DO NOT PROMISE TOO MUCH

MR. WILLKIE.

One of the few newspapers that attempt to defend the New Deal publishes a weekly edition. We happened to see a copy of the last issue for September, which was an eight-page affair devoted entirely to the campaign and mostly to an attempt to ridicule Mr. Willkie.

A feature of the paper was a double-page picture with a large inset of Roosevelt, and beside it the words "My Friends." The background was a meaningless sea of faces with other insets—a child representing the future; an old lady, representing social security; a middle aged man representing W. P. A.; a man harvesting grain, representing farmers; a man with a pick, representing labor; a homely looking boy, representing slum dwellers; a young fellow representing the work program; a bank teller at a window, representing savings, a group of directors, representing dividends.

The picture was a typical New Deal argument, designed for people who do not read or think. The expression, "My friends," is of course very familiar.

Let us see what kind of friend Roosevelt has been to "my friends." For the future the boast is made that to prevent Americans growing up into slavery. President Roosevelt rushes a defense program to guarantee America's peace and independence.

Unfortunately persons who know have proved that the elaborate defense plans are only on paper. The running about by the President, ostensibly inspecting defense plans, but actually candidating for a third term, does not foster defense, or give anybody more information about it. That is not the way a practical man would go about the defense business. A few men who know their business traveling alone, without ballyhoo, and using common sense in relation to industry would do a hundred times more to promote defense than is being done from special trains.

The New Deal propagandists are particularly unfortunate in introducing the matter of dividends. They cite the rise of national income between 1932 and 1939, but fail to tell what became of it, or how much more the national income would have increased if the Administration had not fought and ham-strung business at every opportunity.

Let us look at this dividend business.

In 1938 United States Steel paid in taxes $48,842,131. For dividends they paid nothing.

Former Congressman Pettengill, of Indiana, puts it this way: "Government got a nest egg, the owners got a goose egg. The 168,399 common stock holders who owned United States Steel got nothing from a year's operations. The government—federal, state and local—got almost 49 millions. The investors had contributed their money to support the bureaucrats. The payrollers got it in the pockets; the owners got it in the neck."

It is easy to think of great corporations as small groups of immensely wealthy men, but remember that here were 168,399 investors, many of them small investors, who bore the burden of over and unjust taxation.

The American Federation of Investors compiled the taxes and common stock dividends of 150 representative corporations for the year 1937, the best under the new deal. The average dividend per share of common stock was $1.95 and the total tax paid was $2.62. To put it in another way, for each employed person, government got for the year $514. And when we remember that a large fraction of the industry of the country and of the labor of the country, was represented in this 150 corporations, and further that a large part of that tax was squandered for political purposes, we can only say, deliver "my friends" from such a friend.

Space will not allow us to speak of the other seven groups who claimed as "my friends," but who have been betrayed. Perhaps some other time we may take a look at them.

MUD-SLINGING FOR NEGRO VOTES.

Some Anti-Willkie publicists are indulging in the practice of circulating propaganda, mainly among Negro voters claiming that both Mr. Willkie and his wife are of German descent; along with the expression attributed to Hitler that "Negroes are lower than apes."

Well, even German descent includes such men as Goethe, poet and philosopher; Wagner, noted for his great Operas, Gutenberg, for having invented, printing from movable type; Bach, for the grandeur of his musical compositions; Schiller, historian and poet, and Karl Schurz, a Union General at Gettysburg, and later U. S. Senator.

Nobody can truthfully say that our Lutheran and Reformed Churches are for Hitler, though both denominations originated in Germany.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of German descent voters among the citizenry of the United States who have aided immensely in developing the greatness of our agricultural and business activities, who are not "Hitler" Germans. The fact is, we do not inquire into either the descent, or religion of the officials we elect.

But, we do inquire into, and resent mud-slinging, and such low down appeals for Negro votes, and believe that the intelligent ones of the race will see through and resent such un-speakably nasty efforts.

MY FRIENDS.

One of the few newspapers that attempt to defend the New Deal publishes a weekly edition. We happened to see a copy of the last issue for September, which was an eight-page affair devoted entirely to the campaign and mostly to an attempt to ridicule Mr. Willkie.

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION.

International Arbitration was much talked of and about, back in the closing years of the past century. College boys debated it in their literary societies, and lecturers harangued the subject at the many Chautauquas that then dotted the land. We are far from that ideal today as we were in that long ago, and simply because statesmen try to make smart deals for their own countries and care little for others.

If in these trying times we are to have international peace, we have got to shut the mouths, some way, of the mischief makers, usually found in high places. Theoretically the U. S. is at peace with the world, and could be so practically if office seeking politicians would attend the job for which elected, and cease making capital out of world distress for their own purpose. We are all for peace, or at least 90% of us are but the other 10% can raise h—l and get us all in trouble by their unwise and injudicious loose talk. We have had too much of "quarantine" talk, and too much of carrying a chip on our shoulders while boastfully proclaiming acts "short of war" and such needless nonsense.

The late Theodore Roosevelt, dealing with crises equal to those we face today urged us to speak softly but carry a big stick. So profound was the impression that we still think in such terms; but our present administration has reversed, it seems, the idea, and has reversed, ed from the house-top big words, and carries merely a little switch. Maybe the administration is a good poker player, maybe not. Money can't buy everything. Money can't make us prepared for emergencies. Men, material, machines, munitions, armor, arms, navy, oh, a thousand things are needed to make us prepared, that we do not now have, so why not speak softly and prepare the big stick if we are such fools as to want to fight.

But, tho it is not the present trend of thought, it is my belief that right now it is more important that we attend to our own business and get ready for peace instead of using all our talk and means, on war thoughts. Peace is bound to come. The Axis powers, and England are each bleeding themselves white in this silly and needless war.

And they are not going to let up until one or both are exhausted. Of course we in the U. S. desire to see England win, and doubtless England, with our help, will win. Italy without doubt thinks we shall do so, else why the generosity of Mussolini in offering the U. S. if it will stay out of the war, all of Canada, and New Foundland, and the Bahamas, and Bermudas, and Australia, and New Zealand. How generous these callous dictators are with other people's property!

If our leaders know their business they will spend all necessary means to get us impregnable, and keep out of the world mess. We shall have to feed and clothe the rest of the world for a time, and should be able to make friends with them doing so, tho it is hard to get, and unlikely to expect a hungry dog to lick the hand that feeds it, that hungry hound is more likely to bite than to lick.

But all talk of international arbitration is blatant nonsense when we seem utterly unable to settle little differences and difficulties right here among ourselves between capital and labor, and largely because there are too many stubborn and selfish fools on each side, each unwilling to arbitrate except in and to their own advantage. What are our leaders doing right now to bring about peace?

POWER OF AMERICAN PRESS.

Washington, D. C., October—National Newspaper Week received the blessings of the great and near-great, but so far as your Washington correspondent has been able to observe the schedules of "going to press" have gone on in the usual way. Strangely enough it took a hundred years from the time the Pilgrims on Plymouth Rock to establish an American newspaper, even though several attempts were made in such adventures as "Publick Occurrences," the "Boston News-Letter," the "Boston Gazette," and the "New England Courant." Press associations and activities that cover the world news are of comparatively recent date.

The power of the press is challenged by the Presidential election, and inasmuch as most newspapers are known to be opposing re-election of Mr. Roosevelt it remains to be seen whether they can hold their place against radio, moving pictures and campaign orators in directing public opinion. It is a contest in the great field of "communication" that should not be lost sight of.

Viewed from an entirely economic standpoint the barometers of business show the retail newspaper advertising has increased throughout the country in recent weeks and is now considerably above the averages of the last few years. This must be regarded as an important trend as it indicates that our people are able to buy more goods and merchandise. Hence, the local merchants use more printers ink, to increase their sales.

There is plenty of money in the banks and this fact has been proved by the National Defense Advisory Commission, which announces that at least 3 billion dollars is available in private banks for emergency defense plant construction. The bank situation is favorable to business in every community.

A short time ago this writer's attention was attracted to a picture of a skilled tool maker giving physical shape to an engineer's idea for a better automobile. The picture was labeled, "Born in a Blueprint." The births from those blueprints are in the display rooms where the new 1941 models of cars are being shown. Dispatches from Detroit appearing in the daily press report the remarkable rise in motor car and truck production. Official and industrial reports show a gain of 21 per cent in factory sales throughout the United States for the first eight months of this year.

Business barometers showing conditions is such major corporations as radio, the telegraph and telephone, the railroads, shipping, lumber, building materials, chemical products, wool, cotton, etc., indicate that all of them are safely riding the economic channels.

Great sums of money will be distributed in connection with national defense orders. This will materially aid normal business and should help to assure increased prosperity to the Nation in 1941. One of the country's recognized industrial leaders hit the nail on the head a few days ago when he observed that if our country will "stick to the middle of the road there is enough money, brains and ability to keep this Nation the greatest Nation in the World." That seems to be a favorable answer to the question of "Where are we at?"—J. E. Jones in N. I. News Service.

REVOLUTION AND OPTIMISM.

It has become a commonplace to say that a world revolution is in progress. But those who will look beneath surface appearances may glimpse something bigger than wars and the overturning of political systems. Events in Germany, Great Britain, occupied France, the United States and other countries are daily interpreted by the literal-minded as milestones in the progress or retardation of Fascism, totalitarianism, New Dealism and other types of national or international movements designed to restrict or liberate men. But the victories of armies, the acts of legislatures and the deeds of dictators, princes and presidents are, viewed in true perspective, simply the bubbles boiling at the top of the cauldron.

To recognize that this is so, to grasp the real significance of what is going on in the world today, is vitally necessary both for lay observers and for those charged with the guidance of men and nations.

For the true world revolution is that going on in the human consciousness. Deep down in the hearts and thoughts of men the revolt against limitation in every aspect and against materialism persists. Never before have the agencies both to encourage and to suppress it been so active. Like a river running to its destined sea, rising from an endlessly flowing spring, the aspiration of mankind toward higher standards of conduct and achievement wells forth continuously despite all efforts of the obstructionists.

Its collective expression, channeled into the narrow bed of nationalism,

CHILDREN'S AID DRIVE.

On Monday, October 7th., the annual drive of the Children's Aid Society for Carroll County was begun. This annual drive is one of the most important charities to which the citizens of Carroll County are asked to contribute. This year the Society has set the goal at $3000 and, if the people of Carroll County are as faithful as they have been in the past, the goal will again be attained.

This is an organization sponsored wholly and independently by those of our citizens who contribute toward this cause, as no governmental or other assistance of any kind is granted by either State or Federal sources. Its success is largely dependent upon the amount contributed for its work. If the contributions are large then the success of the organization and its good work can be proportionately increased. If the contributions are small then its success and the amount of care and guidance provided for the underprivileged children is materially reduced.

If each citizen of Carroll County could but see the benefits derived by these underprivileged children who are cared for and provided a better chance in life by the assistance of this Society certainly the contributions would greatly exceed the amount asked for each year.

Many who read this item will not give it the attention of which it is deserving. Please give this plea your most careful and conscientious consideration. Would you not like to help some unfortunate underprivileged child to get a home in which to live or to be given some much needed care and attention by way of clothing and food? We should at least give these children a reasonable chance to grow a strong, healthy body so when they have grown into manhood and womanhood they might be better prepared to meet the problems which confront them.

Each contribution toward this fund will be helping the future citizens of our county. If this Society can assist approximately fifty children each year is it not a good cause well worth sponsoring and assisting? Please contribute to this most worthy cause! It deserves your most serious and thoughtful consideration. Your contribution may be mailed or brought to the Children's Aid Society, 84 East Main Street, Westminster, Md.

ENGLAND NEEDS 1000 AMBULANCES.

One thousand ambulances for the immediate aid of Great Britain is the goal of the British-American Ambulance Corps, 420 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y. Up to October 7th., Americans had contributed $428,720.92 toward the cause. Ambulances are shipped to England as soon as funds are available to buy and send them.

The British-American Ambulance Corps is sending its cars to many different English organizations. Among those that have requested ambulances are the British Red Cross, Commandant Cook of the Mechanized Transport Corps, the British Voluntary Ambulance Corps, the Free French Forces under General Charles de Gaulle, the Czech forces, the Norwegian forces, the Belgian forces and the Scottish Red Cross. Money raised will also go for mobile hospital units, mobile feeding units and medical and surgical equipment for the Free French Forces under General de Gaulle.

Each ambulance costs the Corps $1,007, but certain necessary extra fittings brings the cost to $1,050. The Corps sends $300 with each unit to the British Red Cross Society, which is enough to maintain it in the field for one year. First ambulances sent were accompanied by drivers, which raised the cost to about $1,800, but England has sent word that there is no need for men, but an urgent need for more equipment.

The British War Relief Society ships the ambulances to England, and while detailed information regarding the method and route is not available, assurance is given that they are sent across as soon as they reach New York.

Several Masonic Bodies are cooperating with the British-American Ambulance Corps and sending units to England.

WE NEED MORE HUMOR!

This country is beginning to suffer from being too serious-minded. It is perfectly right that we should concern ourselves sufficiently to do our whole duty, at all times. But, at best, we have our limitations.

We worry over the war in Europe, and how it may affect us. If we can help in any way to put a stop to it, let's try; but if we can't help, then why add to our worries because we can't do what we would like to do.

We have our strong choice as to who will be elected President of the U. S., on November 5. We can help our way of thinking by being sure to cast it in the ballot box; and we have members of our families, or close friends, whom we may be able to influence in like manner. If we consider that our duty also includes an even wider scope, let us do that—and then, stop worrying.

Let us preserve healthy bodies, a good digestion and a sense of humor and good fellowship. Let us laugh and joke when we can, for there will be a long time when we can do neither.

Everybody's business is not our business. Everybody's mistakes are not our mistakes. Our responsibilities, mainly, are connected with our home towns and communities, and they total a big job, at that.

A German mechanic who lost his watch in a battle during the First World War has had it returned. Another German found it during a recent battle on the Somme and traced the owner through an engraving on the back. A second engraving showed that it had been used during the interim by a Frenchman.

All five justices of the Supreme Court of Montana are Masons, while four out of five justices of the Supreme Court of North Dakota are members of the Craft.

LEADER, OR MASTER—WHICH?

The following are paragraphs from an editorial article in November Farm Journal, the leading Farm publication in the U. S. We do not believe that the Farm Journal is known as a partisan publication in the past. It claims to have a circulation of over 2,500,000, and is over 64 years old. The article says:

"Your vote this coming election day will be the most important you have ever deposited in a ballot box.

With you, and with your fellow voters in country and city, will rest a multitude of grave decisions fateful for America. You will have just one chance to express your preference. That will be when you mark your ballot.

Whatever choice the majority makes will be the law of the land. All of us must and will abide by it.

We hope every citizen will vote. We hope every vote will be cast with a full understanding of the question to be determined on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

The ballots of American citizens, free and equal at the polls for a century and a half, will decide whether the American way of life shall be continued, or changed.

With all the ups and downs we have shared in this nation, we think the American way is a good way, the best way. It has produced for the average American family three times as much of goods and welfare as the dictator states have produced.

This is no ordinary political fight between parties for the right to manage public affairs. It is a struggle between representative government as we have long known it in America, and the discredited totalitarian ways of Europe.

Freedom of action has been limited by taxation, by regulation, by restriction. Behind the White House doors are more clubs of power that have not been used—powers over industry and thus over labor, both of which are linked with agriculture.

The people's decision will be final. If they want a master, Franklin D. Roosevelt is their man. He would probably be as kind and benevolent a master as any.

If we want to follow the ways of Europe, and live under some form of totalitarianism, we have that choice.

Under Mr. Willkie we can regain representative government, the kind under which the nation has flourished. With it we can have the freedoms and liberties which are the essence of America.

Those who believe in the principles of either the Democratic or the Republican parties will alike cast their votes for Mr. Willkie.

The decision is yours to make on November 5th."

THE WORLD'S FOOD SUPPLY.

No one knows exactly how serious the food situation is in Hitler occupied Europe. But it is known that the conquered countries have been systematically gutted of their food reserves, in order that the German Army and the German people can be fed. The fine dairy herds of Denmark, products of centuries of development, have been slaughtered for beef. Already the people of Holland, Belgium, France and elsewhere have felt the pinch, as basic foods, notably fats, become more scarce. Germany, because of her seizures, is better off than most, but even there the people exist on a bare subsistence basis.

Great wars have always brought the threat of famine, and sometimes the actuality. But it is a reasonable supposition that this war, different as it is from its predecessors in so many ways, may be the precursor of greater hunger than the modern world has known. In the past, nations, when embarking on the great adventure that is war, have usually been fat, prosperous, well-fed. But the Germans, long before war began last September, were living on short rations. And the wars of the past were usually fought by professional armies, at least at the beginning, and military life was but one phase of the life of the nation. In the present case, Germany, and to a lesser extent Italy, have been following a war economy for many years—everything, men and material alike, has been dedicated to preparing for conflict. Production of food has necessarily been held to the lowest possible minimum—substitutes of little nutritional value have long been employed. It is not unnatural that serious diseases have been growing in both number and intensity for many moons in Germany and Italy.

Disease, of course, is the ever-present ally of famine—and disease, once it gets the upper hand, becomes plague. Plague, according to the international grapevine that mysteriously brings news past the iron-clad European censorship, has already come to Poland. And plague respects no boundaries. The lack of soap in Europe is a factor here—dirt provides the finest possible breeding place for any kind of disease.

Europe has never been completely self-contained—it must import. Today there is almost no commerce between the old world and the new, save for that which is controlled by Britain. The British fleet is carrying on the blockade effectively, and is prepared to extend it—as, for example, to Spain—if necessary. If Britain were to fall, the great Axis' merchant marine could again go to the four corners of the world, to come home laden with all that the people of Europe now lack. So long as Britain survives, the Axis will be able to obtain almost nothing outside the gutted land it dominates. If Hitler does attempt an "all-out" blow against England soon, this will be one of the principal reasons for it.

FOOTBALL UNNECESSARY AS A SCHOOL SPORT.

A number of the large Universities and Colleges of the country have started a movement against Foot Ball as a sport, calling it without any educational value, and as detracting from the values of higher education and is not needed for physical development.

An official of Yale says: "Big time football doesn't increase the education status of any institution; it doesn't make loyal alumni; it doesn't bring increased gifts to the Alumni fund, or to class funds except in a few isolated cases.

President of Loyola University of the South says that increased enrollment since the school abandoned intercollegiate football last winter had proved the sport was not a necessary compliment to the educational system.

THE EUROPEAN WAR.

Head-line news as to the exact situation of the war in Europe, are conflicting, depending on their source—whether from London, or some German or Italian news agency.

Without much doubt, London has experienced a daily bombardment from the air, causing great destruction and many deaths. But British authorities gave accounts of almost equal damage to enemy outposts covering a wide area.

There are still reports that England will almost surely soon receive aid along the eastern border of the war, that includes Russia, Turkey, Greece, with Japan as a doubtful factor.

A scarcity of coal has boomed the sale in Switzerland of a tool which compresses paper into small balls for use as fuel.

"TRY THE DRUG STORE FIRST"

McKinney's Pharmacy
Taneytown, Md.

National Pharmacy Week

is a period set aside each year by the retail druggists of the United States for the purpose of impressing the public with the fact that they are professional men—that their stores are professional institutions rendering vital health service in their respective communities.
