DO YOU REMEMBER, MOTHER?

It doesn't seem so many years ago since I mortified you by appearing at the neighbor's dinner party in boots and overalls, but still it must be many years for I have two little ones of my own as old as I was then.

You know, mother, some of the happiest hours of my life have been spent in just remembering—remembering those years we spent together while relieving them with my own children. When I was little, I didn't understand the joys and heart-aches of a parent. Today, I do.

There are millions of men and women throughout the land who love to remember. Some, like myself, enjoy the good fortune of having their mother still with them. Others must do their remembering alone. And yet, I believe all mothers live forever in the hearts of their children. There is never a time when I can not see your face clearly and remember the beauty and goodness it represents. When I see my children sitting on your lap, I yearn to turn back the hour glass and be your little boy again.

Do you remember the cat we used to have—the one I named "Tommy"? And that thrilling day when I announced with great excitement and to your amusement, that "Tommy" had a kitten?

Remember that frightened little fellow who felt very brave going to the operating room alone when he had his tonsils out? Now that I have experienced that vigil outside the operating room door with the mother of my own children, I can understand the tugging at your heart.

The sleepless nights you spent through measles, whooping cough and all those childhood diseases must have been exhausting and yet, mother, I remember you were tireless, always sweet, always thoughtful. We depended so much upon you. In fact, we didn't realize how much we did until the time you were seriously injured. Stark terror struck our home and everything seemed at a standstill. Thinking only of ourselves, we didn't realize that for years you had waited upon us and devoted your life to our wishes, never complaining or making us realize that there were times when you were tired to the point of exhaustion, and still you kept going because you were thinking of us. Then, when you did become ill, we were thrown into utter confusion.

I shall never forget the tears you tried to hide, the day we bought my first long trouser suit. You were brave, mother, but I knew your heart was breaking because you suddenly realized that it wouldn't be long until your boy would be like every other man going out into the world, and you did not know where the stream of life would take him.

That was once, mother, you forgot to remember—to remember that all those years you had devoted to your boy were being planted deep in the heart of the man who was your son. He has always remembered, mother, and always will remember that you gave your life to his childhood and the least he could do would be to make you proud of his manhood.

These words I have written, mother, are echoed by the sons and daughters throughout the land—addressed to their mothers, just as this is addressed to you. And with the passing of the years, they will keep remembering, just as I shall keep remembering, the secrets of those happy years of childhood made possible by the sacrifices of a good and loving mother.

Henry Ford Says:

Thinking is the hardest kind of work—which is probably the reason so few engage in it.

The "recovery" we need most is of our American spirit of independence.

Take all the experience and judgment of men over 50 out of the world and there wouldn't be enough left to run it.

The best thing about obstacles is that they make us prove ourselves. Some of life's keenest satisfaction comes from doing things we thought we couldn't do.

There are no dead ends. There is always a way out. What you learn in one failure, you utilize in your next success.

To put in the hands of all people the means for a freer, broader and more healthful life—I don't know of a better purpose in life than that for anyone.

The man who cannot think is not an intelligent man, no matter how many college degrees he may have.

A poorly balanced ration fed to growing pullets reduces the number of eggs as well as the weight per egg. Purina Chick Growena, an especially prepared ration, is built to help give you full, well-developed pullets, ready to lay lots of eggs in the shortest possible time. What's more, Growena is economical to feed. Actually it takes but 16 lbs. to carry a bird through the growing period. No matter how you look at it, it doesn't cost to feed pullets right—IT PAYS!
Come in to see us about your growing feed needs today.

Another 'Village Industry' Opens

YPSILANTI, Mich.—A rural experiment started back in 1918 when Henry Ford established the first of his famous village industries has just passed another milestone. The Willow Run plant, shown above, was opened recently near here, becoming the 18th and newest unit in the Ford string of small "factories in a meadow."

The story of the Willow Run unit is not so much its products or the part it plays in the village program, as in the young workers it employs. Producing door and ignition locks for Ford cars, the plant is manned by 35 boys Mr. Ford established in a farm camp last summer. Most of the boys come from neighboring farms and towns.

The day's output at Willow Run, as in other village industries, represents only a small portion of the Ford Motor Company's needs for a particular item. But the advantages of such little plants to communities in which they are located, to workers, and to the company are so definite Mr. Ford has steadily increased the scope of the program. Other village industries will be added soon.
