MILK REGULATIONS.

Of Considerable Importance to Milk Producers.

Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, calls attention to the regulations recently adopted by the Department concerning the control of milk produced, shipped, handled and consumed in Maryland. Former regulations are revised and enlarged in the new requirements.

The regulations provide that dairies retailing milk must be adequately equipped for the storage of the milk at a temperature not above 60°F. and must have sufficient apparatus for washing and sterilizing all equipment and for the bottling of milk.

The annual tuberculin testing of dairy cattle is obligatory. Physical examination of milk handlers by the health officers, or by physicians authorized by the health officers, is required for the control of communicable diseases. Such laboratory tests as individual cases may demand, are required. The presence of any communicable disease among persons residing at any dairy farm, or other milk handling establishment, must be reported to the health officer.

Statements made on the labels of milk bottles indicating milk to be a certain quality or grade, must be approved by the State Department of Health.

New requirements include:

1. Provision for a 2-room house for dairies retailing milk.
 2. Mechanical capping of the milk.
 3. Provision for suitable apparatus to wash and sterilize utensils, containers and equipment.
 4. Sterilization by means of a chlorine solution of not less than 100 parts per million available chlorine is required unless some other means or methods approved by the Department of Health are used.
 5. Milk must be cooled promptly and must be kept at a temperature not above 60°F. at all times until delivered to the consumer.
 6. The bacterial standard for raw milk is more rigid. Raw milk or cream offered for consumption as such shall contain not more than 100,000 colonies of bacteria per cc. by the official plate method.
 7. Milk shall not be held at the dairy farm for over a period of 18 hours. It must be delivered to the dairy or consumer within that time.
 8. Cases of communicable diseases among the cattle must be reported directly to the Health Department.
- Active enforcement of the regulations will be started 30 days after this notice. Printed copies of the regulations are available to those interested.

THE COUNTY STATEMENT.

The annual statement of Receipts and expenditures of Carroll county, for the year ending June 30th, 1936, appears in this issue. As this is the most important advertisement for taxpayers that appears in a whole year, we do not publish it in supplement form, but in the regular eight-page issue. This curtails other reading matter considerably, but for once a year, we consider this fully justified.

We trust that taxpayers in general, who are interested in where their tax payments go, will examine the statement, and perhaps save this issue for future reference. It is published at considerable cost, for just this—important information to those interested.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION.

The 43rd. annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Carroll County, will be held at the Methodist Protestant Church, at Finksburg, on September 30, beginning at 9:45 A. M.

Mrs. Harry Haslup, who will appear before our county convention for the last time as State President, will speak in the morning, and Miss Flora E. Strout, who has been promoting W. C. T. U. work in foreign countries for several years, will speak in the afternoon. An interesting account of Miss Strout appeared in the Baltimore Sun recently, and all who read it will want to hear her. Your attendance will also be a tribute to the esteem with which you hold Mrs. Haslup.

CARROLL NOT OVERDRAWN FOR ROADS.

Announcement was made this week that thirteen counties face overdrawn deficits for roads, on October 1, which will eliminate or curtail further road construction until the new year.

Carroll is one of the few counties that has increased its probable road balance from $1897, to $2674. This may be considered good business from the financial point of view, at the expense of less road work. Pay as you go, is likely better than going into debt.

POEM BY HOWARD WAYNE PECK

It will interest our readers to learn that Howard Wayne Peck, age 8, of Silver Run, Md., has a poem in the September issue of Child Life, national monthly for boys and girls. Howard is a member of the Child Life Pen and Pencil Club. The poem is as follows:

The leaves are yellow, red and green,
The prettiest ones I have ever seen,
They fall from all the trees around,
And then go skipping over the ground.

Self-satisfaction is the deadly enemy of progress. As soon as we say "good enough" we cease to advance. And that is the danger of our modern civilization.

MARYLAND FARMERS GET HIGHER PRICES

For General Farm Produce, According to Last Report.

A nine-point increase in the general level of prices received by farmers for their products from July 15 to August 15 of this year has been reported by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Wheat and corn simultaneously passed the $1 per bushel mark for the first time since July, 1928. Grains, dairy products, livestock and meat animals shared in the upturn.

Farmers in Maryland also reported higher prices for their products, the bureau reporting these quotations as of August 15:

Wheat, $1.05 per bushel; corn, $1.05; oats, 49 cents; barley, 66 cents; rye, 81 cents; buckwheat, 74 cents; potatoes, $1.05 sweet potatoes, $1.15; hogs, $10.40 per 100 pounds; beef cattle, $6.80 per 100 pounds; veal calves, $8.60 per 100 pounds; sheep, $3.25 per 100 pounds; lambs, $9 per 100 pounds, milk cows, $57 per head; horses, $124 per head, and mules, $133 per head.

Chickens, 19.1 cents per pound; eggs, 25.2 cents per dozen; butter, 28 cents per pound; wool, 32 cents per pound; apples, 75 cents per bushel; tobacco, 25 cents per pound.

All hay, $13.90 per ton; alfalfa, $17.70 per ton; clover, $14.10 per ton; clover and timothy mixed, $14.50 per ton; prairie hay, $12.20 per ton; red clover seed, $10.80 per bushel.

LUTHER LEAGUE CONVENTION.

The 1936 Maryland State Luther League Convention will be held at St. John's Lutheran Church, Hagerstown, Md., from September 5-7. The three day session will open with the registration of delegates and visitors on Saturday afternoon, followed by an evening of entertainment at Brad-dock Heights Amusement Park.

The Sunday sessions will begin at 9:45 A. M., with church school to be followed by the morning church service at 11 o'clock. At the latter service the Rev. L. Ralph Tabor, Middle-town, Md., will speak on "The Perils of Youth."

The Sunday afternoon session will begin at 2:10 o'clock with a devotional service led by the Rev. Justus H. Liesman, Baltimore, the convention chaplain. The discussion groups will be held from 2:30-4:00 o'clock. Following these group meetings there will be a presentation of Junior Luther League work under the direction of Miss Brenda Melhouse, national secretary, and Mrs. John T. Loveless, Jr., State Secretary.

The fellowship hour at 6:00 P. M., will be in charge of the Rev. F. Berry Plummer, Hagerstown, Md. The speaker at the vesper service at 7:30 o'clock will be the Rev. James Oosterling, Baltimore, who will speak on "The Problems of Youth."

The sessions on Monday, September 7, will combine business and pleasure. During the morning the routine business of the convention will be transacted and the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place. In the afternoon there will be a continuation of the discussion groups and the installation of the newly elected officers by the president of the Maryland Synod, the Rev. J. William Ott, D. D., Hagerstown, Md. The convention will close with the fellowship banquet on Monday evening at which time the Rev. Joseph B. Baker, D. D., York, Pa., will be the speaker.

VISITORS AT THE ZEPP HOME AT COPPERVILLE.

Mrs. Byron S. Cranston and daughter, Maybelle, of New London, Ohio, are visiting Mrs. Cranston's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Zepp, at Copperville, and will be in Maryland for perhaps ten days.

Other visitors at the Zepp home were, on Sunday last, Miss Gustie I. McKindless and daughter, Miss Ruth, New York; also a niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. C. Emory Cole and daughter, Dolores, West Baltimore; Mrs. Ruthann Kiser and husband, and Mrs. Florence Flickinger, Taneytown; and Harvey E. Selby and wife, Hanover.

Mrs. Cranston and Mrs. McKindless being natives of Carroll County, state that they always find great pleasure in visiting the old-home county, their relatives and acquaintances; and we wish for them many more such visits. They were especially impressed with the improvements and growth of Taneytown, and feel that the new factories seem sure to result in still greater growth.

Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Stasmev, of Brooklyn, N. Y., joined the visitors at the Zepp home, Monday evening and are spending a few days in Baltimore and Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Emory Flickinger were also callers Monday evening.

RELIEF PAYMENTS INCREASE.

Sate Relief for the month of July amounted to $444,193, or nearly 27 cents for every resident of the state. All counties except four increased their expenditures over the month of June.

The amount paid in Carroll County was $3,779, an increase of 4 percent. These figures we understand to include Old Age Pensions, general relief and Children's Aid.

"True glory takes root and even spreads; all false pictures, like flowers, fall to the ground; nor can any counterfeit last long."—Cicero.

WILL REPLACE CHESTNUTS

The Trees Almost All Destroyed in Maryland.

Chestnut trees will come back and Maryland boys and girls and young people will have the joy of chestnut parties again if the experiments being conducted by the Soil Conservation Service Department of Agriculture, in Maryland prove successful, according to information received by Arthur E. Hungerford, State Director, National Emergency Council.

In the three Soil Conservation demonstrations at Boonsboro, Washington county; Harwood, Anne Arundel county, and White Hall, Baltimore and Harford counties, 2,100 trees have been planted on the farm of farmers who are co-operating.

Two varieties of Chinese chestnut trees and a hybrid of one of the Chinese varieties and the American chestnut have been planted. The trees are two or three feet high.

O. C. Bruce, State Co-ordinator, Soil Conservation Service, says it is too early to pass judgment on the success of the experiment.

Extension experiments in developing blight resisting species are being carried on at the National Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md. F. W. Besley, State Forester, is watching these experiments with deep interest and will take prompt advantage of them as soon as results are certain.

The chestnut trees of Maryland have been particularly the entire country have been destroyed by a blight which first appeared in Long Island in 1893, which was identified in New York in 1904, and was reported in 1908. In the course of the next ten years the blight had spread over the entire eastern section of the country. Year after year the old chestnut trees and stumps have put out new shoots which have fallen victim of the blight as soon as they reach a height of from eight to twelve feet.

GOV. OF PENNSYLVANIA CHARGED WITH HIRING "HOODLUMS."

Charges were entered against Governor Earle, of Pennsylvania, on Wednesday, of attempting to coerce the recent session of the legislature through paid "hoodlums." The charge was made by Mrs. Edna R. Carroll, vice-chairman of the Republican City Committee, before a meeting of the Independent Coalition of American Women.

Mrs. Carroll, referring to the recent "hunger marchers" at the Capitol, whose maintenance was paid by the State on orders of Governor Earle, said she was told by Legislators "things happened there which could not be told in print."

"The women of America are faced by the serious fact that almost every American right endangered," she declared.

"It has happened here in Pennsylvania, where the Governor of this great Commonwealth imported a paid and organized body of hoodlums to the State Capitol to coerce the General Assembly into forced legislation."

CUMBERLAND'S FLOOD LOSS.

The recent flood damage to the city of Cumberland, amounted to $2,213,203, according to an estimate completed by the city engineer and Chamber of Commerce. Included in this amount is $389,716 estimated loss to business. The business section of the city was flooded to the depth of five feet.

TELEPHONE RATES HAVE BEEN REDUCED.

The Saving to the average user is not very clear.

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City has just filed with the Public Service Commission a new schedule of rates for certain classes of service which will bring about reductions of approximately $92,700 annually, affecting about 40,000 telephones.

The reductions effective on and after September 1, 1936, affect the following services:

In Baltimore City—residence extension and private branch exchange stations on unlimited services, affecting 8,500 telephones at an annual saving of $23,500, from $1.00 to 75c per month, and on message rate services from 75c to 60c per month.

Outside of Baltimore City—business extension and private branch exchange stations, affecting 6,500 telephones at an annual saving of $19,400 25c per month.

Hand sets throughout the State, affecting 24,000 telephones at an annual saving of $20,000, from 15c for eighteen months, or $2.50 flat charge, to 15c for twelve months, or $1.50 flat charge.

Other reductions, amounting to $29,000, annually, include the rates for certain items of private branch exchange equipment, outside lines on private property, directory listings, jack and plug equipment, and the charge for connecting stations and trunks when two or more are connected at the same time.

Early in the present year the Commission concluded negotiations with the Company, resulting in a reduction amounting to $512,300 a year in the rates charged for telephone service throughout the State of Maryland. The reduced rates became effective on February 1st., 1936, and, with reductions approved by the Commission within a few months preceding that date, the total annual savings of the subscribers was $662,000. The further reductions just made effective increase the annual saving to subscribers to about $755,000, and, in addition to the reductions made in the local rates the long distance toll rates were reduced on September 1st., the estimated saving to Maryland subscribers under the new schedules being $103,000 a year. Thus the aggregate annual saving to the Maryland subscribers under rate revisions during the past year is approximately $858,000.

The reductions in rates for extension stations and hand sets, which have just been made, were considered in the negotiations between the Commission and the Company last winter but at that time the Company could not see its way clear to include these reductions with the others which were made effective on February 1st. The Company did agree, however, to reduce the charges as soon as conditions permitted and, in accordance with that understanding, the reductions are now being made effective—Public Service Commission.

JUNIOR ACHIEVEMENT.

In an age which has found so much to criticize in its younger generation, it is refreshing to discover one field in which American youngsters have shown extraordinary initiative, and a capacity for successful as well as serious business. Writing in the current Review of Reviews, Ray Giles reports on the amazing growth of "Big Business in Miniature."

"America has 900 corporations run by boys and girls, 16 to 21 years of age. Miniature, they are nevertheless complete—from janitor to president, headhaches to success, raw products to finished articles. There is none of your 'playing store' about these enterprises. Young directors pay rent, wages and dividends; the products made are sold on a quality basis in the open market. The companies afford ideal training in all phases of business effort.

"The range of articles varies considerably. One of the most successful companies, the Oddity Shop at Flushing, New York, started off working in iron, but this demand was soon met and the group shifted to wood. They have adjusted their program repeatedly to changing requirements. Stock, originally priced at 50 cents a share, is now quoted at $1.15. Last year a company paid 10 percent dividend to some 60-old stockholders, and bonuses to members.

"There are companies in which boys and girls work together. In one, the boys make chairs and girls upholster them. There are all-girl companies. One in New York makes a roomy sleeved garment to protect the clothes of children. Another turns out a cork mat to put under children's dishes to save linen. Other products include toys, desk pads, ash trays, cigarette cases, book-ends, match holders, purses, sticks for flower beds, weather vanes, door stops, paper knives, sugar and cream sets, rings and brooches.

"The byproducts of Junior Achievement are, if possible, more impressive than the products. Each company is small enough to give every member diversified business training. When a man is through at 21, he can tell his prospective employer that he has been janitor, accountant, salesman, president, treasurer, sales manager, and director of a corporation.

"Many a 'tired' business or professional man or equally tired business woman finds this activity bringing a rich new interest into their lives. There is a thrill in sharing with younger enthusiasts your knowledge of business and the crafts."

SCHOOL CHILDREN AND HIGHWAYS.

With the opening of schools for the Fall term, motorists are urged by the Keystone Automobile Club of Maryland to give their fullest co-operation to the movement fostered by the Club for the protection of school children.

Edward P. Curran, Safety Director of the Club, points out that many dangers confront children returning to school after the summer vacation, and emphasizes the responsibility of motorists in safeguarding the lives of pupils.

"A factor having important bearing on the problem of child safety," he said, "is the appearance on the streets of thousands of youngsters attending school for the first time. These children have not had the benefit of safety instruction in the class rooms, and in their behalf we appeal particularly to motorists. To a very great extent, the safety of first-year pupils will depend upon the care with which motor vehicles are operated, not only in the vicinity of schools, but on all streets where children are walking on their way to and from their classrooms.

"All drivers are strongly urged to use the utmost caution where children are crossing streets. No one can foretell when a child is going to rush forward from a group into the path of moving vehicles. Because of this uncertainty the duty devolves upon the motorist to have his car under such control that he can stop at a moment's notice. Safe drivers never take chances where children are concerned.

KOONS FAMILY REUNION.

The 4th. annual reunion of the Koons families was held on Sunday, Aug. 30th, in Stonestifer's grove, at Keysville, Md., with eighty-three persons in attendance. Following a picnic dinner a program in charge of the President Delmont E. Koons was rendered, consisting of reading of the Scripture, prayer, music and recitations.

A business session was held and the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Delmont E. Koons; Vice-President, W. E. Koons; Secretary, W. D. Ohler and Treasurer, LeRoy Spangler.

Mrs. Charles Koons, of Waynesboro made some very interesting remarks. It was decided to hold the next reunion on the last Sunday in August, 1937, at a place selected by a committee appointed for that purpose.

ENGLAR REUNION HELD.

The Englar family reunion, was largely attended, last Sunday, quite a number for the first time and some not direct descendants of Philip (of Switzerland) Englar. The reunion date was also 200 years and 8 months since the birth of this progenitor of the greater portion of the family name in this section.

The larger attendance was partially due to the presence of Rev. Geo. W. Englar, D. D., Pittsburgh, a descendant of Philip Englar, Bvartia, a country adjoining Switzerland, who delivered a very interesting address, centered around—"Why are we here?" The program included several solos and quartets, and the transaction of the usual business. Daniel E. Englar, of New Windsor, President, and all other officers, were continued for another year, and the next meeting will be held on the last Sunday in August, at the same place, the Pipe Creek Church of the Brethren.

So important does the Cavalcade, of Texas, historical review at the Texas Centennial Exposition rank, that Governor James V. Allred and State Superintendent L. A. Woods are maturing plans to insure the attendance of 1,500,000 school children during the autumn months. They assert it is worth weeks in the school room, in the teaching of history.

Random Thoughts

DOING OUR BEST.

What is it? Is it working our hardest, and saving the most money we can? Not at all. Such a plan for life would be the worst plan that could be thought of, or practiced. In fact, money-making as a prime object is never in line with doing our best.

What "our best" is, is perhaps only an ideal never reached, and we the most surely come nearest reaching it when we do not expend all of our energies in any one direction, whether for pleasure or profit.

We at least do very well, when we are honest, kind, industrious; liberal-minded, and a good neighbor. Absolute love to all in a home; a "pulling together" spirit, kindly advice instead of criticism; and a manifestation something like this to all about us, must head us toward the goal of "Doing our Best."

Work? Oh yes, Honest work that tires, especially if we are able to see duty at the end of it, or some real good to others. Liberty? Of course. There comes a time to all when worldly possessions are worth nothing to us—giving, belongs to "Doing our Best." Consider this thought, for yourself—not at random!

"Doing our best" is not always doing the most. The mere having of much property, or wealth, may be a burden as well as responsibility, and how we use it is always among the things for which we are finally accountable. Let us be sure of real values, always.

COURTS AND THE PRESS.

No great wisdom is required to reach the conclusion that we have too many illegitimate courts, and too many gratuitous detective agencies.
This has practically been the decision of a special Committee of the American Bar Association, when it declares—

"The system of the public press arguing the case (Hauptmann) outside of the Court is fundamentally wrong. In the second place there is grave danger in the dramatization of crime and exploitation of the criminal."

It also condemns the taking of moving pictures during a trial, and it might have gone further in condemning the publicity given to evidence by the press, especially in cases of domestic infelicity, and when cases are held of most interest when they are most immoral.

It may be a difficult matter to establish a clear line between allowable and defensible public right on the one side, and criminal instinct and low morality on the other, but it must be said that but little effort has been made to establish such a line.

There is a vast difference, too, in specific cases and how they are broadcast.
Why should any major crime be held to be "news," outside of a reasonably wide area? Why should a horrible common first degree murder be forgotten in a few days; while one no more horrible but connected with moral nastiness and mystery, be published far and wide?

The explanation must be that the public is only temporarily shocked in the one case, but is given something to talk about and enjoy in some degree as entertainment in the other. And this reflects neither morality nor good sense on the part of the public.

Unquestionably, we believe, the press of the country is strongly in favor of a high standard of ethics, and does not want to pander to those who interested in indecency and crime; but newspaper publishers must go far toward satisfying public demands in order that the business managed and may show satisfactory results.

But, it is a hopeful sign when such organizations as the American Bar Association steps aside in the interest of decent court practices; and this movement should be met by one of like kind by the leading Press Associations of the country; for at present, the press is at least an equal offender in the matter of decency in the handling of court procedures.

THE FORGOTTEN PEDESTRIAN.

The American conscience has been touched by the growing awareness of needless slaughter in automobile accidents.
Safety campaigns throughout the country have already in an encouraging reduction in deaths and injuries in which automobiles are involved.

But there is one aspect of the problem which has received relatively little attention. Writing in the September Review of Reviews, J. B. Pennybacker, former chief highway economist of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, points out the need for pathways for pedestrians.

"Last year three thousand people were killed, nearly twelve thousand were injured, as they walked along highways and country roads. This, says Mr. Pennybacker, is "a roster of victims which could be wiped out altogether by the simple expedient of bordering all highways with some form of sidewalk."

"In the past, on the rare occasions
when this suggestion has been discussed, it has been set aside because of the 'prohibitive cost.' Careful estimates by engineers, however, indicate that waterproofed paths, three feet in width, can be constructed in their simplest forms for an average of twelve cents per linear foot, or $634 per mile. Allow $366, or more than fifty percent of the estimated cost, for extras in the form of occasional drains and unforeseen contingencies, and the average per mile is still only $1,000.

"In the light of such a cost factor
what would an appropriation of $400,- 000,000, the equivalent of the proposed grade-crossing program, accomplish?
It takes the simplest sort of arithmetic to show that at $1,000 per mile 400,000 miles of highway (or about 20 percent more than the combined federal and state systems) could be made safe.

"A pedestrian path program would not only protect the lives of men, women and children, but would give widespread employment of a valuable character. At least twice as many men could be employed in such a project, as in one devoted to grade-crossing elimination, and it would save twice as many lives. A maximum of unskilled labor could be assured in loosening the soil with picks, this to be followed with disc-harrowing both before and after their applying water-proofing.

"Rolling by hand would adequately compact the mixture. Where funds permitted, a surface treatment of sand or stone chips would add to the quality of the job, while a paved sidewalk could be provided where conditions warranted."

IMPORTS HIGHER THAN EXPORTS.

Washington (IPS)—America, the Washington Post reports, is about to break a 43-year record by buying more goods from foreign countries than it sells to them.

Not since 1893, the Post says, has the United States had an "unfavorable trade balance." In the first six months of this year, however, American purchases exceeded American sales.
That was the first time that had happened since 1926.

A Commerce Department compilation showed that already this year the United States has imported 63 per cent more wheat than it did in the comparable period in 1935.

Attention was called to this trend,
the Post says, by George N. Peek, former federal trade adviser and first chief of the AAA. The Post quotes Peek as saying in his new book, "Why Quit Our Own?":

"For the year 1935 our country became dependent upon foreign food imports to an extent unparalleled in our history. Since we curtailed production, our imports of agricultural products increased by $248,000,000, while our imports of non-agricultural products increased $155,000,000. We are no longer feeding and clothing ourselves."

FAVORING THE UNFITTEST.

When you tell the people who have achieved what we have achieved that we mustn't go on achieving it—when we tell Babe Ruth that he mustn't bat any harder than the bush leaguers, and Jim Braddock that he mustn't hit any harder than I can, and both of them that they must proceed under rules designed to regulate athletics in a home for cripples, then—whoever does it, and wherever—the pennant is lost and the count is up.

You can and should enact laws to restrain the dishonest and predatory.
You can and should urge and educate the backward to effect better ethics and greater efficiency.

But when a labor union or a legislature, for whatever reason, orders that no more than so many bricks shall be laid in a day, that employers shall choose not the best typesetter but the one who has been longest out of a job, that no one shall work more than so many hours a week and all at the same wages, and that no man shall cultivate more than so many acres, or raise more than so many hogs or potatoes, and that you and I shall pay him, not for what he does do but for what he does not do, then that union or legislature is reducing us to our lowest common denominator of laziness, thriftlessness and incompetence.—August American Mercury.

THE CARROLL RECORD

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1936.

CORRESPONDENCE

Latest Items of Local News Furnished
By Our Regular Staff of Writers

All communications for this department must be signed by the author; not for publication, but as an evidence that the items contributed are legitimate and correct. Items based on mere rumor, or such as are likely to give offense, are not wanted.

We desire correspondence to reach our office on Thursday, if at all possible. It will be necessary, therefore, for most letters to be mailed on Wednesday, or by Fast Mail, west, on W. M. R. R., Thursday morning. Letters mailed on Thursday evening may not reach us in time.

UNIONTOWN.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Simpson, Wilmington, Del., were week-end guests at T. L. Devilbiss', returning home Sunday evening accompanied by Mrs. Mary Eckard, who has been here visiting. She stopped over in Baltimore for a further visit.

Walter Devilbiss and family, who have been guests of his father Snader Devilbiss, left for home Sunday evening. Friends from Philadelphia came on and took them back with them.

Rev. M. L. Kroh and family, returned from their vacation on Monday. Soon all will be in working order.

Sunday, Mrs. Brough had as callers her nephew, J. Herbert Shugh, son Norman Shugh, and three of his boys all of Baltimore.

Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Hoch left on Saturday for Washingtonboro. He attended the closing services of the Central Manor Camp Meeting.

Mrs. Dr. Mess, of Washington, was a guest of her sister, Mrs. Pearl Segal, who was in town on Sunday. On Sunday a wedding dinner was served to the newly married couple, Dr. and Mrs. Mess, and a number of relatives and friends from different places.

Mrs. Walter L. Stone, Wilmington, Del., was a guest of Mrs. Preston Myers and other friends and former neighbors. All glad to hear of their well doing in their present pastorate.

Our schools will be opened up this Thursday. Later account given.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ward and children, Baltimore, and mother, Mrs. Ward, Sparrows Point, are guests at J. Snader Devilbiss'.

Mrs. Lillie Smith moved on Wednesday from the J. Homer Smith home to an apartment at Emory Stoner's.

Wednesday afternoon Rev. J. H. Hoch performed the wedding ceremony at the parsonage for Cyrus Frey, Washingtonboro, Pa., and Miss Helen Herman, Quarryville, Pa.

WOODBINE.

The Rev. Carl Mumford, of Ellicott City, who has been absent on a vacation for the last month, met his congregation at Calvary Lutheran Church Sunday morning at the regular hour of worship.

Mrs. Jennie Buckingham Horton, is seriously ill at her home, near here. She recently underwent an operation, which failed to help her.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Pickett, are now occupying their new bungalow. Their former home was destroyed by fire last spring.

Raymond Evans suffered the loss of a fine work horse, which was electrocuted during one of the severe electrical storms, which have been passing through this section.

Little Joan Sorlaten who was a patient at Union Memorial Hospital, Baltimore, for three weeks as a result of typhoid fever, was convalescing at the home of her grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Baker, last week. She was able to accompany her parents and sister to their home on the Eastern Shore, Sunday.

Mrs. George Donhauser, of Glenwood, Howard Co., was a house guest of Mrs. Clifford Gosnell last week. She was hostess to the Home-makers' Club, on Thursday afternoon. Miss Alt was present and gave the demonstration.

Trucks and wagons laden with sweet corn, are coming to Morgan Canning Factory from every direction. The factory has been operating day and night for the past two weeks.

The annual Gosnell reunion was held at Zile's Park, near Taylorsville, on Sunday.

KEYMAR.

Mrs. Leslie Koons and daughter, Betty Jane, of Detroit, and Mrs. Addison Koons, of near Hobson Grove, were callers of Mrs. Scott Koons and Mrs. Bertha Albaugh, Tuesday.

John Crushon and family, have moved into the late Luther Sharetts home, recently purchased by William Birely.

DeWitt Haines left, on Monday, for Harrisburg and New York, where he will spend several weeks with friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Koons and son, Donald, of Frederick, spent Tuesday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. U. Koons.

We are glad to say that Mrs. Harwett, is still improving.

Miss Margie Stetson who has been spending some time with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Burgoon, has returned to her home in Glenside.

Mrs. Effie Haugh and daughter, Dorothy, have accepted a position in a restaurant owned by Miss Lottie Troxell, of Ladiesburg.

MANCHESTER.

The Lion's Club will sponsor a watermelon party for children under 12, on the Carnival grounds on Monday evening. Other people will be served for a nominal charge.

Trinity Reformed S. S., of Manchester, will hold a chicken and vegetable supper, Saturday, September 5, at 5 P. M.

Rev. James Riley Bergey, pastor of the Third Reformed Church, Baltimore, will be guest preacher at a special service to be held by the Reformed congregation at Lineboro, on Sunday, at 7:30 P. M.

FEESERSBURG.

Here's September—time for school, corn cutting, end of vacations, beginning of Autumn, and according to the Red Man—"The Hunting Moon"—when games was plentiful. Its birthstone—the Sapphire; its flower morning glory. Persons born before the 23rd, are modest, thoughtful, and industrious, reaching heights as public speakers and musicians.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Wolfe attended the banquet of the K. of P., at Clear Ridge Inn last Wednesday evening where of course they were well fed and well speeched.

Miss Anna Koontz who taught school at Hobson Grove, 10 years ago and boarded at the home of Mrs. Luther Sentz called there on Friday. She is now Mrs. Jeffries—and she and her husband motored from Mt. Savage, where they reside.

Mrs. Minnie Hicks, of New York, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Ellsworth, Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Tooley and daughter of Washington, D. C., were visitors at the J. Sellers home on Sunday.

Among the guests at Grove Dale last week were Mrs. Mollie W. Starnier, of Holtville, Cal., and her cousin, Mrs. Lorena LeFevre Thompson, of Niles, Ohio. Much has occurred in the past 35 years when we were younger and played the game of "Authors" together. How many have departed!

A number of the young people enjoyed the Sky-Line Drive thru Va. over the week-end, and returned safely, which always seems remarkable when one considers all the traffic on the highways in such a long drive.

Prof. Wm. Kinsey, of New Windsor, gave another very interesting talk at Hobson Grove on Sunday afternoon. We regretted our inability to attend, as his cartoon lectures have been so good.

A serenading party of about 40 persons awakened the echoes around the Sellers home near Crouse's Mill, last Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sentz. They were "racketed" to an alarming extent but were quieted by the appearance of the bride and groom, and invited into the home where they were hospitably entertained with music and fun, and feasted on fine cakes and fruit punch.

Mrs. Leslie Koons, of Detroit, Mich., arrived at the home of her parents, the first of last week. Jay Good from the same city joined them on Sunday morning, and there was a small family gathering along Big Pipe Creek with a pic-nic lunch in the evening. Betty Jane—the only child of Mrs. Koons who spent part of the summer with relatives in Maryland, will return home with them shortly.

We attended worship at Pipe Creek Church of the Brethren on Sunday morning where we found an interesting S. S. with 109 in attendance out of an enrollment of 156. Rev. George W. Englar, D. D., pastor of Bethany Lutheran Church, Pittsburg, Pa., preached an earnest sermon from the text Luke 19:10. His theme one of the most expressive words in the English language—"Lost." Having been reared in the same neighborhood it was complimentary that so many early friends and neighbors were in attendance, and it was good to be there.

The Tent Meetings of the M. E. Church in Bair's Grove closed with the Sunday evening service after very inspiring sermons, songs, and testimonies. There were a number of converts and a re-freshing of all the spiritually minded. All expenses were fully met and the tent and its furnishings removed on Monday.

The choir of 40 voices and organist from the National City Christian Church, Washington, who gave a sacred concert in the M. E. Church at New Windsor, on Sunday evening, was well worth hearing—a rare treat indeed under their popular minister of music—Wm. Braithwaite. Mr. and Mrs. Tolly sang our favorite—"If Christ should Come" in their best manner; another person enjoyed the full chorus in "Going Home"—but oh! where each seemed perfect there's no need for choosing. It was grand music.

The home of the Bowman family was sold last week to Preston Rinehart. Three generations of the family have been in possession within our recollection. Grandfather John Bowman who was a sage in wisdom, and a farmer by occupation who's wife (nee Elizabeth Dern) kept the finest old fashioned flower borders; next to their son Charles during whose occupancy the new house was built, and later his wife and children—who added a new barn. We welcome the new owner, but feel that something familiar has been folded away.

Buck the Police dog of the Wilbur Miller family, was killed on Sunday morning when run down by one of the big express trucks under the hands of Richard Miller. The dog's back was broken, and also a boys heart. One day last week a cat walked off their canary bird—so there has been tragedy among the pets of our neighbors.

MAYBERRY.

Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Heffner and family, were: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Boone, daughters Patsy, Lorraine, Vivian and son, Richard, of Union Bridge; Miss Mary Formwalt and Dorothy Dinterman, near this place.

Miss Rachel Heffner and Miss Mary Formwalt, spent Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. Maude Myers and family.

Vernon Heffner, spent Monday with his daughter Ruth, of Frizellburg, who is recovering from an operation.

Recent visitors at the home of Mrs. Paul Hymiller and family, were: William Formwalt and Annabelle Humbert.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Carl son, Donald, spent Sunday at the former's home in Frederick.

WHEN YOU CHANGE YOUR ADDRESS

Please let us know, at once. So doing will help us save a lot of money in a year, as the P. O. Dept. now charges 2 cents for notifying a publisher of a change in address, a service that was formerly free.

THANK YOU

TOM'S CREEK.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hoptroph and son, James, of Philadelphia, called on Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Valentine.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stunkle, of Point of Rocks; Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Valentine, of Rocky Ridge, and Mrs. Clarence Valentine and son, of Emmitsburg, were callers at the same place.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Wilbur and family, and Clarence Kline, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Sensenbaugh where a wedding dinner was served in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sensenbaugh.

The Tom's Creek M. E. Church has recently installed a new lighting system.

Mr. Emory Motter has been suffering with a bad case of gripe for the past week. Too bad you had to miss the picnic, Emory!

Miss Agnes Valentine has returned home after spending two weeks with Mr. John Forney and Mrs. Stanley Hoptroph in Philadelphia, and Miss Rachael V. Valentine, of Ocean City and many places of historical interest were visited.

Miss Mildred Six accompanied Miss Catherine Nicirk back to her home in Philadelphia.

Miss Martha Harner has returned home after spending some time with her aunt, Mrs. Thomas Baumgardner.

Miss Virginia Cluts visited a few days with her friend, Miss Grayson Brandenburg, Sykesville. Miss Brandenburg returned with Miss Cluts to spend a few days.

Birth of Adam Depicted

Michelangelo's "The Birth of Adam," in the Sixtine chapel, Rome, pictures the Almighty, borne on a sweeping wind, stretching out his hand to touch the sleeping form of Adam, who, on the Divine approach, awakens into life; a suggestion, in bodily form, of the transmission of that Divine spark, not merely of animal consciousness, but of the living soul.

Odd Human Traits

No one knows the vagaries of the human race quite as well as the tradesmen who daily come in contact with the masses. An odd human trait has been revealed by butchers who say the last pound of meat is the hardest to sell. Many customers will refuse it outright if they see it is the last cut.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Ohio's Soldiers

Ohio's quota of men for the Civil war was 306,322, but the number who served was 310,654. Ohio furnished 197 infantry regiments, 13 cavalry regiments, 13 light artillery batteries, two heavy artillery batteries and 26 independent batteries. Ohio gave 200,293 soldiers in the World war.

Teak Wood Valuable

Teak, for some purposes the most valuable of all woods, is chiefly produced commercially by Burma, although it is also supplied by India, Siam and Java. As a plant, teak is remarkable for its large leaves, which reach ten to twelve inches in length and eight to fifteen in breadth, and are so rough that they are used for sandpapering. The trees often grow 80 to 100 feet tall, with a circumference of six to ten feet, the largest recorded log cut in Upper Burma in 1898, having measured 87½ feet in length and yielded over twelve tons of timber. The wood varies from yellow or straw color to a rich brown when first cut, darkening on exposure; sometimes it has dark and almost black streaks or veins. It is hard, and very durable.

Plant Named for Shakespeare

There is an interesting suggestion that the lovely old flower Sweet William (Dianthus Barbatus) was so called after William Shakespeare. Sweet William is said to have come from Germany about the year 1573, and Dodoens, the physician to Charles V, appears to have been the first to mention the plant. Gerard mentioned in his Garden Catalogue of 1596 that it was common in gardens in his day, and it was then known as "London Tuffes." The Dutch gardeners named it "Keykens," or nosegay, and the French Oeillet de Poete ("Poet's eye").—Pearson's Weekly.

The Middle Ages

The name Middle ages is given to that period in European history from the downfall of Rome, A. D. 476, to the transition to the modern age, variously reckoned as beginning with the fall of Constantinople and the eastern empire in 1453, or with the invention of printing about 1450, or with the revival of learning, or the discovery of America in 1492, or the crisis of the Reformation in 1517 or 1520.

MARRIED

CORBIN—SMITH.

Miss Muriel M. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, Taneytown, and James Corbin, of Westminster, were married on Saturday evening, Aug. 29, 1936, at Westminster, by the Rev. Paul W. Quay. The ring ceremony was performed in Grace Lutheran parsonage. The couple was accompanied by friends.

SKILES—FUSS.

Miss Oneida Fuss and John Skiles, both of Taneytown, were united in marriage last Saturday, August 29, at Elkton, Md. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. M. Cope. The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merwyn C. Fuss, and the groom is the son of John R. Skiles.

At present they are residing at her parents home, Mr. and Mrs. Merwyn Fuss, but later expect to go to house-keeping.

SANDERS—OTT.

Miss Virginia Ott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ott and Allan Sanders, son of Mr. John Sanders, both of Taneytown, were united in marriage, Saturday, August 29th., at Cambridge, Md., by the Rev. Charles Butler, Methodist Protestant minister. The impressive ring ceremony was used. The bride was becomingly attired in brown chiffon with accessories to match. The groom wore white linen. Miss Molly Wheatley, of Eldorado, Md., was maid of honor, and Clifford Ott, brother of the bride was bestman.

Mrs. Sanders is a graduate Taneytown High School and Western Maryland College, and for the past few years has been a member of the faculty of the New Windsor High School. Mr. Sanders is employed by George Harner, Plumber. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders will reside in Taneytown.

MRS. ELEANORA REDDING.

Mrs. Eleanor Redding, widow of John H. Redding, died on Tuesday morning, Aug. 25, at her home in Alesia, Md., after a prolonged illness at the age of 79 years, 7 months and 17 days. Survivors are four sons, George H. Klinefelter, Baltimore; Luther W. Klinefelter, Sparks, Md.; Charles E. Redding, Westminster; John F. Redding, Glen Rock, Pa., and three daughters, Mrs. Sarah A. Lookingbill, Upperco, Md.; Mrs. Lydia Berngen, Westminster, and Mrs. Hester Berngen, Alesia; 21 grand-children; 15 great-grand-children.

Funeral services were held on Thursday, Aug. 27, at 10:15 at the home and concluded in Trinity Reformed Church, Manchester, in charge of the pastor of the deceased, Rev. Dr. John S. Hollenbach.

MRS. EMMA C. FINK.

Mrs. Emma C. Fink, widow of the late Charles E. Fink, died Thursday evening at her home near Taneytown, aged 56 years, 11 months and 22 days. She was taken sick on Wednesday while attending a picnic at Williams Grove and continued growing worse until her death.

She was a daughter of Jeremiah and Susan Zepp. She is survived by one son, W. Edgar Fink, and by one daughter, Mrs. Lester H. Chronister, living near Taneytown; also by the following grand-children, Catherine Fink, Edith Sterner, Hobart Sterner, Treva Sterner and Anna Chronister; and by one sister, Mrs. William Hahn, Bradford, Ohio, and one brother, William Zepp, Detroit.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday at the home, at 1:30, with further services in the Reformed Church, at 2:00 o'clock, in charge of her pastor, Rev. Guy P. Bready. Burial in the Reformed cemetery.

BANKERS WILL MEET IN ANNUAL COUNCIL

Business Men Also Invited to Present Their Views on Services of Banks to the Public

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Robert V. Fleming, President American Bankers Association, has announced that the organization's annual convention will be held at San Francisco, September 21-24, and its program will call in not only bankers but speakers from various lines of business to present their viewpoints and advice.

The plans for the convention discussions take into consideration the fact, he said, that one of the major problems of banking today is to develop its operations along lines that will create greater public understanding of its methods and services. "It is my earnest conviction that such public understanding of banking is not only an essential defense against attacks from whatever source, but is also requisite to reestablishing it upon a firm and satisfactory basis of profitable operations," Mr. Fleming said.

General Improvement Cited

"The improvement in general conditions which is now taking place should be of material aid to bankers in carrying forward a constructive program for increasingly useful relationships between banking and business, as well as one of more helpful personal business services to all our people. Sound banking conducted in ways the public need and understand must be the aim of successful bank management.

"How can the banker make his operations and policies more understandable to the people of his community? How can better and broader financial services be soundly provided? How can banking improve its operating methods and income? These and many similar questions demand the earnest attention of all bankers. They call for a fresh counselling together and a new interchange of experience and advice among the members of our profession.

"With these thoughts in mind, we have built the convention program with the view of also calling into our councils speakers from various lines of business to give us their viewpoints and advice. I can say without reservation that this is to my mind one of the most crucial years in the evolution of American banking, and that we are passing through a period demanding, as never before, cooperation and mutual exchange of viewpoint among our members and others."

Radio Commencement Exercises

More than 200 widely separated chapters of the American Institute of Banking, the educational section of the American Bankers Association, hold annually in September a simultaneous commencement exercise at which they listen to the speaker of the evening by radio. This is said to be the most extensive graduation ceremony held by any educational institution. The aggregate membership of the chapters, which are located in cities and towns throughout the United States, totals about 35,000 bank employees and officers. The graduates number each year more than 2,500, and total graduates are now over 25,000.

The Business Outlook

NEW YORK.—The natural forces of recovery have demonstrated their strength and have a momentum which may reasonably be expected to carry the country into new high ground, says "Banking," the publication of the American Bankers Association, in its August issue. The momentary stimulation following the distribution of bonus funds to the veterans has practically died away and is no longer an important business factor. A certain degree of uncertainty arising from the national political campaign is unavoidable, the magazine says.

Foreign Trade

The Commerce and Marine Commission of the American Bankers Association has made a report which shows that the foreign trade of the world for the year 1935 on the basis of its estimated physical volume was 78.9 per cent of the 1929 level. This was 2.1 per cent above the volume of 1934 and is the highest since 1929. The gold values of world trade were much lower due to the lower commodity prices in January, 1936. The combined index of 75 countries showed 35.7 per cent of the 1929 average.

National Bank Growth

Comptroller of the Currency O'Connor announced recently that total deposits of the 5,374 national banks in the United States on June 30, 1936, the date of the last call made for statements of condition, aggregated $26,200,453,000. The figure is a new high record for national banks, exceeding by $1,340,998,000, or 5.39 per cent, the amount reported as of March 4, 1936, the previous high record. The current figures show also that deposits increased $3,682,207,000, or 16.35 per cent, over the amount reported as of June 29, 1935, the date of the corresponding call a year ago.

"Basket Makers," Weavers of Non-Leakable Vessels

When the cliff dwellers, from whom the Pueblo Indian of the Southwest is descended, came to Mesa Verde, now a National park in Colorado, says a writer in the New York Times, they found earlier occupants, who had perhaps been there for centuries. These were known as "Basket Maker 111." One of their circular, subterranean houses originally thatched over, resembles the kivas, ceremonial rooms of the cliff dwellers and the Pueblo Indians of today.

The Basket Makers were experts at weaving baskets, some of which are so tight that they will hold water. The Basket Makers also made sandals and were perhaps the first to fire pottery.

The Pueblo Indians took over the cliff dwellings, changing and adapting them to their own needs. They improved on the building of houses, constructing them above ground so solidly that the walls in many cases are standing firmly.

The houses were built in clusters, sometimes one on top of another. The rooms are small, with small windows and doors, some of which are found sealed, the chambers having been used as tombs. In the back of the houses, against the canyon walls, are smaller rooms where grain was stored and turkeys were cooped (probably that their feathers might be used in making robes).

Women of the Stone Age

Had Own Beauty Secrets
The ladies of Cleopatra's court took milk baths regularly. The idea wasn't as you may suspect, originated by more modern beauties. Neither did the sirens of the modern stage figure out for themselves that mascara makes lashes look longer, eyes more luminous. Women who lived hundreds of years ago didn't have fine, scientifically made mascara and eyelash dyes, but they did have burnt cork and wood, and they blackened their lashes and brows with these, states a writer in the New York World-Telegram.

It is said that women of American Indian tribes smeared their lips with black paint for state occasions. Generally, however, they used the juice of wild berries to dye their lips bright red.

Women of ancient Rome and Egypt had no tissue cream, but they anointed their bodies and their hair with oil, painted lips and cheeks with red berry juice.

Long before, women of the stone age crushed bits of white rock and powdered their faces with the dust.

LARGEST MAMMAL IS RECONSTRUCTED

Super Beast Is as Big as Two Elephants.

New York.—The only life-size restoration in the world of the baluchitherium—the largest land mammal known to science and which lived in Asia some 25,000,000 years ago—is nearing completion. It will join the exhibits of the American Museum of Natural History.

Dr. Walter Granger, curator of fossil mammals, and Dr. William K. Gregory, curator of comparative and human anatomy, spent several years sorting and studying 200 baluchitherium bones preliminary to the restoration of this super-beast of the prehistoric past. The baluchitherium is described as an oversized, hornless rhinoceros. It lived in Asia when what is now the Gobi desert was a paradise of woods and water.

So far as is known the baluchitherium was the largest land mammal that ever lived. It was taller than a giraffe, weighed as much as two ordinary elephants and the lowest part of its body, resting on four massive legs, was so high above the ground that a six-foot man could walk beneath it without removing his hat.

Unlike the elephant—which it outdistances in size—and the rhino—which it resembles in appearance—the baluchitherium had neither tusks nor horns. Its teeth were unusual in that it had two great incisors in each jaw. These, it is believed, were used by the animal in tearing leaves and branches from trees and bushes on which it fed, at the rate of several hundred pounds of fodder a day, it is estimated. The name of the beast is derived from the fact that first baluchitherium fossils were found in Baluchistan.

The pile of bones, which enabled Doctor Granger and Doctor Gregory to reconstruct this creature, had its inception in 1922. In that year, Doctor Granger, with the first Asiatic expedition headed by Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, found the heel bone of a baluchitherium.

Despite careful search, no further baluchitherium clues were found until months later when the expedition was working its way out of the Gobi. Then Doctor Granger discovered a skull that was four and one-half feet long, the second for size in this group. Subsequent expeditions added to the stores of baluchitherium bones.

Color of Milk Now Graded by an Electric Device

New Brunswick, N. J.—The latest development toward the "dairyman's dream" of complete electrification, an electric eye that grades milk according to color, was announced by the research laboratory of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, Rutgers university.

Laboratory and field tests with the device have been so satisfactory that there is tangible promise of producing long-sought milk color traits in specific herds, according to Dr. J. W. Bartlett, professor of dairy husbandry, an associate in the research project now being conducted at a branch experiment station at Beemerville.

Previous announcement has been withheld, Doctor Bartlett said, although the instrument, technically a colorimeter, was perfected last winter by W. R. Manwaring of Wyckoff, N. J. Its first application was to a herd of 60 Guernseys at the Experiment Station farm.

The principal of the Manwaring colorimeter is to measure the capacity of any given milk to transmit light. With the new stress upon high production of milk and butterfat qualities, the experiments are expected to aid dairymen in milk color selection as heritable traits in herds of registered lineage as a breeding policy.

First Girl in 77 Years

Born in Jersey Family

Atlantic City.—A girl has been born into the Thompson family, well known in this part of New Jersey, for the first time in seventy-seven years, it was disclosed today. The child, Dale Thompson, was born July 23 in Atlantic Shores hospital, Somers Point, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Thompson of Linwood. Mr. Thompson is the owner of an automobile service station in Ocean City.

The last girl born into the family is now seventy-seven years old. She has a sister, eighty-five years old, and a brother, Joseph Thompson, former mayor of this city. Joseph Thompson, married in 1877, begat William P. and John. John begat Joseph, who has two sons, and John, Jr., who is unmarried. William P. begat William P., Jr., who is single, and Charles D., the father of the latest girl baby.

Visitors Despoil Tower

Berkeley, Calif.—The University of California is having difficulty keeping the top of its 240-foot campanile intact. Authorities have explained that the 15-minute visit rule is not because of a psychological tendency for visitors to jump off, but to keep too much of the top from being cut off and carried away as souvenirs.

YELLOWSTONE PARK LOSES A LANDMARK

Cabin Connected With Saving of Buffalo Passes.

Yellowstone Park.—A famous Yellowstone landmark, the buffalo-keeper's log cabin, intimately associated with the remarkable story of the great American bison's rescue from extinction, has passed from the scene.

Built shortly after C. J. "Buffalo" Jones, famed scout and buffalo hunter, was appointed as game warden and chief buffalo keeper in 1902, the cabin served for 32 years as a home for the man placed in charge of the Yellowstone show herd. Located at Mammoth Hot Springs, the cabin was adjacent to the old buffalo corral where each summer from 20 to 30 animals were brought from the main Lamar river herd of 1,000 buffalo. This herd would ordinarily never be seen by Yellowstone visitors, since the animals roam during the summer over mountainous country in the Lamar river valley.

In 1935 a new corral was constructed on Antelope creek near Tower falls in the northeastern corner of the park. With the introduction of the show herd in the new arena, the old corral was torn down last year. This year, the last remnant of the long struggle to save the bison passed from the picture.

Long Uphill Battle

Recounting the long uphill battle, Superintendent Edmund B. Rogers reviewed the story of the buffalo's re-establishment since 1894 when Emerson Hough, on a ski trip through the park, estimated that the once noble herd of bison had dwindled down to 150 animals, the remnant left by destructive hunters, poachers, and herd disease. Eight years later, in 1902, a count showed only 22 bison left. Then the government took quick action. First $15,000 was provided to establish a new Yellowstone herd. Colonel Jones was appointed game warden. Eighteen cows were imported from the Allard herd near the Flathead Indian agency in Montana. They were brought into the park by Howard Eaton, famous Wyoming guide. From the south, Colonel Jones brought three bulls, purchased from the Goodnight herd in Texas.

By 1908 the new herd had increased to 74 animals. That year for the first time they were guaranteed winter feed when 100 tons of hay was cut on the Buffalo ranch. The same year, for the first time in a decade, a remnant of the old herd, 35 animals, was seen in the wilds of the park. In 1911, the new herd, which had now reached 147, was hit by an outbreak of hemorrhagic septicemia, similar to blackleg. Repeated vaccinations from 1912 to 1922 helped to continue the herd's growth, though losses were heavy in the first years of the disease. Today fresh serum is kept on hand constantly at the Buffalo ranch in the Lamar valley.

Held Herd to 900

After Buffalo Jones, the herd was under several charges—Bob LaComb for many years being in charge of the Buffalo ranch. Later Joe Douglas, one-time army packer and park ranger, took over supervision of the rapidly-increasing herd. Two years ago, Harry Trischman, park ranger, was named buffalo keeper. Today the problem of the government is to keep the herd at a stable figure, approximately 900 animals. To allow a greater increase would weaken rather than strengthen the herd, park officials indicate. Feed and range country is available to keep about 900 animals in the best condition. The surplus is used to supply other national parks, state and civic parks and zoos, and Indian reservations. A few are killed each winter and the meat supplied to Indians on relief.

St. Louis Finds Decrease in Tipsy Auto Drivers

St. Louis.—There has been a decrease in automobile accidents involving liquor in St. Louis of 41 per cent, according to Frank J. McDewitt, director of streets.

The decline, in actual cases, was from 550 to 323, he said.

Pedestrians injured by drivers under the influence of liquor were included in the figures which took into consideration not only those intoxicated but drivers with the odor of liquor on their breaths.

McDewitt did not attempt to explain the decline.

Love Seats Wanted at License Bureau

Chicago.—"Love seats" for prospective brides and bridegrooms engaged the attention of county commissioners recently.

The "love seats" were described officially as two-seat sofas in a request for new furniture for the new marriage license bureau.

Asking for twelve of these sofas, bureau officials also requested arm chairs, Venetian blinds and other furniture for the bureau when it is moved from the second to the first floor of the city-county building.

TRY STEAM TURBINE ENGINE FOR SPEED

Union Pacific to Give New Locomotive Trial.

Chicago.—A steam turbine electric locomotive capable of hauling a passenger train at 110 miles an hour will be built for the Union Pacific railroad by the General Electric company, officials of the railroad announced recently. This revolutionary form of railroad locomotive equipment is one of the first developments to come out of the newly formed research department of the Union Pacific.

The new locomotive will consist of two 2,500 horse power self-contained units, which can be operated individually or in synchronization. Coupled together the two units will be able to haul 1,000 tons at a maximum speed of 110 miles per hour.

With the new Diesel electric locomotives competing with the old "iron horse" of the railroads, this new locomotive will offer a challenge to the Diesel-electric. The steam turbine engine will use fuel oil costing about half as much as the distillates used by the Diesel-electric, and its weight will be less than that of a Diesel-electric engine.

Competition for the Electro-Motive corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors, is seen by the decision of the Union Pacific to build the new engine. Whether it will be adopted for general use will rest upon its success in operation after it is delivered for service early in 1937.

Officials of the Union Pacific state that operated in both units the turbine electric locomotive will be able to haul a standard train such as the Los Angeles Limited and The Challenger across the continent on their present schedules, while the individual units will be able to maintain the present fast schedules of the streamline trains, the City of Denver.

The locomotive is to have fuel and water capacity for continuous operation for a minimum of 550 miles without refueling.

Relief Needs Abating Steadily in California

San Francisco, Calif.—California is making greater strides toward normalcy than at any time since the depression began, according to surveys completed by various national and state agencies.

In agriculture, which has become an industry more profitable to the state than the gold for which it originally became famous, this year's crops are estimated at $534,000,000 as against $494,000,000 for last year.

The state chamber of commerce also reports that the general level of prices received for agricultural products averages 32 per cent higher than in 1932 when prices were at their lowest level.

The national re-employment service reports that permanent jobs in private industry are being filled now at the rate of 6,000 a week, exclusive of all WPA or other government work.

During the peak of WPA operations about 160,000 persons were employed by this agency alone. This number has now been reduced to 109,000.

Frank Y. McLaughlin, federal WPA administrator, reports that for the last 20 consecutive weeks work rolls and relief rolls of the state relief administration have shown a steady reduction.

THE STORY

PRELUDE.—In 1785 Saul Pattern of Virginia came into the beautiful virgin country of the Big Sandy valley in Kentucky. Chief of the perils were the Shawnees, who sought to hold their lands from the ever-encroaching whites. From a huge pinnacle Saul gazed upon the fat bottoms and the endless acres of forest in its primeval quietude at the mouth of the Wolfpen, and felt an eagerness to possess it, declaring it a place fit for a man to LIVE in! Five years later he returned with Barton, his fifteen-year-old son, and built a rude cabin in the hollow. For a time all was quiet. Then in Saul's absence the Indians attacked Barton and wounded him so badly Saul was forced to return with him to Virginia. In 1796, when it was reasonably safe, Saul returned with his family and a patent for 4,000 acres, this time to stay. He added to the cabin, planted crops and fattened his stock on the rich meadows. Soon other industrious settlers came and a settlement was established.

CHAPTER I.—A century later, in the spring of 1885, we find Cynthia Pattern, of the fifth generation following Saul, perched on the pinnacle from which her great-great-grandfather had first viewed Wolfpen Bottoms. The valleys, heretofore untouched by the waves of change sweeping the Republic, are at last beginning to feel that restless surge. Her dad, Sparrel, and her brothers, Jesse, Jasper and Abner, have been converting the old water-wheel and mill to steam power. Surrounded by neighbors, mostly skeptical, Sparrel's triumph is complete when the golden stream of meal pours forth at the turning on of the steam. Cynthia feels that something out of the past has been buried with Saul. Cynthia is a pretty and imaginative miss in her late teens, who often re-created Saul and her other forebears, and fancied them still living.

CHAPTER II.—Sparrel proudly brings home the first meal out of the steam mill, and Julia, his wife, is pleased. Generation after generation has added comforts and conveniences to Saul's homestead, and Sparrel has not shrunk. He plans his spring work. Julia favors sending Cynthia to Pikeville institute. Sparrel does not fully agree.

CHAPTER III.—The family goes easily into the work of the new season, due to the simplicity of life designed long ago on the Wolfpen. The men are busy in the field, Julia in her garden, and Cynthia in the house. Joy is abundant. Jesse tells Cynthia he plans to study law.

CHAPTER IV.—A stranger, Shellenberger by name, comes to Wolfpen, intent on buying timber land. Sparrel refuses his offer. Shellenberger tells of progress in the outside world.

CHAPTER VII

The days passed but everybody continued to be restless. Julia had caught up with her garden now, and even she was affected beneath her outward calm.

At the supper table she said casually: "I've a mind to go over to Jenny's tomorrow and stay all night. The men will be coming in soon and we'll be tied down a right smart while they're here."

"That's so, Julia," Sparrel said. "Somebody ought to go over there."

In the early morning Sparrel handed her into the saddle, and the boys opened the gate, watching her ride.

Cynthia waved farewell from the yard. "It seems the natural way of things for menfolk to be going away somewhere. But when Mother ever goes off by herself, Daddy and the boys look glum all day. I'd like to ride as straight and easy on a side-saddle as Mother can. She does everything quiet and easy but I get shot and hurried."

Julia Had Gaught Up With Her Garden Now.

Julia's absences from the place were so infrequent that the house, the yard, the garden all preserved in consequence a more profound silence.

The day was hot and sultry. All the crispness of the mornings was gone in mid-May. When Cynthia built the supper fire in the stove and put the sweet potatoes to bake, the heat filled up the kitchen for the first time in that year. She laid off the neat blue twill dress for the coolness of an old and faded brown calico. "It's an ugly old thing but it's nice and cool to cook in. The first hot days always fire a body out so. I'd just as soon sit down on the porch and not cook any hot supper if it wasn't for the men."

Back in the kitchen, she lifted the stove lid to lay on a piece of wood. The hot lid slipped away from the lifter and fell on her right hand leaving a black smear and the furious bite of fire tearing into the skin. She caught her breath with the first pain, waving her hand up and down to relieve it. "What an awkward thing for a body to do and on a hot day when you can't hardly get your breath in this kitchen, and then to go and burn your right hand just when you're ready to mix up the corn-bread batter."

She washed away the soot and anointed the burn with linsed oil from the bottle in the cupboard and spread soda over it and wrapped it lightly with a white rag.

She placed the large wooden mixing bowl on the table and began to stir in the meal and the sour milk, the soda and the shortening. It was an awkward process. She took the bowl into her right arm, pressing it against her, and stirred slowly with her left hand. Some of the soft batter sloshed over against her dress. A wisp of hair slipped from its place and dangled into her eyes. She pushed it back with her left hand, leaving flakes of cornmeal stuck in it and on her perspiring forehead. She was hot and fretted.

"Gracious, but I feel a sight. I could nearly cry."

Outside she heard the yard gate close sharply as the bucket of rocks on the wire between the gate and the post pulled it shut.

"There's Jesse and I'm so glad I could cry. He'll help me some now and me with this burn."

She dabbed at the sweat on her lip, blew upward to flip the lock of hair out of her eye again, and went toward the kitchen door.

"Oh, Jesse, I'm sure glad—"

She had reached the door. Her words ended as abruptly as though the living self had walked straight out of its hot body into the habitation of spirits. She stood perfectly still, hugging the bowl of corn-bread batter, shielding her burned hand, looking at him through the meal-stained lock of hair.

"Good evening," he said. "This is Sparrel Pattern's place if I'm not mistaken."

For the first time in her life she was without the words a meeting needed. She stood dumbly in the door, while the young man came on across the yard to the porch. He was tall as Sparrel and as straight. He wore a brown corduroy cap, breeches of the same material tucked away at the bottom into heavy shoes, a blue shirt and a black bow tie. He walked with the easy grace and strength of a man who was used to moving about in the open on foot.

"Mr. Shellenberger described the place like a surveyor, that is, if this is the Pattern place," he said, his blue eyes and his voice smiling at her across the porch.

Slowly Cynthia felt her natural self return to the doorway. She looked at the young man. Over his bent left arm he carried a large brass surveyor's compass with shining, upright peep-sights on each end. With his other hand he grasped a long, smooth Jacob's staff like a huge walking stick tipped with brass, and over his shoulder was slung a knapsack and a surveyor's chain.

"This is the place. Daddy and the boys are out about the barn somewhere."

"Well, I'm glad to get here before dark. My name's Reuben Warren. I've come to survey the place. The folks over at the Landing thought I couldn't make it to your place before nightfall if I came on foot, but here I am."

Cynthia was bewitched by his voice and the clear music of his spoken words. His vocabulary was very much the same as that of the better Gannon Creek folk, but the quality of the intonation, the rhythm of the sentences, and the pitch of the voice were unusual to her ear.

The silent interval, lengthening from the ending of his words and filled with the amazement of two people looking at each other for the first time with a recognition beyond their immediate understanding, grew too emphatic, and Cynthia remembered to say that the menfolk would be in soon and to invite him to sit down.

"I'd better get on with the supper if you'll excuse me."

Reuben Warren set the Jacob's staff against the door, slipped the knapsack from his shoulder, and then sat down with the compass on his lap and felt the agreeable glow of rest sweep up the muscles of his legs and settle in his neck and shoulders where the heavy knapsack had imprinted a red band. He sat at ease, watching the dark shadow of the Pinnacle slice upward toward Cranesnest. "The finest place I've seen in all my trips into the hills. I wonder what the man who developed a place like this will be like?"

Cynthia hurried back into the kitchen. "Reuben Warren. What a nice name. Reuben Warren. It's like a singing. It goes like his talk." She poured the batter into the large iron skillet and placed it in the oven, bending over the stove and opening the door carefully with her burned hand. The loose strand of hair again fell into her eye. This time she would fix it properly. She went to the mirror that hung above the table and looked at herself. She gave a gesture of despair.

"Oh, my gracious, Cynthia Pattern, you never looked such a sight in your whole life. That awful wisp of hair over your face and the corn-meal in it like scruff, your hand burned and bandaged, and your sweaty face all red as a beet, and this old brown striped calico dress on and it spotted with batter! And Reuben Warren saw you like that, and he'll think that's the way I always look, and I don't. I never do. Just this one, time, and there he should be ready to look at me and think I am slouchy about the house, and I'm not."

The tears started her and bore with them a physical relief and relaxation. There flashed into her mind the picture of her mother Julia years ago in the wood-lot with a dress full of chips, looking up suddenly at Sparrel Pattern on a tall horse, and then staring down at her dress, and running away to the kitchen with her confusion. The vision was so sharp and so unexpected that it completely changed Cynthia's mood and she felt a smile forming through her tears.

"And me dreaming on about a pear tree and a fine dress like Lady Arabella's and him saying, 'Lady, you're the prettiest sight I ever saw in all my born days.'"

She removed the unsightly bandage and brushed away the loose soda, and carefully washed the burned hand. Then she bathed her eyes back into composure. She felt her spirit lifting above the confusion and the heat. As she went on with the supper she began to sing without forming any words that could reach the porch.

She opened the oven to look at the baking sweet potatoes and the bread. She went into the smoke-house and sliced off the best cuts of the home-cured ham to fry. She took dripping spoonfuls of dark fragrant honey from the stone jar, and sweet new butter from the spring-house, and a fresh loaf of wheat bread from Julia's box. Then she slipped the every-day red-and-white-checked cloth from the table and spread in its stead one of the hem-stitched white covers from the cedar-smelling linen closet in the hall. She poured the brown sugar back into the jar and filled the bowl with white granulated. She cut a spray of wild honeysuckle from the clump behind the drying kiln, arranged it in a low brown earthen pot, and set it in the center of the table.

It was all very beautiful now, and she stood back to admire it for an instant. "He'll see that I'm not anyway slouchy, if he has any eyes. And he has. I guess I'm glad Mother went over to Jenny's today, after all."

She heard Sparrel and the boys coming into the yard. She looked at the supper again and ran up to her room to change into a fresh dress. "Blue is best for my face when it's hot and for my hair." She felt neat and orderly, like the table she had just laid. She hurried back to the kitchen. She put the coffee on the stove. She got milk from the spring-house.

"I guess I've got things about ready for him now."

Outside on the porch she could hear the voices of her menfolk making Reuben Warren welcome on Wolfpen. The clear and easy tones of Reuben rippled over the slow deep talk of Sparrel, and in both there was the ring of friendliness.

"Where's your mule?" she heard Abner ask.

"I haven't any mule."

"Then how did you get over here with all them things?"

"I walked."

"You walked?"

"Yes, I walked. Don't you people ever walk any? You're as bad as my folks."

It was the first time she had heard his free laugh.

Cynthia was taking up the supper. She could hear the men at the wash rock, Jesse offering Reuben the soap and Jasper the towel. Everything was ready now and she stepped to the door. The days were noticeably lengthening, as though the light clung to the trees and the sprouting fields and tried to shoulder the darkness from the hollows. "Come in to supper," she said. She saw Sparrel and Jesse and Reuben Warren look at her burned hand as they passed into the dining room, and she let it drop quietly behind her skirt.

"You sit right here, Mr. Warren," Sparrel said, placing him on the right facing the kitchen where Cynthia stood ready to serve. Then Sparrel asked the blessing, raising his head and looking at Cynthia as he said the Amen.

Cynthia returned the look of communication, following Sparrel's eyes over the white table to the honeysuckle in the center. "He thinks it all right to tidy up the table for company, but he wonders why I put on the white cloth for Reuben Warren and let Shellenberger take just what he found."

Sparrel passed the food to his guest, urging it upon him generously after the manner of Gannon Creek folks. Cynthia moved silently about the table with water for the glasses and with hot coffee and warm triangles of corn bread that was soft and flaky between the crisp red crusts. Her brothers took only the wheat loaf, but Reuben refused it for the corn bread, and Cynthia flushed with confused pleasure, for she felt intuitively that he did it out of consideration for the distress and embarrassment she showed when she met him at the door with batter in her hand. It was the first time in her life that such a secret understanding had come to her and it left her surprised with the wonder of its recognition and communication.

"His face is long, and then it isn't long. And it isn't round. It's like his chin. It's his high forehead with the black hair roached back off of it. Wonder what if I'd been out there with the sheep like I was that day. Things always just come out the way they are, I reckon, without any of a body's what if. . . ."

Abner had finished and was full of questions. Where did Reuben live? How did that Shellenberger fellow find him? How did he know where to come by himself? How did a man go about surveying a tract of land? And Cynthia stood by Sparrel watching over the table, listening to the talk of Reuben Warren in reply, captivated.

"The Franconia" World Cruise

(Prepared by request for The Carroll Record by Miss Carrie L. Mourer.)

HONG KONG—SHANGHAI—PEIPING.

PART XII.

On April 4th, we arrived at Hong Kong, the name meaning The Land of Sweet Waters, situated near the mouth of the Pearl or Canton River. The 1,000,000 inhabitants are composed of races from everywhere, but the majority are from China and are under British protection.

Lately, a large addition of land, called New Territory, has been made and leased by the British for 99 years. This allows for expansion of the overcrowded Island of Hong Kong.

The City of Victoria or Hong Kong as we knew it, is beautifully situated at the waters edge at the foot of Mt. Victoria, 1825 ft. high. Residences are built clear to the top of the mountain and at night when the lights twinkle among the foliage, it is a lovely sight. This beautiful harbor vies with that of Rio de Janeiro in loveliness.

The ship docked at Kowloon and from there a ferry runs every half hour, or less, to Victoria, where autos waited for a trip around the island.

The beaches and sea views along the way were fascinating and the water was a lovely green.

We stopped at the Repulse Bay Hotel, a beautiful, modern hostelry with wide verandahs and a glorious view of mountains and sea. Along the terraces were pots of daisies alternated with pots of bright pink petunias, held erect by bamboo sticks.

We finally reached the Peak Hotel where coolies with sedan chairs awaited to swing us to the top of the peak. This was a pleasant experience for our four bearers were sturdy and the gentle swing from the elastic poles supported on their shoulders was soothing. We had a marvelous view from the top. En route we passed the summer residence of the Governor Gen'l and the beautiful homes of private individuals.

Next day, we went shopping, visiting first the Street of Camphor Chests where these were seen in all stages of development. At least two hundred were not by our passengers and the ship's hold was crowded by them. A regular shopping orgy was indulged in, both in Kowloon and Victoria. There were kimono, tea sets, linens, art objects, articles unusually lovely and interesting as well as being very cheap.

Meantime, the Franconia decks were being filled with all sorts of lovely things by the Hong Kong merchants. All day long, the passengers went to and fro, bargaining and finally carrying off their purchases.

We sailed away thru a foggy China Sea. Every half minute the fog horn blew and lights were kept shining brightly. While at dinner on the evening of the 7th, we suddenly felt a lurch and heard a siren! We had collided with a Chinese freighter! A part of our rail was torn off and two iron bollards broken, one falling into the sea. On our deck was left a crumpled, two plate, prow. In a few minutes, both ships went their ways and no one had been hurt. For two days the fog continued.

On April 9th, we reached Shanghai, the commercial metropolis of China, situated on the Whangpoo River, thirteen miles above its junction with the Yangtze, in a fertile plain known as the "Garden of China." This delta supported 40,000,000 people, dependent on Shanghai. Its trade territory embraces half the entire population of China.

In 1863, the British and American Concessions united and are known as the International Settlements with about 39,000 foreigners.

From the pier we took autos and drove along the Bund, the business section, with tall office buildings like those in our largest American cities. When we reached the Chinese quarter, we alighted and walked thru that section, every ten persons in a group with a native, English speaking guide. On both sides of the streets were shops of various kinds. One street was filled with fortune tellers, another with ivory carvers making Mah Jong sets or different figures or animals; still another with brass objects.

We visited a Buddhist Temple where much incense burned and nearby we saw the famous Blue Willow Tea House, reproduced on many of our dishes.

Then we drove thru the various residential sections, each nation having its own. In the yards the willows were getting green, the forsythia, magnolia and almond bushes were blooming just as they were, at home.

We went to the Cathay Hotel, a lovely place, for tea and later for dinner and the evening when we were entertained by four original dancers. Between whiles, we went shopping in the hotel lobby and at the Sea Captain's Shop, both fascinating places.

On our return to the ship, we found the pier lined with merchants, selling every conceivable, interesting article. They stayed there all night long and until we sailed at 9:00 A. M., next day.

On Easter Sunday, April 12, we anchored off Chinwangtao, the port from which we took the special train for Peiping, at 8:30 A. M.

This is a great coal shipping place as much as 20,000 tons being sent in one day. As a great favor we were allowed to use this pier.

The scenery was rather uninteresting, varied only by small mounds sometimes covering whole fields, rising above the general plain. All cultivation had to be done around these, for they were the revered graves of ancestors and sacred. There were no cemeteries as we have.

Western progress is deterred by the reverence for these graves which cannot be moved. If a railroad or building is to be made, it cannot disturb these bones. That is an irrevocable fact! And that is the reason why China has not progressed farther according to our ideas.

The fields are cultivated to the limit, human excretion being used as fertilizer. Ploughs of wood with one handle and drawn by oxen or donkey

Cave Bear of Ice Ages

Scientists maintain that many of the "monsters" with which we grapple in our dreams are dim memories of the great beasts which roamed the earth when the human race was young. Among these ancient giants of the animal world was the cave bear of the Ice Ages, nearly as big as an elephant.

Whistle From Organ

A London, England, organ builder designed and manufactured, according to officials of the South Kensington Museum, what is believed to be the first whistle used on a locomotive. Until the whistle was invented at the suggestion of George Stephenson trains had no way of signaling their approach.

were used. Many patches were being dug up with large hoes. The few trees were mostly willows, trimmed high.

At Tientsin we saw some American soldiers, 3000 being stationed here. We reached Peiping at 5:30 P. M., having had a very good luncheon on the train.

Lesson for September 6 TURNING TO THE GENTILES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 14:8-13, 19, 20;
Romans 10:8-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—I have set thee for a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the uttermost part of the earth. Acts 13:47.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What Happened in Lystra.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When the Gospel
Came to Lystra.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Trials and Triumphs of Missionaries.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity Facing Other Religions.

The progress of the first missionary journey into gentile territory had brought Paul and Barnabas from Cyprus to Antioch of Pisidia in Asia Minor, where Paul preached with great power. Persecution by leading Jews then led them to go on to Iconium where they tarried for a long time preaching
"the word of grace" in the face of many difficulties. Next they came to Lystra, in which city we consider first the experiences of

I. The Messengers (Acts 14:8- 13, 19, 20).

They were immediately faced with the case of a man crippled from birth — outwardly hopeless, but having that inward faith which Paul at once recognized. He speaks, and God works in mighty 1. Power (vv. 8-10).

Faith releases the unlimited power of an infinite God. It did in Lystra almost nineteen hundred years ago. It does today wherever men believe God. The miracle of healing which took place created a sensation which resulted in great
2. Popularity (vv. 11-13).

The heathen people were looking for an incarnation of their gods.
The supreme god in their mythology was Jupiter, and his chief attendant was Mercury. In Paul and Barnabas they thought they saw these two gods, and began to give them acclaim and honor.

The flesh loves popularity. Few temptations are so appealing and so treacherous to the Christian worker as a desire for popularity.
Paul and Barnabas might have argued that such public esteem would help them in their later proclamation of the gospel. Or they might have fallen into the specious fallacy of those who say that the approach to the heathen is by way of an appreciation of their religions, and by an adaptation of gospel truth to their philosophies.

True servants of God like Paul and Barnabas were not to be misled into either of these pitfalls.
They vehemently turn away the false popularity and earnestly urge the people to "turn from these vanities to the living God." Such faithful and self-denying witness to the gospel is greatly needed.

There followed at once a startling change in the attitude of the people. The fanatical Gentiles are joined and stirred up by equally fanatical Jews who had followed the missionaries, and we soon find them meeting

3. Persecution (vv. 19, 20).
Fickle and short-lived is popularity with men. Let us labor to please God rather than men.

Paul was stoned and left for dead. But God had not forgotten him. He never forsakes his own.
It is believed by many that even while being stoned and near to death, Paul was having the experience which no other man ever had, and which he describes in II Cor. 12:2-5. Be that as it may, God miraculously brings him to life and full vigor at once, and the messengers go on their way to Derbe. As they continue their ministry we turn aside for a glimpse into one of Paul's epistles to consider

II. The Message (Rom. 10:8-15).
The carrier of a message is important, but of far greater import is the message that he carries.
The word which Paul preached, and which you and I must teach and preach if we are faithful to our calling is "the word of faith."
It is the glorious good news that "Whoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Reader, have you called on his name? Have you admitted your need of salvation, and in your earnest desire to be saved have you abandoned every trust in self-righteousness or self-improvement and believed on him in your heart as your personal Saviour? If not,
"Now is the day of salvation." If you have, it is your privilege and your duty to confess him "with the mouth," telling everywhere by faithful life and testimony that Jesus still saves.

The Getting of Wisdom

True wisdom is a thing very extraordinary. Happy are they that have it; and next to them, not those many that think they have it, but those few that are sensible of their own defects and imperfections, and know that they have it not.—Tillotson.

Money and Health

Money is the thing most envied, but the least enjoyed. Health is the thing most enjoyed, but the least envied.—Colton.

GAMES THIS SATURDAY.

Middletown at Taneytown.
Woodboro at New Windsor.
Thurmont at Brunswick.
Union Bridge at Emmitsburg.

ONE GAME LAST SATURDAY.

The only game last Saturday was between Thurmont and Emmitsburg, when Thurmont won by a score of 13 to 2. All other games were postponed on account of rain. Emmitsburg and Thurmont are the only team to have played all of their games—12. All other teams have one postponed game to play.

TANEYTOWN 7—EMMITSBURG 6.

Taneytown won from Emmitsburg, on Wednesday in a drizzly six inning game. At the end of the third inning, with the score standing 6-0, and the drizzle continuing, the home team hurried rather recklessly along, as a five-inning game seemed sure and already "in the bag."

But, Rommel had plenty of trouble controlling the wet ball, and in the fourth and fifth innings Emmitsburg tied the score. After that Rommel had better luck and in their half of the 5th, the home team scored the winning run, as neither side scored in the sixth, at the end of which the game was called.

A very unusual happening occurred with the scoring of this last run. With two men out and a man on second, Riffle batted out what nearly everybody but the umpire thought was a two-base hit but was called a foul. Riffle especially did not like the decision, an on returning to bat banged another two-baser as if to prove his claim, and as to this there was no doubt, and the winning run was scored.

DON'T CLEAN WITH GASOLINE IN THE HOUSE.

Don't use gasoline (or benzene or naphtha) in the home for any reason whatever, because no matter what precautions you take you can't make it safe!

Gasoline is dangerous because it freely gives off an invisible vapor. Because it is heavier than air, this vapor seeks the lowest level, so, as soon as you open a gasoline can in your kitchen, the vapor begins to flow over the sides and down to the floor, where it follows the prevailing draught.

But you never use gasoline near an open flame?

All right, consider another case. A mother was cleaning with gasoline late one afternoon. Her daughter, entering the kitchen, observed that it was growing dark and switched on the electric light. Before she could take her hand off the switch, there was an explosion which blew both of them through the side of the house into a vacant lot 30 feet away. The switch had sparked.

Be resolutely and faithfully what you are; be humbly what you aspire to be. Man's noblest gift to man is his sincerity, for it embraces his integrity also.—Thoreau.

Beautiful Glacial Gorge

Charmed Indian Hunters

It was in March, 1851, that a group of pioneers, organized as the Mariposa Battalion, followed the trail of a band of Yosemite Indians into the valley to avenge the deaths of settlers killed by the Indians in raids on Savage's trading post near Mariposa. Early day historians record that the discovery of the magnificent glacial gorge so thrilled members of the Battalion that they gave up their Indian hunt and went back to Mariposa to spread the news of what they had seen, according to a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

They told of sheer walls of granite rising from 3,000 to 5,000 feet on either side of a wide gorge. Roaring down from dizzy heights over the perpendicular cliffs were six of the most spectacular waterfalls ever seen by man, one of them the highest in the world. In the valley below the Merced river wound its swift way through lush meadows carpeted with wild flowers, and through groves of majestic pine, fir, cedar and oak trees.

Ahwahnee, "deep grassy valley," the Indians called it. A melodious name expressive of the distant roar of the falls, the whisper of the wind through the forest and the magnificent solemnity of the place. They had other mystic names, too, for the mighty granite monoliths that towered above the valley and for the waterfalls. But to the Mariposa Battalion it was Yosemite, "full grown grizzly bear," named for the tribe of Indians who inhabited it.

Ruminant Animals Have

Two Stomach Compartments

Ruminant animals such as cows, sheep, goats, antelopes, giraffes, deer and camels have two compartments in the stomach, observes a writer in the Indianapolis News. As a cow eats, the food is not at first thoroughly chewed and passes immediately into the large compartment of the stomach, or paunch. Later while the cow is standing or lying down this undigested food is regurgitated from the paunch and masticated. This process is called rumination. The cud is the quid or returned bolus of food in the cow's mouth.

Sometimes a cow will lose her cud; that is, rumination stops because the food ceases to come up from the paunch into the mouth. This is frequently one of the first indications of sickness in ruminant animals. Rumination is resumed when the animal returns to a normal state of health. In such cases some farmers give a cow an artificial cud, such as a dried herring, or a strip of salted pork, in order to aid the animal to recover her natural cud. The United States Department of Agriculture, however, says the method is impractical.

Species of Arborvitae

There are five species of true arborvitae, known to the botanist as thuja, but more generally spelled thuya, notes a writer in the Los Angeles Times. This is an ancient Greek name given to some resinous tree or shrub and its meaning is not understood. One of the best known species is Thuja occidentalis, erroneously called white cedar in some Eastern states where it is native. It is found in Canada, and south to North Carolina on the Eastern Coast and to Illinois in the Mississippi Valley. The normal type attains a height of sixty feet, with a slender pyramidal growth and straight central shaft which makes the tree a favorite with lumbermen seeking telegraph or telephone poles. Like the oriental species, Thuja orientalis, the American Thuja occidentalis has many segregated and named forms, at least fifty. Some of these are very dwarf, with two distinct kinds of foliage.

Early Steel Manufacturing

Kane's "More First Facts" says that steel manufacturing is claimed to have been accomplished in 1728 by Samuel Higley, of Simsbury, Conn., and Joseph Dewey, of Hebron, Conn., both of whom are believed to have converted small quantities of bar iron into steel. A slab of cast plow steel was rolled by William Woods at the steel works of Jones and Quigg in Pittsburgh in 1846 and was shipped to John Deere, plow-maker, of Moline, Ill.

First Doctor in Virginia Colony

The first doctor in the Virginia colony was Larence Bohune, who arrived in 1610 and was killed in 1622 when the vessel "Margaret and John" was attacked by Spanish ships. There may have been doctors attached to previous expeditions but these cannot be considered to have practiced in this country. The first doctor in New England was Dr. Samuel Fuller, who arrived on December 21, 1620, on the Mayflower.

MOROCCO AFFECTED BY SPANISH REVOLT

Colony Is Bit of Spain in Another Continent.

Washington.—"Spanish Morocco, where the revolution reached an acute stage, was, until recent years, an undeveloped area," says the National Geographic society.

"Today, however, troop movements are easier because new hard surface roads are available, busses link many towns that not long ago were served only by camel caravans, and railroads have been constructed along the coast.

"Spanish Morocco is a bit of Spain on another continent, if travelers judge by the architecture of many of its finer buildings, by the accessible towns, and by the Spanish blood coursing in the veins of many thousands met in a tour of the colony.

Land of the Moors

"However, one also is reminded at almost every turn that the colony is in the land of the Moors. Narrow alleylke streets of the principal towns throng with men in flowing white sheetlike garb; there are colorful oriental bazaars where keen-trading merchants lounge about a mere hole in a wall among their stock in trade, and at Mohammedan prayer time a large part of the population faces Mecca.

"In a hundred yards along a bazaar aisle, a traveler can trade in from twenty to thirty different 'shops' and emerge from the noisy crowd with articles ranging from homemade brassware to handsome rugs from the Near East and bolts of cloth from Massachusetts. Ceuta's reputation for fine brassware is historic and worldwide. In the Middle ages Italians prized Ceuta's brass pieces above their objects of silver.

"Spanish Morocco is slightly larger than Vermont. As the northwest capstone of Africa, it is the south pedestal for the 'Pillars of Hercules,' at the Strait of Gibraltar. In early times the 'Pillars' marked the world's western extremity for Mediterranean mariners who dared not sail beyond them.

"The 'pedestal,' however, is not all rock, nor does it include sandy wastes found in French Morocco whose border abuts Spanish Morocco on the south and east. There are many square miles of tawny, rocky mountains in the colony but there also are vast fertile areas where a traveler may see, in the same panorama, a farmer, plowing the soil with a camel-drawn stick while his neighbor, perhaps trained at one of the government's new agricultural schools, is mounted on a modern farming machine bumping over the earth to the staccato sound of a gasoline motor.

Varied Foreign Trade

"At Ceuta, Tetuan, Melilla, and Larache, the first three Mediterranean ports, and the latter an Atlantic ocean port, one may observe the colony's foreign trade. Almonds, oranges, potatoes, canary seed, ox-hides, wool, sheepskins, millet, fish and iron ore move from these ports to many parts of the world, but most of it moves across the strait to Spain.

"Besides being one of the leading ports of the colony, Tetuan is the colonial capital. Ceuta, however, which is just across the way from Gibraltar, is probably the best known town. Seven years ago it sprang into the spotlight as the first city in Africa to have transatlantic telephone service, enabling clean-shaven American business men in their New York offices to talk with tawny-skinned, bearded individuals in the Moroccan bazaars. Ceuta once was a popular market for ivory, gold and slaves brought by caravan from Central Africa."

Pastor Gives Free Hops in Plane After Sermons

London.—Rev. Cecil Boutton has not had an empty pew in his church since he inaugurated his "flying mission." To stimulate greater interest in religion he follows his morning service with free flights in a plane for all members of the congregation.
