Galt Mish, of Washington, D. C., made a business trip to town last week and also called on friends.

Kiser Shoemaker who has been housed-up for several weeks, is about again.

Mr. and Mrs. David Christophel, of Florida, Pa., were callers at the home of Mrs. Lizzie Zepp and sons, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Emenheiser, of York Haven, Pa., were the guests of Rev. and Mrs. Paul Emenheiser, this week.

Miss Isabel Libby, of Westminster, and Miss Susan Warner, of Keymar, spent Tuesday night with Miss Catherine Forney, near town.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob D. Null and daughter, Grace, and Mr. Mark Wildasin, of Hanover, spent Sunday afternoon with relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bollinger, Miss Catherine Forney, William and Roland Forney, all of near town, motored to Washington, on Sunday, to see the cherry blossoms.

Mrs. Thomas F. Vestal, of Waretter, Mass., returned home on Thursday after spending several weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Chenoweth and family.

Mrs. Lillie Morris, of Baltimore, returned home on Tuesday after spending a week with her son and wife, Rev. and Mrs. Irvin N. Morris, at the Presbyterian Manse, on York St.

Callers at the home of Mrs. Margaret Stott and Miss Anna Galt, on Tuesday were: Dr. and Mrs. Milton Valentine, of Gettysburg, Pa. and Dr. and Mrs. G. Lane Taneyhill, of Baltimore.

Mrs. James Lord, Sr., of Long Island, N. Y. and Miss Eva Culbreth, of Clinton, N. C., returned home on Tuesday, after spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. James Lord, Jr., town.

"Aunt Cindy Cleans-up" the three-act comedy, that the D. of A. presented in the I. O. O. F. Hall, Saturday evening, April 10th., will be repeated in Middleburg Hall, Tuesday evening, April 20th.

A welcome reception was held at the Piney Creek Presbyterian Church, on Thursday evening, in honor of their new pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. Irvin N. Morris. A program was held after which refreshments were served.

The Hesson-Snyder Post American Legion will meet tonight (Friday) at 8 o'clock in the P. O. S. of A. Hall. All members are requested to be present. Among the important matters to be considered is the Boy Scout movement.

Thursday afternoon supplied the first heavy electrical storm of the year, accompanied by a heavy down-pour of rain, and hail sufficient to whiten the ground. Both before and after the storm the temperature ranged around 60°.

Numerous early improvements to properties are being made in town, which shows the right spirit. Paint, and a little general fixing-up, inside and out, is money wisely invested as it increases both value and appearances.

The "Thorndale" news article on first page will be of interest to many who did not know that 100 years ago a high-class school for girls was opened near Taneytown. The prospectus published was likely used nearer the closing, than the opening of the school.

The Washington cherry blossoms attracted a lot of tourists, last Sunday. Well, the fact is, cherry blossoms, apple blossoms, peach blossoms, are all attractive, whether they are Japanese and grown in Washington, or only in Carroll, Frederick and Adams Counties.

Prof. J. Keller Smith, former principal of Taneytown High School, has been recommended to Gov. Nice by the Republican County Central Committee for appointment as a member of the Board of Education. Prof. Smith is not only highly qualified for this appointment, but is widely popular as a citizen.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fire Company was held on Monday evening with the President, James C. Myers, presiding, with 13 members present. The Chief reported two fire calls answered during the past month. One new member, George Kiser, was elected to membership in the Company. Delegates elected to attend the County Convention at Mount Airy, are: D. J. Hesson, C. G. Bowers, W. Z. Fair, James Burke and David Smith; Alternates: Elmer Crebs, Charles Rohrbach, Carroll Frock, Alton Boston, and Wilbur Hahn. Delegates elected to attend the State Convention at Easton, are: M. S. Ohler, Jas. C. Myers, Raymond Davidson, W. Z. Fair and Elmer Crebs; alternates, Carroll Frock, H. M. Mohney, Alton Boston, Charles Rohrbach and Norman Devilbiss. A committee was appointed on resolutions for one of our departed members, the late J. Hamilton Slick.

SAUBLE'S HATCHERY BURNED

The Exact Cause of the Fire is not Definitely Known.

Fire destroyed the large two-story hatchery building and contents owned by Norman R. Sauble, Emmitsburg Street, this Friday morning about 2 o'clock. The building was 36x100 feet, and contained all up-to-date equipment for the hatchery and feeding business. From 7000 to 8000 ducklings were burned, from one day to three weeks old; also about 20,000 duck eggs.

Mr. Sauble estimates the total loss at near $10,000 with only about $3000. insurance. The dwelling and nearby garage were fortunately not included in the loss.

The exact cause of the fire is not known, as all precautions were carefully taken to prevent such a loss. The Fire Company responded promptly, but the fire had gained such headway that only the adjoining buildings could be saved.

THORNDALE SEMINARY FOR YOUNG LADIES.

This week there came into our hands a neatly printed prospectus of Thorndale Seminary for Young Ladies operated under the care of the Misses Birnie, sisters of the late Rogers Birnie, Sr., at Thorndale, their home near Taneytown, from 1837 to 1872. It will be of interest that the school was commenced 100 years ago, at the time of the formation of Carroll County.

It carries the following information, "The course of instruction comprises the usual branches of an English Education, with Needlework. The pupils have the advantage of daily association with a family, and are under their constant care and supervision. Particular attention is given to religious instruction—the study of the Scriptures forming a part of the regular exercises of the school. Mathematics is taught by Mr. Rogers Birnie.

The year is divided into two sessions of twenty-one weeks, one commencing on the second Thursday in May, the other on the second Thursday in November.

Terms, Boarding and Tuition, per session $110.00, payable in advance. Music and use of piano, per session $25.00. Drawing and painting $10.00. French $10.00, use of library 50c.

Pupils will be received at any time, but not for a shorter period than one session. The number being limited, a notice of two months is required before the removal of a scholar.

This announcement is neatly printed, and looks very much like the best of modern typography, showing no signs of age.

A 50-YEAR OLD DEMOCRATIC ADVOCATE.

Harvey C. Zent, Keymar, showed at our office, this week, a copy of The Democratic Advocate, Westminster, dated April 16, 1887, that represented a special edition celebrating the semi-centennial of Carroll County.

For that time, it was both liberally and attractively illustrated, and the historical portion was exceptionally well prepared as a comprehensive review of the previous fifty-year period.

Mr. Zent also showed a curiosity in the shape of a portion of a chestnut tree, at the roof, that had grown solid wood around a small stone.

INSTALLATION SERVICES.

The Rev. Irvin N. Morris will be installed as pastor of the Taneytown Piney Creek and Emmitsburg Presbyterian Churches, on Thursday evening, April 22, at 8 P. M. The service will be a joint one of all three churches and will be held in the Piney Creek Church.

Mr. Morris is one of four brothers in the Presbyterian ministry. His twin brother, the Rev. Alvin L. Morris, is pastor of the Bethel Church of Detroit, Michigan; another brother, the Rev. Edward A. Morris has been pastor of the First Church of Trenton, N. J., for some years. The third brother, the Rev. Melvin R. Morris, has been until recently the assistant pastor of the Frederick Church, and has just accepted the call to the Olivet Church of Troy, N. Y.

Among those taking part in the installation service will be: Rev. Edward Morris, who will preach the sermon; Rev. T. R. Philip who will give the charge to the pastor; Rev. Wm. Hess, who will give the charge to the people; Rev. Charles Wehler who will give the installation prayer; Rev. John Hays who will read the Scripture, and the moderator of the Presbytery who will preside.

Mr. Morris received the call from the churches about the first of March and he and Mrs. Morris moved to Taneytown about two weeks ago.

HOMEMAKERS' DRESS SCHOOL.

Miss Helen Shelby, Clothing Specialist for the Extension Service, will be in Westminster on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 20th, and 21st., to assist the Home Demonstration Agent in conducting dress schools for Homemakers' Club members and any non-members who would like help with any kind of clothing construction. These Dress Schools will be held in the Sunday School room of the Centenary M. E. Church, starting at 10 A. M. and continuing through the afternoon.

COUNTY WELFARE BOARD HOLDS MEETING.

Information Given Concerning Recent Relief Activities.

The April meeting of the Carroll County Welfare Board was held on Wednesday, April 7 in the local office with the following members present: Chairman, J. Keller Smith, Mt. Airy; Frank P. Alexander, Secretary, Keymar; Roy D. Knouse, Silver Run; Mrs. Walter A. Bower, Taneytown and Mrs. J. Edgar Myers, Westminster. Chas. W. Melville, Sykesville and John L. Bennett, Westminster, were unable to attend.

Of twenty old age pension applications presented to the Board, several were rejected as being ineligible, six were laid on the table for further consideration and seven were approved. Grants to the seven approved applications have been made possible because of the recent withdrawal of seven pensions either because of their entering institutions or because of death. 130 applications, a part of which have been investigated must remain on a waiting list until future funds are on hand. The Board can make no plans as to the possible number of new grants until such time as revenues for the new fiscal year are available.

Three burials were considered, part payment being made in each of the three cases. Payment for medical service to two persons are approved. Those persons receiving pensions care for their own medical service except in cases of prolonged illness, in which event the county and state may assist. The financial report for the January, February, March quarter was given as follows:

General Public assistance, $2,014.16; Old Age Pension assistance, $9,728.00; Aid to dependent children assistance, $811.36; Aid to the needy blind assistance, $252.00; Administration expenses, $1,595.00; of which, $474.68 paid by county, $1,118.34 paid by State and Federal.

It was gratifying to the Board to receive the State auditors report that the records in the office are in excellent form.

Mrs. J. Edgar Myers reported on a recent meeting called by the County Welfare Board of representatives of the County Home-makers' Club, the Health Department, the Children's Aid Society, the Board of State Aid and Charities and the local Welfare Board who with Miss Hinton, representing the Extension Department, of the University of Maryland, discussed budgets and diets of families of low income. The meeting adjourned at 4 P. M.

The Carroll County Welfare Board is approaching the end of its second year of work. The office under the guidance and supervision of the Board of State Aid and Charities has been responsible for:

1—Receiving, investigating, and administering applications for OAP, ADC, in their homes and homes of relatives, Pensions to the Needy Blind and General Relief to unemployed.

2—Investigating and answering numerous requests from out of town agencies, such investigations being carried on in our county.

3—Certifying of those persons found eligible for Works Progress Administration.

4—Enrolling of eligible applicants for OCC.

5—Sponsoring and distributing and reporting of all articles made in WPA sewing center.

6—Distributing and reporting of Federal Surplus Food Commodities.

7—Making home visits for the Parole Commissioner, Rosewood Training School, and other public supported institutions.

COSTS GOING UP!

A serious situation is confronting publishers all over the country today, brought about by the sky-rocketing of everything entering into the production of newspapers. Actual increases in such necessities as paper, ink, rollers, type metal and supplies of all kinds have already far exceeded reasonable limits, to say nothing of the steady advance in overhead production costs, due to pyramiding taxes, compulsory employee insurance items, etc. "The Register" will absorb within reason as many of these additional expense items as can be consistently carried, but already the peak is in sight beyond which inevitable increases in the price of our own products will become essential.

Perhaps we are fighting a shadow in attempting to avoid the inevitable. All other commodities have been forced already to advance prices or cut the quality of the product. That, in most instances, the public does not want. We are convinced they do not want it in their newspaper. To that end we shall continue to maintain our same high standards of publication. We know this will meet with the approval of both our subscribers and our advertisers, even although they find it necessary to pay a small advance in price as time goes on.—Middletown Register.

THE COURT PLAN AGAIN.

The American Bar Association is reported to stand 4 to 1 against the Supreme Courts plan and has reported such a poll to the Senate investigating committee. A new proposal comes from Senator McCarren, Dem., Nevada, who would increase the number of Judges to 11, and ignore the questions of age and retirement. The bill is likely to be turned over to the Senate, next week.

DR. JACOB J. WEAVER

Prominent Carroll County Citizen Died in Washington.

Dr. Jacob J. Weaver, Jr., one of the most widely known citizens of Carroll County, died at the Homeopathic Hospital, Washington, Saturday evening following an operation and stroke, and a serious illness of only six days. He lived at his home in Uniontown during the summer months, and with his daughter, Mrs. E. K. Fox, in Washington, during the winter. His age was 89 years.

He was the son of Dr. Jacob J. Weaver and Beulah Clark Weaver, of Uniontown. He graduated from Gettysburg College in 1867, and received his degree in medicine from the University of Maryland in 1869. His marriage to Miss Mary J. Haines, Linwood, took place Dec. 15, 1870. His daughter, Mrs. Fox and two granddaughters, Miss Grace Estelle Fox, of Washington, and Mrs. Charles Raymond Whittlesy, Princeton, N. J., are his only survivors.

He was engaged in the active practice of medicine in Uniontown until 1889, when declining health induced him to retire. Since then he became active as President of the First National Bank, of Westminster, and of the Carroll County Savings Bank. He was one of the original incorporators of the Birnie Trust Co., Taneytown, and served as its vice-president from 1900 to March 1933.

He also served for many years as President of the Carroll County Mutual Fire Insurance Company; in all of which connections his intelligence, business capacity and experience, were very highly regarded.

He was always greatly interested in National and State politics, and was widely informed on all public topics. In 1895 he wrote an extended history of Uniontown, which both then and now is regarded as a valuable addition to the histories of Carroll County towns.

He was a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity of his college; of Sons of the American Revolution; Maryland Historical Society; Door to Virtue Lodge A. F. & A. M., Westminster, and of the Uniontown Lutheran Church.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock in the Uniontown Church, in charge of his pastor, Rev. M. L. Kroh, assisted by Rev. Dr. Henry Snyder, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, Washington. Interment was in the M. P. cemetery, Uniontown.

CARROLL COUNTY SOCIETY NEWS NOTES.

The Carroll County Society elected its officers for the coming year on Saturday at its 19th. annual meeting held at the Southern Hotel. President, J. Walter Eckenrode; Vice-Presidents, Paul W. Englar and Mrs. Edgar C. Barnes; Recording Secretary, William E. Moore; Corresponding Secretary, George R. Babylon; Treasurer, Thomas S. Yingling; Board of Governors, Mrs. Margaret L. Hoppe and Dr. Jesse S. Myers.

The Society adopted its final plans for its part in the Carroll County Centennial to be held at Westminster from June 28th. to July 2 next. The Society will have a float in the Pageant depicting Lord Baltimore landing at the shores of Maryland. In addition to the Centennial plans, there were moving pictures shown of the members at the Fall outing held in Carroll County.

MAKE OUR TOWN SAFE!

During 1936, traffic deaths and accidents reached new highs. Yet a number of cities and towns managed to lower casualties in spite of the general trend. Six of these cities, in different population brackets, were the winners of the Fifth National Traffic Safety Contest conducted by the National Safety Council.

The Council has now published outlines of the programs pursued by these communities. The program of the smallest town receiving a prize, Wilmette, Illinois, is of exceptional interest, in that it could be pursued, in a modified or enlarged manner, by practically every community in America.

Wilmette reduced its accident deaths exactly 100 per cent—from three in 1935 to none in 1936—and its injuries 31 per cent. It adopted the following plan:

Law enforcement was strict—arrests totaled 152 in 1936 as against 51 the preceding year. Magistrate and prosecutor co-operated vigorously. High school students convicted of dangerous driving were "fined" by making them write theses on safety.

Traffic checks were made periodically, and when necessary streets were widened and resurfaced. All members of the police force attended classes in accident prevention.

The village conducted a drivers' safety school in co-operation with three other nearby villages. The police department was kept free from politics—no one had a "pull."

Extensive accident prevention work was carried on consistently in schools.

Here is a synopsis of the kind of safety program that produces results. No community is too small to follow the principles laid down, in an effective manner. Let's make our town safe!—Industrial News Review.

SUICIDE IN UNION BRIDGE

High School Girl Ends Life with a Revolver Bullet.

Miss Geraldine Louise Rakestraw, aged 16 years, a high school junior, shot herself in the head in the bedroom of her home, last Saturday afternoon, and died at Maryland General Hospital early Sunday morning.

The act is reported to have been due to a serious disagreement between her parents and herself over the attentions of a young man, to whom the former objected, and following a conversation on the subject hastily went to her room.

Her parents did not hear the shot but did hear a noise as though she was crying, and on opening the door found her lying on the floor in a pool of blood, a bullet having penetrated the right side of her head. The father and mother are very well thought-of citizens of Union Bridge.

The weapon used was a 32-calibre revolver belonging to the father, which she had secured, apparently knowing where it was kept. An investigation was made by Justice Murray C. Bohn, States Attorney Fringer and Sheriff John A. Shipley. The verdict was that the wound causing her death had been self-inflicted.

Miss Rakestraw was the only child and is said to have been popular and highly regarded, in school and out. In addition to her father and mother, she is survived by her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sherman, Middleburg, and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Rakestraw.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education of Carroll County was called to order in the office of the Board on April 6, 1937, at 9:45 A. M. All the members were present.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved.

The paid and unpaid bills presented to the Board were approved and ordered paid.

The Board approved advertising for coal bids at once and awarding the contracts at the May meeting, if the Superintendent decided, after contacting coal authorities, that this was the proper thing to do.

The Board discussed various budget items submitted by the Superintendent and directed him to get further information concerning them to be considered at the next meeting, when the budget is submitted for approval.

The Board approved suggested changes by the Superintendent in the janitors' and teachers' salaries.

Superintendent Hyson presented each member of the Board with a copy of the revised insurance schedule.

The Superintendent reported that the final payment on the Federal Grant had been received and all bills paid.

The Board approved the payment of $25.00 to the Congoleum Club to compensate them for the portion of land not received.

The Board approved the use of the Sykesville school grounds by the Fire Company, July 12 to 17, for a carnival. This does not include the use of the building.

The Superintendent presented proposed changes in bus routes and same was held over until final definite plans have been worked out.

The Board agreed to make a contribution toward the purchase of grass seed at the Mt. Airy and Winfield schools.

The Board adjourned at 12:25 P. M.

FIVE CASES UPHELD BY THE SUPREME COURT.

In five cases the Supreme Court, this week, upheld the government, mainly in connection with labor law legislation and their constitutionality. Four of the decisions were by a vote of five to four, and one was by unanimous vote. Those voting for, were Hughes, Brandeis, Cardozo, Stone and Roberts; against, were McReynolds, Sutherland, Van Devanter and Butler.

These decisions are held by many to make the President's Court plans much weaker, especially in so far as support in the Senate is concerned, some of the Democratic members expressing themselves emphatically to this effect. Others feel that the situation has not been changed by the decisions.

Random Thoughts

GLAD TO SEE YOU!

These four short words of welcome—when meant—are about as expressive as words can be, and as a greeting extend both satisfaction and pleasure that should at once make the object of them feel at ease. Emphasis on the "glad" helps, a bit in indicating sincerity, and pleasure, but even as a formality having either an individual or general application, they are difficult to improve on.

Unfortunately, they are frequently only a pretense, and mean only tolerance, instead of genuine pleasure—an expression that means no more than a polite formality, a mere social or diplomatic expression not to be taken too literally, nor too seriously.

As a people, we indulge in a wide variety of pretense—plain hypocrisy, perhaps—called diplomacy in some cases and common politeness in others, all of which

FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1937.

THE "SIT-DOWN" STRIKE IS A FORM OF TRESPASSING.

It is our opinion that the "sit-down strike" is a greatly more serious new practice than is generally considered; and it is all the more serious because the Federal and other governments are merely "booming" at its danger.

To us, it seems only another name for trespassing without leave, on private property. We have a lot of this in the counties during the hunting season, when "hunters," so-called, invade farms and wood-lands without leave from owners, or tenants.

As a means of securing income, counties license hunting, and we have a game warden whose chief business it is to preserve game for the hunters and to restock the country when game becomes scarce.

This sort of trespassing is called "sport" and is encouraged. Property owners complain that it is almost impossible to secure convictions, as the lawyers have ways of discounting evidence and getting the trespassers free without fine.

The farmers say that hunters break down fences, shoot toward homes in a careless manner, and take game away from farm owners boys who naturally have owner's first rights to game on land owned or leased.

In the matter of business enterprises, it is becoming almost criminal to own and operate a manufacturing plant, without first consulting workers as to how long they shall work, and the pay they shall receive. So far has this feeling progressed that the next step would seem to be to compel capital to invest itself in buildings and machinery, and then turn over the whole business to operators, rather than employers, and let them make all out of it they can.

There are many thousands of small stock company concerns in this country, whose stock is held in comparatively few hands, and have only a small group of employers. The output of these small concerns goes largely to local purchasers, and for local convenience, to many more thousands than the few men employed in each. Price increases forced by any cause, falls on the latter.

The larger concerns are but small ones dealing in larger figures. In both instances "sit down" strikes represent "trespassing" contrary to law.

If this country wants to abolish capitalism and investments in industry, that is one thing. If it wants to try some sort of anarchy that opposes capital, or its direction and operation, by its legal possessors, that is quite another thing.

The "sit down" strike by capital, is as justifiable as one without capital. Why should not strike officials pool their own capital and run their own business as they think it should be run. There are hundreds of thousands of employees who could become owners of stock in their own right, and operate big business. Why not try it; and stop interfering with those who are now regarded as oppressors?

Many of the men now so regarded, were once poor—Henry Ford, for instance. This country is still an open field for honest, capable, skilled workers; and hundreds of going concerns are open to bids for a sell-out. There is no monopoly on opportunity. This "sit down" business has wide and very unfair and dangerous possibilities.

WHY SPEND BIG SUMS NOW, UNNECESSARILY?

We are having the very unusual situation at present, of a large portion of our population being "on relief" and another large portion spending lavishly. It is difficult to reconcile these two wide apart facts, as existing at the same time, considering the very unsettled business and prosperity outlook.

We suspect that back of much of our lavish planning is the actual engineering of a comparatively few who do not themselves have much to spend, but are trying to get others to loosen up, directly or indirectly for the benefit of the spenders. So, it might be a good plan to ask some of our promoters and solicitors, How much are you going to give?

Spending for some permanent benefit is one thing. Spending for some brief show or pleasure, is quite another thing. Of course, there are some who are making money now, but their names are never seen heading subscription lists at any time. It is their natural state, irrespective of the merits of appeals.

Certainly, we must have spending in order to prosper. Money hoarded up, as a continuous policy, does not represent good business sense. But there is proper limit to both extremes, and it is wise to keep this fact in mind in these very chaotic days.

THE COST OF RELIEF.

We understood Father Coughlin to say in his last Sunday's radio broadcast, that the cost of administering relief on the part of the government was 45 per cent of the total received, this cost being due to "overhead," salaries, etc. If correct, this is a stunning cost representing the expenditure of various forms of taxation income.

As such administration is naturally partisan in character, it shows how strongly a party may become entrenched, with plenty of jobs to distribute, and how difficult it is sure to be to displace the present administration.

Father Coughlin is of course regarded as an extremist in his statements, and so far has not been a success as a political prophet, but it is hardly likely that such a statement of percentage is far wrong, especially as it might be easy to prove its falsity.

The fact is, nobody expects government operation of anything to be economical. The government is, and always has been, a liberal spender; but all of its previous records have been very tame imitations of the present new deal, that invents plans for spending as good business policy.

OLD-AGE BENEFITS' CLAIMS SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.

Procedures for filing of claims for the payment of lump sums under the Federal old-age benefits plan of the Social Security Act, surpassing in simplicity and others for similar use yet devised either for government or private business purposes, were outlined recently by G. R. Parker, Regional Director, Region IV.

Moreover, Mr. Parker declared that when the claims procedures are in full operation the adjudication of properly completed claims can be accomplished with unusual dispatch following their receipt in the Washington office of the Board. Claims already filed range from a few dollars each to $105.

A simple form has been devised by the Social Security Board for the use of each of the five different types of claimants. Separate forms are provided for: (1) wage earners, (2) widowers, (3) other close relatives, (4) executors or administrators, and (5) guardians or committees. They ask a minimum of form two to a maximum of 12 questions.

A sixth form, known as "Statement of Employer," is a simple report by the employer giving only the total amount of wages paid the employee and the employment period.

Mr. Parker pointed out that one means of achieving simplicity in the claims procedure was by devising a form for each type of claim instead of trying to use one form for all types.

Mr. Parker said, forms are obtainable, and that assistance in executing them is available, at any one of its 12 regional offices and 111 field offices now open at strategic points throughout the United States. Forms also may be obtained at the Board's office in Washington, D. C. As the claims load increases, the Board stated new field offices will be opened as the work necessitates.

Field offices of the Board will contact prospective claimants when it is indicated they may be eligible for a benefit and explain and help claimants to execute the necessary forms.

Pointing to the simplicity of the claims forms, Mr. Parker declared this makes unnecessary the employment of attorneys or claims agents to assist claimants. Even a notary fee will not be necessary, Mr. Parker said, on claims of $100 or less.

The lump-sum provisions of the Federal old-age benefits plan became effective January 1st. Monthly benefits do not become operative until 1942. Persons eligible for lump-sum payments are those in covered employment after 1936 who at age 65 either fail to have wages of $2,000 or fail to meet the requirement, or both.

To qualify for a monthly benefit a wage earner must be 65 years old, his total wages from covered employment after 1936 must be $2,000 or more, and he must have earned wages after 1936 in covered employment for at least one day in each of five different calendar years.

Lump-sum payments now payable amount to three and one-half percent of the total wages earned by the individual in covered employments after 1936.

If a wage earner files a claim, the form for "wage earner" is to be used. If the wage earner dies before attaining age 65, or before filing a claim on the "wage earner" form, and does not leave a will, payment will be made to the widow or widower, if either survives. The "widow or widower" form is to be used in such cases.

Where the wage earner dies without leaving a will or a surviving spouse, the "close relative" form is to be used for a claim filed by a child or grand-child or his legal guardian if under legal disability, or by the father or mother of the deceased wage earner.

The "executor or administrator" form is for the use of the executor or administrator of the deceased wage earner. The "guardian or committee" form is to be used by the guardian or committee of the legally incompetent wage earner.

FARM RELIEF JOKERS.

In a recent address, Fred S. Sexauer, President of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, Inc, pointed out that state control of agricultural products tends to lower the bargaining power of the farmer.

New York has a milk control law—and now it is under attack from a legion of dairy farmers and co-operative managers. The law was passed with the best intentions in the world—but, according to observers, it has benefited neither consumer nor producer, and often harmed the interests of both.

Co-operative selling groups have come to realize that the road to progress is through their own efforts and mass action—not through laws that often prove boomerangs. Much that has been done in the name of farm relief has proved to be a drag instead of a lift.—Industrial News Review.

THE "RIGHT" TO WORK.

As the New York Times pertinently points out, the most frequently heard argument in defense of the legality of the sit down strike is that employees have a vested "property right" in their jobs.

The fact of the matter is, The Times says, that the "right" to a job does not mean the "right" to a particular job but the "right" to work and earn a living.

"Suppose a worker turns out to be unfitted for the task in hand, through no fault of his own, but simply because he is not qualified by temperament or by training or by ability for this kind of work." The Times continues.

"Or suppose that he turns out to be lazy, intemperate, or insubordinate? Can it be seriously argued that anything but chaos would result if, in either of these circumstances, the worker had a 'property right' to this particular job, and that the management ought to have no power to replace him with a better man? What price would the consumer pay for his goods under such a regime? How long could any industry keep going?"

In some establishments, it is impossible for an employer to fire an employee for incompetence without a strike on his hands. The unions insist the employee has a "property right" in his job.

Carried to its logical conclusion, that would mean that employees also have a "property right" in the thing that supplied their job—namely, the firm. They would, therefore, be on an equal footing with investors.

Does the hired man who chops weeds for the farmer own the hoe he uses? Does the maid have a property right in the washing machine she runs for her mistress? Does the stenographer own the typewriter her boss furnishes?

Those last questions seem silly, but are they any sillier than the argument that a factory employee owns the job in which he works and therefore a part of the factory?—Industrial Press Service.

GRAND RESERVATION.

Washington, D. C., April '37—The District of Columbia was originally ten miles square, but Virginia had a string on part of her gift—and pulled away her contributions of territory south of the Potomac. A tribe of Indians who gathered the first English scalps at Jamestown, Virginia, had original jurisdiction over what is now the Capital, at Washington. There are more than half a million people inhabiting the District of Columbia, but none of them—not even the Negro descendants of slaves freed by Lincoln (comprising nearly 26 per cent of the population), have the right to vote on either national or municipal matters.

The kind of legislation handed out to the residents of Washington, District of Columbia, is evidenced by the protest of the Federation of Citizens who adopted a resolution by a unanimous vote condemning the nine tax bills in the House, which would raise $9,000,000 more taxes than is needed to maintain the local government.

A few days later a great outpouring of citizens of Washington gathered at a Sunday afternoon mass meeting to protest against the condition in the National Capital by which thousands of destitute families were not included in the "relief" plans that have been extended to other sections of the United States.

It is true that Washington has beautiful public buildings, thousands of people working for the Government, and nice, cute little cherry blossoms on those Japanese-parented trees. The Capital City has lots of things to be thankful for—but the residents resent the fact that they are disfranchised and with so little influence as citizens that they are high-hatted by the puffed-up politicians who maintain their residences in their states.

In order that the cops may make no serious errors, the Senators, Congressmen, high public officials, and the foreign diplomats, are given special kinds of automobile tags which save them from being arrested. Simple citizens is the goat that sees the Judge.—J. E. Jones, in National News Service.

WITH INK ON HIS HANDS.

The printer, hard at work over his cases, was observed by his visitors. His keen ears heard the quiet voices that said, "I would not want to work at printing. It is too dirty, this job with ink and types." The printer rose, stretched out his hands, and observing them, said:

"I am not ashamed of the ink on my hands. The labor with these little leaden casts dwarfs in importance all the other industries of mankind. Without these metallic types the world would never have risen above the power of the enemies of liberty and freedom of thought and law. This trade is powerful in education and business; without it both would cease to exist. During the chaos of the dark ages, printers, hidden away in the fastness of the mountains from the roving, destroying bands, preserved through printing the arts and crafts, the laws and literature of a world gone mad. Printing has long controlled the destinies of mankind. I am proud of this ink on my hands."—Selected.

Francis Rodgers attended the funeral of his cousin, J. Hamilton Slick, in Taneytown, on Friday.

Mrs. Herbert Leatherwood, Washington, underwent an operation, last week. Her many friends here, wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Grim have purchased the fine property of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Corbin, who recently moved to Guilford, Baltimore. They expect to occupy the house this week.

Mrs. William Welsh has returned home after spending a long period at a Baltimore Hospital, suffering from double pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gosnell entertained Mr. and Mrs. Earl Warner, of New Windsor, at dinner, Sunday. Edward Conaway, of Winfield, who is indisposed has been removed to the home of his son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Swanson, where he expects to make his future home.

George Chaney is suffering from an attack of intestinal flu. His wife is suffering from a heart ailment.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moser, of Alexandria, have moved into their home here which they purchased a few years ago.

Mrs. Gladys Gosnell was called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Fleming, near Taylorsville to nurse their son, Bobby, who was critically ill with double pneumonia, but safely passed the crisis Wednesday night and recovered sufficiently for Mrs. Gosnell to spend Sunday at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jenkins, Jr., daughter, Joan, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Condon, have moved into the Cunningham house. They will occupy separate apartments.

Mrs. Basil Gosnell entertained some of her friends at a quilting party on Wednesday. Those present, were: Mesdames James Jenkins, Sr., G. H. Baker, Corwin Penn, Curtis Penn, Albert Shipley, George Gosnell, Arthur Gosnell, Douglas Condon, Roland Gosnell and Ella Smith.

Mrs. Roy Crum was hostess to the Lutheran Aid Society, at her home on Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was in charge of the President, Mrs. Viola Condon. The main feature of the business meeting was the order to pay for the spouting purchased for the church. The program consisted of interesting reading by various members and several selections sung by the group. Mrs. Crum served delightful refreshments to the following: Mesdames David Goker, Roger Sanner, Herbert Baker, Morris Hess, Herman Franklin, Charles Reck, Albert Barth, Staley Weller, Claude Slagle, Millard Clark, Alton Gosnell, Owen Fowble, Misses Lillie Hatfield, Marie Crum, Elizabeth Slagle, Barbara Jane Clark, Daisy Ruth Clark and Betsy Gosnell. Next place of meeting will be at the parsonage in Ellicott City.

HARNEY.

Services at St. Paul's Church next Sabbath with sermon by the Rev. H. H. Schmidt, at 2:00 o'clock; S. S., 1:00 P. M. Jennie Welty, of Middleburg, spent several days with her son, Earl and family.

Mrs. Minnie Hefestay who spent eight weeks in York with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stambaugh, returned to her home here, with Mr. and Mrs. Duffly Mort.

Don't forget the chicken and waffle supper in the Hall, Saturday evening, April 17, by the Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Church. They will be looking for you. So come on and get a good supper for 25c.

Mrs. Florence Myers, spent last week in York, with her son, Eyster and family.

Mr. Harry Myers is spending this week at Oak Ridge, Gettysburg, at the home of his niece, Miss Virginia Myers.

DETOUR.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gray, Union Bridge and John Miller, Taneytown, were Sunday visitors with Mrs. Edw. Young.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Weybright and Mrs. E. D. Diller, spent Wednesday in Hagerstown, Md.

Mrs. Robert Angell, who recently moved to New Windsor, visited with friends here, Saturday.

The Keysville-Detour Homemakers' Club met Wednesday night with Mrs. C. W. Cover, Ladiesburg. Demonstration on "Spring Fashions and Fabrics" was given by Miss Hoffman, Home Demonstration Agent, 12 members and two visitors were present. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Warner, spent Tuesday evening with Dr. and Mrs. Porterfield and Mr. and Mrs. Dickey in Hampstead, Md.

FEESERSBURG.

By way of variety we had snow-furries on Saturday and Sunday, and it wasn't too warm on Monday—but the grain fields look splendid; some of the wheat is tall enough to wave in the wind.

George Crumbacker, of Waynesboro, has been visiting friends in this neighborhood, and spent Monday night with his brother-in-law, J. Addison Koons, on Big Pipe Creek.

Miss Lelia Saylor, of Union Bridge, visited her sister, Mrs. Hazel Hahn and family, near Hobson Grove, early this week.

DeWitt C. Haines, spent Sunday with his cousins, the Birely's, attending S. S., at Mt. Union. He has been in fair health the past season, his memory is remarkable, and he is still at home in Keymar.

Frank Williams and Miss Ida Garber, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Koons. The last of this week they expect to move into the home Mr. Williams recently purchased, adjoining his farm, formerly the Wm. Flickinger property on the Westminster-Taneytown road.

The Spencer Corsetiere made her annual call last Wednesday, with new designs, new methods, new literature, but not new lower prices—so we went our separate ways.

Last week word was received from Lakeland, Fla., where S. L. Johnson, a son of Mt. Union, has spent the past three months with a niece, that he was critically ill from a bad condition of the heart. A group of his friends had planned to tour the East Coast this week and bring Mr. Johnson home on their return; which pleasant trip must be postponed.

L. K. Birely and J. Edward Dayhoff attended the funeral of Dr. J. J. Weaver, in Uniontown, on Tuesday noon. They had been members together of the Joint Council of the Lutheran Church for many years.

An unusually long line of cars followed the remains of Miss Geraldine Rakestraw through our town on Tuesday afternoon from the Methodist Protestant Church in Union Bridge, where the service was held, to the cemetery in Middleburg for interment.

The First Quarter's Report of the Sunday School at Mt. Union gave 77 names on the roll, with 17 persons present every Sunday, and 7 who only missed once. Little Marian Eckard will be given a Holman Bible for one year's regular attendance—barring sickness.

A party of four persons from Mt. Union are planning to attend the annual conference of the Woman's Missionary Societies at Middletown, this Friday, Mrs. G. H. Seiber, President.

Raymond K. Angel and daughter, Mary, of Catonsville, arranged a birthday surprise for Mrs. Angel, on Sunday by having all four of her sisters, and several friends, in the home when she returned from church at noon, and a fine roast in the oven, with a lot of good things to eat. Well, it proved a surprise—and all enjoyed the day. There were nice gifts, and a birthday cake. Mr. Angel is confined to bed, with a male nurse in attendance, but seemed brighter and hopeful. He has planned a new house which is under way, with another former neighbor, Daniel Shivers, as builder.

Somebody must have hay to sell, for many loads—large and small, have been passing on the highway the past week.

Some of the men have enjoyed dipnet fishing in the Monocacy, and the rain, the past few weeks at night-time; some with good success and large fish, and others not so lucky; but it is the most hopeful of sports—and they will "try, try again."

Wilbur Miller, Sr., has a nice flock of sheep in pasture, and we are interested in the little lambs—gentle and frisky.

Beside the birthdays of many famous folks this week, we note the following events; April 14, 1912 the S. S. Titanic was wrecked by striking an ice-berg; April 17, 1704 the "Boston News Letter"—the first permanent newspaper in English America was established; April 18, 1775 Paul Revere made his famous ride to warn the colonists the British were approaching; April 18, 1906 the San Francisco earthquake—when men trembled, too.

We've been told the Frog Chorus is on the air these evenings, when not too cold, but we've not tuned in yet. Welcome home.

BLACKS.

A three-act comedy entitled, "Miss Adventure" will be given at the Black's Farmers Union Hall, Friday evening, April 23, at 8:15 by a group of young people of that community.

The play concerns a venturesome young Miss who runs away from the boarding school in the masquerade of a boy. When she has gone far enough to be safe she lands a job as a hired man, a handsome young farmer, Albert Brown. Her adventures with Rebecca, and Cyrus the hired help, keeps the play up to a high comic pitch. But Miss Adventure has promised to be Mrs. Brown before the final curtain and her friends from school are there to wish her luck.

The cast of characters is as follows: Sue, Betty, Peggy, young college girls, Evelyn Spangler, Ruth Flickinger, Phyllis Flickinger; Samson, janitor at the school, Earl Crabbs; Miss Prim, who conducts the school, Hazel Mummet; Josephine Carter, known as Jo; and Miss Adventure, Freda Mummet; Sarah Ann Haskins, housekeeper for Albert Brown, Virginia Crabbs; Rebecca Haskins, her daughter, Mary Flickinger; Albert Brown, a young farmer, Ralph Mayers; Cyrus, the hired boy, Lawrence Haines; Mrs. John Carter, Mother of Josephine, Mary Bortner.

The first act takes place in Josephine's room, at Miss Prim's school. The next two acts take place at Albert Brown's farm. The time of all three acts is early September. Music before the play and between the acts will be furnished by Edwin and Bernard Flickinger. A small admission will be charged.

LITTLESTOWN.

Levi F. Hull, proprietor of the General Store at Sell's Station, died suddenly Sunday night at his home. Death was due to heart trouble from which he had suffered for some time. He was aged 45 years, and was a son of the late Levi D. and Agnes Fleagle Hull. Surviving are his wife, who before marriage was Catherine Kessler, of Carroll County; two sons at home, Levi and Paul; also two brothers and one sister, Mrs. Harry M. Myers, Taneytown. He was a member of St. Mary's Reformed Church. Burial in Union cemetery. Rev. Felix B. Peck, officiated.

Charles H. Mayers is improving but is still a very sick man.

Mrs. Coover, wife of Dr. Coover, is still confined to her room, but is better.

John Basehor was taken to the Gettysburg Hospital.

Clinton Harner broke a leg, how it happened I have not heard.

George W. King, who has been sick for a long time, is improving and able to be around in his home.

Two persons sustained bruises in a head-on automobile collision on the Gettysburg-Baltimore state road, about one-half mile south of town, Sunday afternoon. The cars were operated by Harry Lennon, Baltimore, and Harold L. Walmer, Mechanicsburg. Walmer sustained a badly bruised knee, and Miss Edwina Fellaux, of Baltimore, an occupant of the Lennon car, sustained bruises. Damage to cars amounted to $100. Highway patrol investigated.

The players from St. Mark's Reformed Church, of which Rev. Royce E. Schaeffer, is pastor, were greeted with a full house, on Friday evening, for the presentation of "The Red Headed Step-child. A three-act comedy drama by Charles George.

Lavere Breighner, while taking part in a play, accidentally cut his left arm below the elbow. He was portraying the part of Prince Charming in the play "Cinderella." He had a knife fastened to his side and fell over a chair running the knife into his arm. It required four stitches.

Mrs. I. G. Naugle and daughter, are spending a few days visiting in Gettysburg.

Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Hollenbach and son, attended the Missionary Convention of the Maryland Classis at Walkersville, Wednesday.

Many favorable comments were heard from those who heard the rendition of the Cantata, "Eternal Life," by the choir of Trinity Reformed Church, on Sunday night.

Circassians
 The name Circassians is applied to people inhabiting the northwestern part of the Caucasus. Their name for themselves is Adighe; the Turks and Russians call them Tcherkasses or brigands. Both Circassian men and women are noted for physical beauty and many Circassian girls enter Turkish harems. After the Russian conquest of their territory in 1864, several hundred thousand of them emigrated. Among the upper classes Mohammedanism is the chief religion.

Penny Bought a Resort
 Zakopane, famous Polish resort, was once put up to auction as part of a vast estate. To save it for his country, a Polish nobleman offered a penny more each time a non-Polish bidder made an offer for it. The bidding went up and up, but the Pole finally secured the resort for just a penny more than others had offered.

Dozens of Castes Among Hindus; Twice-Born Aces

Among the Hindus there are dozens of castes, of which the Brahmins, or Twice-Born, are the highest. There are many lower grades until one comes to the Untouchables, who are pariahs and outcasts in the extreme sense. The members of any caste are not allowed to marry into a higher, but Untouchables are usually segregated in their own villages, like lepers.

In Bengal they enjoy a certain freedom, but if the shadow of one fell on a Brahmin when he was eating, the man would have to cast away his food and fine brass dishes, bathe in the River Ganges and make "pooja" (prayers and sacrifices).

In other parts, where old customs die hard, Untouchables have an exceedingly thin time. In Britain dogs are treated better.

Some of the worst areas lie along the Malabar coast and in the Madras Presidency. Here, according to a writer in London Tit-Bits Magazine, outcasts have to keep their distance from Brahmins. Thus, a Brahmin is polluted if a Shanar—toddly tapper—comes within twenty-four paces of him. Tiyanis must keep thirty-six paces away; cobblers, masons, blacksmiths, and carpenters twenty-four paces; Pulvan cultivators forty-eight paces; and Doms, Chamars, and Pariahs—who eat beef—sixty-four paces. Nayers can approach, but not touch, a Brahmin, who will also exhibit disgust if the shadow of a European falls on him while eating.

Mandrake Is Supposed to Resemble the Human Form

The mandrake or mandragora has been credited since ancient times with strange properties. Around it many legends have grown up. The true mandrake is a native of the Mediterranean region and it belongs to the Solanaceae or potato family, according to a writer in the Montreal Herald. The mandrake of history is a plant with a large spindle-shaped root which was supposed to resemble the human form. It has a short stem bearing a strip of leaves and flowers. The latter are solitary and bell shaped and vary in color from white to purple. In olden days it was used as an emetic, purgative and narcotic and was much esteemed but it has since fallen into disrepute. Herbalists in England find a use for it for alleviating the suffering of rheumatism victims. The plant is reputed to grow on old battlefields, and was credited with having life, being engendered under the earth from the body of some dead person either killed in battle or murdered.

An old herbalist states that mandrakes could not be pulled from the earth without producing fatal effects, so a cord was fixed round a dog's neck, and the dog being chased drew out the mandrake, whereupon it died of fright when the plant shrieked on being uprooted. Still another superstition is that a small dose makes a person vain and conceited and a large dose makes him an idiot.

On the Nest Early and Often!

BIG UNIFORM PULLETS ready to lay early in the fall—that's what every poultryman wants. And that's what you get when you feed Purina Growena, the all-in-one growing feed that contains Pur-a-tenel! If you feed your pullets grain or untested mash they take 7 or 8 months to come into laying. You miss the fall months when egg prices are highest.

Don't take chances this year—start your chicks on Startena, grow them on Growena. You'll have big, well-developed pullets in 5 months, you'll get eggs during the fall months when egg prices are highest. See us today for a supply of Startena and Growena.

San Francisco—Oakland Bay Bridge Has Intricate Telephone System

San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, 8 1/4 miles long, has its own telephone system.

Even bridges have telephone service. The great eight-and-a-quarter-mile $77,000,000 San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge has a telephone system with 22 police telephones, 6 sub-station telephones and 53 plug-in stations. The 22 police telephones are installed on the outside rail on the two sides of the bridge. Each is equipped with an electric light which flashes to attract the attention of the policeman wanted. The six sub-stations are located at various parts of the bridge, such as the shroud at the top of the center anchorage, the administrative building and the two end anchorages.

On Trial
 "Did you convince your audience that your ideas were correct?"
 "It wasn't a case of convincing that audience," replied Senator Sorghum. "The people had their minds made up and came around to get a line on whether I agreed with them or not."

Tell Too Much
 Mr. Oldsport—Do you doubt my love? Look in my eyes and read it there. The eyes are the windows of the soul.
 Miss Goldentide—Windows of the soul! Your eyes do look awfully glassy.—Chelsea Record.

A Brief Reply
 Mistress—Jane, Jane! Yesterday you broke two vases and today you've broken three plates and four cups. What will be broken tomorrow at this rate?
 Maid—Not so much, ma'am, it is my afternoon out.

His Business
 "Believe me," said the comedian, "when I do my stuff on the stage they roar."
 "How wonderful!" cooed the pretty young thing, "Are you a lion-tamer?"

Nordic Drama of Creation
 The old Nordic drama of creation is much longer than the Bible one. In the beginning, so the drama starts, there was no heaven, no earth, but in the middle a vast abyss, Ginnungagap. A hot wind struck against the ice of Ginnungagap, melting and dripping the ice into living drops, and the drops took the shape of man. Thus arose an immense giant, Ymir, and while Ymir was asleep a perspiration started all over his body; in his left armpit a man and a woman grew out . . . and so on, for long interminable pages.

Largest Cattle Raising Country
 Argentina is a cow country extraordinary. This nation has more cattle per capita than any other country in the world. Its record of three cattle per person exceeds that of the United States. It will be remembered that horses escaped from the Spaniards on the mainland of North America and multiplied on the fertile plains. Both wild horses and wild cattle multiplied on Argentina's pampas. Thus the Argentina gaucho (or cowboy) became a hunter of free-roaming cattle and horses, while the northern plainsman became a herder.

The GARDEN MURDER CASE

by S. S. VAN DINE

Copyright S. S. Van Dine WNU Service

I wandered into the den, the door of which was ajar, and walked aimlessly about the room, looking at the various pictures and etchings. Just then Vance entered. As he came in he threw the door open wider, half pocketing me in the corner behind it, where I was not immediately noticeable. I was about to speak to him, when Zalia Graem came in.

"Philo Vance." She called his name in a low, tremulous voice.

He turned and looked at the girl with a quizzical frown.

"I've been waiting in the dining-room," she said. "I wanted to see you before you spoke to the others."

I realized immediately, from the tone of her voice, that my presence had not been noticed.

Vance continued to look squarely at the girl, but did not speak. She came very close to him now.

"Tell me why you have made me suffer so much," she said.

"I know I have hurt you," Vance returned. "But the circumstances made it imperative. Please believe that I understand more of this case than you imagine I do."

"I am not sure that I understand." The girl spoke hesitantly.

"But I want you to know that I trust you." She looked up at him, and I could see that her eyes were glistening. Slowly she bowed her head.

"I have never been interested in any man," she went on—and there was a quaver in her voice. "The men I have known have all made me unhappy and seemed always to lead me away from the things I longed for . . ."

She caught her breath. "You are the one man I have ever known whom I could—care for."

So suddenly had this startling confession come, that I did not have time to make my presence known, and after Miss Graem finished speaking I remained where I was, lest I cause her embarrassment.

She Gave Him a Searching Look.

Vance placed his hands on the girl's shoulders and held her away from him.

"My dear," he said, with a curiously suppressed quality in his voice, "I am the one man for whom you should not care." There was no mistaking the finality of his words.

Vance smiled wistfully at the girl.

"Would you mind waiting in the drawing-room a little while? . . ."

She gave him a searching look and, without speaking, turned and went from the den.

Vance stood for some time gazing at the floor with a frown of indecision, as if loath to proceed with whatever plans he had formulated.

I took this opportunity to come out from my corner, and just as I did so Floyd Garden appeared at the hall door.

"Oh, hello, Vance," he said. "I didn't know you had returned until Zalia just told me you were in here. Anything I can do for you?"

Vance swung around quickly.

"I was just going to send for you. Everyone here?"

Garden nodded gravely. "Yes, and they're all frightened to death—all except Hammie. He takes the whole thing as a lark. I wish somebody had shot him instead of Woody."

"Will you send him in here," Vance asked. "I want to talk to him. I'll see the others presently."

Garden walked up the hall, and at that moment I heard Burke speaking to Markham at the front door. Markham immediately joined us

"Hope I haven't kept you waiting," he greeted Vance.

"No. Oh, no." Vance leaned against the desk. "Just in time."

Markham had barely seated himself when Hammie strutted into the den with a jovial air. Vance nodded to him brusquely.

"Mr. Hammie," he said, "we're wholly familiar with your philosophy of minding your own business and keeping silent in order to avoid all involvements. A defensible attitude—but not in the present circumstances. This is a criminal case, and in the interest of justice to everyone concerned, we must have the whole truth. Yesterday afternoon you were the only one in the drawing-room who had even a partial view down the hallway. And we must know everything you saw, no matter how trivial it may seem to you."

Hammie gave in.

"First of all, then," said Vance, without relaxing his stern gaze, "when Miss Graem left the room, ostensibly to answer a telephone call, did you notice exactly where she went?"

"Not exactly," Hammie returned; "but she turned to the left, toward the den. You understand, of course, that it was impossible for me to see very far down the hall, even from where I sat."

"Quite," Vance nodded. "And when she came back to the drawing-room?"

"I saw her first opposite the den door. She went to the hall closet where the hats and wraps are kept, and then came back to stand in the archway until the race was over. After that I didn't notice her either coming or going."

"And what about Floyd Garden?" asked Vance. "You remember he followed Swift out of the room. Did you notice which way they went, or what they did?"

"As I remember, Floyd put his arm around Swift and led him into the dining-room. After a few moments they came out. Swift seemed to be pushing Floyd away from him, and then he disappeared down the hall toward the stairs. Floyd stood outside the dining-room door for several minutes, looking after his cousin, and then went down the hall after him; but he must have changed his mind, for he came back into the drawing-room in short order."

"And you saw no one else in the hall?"

"No. No one else."

"Very good," Vance took a deep inhalation on his cigarette. "And now let's go to the roof-garden, figuratively speaking. You were in the garden, waiting for a train, when the nurse was almost suffocated with bromin gas in the vault. The door into the passageway was open, and if you had been looking in the direction you could easily have seen who passed up and down the corridor." Vance looked at the man significantly. "And I have a feeling you were looking through that door, Mr. Hammie. Your reaction of astonishment when we came out on the roof was a bit overdue. And you couldn't have seen much of the city from where you had been standing, don't you know?"

Hammie cleared his throat and grinned.

"You have me there, Vance," he admitted with familiar good-humor. "Since I couldn't make my train, I thought I'd satisfy my curiosity and stick around for a while to see what happened. I went out on the roof and stood where I could look through the door into the passageway—I wanted to see who was going to get hell next, and what would come of it all."

"Thanks for your honesty," Vance's face was coldly formal. "Please tell us now exactly what you saw through that doorway while you were waiting, as you've confessed, for something to happen."

Again Hammie cleared his throat.

"Well, Vance, to tell you the truth, it wasn't very much. Just people coming and going. First I saw Garden go up the passageway toward the study; and almost immediately he went back downstairs. Then Zalia Graem passed the door on her way to the study. Five or ten minutes later the detective—Heath, I think his name is—went by the door, carrying a coat over his arm. A little later—two or three minutes, I should say—Zalia Graem and the nurse passed each other in the passageway, Zalia going toward the stairs, and the nurse toward the study. A couple of minutes after that Floyd Garden passed the door on his way to the study again."

"Just a minute," Vance interrupted. "You didn't see the nurse return downstairs after she passed Miss Graem in the passageway?"

Hammie shook his head emphatically. "No. Absolutely not."

Vance took another deep puff on his cigarette.

"One more thing, Mr. Hammie: while you were out there in the garden, did anyone come out on the roof from the terrace gate?"

"Absolutely not. I didn't see anybody at all on the roof."

"And when Garden had returned downstairs, what then?"

"I saw you come to the window and look out into the garden. I was afraid I might be seen, and the minute you turned away I went over to the far corner of the garden, by the gate. The next thing I knew, you gentlemen were coming out on the roof with the nurse."

Vance moved forward from the desk against which he had been resting.

"Thank you, Mr. Hammie. You've told me exactly what I wanted to know. It may interest you to learn that the nurse informed us she was struck over the head in the passageway, on leaving the study, and forced into the vault which was full of bromin fumes."

Zalia Graem was the first to enter the den. She glanced at Vance appealingly and seated herself without a word. She was followed by Miss Weatherby and Kroon, who sat down unobtrusively beside her on the davenport. Floyd Garden and his father came in together. Miss Beeton was just behind them and stopped hesitantly in the doorway, looking uncertainly at Vance.

"Did you want me too?" she asked diffidently.

"I think it might be best, Miss Beeton," said Vance. "We may need your help."

At that moment the front door bell rang, and Burke ushered Doctor Siefert into the den.

"I just got your message, Mr. Vance, and came right over." He looked about the room questioning-ly.

"I thought you might care to be present," Vance said, "in case we can reach some conclusion about the situation here. I know you are personally interested. Otherwise I wouldn't have telephoned you."

"I'm glad you did," said Siefert blandly, and walked across to a chair before the desk.

Vance lighted a cigarette with slow deliberation, his eyes moving aimlessly about the room. There was a tension over the assembled group.

The taut silence was broken by Vance's voice. He spoke casually, but with a curious emphasis.

"I have asked you all to come here this afternoon in the hope that we could clear up the very tragic situation that exists."

He was interrupted by the startling sound of a shot ominously like that of the day before. Everyone in the room stood up quickly, aghast at the sudden detonation. Everyone except Vance. And before anyone could speak, his calm authoritative voice was saying:

"There is no need for alarm. Please sit down. I expressly arranged that shot for all of you to hear—it will have an important bearing on the case . . ."

Burke appeared at the door.

"Was that all right, Mr. Vance?"

"Quite all right," Vance told him. "The same revolver and blanks?"

"Sure. Just like you told me. And from where you said. Wasn't it like you wanted it?"

"Yes, precisely," nodded Vance. "Thanks, Burke."

The detective grinned broadly and moved away down the hall.

"That shot, I believe," resumed Vance, sweeping his eyes lazily over those present, "was similar to the one we heard yesterday afternoon—the one that summoned us to Swift's dead body. It may interest you to know that the shot just fired by Detective Burke was fired from the same revolver, with the same cartridges, that the murderer used yesterday—and from about the same spot."

"But this shot sounded as if it were fired down here somewhere," cut in Siefert.

"Exactly," said Vance with satisfaction. "It was fired from one of the windows on this floor."

"But I understand that the shot yesterday came from upstairs," Siefert looked perplexed.

"That was the general, but erroneous, assumption," explained Vance. "Actually it did not. Yesterday, because of the open roof door and the stairway, and the closed door of the room from which the shot was fired, and mainly because we were psychologically keyed to the idea of a shot from the roof, it gave us all the impression of coming from the garden."

Zalia Graem turned quickly to Vance.

"The shot yesterday didn't sound to me as if it came from the garden. When I came out of the den I wondered why you were all hurrying upstairs."

Vance returned her gaze squarely.

"No, it must have sounded much closer to you," he said. "But why didn't you mention that important fact yesterday when I talked with you about the crime?"

"I—don't know," the girl stammered. "When I saw Woody dead up there, I naturally thought I'd been mistaken."

"But you couldn't have been mistaken," returned Vance, half under his breath. "And after the revolver had been fired yesterday from a downstairs window, it was surreptitiously placed in the pocket of Miss Beeton's top-coat in the hall closet. Had it been fired from upstairs it could have been hidden to far better advantage somewhere on the roof or in the study." He turned again to the girl. "By the way, Miss Graem, didn't you go to that closet after answering your telephone call here in the den?"

The girl gasped.

"How—how did you know?"

"You were seen there," explained Vance.

The girl turned back to Vance with flashing eyes.

"I'll tell you why I went to the hall closet. I went to get a handkerchief I had left in my handbag. Does that make me a murderer?"

"No. Oh, no." Vance shook his head and sighed. "Thank you for the explanation . . . And will you be so good as to tell me exactly what you did last night when you answered Mrs. Garden's summons?"

Zalia Graem glared defiantly at Vance.

"I asked Mrs. Garden what I could do for her, and she requested me to fill the water glass on the little table beside her bed. I went into the bathroom and filled it, then I arranged her pillows and asked her if there was anything else she wanted. She thanked me and shook her head; and I returned to the drawing-room."

"Thank you," murmured Vance, nodding to Miss Graem and turning to the nurse. "Miss Beeton," he asked, "when you returned last night, was the bedroom window which opens on the balcony bolted?"

The nurse seemed surprised at the question. But when she answered, it was in a calm, professional tone.

"I didn't notice. But I know it was bolted when I went out—"

He turned leisurely to Floyd Garden. "I say, Garden when you left the drawing-room yesterday afternoon, to follow Swift on your errand of mercy, as it were, after he had given you his bet on Equanimity, where did you go with him?"

"I led him into the dining-room." The man was at once troubled and aggressive. "I argued with him for a while, and then he came out and went down the hall to the stairs. I watched him for a couple of minutes, wondering what else I might do about it, for, to tell you the truth, I didn't want him to listen in on the race upstairs. I was pretty damned sure Equanimity wouldn't win, and he didn't know I hadn't placed his bet. I was rather worried about what he might do. For a minute I thought of following him upstairs, but changed my mind."

Vance lowered his eyes to the desk and was silent for several moments, smoking meditatively.

"I'm frightfully sorry, and all that," he murmured at length, without looking up; "but the fact is, we don't seem to be getting any forrader. There are plausible explanations for everything and everybody. Assuming—merely as a hypothesis—that anyone here could be guilty of the murder of Swift, of the apparent attempt to murder Miss Beeton, and of the possible murder of Mrs. Garden, there is nothing tangible to substantiate an individual accusation. The performance was too clever, too well conceived, and the innocent persons seem unconsciously and involuntarily to have formed a conspiracy to aid and abet the murderer."

Vance looked up and went on.

"Moreover, nearly everyone has acted in a manner which conceivably would make him appear guilty. There have been an amazing number of accusations. Mr. Kroon was the first victim of one of those unsubstantiated accusations. Miss Graem has been pointed out to me as the culprit by several persons. Mrs. Garden last night directly accused her son. In fact, there has been a general tendency to involve various people in the criminal activities here. From the human and psychological point of view the issue has been both deliberately and unconsciously clouded, until the confusion was such that no clear-cut outline remained. And this created an atmosphere which perfectly suited the murderer's machinations, for it made detection extremely difficult and positive proof almost impossible . . . And yet," Vance added, "some one in this room is guilty."

He rose dejectedly. I could not understand his manner: it was so unlike the man as I had always known him. All of his assurance seemed gone. Then he swung round quickly, and his eyes swept angrily about the room, resting for a brief moment on each one present.

"Furthermore," he said with a staccato stress on his words, "I know who the guilty person is!"

There was an uneasy stir in the room and a short tense silence which was broken by Doctor Siefert's cultured voice.

"If that is the case, Mr. Vance—and I do not doubt the sincerity of your statement—I think it your duty to name that person."

Vance regarded the doctor thoughtfully for several moments before answering. Then he said in a low voice: "I think you are right, sir." Again he paused and, lighting a fresh cigarette, moved restlessly up and down in front of the window.

"First, however," he said stopping suddenly, "there's something upstairs I wish to look at again—to make sure . . . You will all please remain here for a few minutes." And he moved swiftly toward the door. At the threshold he hesitated and turned to the nurse. "Please come with me, Miss Beeton, I think you can help me."

The nurse rose and followed Vance into the hall. A moment later we could hear them mounting the stairs.

Fully five minutes passed, and then the tense silence of the room was split by a woman's frenzied and terrifying cry for help, from somewhere upstairs. As we reached the hallway the nurse came stumbling down the stairs, holding with both hands to the bronze railing. Her face was ghastly pale.

"Mr. Markham! Mr. Markham!" she called hysterically. "Oh, my God! The most terrible thing has happened!"

She had just reached the foot of the stairs when Markham came up to her. She stood clutching the railing for support.

"It's Mr. Vance!" she panted excitedly. "He's—gone!"

A chill of horror passed over me, and everyone in the hall seemed stunned.

In broken phrases, interspersed with gasping sobs, the nurse was explaining to Markham.

"He went over—Oh, God, it was terrible! He said he wanted to ask me something, and led me out into the garden. He began questioning me about Doctor Siefert, and Professor Garden, and Miss Graem. And while he talked he moved over to the parapet— you remember where he stood last night. He got up there again, and looked down. I was frightened—the way I was yesterday. And then—and then—while

"Miss Beeton, I Think You Can Help Me."

I was talking to him—he bent over, and I could see—oh, God!—he had lost his balance." She stared at Markham wild-eyed. "I reached toward him . . . and suddenly he wasn't there any more . . . He had gone over! . . ."

Lesson for April 18

THE EFFECTS OF ALOCHOLIC BEVERAGES

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 13:13; 19:23-25;
Deuteronomy 32:31-33; Proverbs 23:29-32.
GOLDEN TEXT—At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder.
Proverbs 23:32.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Had First Choice.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Way of Woe.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—
What Science Says About Alcohol.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—
The Scientific Basis of Temperance.

The American people are alert to the forces which threaten the bulwarks of national life, and are ready to take intelligent and effective action against them when fully aroused to the danger. The powers of evil know this to be true and are careful to avoid anything that directs our attention to what is constantly going on under cover. The liquor question is one of our nation's most serious problems. The devastating results of the widespread sale and use of intoxicants will only be known as Christian men and women unmask this wicked business which poses under the banner of congenial and pleasant living, and proudly points to its recognition by the government as a legal enterprise.

The facts are available through various temperance organizations and in such books as "Alcohol and Man," by Dr. Emerson of Columbia university. The Sunday School lessons for 1937 present four opportunities to bring the matter squarely before the adults and children who are in our Bible Schools. We have already (Jan. 31) considered the economic problem, and will later deal with temperance as a social and moral evil. The lesson for today affords a special opportunity to touch on the scientific side, presenting intoxicants in their true light as a poison. Look up the word "intoxicate" in a good dictionary and you at once have a picture of what beer, wine, and whiskey do to the human body.

The Christian approach to any consideration of the matter is by recognizing that man is a spiritual being, dwelling in a physical body.

I. We Live in a World of Moral Responsibility (Gen. 13:13; 19:23-25).

Life is not a careless drifting from day to day, from pleasure to pleasure, into sin or not as one may choose, with no responsibility for one's actions. Man was created in the likeness and image of God. He possesses the power of choice. He knows right from wrong. If he chooses to do right he has all the resources of the omnipotent God to call upon as his strength and stay. But if he chooses to turn his back upon God and upon Christ, and to go into the ways of sin, let him be sure that there is a day of judgment to come from which he shall in no wise escape. The destruction of the wicked cities of the plain, terrible as it was in itself, is but a prophecy of judgment to come. See Luke 10:10-12.

II. Men Go Two Different Ways (Deut. 32:31-33).

Moses contrasts the Rock in which his people trusted, and the corrupt standards of their heathen neighbors by which they were tempted. One greater than Moses spoke of the two ways (read Matt. 7:13, 14), and pointed out the sad fact that there are many that go down the broad way to destruction, and few who walk in the narrow way of life. Let us seek to win our young men and women away from the sinful ways of this world.

III. The Liquor Way is the Wrong Way (Prov. 23:29-32).

Skillful indeed are the advertising devices of the liquor interests! They associate their intoxicants (poisons) with holiday festivities, happy family gatherings, social preferment, and so on. They do not picture the bleary eye, the babbling tongue, the "wounds without cause." They carefully overlook the broken-hearted mother, the ragged children, the empty cupboard, and the devastated home life. They say nothing of the men who have lost their characters and their jobs, and of the women who have lowered themselves beyond description because of their love for liquor. Let us in tenderness and heart-broken humility present to our Sunday School classes that picture, which is a disgrace to our nation. The wine may look red, and it may even go "smoothly down the throat" (a possible translation of the words "when it moveth aright," v. 31), but it still has the bite of a serpent and the sting of an adder (v. 32).

Aims and Duties
What are the aims which are at the same time duties?—they are the perfecting of ourselves, and the happiness of others.

Injustice
The injustice of men subverts the justice of God, and often His mercy.—Madame Swetchine.

Doing Good
"Doing good is the only certainly happy action of man's life."—Sir Philip Sidney.

Sad-Eyed Saint Bernard

Most Romantic Large Dog

Probably the most romantic portrayed dog of all the large canine family is the sad-eyed Saint Bernard. This dog gained its reputation down through the years as a rescuer of man in the dangerous mountain passes of the Swiss Alps.

However, the Saint Bernard did not originate amid the lofty peaks, where later it was destined to become a hero on countless occasions. In short, this dog did not first come to light in Switzerland, asserts a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Folks have become quite familiar with the Saint Bernard because it has frequently been pictured in a setting of snow and ice, with brandy cask suspended from a huge collar. The eyes of the dog express sorrow, probably because of the "haw" or third eyelid.

These dogs are one of the giants of dogdom. When full grown, the average Saint Bernard weighs from 170 to 210 pounds.

The Saint Bernard is a graceful mover, chiefly because of its broad feet, which encase closed up toes that are well padded.

In fact, these dogs have a "fifth toe" on their hind feet. This is not a freak of nature which frequently crops up in other breeds. The "fifth toe" is a developed dewclaw that really is actually another toe. The surefootedness has been developed chiefly among the Swiss types, that have been used for rescue work.

Bird's Driving Force Is

Due to Downward Stroke

The driving force which propels a bird through the air is entirely due to the downward stroke of its wings, according to Naturalist S. F. Aaron, writing in Scientific American. Aaron further states that the feathers of a bird's wing remain tightly closed on the down stroke, but spread slightly on the up-stroke, thus permitting the wing to be raised without much resistance.

As Aaron describes the curious mechanism of wing structure that makes this possible, each of the large "flight feathers" turns or pivots on its individual quill, much as the shutters on a blind may be turned. The quills of these feathers are not in the middle, but nearer the forward side. On the up-stroke these pivot automatically in their socket, allowing the wing to recover its stroke upward through the air without tending so much to retard the bird's progress. But the feathers cannot pivot thus on the down-stroke because the broad rear edge of one feather is held against the front edge of the next.

"Seven Seas," Figurative Term

The term "The Seven Seas" is not intended to be taken literally, but is a figurative term denoting all the seas and oceans of the world. When Rudyard Kipling gave the name to a book of his poems he mentioned that it might be used in this sense or to include the seven great oceans, the North Atlantic, South Atlantic, North Pacific, South Pacific, Indian, Arctic and Antarctic. Areas are: Pacific, 68,634,000 square miles; Atlantic, 41,321,000; Indian, 29,340,000; Arctic, 4,781,000; Antarctic, 5,731,350. Average depths are: Pacific, 12,960 feet; Atlantic, 12,200; Indian, 11,136; Antarctic, 10,800; Arctic, 5,160. Exact dimensions cannot be given. The Dead sea in Palestine is 47 miles long, 10 miles wide, 1,030 feet deep and has an area of 360 square miles; its surface is 1,300 feet below sea level.

Hands Reveal Character

Anyone who sits with hands loosely clasped in the lap is of a quiet, well-balanced mind, while the nervous person tries to control nervousness by tightly gripping the hands together, states a writer in Pearson's London Weekly. One who has a habit of clasping hands with fingers entwined is not keeping strictly to the truth, while one who partially covers the mouth with a hand while talking has certain knowledge, but is trying desperately to reveal it. A person who remains seated while conversing with another who is standing finds it very difficult to tell an untruth and very attempt to do so is easily detected by the person standing.

Saint Bernard of Mastiff Family

Unlike many other breeds, the origin of the Saint Bernard is a bit hazy, but early historians have agreed this type of dog belongs to the Mastiff family. The ancient records produce evidence that Mastiff dogs were brought from Asia, and used by the Romans as herders of sheep, besides being kept as watch dogs at army outposts. It has also been established that Roman soldiers used large dogs to guide sheep over the mountain passes, one of which was called the Saint Bernard Pass, no more than a pack mule path. A hostile tribe destroyed this path and cut off travel over the mountains around 950 A. D.

Lemming, Scandinavian Rodent

The lemming is a Scandinavian rodent, about five inches in length, noted for its pugnacity, its productivity and its curious mass migrations. They eat as they travel, and breed with amazing rapidity. They drive away all other animals in their path, attacking cows, reindeer and even man, fearlessly.

"Pre-Centennial Review"

John E. Eckenrode Automobile Works

A crash caused by the sudden impact of two motor cars—the gathering of a curious throng to witness the wreck—the arrival of the wrecking car and the incident is over so far as the spectators are concerned.

For the body repairman the story just commences because in his care has been placed the task of removing the dents, the broken parts and the damage that the unexpected accident has produced.

This firm certainly meets the needs of the motoring public at such times like these. Equipped with the finest machinery known to the trade and with an organization consisting of men that are skilled in this class of work, the ultimate result is a finished job that eliminates all the earmarks of having been in a wreck. Courteous service, adequate accommodations, modernized machinery and lowest possible costs consistent with first class workmanship is the creed of the John E. Eckenrode Automobile Works located in Westminster on George St. We are glad to recommend this firm and feel confident the people are glad to respond to such a policy. Phone Westminster 310-J.

Wm. E. Conaway, Popular Chevrolet and Oldsmobile Dealer

The day is here when the automobile is no longer looked upon as a luxury. People have wisely been taught the wisdom of owning and driving a car as a means not alone of getting where they wish to go quicker, but of getting twice as far in life, to say nothing of the pleasure and happiness of owning and driving a car.

To a larger percentage the cost is still prohibitive. Men with families who have an ordinary income find the drain of the down payment and monthly installments a bigger burden than they can shoulder. The answer for them—the secret of their future leisure and happiness lies in these simple words: "BUY A GOOD USED CAR." with an O. K. tag that counts.

The Conaway Chevrolet & Oldsmobile Sales located in Westminster at 72 W. Main St., knows good used cars and has values to offer that are astonishingly low in price, that can hardly be told from brand new—and with years of smooth satisfactory running in them.

This enterprising firm, being a permanent institution in this community, eliminates every element of risk or gamble out of your purchase and are right there to stand behind every car sold and see that it provides the maximum of service and pleasure for the least amount of money. The editor of this column takes real pride in recommending the Conaway Chevrolet and Oldsmobile Sales, and the cars they sell.

Western Maryland College

Western Maryland College of Westminster was founded with the end in view of giving to the people of this part of the country an opportunity to further their desires for a higher education. Affording courses in the higher arts leading to the professional courses the original purpose of this institution was to give young men and women an opportunity to increase their knowledge without going to some far off place. It gave them the opportunity to study right at home. An ideal place with refined surroundings amidst a scenic beauty that was unsurpassed.

This modern institution has kept abreast of the times and conditions. Their buildings, dormitories, laboratories and general equipment is of the latest design and invention. Everything in the college has been equipped with the purpose of giving to the youth of our community an educational institution on a par with the leading educational centers in the country. Dr. F. G. Holloway, the Professor and Instructor is devoting his life to a service of the people and the community in the affording of a worthwhile service making for a more happy and contented people.

Rainbow Inn Gains In Popularity

We Americans are certainly fastidious people. We have certain set standards and rules and have achieved the reputation with our neighboring people of being particular almost to the degree of a fault.

From this can be gained the facts that individuals who operate an inn have no mean task on their hands. They must bend their service to meet the individual tastes and requirements of all who enter the establishment.

The Rainbow Inn under direction of Earl and Margaret Hawn, located in Westminster at 186 W. Main St., is gaining in popularity. Here can be secured most delicious tasting food. Food that are famous for their homelike tastiness. Cleanliness, hospitality—have all been combined at the Rainbow Inn, and served in an atmosphere of refinement.

It is no wonder that Rainbow Inn is the eating place for home folks and those from afar. For here is an establishment that fills the requirements of all fine foods. Nutritiously cooked foods that bring the jaded appetite back to life.

We congratulate Earl and Margaret Hawn, and wish them years of progress and success.

Lawver's Garage Affords Unusually Fine Repair Service

This garage engages itself in a general automobile repair business. It makes no difference how large or small the car, the number of cylinders it contains, or what the make. This firm knows exactly how to go about repairing it with the least delay and cost to the owner. Lawver's Garage, of Biglerville, has many years of experience. He has spent practically a life time in studying the working parts of a motor car and knows exactly where to locate the trouble. The result is a skilled repair mechanic who has demonstrated his ability time and again on the work done. This truly is a Garage of efficiency and one over which the community might well feel proud. Modern Beauty Shop Affords Commendable Service

This is an age of beauty. An age when women have learned that nature can be improved in nature's own way. An age where women have learned the secret of becoming more beautiful, charming and companionable. It has been justly said to the credit of the American women that they have enhanced their beauty to a more marked degree than women of any other nation. And the men take pardonable pride in referring to our women as the most beautiful to be seen.

To be sure, dainty frocks and neatly tailored apparel have played their parts, but of more importance to the present day woman is the complexion, the hair, and other noticeable details. And it is for this reason that this enterprising beauty shop was established. The Modern Beauty Shop located in Gettysburg in the Kadel Building, have established for themselves a reputation of having done more than their share to improve the appearance of the women of the community, and at an unusually reasonable price. Here will be found a perfectly equipped Beauty Shop, where all the latest scientific inventions known to the art of beauty culture are installed.

They have embodied in the establishment which they so efficiently operate every worthwhile feature to be found in the largest metropolitan centers. We extend our best wishes for their continued success. Phone Gettysburg 99-Y.

D. & C. Hardy Plant Nursery Features Finest

On your visits and walks thru our choice residential sections haven't you already noticed the beautiful arrangements of shrubbery, trees, and vines which are planted on the premises on which are located the best homes?

The house itself may be ever so spacious and yet if there isn't a systematic assortment and arrangements of trees and vines somehow the house does not seem to be a finished product.

To make homes prettier, to increase their beauty and appearance is the mission of the D. & C. Hardy Plant Nursery operated by Patsy Donofrio located in Westminster on Fair Ground Hill, also Gorsuch Road, with branch on New Windsor Road at Richardson's place. On the lawns of the best homes in this section will be found specimens of his skill and work. He features and makes a specialty of Rock Plants and Perennials of which he has the most unusual, finest, largest and best collection in the State of Maryland.

Patsy Donofrio stakes his reputation on his beautiful specimens. He is doing everything possible to make our section a more beautiful and happier place to live and enjoy life. Phone Westminster 58-W.

Carroll County Water Co.

Water is not only the fundamental element of creation but the prime essential in every community. Due to the excellent efforts of the Carroll County Water Co., whose offices in Westminster are located at 190 E. Main St., no community or section has been better served. The men who organized this corporation foresaw possibilities of this section. They foresaw then that only a good water system was necessary to start the section to add to the city, the corporation was working placing its line and equipment throughout the district preparing for the population that was to come. No one can deny in the face of these facts that this company has been a most vital factor in the development of the community.

"Service to the Community" has been the slogan and policy of this corporation since its organization. Its rates have been kept within the limit to allow only a reasonable profit to the company with a maximum of service to the consumer. Indeed, low rates and never-failing efficient service and fine tasting, pure, palatable water of this company has become the talk of the state. Many people have been induced to this section because of the superb water service here.

Some business may be learned in a day, others a year or few years, but to master the problems of the work of a public utility water system is a lifetime work. They have given their lives to this business and have carefully analyzed the particular needs of this area. We congratulate them and wish them years of progress and prosperity.

The Coffman-Fisher Co. Opens With Fine Mdse. Display

From the earliest times down to present, from bazaars of the ancient to the beginning of store keeping and highly perfected stores of today, the retail store has been one of the strongest influences in the world because it lays the best the world has to offer in merchandise before the people of the community in which it serves.

With the opening of the new Coffman-Fisher Co., at Westminster, at 11 E. Main St., they have accepted a great responsibility in this section and point with pride to their new model establishment where the world's finest examples of practical merchandise may be seen and can be purchased. The Coffman-Fisher Co., store truly reflects the culture of the progressive community which they strive to serve in an efficient and worthwhile manner. The Coffman-Fisher Co. store was opened and founded on the basis of good taste, price rightness and economy, service and helpfulness. That they will steadfastly adhere to these policies is an accepted fact. We congratulate them on the opening of their fine new store and wish them many years of progress and success.

Beard's restaurant indeed has a very enviable reputation for miles around of serving "home cooked" food—food as you yourself would prepare for your own table. It is an establishment that certainly reflects credit on the owner Mr. Beard.

The kitchen is spotlessly clean and modernly equipped with the latest stoves and utensils, so that the food prepared possesses a flavor and taste to please the appetite of the most exacting patrons.

Busy executives and business men, out of town guests, housewives, shoppers—in fact people in all walks of life take great pride in pointing to this establishment saying "Here's where I eat and Dine."

It is this sense of responsibility and the enviable reputation which Mr. Beard enjoys which continually prods him to strive in every way to serve only the best in fine tasting food and beverages. Here is the ideal place for your private parties, banquets and dancing as Beard's have full facilities for this.

Their business and their lives are devoted to a service of the people. We recommend and compliment Mr. J. W. Beard on the high level to which he has elevated his business. Phone 472 or 416 Westminster.

J. W. Beard -- 17-19 E. Main St., Westminster, Md. Restaurant Serves Delicious Meals

Frank Leidy, Jr., located in Westminster, operates a business that combines the function of conservation and production. Years ago he saw the possibilities of a firm that would take care of dead animals and convert this waste material into feeding products for poultry and hogs.

Today both farmer and city folk are mighty glad to have Mr. Leidy serving them because this disposition of dead animals has solved an unpleasant problem and the fertilizer has beautified many parks and lawns, as well as made farms more productive.

When Mr. Leidy receives a call from a farmer that one of his livestock has died he immediately dispatches a truck to bring the remains to the rendering works. Here the animal is dissected—the meat rendered and crushed into meal which is then used for fertilizer and poultry purposes. And throughout absolute sanitation is maintained at all times. Mr. Leidy buys and pays highest market prices for Hides, Fat and Tallow.

Frank Leidy, Jr., is to be commended on the type of endeavor he operates. Phone Westminster 259.

Westminster Deposit and Trust Co.

The Westminster Deposit and Trust Co., is a bank which engages in a general banking business as well as a trust department. From its very inception the officers and directors have been men drawn from the highest types of citizenry of our county, who have been successful. Men who have the confidence of the people and who make every effort to justify that confidence in them.

This financial institution engages in all branches of modern banking. It serves as a clearing house for the small depositors as well as the larger, it serves in times of need with loans to all whose business merits the financial aid they have to offer.

The Westminster Deposit and Trust Co., located in Westminster at 115 E. Main St., offers a safety deposit service. The small charge for the safety deposit box is so reasonable that it is sheer folly to subject your valuables and papers of importance to the danger of having them lost, burned or stolen.

The officers of the bank have attained a place of high prestige in the community. We are happy to have them with us in this review. We wish them continued success and prosperity.

Newton M. Eckard Store Locally Owned & Operated

We are all aware of the fact that we could not live very long without food. But we do not realize that we must eat the right kinds of food in order to live longer—to be at our best and work efficiently.

The ever increasing patronage which the good housewives are bestowing on Newton M. Eckard's Store, locally owned and operated in Westminster, at 223 E. Main St., therefore places the stamp of approval upon these purveyors of quality foodstuffs—is one of the few places in our community where quality and low cost have met on common ground. Here will be found a complete line of groceries which have been selected by men who know this line from start to finish.

Newton M. Eckard Store are men who have, by their very intensive desire to serve and by their up-to-date place of business placed the indelible mark of "food experts" upon themselves. A quality establishment operated by quality methods, affording quality products. We recommend them and wish them further success.

Monarch Cleaners

"We clean anything from a kid glove to a limousine," is the slogan of these enterprising cleaners. When this firm started business they saw the possibilities of rendering the community real service. With the ever-increasing popularity of the automobile came an insistent demand for dry cleaning and pressing that would remove dirt, grease and grim and rebuild into these clothes the original shape of the collar, the shape of the chest and shoulders. To meet this demand, the Monarch Cleaners operated by Mr. McDonald installed the very latest equipment in order to enable them to produce the very highest quality of work in the least possible time and with the best possible cost.

Monarch Cleaners located in Westminster at 210 Pennsylvania Ave., and branch at Littlestown, are specialists in dry cleaning silks and silk dresses, dry cleaning and pressing men's suits and cater to feminine wants of the most fastidious with equal efficiency. No frock is too dainty, no spot too big. They are to be commended and deserve the support of the public. Phone Westminster 484.

W. I. L. HOLDS ANNUAL MEMBERSHIP MEETING.

The Carroll County Branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom held its annual membership meeting in the Methodist Protestant Church, Wednesday, April 7th. The president, Miss Carrie Mourer, presided. The meeting was opened with prayer by the pastor, Rev. Ewell, followed by the hymn, "America, the Beautiful." Reports were then given by the secretary, Mrs. F. G. Holloway; the treasurer, Mrs. L. M. Berthoff, and the legislative chairman, Mrs. Charles Forlines. The president, Miss Mourer gave a resume of the activities of the past year. From a membership of seventy-one, two years ago, the organization has grown to 240 at the present time.

Following the reports, Miss Stella Evans sang "Somebody," accompanied by Mrs. Mary Test Kimmy.

The social committee of the W. I. L. served coffee and tea for the box luncheon, after which a social hour was enjoyed.

The afternoon session opened with the singing of a hymn. Mrs. Holloway told of the organization being effected in each of the election districts of the county, with a leader in each district. Mrs. Nulton from Taneytown, reported that they had doubled their membership. Miss Tribble, of New Windsor, read Mrs. Cora Stouffer's report of the committee hearing on the neutrality bill which she attended. Mrs. Elizabeth Englar reported on the study course held in New Windsor, led by Rev. Hays.

The outstanding feature of the afternoon was an address on "Peace and Creative Writing," by Dr. Elizabeth Nitchie, of Goucher College. She gave selections from poetry and prose showing the evil effects of war. After the address, Mrs. Charles Essom sang "My Task," accompanied by Mrs. Norman Hunter.

The following officers were elected: President, Miss Carrie Mourer; 1st. Vice-President, Mrs. Mary Test Kimmy; 2nd. Vice-President, Mrs. Arthur Scott; Secretary, Miss Mary Cunningham; Treasurer, Miss Louise Matthews. The chairman of departments are: Education, Mrs. Fred G. Holloway; Motion Pictures, Miss Lillian Shipley; Legislative, Mrs. Charles E. Forlines; Membership, Mrs. Lewis Brumbaugh; Publicity, Mrs. H. Edgar Royer; Social, Mrs. J. E. Stoner.

Mrs. Norman Hunter sang the "Londonderry Air," accompanied by Miss Anna Shriver.

The president announced the State W. I. L. meeting to be held in Baltimore, April 17. Three delegates were appointed to attend this meeting, Miss Mourer, Mrs. Sarah Bennett and Mrs. Cora Stouffer.

Mrs. Orris G. Robinson, the state president, announced the National meeting in Washington, April 30 to May 3rd.

BOMBERGER FOR FARM CO-OPERATIVES.

Baltimore, Md., April 15—Co-operating in purchasing farm supplies, providing farm services or selling farm products is just as much a part of the farmer's business as is cultivating his land and harvesting and marketing his crops, according to a statement today by Dr. F. B. Bomberger, president of the Baltimore Bank for Co-operatives.

"It is difficult to understand," said Dr. Bomberger, "why so many farmers fail to grasp the truth of that simple fact. In the old days a farmer joined with his neighbors, or co-operated, in 'raising' barns or in threshing crops. Farmers easily recognized the advantages of such co-operation. But when it comes to selling livestock, buying fertilizer or purchasing credit, many farmers fail to see that the co-operative principle will work for them just as effectively and profitably as it did in those earlier and simpler operations."

"The success of thousands of co-operatives in this country and abroad has removed all doubt as to the soundness of co-operative principles," he declared. "What more farmers need to do is to apply those principles to more of the every-day operations of the farm. When they do, co-operation will become just another farm implement, like the tractor, the mower or the hay rake. It will be recognized as the most effective and productive piece of machinery on the farm."

HINTS FOR LONG LIFE.

On the basis of reports from three separate scientific sources, the public at large last week had broad hints on how to live longer. The reports had to do with proper dieting, waistline control, and enlightened use of medical knowledge.

Dieting: Before the Academy of Medicine in New York, Dr. Henry C. Sherman, Columbia University chemist and one of the world's foremost authorities on nutrition declared that the span of human life could be stretched from 70 to 77 years if man would eat nutritional and protective foods in proper proportion. Although he did not name the foods, Dr. Sherman intimated that life could be made longer if milk, vegetables and fruit were consumed in larger quantities.

Paunch: The expanding waistline or paunch should not be allowed to develop. In a report written for Modern Medicine, Drs. W. J. Kerr and J. B. Lagen of the University of California asserted that "an extending stomach" may cause diseases by making breathing difficult and affecting the nerves. A paunch, they said, was a "counterweight of fat" which changes posture and puts a strain on the backbone. To be healthy, they advised, avoid the paunch by proper exercise and diet.

Medical knowledge: In Washington Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, asserted that the average length of human life could be stretched another ten years if the public took advantage of all the medical knowledge available in the modern world. He implied that the public should take care of itself by attending to ills without delays and by using judgment in seeking the right medical treatment.—The Pathfinder.

JOINT CONSISTORY MEETS.

The joint consistory of Manchester Reformed Church, met at the Manchester Church, Monday evening, Jas. A. Wentz, of Lineboro, was elected Elder Primarius, and C. R. Brillhart, of Manchester, Elder Cecundus to represent the charge at the meetings of Classis and Synod in 1937.

Thirty-three new members were added to the churches in the charge since January 1, the largest number added in any year during the present pastorate of 12½ years except in 1928.

A motion to express the appreciation of the joint consistory for the work done by the pastor, Rev. Hollenbach, during the pastorate, was unanimously adopted by a rising vote. The members of the consistory served sandwiches and coffee.

Date Palm Produces for at Least Two Centuries

A date palm comes into bearing at six years and attains full maturity at ten years. Records show that from then on it is good for at least 200 years of annual crops of almost maximum amount. A tree of 100 years of age is regarded as a good investment, states a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

The cultivation of date palms is a careful and exact process. Trees are planted in straight lines thirty feet apart, making squares with thirty-foot sides.

Unlike most fruits, dates are not self-pollinating. This work must be done by hand or the fruit will not mature. In Arabia one male palm is planted to 100 females (the fruit-bearing variety) but in Coachella valley one male is planted to every fifteen to twenty-five females. There is no set rule. Perhaps this more frequent planting of the pollinating variety helps the quality of the fruit even though pollination must be by hand.

When this so important pollination has been accomplished, then comes intensive cultivation and irrigation. As the fruit develops, careful thinning out is necessary so that the best-looking may be carried on to maturity.

As the dates on the same tree, even on the same bunch, do not ripen at the same time, several pickings are necessary, as often as five to six times to the bunch during the season.

Air Is Fluid Substance, Readily Set in Motion

Air is a highly fluid substance, capable of considerable expansion and consequent change of density under the influence of heat. Since it is the outermost layer of the earth and the least firmly attached, it is readily set in motion by the rotation of the earth. If the earth could be shielded from the rays of the sun, steady winds would blow around it from west to east, writes Dr. Thomas M. Beck in the Chicago Tribune.

On the other hand, if its rotation could be stopped and the sun turned on again, the air near the equator, being exposed to more direct sunshine, would become warmer than the rest. Its relatively greater expansion would cause it to rise into the upper levels of the atmosphere and the cooler air from farther north or south would flow in to take its place. As a result the effect of the sun alone would be winds that flowed from north to south in the northern hemisphere and from south to north in the southern. At the equator they would rise into the upper air and flow back to the poles at this higher level.

Since both these causes, terrestrial rotation and solar radiation, always occur simultaneously, their effects are mixed together in a rather complicated fashion. The net result is the existence of three main belts of prevailing winds, or winds that blow perpetually.

Facts AND Opinions—

ARE ESSENTIAL TO GOOD BANKING

Every day we gather business facts and information, both local and national. Every day we obtain opinions from reliable, trustworthy sources on current business conditions in this community and other parts of the country.

Sound banking requires both facts and opinions. They enable us to operate a better bank and help us to render better financial service to our depositors and our borrowing customers.
