CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MONTHLY MEETING.

Various Activities Reported on and Suggestions Presented.

The Taneytown Chamber of Commerce met in regular session on Mon-day night, March 28, with the President, Merwyn C. Fuss, presiding. The other officers—Vice-Presidents, James Myers and Harry M. Mohney, Sec., Rev. Paul Emenheiser, and Treas., Charles R. Arnold were also in at-tendance. There were 22 other members present.

The Secretary read the minutes of the former meeting which were approved as read. Vice-Pres., Myers as chairman of the committee on the dairy situation made a complete report covering three meetings held by his committee, which included conferences with the officers of the different organizations concerned. Other members of the committee present were, Russell Fees-er, Carl B. Haines and Frank Alexander. In view of the fact that some progress has already been made, and there is much more than might be done to help those interested in the dairy business in our community, motion was made and passed that the present committee be continued throughout the year.

Postmaster John O. Crapster and Russell Feeser reported that splendid progress has been made on the Mid-dleburg road W. P. A. project and it was hoped that the road might be completed this way completed this year.

Pres. Fuss reported that it was ex-pected that the State Roads Commis-sion would ask for bids in the very near future for the new bridge to be erected over Pipe Creek at Bruceville. The Chamber has been informed that the bridge will be re-located and new approaches will be built, making possible the elimination of a steep hill and curve on the present road. This is indeed good news to the entire community as the present bridge has been closed to traffic several times in the past year, causing much incon-venience to the public. Pres. Fuss also reported that a number of citizens had made com-plaint about the lay off of local people in the factories, while outside help has been retained. It is hoped by the Chamber that those in charge of em-ployment in the factories will co-operate with the Chamber and see that in the future local people are given first consideration.

first consideration. Short talks were given by Vice-Pres., H. M. Mohney, Mayor Norville P. Shoemaker, former secretary Rev. Guy P. Bready, Frank Mahoney and Harold S. Mehring. It was moved and passed that light refreshments be served at the next meeting and that members be notified by card to this effect. The Treasurer Charles Arnold gave a very encouraging report. -11

ANNUAL MEETING RED CROSS Various Activities Come Up for Discussion.

The annual meeting of the Carroll County Chapter of the American Red Cross was held Wednesday evening, in the Westminster Library room. The mominating committee, composed of Mrs. H. G. C. They succeeded the former officers who were: Stanford Hoff, chairman; Mrs. Martha Shaw, vice-chairman; Miss Anna Reifsnider, secretary; and J. Albert Mitten, treas. Mr. Hoff took charge of the meeting to require the district reports and to receive the district reports, and then turned the chair over to Mrs. Margarey Lewis, General Field Rep-resentative of the American Red Cross. Mrs. Lewis is well known localloy for her many appreciative friends in the county. She spoke briefly of Carroll county's standing in the Red Cross field.

Mrs. Lewis placed special emphasis upon the institution of new and the continuation of old peace time activities. Several popular Red Cross activities were named, the most import-ant of which are the home hygiene, first aid and life saving courses available to all chapters.

Particular interest was shown by the members present in the life sav-ing program. If proper arrangements can be made, an extensive Life Sav-ing course will be given at Cascade Lake this summer. This will include a course in swimming as well as life saving instruction. All classes would be held under qualified Red Cross in-structors and accounter structors and examiners. Miss Evelyn Mather, Chairman of the knitting committee, reported that 61 sweaters had been made during 1937. Eighteen of these sweaters were sent to the Veterans at Roanoke Hospital, and 43 sent to Perry Point Hospital. The workers on the com-mittee for 1937 were: Miss Lottie Englar, Mrs. Elsie Rinehart, Mrs. Martha Shaw, Mrs. John Reifsnider, Miss Marie Senseney, Miss Ida Lock-ard, Mrs. Carlos Crawford, Mrs, Ar-thur Ewell Mrs. John Rankin, Mrs. were sent to the Veterans at Roanoke ard, Mrs. Carlos Crawford, Mrs, Ar-thur Ewell, Mrs. John Rankin, Mrs. Albert Shoemaker, Miss Blance Bair, Mrs. Frank Hoffman, Miss Marguerite Shunk, Mrs. D. 22. "LIVING PRICE" FOR FARM PRODUCTS. Occasionally farm co-operative As they are already taxed heavily it marketing associations get in the dog- is different to imagine how still highhouse so far as the consumer is concerned. The consumer mistakenly believes that these groups are at-tempting to force the price of farm products to the highest possible level. Some co-ops may try this-but they are in the minority, and they are doomed to fail. The big, far-sighted co-operatives know as well as anyone that you can't inflate prices unreasonably, without narrowing and destroying your market. What these co-ops are trying to do is to bring to the farmer a "living price" for what he raises—a price that will pay expenses, and return him some profit for his labor and his investment. And at the same time, they are trying to low-er the cost of distribution, which is as important to the consumer as to the producer.

NATIONAL POLITICS OF IMPORTANCE

All Pressing for Consideration at Practically the Same Time.

What is known as a bill for re-or-ganization of Executive Departments of the government passed the Senate, on Monday 49 to 42, with 42 Demo-crats voting against. The measure now goes to the House, but while it will be opposed it will likely pass.

The effect of the bill is said to be such as to place more power into the hands of the President, Representa-tive O'Connor, of the House, who led the opposition to the bill a year ago, says; "In these days of vast unem-ployment and business in hysterics, it is no time to push this legislation which has so aroused the people as a further intrusion of the executive branch upon the prerogatives of the egislative body.

After the unemployment situation is solved and business is reassured there will be plenty of time for this nousecleaning. Get the fire out, and then clean house.

Psychologically the bill should be permitted to "Requiescat in Peace." Senator Tydings (Dem.) Maryland voted against the bill, saying in ex-planation that Congress was voting away more and more of its authority, and increasing the centralization of power in executive hands. He said "There never has been a time when Most of the large countries in Europe are under dictatorship. Our people here are in the grip of fear that if too much power is concentrated in the hands of the executive, what has hap-pened in other countries may happen here.'

So important are these questions that greater preparedness for war seems to have gone into the backseems to have gone into the back-ground. Anyway, what this country very much needs, just now, is to be left alone both from inside and out-side new troubles; and one of the big-gest of these is need for more revenue.

Congress is wrestling with a new tax measure of major importance. In part it takes the place of protective tariff legislation as it proposes, at present, to tax certain imports— notably a tax of 6 cents a pound on pork products, and also on canned meats other than pork.

There is also being considered a list of taxes on incorporated business concerns not yet fully defined, but said to be an eighteen percent tax, which would also apply to foreign corpora-tions doing business in the United States. There is said to be included a six-teen percent tax on Insurance Companies which may make exceptions in and Regulations," see either your Baltimore, Md., April 3, 1938-Wings Across America" is the subject of a nation-wide school essay con-test announced today by Ernest Green, State Chairman, who has just received the Rules and Regulations governing this contest from Paul R. Younts, Executive Chairman. The essays are to be based on the progress, dependability and future possibilities of this method of modern communication.

State Chairman Ernest Green, is today sending every post office in Ma-ryland and the principal of every high school in the State, a supply of the "Rules and Regulations" governing "Rules and Regulations" governing this contest which will, without doubt, create more interest in aviation than has ever been known in the nation as every high school pupil in America has an even chance to win one of more than a hundred valuable prizes, including some fifty air plane trips to Washington, Hollywood or Miami.

Mr. Green states that every high school pupil or those having high school curricula in Maryland are not only eligible to enter this contest but urged to do so. The prizes are cer-tainly worth trying for. Here are the prizes: There will be two prizes for some bright boy or girl in every state of the Union. The first state prize to be an airplane trip from the winners' nearest airport to Washington and return. The second state prize will be a trophy to be presented by the Ma-ryland Air Mail Week Campaign Committee.

The essays of pupils winning a trip to Washington and return will be entered in a National contest in which the winner will be given an airplane trip with expenses paid for five days from Washington to Hollywood for those living east of the Mississippi River). The second National prize will be a trophy, while the third Na-tional prize will be a plaque to be presented by the National Air Mail Week Committee.

Mr. Green states that the basis for judging essays will be on originality of ideas 50%, continuity and con-struction 25%, spelling and punctua-tion and neatness 25%. COMPLAINT FROM WOMEN'S LEAGUE FOR PEACE.

Mr. Editor:

Your remarks concerning the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom comprised in an article on the May Bill published in your is-sue of March 25th., were so misin-forming that I should like to correct a few impressions you must have regarding the organization. 1—The WILPF is not now, and has never been opposed to a national defense policy. 2—The WILPF has never favored the elimination of our Army and Navy 3-The WILPF has never taken a stand regarding pacifiism, Having considered these attitudes from a negative point of view. I should like to list a few of our positive positions:

to any war on foreign soil. 2-We stand opposed to the huge committee.

It is due to organizations such as ours, of course, that the public is made aware of such menaces as the May Bill. When a similar bill was introduced recently in the Japanese Diet a riot ensued. Are we in peace-loving America willing to pass a bill in peace-time which the Japanese rioted against in war time? Very truly yours,

MERGENTHALER WAS A BALTIMOREAN.

It may not be generally known that Ottmar Mergenthaler, inventor of the Linotype, was a Baltimorean. He gave his first successful demonstration of his invenion, the Linotype, in his little shop at 12 Bank Lane, one spring day in 1884. Bank Lane now known as Wilkes Alley, and runs between Charles and Calvert Streets just north of Baltimore Street. Further development of the linotype was carried on in a shop still remembered by some Baltimore "Old-timers" at the southwest corner of Sharp and Camden Streets. The first practical trial of Mergenthaler's unbelievable contraption was made in the office of the New York Tribune on July 3, 1886. Today, with the excep-tion of highly artistic display matter, a vast majority of all type is set by one or another of the several fine type setting or typecasting machines that are in common use.

-11-SAYS TAXES EAT UP QUARTER OF INCOMES.

New York (IPS)-One out of every $4.00 of family income now goes to the tax collector compared with one dollar out of every $15.50 in 1913, W. F. McShane, executive secretary of the Associated Merchants and Property Owners, said here recently.

"Americans who pledge income tax. es' of approximately $2,500,000,000 may be surprised to learn that the sum is less than one-fifth the total taxes they will pay this year." Mr. McShane estimated that taxation will bring fully $12,800,000,000 into all Government coffers this year. Of this total, he added, $8,122,500,000, almost two-thirds, are "hidden taxes," buried in the prices of goods sold at retail.

"Tax authorities have figured that the tax drain on the public amounts, to one-fourth the income of millions of Americans making less than $2,500 a year," Mr. McShane said. 'Nearly all of this $600 a year—or $50 a month—is taken by the tax collector without the family realizing it."

It seems wholly irrational that the country can not be given a rest in the midst of its many new deals without adding to their number-trying other new ones before the older ones have demonstrated their fully justified value for the entire country.

FACTS ABOUT THE RAILROADS.

For each pound of coal consumed, the railroads in 1937 hauled 8 3/5 tons of freight and equipment one mile, the best record in fuel efficiency ever attained by them.

Ninety per cent of the freight traffic of this country is handled in regularly scheduled freight trains that move on definite schedules, the same as passenger trains. Had a seventy-car limit law been in effect in 1937 the railroads in that year would have been required to operate approximately 596,000 additional freight trains which would have increased operating costs more than $100,000,000.

The railroads and the Pullman Company now have 11,168 air-conditioned passenger cars in operation. More than 2,800 passenger trains move in and out of New York City daily Forty-two percent of the Class I railroad mileage operated at a deficit in 1937.

Random Thoughts

ERRORS CORRECTED.

Errors in two short words in the last paragraph of Random Thoughts last week were so apparent as not to need correction in order to understand their meaning. But, we feel like repeating the sen-tence—"Because a debt is old, it is never too old to be paid."

And while we are about it, here is another somewhat like thought— Because a bill is over three years old. and uncollectible by law, such a bill is till owed and should be paid, just the same.

Bills that could not be paid at the time of their contracting, or as promsed, should be planned ahead, for payment as soon as possible.

"CAN'T LIVE ON WHAT WE GET."

We are hearing a lot of this sort of talk, much of which is pure bunk. "We can't live" on a salary, because we simply don't want to live on it, and constitute ourselves the sole arbiter of what we should spend, and how?

We have told the story before of a Jewish merchant who was a close dealer for himself. His favorite expression was, "As I live, I can't," as an argument why he could not sell at lower prices. One day, a blunt spoken customer said to him, "D- you, live as I live, and you can."

Much of the clamor for higher salaries, or pay for labor, is based on no better argument than that we plan for, and spend, more than our income warrants, consequently our pay must be too small and we "strike" for it to be made higher.

In many such cases there are hundreds waiting for such jobs that we find fault with for ourselves. Instead of quitting-that is always our privilege-we keep and have no intention of taking a chance on offering our services and value to more appreciative localities. We prefer the "bluffing" plan, and sometimes, it works.

As a rule, a man with exceptional ability and producing value, need not waste effort in trying to better himself, but is sought out. If he is a peg that will fill a big hole, the hole is apt to find him.

The old story of "can't live" on an income, needs more investigation than it gets. It is a solo part that is dangerous to play, and often sets many to thinking that it might be better for the larger interests, to go scouting for another performer.

making haste slowly, and with caution, was too slow, apparently for this new conception and we were to be shown how wrong we have been in all previous times.

Usually we had been going cautiously, trying to be sure of not making costly mistakes. We had been experimenting-looking ahead before leaping-and, we had been getting along pretty well with such a policy.

We recall some sixty and more years ago, how the reaping machines were gradually improved. How we went from the sickle to the scythe, the cradle, the mower, the platform rake-off reaper, and then to the self binder-that was deeply resented by harvest help and occupants of farm 'tenant houses."

Men saw their means of livelihood gradually leaving them. The recourse was, for the young men to go West, or to manufacturing towns, and somehow they managed to so distribute themselves that no great hardship existed among a few who could not help themselves, but did the best they could in getting odd jobs.

Machinery gradually put the shoemakers, tailors, blacksmiths and wagon-makers out of business, just as had the hands pinners, the weavers and clock-makers gone before them. The country mill and the country school have largely gone the same way, but not at the speed that we are getting off with the old and on with the new within the past five years. And, naturally the adjustment period has departed. We are having the experience of having things ordained for us, and to be placed in operation at once. Some get the best end of this plan; but the most get left.

What we need most now, is a halt on trying new things, and undoing some of the things that have been done in haste, and proven wrong, or long before their need. And after that, a good long rest giving the country time to get its bearings, and to know how it stands after the hulaba-

It is irrational that so many things so new in operation can have been done in short a time, for it must be remembered that in other days we had Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland, Wilson and Hoover, all able men at the helm, and all cannot have been wrong in what they advised and done, or tried to do. Let us have a rest, until the big dust that has been kicked up has had time to settle and let us see where we are. ---

I RECKON WE'LL KEEP IT.

The United States has only 6% of the World's land area, and only 7% of its population, but it has half the world's telephones, and electric equipment, and fully one-third of the world's railways.

The people of the U. S. consume one-third of the mined coal, and twothirds of its oil, half the world's coffee and rubber, and three-fourths of its silk. There are outstanding 118 million insurance policies of all types, or almost one to each person, and 42 million savings accounts, or an average of one to each three persons. Fourteen million families, or about half of our people, live in homes they either own or are buying. More than 75% of the world's automobiles are produced in the United States, while in ownership there is one registered for each 41/2 people, or enough to take the entire population for an automobile ride at the same time, whereas four of the other leading countries possess only one car to each 32 persons. Likewise in the U.S. there is one radio for each 5 persons, while in the four leading nations beside the U. S. there is one radio for each 17 persons.

THE CAMPAIGN TO OPEN.

April 12 will open the primary nomination contests for members of the House-435 of them. The battle will be a hard fought one-the "ins" against the "outs." One-third of the Senators are also to be elected; and 33 of the 48 states will elect Governors. In fact, 1938 will be a very important election year.

Largely, it will represent approval, or disapproval, of the President's policies-his new deals, his borrowing, spending and taxing, and billions of debt.

If the result of the election will be in doubt, it will be mainly because it will not be a Democratic or a Republican victory. Both parties are badly broken over such questions of unemployment relief, unionized labor, the various alphabetical industries, crop control, wages and hours for labor, and numerous others.

It is said that there are about 130 seats in the House not safely new deal -districts in which Republican candidates were defeated two years ago by only about a ten per cent vote.

Of course Democratic leaders are just as busy planning. In fact, they are aiming to hold all of their present members, and increase the number in close Republican districts, two years. ago.

The desertion of millions of negro voters- in large part-from Republican ranks, may continue. The party in power is sure to profit heavily in votes because of "relief" received.

"Hockey on Horseback" Is One of Oldest Games

Polo has sometimes been described as "hockey on horseback," and is not only one of the most exciting of sports, but it is one of the fastest games in the world, and one of the oldest, declares a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

No one knows in what country polo originated, nor just how long ago it was first played. But there seems little doubt that it came from the East. The Persians were playing it 1,200 years ago. And the Chinese maintain that their ancestors took part in polo matches a thousand years before Christ was born.

More polo is played in India than in any other part of the world. It was brought from that country to England and about 1876 came to the United States. It is interesting to know that the wild hillmen of the Himalayas play a rough-andtumble horseback game that in many ways is like the polo you will see at a match in this country or England.

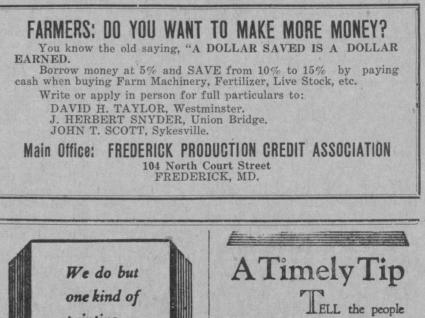

The ponies which take part in a good polo game are specially trained to help their riders. They follow the ball like a terrier after a rat, and turn and gallop seemingly at the very thought of their riders, who are sending the ball toward their opponents' goal.

teins necessary to the producing cow. Furthermore, corn is not the best supplement for corn silage and corn roughage. Other grains and supplementary feeds such as linseed oil meal, soybean oil meal, cotton seed meal or corn gluten meal should be added to the farm ration to supply variety and protein. When no legumes are fed, the ration should contain from 20 to 25 per cent of the protein supplements. Higher production obtained more economically will be the result.

Equal parts of ground corn and oats fed with alfalfa hay will make a satisfactory farm ration. Should oats be scarce, ground corn, or ground corn and cob, with alfalfa will also make good rations. Without alfalfa or some other legume hay, these rations will require one of the above mentioned protein supplements. Each cow should be fed individually, according to the amount of milk she is producing.

Agricultural Notes

Proper housing is helpful in increasing the production of hatching eggs.

Each five hens in the laying house should have one foot of hopper space. . . .

A queen bee can lay from 3,000 to 4,000 eggs a day for several weeks. * * *

Molded or otherwise damaged sweet clover hay or silage is not safe to feed cattle.

Common gas engine troubles are overheating and loss of power, generally due to incorrect timing.

Guinea hens prefer to mate in pairs, although good fertility can sometimes be had with as many as four hens mated to one male.

Poles wrapped with burlap or rope which is then kept soaked with crude oil or crankcase oil will help keep cattle free from lice.

Successful Illinois poultry growers include a few ground carrots in the daily moist mash, according to H. H. Alp, extension service.

Straw alone failed as a feed for 1,000 dry cows last winter, according to E. T. Robbins, live stock extension specialist, college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

Many a French bride will not wear pearls on her wedding day, believing them to be omens of tears to come.

There is an Egyptian belief that the surest way to test an emerald is to offer it to a snake; if it is genuine the snake will at once begin to lick it with its flickering tongue.

The ancient scientist Cardanus advised people to wear jet, to avoid nightmares; and Albertus Magnus declared that the emerald split as soon as it touched the skin of an adulterer.

The French used to believe that sapphires soaked in vinegar made a wonderful remedy for fevers, and that powdered sapphires cured inflamed eyes. A topaz, they thought, lost its transparency when brought into contact with poisons. To this day, the Burmese have the same name, chein, for arsenic and diamond, believing both to be deadly poisons.

The diamond was said in medieval Europe to have sex; the male stones glittered more brightly than the females, and brought higher prices. There is a saying in India that it is strengthening to wear amethysts.

Mayfair, London, derived its name from a fair that used to be held at the north side of Piccadilly during the first 15 days of May. ## WITH GREATER

WARMTH · BEAUTY AND DIGNITY

When you first see Crystalart memorials you will want to run your fingertips over the surface. How smooth it feels! Yet not harsh and metallic like a piece of polished steel, nor cold as a piece of polished glass. "How", you will ask, "can a piece of Rock of Ages feel so much like soft, warm satin?" In CRYSTALART you will see myriad lights like jewels, much as though the surface were paved alternately with diamonds on a blue-white background. Yet the roughness of a diamond is missing as you touch CRYSTALART. It feels as though the soft petals of a lily were beneath your finger-tips. Only in Rock of Ages CRYSTALART memorials is this new warmth and feeling available. It is a real achievement in memorial beauty, and to Rock of Ages Craftsmen, who originated it, goes the exclusive privilege of its manufacture.

Ready now for your inspection, in several specially selected designs from the Rock of Ages studio.

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 2.-(Special) Sportsmen familiar with the best fishing grounds in this country and Canada are congregating in St Petersburg for the Spring run of tar-pon, kingfish, robalo, mackerel, trout and other salt and fresh water fish which make an anglers' paradise of the Gulf of Mexico and numerous Bays, lakes, and bayous adjacent to the Sunshine City. For the skilled and amateur fishermen are numerous awards put up by the St. Petersburg Anglers' Club in contests continuing through the Summer months.

Chief of the competitive events is the annual Tarpon roundup, when the world's greatest game fish, noted for its powerful swimming and magnificits powerful swimming and magnific-ent leaps to escape the hook, abounds in Gulf and Bay, reaching its greatest numerical strength during the full of the moon in May and June, when countless thousands move through the tidal passes and support tidal passes and surrounding waters.

TT REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS.

The wide range of uses for which authoritative copies of birth records are now required, is indicated by some of the sources from which endorsement of the campaign now under way for more complete birth registration in Maryland, has been received by Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State De-partment of Health.

Departments of State and Federal Government, lay and professional or-ganizations, have indicated keen interest and have expressed cordial approval of the undertaking. The im-portance of the authentic birth record to the individual has been emphasiz-ed by the Social Security Board, the Passport Division of the Federal Department of State, the Railroad Re-tirement Board, the Maryland Board of State Aid and Charities, and other gencies

The use of the birth certificate as evidence of citizenship, as proof of age and parentage was pointed out by Dr. Virgil D. Reed, Acting Director of the Federal Bureau of the Cen-sus as follows: "It has been said that, 'A birth certificate is baby's first cit-izenship papers.' This statement 's iterally true. In fact, a properly filed birth certificate is an unquestionable proof of citizenship and also is generally accepted proof of age and par-entage. These important facts about birth registration should be known

REMAIN WAR SHRINE

Fortress Source of Revenue for Nationalists.

Toledo, Spain.-The insurgents are conserving the massive ruins of the Alcazar as the No. 1 shrine of Spain's civil war.

General Franco has directed that the old fortress, reduced to a pile of rocks and mortar, be kept as nearly as possible in exactly the same condition as when his troops rescued 1,400 insurgents from it in the fall of 1936.

The ruins have become a source of revenue to the Nationalist government. Hundreds of persons who visit the old military school daily pay an admission fee of two pesetas.

Expect Tourist Trade.

When the war is over-the Nationalists take it for granted they will win-Toledoans count on the ruins attracting thousands of tourists whose pesetas will not only benefit local merchants but also help the Nationalist government pay the cost of the war.

Red-bereted guides relate in detail how insurgent soldiers and their families held out in the castle against artillery bombardment and dynamite mines from July 21 to September 27, 1936.

From the outside the thick-walled fortress appears to have been totally destroyed. But within the wreckage has been carefully propped and put in condition for sightseers to view the relics without hazard. In one corner of the building, buried under a pile of rock, remains an unexploaded dynamite mine. The guides explain, however, that the explosives probably have deteriorated.

Turned Into Museum.

What was formerly the commandant's office has been convert-ed into a museum. Two Americanmade motorcycles are exhibited as the power used by the besieged insurgents to turn the grist which ground the wheat for their bread. The exhibits include machine guns, rifles, crutches made from brooms, hard bits of bread baked in an oven which the insurgents built in one of the basements, and automobile batteries, from which a radio was operated.

The telephone through which the commandant, Colonel Moscardo, now a general on Franco's staff, informed the besiegers that his band would be blown to bits rather than surrender is prominently displayed. Exhibited with it is another telephone, described as the one through which the besiegers talked to Moscardo.

"It was through this telephone that the Reds told Colonel Moscardo they would execute his son unless he surrendered," the guides relate. "He refused to surrender and the Reds shot his son."

In outlining the purpose of the Ma-ryland Campaign, Dr. Riley said that the State law requires all births to be reported within four days after their occurrence, by the physician or midoccurrence, by the physician or mid-wife in attendance, or in the absence of such service by the parents or oth-er responsible persons. He pointed out that such a record, for each indi-vidual, is a necessity from the public health standpoint, to enable the health authorities to know how many children are born in the State, when, where, and to whom, and how many survive, in order that the necessary health protective measures may be instituted without delay. "This indicates a total of about a thousand unregistered births every year. The omissions are usually to oversight or to misunderstanding of the requirements. Surveys in Mary-land have shown that from two to ten per cent of births have not been registered."

Four Important Groups Form Parakeet Family

Parakeets are classified with the parrots from which they differ as a group mainly in their general small size, and in having longer tails, whether pointed or rounded, than the rather short and squarish tails of the parrot members of this family.

There exist four important groups of these birds. The group best known to this country, states a writer in the Montreal Herald, contains the conures, or American tropical parakeets, of which about 30 species are listed in books, all prevailing green, with brown faces and throats, and long-tailed; sometimes these may be taught to say a few words. A second group includes the ringnecks, most of the 25 or so species of which are marked by a collar of distinct color behind the head. All of these are natives of southern Asia or of Africa.

Of the third group, or true lovebirds, some ten kinds are commonly imported, all of African origin. A fourth group comprises the broad-tailed "grass" parakeets of Australia, of which the only wellknown species brought to America is the popular budgerigar, or shell parakeet, frequently called "lovebird."

After all, parakeets are only small parrots, and in nature live virtually in the same way.

400,000,000 years ago, according to Madeleine Fritz, of the Royal Ontario Museum of Paleontology, and now an age of drouth is foreseen by Dan McCowan, Canadian naturalist.

Dr. Fritz says that between three hundred and four hundred million years ago coral reefs abounded on the southwestern fringe of Ontario, and sponges lived in the seas over Hamilton; sea lilies, a kind of shellfish, flourished on the present site of Petersborough.

The prairie provinces, about the driest place in the Dominion, were a great inland sea 50,000,000 years ago, she theorizes.

McCowan blames the recession of Rocky Mountain glaciers for drouth conditions in western Canada. "If the glaciers keep on receding in the next fifty years as they have in the last half century the rivers will be nothing more than rivulets," he believes.

Metal and Rubber Alloy Is Perfected by German

Berlin.—A new alloy called "Schwingmetall," made of metal and rubber and joined by a vulcanization process, has been discovered by German technical experts.

The alloy, it is said, can be used in the manufacture of china, as a ready shock absorber when used in bedplates; shipbuilding, to lessen vibration caused by propelling machinery; elastic couplings of great simplicity and safety, and rubber springs for lorries.

With the help of the alloy, vehicles running on rails can be fitted with rubber-sprung wheels, the tires being held to the wheel with rubber rings. Through this method rail vehicles run silently even on curves.

Revolutionary Calendar

Used Only Twelve Years The Revolutionary calendar, known as the French calendar that was established after the Revolution, was in use only 12 years and never really took root. It was adopted in 1793, and abolished by Napoleon in 1805. It reckoned the year from September 22, the anniversary of the republic's formal establishment in 1792, according to a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. There were twelve 30-day months in this calendar. That left five days over, and a sixth every fourth year. The extra days were called the sansculottides, and were dedicated to festivals. The regular ones honored, respectively, the virtues, genius, labor, opinion and rewards, while the leap year day was "the day of the Revolution."

The months took their names from the seasons; the first was the month of vintage, the second the month of fogs. With their equivalents and the Gregorian date on which each began, they were: Vendemiaire (vintage), September 22. Brumaire (fog), October 22.

Frimaire (sleet), November 21. Nivose (snow), December 21. Pluviose (rain), January 20. Ventose (wind), February 29. Germinal (seed), March 21. Floreal (blossom), April 20. Prairial (pasture), May 20. Messidor (harvest), June 19. Thermidor (heat), July 19. Fructidor (fruit), August 18. There was no week. Instead, the month was divided into three periods of ten days each, called decades.

NOT TERRIBLY BORED 88 By HAZEL THORPE © McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

SLENDER, gray - haired man hurried, a bit breath-lessly up the last flight of steps that led to the glen entrance.

When he caught sight of a big touring car safe in the parking space, its contents undisturbed, he looked relieve.

Sinking down on the running board on the shady side he took off his hat, mopped his reddened brow, and rested.

On the back seat of the next parked car sat a young girl, her legs propped up on a cushion and a steamer rug.

She looked with interest at the hot, tired man.

After resting a few minutes, he rose, put his hand in his right-hand coat pocket, then hurriedly, as men do, searched through all his pockets.

His face fell.

The girl smiled at him. "Trouble?" she asked. "We forgot to lock the car doors," he said. "We stopped here to see the glen. Got down to the restaurant by the falls and remembered the doors weren't locked. So I came back. But I haven't the key. My wife was driving, the last lap-she must have

He sat down again on the shady running board. The girl looked at the big car beside her.

Through the closed windows she could see that the back was half filled with expensive bags and boxes, many of them pasted with labels from European hotels and resorts.

"Does that mean you've got to stay here and guard the things?" she asked.

"I suppose so," he said, ruefully. "Until my wife discovers she has the key, or gets so worried about me that she sends out a searching party to find me! I hope she won't hurry, if she comes. It's a long pull up those stairs. Ought to have an elevator or escalator.' "Could you trust me?" asked the girl.

"I mean, let me watch the car?" The man looked at her closely for a moment, then he smiled.

"Of course," he said. "But what about you? Aren't you going to the glen?" "Can't," explained the girl. "Twisted my ankle—and I can't walk. My party's gone on; no use wasting their day. We brought a picnic lunch and my share is here. I'd love to watch it for you. It will give me something to do. I was getting awfully bored.'

"Oh, I'm sorry," said the man. He noticed the bandaged ankle and realized that it probably was uncomfortable. "Here—" he emerged from the depths of his car -"here are some magazines. You don't seem to have any."

the car, had come back to lock it. It's full of all kinds of junk we brought back, you know. But she found she had his keys, and I had mine, so I came back to lock it, thinking I'd meet him. But the way out is different than the way in, and Then I must have missed him. when I got here I was forbidden to open my car-yours, I mean. Hard luck, isn't it?" He smiled broadly at Marcia. "Your turn," he added. Marcia explained how his father had given her charge of his car.

She was one of four school teachers on vacation, who had planned a day at the glen.

She had slipped and sprained her ankle when they had stopped on the way to visit another little falls. A doctor had bandaged it at the next village.

"It's all right now," she said, "but of course I can't tramp through the glen. So the girls went on—I insisted. They left my share of the lunch with me—and here I am. I'm hungry." "I'm starved," said John.

"Divide with me?"

"Yes," said Marcia. "There's lots of coffee-they had to leave a whole quart thermos with me. They took the other. And plenty of sandwiches. But there's only one cup." "I'll fix that," he said. He started to open the door of his car. "Oh excuse me. May I?"

Marcia blushed and laughed.

"I'm sorry," she said. "Of course, must have seemed silly."

"No," he answered, smiling at her. "You seemed—well, not silly." From an elaborate motor kit he produced spoons and plates and cups and a little folding table he adjusted over Marcia's knees.

From the refreshment stand at the glen entrance he bought ice cream and candy and salted nuts to add to Marcia's offering.

Then he climbed in beside her, and they started in on the best lunch they had ever had. When Marcia's three companions returned several hours later they felt a little guilty at their neglect. There was an empty parking place next to their car. Marcia sat just as they had left her.

"Were you terribly bored, dear?" asked one of them.

"Not terribly," she answered, serene in the knowledge that, with John's promised letters coming to her every day until he himself returned, she would never be bored again.

"Not terribly."

Minnesota Town of 50's

Is Almost Entirely Gone

Years ago Louisville (which was five miles from here) was a flourishing little village, observes a Shako-pee, Minn., United Press correspondent.

The town was started as a trading post by Louis La Croix, a Frenchman, on the Minnesota river, in 1850. It grew, finally, into a settlement of some thirty houses, a few stores, two saw mills, a schoolhouse, a grist mill and a postoffice.

Suddenly the town fell into decay, and in a decade all but disappeared. And today the village of Louisville, Minn., is a ghost town. It is no longer on the map.

've lived said a middle-aged resident of Shakopee, "and I never heard of it. You don't mean Louisville, Ky., do you?" Further inquiry revealed that the ghost town was given its name by its chief promotor, H. H. Spencer, who in 1852 had migrated to the settlement from Louisville, Ky. The following year he bought La Croix's claim—his log cabin and trading post-and moved a store he had established in Shakopee five miles up the river. In 1854 Spencer hired J. O. Fuller to survey parts of two sections of land he owned for the townsite and named the village Louisville after the Kentucky metropolis. Spencer, an astute and daring business man, offered lots gratis to any settler who would contract to build his own home. Before long he had thirty or more neighbors, who found it convenient to trade at his store-there being no other within five miles. The town progressed for several years, and even at one time had a postoffice. But when the St. Paul & Sioux City railroad (later the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha) was built, Louisville was left far in the rear, and Merriam, a few miles away, became the trading center of the region.

Original Aim of Ku Klux Klan The Ku Klux Klan, a secret or-ganization, was founded in the South in 1866, in the early part of the reconstruction period, for the purpose of preventing the exercise of political rights by the newly emancipated negroes. Drastic methods were employed in dealing with them and with the "carpet baggers" and others who encouraged the negro to exercise his newly acquired political rights. The Klan was investigated by congress which passed a strin-gent measure (1871) for its suppression, but it was put down with much difficulty. The report of the joint investigating committee of congress was published in thirteen volumes in 1872.

Rainbow Fish Kin to Parrotfish

Technically known as wrasses. rainbow fish are kin to parrotfish, and have earned still another nickname, "lip-fish," because of their thick, rolled lips. Living among reefs, they feed off shell-fish, crushing mollusks with big teeth 'way back in their mouths. Probably the most beautiful inhabitant of the deep, the rainbow fish makes a nest of seaweed, strengthening it with bits of coral and rock. Painstakingly, the fish weaves its nest, using enough seaweed to fill a peck basket.

Our Early Lighthouses

The United States lighthouse service is one of the oldest of the federal agencies. It was provided for in the first session of Congress in 1789. When the federal government was first organized 12 lighthouses were turned over to it by various colonies. Of these early lighthouses six were in the confines of the Massachusetts colony and one each in Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware and South Carolina.

How to Place Cousins

Here is the way to reckon cousins: Children of brothers and sisters are first cousins to one another. The children of first cousins are second cousins to one another; children of second cousins are third cousins to one another, and so on. The child of one's first cousin is a first cousin once removed; the grandchild of one's first cousin is a first cousin twice removed, and so on. Vice versa, the cousin of one's father or mother is a first cousin once removed, etc.

Serving the King

Passing through a village street a recruiting sergeant met a young farmhand delivering milk.

"Now, my lad, wouldn't you like to serve the king?" he asked.

"I would mister," replied the other, "but can only let him have a quart at night an' a pint in the morning."-London Tit-Bits.

"I lend it to a man," answered Diogenes, "and if he returns it I know he's one in ten thousand. You the lantern test is the best see, available. The umbrella has not yet been invented."

Thanks a lot, said the girl "No, we didn't come prepared for an invalid."

"And if you will just keep one eye on these things-just scare off anybody who might come to the car? Nobody will, of course. But we've just landed from a long trip abroad and a lot of the things are here. It's mighty kind of you."

And after a few more words of explanation and thanks he went back to the glen.

Half an hour later Marcia's off eye caught sight of a young man who walked boldly up between the two cars, and put his hand up to the shining knob of the back door of the big limousine.

Marcia, deep in the romantic African wilds, where the American heiress just found her exploring fiance about to be devoured by cannibals-she had chosen the most lurid story she could find to fight off the drowsiness of hot middayleaned sharply forward.

"Don't you touch that car," she said.

The young man stopped suddenly. "Oh!" he said rather inanely. 'Why not?"

"Because," called Marcia-"It's my car." "Oh," he said again.

"I see. It's your car?" "Yes."

"Why aren't you in it?" "Because I'm in this, and I've wrenched my ankle, and I can't move very well." ("And that was a dumb one," thought Marcia to her-"Now he knows I'm helpself. less.")

"Shall I help you back into your own car?" he offered.

He smiled.

Marcia laughed.

"Let's explain," he said. "Well," she said grudgingly, "you first. And don't open that door till give you permission." "You see," he said, chortling, "my mother and father and I-I'm John Swinton-landed yesterday in New York from a trip abroad, and we're motoring home to California. We stopped today to see this famous glen. After we'd walked several million miles in all this heat, we came to a nice cool restaurant at the falls, and decided to have lunch. But I went up some more endless stairs to an observation point supposed to be especially fine. When I got down to the restaurant again I found my mother alone. She said my father, remembering he hadn't locked the doors of American Seamen's Friend Society

The American Seamen's Friend society was organized in 1828 and incorporated in 1833. It has been a pioneer in seamen's work, establishing the Sailor's Magazine, erecting the first sailors' home in New York city, and maintaining a loan library service for use of seamen on American ships sailing from New York since 1859. In 1908 it built the Sailors' Home and Institute and it co-operated with two other organizations in the erection of the Seamen's house at Eleventh avenue and Twentieth street, New York city.

Hungary Will Breed Bears

The ancient sport of bear hunting is to be revived in Hungary under government supervision. For centuries the bear chase was the favorite sport of noblemen, especially in the vast forests of Transylvania. Since the World war, bears virtually have disappeared. To restore the historic sport the forestry department of the ministry of agriculture will import bears, turning them loose in the royal forest of Szini, where they will breed under government protection.

GOLDEN TEXT-God is no respecter of persons. Acts 10:34. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Lord of All. JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord of All. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC— Showing Good Will to Other Races. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC— Practicing Christian Brotherhood Toward All Races All Races.

"God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34). He who by reason of His infinite knowledge might well draw lines of distinction between them is loving and gracious toward all, not willing that any should perish, extending his mercy to men of all conditions and all races. But men, whose knowledge is so limited that they cannot even rightly judge the thoughts of their own hearts, are quick to discriminate against their fellow man because he is of a different race, color, or social position.

A leader in the Southern Baptist church recently pointed out that the number of heathen in the world has increased about two and a half times as rapidly as the number of Christians, which means that at the rate of progress of missions during the last generation the world has become more heathen at the rate of six million a year, and now we are retarding the process still fur-ther. Because of financial depression we are recalling missionaries. When the world is ablaze with sin and God-denying political theories we withhold the gospel it needs. It has well been said that such strategy is like closing the hospital because an epidemic is in progress.

Jesus had gone into Syrophenicia and the region of Decapolis (look them up on the map) to rest. But the need of the Gentile people (to whom He was not at that time called to minister) impelled Him to help them also. Note how they were stimulated to believe, how their faith was tried, but triumphant.

I. Faith Encouraged.

The Greek woman and the man of Decapolis were led to believe in Christ in two different ways.

1. By hearing about Jesus. The woman "heard of him" (v. 25). Paul says, "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17). Are we diligent in season and out of season, telling the story of Jesus and His love? If so, men and women of our acquaintance will hear of Him and be ready to call on Him in the day of their trouble.

2. By a personal meeting with Jesus. The man was deaf; he could not hear about Jesus, but he could see Him. To him the Lord came in person, and by the sign language, related in verse 33, He stirred his heart to believe.

II. Faith Tested.

Mozart to Go Into Exile Mozart, the sunniest, most lovable and possibly the greatest of all operatic composers, was almost driv-en into exile by jealousies that retarded the recognition of his genius before his death and reduced him to want in spite of his tremendous Richmond Times-Dispatch. Mozart was born in Salzburg, Austria, in 1756. When he was six years old, his memory for music and his delicate ear-capable of detecting and remembering a difference of half a quarter of a tone-so impressed his father that he was taken, with his little sister, Marianne, to perform on the piano before the elector at Munich and before the emperor and court at Vien-The nobility went wild over the na. children and especially over "the little magician," as Mozart was called by an emperor who proved less benevolent when the "magician" grew up.

The young prodigies were then hustled away on a triumphant tour through Paris, London, The Hague, Vienna and the musical centers of Italy during some ten years of travel. While still in his early teens, young Mozart composed a number of symphonies and an opera which was repeated to full houses twenty times in Milan, amid cries of 'Eviva il Maestro'' Haase, who was then composing "Ruggerio," prophetically said, "This boy will cause us all to be forgotten."

Such popularity, however, arouses jealousies. From the time he was seventeen, Mozart's efforts to obtain a court appointment were constantly blocked either by the parsimony of patrons or the opposition of envious rivals. Back in Salzburg at the age of twenty-one, he found himself in an intolerable situation.

Bucharest Rug Market Is

an Open Air Attraction The most important rug market of Bucharest, Rumania, from the viewpoint of travelers, is not in a shop or store at all, but in the open air along the river front. There large rugs are displayed to prospective customers on a long clothesline arrangement, while smaller ones are hung from street lamps.

The designs are both brilliant and exotic, some of them even resembling the Navajo Indian rugs sold in America, and try as one may, one can not find the same pattern twice in the whole display. Most of the work on rugs is done when peasant farmers have nothing else to do. Then they spin the wool and weave it into the carpets and rugs for which the country is famous. In Rumania a good rug is considered too fine to be put on the floor; instead the housekeeper hangs it on the wall as a tapestry, or uses it as a covering for a bed or a table.

A sight both in Bucharest and in other Rumanian cities is gypsy bands, with trained dancing bears. Each gypsy has his bear, and once the animals start to perform a crowd will gather like magic to see the fun. Gypsies who can not get a living in this easy fashion turn to the making of wrought iron work.

Legends and Oddities That Make The Isle of Man Very Attractive

all over the world and sometimes settle in out-of-theway places, but they never pass on. seem to forget their little island, which lies almost midway between England, Scotland, and northern Ireland, set like a jewel in the Irish sea.

Tradition says the island came into existence when a legendary hero, Finn MacCool, hurled handfuls of Irish earth at some giant enemy; but, though reluctant to doubt this story, we shall be nearer the mark perhaps if we believe the geologists who tell us that it was once attached to the neighboring mainlands and is geologically akin to the English lake district.

The stories of the early inhabitants are just as strange as those concerning Finn MacCool. One hears, for instance, that fairies made their kingdom in Man, and that St. Patrick, fresh from triumphs in Ireland, came to Christianize the island and turn out the snakes:

But even when one leaves the legends and turns the pages of island history, the truth is exciting and romantic enough. The Celtic inhabitants were at different times ruled by Irish, Scandinavian, Scottish, and English kings.

When the island passed to Edward I of England, he and his successors presented the little kingdom to various favorites until in 1405 it came into possession of the great house of Stanley. This famous Lancashire family ruled in Man up to 1736, when the lordship passed to the duke of Athol,

Twenty-nine years later the island was sold to the British Crown. Fortunately, however, all the old laws and customs were preserved, so that today the island, which is only 30 miles long and 12 broad, still possesses its own law courts and its own legislative bodies, though

> Most of the town, built on Castletown bay, is grouped around Castle Rushen. The streets are so old and narrow that sometimes the inhabitants, after nearly being annihilated by a motorbus, remark pathetically, "Why, there isn't room to swing a cat here!" All the same, they are proud of their old houses and would not have it otherwise.

One large square, facing the castle, is remarkable for its monuments. In the center stands a lofty column, erected, so a tablet explains, as a memorial to Col. Cornelius Smelt, a former lieutenant governor of the island. One wonders why there is no statue on the top, until some kind passer-by explains that insufficient money was forthcoming to complete the memorial.

Clock With Only One Hand.

This seems odd, but odder yet is the time-keeping apparatus displayed. First, there is an old sundial, which, so it is said, can be used to tell the time by either the sun or the moon.

But strangest of all is a large clock presented by Good Queen Bess. At first glance it looks very imposing and useful, but then one discovers there is something seriously amiss. There is only one hand, the hour hand.

As a result, the stranger is very likely to miss trains and buses, but in this, as in other things, practice improves even if it does not make perfect, and in time one becomes quite a good guesser. The Manx people do not mind, for after all their motto is "Time Enough." Castle Rushen is one of the finest specimens of a medieval castle in existence. The local limestone has asked me to do the talking. wonderfully withstood the storms of centuries. someone named Rashid speaking from lar, so that, although the people had to support numerous troops and were heavily taxed, he was well liked. Some of his own words have come down to us and they explain the secret of his success:

"When first I came among the people, I seemed affable and kind to all, so I offended none. For taking off your hat, a good word, a smile or the like, will cost you noth-ing, but may gain you much."

When he died the countess was ruling in Castle Rushen and one William Christian, receiver of the island, was in command of the militia. This man at once led the militia against the countess and captured all the strong places with the exception of Castle Rushen and Peel.

The Parliamentary forces then landed on the island, and Christian surrendered on condition that the Manx should retain their laws and liberties. A few days later the countess was compelled to give in.

The castle is no doubt a wonderful specimen of medieval architecture, but one can not help thinking how dreadfully uncomfortable it must have been for all those who had to live there. Thick walls, tiny windows, and holes through which to pour boiling pitch may be admirable for defensive purposes, but do not increase the amenities of a dwelling.

Indeed, the only consolation the residents can have had is the knowledge of the even greater discomforts suffered by the prisoners in #### the underground dungeons. There are, it is said, ghosts haunting the castle, notably a lady in white who appears in unexpected fashion out of the main gateway at midnight. Manx Cats Still There.

This is doubtless a myth, but the Manx cats are no myth; there are still some about, looking very strange minus their tails. Little is known about them, though it has been said that the original specimens came off a galleon of the Spanish Armada wrecked on the rocky shores of the island. But whatever their origin, they are far wilder than English cats, in shape rather like a miniature leopard.

Half a mile from the center of Castletown is Hango hill, the ancient execution ground where William Christian was shot.

This macabre hill rises from the seashore, and immediately behind it the inspiring pile of King William's college dominates an enormous green playing field. Anyone who wishes may visit this great public school, where most distinguished Manxmen, and some distinguished Englishmen, received their education.

From here one can ramble on to the fishing village of Derby Haven, formerly a center of smuggling but now remarkable as the island airport, and visit the white farmhouse of Ronaldsway, the old home of Christian and the place where he hatched his plot to rise against the countess.

"Here is the route that my words took as they went winging across the globe:-by short wave from New York to London; then relayed by short wave from London across Europe to Cairo; then by land wire from Africa, across the Suez Canal, to El Kantara, where

1. By obstacles. The woman met what seemed to be a sharp rebuke (v. 27), although it was no doubt much tempered by the tender voice of Jesus, and by the fact that He did not use the word "dogs" as the Jews did in speaking of the Gentiles. He spoke kindly, and He talked of the "little dogs" which were the pets of the household. But her faith was greatly tried, just as ours often is, not that it should fail, but that its strength might be demonstrated.

2. By natural handicaps. Jesus put no impediment in the way of the man, for he was already hindered by nature. How often do we not feel that in our very personalities and bodies are those things which hinder our full apprehension of the grace of God. Shall we then give up in discouragement? No. The man believed right through the barrier of unhearing ears and a speechless tongue. We can do likewise by the grace of God.

III. Faith Rewarded.

1. By deliverance from the devil. The woman's daughter was set free because of her faith. Men and women around us need to be delivered from the devil. Perhaps you who read these lines are in need of such deliverance. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house" (Acts 16:31).

2. By deliverance from personal limitations. The man's "ears were opened . . . and he spake plain" (v. 35). What is the unfortunate trait of personality, the handicap of body or mind that holds you back from accepting Christ as Saviour, or, having done so, from the full and free development of your spiritual life? Faith in Christ cuts right through the hindering inability. He said to Paul, "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness.'

Temper

We are told, "Let not the sun go down on your wrath," but I would add, never act or write till it has done so. This rule has saved me from many an act of folly. It is wonderful what a different view we take of the same event four-andtwenty hours after it has happened.

Forgive Your Enemies

And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you .- Ephesians 4:32. Their work is very good, and one may see many examples of it ornamenting the best homes in Bucha-

Finland's Name The name Finland has nothing to do with the fin of a fish, as one might be excused for thinking at first glance. True, the country has a long seacoast bordering on the Baltic, but inland there are many lakes surrounded by marshes and connected by glistening streams and canals. Many years ago re-gions like this were called fens. Thus the little country in the northern part of Europe became known as fen-land, or marsh-land, and, as the years passed and people spoke carelessly, its name changed to Finland.

Meaning of Name Genevieve Genevieve is a Celtic name with the poetic meaning "white wave." St. Genevieve (422-512) is the patron saint of Paris. She was a pious shepherd girl of Nanterre. During the Frankish invasion she went from town to town and collected huge quantities of food to relieve starving Paris, which deed, with her prayers, was credited with saving the city from the Huns. Other Celtic names, also meaning "white wave," are Jennifer, a form of Genevieve Devnet, Dymphna, Veva, Vevay, Vefele and Vanora.

Three-Toed Sloth Defenseless

The three-toed sloth, of the tropical forests of the New World, is about the most defenseless creature in existence. It is poorly equipped to combat any enemy. It doesn't fight, hide or run away. It is an example of perpetual laziness and spends most of its time, when not eating leaves, hanging down from a tree branch grasped firmly by the three toes on each foot.

The Kentucky Colonel

The traditional Kentucky colonel was a white-goateed gentleman with a broad black hat and string tie, and a fund of tall stories. He handled mint juleps in a manner befitting the state, where, according to W. J. Lampton in his poem, "Kentucky," "The corn is full of kernels and the colonels full of corn.'

enactments, of course, are subject to the approval of the British government.

Flag With Three Legs.

The first thing that strikes you during a voyage to the island is the fact that your ship is flying a red flag bearing the Three Legs of Man. This is the ancient emblem of the island, which decorates the hilt of the Thirteenth-century sword of state and in addition is seen almost everywhere.

It seems certain that this emblem is of Sicilian origin, for many Sicilian vases in the British museum bear a similar design. The only difference is that in the Manx version the feet are booted and spurred and a curious motto states: "Whichever way you may throw me, I shall fall on my feet."

Castletown, though deprived of its former importance, still retains an air of aloof grandeur. The inhabitants rether look down upon these

Robert Bruce captured the castle in 1313, by dint of a long siege. As a fortress it looks impregnable, and, in fact, was so in the brave days of old, before the development of artillery.

During the reign of Charles I, who was beheaded in 1649, the seventh earl of Derby, known to this day as the Great Stanley, built a house in the grounds after the style of his Lancashire seat, Knowsley hall. This great man, and his gallant wife, Charlotte de la Tremouille, played a prominent part in the British Civil war. While he raised men for the king in the Isle of Man, she defended Lathom house in Lancashire. Later, when Charles II made his unfortunate raid into England, the earl fought by his side at Worcester and was captured and executed.

Bagdad, for, as you will recall, the most famous name in the history of Bagdad was Rashid: the Caliph Haroun-al-Rashid of Arabian Nights fame, the wise Caliph who went about among his people in disguise. And I suppose I was selected to open this unusual service from the American end because during the World War I happened to be associated, out in Arabia, with Emir Feisal, the companion of Lawrence of Arabia. After the war, my friend Feisal was made the first modern King of Bagdad, and now his son, King Ghazi of Iraq, rules in the city of the Caliphs.

... Sitting high up in the tower of the Waldorf-Astoria, I heard the voice of Said Rashid, speaking to me direct from the region which historians believe was the original Garden of Eden. I mentioned to Mr. Rashid that his name was appropriate, the same as the great Caliph. And he replied that I was in an appropriate place, that named Rashid in far-off Bagdad.

Allenby had his great base camp during the war against the Turks and where I had lived; then by wire over the Sinai desert, where the children of Israel wandered for forty years, on to Gaza, home of Goliath and the Philistines and where Delilah cut off Sampson's hair and where Sampson pulled down the Temple; on north along the Palestine coast to Jaffa, seaport of King David and King Solo-mon, and where Jonah embarked on his voyage that ended in the stomach of the whale; on up to Haifa; then eastward through Palestine to Nazareth, home of the Saviour; and across the North Arabian desert to Bagdad.
