion that 1,343 of these deaths were pre-

The first city referred to, as it happens, is our Maryland metropolis of Baltimore. Here, the City Medical Society caused the above figures to be published in the newspapers by asking the Health Department to conduct a thorough professional investigation of the matter. Both here, and in New York, the organized medical men deserve high commendation for their policy of full publicity for this record, deplorable though it be, of childbed deaths.

It should go without saying-but perhaps it had better be said-that maternal mortality is not a problem peculiar to Baltimore, or to New York. It is a world problem, a public as well as an obstetrical problem, with America paying its full share of the grim toll of maternal sacrifice.

Why is this so? With medical knowledge widening, hygienic science progressing, and new wonders of surgery announced almost weekly, why is it that obstetrics—a branch of surgery -seems to stand still, or lag behind? Since it is so, whose fault is it?

The New York Academy, through its conscientious and public-spirited investigation, feels itself qualified to answer that question, also. It says that of the 1,343 preventable maternal deaths referred to above, about 60% were attributable to mistakes or errors of judgment on the part of the physicians in attendance. The blame for 37% of the deaths is placed upon the patients, themselves, who paid so dearly for their wilfulness or ignor-

The midwife, who each year occupies a smaller place in the obstetric picture, must shoulder most of the remainder of the blame.

The official opinion of the learned Academy upon the division of blame for this series of preventable maternal deaths would seem to be based upon conditions immediate to the pregnancy and labor. This observer believes that, from a point of view taking into account a number of human a. Peter took six witnesses along and economic factors, and extending (v. 23 cf. 11:12). In a matter of so further back into the history of these unfortunate maternity cases, the patient, her husband and family, would b. Of course, it is impossible to discuss these factors here in detail. However, this is written with no wish to "whitewash" the hardworking physicians who bring our babies into the world. Many mistakes -too many-are made in obstetric, but these individual errors do not account for the impasse at which we find ourselves in dealing with puerperal mortality.

Much is written for the lay press on this topic. Medical men talk and write about doing good, even casting out about it endlessly. Yet the puerperal demons, as a proof of the fact that | death rate goes on about the same, by and large, year after year. The uninb. In his death (v. 39). The just formed might say concerning it what Mark Twain said of the weather, that 'everybody talks about it, but nobody does anything about it." This should not be true, as research work is in progress at all times and in many parts of the world, in an effort to find a way to better the record.

There are, of course, several causes for maternal death during or following childbirth. One of these might be called skeletal, in which the bony structure of the woman's body is not adapted for successful labor. If measurements are not taken, and this contingency not foreseen, serious complications may result. Another cause is organic deficiency, as when a pair of kidneys or a heart is inadequate to the added work thrown upon them by pregnancy. If these defects are not properly appraised and provided for in advance, a fatality may ensue.

Another, and most important, complication is bacteriological. One form of this hazard is, for example, pulmonary tuberculosis, which may be aggravated by pregnancy. The usuas protective measure is to terminate

However, the most frequent, and most dreadful, way in which infection causes death following childbirth is by puerperal sepsis, or "blood poisoning," as it is more or less accurately "When Israel was a child, then I called. This will be our topic next

Time Standards

The earth turns on its axis every 24 hours, rotating from west to east. Sun time is taken from the time when the sun apparently crosses the meridian at a given place. Since this changes as one goes east or west, it has been necessary to establish different standard times zones, based on the meridians, 75, 90, 105 and 120 degrees West, in this country. Places within about 71/2 degrees of each of these lines of longitude take the time at these meridians as their standard, no matter what their local or sun time may be. Many cities adopted a daylight saving time for the summer months, advancing their clocks an hour so as to take advantage of the early morning light and to save light and fuel in the evening. The United States time zones, running from east to west, are eastern, central, mountain and Pacific. The continental railroads adopted these standards as varly as 1883, hence the term, railroad ne.-Detroit News.

Mother Murders Her Son Without Knowing Him

Belgrade.-Out of the hills has come the story of a family tragedy suggesting the work of a Russian novelist. At Oravitza a mother and her daughter killed and robbed a stranger at their inn-not knowing that he was their son and brother.

Peter Nikolaus left home twenty years ago to seek his fortune. He worked in Hungary, Rumania and other lands and amassed a moderate sum. He married and had one child. Recently he decided to visit his mother and sister, who kept an inn.

His wife and daughter stopped to see a relative living near and late at night he went over to surprise his mother. When he saw that she did not recognize him he pretended to be an ordinary traveler, took a room for the night, and went to bed.

Feeling himself at home, he took from his pocketbook a large sum of money which he intended to give as presents to his mother and sister and left it on the table beside his bed. He did not lock his bedroom door.

During the night his mother looked into the room and saw the money on the table by his bedside. She told his sister and between them they hatched a plot to kill him and take the money. They entered the room, stabbed the sleeping man to the heart, earried his yard, taking all the money. Next morning his wife came to the inn and introduced herself.

Telephone Warning Saves Plane Crash

A telephone call made to Ray W Brown, veteran Army and civil flyer, probably was the means recently of saving his life. Brown, according to the Washington Evening Star, had taken off from Akron, Ohio, for Columbus. Tuning in almost immediately on the Federal Department of Commerce airways radiotelephone station at Cleveland to receive the regular one o'clock weather broadcast, he was startled to hear this warning:

"Calling Ray Brown in Lockheed NC 539M. Your landing gear is gone. Calling Ray Brown in Lockheed NC 539M. You have lost your right wheel." Leaning out of his compartment,

Brown discovered that one of the shock struts and the wheel were dangling in the air, so that an effort to land his fast plane, which had to be set down at a very high rate of speed, meant an almost certain crash. He thought of attempting a water landing in the Portage Lakes southwest of Akron but, deciding that an emergency crew would be waiting at Akron with fire extinguishers and emergency equipment, he headed back. As he sideslipped the plane in for a gingerly landing, the broken strut slipped back in place and held just long enough for him to get in safely, where a normal landing would have been impossible.

MURDER BY MAGIC COMMON IN AFRICA

Doctor Tells of Weird Things Seen in Rhodesia.

London.-Uncanny stories of murder by witchcraft, of a body that disappeared from a grave while he looked on, were told by Dr. G. B. Kirkland, medical officer in southern Rhodesia, Africa, in a lecture to the International Institute of Psychical Research.

"Africa teems with magic, and I, a medical officer, cannot explain it." He went on: "I once saw natives walk unharmed through a pit of fire so hot I couldn't get within 12 feet of it. They came out

"Once I went to exhume a tribal chief who, I suspected, had been murdered. The witch doctor warned me not to go. However, I dug up the grave and the dead man lay there. When natives went down into the grave they came out hurriedly, crying there was no body. I looked in the open grave and the corpse had gone. Later the witch doctor declared the body had returned. Sure enough, the body was there." Doctor Kirkland attributed this to hypnotism and said he had seen healthy natives die after a witch doctor had pronounced the "spell of death" on them. The doctor continued: "There is also the 'stretcher of death.' It is placed secretly against the victim's door at night and once he touches it he dies."

Finding of Her Teeth Saves Woman Operation

Prague.—A middle-aged woman burst into a doctor's effice and asked him to operate on her at once as she had swallowed her false teeth.

She usually took them out before going to bed, she said, but on the previous night she had forgotten to do so. In the morning her mouth was empty, and, as she had an acute pain, she must have swallowed the teeth.

Preparations were hastily made for an immediate operation, but before it began a message came: "Return home, teeth found under bed."
