TO 4-H CLUB MEMBERS.

The urgent need for greater production of meats this year to supply home and national defense require-ments, as emphasized by governmental agencies, has brought nationwide response from 4-H club members. It is estimated that close to a quarter million rural youth will en-roll in the 1941 livestock projects to help meet the need. Enrollees in this state are eligible to share in the benefits of the national 4-H meat animal competition, in which they will have an exceptional opportunity to gain experience, as well as financial profit, in meat production. Last year's four sectional winners reported gross returns of their enterprises were $24.618 and cash prizes on exhibits, $3,247.

The competition will be conducted by county agents under the direction of the state extension service. Numerous rewards for outstanding achievements are provided by Thomas E. Wilson, Chicago packer, and chairman of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work, Among the awards are gold medals for clubsters making the best county record, and a gold watch for the state win-ner. The highest scoring participant in this extension section will receive an all-expense trip to the 20th. Na-tional 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next November and a $200 agriculelp is solicited.

Random Thoughts

I FORGOT.

One of the commonest of our every day admissions is "I forgot"-not only "common" frequently expensive, and sometimes next to criminal. We may have expanded our forgetting by taking on too much mental work, as we say, we have "too many irons in the fire at one time." Increase in age should mean, trying to have less to do, as mentality is then weaker as a natural consequence.

But much of the "I forgot" attaches to lack of deep interest in the thing forgotten, and some time causes the loss of friends as well as memory.

The careless pupil who forgets what he has been taught by a teacher is not in line for gradua-tion honors. Nor will forgetting how to do a good piece of work make a wanted mechanic. P. B. E.

THE PROBLEM OF PEACE.

Our first need in founding world peace is to strike the common denominator of humanity; by that is meant in the June 15th.

MAKING THE BOYS COMFORTABLE.

The Army and Navy have given thorough study and attention to welfare and recreation conditions of our new soldiers and sailors. A statement issued this week on behalf of the Committee explains how the soldiers and sailors will be taken care of in the different reservation where the boys will be housed. The formula is quite fathers and grandfathers faced when they were saving democracy.

The present plans provide for theatres, recreation halls, day rooms, service clubs, guest houses and chapels in the camps. There will be no haphazard ways of doing things. In order to make certain that the job is done right officers have been provided who will take charge of recreation, athletics, entertainment, welfare and religious programs.

The Red Cross will be on the job to do its full part every needful way. The health of soldiers and sailors will be carefully protected, and different charge of spiritual programs and exercises. So far as possible the Weltry to provide "a good time for all."-N. I. News Service.

PEACE AND THE CHURCH.

It seems quite possible that when peace is finally restored to the world, it will be accomplished by the church leaders of this and European coun-

This is indicated by the intelligent attitude toward the complicated problem of a future durable peace which is taken by the Federal Council of Churches in a memorandum issued to guide churches throughout this nation in their discussions of the subject.

The council emphasizes that any permanent peace depends upon our government and the governments of other countries studying all proposed legislation on foreign trade with the view of determining its effect upon other nations.

$1,500 Value on Mustache

Because removal of his wax-tipped mustache caused him "embarrassment, misery, scorn and contempt among his legion of friends," an insurance executive of Albany, N. Y., recently brought suit against the barber who clipped it. The mustacheclipper countered by saying the customer fell asleep in the chair while being shaved and moved, causing one end of the mustache to be cut off. "Naturally, I had to clip the other side to balance it," the barber said.

Restitution for Unknown Theft A stranger approached William Thompson, farmer of Rochester, Ind., as he was milking in his barn and asked for his "forgiveness."
"For what?" inquired the surprised farmer. About five years ago I stole some of your chickens," the visitor replied. "I have changed my way of living after being converted at a revival meeting and must make restitution." Thompson has just received a check for $3.

Prison Rodeo Is Billed 'Wildest Show on Earth'

Nine-Year-Old 'Outsider' Is Feature of Texas Exhibition.

HUNTSVILLE, TEXAS.—He's just a little fellow nine years old, riding a horse as tiny as he is, but he's the only "outsider" ever to appear in the Huntsville prison rodeo—called the "wildest" show on earth. Trail Drivers Reunion and to rodeos at Coleman, San Angelo and

At Huntsville, Wayne, who has been riding since he was two, roped a calf in 22 seconds—fair time for a youngster and better than that chalked up by some of the prison inmates who risked their lives for the cigarette money they got for participating.

Called 'Toughest Rodeo.'

The rodeo is staged as a rehabilitation project for prisoners and to raise money for athletic equipment, vocational training, text books and library volumes. It attracts 30,000 spectators—the majority of them residents of southeast Texas drawn by "the roughest, toughest, wildest rodeo in the world."

In a specially built stadium just outside of the prison walls, the convicts take part in events barred from professional rodeos as "too dangerous" and live from year to year just for the chance of risking their lives on the back of some mean Brahma bull.

Any prisoner is eligible to compete. All riders, whether they win or lose, get $3—small recompense for the risks they take. But some of them have competed yearly since the rodeo was begun 10 years ago and others have been known to ask for ahead-of-schedule commitments to the prison farm so that they could compete.

Prizes Doled Out.

Winners are awarded cash prizes—which prison officials place into their accounts and dole out for cigarette and candy money. No one in the prison is allowed to have more than $2 weekly to spend more than $3 weekly to spend.

With the exception of Wayne and Rukus, all participants in the show are prison inmates. Prisoners sell cushions, hot dogs and programs, sing in quartets that provide intermission entertainment; play in the band that perches above "political row"—boxes reserved for visiting state officials and friends of the prison staff.

They milk wild cows, ride Brahma bulls turned loose 10 at a time in the "mad scramble" and bite the ears of untamed horses to still them while other members of a three-man team attempt to saddle, then ride them to the far side of the

In the rodeo's history, only one man has ever been killed. He was trampled under thudding hooves when his foot caught in the stirrups during a wild horse race.

Prison Orchestra Seeks

Players of Bass Viol FOLSOM PRISON, CALIF .-Members of the prison orchestra, composed entirely of inmates, would appreciate it if someone would send them a book on how to play the bass viol. The orchestra was fairly complete from the standpoint of instrumentation, with the exception of a bass viol. So two convicts obtained permission to make one. They worked for a year, utilizing fish boxes and lard tins for the sound box, a wagon tongue for the finger board and a sled runner for the neck. Strings were the only thing purchased. But completed, it was discovered no inmate knew how to play it.

DESIGN FOR DINING.

An author-gourmet told a friend, not long ago, that a good meal is like a well-written story—complete with suspense, surprise, and a rousing climax. As in fiction, the basic ingredients in cookery are few—but the ways of combining them, of "dishing them up," are practically limitless. So take a tip from the author, and deign are properly as a secondary of the seconda design your meals as carefully as though you were plotting a story. It's difficult, too. For first you must design your dinner from the stand-point of food value; next, from the standpoint of ease of operation; and third, you must design it from the standpoint of appeal—flavor and col-or and texture and shape.

On all three counts we recommend a veritable gem of a dish; it will make your family beg for more vegetables, please; or will, if you ask it, stand alone as a proud and luscious entree. We call it "Corn Ring," and we've been working out the perfect recipe in our experimental kitchens. A variation of that old-fashioned favorite, baked corn pudding, it offers, nevertheless, plenty of suspense and surprise and a rich-flavored climax!

So creamy-soft and delicate that it seems impossible you can unmold it like any other ring. Yet that is just what you do—thereby making a pretty design for dining on the triple score of nourishment, cooking ease. score of nourishment, cooking ease,

Or use the corn ring as your main dish by filling it with mushrooms, creamed or broiled: or with creamed salmon, its flakes left big and succulent; wreath it with raw sliced to-matoes and little mounds of peas, alternating. "ALL-OUT SCOUT PARADE."

Under the enthusiastic leadership of Martin E. Dannenberg, Chairman of the Activities Section of the Camping Activities Committee, plans are being laid for a parade of all the Boy Scouts of the Baltimore Area Council. This is in cooperation with Governor O'Conor's proclamation of the celebration of Flag Week and in turn the proclamation of Mayor Jackson, of Baltimore. Every Scoutmaster, Clubmaster, Skipper, and Commissioner of the Scout organization has received a Western Union to he pre-all their units in this parade. This is the first attempt in a number of years to hold a mass Boy barriers to understanding of his fel-Scout parade. It is intended to be a demonstration to the public of the strength and preparedness of the Boy Scouts of America to participate in scoutings program of action and the United States Government's Scouting builds character.

The weekly Tropp meetings gives emergency plans. Scouting is equipped to do a great job for our city, state and nation. Every Unit is to be mobilized in this "All-Out" effort.

The parade will assemble in the little and the plant of the parade will assemble in them.

Mr. Charles F. Willis, President of the Area Council, is tremendously interested in this activity and is alocally following the development of closely following the development of the plans. It is his ambition to have the greatest turnout of Units, Scouts and Scouters in recent years.

Scouting has been variously described as a game, a program of character building and citizenship training, a program of wholesome leisure time activities. It is all of these and more. Scouting knows neither race, creed, religion, social status, nor politics. It is international in scope. Scouting is neither military nor anti-military. It does not drill the boys in military tactics, but teaches them of international peace and brotherhood. It is one of the surest answers to the threat of dictatorships, and an assurance against the

Resigned to Live In 'Phobic Prison'

University Professor Has Terror of Distance.

MADISON, WIS.—William Ellery Leonard, University of Wisconsin professor, observed his sixty-fifth birthday anniversary resigned to spending his last years in his selfimposed "phobic prison."

Chained to a six-block campus district by terror of distance induced by a roaring locomotive when he was little more than two years old, the white-haired poet-professor has written of his phobia in his auto-biography, "The Locomotive-God."

Today, seated in his spaciously windowed, third-floor campus apartment, the man whose flowing windsor ties have been familiar to university students for 35 years, was without hope of ever extending his boundaries.

Furthermore, he said, he has no plans for retiring from his teaching position, although he is eligible to do so.

"I plan to go on with my teaching," he said. "I feel well. I feel the university needs me, and I'm going to stick with my regular

Although Mr. Leonard first was stricken with the phobia while only a child, it did not become pronounced until the tragic death of his first wife, Charlotte Freeman Leonard, which he described in "Two Lives," a book of sonnets considered to be among the finest in the English language.

Sharing his prison walls is Charlotte Charlton Leonard, his fourth wife. She was his second wife, too, and spent 20 years with him before divorcing him in 1934. His third wife was Grace Golden Leonard, once his student, whom he married in 1934 and from whom he was divorced in 1937.

AT THE RACES

By STANLEY CORDELL (Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

ETTING on horse races is undoubtedly a vice. I admit from the start that it is wrong. The odds are against the bettor. His chances of winning are slight. Yet, despite it all, horse racing enthusiasts who do not bet on their favorite are few. A small wager increases the thrill tenfold. Norma and Monty Castle will tell you that I am right. The Castles came to Hollywood last winter with a party of friends. On the second day of their arrival I brought them and the Spragues to the races at Santa Anita. It was a dull afternoon. My guests were bored. The six of us sat in the grandstand and watched the first three races with little display of interest. We were familiar with none of the horses, their records nor their jockeys. The time between races was long and

At last I said, only partly serious, "Let's place a bet on one of the horses. We can at least cheer for

"Let's," said Norma, brightening at once. "Which horse is the favorite. You ought to know."

As a matter of fact, I didn't, but I admitted knowledge of a way to find out. I excused myself and five minutes later I was back carrying a dope sheet, for which I'd paid a dollar.

We studied the sheet together, and learned that the odds on Uncle Tom were great for the next race. He was, without doubt, the favorite.

We descended to the betting booths and each placed $2 on Uncle Tom. After that we lined the paddock rail and waited.

Uncle Tom won by a length, and we all collected forty cents, in addition to our $2 investment. It was most exciting. We consulted the dope sheet and learned that Robin-hood was the next race's favorite. Feeling extremely sophisticated we bet again—and won again! This time ninety cents each.

The fever began to get in our blood. We began to glow and jabber We learned the meaning of such terms as "playing him across the board," "on the nose"; Doughnut only "placed"; Baby Doll "showed." We began to feel exhilarated. We studied horses and riders with what we thought was a judicious and experienced eye.

By the time the parade had started preparatory to the seventh race, our winnings netted us $6 each. We were jubilant. And in a spirit of confidence and recklessness we agreed to place our total winnings, plus an added $6 each, "on the nose" of Flying Tail, the favorite for race No. 7.

It was a seven-furlong race, out of the chute, which meant that the horses started some distance from where we stood, the race ending, of course, directly in front of us.

It was after the tape had been snapped and the little knot of riders were beating around the track that I turned to observe the expressions on the faces of my friends. Norma, I found, had turned her back and was nonchalantly lighting a cigarette. Monty, too, seemed little interested in the race. This puzzled me. I couldn't understand it, and I knew a feeling of keen disappointment. Could it be that the couple had become bored again? Were they actually immune to thrills?

The Spragues, I noticed, were breathless and excited, their eyes glued to the track. Their obvious state of high tension was satisfying. At least I had succeeded in providing a thrill for two of my guests.

But now the horses were at the turn and were sweeping down the straightaway. Flying Tail was in the lead. The crowd thundered its applause. And then just as the onrushing animals reached the north end of the paddock, Icanwin, another favorite, swept up the turf. For a time, he ran neck and neck with Flying Tail. The finish line was near. But before it was reached, Icanwin stretched out his neck and won by inches.

It was sad for us. We lost not only our winnings, but an additional $6 each. Such is the fate of all who bet on horse races. I turned to Norma and Monty.

They smiled. They seemed not to care. In fact, I doubt if either had observed the sad fate of our favorite. Solemnly we trooped back to the car. En route to town I pondered over the attitude of Norma and Monty. Somehow it didn't seem right. No matter how small the wager, men and women who bet on races become excited and thrilled. It is almost a physical impossibil-

And yet Norma and Monty had displayed no outward emotion whatever. In comparison to the Spragues and my wife and I, they were totally unresponsive. Something was

It was not until dinnertime that night that my feelings were relieved and the mystery solved. Norma and Monty were grinning when they entered the dining room. Obviously they were bursting with something

It was Monty who finally told the story. It seems when he and Norma were dressing for dinner, Monty had noticed five black and blue spots on his wife's arm. He questioned her about them, but her puzzlement was as great as his. They became alarmed and were about to summon a doctor, when suddenly Monty remembered vaguely something he'd done during that last race. He remembered taking hold of Norma's

The explanation was simple. Unknowingly Monty's grip had tightened as the horses rounded the last turn. But Norma, her interest concentrated on the race; had felt no pressure, no pain, though the force of Monty's grip must have been terrific, as indicated by the extent of Norma's bruises.

Those black and blue marks were a dead giveaway to the tremendous excitement under which the young couple was laboring.

Does betting on horse races stimulate excitement? The answer is "Yes."

Scotland's First Settlers Came From Old Ireland

Just when the Picts settled in Scotland no one knows. Neither do we know all the facts about their race, though it seems likely they were Celts, or at least partly Celtic.

The early Picts decorated their bodies with pictures or designs of one kind or another. Their name is believed to mean "Painted People.'

They were of warlike nature. Time and again they made raids on the Romans, and sometimes they forced their way across Hadrian's

The Picts were in Scotland before the Scots. The first clear record of Scots getting to Scotland gives the time as about the year 495. The Picts had been in Scotland for hundreds of years before that.

An old record tells us that the Picts used "chariots" in battle. We do not know what their chariots were like, but they probably were two-wheeled carts of a rather crude

The Scots came in from Ireland, strange as it may seem. Certain old maps label the northern part of Great Britain as "Scotia Nova," meaning "New Scotland." Ireland, or at least part of it, once held the name of "Scotia."

For a long time the Picts and the Scots did not get along together. There were scores of battles, large and small, between them.

Eleven hundred years ago, a Scottish king, Kenneth MacAlpin, led an army against the Picts. The Picts fell beneath his attack, and in a few years their lands were placed in the kingdom of Scotland, as MacAlpin called his realm.

That ended the warfare between the Picts and the Scots.

Discover 'Young' Volcano A new volcano-that is, probably not more than a few hundred years old — was among the discoveries made by the University of California's survey schooner E. W. Scripps, which returned recently to San Diego after a 78-day cruise to the Gulf of California

The volcano is on one of the islets in the vicinity of the ancient village of Loreto-Coronados island, a mass of rocks a mile and a half across.

Objective of the cruise was chiefly geological, and while "land geologists" were at work on the islands and mainland, scientists aboard the Scripps were busy taking soundings and borings of the floor of the gulf. The vessel, which is attached to the Scripps Institution of Oceanography at La Jolla, is equipped with extensive scientific and research equip-

Both in the number of soundings taken, and in the size of borings of the sea bottom, the Scripps set a record. Dr. Roger Revelle reported that in addition to taking 25,000 soundings by means of the fathometer, 10 times as many as had been taken on prior cruises, they brought up cores as long as 17 feet—an alltime record.

Pitcairn Island 'Pacific Paradise' The happy isolation mutineers of the Bounty sought but did not find on Pitcairn island belongs to their descendants today. The islanders live a pleasant, pious, hard-working life, far removed from the strife of the rest of the world.

Pitcairn is a tiny two-mile-square dot in the south Pacific between Australia and South America, about 3,500 miles west of Chile. War has halted the frequent visits of passing ships; postal service is irregular.

The religious regime established by John Adams persists among the 200 descendants of mutineers. There are no taxes, but every man is required to work seven days a year on public projects. Education is compulsory.

The islanders have an abundance of food. Agriculture and fishing are the principal occupations. There are no cows, pigs or horses on Pitcairn.

Message in Bottle Saves

Small Vessel and Crew BAHIA BLANCHA, ARGENTINA. A distress message floated ashore in a bottle and brought rescue to the 301-ton Argentine coastal ship Miramar, which had drifted helplessly beyond sight of land after losing its propeller.

The message from the small vessel, which carried no radio, was picked up by bathers at Copetones beach. Later, the Vaquillona, an Argentine freighter and one of several ships which had sought the Miramar, arrived here with the latter vessel in tow.

The Miramar carried a crew of 14 and a general cargo.

Rear-end Collisions

Grades often are the scenes of rear-end collisions at night because they tend to increase the normal differences in speed, particularly between automobiles and trucks, according to the National Automobile club. For protection against accidents of this kind, the association suggests one should be on the watch for changes in grade, keep a wide margin of safety in the distance between his car and the one ahead and have brakes and lights always in good condition. There would be many less traffic crashes, the organization claims, if drivers refused to leave anything to chance when approaching or driving through intersections.

PROGRESS IN WORLD MISSIONS

LESSON TEXT-Acts 13:44-52; Galatians GOLDEN TEXT—For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus.—Galatians 3:26.

"All people" are included in God's plan of redemption. When the angel of the Lord announced the birth of Christ to the shepherds he said, "Fear not: for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people" (Luke 2:10). The invitation is: "Let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely" (Rev. 22:17). The disciples naturally and properly first presched the ly and properly first preached the gospel to the Jews, but the time came when God was ready to send them to the Gentiles, that they too might hear the message of redemption. That historic turning point is found in our lesson. As Paul and his fellow workers proceeded from Paphos on the isle of Cyprus to the mainland with their message of Christ's redemption, they met both

I. Popularity and Persecution (Acts 13:44, 45).

In the synagogue of Antioch of Pisidia they were invited to preach, and Paul was blessed in the presentation of a powerful gospel message. Read it in Acts 13:16-41. It met with such a response that the people "besought that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath" (v. 42). So great was the popularity of Paul's message that the whole city came the next Sabbath "to hear the Word of God." What a wonderful sight that must have been and how the disciples must have rejoiced as they preached the Word.

But wait—there's a worm in that red apple of popularity, and its name is jealousy (v. 45). It caused the Jews to blaspheme as they contradicted Paul's preaching. Jealousy always makes a fool out of the one who yields to it. Yet this greeneyed monster is permitted to go right on destroying, hindering, hurting. In the church and the home, as well as in the social order, we let jealousy come in and wreck friendship, break down reputations, yes, even block the work of God. May someone learn the lesson of our text and turn away from that evil way-right now!

II. Rejection and Acceptance (Acts 13:46-52).

All through the record of Scripture and the history of man to this day we find some rejecting the grace of God-others accepting. Those who reject only prove themselves "unworthy of eternal life" (v. 46) and are themselves rejected of God.

The disciples now turn from the Jews to minister to the Gentiles, even as had been prophesied (Isa. 42:6; 49:6; Luke 2:31, 32). They accepted the word of truth and "were glad, and glorified the word of God." Rejection brought eternal death, but acceptance brought eternal life and joy.

They could not keep the good news to themselves, but had to spread it abroad. A lighted candle begins at once to shine. A redeemed soul longs to bring others to Christ. Persecution continued; in fact, was intensified to the point of physical ejection of the disciples. Were they downhearted? No! for the joy of the Lord filled their Holy Spirit-filled lives. Being filled with the Spirit means being filled with joy, even in the midst of persecution.

It really works! Have you given God a chance to prove it in your

III. Neither Jew nor Greek (Gal.

This selection from the letter which Paul wrote some ten years later to the people of the area in which he had now preached reveals the same truth, that faith in Christ is primary-and essential-in Christian experience.

In this early life we recognize distinctions based on nationality, sex, social position, and many other grounds. While these are overemphasized by most people, they are legitimate and necessary distinctions. But in Christ-ah! there the differences disappear. We are all one in Him (v. 28). This is a lesson which we have not learned even yet, but our slowness of heart and mind does not alter God's truth.

The church is talking much these days about ecumenicity, which in plain words means the unity of the people of the various branches of the church all over the world. All too often, however, the proposed basis of unity rests on a surrender or a partial surrender of what Paul declares to be the essential (the sine qua non if you wish), which is faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. No other unity but that which centers in Him, and a personal relationship to Him, is sufficient either for this life or for the life to come.

Wonders of God God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform;

He plants His footstep in the sea And rides upon the storm. -William Cowper.

Voters Say "No" To Liquor

Each year an increasing number of Americans decide the liquor question for themselves by making the liquor traffic illegal in their cities

These hard-headed American citizens seem to be coming out from under the delusions fostered by highpowered propaganda during the iquor-inspired fight on national prohibition.

They look around their own neighborhoods, mull over the easily visible effects of liquor on parents, on car drivers and on youth, and then they decide —as their parents were forced to decide early in this century—that the best means of liquor control is a resounding "no" at the ballot box.

Voters' Choice

OWET

Not much gets into the press about the number of wet-dry elections held each year in a score or more of states. The results of these elections are difficult to total; but, the best available statistics show that 12,400 elections have been held in local communities since repeal and, in 7,700 of these elections the drys have won.

In two states, South Carolina and Oklahoma, very definite results were shown. The liquor traffic tried unsuccessfully again, in Oklahoma, to repeal that state's constitutional prohibition. The state's citizens voted overwhelmingly dry. In South Carolina the voters by referendum ordered their legislature to pass a state prohibition law. South Carolina has tried post-re-Election Result peal methods of control. Now its citizens say "Outright prohibition is the only answer."

Several states are reported planning attempts to secure outright prohibition, with church and temperance and welfare groups uniting for the fight against the well-financed liquor trade. Groups like the W.C.T.U. quote history to show that, after Americans try all manner of legal regulation, they always return to complete prohibition as the only feasible answer to the evils of alcohol.

and for Third Population

Rice is one of the oldest known foods, is mentioned in Chinese records dating 2800 B. C. It is native to India, which grows some 60,000,-000,000 pounds annually. China, largest consumer of rice, issues no data on annual production.

Rice is a member of the grass family, grows best in warm and moist regions. Usually rice fields are flooded during the growing season, but in some districts such irrigation is not required.

The cultivation of rice began in United States in the Carolinas about 1700. Today the annual U.S. yield amounts to 50,000,000 bushels. Louisiana, California, Arkansas and Texas are the chief centers of rice production in America. The wild rice of North America's swamps, while not adaptable for cultivation. provides an important food for wild

Whites, Negroes Separated

There are 17 states which require the complete segregation of schools for the white and Negro races. They are Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia. In Arizona and Kansas the mandatory provision applies only to the elementary schools.

Mental Condition Is Cause

Accidents are due to your mental condition, according to health authorities. In factories, statistics have shown that workers who do not keep their attention fastened on their work and on their machines and material they are handling, have 85 to 90 per cent of all the accidents.

LITTLE DEW DROP.

Little dew drops on the grass Sparkle in the shining sun Journeying from the rivulets Which forthwith to oceans run.

Little acorn dropped on ground Sprouting, shoot up in the air, Seasons come, and seasons go Great trees stand as witness there.

Little snow ball high on mount Starts its journey down the hill Joining others as it moves Soon combined the valley fill.

Little word so meaningless Spoken without thought of weight Soon roll up a mighty scourge Leaving naught beside but hate.

Little match how small you are As you light that cigarette But what horror and affright Cause when forest leaves are set. W. J. H. 5-5-41.
