THE FIREWORKS PERIL.

Be on the Safe Side and do not Sell or Use.

For several years, the State and City Departments of Health have cooperated with the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Blindness in checking up on information concerning injuries received in such accidents. "These records show," Dr. Riley continued, "that 307 persons were injured in Fourth of July accidents from fireworks in 1939; 306 in 1938 and 295 in 1937; 908 in the three years. There were probably a great many more that were not reported. Of the 307 accidents reported in 1939, 78 occurred in the counties and 229 in Baltimore City.

"Efforts have been made by public and private agencies to secure legislation limiting the unrestricted handling of fireworks. The regulations issued recently by the State Insurance Department, through Mr. John B. Contrum, the State Insurance Commissioner, governing the sale of fireworks in Maryland, mark a great step forward. There is every reason to hope this year's toll of accidents will be greatly reduced through the careful enforcement of these regulations.

"In the meanwhile, in order that we remember the hazards involved in any handling of fireworks, it is worth recalling last year's record.

"Last year's total of 307 persons injured in fireworks accidents over the holiday, included 195 children under 15; 14 of whom were from 1 to 5 years old, 69 from 6 to 10 and 112 from 11 to 15. Those in the older groups included 32 from 16 to 20; 28 from 21 to 30, and the rest were from 31 to 70.

"There was one death. Here is the record: Adult. Thinking an aerial bomb would not go off, he went back to examine it. It went off striking his forehead. Fractured skull. Died fifteen minutes after entering hospital.

"A child of nine was struck in the face by a bomb. About fifty stitches required. A boy of seventeen placed a large firecracker in a glass bottle and had his eyesight permanently impaired through the explosion of the glass.

"Firecrackers were responsible for the injuries to 248 persons; 10 were injured by sky-rockets, 6 by torpedoes, 6 by Roman candles and 2 by sparklers.

"Of the total, 26 persons suffered injuries to the eyes; 30 to the face; 187 to the hands or arms; 64 to other parts of the body.

"These figures give no idea of the suffering or anxiety involved. Neither do they give any idea of the danger of lockjaw—tetanus as it is known medically—that is always present in injuries from fireworks or other explosives.

"If your celebration of the Fourth of July is not complete without fireworks, limit your enjoyment of them to adequately safeguarded community displays."

TANEYTOWN SCHOOL CLOSING EXERCISES.

Address to Graduates by Dr. Edgar Cordell Powers.

The annual graduation exercises of Taneytown were carried out, Tuesday in a well directed manner. The class was considerably smaller than some other years and the average age of pupils seemed less. The following was the order of the program:

"Praise Ye the Father" Gounod, Processional; Invocation, Rev. Guy P. Bready; Response "Choral" Bach from "St. Matthew's Passion"; "One Fleeting Hour" Fuhrman-Lee, Richard Teeter; "Forever March" Schrammel, High School Orchestra; Address to Graduates, Dr. Edgar Cordell Powers, Executive Secretary of Maryland Bible Society, Baltimore, Md.; "Night Song" Lemare, Boys' Chorus; Presentation of Diplomas, Raymond S. Hyson, Superintendent of Schools.

The address to the graduates by Dr. Edgar Cordell Powers, executive secretary of the Maryland Bible Society, of Baltimore, who went the round of the county schools, was well received and both for its substantial features, and for specimens of wit that so often appropriately illustrate truths.

He said he considered it a happy opportunity and privilege to speak to graduates the product of our excellent system of education. Sometimes we feel speaking and teaching that we do not forget. We both learn and know—we want to get out—we learn to know the value of a good name, much as do the unfortunate who have had a penitentiary experience. We make good records for ourselves, sometimes after having been associated with wrong influences.

He advised the reading of the 31st. Chapter of Proverbs for a wise choice. We need ambition to do good, and to live a long and good life, and find ways and time for doing so with all of our might, and to realize that if we are to live a good life, all must help make the world to be better.

He quoted the thought that we should "count that day lost whose low descending Sun, views from our hands no worthy action done" and emphasized the truth that we need not only men, but have "supplies"—service—bravery along with them, for true greatness depends on preparedness and unselfishness, and necessarily on truly well educated lives.

Prof. Hyson, Superintendent of schools, spoke very briefly on the efficient manner in which the Taneytown School has been conducted, and presented the graduation certificates.

The principal of the school Prof. Geo. N. Shower had well chosen words of encouragement to the graduates, and on the manner in which all—teachers and pupils—performed their various duties.

"Recessional" Kipling, Mixed Chorus; Benediction, Rev. Thurlow W. Null. The following medals and prizes were awarded, before the school closed by Superintendent George N. Shower. Scholarship medal, to Phyllis Hess. Activities medal, to Richard Teeter. Citizenship medal, to Dorothy Shoemaker.

A dictionary, to Jean Harbaugh, for best speller.

FROM U. S. RECRUITING SERVICE

Request has been made by the recruiting department of the U. S. Army, for the publication of the following. Read it, and use your own judgment.

The United States War Department is currently faced with the problem of increasing the size of our Regular Army, considerably and immediately. To better show any foreign powers our national unity in purpose, it is believed the recruitment of these men should be carried out as subtly as possible.

The flag waving and drum beating should be avoided.

Enlistments must be entirely voluntary.

Your cooperation for your country and your protection is sought.

Your Army would like for you to volunteer to carry in your newspaper advertisements some statement regarding your attitude on national defense, and to encourage enlistments in the Regular Army—your Regular Army.

The following are merely suggestions:

We favor National defense. Join the Regular Army now. National defense is our best insurance against war. Enlist in the United States Army. We are in favor of the present National defense program. Young men should enlist in the Regular Army now.

THE BRUCEVILLE BRIDGE Again, Protest is Made that Demands Prompt Attention.

Editor The Record:—Your paper has given good service to Carroll County by publishing two letters about Big Pipe Creek Bridge, Route 71. Will you give space to another?

The half-rotten planks that formed the runway on this bridge have been removed and new planks put down on the half-rotten planks underneath. This certainly forms a better surface, and the new planks will soon pay for themselves, as fewer cars will be damaged by skidding during wet weather.

But if you cover a dangerous mess with a new blanket does that abolish the dangerous mess? The two farmers who wrote about it made what they termed "strong statements" regarding the faulty engineering methods used in repairing this bridge. Their statements were strong, but not strong enough. I claim that the jumble of dinky little piers with heavy props balanced on them, the hay-wire fastenings, the piles of shims and the little patches put together with nails form the most pitiful mess of engineering mispractice that can be found on any bridge in the whole United States.

If the charges made by the two farmers were not true the state road commissioner and the bridge engineers would have denied them before this. But everyone who has examined the bridge knows that the charges are true. The group of little piers that have been carried from under the props and can still be seen down stream at low water are silent but positive proofs of such construction. They are also proofs that our road commissioner and our bridge engineers have little or no idea of what flood water can do.

That the bridge is dangerous the road commissioner admits, for on each side of the bridge he has erected a sign that reads "Danger—Weight not to exceed 12,000 pounds." Perhaps he thinks this will protect him in case of accident. But it is common public knowledge that for months after putting up this warning he has been allowing trucks to cross the bridge that weigh around 12,000 pounds empty. The loads of these trucks amount to an additional 20,000 pounds to 30,000 pounds. Does the Commissioner know that a load like this may pass safely over an obsolete bridge but so strain it that a light auto that follows may crash through?

Many of us remember the disaster and the Monocacy bridge near Frederick. When an investigation was held the evidence as to the facts was contradictory and no one was punished. That the evidence of continued failure to correct a dangerous condition in this bridge shall be so clear as to admit of no denial I ask the people of Carroll County who use this bridge and fathers and mothers whose children cross the bridge daily in a school bus to visit this bridge when the water is low, taking with them both note books and cameras. Let them make written, dated records of which piers are tilted to one side and which ones are tilted to the other. Let them make written record of which piers are siled down and which ones have slid down stream below the others; how many have moved three feet and how many have moved an even greater distance. Let them take photographs of the piers of shims on which some of the upright supports are resting and of the way some of these shims are tilted. There are shims at the top to be photographed as well as the bottom. There is also hay-wire to be photographed and notes to be made of its rusted condition. Let notes be made also of old, abandoned piers jammed sideways between the later piers so as to set up the undermining cross currents that the two farmers mention.

In addition there is a flock of old piers below the bridges that should be photographed with special care. They form absolute proof that these little piers do not remain in place. The massive uprights give the bridge a false appearance of strength. Users do not know anything of the absurdly weak two-inch foundations on which

HAVE A SAFE SUMMER.

We can do much to assure happiness and healthfulness by doing our part to fight summer fire hazards this year. Each change of season brings new dangers. Uncut dry grass in a vacant lot, combined with a carelessly disposed of cigar butt, may mark the starting point of a fire that will destroy lives and property. And a vacationist's carelessness with a campfire may result in the burning of thousands of acres of magnificent timberland which Nature spent centuries in creating.

Every town should adopt a "clean-up" campaign during the summer months. Old shacks, prime breeding places of fire, should be razed. Garages and homes should be painted. And the utmost care should be taken with any and all flammable materials.

There's one more little task that every householder should perform in summer, in the interest of comforts as well as safety. That is to put the heating plant into prime condition before next winter brings its demands for warmth. Don't trust heating plant repairs to yourself or another amateur. Have them done by an expert, who knows his job. Having a good time this summer but keep the dangers of fire everlasting in mind.

ALLIES MAKE PLEAS TO THE UNITED STATES.

Italy has entered the War to help Germany.

The big news of the week in the European War situation, was the announcement that Italy had joined forces with Germany, thereby making two Allies in what is perhaps the greatest war on record. This had been foreshadowed for some time, and was not unexpected.

The first experience of this new line-up was in Africa, when English forces raided Italian war bases, while the Italians countered by bombing Malta. The advance on Paris slackened, early in the week, due to rain, while such attacks as were made appeared to be about equal. A terrific battle is due here. A vast mass of citizens have left the city, and to some extent government records have been taken to a safer place.

French troops have been fighting steadily for ten days without rest with a miraculous display of bravery and endurance. The French shortage in airplanes causes the land forces to make greater effort, and sometimes ammunition supplies are short.

Hitler calls German successes "one of the brightest pages in Germany history." He says the Allies are broken beyond recovery and that Paris can be occupied at any time he sees fit. He also says the English blockade against Germany has been broken.

France has made a strong plea to the U. S. for prompt help. The French Premier says "Clouds of airplanes are required to crush the evil power." His request is to speed up the delivery of those promised, as well as to send thousands more. The situation as it now stands, is decidedly dark for England and France.

The Senate, on Tuesday, voted to extend aid to the Allies, and is said to have sold France $37,000,000 worth of war equipment.

Henry Ford announced that his plant could turn out 1000 airplanes a week, without difficulty.

The House, on Tuesday, passed a bill 396 to 6, to boost the U. S. debt one billion dollars.

The Senate, on Thursday evening, passed the President's new request for $50,000,000, without a dissenting vote, and then closed the day with both defense and attack speeches concerning the President's foreign policy.

The secretary was instructed by the Board to write a letter of appreciation to Mr. Allender for his service to the schools of the county during the twenty-one years he was a member of the Board.

The superintendent was authorized to advertise the examination for the Senatorial scholarship (male) to Western Maryland College to be given at the Westminister High School, on Friday, June 21, at 9:00 A. M.

The salary schedule for colored teachers was approved.

Mr. Hyson discussed the survey of the Carroll County school system as it was prepared for the commission appointed by the Governor to make this survey.

The calendar for 1940-41 was approved.

The superintendent was given the authority to purchase janitorial supplies on the basis of bid according to quality and price. He was authorized also to order equipment for the Taneytown addition.

A brief report of the contemplated summer work at the schools was given.

The Board passed a resolution stating that a restriction on the sale of alcoholic beverages be placed in all deeds given for property sold by the Board of Education.

A note from Rev. H. B. Mays was read, expressing appreciation to the Board of Education for the use of the Springville building for Sunday School purposes.

Mr. Hyson was authorized to advertise for bids for the sewage disposal plant at Taneytown.

At 1:30 o'clock the following school properties were sold: Fairmount, purchased by George Ingram, $210.00; Shiloh, purchased by the Trustees of Shiloh Church, $60.00; Mexico, purchased by Harry

CHURCH OF THE BRETHERN Church of the Brethren Conference at Ocean Grove.

The 1941 annual conference of the Church of the Brethren will be held on the Pacific Coast, likely in California. The moderator-elect is Dr. C. E. Davis, President of LaVerne College, California.

The conference approved a benevolence budget of $235,000 and a war-relief expenditure of $3,000 per month in war-stricken areas. Next week the conference will consider the matter of tenure for national board members.

Dr. T. Z. Koo, internationally known Chinese statesman, who refuses to hate the Japanese enemies of his country, in an address Friday, said the Christian cannot be neutral in the face of wrong or indifferent before suffering.

Most young men of the Church of the Brethren are conscientious objectors and the conference appointed a committee to deal with the problem of their relation to the government in case of war and to determine the attitude of the church toward those who are drafted or enlist in either combat or non-combatant service.

The conference will present several war-relief agents who have administered relief for the church in China, Scandinavia, France and Spain and agreed to forego the Sunday meal to add to the fund to send them back.

Eight new missionaries will be consecrated Monday to be sent to China, India and Africa.

In its resolutions the Conference objected to apparent efforts to militarize the N. Y. A. and the C. C. C. organizations and begged the government not to participate in the second world war.

The Conference provided for co-operation with the Friends Service Committee and the Mennonites in bringing aid to the war sufferers abroad.

Most of the one thousand churches were represented by delegates and perhaps one-fourth of the ministers of the church in attendance, including about 75% of the active pastors.

Mrs. Ruth Roop Rinehart, addressed the Young People's Conference on Wednesday evening, on co-operatives, in the Ocean Grove M. E. Church. Mrs. Herbert Petry, Jr., accompanied Mrs. Andrew Hoff and daughter to this annual conference. Miss Rachael Garner of the Meadow Branch congregation was also in attendance. Rev. and Mrs. Wm. E. Roop, were delegates.

SHORTAGE OF LEGUMES AS FARM CROPS.

It has been announced today by County Agent L. C. Burns that in all probability there will be a shortage of legume seeds for use on farms in Maryland during the coming year. This has been pointed out due to the fact that a great deal of our seeds are shipped from abroad and that the demand for hairy vetch, crimson clover, red clover and other legumes and grasses, will probably be high, due to the type of farming that is practiced in dairy sections. For this reason, as well as other reasons, it would be well if farmers could save as much of their own seed as possible.

The hired girl had been sent down to the brook to fetch a pail of water, but stood gazing at the flowing stream apparently lost in thought.

"What's she waiting for?" asked her mistress, who was watching.

"Dunno," wearily replied her husband. "Perhaps she hasn't seen a pailful she likes yet."

Random Thoughts

MENTAL REST.

Our thoughts, both "random" and otherwise have strong inclination toward taking a vacation at Mountain Lake Park. As this is impossible for numerous reasons, will merely recall during the World War, twenty-five or more years ago, we did take just such a vacation.

Thoughts have a way of their own in practicing absenteeism, which is a pretty strong indication of needed mental rest—a getting away from a brain-taxing monotonous job.

The writer once paid a Johns Hopkins specialist a fee of $10 for this prescription, "Go home, take a big dose of castor oil, go to bed for two weeks, and then go to Atlantic City for a month."

On telling the specialist that this was impossible, he said, "Then come to the Hospital and have your appendix removed."

About six weeks later, that is what we did—and the first prescription would have been much the lowest in cost but perhaps not have reached the trouble. And so, this is our "random thought" for this week.

FRIDAY, JUNE 14, 1940.

A WORLD-WIDE CALAMITY.

The terrible war in Europe can not help but bring with it a feeling of deep depression to all Americans, and to our millions of naturalized Germans, Swedes, Italian, Norwegians, Swiss, Poles and others of foreign descent who have become fully Americanized.

In our motley mass of inhabitants there are many who secretly—if not openly—feel otherwise. There are some, too, who expect to profit by the failure of the Allies to win—which now seems to be impossible.

There are the thorough pacifists, too, who will take great satisfaction in our having so far, escaped active participation in the war. If they are wise, they will take this satisfaction very, very, quietly.

Some will worry only over the increase in taxation that is now sure to follow to all who own taxable property, but who will hope that they can escape another increase in our already heavy burden of taxation, and perhaps make money out of the woes of others. They, too, should keep to themselves.

Hundreds of thousands have been so far killed in this war, who have been forced to take part in it against their will—and their families are suffering needlessly because of dictatorship. Who can picture the full extent of the calamity that has befallen them?

"Depression" does not describe the situation, here, or over there; and, the end has not yet been reached. Should we not pray, as well as sing—

"Long may our land be bright
With Freedom's Holy Light
Protect us by thy might Great God, our King."

"GOD NEVER INTENDED" SOME FARMS TO BE PLOWED.

Below is an article worth reading, clipped from "Farm Credit Messenger" Baltimore District. If God did not intend that hillsides be protected against erosion—a very costly proposition—then our government has been out of touch with Divinity.

This may be a far-flung thought, but read the following article, and see what you think of it. It is headed "God never intended that farm to be plowed."

"For more than ten years no plow has ever broken ground on the 160-acre farm of J. C. Padgett, secretary-treasurer of the Grayson County National Farm Loan Association, at Independence, Virginia.

"God Almighty has been trying to teach us folks in Southwest Virginia not to plow these steep hillsides," said Mr. Padgett, in establishing a claim for his steadfast refusal to break the soil of his land with a plow. "We've been trying to farm land God never intended to be farmed, and we had to wear out the land before we came to our senses." Then he laughingly declared, "Why, I wouldn't let a plow cross my land even on a wagon."

Mistreatment of the steep Appalachian slopes in Grayson and neighboring counties began, according to the secretary-treasurer, before the Civil War when the landowners found they had to raise a lot of corn and other foodstuffs for their slaves. This region was practically isolated, and food and feedstuffs couldn't be imported from other sections even by those who could afford to buy them.

After the war, lack of capital forced the continuation of this ruinous economy. The people on the land had to raise corn and wheat to keep from going hungry. So they plowed the hillsides year after year, almost never adding any fertilizer to maintain the soil's fertility, and kept raising crops "till the last crop they raised was a crop of gullies."

In modern times this section has turned to a pastoral economy and has tended more and more to get its income from beef cattle and sheep fattened on bluegrass and hay.

Mr. Padgett is one of several demonstrators who operate "no-plow" farms, on which all cleared land is in grass, with no row crop plowed. A number of others operate modified "no-plow" farms, with only a small proportion of their total acreage in row crops.

TWO WAYS OF LIFE.

This is Convention Time in the United States. Once every four years, the various parties get together with considerable fanfare and choose their candidates for the Presidency of this country. It is a notable affair always, and especially this year when so many countries are at war and so many lands are living under a system where one party is all-supreme and unchangeable by the orderly processes of election.

In this county, the Communist party was one of the first to meet. Small in numbers, it has been loud in its insistence upon its rights in our democracy, rights which no citizen enjoys in Russia, land of the party's birth. Respectful of the rights of minorities—even a minority standing for everything that true Americans despise—the great radio networks of this country agreed to broadcast the convention proceedings.

This gave hundreds of radio stations throughout the country the "opportunity" to schedule the Communist Convention. It was at this point that the true difference between two ways of life was revealed, for almost all of the stations exercised their democratic right to turn down the program and play "canned music" instead. They knew that their American listeners would not be interested.

If the same situation had occurred in Russia, or Germany or Italy, the stations wouldn't have had to make a choice. They would have been told what to do. And there wouldn't have been any minority party convention for them to accept or refuse.

Little incidents like these point up the distinction between the two systems—and incidentally, the stations in question exercised their democratic rights well and judged the interests of their audiences very wisely!

TO THE YOUTH OF TODAY.

Governor Clyde R. Hoey, of North Carolina, in addressing the graduating class at the State College of North Carolina, at Raleigh, gave to the young men some ringing advice for their rule and guide in this world of today.

We advise the reading by young and old the extracts from the address that follows:

"The individual looms largest in a democracy. America has been the home of individualism and the unexampled growth and development of this nation has been due to the initiative and industry of those who came early to our land, and their ancestors who have remained to forge ahead into new fields, make new discoveries and inventions, build a mighty agricultural and industrial empire of production and manufacture, and extend its resources and power until America has become the premier nation of the world.

"In wealth and resources the United States far surpasses any other nation. The British Empire does not even begin to compare with this country. Our wealth is almost as great as that of Great Britain, Germany, France, Russia, Italy and Japan all combined. Our resources are almost unlimited and we have sixty percent of all the gold in the world stored under American soil. With a population of 130,000,000 against a world population of 1,600,000,000 we have an overwhelming proportion of the conveniences of life and the modern devices for pleasure and comfort. We have led the world in inventions and our standard of living for all the people is far above the standard, the poorer people in this land having more conveniences and comforts and far greater privileges and opportunities than the average well-to-do in other lands.

"America has become the have nation of the world. With this has come a measure of jealousy and a deal of cynical aloofness on the part of some other nations. Especially have some of our South American neighbors viewed us suspiciously. All of these things in the world of today make it extremely important that we take every precaution to provide for our national safety and security and that we adopt a broad policy of international good will, with special reference to our Southern neighbors in this western world. Already in the doctrine of the isolationists has been demonstrated to be false in theory and wholly unavailing and inadequate in practice. Isolation does not afford us adequate security.

"I believe in the America of history and the American of today. I wish to see it preserved inviolate for tomorrow. In the days ahead of us we shall all be called upon to make sacrifices. We cannot spend the money necessary to make this nation secure and still continue our usual way of life. We cannot let the rich pay it all as the Communists demanded in their National Convention Saturday. There are two reasons for that. One is that if the government should confiscate the entire income above $100,000 per year of every man or woman in the United States it would only yield enough to run this government for 45 days at the present rate of spending.

The government now takes 70 percent of the whole net income when it reaches the high brackets and leaves the person who gets the income only 21 percent of it, and out of this State income tax must be paid, which usually reduces it below 15 percent. Frankly I think this is too high and I believe it ought to be reduced—for the general good of the nation. I think fifty percent is enough for the government to take of any person's income. We shall all have to bear some of the burden.

"We shall have to give up some of our cherished liberties temporarily as we go through this period of building up of national defenses, but I think we should covenant with ourselves and with each other that we shall insist upon a complete return of all these rights as soon as the crisis passes. It is so easy to lose them when once denied unless there shall be a complete restoration.

"That is the only hope of a democracy and as we stand today above the smoking embers of the expiring democracies, consumed in the red vortex of war in the old world, it behooves us to sacredly guard our heritages of liberty and freedom and our guaranties of all civil rights. Already before the war crises developed we have been gradually conferring upon boards and bureaus rights and powers which are being arbitrarily exercised to the detriment of the business life of the nation and the individual rights of the citizen.

"I congratulate President Roosevelt and the Congress upon the action in removing immigration from the Labor to the Justice department. This should insure some adequate protection to this country from that source. It has been so easy for communists, fascists and nazis to enter this country upon forged passports. They are all equally undesirable. The radical makes no contribution to the common good. His whole trend is destructive rather than constructive, and he avowedly wishes to overthrow our government under which he even now claims protection.

"These radicals are not all foreigners, but the home grown variety is no improvement over the imported ones. We have precious few in North Carolina, for which the Lord be praised. We have seen what their treachery and sabotage did for France in her hour of supreme peril.

"You cannot be a great personality without developing a great loyalty. In this dark hour commend to you the twin loyalties—God and country. You shall be measured by the effort which you make and the fruit you bear. The true appraisal of a man will follow the rule laid down by Thomas Carlyle in his essay on Robert Burns when he maintained that the test should be what the man did to the world and what the world did to the man. Measured by that standard some of the present world actors will have a shocking account to settle in the long tomorrow.

I covet with you the privilege of living through this period of stress and danger. I shall not for myself seek a storm cellar for economic safety and political security. If a new world is to be made I want the spirit of America to be dominant in that world and I should like for the North Carolina brand of undiluted Americanism and unspiced democracy to be the standard preserved for measuring the rights and liberties of the citizens of this new world."

LIGHTING HIGHWAYS FOR SAFE DRIVING.

Every curve, turn, bend, and crossing on Maryland's leading highways now is mapped out far in advance for night driving motorists by powerful retro-directive reflection, it is announced by Robert M. Reindollar, assistant chief engineer of the State Roads Commission.

In a state-wide installation just completed, the first of its kind in the nation, 1,970 symbols made of a new material that reflects light from as far as a mile away, have been erected along the highways.

The symbols, mounted on 24-inch-square plates, are formed with units of "Lucite" methyl methacrylate, the new plastic with strange optical properties which already have been utilized for "light piping" in surgical instruments and in other devices that "bend" light around corners.

On all highways included in the installation, Mr. Reindollar said, a symbol or diagram has been placed at every point, without exception, where there is a change in direction of the route, a road intersection, or a railroad crossing.

Summer vacationists from other states this summer, as well as year-round Maryland residents, will find night motoring safer and easier as a result of the installation, he said.

"The constant advance warning afforded by these symbols definitely fosters safe driving," Mr. Reindollar said. "It also promotes the driver's comfort by relieving him of the nervous tension involved when he is forever expecting the road to do strange things unexpectedly.

The installation involves 24,000 units of "Lucite," each the diameter of a silver dollar. The material, developed in the Du Pont chemical laboratories, can be molded with angular sharpness approaching that of a cut jewel.

When it is molded with its back a grid of pyramidal elements, under a principle developed by J. C. Stimson, of Chicago, it has the power to collect and concentrate the rays of headlights into strong beams which can be seen a mile away and which give clear definition of the symbols beyond 1,000 feet. This ability to see the designs at a distance is especially valuable in letting the night motorists now whether there is room enough ahead to pass another slower moving car.

The plastic is as transparent as the finest glass but weighs only half as much and is non-shattering. Its reflective power when properly molded is ten times that of glass. Applied at one end of a coiled rod of "Lucite," light will travel invisibly through the transparent rod and emerge at the land. Routes included are:

The Maryland reflector installation covers the arterial highway system fanning out from Baltimore and reaching westward beyond Cumberland. Routes included the:

U. S. No. 1 from the Pennsylvania line near Slymar to Baltimore. The same route from Baltimore to Washington.

U. S. No. 40 from the Delaware line near Elkton to Baltimore.

U. S. No. 50, from Washington to Annapolis.

U. S. No. 240 from Washington to Frederick.

U. S. No. 140 from Baltimore to Westminster.

U. S. No. 40 from Baltimore to Frederick, to Hagerstown, to Cumberland, and thence to the Pennsylvania line near Keyser.

Mr. Reindollar, after seeing an installation of "Lucite" highway delineators between Lansing and Detroit, in Michigan conceived the idea that the new type reflector unit would be very effective as reflectors in symbol signs. The delineators are units spaced at regular intervals along the roadside to outline the route far ahead. Maryland is using these also at many points of extreme hazard.

Leprosy in Australia

So serious has the spread of leprosy become in northern Australia that the government is being urged to start an intensive campaign against it. The movement follows a statement in Bristol by E. N. Halon, Queensland minister for health and home affairs, regarding a report that leprosy is increasing among both white and colored races. He urged the several states to unite in an anti-leprosy war. The number of cases of leprosy among white people is increasing and is now about as large as that among aborigines. The increase in the number of children showing infection is also causing concern.

Earlier Marriage Preferred

The Future Wives of America have begun a campaign to lower the marriage of consent for girls from 18 to 17. Future Wife Inez Freer, president of the organization which was started by N. Y. U. coeds, but now includes outsiders, thinks girls of 17 are fit for marriage today because they have "more intelligence and are better equipped physically and mentally than their sisters of 30 years ago."

Call for Mr. X

Houston, Texas, police are hunting Mr. X. They don't know his name, so here's the way they filed theft charges against him: "State of Texas versus one white man, occupant of car Texas license No. 39402, plum colored sedan; man of five feet nine inches, thirty years old, black hair, dark complexion, brown suit and hat; to be pointed out by Henderson Riley (the victim)."

Protecting Scottish Homes

Scotland's courts, as well as those of England and Wales, have been given far-reaching powers to protect the average citizen and his home from creditors and landlords. A law provides that, with certain exceptions, no creditor may enforce any previously obtained judgment or order or any decree or warrant authorizing the seizure of any one's property without leave of the court.

In Glasgow it was explained that under the law judges will not grant applications of creditors for seizures or evictions if the court is satisfied that the debtor is engaged in national service or is unable to pay by reason of war conditions. Exceptions relate to workmen's compensation, damages for civil wrongs, maintenance ordered paid married women, fines and other penalties imposed by courts.

Ethiopia's Shark Industry

Italy has found shark fishing a profitable industry and is encouraging it among the Ethiopians. Oil obtained from the shark has been found a satisfactory substitute for cod liver oil; shark meat is a favorite food of the Arabs; a valuable leather is obtained from the skin, and the fins, when dried and properly cured, attract the palate of Chinese gourmets.

ONE GOOD TURN

By LILA ABBOTT
McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

IT IS only by combining "wine, woman and song" that we court disaster; taken separately, they become the three graces and are found stimulating, intriguing and inspiring.

But Roy Cummings had not yet learned his lesson in this respect. After all, was not he a privileged character?

His uncle, Godfrey Cummings, leading citizen of East Baxford by reason of his considerable wealth, had let it be known that Roy was his favorite and heir, so long as he proved amenable to family traditions.

Among these traditions was the implied condition that no member of the proud Cummings family should marry below himself in social position.

Yet, paradoxically, drinking and flirting were not under the old fellow's ban, perhaps because he had the old-fashioned plutocrat's view regarding the feudal privileges of the ruling class.

At any rate, on this particular Sunday evening of his second week's visit to his uncle, Roy had a few scruples concerning possible excesses upon his part.

He had during the day frequently imbibed from a pocket flask, with the result that he was in a reckless mood and all primed for a "rollicking country flirtation," as he termed it.

His course lay rather unsteadily down the main street of the town, where he fancied everyone was looking after him with admiring and envious eyes.

This was not a phase of his drunken condition, as he was, above all other things, conceited, really considering himself handsome and dashing, with the proverbial "way" with the ladies.

But it is safe to say that such acclaim was not in the minds of most of the townspeople who happened to see him that evening, and the fact that he was thus defying a local Sabbath edict—strict sobriety—did not count in his favor.

However, charity is a real virtue and with it Mamie Summers put to shame the passive condemnation of the community. She was on her way to evening service, and the sight of Roy Cummings, of whom she knew so much was expected by his aged uncle, making a public spectacle of himself, aroused her charitable instincts.

She hesitated, undecided how best a Christian girl, albeit a practical one, could be of service to a drunken man upon the main street of a gossipy town.

She must have been a trifle reckless, too, in the light of her eventual decision.

Or perhaps she was just impishly inspired. In any case, what she did make up her mind to do was sufficiently startling in a girl of her retiring type.

She paused and half turned toward Roy. That was enough. With a flourish he had raised his hat.

"Where are you going, my pretty maid?" quoth he.

She might have answered truthfully, yet flippantly: "I am going to church, sir," she said, but, after all, it was an impossible situation for a girl of her conventional upbringing.

She could only look upon him pityingly.

To his muddled intelligence this signified that she was struck dumb with admiration, so he continued quickly:

"Well, wherever you are going I will go along, too, if you don't mind. How about it, sweetie?"

Somehow or other she found herself falling in step with him.

At the same time, she realized how ridiculous the whole situation was. She would have fled had he not grasped her arm and guided her down the street.

Meanwhile she felt the censoring glances of her friends upon her defenseless back.

The two at length reached the lighted vestibule of the church. Here she halted, her half-formed plan put to the test.

"I am going in here," she said breathlessly.

"All right," he agreed; "any place you go suits me." And unwittingly he followed her into the church.

She deposited him in one of the very back seats, where they attracted less attention than might have been expected, owing to the fact that Roy's palpable surprise upon finding himself in a church, of all places, partially sobered him.

He sat quite still during the service, saying over and over to himself: "The little joker. She certainly put one over on me this time."

And this admiration of her cleverness was intermingled with his admiration of her pleasing appearance as he glanced sidewise at her from time to time during the sermon.

"What a pal she would make. What a wife . . . !"

After the service Roy still clung to his companion despite the fact that he was now supposed to be in normal possession of his faculties—normal, yet out in the grateful darkness on the way to her home one might have been pardoned doubting it, when, with fine fervor, he proposed marriage. And Mamie, with inexplicable judgment, accepted!

But by this time Mamie's protecting angel made its belated appearance.

Otherwise there is no telling just how far this spirit of momentary inducement might have worried her. She might even have gone through with a marriage with one she knew only as a wastrel and a flirt.

For, strangely enough, Roy had held to his purpose.

A "peach" who could rope him into a church in his condition was a real thoroughbred, he told himself. And he would marry her in spite of old Godfrey, his uncle.

But old Godfrey proved to have the stronger will.

"Marry that small town girl!" he bellowed. "I should say not!"

And "not" and not "knot" it was. Which was just as well for Mamie.

Five years later Mamie was again walking in the direction of the church. This time, however, when a long gray car of expensive make slowed up beside her and its occupant, a dissipated looking man, threw inviting glances in her direction, she passed serenely on, but knew at once that it was Roy.

Also she knew that he had fallen heir to his uncle's fortune and was now in town with his wife on a short visit.

The wife, by the way, was the famous feminist lecturer who had consented to speak at the church that very evening.

A few minutes later, upon reaching the church vestibule, Mamie was not surprised to see the car drawn up before the door. Nor was she surprised at the occupant's condition. He appeared quite helpless in intoxication. He had the door of the car open but was undecided whether to attempt the distance to the church entrance. Upon seeing Mamie his bleared eyes lighted but not with recognition.

"Say, sister," he pleaded, "help me up the steps, will yuh? I'm sick and I want to speak to my wife."

Mamie accordingly found herself again walking up the church steps with a drunken man on her arm. Inside, of course, was the regal Mrs. Cummings, the lecturer, greeting all comers with a forced, artificial smile. At sight of her husband's entrance she approached with commendable sangfroid (or was it brazenness?) and smiled at Mamie sweetly.

"Thank you, my dear," she said, quite ignoring her husband. "This is very kind of you. But don't you think you put yourself to too much trouble for me?"

Mamie considered the fate of a drunkard's wife, from which this woman had unwittingly saved her by taking Roy off her hands after her early impetuous engagement, and smiled cryptically.

"Not at all," she returned. "One good turn deserves another!"

TELEPHONE MEN RECEIVE MEDALS FOR HEROIC ACTS PERFORMED IN SAVING LIFE AND PROPERTY

Chatham, Va., Central Office Fire, Sailboat Explosion and Plane Crash Figure In Stories Behind Awards Presented To Four C. & P. Employees

Robert C. Atkins, manager at Madison for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of West Virginia, Samuel C. Horney, of the Plaza central office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City, and Robert W. Edwards, plant wire chief, Danville, of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia, have just been awarded bronze Vail medals in recognition of noteworthy public service rendered by them.

R. C. Atkins

Atkins was awarded a medal for the initiative and fortitude he displayed in giving assistance to the victim of a recent airplane crash, which occurred on a mountain near Bandytown. The telephone company manager reached the scene of the crash after a hazardous journey over icy mountain roads, found one occupant of the wrecked plane still alive, arranged to summon a doctor and then helped remove the injured man from the wreckage. The

Couldn't Tell a Lie

Even George Washington had an eye for beauty. When he visited Andover, Mass., 150 years ago, he asked a pretty girl why she had not married. According to the WPA historical survey, the girl said that no one there would have her. Washington then replied, "The young men here have a different taste than I have."

Annual World Precipitation

The annual precipitation over all of the oceans amounts to 80,000 cubic miles of water, according to estimates compiled by Dr. George F. McEwen of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla, Calif. The annual evaporation from the ocean surface is 89,000 cubic miles, so that the runoff from the land amounts to 9,000 cubic miles. The energy consumed in the process involves an expenditure of 500,000 horsepower from the sun for every square mile of the earth's surface.

physician summoned to give medical aid later stated that Mr. Atkins' prompt action and his first aid treatment had undoubtedly resulted in saving a life.

While fishing aboard his 43-foot motor boat anchored in Chesapeake Bay recently, Horney heard an explosion from the direction of a sailboat which was anchored about one and one-half miles north of his location. Mr. Horney at once headed his boat toward the scene, removed the only person aboard the craft, which was now enveloped in flames, and then with his party fought the flames until they were extinguished. After administering first aid to the badly burned victim, he rushed him to shore for hospital treatment.

Edwards and Young were awarded medals in recognition of service rendered by them during a recent central office fire at Chatham, Virginia. The two men, who arrived at the scene of the fire after a hazardous 18-mile trip over icy roads, entered the flaming building twice to recover valuable records. Shortly after this the ceiling of the building collapsed. The records recovered by

R. V. Edwards

Edwards and Young were of great value in the prompt restoration of telephone service.

Vail medal awards are made annually and are provided by the fund created as a memorial to Theodore N. Vail, one-time president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The medals are in recognition of the most conspicuous examples of loyalty and devotion to service that are daily occurrences among telephone employees throughout the Bell System.

Religious Fervor

Sam Hines' religious fervor has put him behind bars for another 17 years and 101 days. Hines recently invaded a rural Negro Baptist church near Montgomery, Ala., and took over the pulpit from its rightful occupant at point of a pistol—then launched into a heated sermon. Meantime, the deposed preacher went for the sheriff. Hines was arrested and sentenced to 101 days for use of a deadly weapon. A SPECIAL ATTRACTION AT BIG PIPE CREEK PARK.

As a special attraction at Big Pipe Creek Park, located between Taneytown and Westminster on Route 32, this coming Sunday, June 16, the management will offer Polly Jenkins and her Musical Plowboys.

The act is so well known they need little introduction other than to say they have been seen in pictures with Gene Autry—they were two years with the National Barn Dance in Chicago—four months at the Village Barn in N. Y. City and have been heard from over 150 Radio Stations—including the Columbia and Mutual Chans.

The past season they have head-lined Vaudeville Bills in theatres in Baltimore, Washington, York, Philadelphia, Lancaster, Camden, and many others.

They present the most novel rural program of any act in the United States today, and Miss Jenkins has instructed the management of Big Pipe Creek Park to refund admission to any person or persons who do not think this the best hillbilly program they have ever seen.

The admission price is 25c—there is plenty of room for free parking. In case of rain the performance will be given in the dance hall. Children up to 12 years will be admitted free.

This is the ideal spot to spend Sunday. Plenty of picnic tables—and amusement for the children and the whole family.

It's Big Pipe Creek Park in Taneytown, Sunday afternoon and night—and the attraction—Polly Jenkins and her musical Plowboys.

Meaning of Name Rosamund
The name Rosamund (or -mond) has the Latin meaning "rose of the world." But it is also susceptible of a Teutonic meaning, "protector of the horse." The horse (ross) was the national emblem of the Saxons, Rosamund, wife of Albion, king of the Lombards in the Sixth century, had her husband murdered because he forced her to drink from a cup made of her father's skull. And there was "Fair Rosamund" Clifford, beloved by Henry II and poisoned by his queen.

Century-Old Adventurer
Recalls Gold Rush Days

ST. LOUIS.—James M. Shuey, pioneer gold miner, has safely passed the century mark, but he says he can't remember worrying about anything since the time he and his father ran out of grub during the gold rush of 49.

"I'm never sick, feel fine, never felt better," he said. Not so strong as he was 80 years ago, however, he spends a good deal of his time lying down. In 49, he says, his family moved west with other gold seekers.

"Dad took a fool notion to get rich and we pulled up stakes and started to California in a covered wagon," he said. "That was some trip. We got as far as Salt Lake City and dad started digging.

"The ground was hard and the gold was deep, and we got only a goose quill full. Dad sold it for food and we started back East.

"Yep, it was an interesting trip, all right," he recalled. "All across the plains we'd run into Indians. They'd ride their ponies along even with the wagon train, but they kept a good distance away. They'd hear the music sometimes and creep up to the campfires and just sit there, out of the light. They were good Indians and never gave us any trouble.

"Dad brought us to Missouri and we settled down in Franklin county along Fiddle creek. I remember crossing the Missouri river because we had a little bulldog and he wouldn't get in the boat. He almost bit dad's thumb off and we had to leave him."

Shuey says he married only once, to "a girl off Fiddle creek name of Reid. She was 15 when we married, a fine girl."

He moved to St. Louis 35 years ago and went to work for the railroads. He carried mail and worked as a section hand, but says he doesn't remember as much about that as he does about the family's migration to the West and back again.

Three of Shuey's 13 children are still living. He has 12 grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren and a great-great-granddaughter.

"My sight hasn't been any good for the last six years and I'm not able to see 'em," he said. "But I know their voices, and I'll probably outlive the whole lot."

Turkish Head Dress
Abdul Medjid, a progressive sultan of Turkey, forced his subjects to wear the fez in place of the turban, which was regarded as a symbol of conservatism. The progressive republic of Turkey forced the people to adopt western headgear in place of the fez, a symbol of the past. However, Turkish peasants still wear hats resembling the long-prohibited turban.

THE BRUCEVILLE BRIDGE.

These uprights are precariously balanced.

In Alice in Wonderland we read of Uncle William, who balanced an eel on the end of his nose. When it comes to balancing heavy bridge props the state road commissioner and his bridge engineers can do more fantastic balancing than Uncle William, could do. Do they realize that men's eyes and children's lives are also being put in the balance?

There are many children of Carroll County that go over this bridge daily in school buses. Let me draw the attention of fathers and mothers of these children to an article published in the Readers' Digest of September 1936. It is by H. E. Colburn, Bridge Engineer, Allegheny County, N. Y. In this article he states:

"It is an appalling thought that a bus load of school children might at any moment be sacrificed because of our indifference to the problem of antiquated bridges. Such tragedies will almost certainly have to happen to arouse the public to the point of doing something about it. 'If parents realized the danger they wouldn't have an easy moment until their boys and girls were safe home from school.'"

Mr. Colburn was writing about bridges that are simply obsolete. Pipe Creek bridge is more than obsolete; it has been badly strained—so badly strained that it is bent out of shape.

The fathers and mothers of a county to the east of us recently suffered an appalling loss. The fathers and mothers of Carroll County know that they are being compelled to run the risk of a similar loss. The least these fathers and mothers can do is to make a personal investigation the first Saturday or Sunday holiday they have. Let them go down to the bank of the creek and under the bridge so as to get a clearer understanding of the risk. When this has been done by them and other users of the bridge let a meeting be called and let our representatives in the state legislature be asked to be present. If our representatives cannot give, no promises but absolute proof that the condition will be remedied the meeting can decide on its next step. It might be well to have the road commissioner at this meeting.

BRIDGE USER.

The Record considers the above a matter in which Taneytown, and the many who would like to be guaranteed safe use of this important bridge have more than a mere complaining interest. The County Commissioners are helpless. The State Road authorities have sole power and authority—as well as responsibility. What is the real cause of no action being taken, while others seem to be picked favorites?

It might be of interest in a general way, if the article on our editorial page this week, is read and considered. It is headed "Lighting highways for safe driving."—Ed.

Oddities Among Echoes
Explained by Scientists

Modern science understands and can explain the oddities among natural echoes that occur in different parts of the world, writes Albert Carr in The Scientific American. Some echoes magnify your voice. Usually such "megaphone" echoes are heard in caves.

At the famous quarried grotto known as the Ear of Dionysius, in Sicily, the crumpling of a piece of cellophane will make you think a machine gun is at work. Why? Well, when echoes are thrown back simultaneously from many surfaces that of the original sound heard from a single direction.

The musical echo is certainly the most charming of all the numerous echo family. On Saddleback mountain, in Maine, the most hideous discords, such as an Indian war whoop, are returned as a delightful, soft, musical note. Such echoes are generally found only where there are symmetrical rows of trees which "cut out" or absorb certain sound frequencies and reflect the others in a harmonic relationship.

Everyone has observed how a prism or spectroscopic grating breaks up sunlight into its component colors. Here and there an echo will do the same thing to sound, producing a "sound spectrum."

In Bighorn canyon, in southern Montana, the rushing roar of the river-sometimes echoes from a certain section of the cliffs in a howl like that of a police car siren, beginning on a high note and sweeping down into the bass clef. Years ago Indians in the neighborhood used to shun the spot for fear of evil spirits. Today we know that the various wave lengths in the sound of the river are reflected by different parts of the jagged cliff, reaching the ear separately instead of all at once. If the observer takes another position he can cause the order of the sounds to be reversed, so that the echo begins with the deep tones and rises to the treble. Physicists say of echoes of this type that they "analyze" sound.

Draft-rioters in New York in 1863, resisting service in the Union army, held possession of the city for four days.

SAGAS OF THE SKIES

By R. C. Oertel

WILLIAM M. BATCHELDER, flying specialist for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, didn't like the looks of the sky, and gunned his ship to its highest speed. In all directions, the ceiling was closing in on him, but there was still a slim chance that he might outrun it.

There wasn't any question now of completing what had started as a routine flight from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, from Washington, D.C. Batchelder had to get to Newark Airport, and get to it quickly. There he could land, and sit out the poor weather.

But conditions over Newark were worse, if anything. Visibility over the airport was so poor that a safe landing was a very dubious possibility. Batchelder swung away from the airport in a huge circle. His situation, he knew, was extremely serious. The densely populated New Jersey—New York sector, around Newark is no place to be wandering around in the sky with no place to land. Suddenly, through a momentary break in the mist, he saw green. Carefully, Batchelder dropped down, saw that he was over a large stretch of park, large enough for a very tight landing. But dotting the park were children, playing at their games.

Round and round the field Batchelder roared with his motor wide open, attracting the children's attention. Throttling down, he waved them out of the way, off the field. Then, certain no child remained in harm's way he took a deep breath, shoe-horned his ship into the field for a spectacular, but safe landing.

*R. C. Oertel, Manager of the Aviation Division of the Esso Marketers, is a World War aviation pilot who has continued his flying as a business man. He has flown 3,000 hours.

HAGGAI URGES THE BUILDING OF GOD'S HOUSE

LESSON TEXT—Haggai 1:2-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is.—Hebrews 10:24, 25.

Religious work—or, more correctly stated, Christian work—is a difficult and discouraging task, except for the grace and blessing of God. Not only does the Christian worker have to struggle against that arch-enemy of God and of the souls of men, Satan himself, but he must overcome the deadly indifference and carelessness of men both outside and inside the Church. Then, as if that were not enough, he finds another enemy, the discouragement of his own heart.

Haggai ministered to the Jews who had returned from captivity and who had begun to rebuild the temple. Opposition had developed before they had made more than a beginning, and they at once gave up and turned their interest to their own affairs and the building of their own homes. God was displeased by this sinfulness on their part, and brought judgment upon them through a prolonged drouth. Haggai was called to awaken their conscience and to encourage them to action.

I. Consider Your Ways (vv. 2-8, 9-11).

It was not necessary for the prophet to work up any eloquent plea to stir the conscience of the people. He had only to point to their own ways. They were thus faced with three reproving facts.

1. Indifference (v. 2). They were negligent and indifferent, saying the time had not come to build. The same kind of folk today are very sure that the congregation simply cannot afford to keep up preaching services, or heat and light the church for Sunday School.

2. Selfishness (v. 4). They built for themselves ceiled houses and lived in luxury, while God's house lay waste. One is reminded of our own communities, which have money for every conceivable comfort and convenience, but only a few niggardly pennies for God's work.

3. Loss (vv. 6, 9-11). Being stingy toward God is a losing business. He has only to withhold His blessing and we will find ourselves destitute. That is true in the physical realm and is even more true in the spiritual life. Withholding from God will always result in loss (see Prov. 11:24).

II. "Build the House" (v. 8).

God's work is constructive. He may have to destroy and tear down, but He only takes away the old and undesirable that the new and worthy may be built. Three words stand out here.

1. "Go." The Lord wants His people to get into action. Haggai was interested in getting things going. Let us follow his example.

2. "Bring." We are not to come to the Lord's service empty handed. Only as He blesses do we have anything to bring, but often we fail to bring even that which He has supplied.

3. "Build." God's work is committed to us. We are to be His builders.

III. "The People Obeyed" (v. 12).
"Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams" (1 Sam. 15:22). God is looking for obedient people, and is ready to bless and use them. The response to Haggai's message came from

1. The Governor. One wonders what progress America would make back to God if its rulers were to lead us in obedience to His commands and in seeking His face in repentance and prayer. Thank God for every truly spiritually minded national leader, and pray that others may yield themselves to the control of the Lord. Then came

2. The High Priest. All too often religious leaders have actually hindered the work of God—and what a hindrance they can be! We read that in Haggai's time the high priest obeyed. Christian leaders, are we too going before our people in unquestioning obedience to God? If not, why should we not begin now? With such leadership, we are not surprised to hear that

3. The People Also Obeyed and Feared God. Many capable Christian workers believe that the youth of America of our day, far from being worse than their fathers, are actually seeking for real spiritual leadership.

False Christs Shall Rise
And then, if any man shall say to you, Lo, here is Christ; or lo, he is there, believe him not. For false Christs, and false prophets shall rise, and shall shew signs and wonders, to seduce, if it were possible, even the elect.—Mark 13: 21, 22.

Speaking the Truth
I had rather suffer for speaking the truth, than that the truth should suffer for the want of my speaking.

SOMETHING NEW AND DIFFERENT
(See Recipes Below)

New Recipes for Your File

"Something old and something new" is just as important in menus as it is in a bride's costume.

It's a good idea, when you plan to experiment with something entirely new, to include in that meal one dish you know the family is really keen about. For instance, if the dessert is something very new and different, be sure that the main dish of your meal is one that's familiar and well-liked.

And, it's an excellent idea, when most of a meal is composed of family favorites, to include one new dish for a touch of variety. It may be a cut of meat that you haven't used before, prepared in an unusual manner; or perhaps it will be a vegetable that's new and strange to you; or it might be just an out-of-the-ordinary conserve or relish to supplement last summer's supply, which, by this time is probably running very low.

You'll find, here, an assortment of recipes for foods that are unusual and delicious. There's a new way of preparing shoulder of beef—in one of those easy casserole dishes you like to serve, where you don't want to spend too much time in the kitchen; serve the Baked Shoulder Steak with baked or scalloped potatoes, buttered green beans and rhubarb pie, and watch your family beam!

"Pork chop treat" served with a crisp, chilled salad of lettuce, apples, and dates, needs only a beverage, bread and a favorite dessert to make a completely satisfying meal; and if you want to please the man of the family in any kind of weather, serve "pork chops delicious" with cheese biscuits, a simple green salad, lemon meringue pie and coffee.

Pork Chops Delicious.
(Serves 4)

- 5 pork chops (rib or loin)
- 2 medium size onions
- 1/2 cup rice (uncooked)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup hot water
- 1 cup tomato puree
- 1 green pepper (minced)
- 1 clove garlic (grated)

Brown chops and on each chop place one slice of onion, then a tablespoon of rice (uncooked). Season with salt and pepper. Add water, cover and steam for 1/2 hour. Then top with tomato puree, mixed with the green pepper and garlic. Return to steamer and cook until rice is tender (about 30 minutes longer).

Baked Shoulder Steak With Apricots and Mushrooms.
(Serves 6)

- 1 1/2 inch slice shoulder of beef (about 4 pounds)
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/2 cup tomato pulp
- 1 small 4-oz. can button mushrooms, or,
- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, cut in quarters
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 12 halves canned apricots, (about half of a No. 2 1/2 can)

Wipe meat with damp cloth and sprinkle with mixture of flour, salt and curry powder. Brown one side in a well-greased frying pan and place brown side up in a 2-quart glass casserole. Sift remaining flour mixture over the top of the meat. Spread the top of the meat with tomato pulp. Cover the dish. Bake in a moderate oven, allowing about 30 minutes to each pound. Slightly brown mushrooms in butter over low heat. Place on top of roast when it is removed from the oven. Garnish with canned apricots and serve from the baking dish, which keeps the meat hot throughout the meal.

Cherry Roll.

- Biscuit dough (2 cups flour recipe)
- 1 No. 2 can cherries
- 1/4 cup light brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)

Roll baking powder biscuit dough 1/2 inch thick. Drain cherries. Cover dough with cherries and sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon. Roll like a jelly roll and place in buttered loaf baking pan. Bake approximately 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees). Baste with cherry juice while baking. Serve with whipped cream or with hard sauce.

Pork Chop Treat.

Place seasoned pork chops, 1 inch thick, at one end of a large roasting pan. In the center, place a mound of good bread dressing seasoned with sage or poultry seasoning. At the other end put thinly sliced potatoes and thinly sliced onions, seasoned with salt and pepper. Dot with butter. Bake for 15 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees) and then reduce heat to a moderate oven (350 degrees) and bake about 45 minutes longer.

Rhubarb Conserve.
(Makes 12 glasses)

- 1 1/2 quarts rhubarb (diced)
- 8 cups sugar
- 1/2 cup seeded raisins
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 3/4 cup orange juice
- 3/4 cup orange rind (ground)
- 1 cup pecans (cut fine)

Place rhubarb, sugar, raisins, water and orange juice in kettle. Remove white membrane from the orange peel, and put peel through the food chopper, using the fine blade. Add to conserve, and bring mixture to a boil. Boil gently for 20 minutes. Add nut meats and cook 5 minutes longer. Pour into sterilized glasses and seal.

Lemon Meringue Pie.

- 1 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup cornstarch
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2/3 cup cold water
- 2/3 cup boiling water
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)

Combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add cold water; stir until smooth. Add boiling water and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is clear and thick. Cook 3 minutes longer. Beat egg yolks; stir cooked mixture into them. Add remaining ingredients, return to flame and cook 1 minute. Pour immediately into baked pie shell. Top with meringue.

Meringue.

- 3 egg whites
 - 6 tablespoons sugar
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Beat egg whites partially; then add sugar slowly, beating until mixture is stiff. Bake in slow oven, (300 degrees) for 18 minutes.

'Eternal Hall of Records' Being Hewn in Black Hills

An eternal Hall of Records—great chambers hewn out of solid granite, where artifacts of present and future generations will be preserved—is to be part of the development at Mount Rushmore National memorial in the Black hills of South Dakota.

Behind the granite summit on which the faces of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt are being carved in gigantic proportions, is a chasm 150 feet deep.

Into the wall of this Gutzon Borglum, sculptor and engineer for the memorial, is blasting a vast tunnel which, when completed, will provide a great subterranean hall with adjoining chambers.

Unlike the crypts in the Egyptian pyramids or the "Time Capsule" at the New York World's fair, it is not the plan to seal this hall, but to maintain therein a continuing record of civilization's rise (or decline).

Experts believe that the man-made cavern, hewn out of solid rock, will endure for thousands of years and that generations ages hence may behold there objects that will seem as ancient to them as Stone age implements appear to Twentieth century man.

Swan or Ugly Duckling?

Sammy, a black swan, has been banished from the Boston Public Garden lagoon because he left the water too often to go strolling. Park Commissioner William P. Long said Sammy's aptitude for getting into trouble made it necessary to keep him at Franklin park all year instead of moving him to the Public Garden with his brothers and sisters. It was almost impossible to keep Sammy in the water last summer. He would roam about the Public Garden walks eating pansies and tulips. Several times he chased children and is reported to have bitten one girl. One day he even wandered out onto nearby Boylston street and tied up traffic for nearly a half hour before policemen and park employees could get him back to the water.

Round-Robin Letter

The "Brown Envelope," a round-robin letter, has traveled more than 147,000 miles since it was started 12 years ago by graduates of Inter-mountain college, Billings, Mont. The letter makes its rounds among 11 members of the class of 1927. According to Boyd F. Baldwin of Terry, who engineers the route of the letter, it has made 48 trips across the United States. Baldwin estimates the post office department has received $120 in postage for shuttling the envelope back and forth across the country. Members of the families of the 11 original alumni have covered about 2,000 pages with 250,000 words.

Hard-Working Thieves

Police are wondering why thieves stole two civil war cannon, weighing about a ton, and trucked them 15 miles across the state line to Cranston, R. I., where they were placed on the lawn of the public library. The cannon had marked the site where King Philip's war began.

Checking Your Speed

A roadside sign that not only warns of a curve ahead but tells the approaching motorist how fast he is going, is the latest safety device for night driving. Magnetic detectors check the speed and flash the miles-per-hour on a sign illuminated by the headlights.

U. S. Itinerant Workers Replace Farm 'Hands'

There is a new "vanishing American." He is the hired man on the nation's farms.

The Alabama state extension service reports that more than a million workers move from farm to farm and state to state following the crops. They have virtually supplanted the hired man of old throughout the nation.

First these nomads of the soil converge on Florida for the new harvest season, where they remain until late spring.

They follow the harvest up the Atlantic coast, gathering crops in Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and New York.

They start the southward trek again in the fall. Others leave Florida in the spring to pursue the harvest up the Mississippi valley. They work on crops along the Gulf to Louisiana, in Arkansas, Kentucky and Tennessee, Missouri, Illinois and Ohio, Michigan and along the edge of Lake Erie.

Other groups of wandering farm workers are found similarly following the harvest seasons on the West coast, working northward toward Canada, then returning southward.

Here Are a Few Tips For Amateur Painters

There is nothing paintable that does not look better with a fresh coat of paint. Paint and a sense of humor may transform the drabest room into a thing of beauty and a joy forever (or at least a long time, depending on the quality of the paint). Remember this when the urge to paint hits you.

For the little jobs you do yourself read the instructions on the can. For the big jobs consult a reliable painting contractor—it pays in the end. Stir the paint thoroughly—thin it according to the instructions on the can. Be sure the surface is clean and dry before painting. The perfection of the paint job depends on the paint and the brush it is put on with. Be sure you select the right one for your purpose. If the surface has not been painted before find out about "undercoats" and let the first coat dry before putting on the second.

Color affects lighting. Light colors reflect more light than darker colors. Flat finishes are best for large wall surfaces, high gloss for woodwork, furniture and floors. Semi-luster paints are excellent for walls of bathroom and kitchen because they are easy to keep clean.

Increasing Forest Hikers

Nearly every national park in the United States showed an increase in the number of hikers on forest trails last year. The overnight pack-horse type of hiking gained especially in adherents.

Largest Suction Dredger Built

The largest suction dredger in the world, a vessel 400 feet long, whose pump can transport 12,000 tons of mud per hour, has been built at Danzig and will be used at Shanghai, China.

Novel Sun Glasses

A pair of New York sun glasses, made to order, are reported to be the most expensive set ever made. The glasses are set with small diamonds around the rims and with two-carat square-cut diamond in the center. The price was $2,000.

Scuttled German U-Boats

The Italian government has started work on raising 11 U-boats from the bed of the Adriatic. The subs were scuttled by German crews after the armistice. They are being raised for scrap iron.

Protein in Human Body
Holds 'Secret of Life'

"If there were any one 'secret of life,' protein might be considered to be at the heart of it, since protein is the essential stuff of which all living tissue is made," says the current Yearbook of Agriculture.

No simple substance could perform such varied functions, and science finds that there are really many different kinds of proteins. These proteins are made up of simpler substances, called the amino acids. It is these amino acids that are actually used to build up the body. So far, 22 amino acids have been found to make up protein.

When the cells take the amino acids—that are formed when proteins are digested—they unite them into new proteins for definite uses in the body. Probably the chief function of the proteins, says the Yearbook article, is to build tissue. This is why there is a special demand for protein during childhood when the body is growing. But both adults and children also need protein to repair old tissue as it wears out.

Proteins probably are important, also, in forming hormones and enzymes—substances that regulate many inside activities of the body. Proteins can also serve as a source of fuel to keep the body warm and to supply energy for work and play, but they are a relatively expensive source of energy—when compared with sugars, starches, and fats.
