RUNAWAY GIRLS

Soon Repent and Return to Reform School.

Two tired, nervous and hungry girls found their way to Taneytown on Tuesday evening between 10 and 11 o'clock. By their own story they ran away from a reform school near Reisterstown about 7 o'clock and by traveling through woods, fields and over railroad tracks reached the road to Westminster.

Afraid to ask for lifts they walked and ran to Westminster, and through to the vicinity of Meadow Branch Church, where they ventured to ac-cept a lift from a man of the vicinity of Tyrone, who when he learned the situation did not want to let them out along the road at night, but brought them to Taneytown, leaving them out at the Firemen's Building.

The girls walked around the streets until they discovered a light at the home of Norman R. Reindollar's, Fairview Avenue. Mrs. Reindollar took them in, heard their story, gave them something to eat and allowed them to use the telephone to call police headquarters at Westminster. They were frightened, without money, and no place to go, so they were ready to return.

The Westminster police called the school, and about an hour and half later a car with two women arrived at the Reindollar home and took the girls back. Their names were not obtained, though one of the girls said her last name was Bell. They were both from Baltimore homes and had been sent to the school under court

POLITICAL LETTERS

Let it be understood that The Car-roll Record is non-partisan, and is not pleading the cause of any candidate within any party. Our columns are open at regular rates to those who wish to advocate any party for any person within a party. Of course, we will endeavor to give the political news impartially.

CARROLL COUNTY FAIR HANDICAPPED BY RAIN

Frequent Downpours Disrupt Schedule and Delay Wedding

The excessive amount of rain in recent weeks continued this week, definitely hindering the program for the week at the Carroll County Fair, Taneytown. In spite of the rain there was a considerable attendance on Tuesday and Wednesday, but all events for Wednesday except the horse-pulling contest had to be postponed. The public wedding, set for Wednesday evening, which is usually the star attraction of the fair, was postponed until Thursday. The judging of entries for premiums took place on Tuesday.

Prize winners in the pulling contest for the light weight class were:

1. Francis Enfield, Street, Md., 2.
R. Tennant, Street, Md.; 3. Marvin Bowers, Boonsboro, Md.

For the heavy weight class the leaders were: Roy Enfield, Forest Hill, Md.;

2. Mervin Bowers, Boonsboro, Md.; 3. Roy Enfield Forest Hill, Md. In the draft horses department, premiums were taken by Mrs. Russell Long, Thurmont; Eaves Brothers Taneytown; Edward N. One of the most elaborate departments of the fair was the women's. It covered a wide range and competition was brisk. Household arts of a great variety made up the exhibits. It included sewing, handicraft, canning, making and other things lightful to the eyes and delicious to the taste. There were jellies, marmalade, preserves, pickles, relishes, fruits of many kinds, canned vegetables, meats, bread, cake, confections, dried fruit and many other things. In the sewing division there were household linens, fancy work, quilts, bedspreads, clothing, rugs and any thing you might ask for. The list of winners and awards included the names of many estimable women and girls of the community and other places, some of whom received a number of prizes. For lack of space we omit the list, which would fill half a page of The Carroll Record.

WEEKLY DISCONTINUES

Littlestown Independent Ceases For Duration.

Our neighbor, the Littlestown Independent has ceased publication for the duration of the war and we can readily understand its "trials and tribulations" encountered these trying days in the field of weekly publishing. In this paper's last issue it says: "The war has already made and will continue to make great changes in the life of the community. The war in which we are engaged is a total war and demands the curtailment of all civilian production and interests not directly connected with the war effort. For this reason, the Adams County Independent today presents its last issue for the duration of the emergency. Since December 7, 1941, hundreds of weeklies over the United States have discontinued publication. Two reasons, we believe, are behind curtailed newspaper publication. The first, is, of course, the inevitable shrinkage in newspaper advertising due to the turnover of business from civilian to war production. The second, as far as a weekly newspaper is concerned, is the insistent demand of the readers for fresh war news, which a weekly newspaper cannot hope to furnish. We, therefore, reluctantly announce the discontinuance of publication for the duration of the war of the Adams County Independ-The paper will be published again when the war is won and when business returns to normal."

WAR ACTIVITIES

As Reported From Department Heads.

Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's Chief of Staff, in a radio broadcast August 9 marking the first anniversary of the Atlantic Charter, said "This war will probably be long. It will be the toughest, hardest, most merciless war we have ever fought. It calls for the united power of every American, in uniform and out of uniform, on the firing line and on the production line. I have no doubt of America's decision."

President Roosevelt, in a message read on the broadcast, said "great progress" has been made in the bat-tle of production, but "in terms of what will be required to defeat our enemies we have only just begun to get into our stride." Elmer Davis, Director of the Office of War Information, said America's conversion job has largely been completed; the emphasis now must be transferred from finished goods to the raw materials from which they are made. "We will get them—by full use of existing facilities, and by tapping new, or marginal, or abandoned sources of supply. We will develop new processes, eliminate waste, and work for full solvence by every citizen." Mr. full salvage by every citizen,"

Davis said. Vice-Chairman Batt of the War Production Board, on the same radio program, said the public must see to it that all waste and scrap metal is collected and "sent to the mills—quickly. There is plenty of iron and quickly. There is plenty of fron and steel scrap—that must get back to the furnaces if the steel needed for the war is to be produced. You and I can help by keeping our eyes open."

In a general review of the war situation, the Office of War Information said June production of military planes fell slightly behind schedule, despite the fact that the U. S. made despite the fact that the U.S. made more planes than any other country in the world. The same was true of tanks, of most types of artillery, and of Naval vessels, the OWI said. Because of enemy submarine activity, the office said, it probably will be well into 1943 before we equal merchant shipping as of December 7, 1941.

The Navy announced "United States naval and other forces have attacked enemy installations in the southeast part of the Solomon Islands in force and the attacks are continuing." Later the Navy said "Considerations of the solomon Islands in force and the attacks are continuing." ing." Later the Navy said "Considerable enemy resistance has been encountered and it is still too early to announce results or to estimate either our own or enemy losses." Gen. Mac-Arthur's headquarters in Australia reported August 10 that Allied planes from Australia were maintaining a 24-hour-a-day offensive over the entire invasion zone in support of the attack against the Solomon Islands. The Navy also reported U. S. Navak forces "bombarded enemy ships and shore establishments at Kiska" in the Aleutians, simultaneously with the beginning of the attack on the Solomon Islands.

Maj. Gen. Clark, Commanding General of U. S. Ground Forces in Britain said the U. S. Army is sending said the U.S. Army is sending "picked combat divisions" to Britain and "the sooner a second front could be opened the better," He said "obviously we are not here to sit on the de-fensive." The Pacific Coast, from the Canadian to the Mexican borders, was ordered dimmed out beginning Aug. 20 and for the duration by Western Defense Commander DeWitt as a precaution against enemy attack at sea and on the shore. The Navy announced the torpedoing of 14 addition-ai United Nations vessels.

The White House announced six of the eight Nazi saboteurs landed in this country by submarine were executed in the District of Columbia jail Aug. 8th. The sentences of the other two were commuted by the President to life and to 30 years imprisonment. "because of their assistance to the Government of the United States in the apprehension and conviction of the others." Long ago the expression of shut-eye town was a mythical place to which mothers used to encourage their kiddies to visit after they had their "nighties" on at the close of day.

But, like many an other oldtime expression it has been adopted to quite different occasions and applications adults are the principals; for we are not only shutting our eyes to wrong practices that go on about us, but would even shut off the sight of some of our own wrong

YESTERDAY IS TOMORROW

Life is but a collection of memories. By what do we measure time? Not by the swift passage of the years but by intangible, long-remembered scenes, sounds and scents. The brown depths of a little stream seen from a window bring back the browndepthed quiet pools of half-forgotten woodlands long ago.

The great oak towers in the quiet field. There was once another friendly tree that swarmed with happy children. Our memories are of simple things-laughter, peace, the carefree summer days, tiger lilies flaunting by the roadside, hollyhocks straight against a wall. "Since yesterday it is so long ago."

There are those who bewail the passing of time. There are those who feel that in the new purposeful world there will be no time for little things. But they misinterpret the signs.

We fight for one reason only-that we may return to those things that men call little, but which are after all Edison to attack the problem and the great things of life. #### PUNISHMENT TO FIT THE CRIME

We have long since ceased to keep check upon Nazi repressive measures in occupied Europe, such as the recent arrest of 1,000 Hollanders, to be held as hostages against sabotage.

Hitler's agents have run riot throughout all territory they control, without regard to the rights of man and without respect for the laws of God. Their crimes have mounted in number beyond counting, although many vicious acts escape report.

The truth of the matter is that nothing is too mean, brutal or disgraceful to be applied to helpless noncombatants whose only crime is that they are not Germans. The citizen of this free country finds it difficult to believe the stories of atrocities against innocent men, women and children, and yet they cannot be

When the Germans have been crushed, somebody must pay for these crime if civilization is to hold up its head in self-respect. The Nazitrained youth who obeys orders, in a frenzy of fanaticism, is not as guilty as the responsible leaders in authority who set the course and order the persecution.

It will not do, when justice asserts herself, to permit Nazi leaders to escape punishment by shifting blame to the "stupid men who obeyed orders." When German conquerors seize innocent hostages and shoot innocent persons they point the way to inevitable retribution.

The leaders of Nazi Germany, and of Japan, are guilty individuals who have plunged into war and threatened civilization with complete barbarism. They are the ones to be punished, regardless of any lack of evidence to connect persons with crimes.

The peace of the world, in future years, will be a little bit safer if governing authorities know that they will be judged by the fruits of their regime.—The Ellicott City Times.

LEARNING TO WORK

The philosophers tell us that all Hitler-but the young whose lives had life is school, that we should not think we have finished our education when we quit ordinary educational institutions, and that we should keep on learning more all through our lives. The older people used to say that one of the things the young people most needed was to learn to work. The summer vacation gives an excellent chance for that form of educa-

The younger children do not usually like to work very well. They are keen on fun and a good time, and this point of view often continues for some time after reaching adult years. Some of them will not get over it for many years.

Modern education is usually able to persuade young people that it will pay them to show ambition, that only through work can they get the automobiles and sports and amusements they so deeply love. So they are persuaded to do a good amount of work, as the only method of getting what they want.

It is still better if they can be persuaded to love their work. It helps anyone to love his work if he is superior at it. He then gets satisfaction from unusual achievement, and he takes pride in the things he creates with his hands or brain. There The philosophical problem that are many of these folks who are hap-

Sociologist Advises on

Courtship by Youths

Young people will probably make wiser choices of marriage partners if they date many different persons of the opposite sex rather than confine themselves to one too early in the dating period.

This is the opinion of Dr. M. E. John, associate professor of rural sociology at the Pennsylvania State college, who spoke before a town and country pastors' meeting here. His subject was "Preparation for Marriage.' "Wide acquaintanceships with young people of the opposite sex help to educate the emotions and enable adolescents to discover their preferences," Dr. John said.

He cited studies showing that factors of a successful marriage include long acquaintance, a moderately long engagement, approval by the parents of both, the happiness of both sets of parents in their own marriage, wholesome adolescent relationships with parents, and moderate fondness for social activity.

In addition, both families should come from the same economic level, both young people should have relatively the same amount of education, and there should not be too wide a gap in their ages.

Present-day hindrances to a wholesome courtship include too strong an attachment to parents and choosing a partner for wealth or social position rather than compatibility, Dr. John added.

Furthermore, today's courtships must often be carried on in the environment of commercialized "thrillselling" recreation. As a result. courtship has become too much of a recreational activity, and many young people expect impossible perfection of marriage. Parents are sometimes at fault by trying to choose the partner for their chil-

2 Giant Sassafras Trees

Preserved in Entirety Two mammoth sassafras trees, among the largest in the country, which have stood as sentinels on route 20 since the settling of the Western Reserve, have been preserved in their entirety by the Ohio department of highways.

In a recent reconstruction, widening and paving of this highway special orders were given by Hal G. Sours, state director of highways, that every precaution be taken to preserve these two trees, which stand just west of North Madison Corners on the north side of the Sassafras trees of the size of these two monarchs are rare, says the Columbus Dispatch. Seldom are they found with trunks that measure 41/2 feet in diameter, as do these.

Being so close to the highway, this regal pair necessitated special grading treatment as well as a modification of the grade of the pavement itself, so they would not be disturbed.

The highway department even constructed a stone retaining wall to protect the exposed roots of the trees to the east, which is above the new grade of the road.

Farm Lumber Needs

Farmers can now order construction lumber for their farm storage and packing needs, as provided in an amendment to the WPB lumberfreezing order. Sales may be made to any person for use in the construction or repair of buildings for storage of agricultural products and for packing, boxing and shipping such products, provided that a signed compliance statement accompanies the order. This not only permits farmers to obtain lumber, but also makes it possible for dealers to use farmer-signed statements to obtain lumber from mills. In addition to this provision, certain kinds of cut lumber not now being used for war purposes are available for farm use.

A Year to Go

Pvt. Malcolm Dixon of Fort Devens, Mass., walked up to his sergeant, went through the routine explanation of why, when and where, and then stood by while the noncom wrote out an overnight pass. Private Dixon only wanted to go in to Boston for the evening. As the pass turned out, the sergeant-who had been transferred from the Southwest only a short time before-absent - mindedly had written Fort Worth, Texas, as Dixon's destination. But more breath-taking even, he had dated the one-night pass as officially good from May 10, 1942 to May 11, 1943—a full year's free time for Private Dixon!

MEN WANTED

There's more than one way that advertising brings men to work.

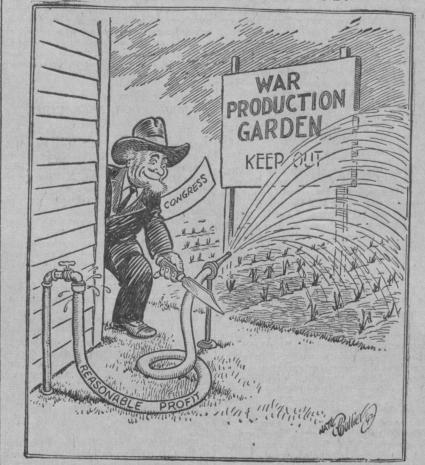

The most important way is when advertising is used to increase sales.

Instead of "men wanted," it says, "customers wanted."

And more customers mean more jobs in the stores and factories that keep busy by using advertising.

DON'T CUT THAT HOSE!

Asks for Check Of Gems in U.S.

Diamonds Needed to Give Precision Required in Modern War Engines.

WASHINGTON.-Modern war has made the diamond more precious than ever.

Throughout history diamonds have figured in romance, assassinations and adventure. But it remained for the current time to see them used as a tool without which America would find it hard to produce its fighting material.

Enemy countries also need diamonds for war. And if the United States can keep them from getting them, it will handicap them almost as much as though they were cut off from steel or oil.

This is why the War Production board is calling upon all Americans having title to 10 carats or more of rough diamonds to report their

At present the order applies only to rough diamonds. But a call may eventually be expected for an inventory of all stocks of the precious

Help War Drive.

Meanwhile, purchasers of engagement stones and other decorative diamonds are helping the war effort. For industrial diamonds would be five or six times as costly if they were not a by-product of the mining and cutting of more valuable gems.

The importance of this may be judged from the fact that just one war production plant in Detroit uses industrial diamonds at the rate of $2,000,000 worth annually.

Only the diamond has the hardness necessary to repeat the same precision operation over and over again, with never a variation. Since precision is an essential of assembly line production, war factories without the diamond would have to fall back on the old hit-and-miss methods of hand work.

Chief uses of the diamond in war industry are to true super-hard abrasive tools, turn delicate machine parts, draw wire to precise thickness, and to grind lenses for bomb-sights, range-finders and navigation instruments.

Fortunately this country has an abundance of gems. Between 1934 and 1941 United States dealers imported $42,753,517 worth of industrial diamonds alone. In addition, the Union of South Africa, one of our allies, produces 95 per cent of all

Other Sources Available.

Even should this source be cut off, however. Brazil is a large source of diamonds and diamonds of good industrial quality have been found in Arkansas.

Output of Africa was shut off to Axis powers three years ago. As a result the Axis powers are so hard pressed for industrial diamonds that they are said to be using cut stones in their factories.

The Japs also, reportedly short of diamonds when they entered the war, may have their eye on the immense treasure chests of Indian rajahs.

Incidentally, the Germans greatly augmented this country's diamond supply without intending to. When the Nazis invaded Belgium and Holland, they had planned to seize the huge stock of diamonds in Antwerp and Amsterdam, centers of the world diamond cutting industry. But the diamond cutters, two jumps ahead, got their stocks aboard British warships which had been lying by for that purpose. On the ships also fled some of the world's most famous diamond cutters.

Some of these cutters went to London; others are now in the United States and have established Americanized "streamlined" diamondcutting establishments on West Forty-seventh street, New York city, the new center of America's diamond trade.

One of the proposals for cloth conservation advanced at a meeting of men's pajama makers with the War Production board was a collarless sleepcoat-described by WPB as "a sort of nightgown."

Other suggestions, which may be embodied in a forthcoming order, included the shortening of trousers and coats on ordinary pajamas; the elimination of collars, lapels, cuffs, pockets and belts; the use of only a few specified fabrics, and the manufacture of perhaps not more than three pajama styles.

WASHINGTON.-The chances are, Mrs. Housewife, that in a few months you won't be able to buy a can of salmon or sardines.

Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson of the interior department's fish and wildlife service has told the senate appropriations committee that demands of the army, navy and lend-lease agency would eliminate canned fish from civilian menus for the war's

Doctors and Nurses Atrocity Victims

Escaped Seaman Describes Japanese Tortures.

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS.—A story of Japanese brutality in the Philippines - including atrocities upon American doctors and nurses-was related here by Samuel Roberts, 26year-old navy machinist mate.

He said he saw the bodies of doctors, their clothing removed, their hands chopped off and their ears slashed from their bloody heads. Bodies of nurses, he said, showed signs of worse treatment.

"Bodies of two nurses and four doctors were found in one place," Roberts said, "and they were not pretty sights. It was awful."

Roberts said he was captured by the Japanese soon after the outbreak of the war and placed in a concentration camp, but escaped and made his way to engage with the American forces in the fighting in the Philippines.

While he was in the concentration camp, he said, the Japanese tortured him in an effort to obtain in-

"They shoved rice straws under my fingernails and set them on fire. They put glass in my shoes and made me walk around."

Roberts enlisted in 1940, navy authorities here said. He told his story as a naval officer stood by to see that no information of value to the enemy was revealed.

The San Antonian told also of seeing his buddy—who had escaped with him from concentration—and two other men go to their deaths on a destroyer's bridge as they manned a machine gun in blazing oil on water covering the ship.

"They just stood there firing away with the machine gun until they dropped in flames," Roberts said.

War Glider Plant Is Completed in 30 Days

WICHITA, KAN.-A glider factory, begun 30 days ago "some-where in the Middle West," is ready to turn out the motorless craft essential to the army's recently announced large-scale air training program, Dwane Wallace, president of Cessna Aircraft company, said.

Cessna is one of three major aircraft factories awarded glider construction contracts. Wallace said equipment is almost complete in the new plant. Its size and the number of employees are military secrets.

Wallace's announcement gave substance to claims of Wichita manufacturers that plants in the Midwest are producing more training planes than any other section of the

FEESERSBURG.

We never never knew so much humid weather in one season, and such a rainy night as Saturday—sounded like the night of the great Johnstown flood in 1889, then a nice sunshiny evening on Sunday, and here we are beginning a brand new week of work and adventure.

Regardless of the weather there was a good attendance at Mt. Union S. S. on Sunday morning, tho' many were missing. In the absence of the elected Superintendents, Mrs. C. S. Wolfe conducted very nicely and the lesson on Faith and Prayer was good. Wasn't Abraham splendid! Good story books were given to two little ladies—for their 6th. year regular attendance, and to two bright boys for their 2nd and 3rd year regularity.

2nd and 3rd year regularity.

The David Miller family and a few friends had a joint picnic supper on the church lawn at the Parish House at Mt. Union the other Sunday evenng when the weather was so warmbut a pleasant time.

Then on Tuesday evening the social of the Smiling Sunbeams at the same place was much enjoyed by all present

Mrs. Lillie Birely Parker, of Frederick, has been the past week with her cousin, L. K. Birely and sisters. Her vacation this year has been spent with her immediate family and friends and on Sept. 15th she will return to Hood College for the 13th. season; as hostess of Meyran Hall. Last Christmas time one of the employees of the College burglarized her building one night when she was alone and filled some laundry bags with fine clothing, radio and household supplies. The night watchman how-ever saw the flash of his light from one story to another, called the police -who quickly arrived with guards to surround the house, and then captured the robber with his goods, who was later sent to prison for four years.

Mrs. Parker and your humble servant spent Friday evening with the Lowell Birely family in Union Bridge, and enjoyed films of the Broadwater Birely wedding of last year—very real and beautiful, and a late lunch of finery and dainties.

U.S. Tanks Are Hard Fighters

Precision-Built and They Can Outrun and Outlast All Other Models.

WASHINGTON.—Pound for pound, tanks being made with American skill surpass any similar types in mobility and mechanical reliability. Hard hitting, tough, capable of outrunning and outlasting other models, American tanks didn't just happen to be good. Superiority was built into them by hundreds of pre-cision tools. Each part is made to exact measurements and machine tools used to make them are of a special nature and size. The Office of Emergency Management is the authority for these statements.

Thirty to 50 per cent of the weight of any tank is armor plate. To build a tank, hard thick steel that cannot be pierced by a rifle or machine-gun bullet must be pressed, drilled and turned and reamed and milled to exact dimensions. Into a tank goes steel, nickel, brass, copper, aluminum, rubber, leather, glass, cotton, plastic, tin, lead and petroleum products. In its skeleton are rolled plates, castings, forgings, rivets, bolts, wire, tubing, ball and roller bearings, gears, electric motors, instruments, batteries and

40,000 Pieces in 'Heavies.'

In a light tank are 14,000 individual pieces; in a medium tank, 25,000; in a heavy tank, 40,000, that must be machined and assembled. Many of the metal parts must be machined on boring mills, radial drilling machines, milling machines and similar tools of much larger size than found in ordinary shops. The turret casting alone is as heavy as the average automobile.

Armor castings and forgings are so tough that tungsten-carbide tools have to be used in nearly all turning and boring operations. Cutters of high speed steel containing a high cobalt content must be used in milling and similar operations.

From beginning to end, the building of a tank is a task for machine tools. Without them, tanks would remain thin lines on drafting paper —with the right type of tools, they become the backbone of our armored forces.

Up to several years ago there were almost as many tanks sitting as World war monuments in public squares as there were in fighting trim in the army. Even these relics bore no battle scars, because no American-made tanks fought in France. We used British heavy tanks and French light tanks, and the total number was less than 300 -not enough to equip one of our modern armored divisions.

Faster Output Necessary.

The need for modern mechanized fighting equipment, so forcefully demonstrated by the armored forces abroad, meant an end had to be put to this slow, tedious production method. American industry was asked to produce in great numbers a vehicle that was neither a tractor, a truck, nor a locomotive. It was something in between, with a function all its own.

Joining in the program to produce this distant cousin of their civilian products are the locomotive, automotive and farm equipment industries. Helping them are plants that once made railroad cars, automobile and trailer bodies, automobile motors, Diesel engines, airplane motors, tractors, oil well drilling equipment, type foundry equipment, shoe machines and compressed air equipment. Together they created a new industry to build monsters that cost $1 a pound and weigh up to 112,000 pounds.

It was on April 30, 1940, that the first delivery was made, and since then other production lines have started and more are being set up. Later models are going into produc-

Army Wants Dogs To Patrol Hawaii

Urges Owners to Release Animals for Service.

HONOLULU.-The army has appealed to dog owners throughout Hawaii to enlist their pets in the army for "guard and sentry duty." The authorities said the need for dogs was "urgent and immediate," that dogs accepted would receive special training and that each dog used would release a man for other duty. The first dog enlisted is a prize German shepherd named Questor of Kanohe, owned by Harold Castle, who has been appointed Hawaii director of dogs for defense, a civilian organization that will handle the enlistment and training of dogs. The army said Questor had been assigned as personal escort to Lieut. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, commander of the Hawaiian depart-

The army's appeal to dog owners

"Your dog will enlist in the service of the United States the same as your son or brother. He will be trained by qualified trainers. He will be fed well and cared for properly. He will be entrusted to some one who will work with him and be his companion. When his services are needed no longer he will be returned to you."

The announcement pointed out that many islanders find it difficult to care for dogs properly.

"The value of dogs has been recognized and put to use by practically every nation except our own," the announcement said. "Alert and intelligent dogs are gifted with a highly developed sense of scent and hearing and are qualified particularly for sentry and patrol work even to a higher degree of efficiency than a human being."

Birthplace of Yankee Doodle 300 Years Old

ALBANY. — Fort Crailo, "birth-place of Yankee Doodle," is three centuries old this year.

Here in the quaint two-story brick building a British army surgeon, Richard Schuckburgh, wrote the rallying song for America's armies in the Revolution.

According to legend, Schuckburgh was sitting on the wall of the well in the rear of the house in 1758, during the French and Indian wars, when he wrote the song. It is said that he was inspired to put the words together by the sight of an approaching group of ragged American recruits. Later the words were set to the music of an old English air.

Originally the structure was built in 1642 to protect the residents of a Dutch manor of nearly one million acres, now split into five counties. Its walls were 20 inches thick and pierced with embrasures for firing muskets.

Now it is furnished with priceless Dutch antiques and is in the charge of the state.

Hints New Era In Navy Planes

Huge Liquid-Cooled Engines Newly Developed for Use in Aircraft.

WASHINGTON.-In an announcement foretelling a revolutionary change in naval aircraft design, the navy disclosed the development of a huge new liquid-cooled engine approaching 2,000 horsepower.

If the navy's use of this extraordinary power plant follows the same general line of airplane construction adopted by the army with liquid-cooled engines, a new series of naval fighter craft, faster and more powerful than any now on first-line duty, is in the making.

With liquid-cooled motors, army developed the P-40s which have performed brilliantly in battle from England to Australia; the speedy new P-39, or Bell Airacobra; the twin-tailed P-38 and the P-51, a 'mystery" fighter.

Air-Cooled Engines Used. The navy has built up its carrierbased fighter plane force almost exclusively on air-cooled engines. The best of these now produce between 1,000 and 1,200 horsepower, while some of the newer army pursuit craft are reported to exceed this figure. Official silence cloaked both the performance figures and future uses of the new engine. The formal announcement that it had been completed and placed on contract described it only as "considerably larger than any other liquid-cooled aircraft engine now in production," with power sufficiently great "as to compare favorably with that of the largest-type aircraft engine presently in use.'

The largest known air-cooled aircraft engines now used by the navy are the 2,000-horsepower units placed #### on the giant flying boat Mars. Both Types Have Merit.

The argument between advocates of liquid-cooled and radial engines is of long standing. Chief relative merits claimed for the two types are that the liquid-cooled engine presents a smaller frontal area, permitting the designing of smaller fuselages—a great advantage in high-speed fighters, while the aircooled engine turns up greater power in relation to its weight.

The army recently has favored liquid-cooled engines, with one notable exception, and the navy has concentrated on radial plants. The army exception is the new P-47, about which little is known except that it uses a radial engine reported to turn up about 2,000 horsepower.

The navy's new engine was developed by the Lycoming Engine division of the Aviation Corporation, Williamsport, Pa. The corporation was given a contract to produce the engines and construction of a new plant for that purpose already has been started in Ohio.

FONTANA, N. C .- A small army of workmen is preparing the founda-tion for the $50,000,000 Fontana dam, which, when completed sometime in 1945, will be the tallest structure of its kind in eastern America.

The site of the 450-foot structure is above all but one of the nine main-river dams of the Tennessee Valley authority system. Fontana dam will rise up out of what is now one of the most scenic but most inaccessible sections of western North Carolina, at a point where the Tuckasigee and Little Tennessee rivers converge, in Swain county, about 35 miles from Bryson City.

New Compound Speeds Up

Output of Tool Industry PITTSBURGH.—The machine tool industry has a remedy at last for one of its biggest headaches.

To a nation crying for speed and more speed in its vital defense production, a Duquesne university professor and his assistant reported the discovry of a new friction-reducing compound that promises to accelerate machine tool operations as much as 300 per cent.

Inventors of this new "miracle" coolant were Dr. Robert T. Hance, a biology professor, and Harold C. O'Brien, a young research scientist.

Their composition is a closely guarded secret for the present, pending patent rights, but they claimed test after test, including actual use for five months in Pittsburgh district shops, served only to confirm its importance and wide range of

Since it is strongly advised that transplanting of saplings and small trees not be attempted and that direct seeding be practiced, it is impossible to bring an acreage into production in less than 30 years. The first stripping bark takes place when the tree is about 20 years old. This virgin bark or mascalage is rough and coarse and of little commercial value. Its removal, however, stimulates the growth of cork so that during the succeeding two or three years a prodigious amount of cork is produced. This growth gradually decreases in rate until after about nine years scarcely any further thickening of the bark is per-ceptible, and at the end of that period the second stripping takes pl The second and all subsequent strippings produce a bark of commercial

KARL GRAYSON Associated Newspapers—WNU Features.

T ARRY TALBOT seemed interested when I asked him whether personality or showmanship had anything to do with being a good hockey player.

"That's an odd question," he said. "I've been in the game a long time, given interviews to hundreds of reporters such as you, and never once has a scribe pulled one like that on

He laughed. "Personality? Showmanship? Well, now, yes, and on the other hand, no. Still, when you speak of showmanship, I can't help but think of Nate Fuller. Now there's a case in which the answer to your question is 'yes.' And at the same time the answer is 'no.' Sounds kind of crazy to you. Well, let me tell you about Nate.

"Nate was a winger for the Northerns. Not an especially good wing-er, but good enough to get a berth with Old Man Peaslee, who owned the club. But after awhile it began to look as if getting the berth was about the end of it. Nate didn't get into many games. There were too many other wingers on the team who were better.

"Strange how it turned out. Nate didn't improve his game a single degree, but within six months he was playing in every contest on the schedule. And he was the Northerns' biggest drawing card!

"How did he do it? Well, you see Nate loved hockey, but he

"Nate went back to Old Man and Old Man Peaslee looked at him and shook his head."

tionally good player. No matter how hard he tried, he just didn't have the co-ordination to place him in the same category with the other Northerns' wingers. It occurred to him that unless he made himself valuable to Old Man Peaslee in some other fashion he might get canned. And if Peaslee canned him, it would, he realized, be almost impossible to get signed up with another club.

"And so Nate proceeded to make himself indispensable to the Northerns and Old Man Peaslee. The next time he was allowed in a game, he deliberately tripped over his own feet, went sprawling, stood up and coasted away on one skate, bowing and smiling to the crowd. It doesn't sound like much to tell, but if you had been there in the arena and seen what appeared like a legitimate accident, and watched Nate Fuller grinning at the crowd, you would have understood.

"Anyway, that was the beginning. Nate seized every opportunity that presented itself to attract attention by clowning. And he didn't have to try very hard, because hockey players don't have much time for that sort of thing.

"There was something about the way Nate pulled his act that appealed to the fans. He never failed to get a laugh and quite frequently a cheer. Especially when a contest was a bit dull and uninteresting was the kid appreciated. And it was at times like those that he went to extremes.

"At first Peaslee didn't pay any particular heed. He, like the fans, had been fooled by Nate and thought the kid was just trying to cover his own embarrassment. But after awhile, Peaslee began to see that the crowds went for Nate, that they were waiting for him to pull something funny and were ready to laugh. He began watching the kid, noticed that at least 50 per cent of the time the spills were unavoidable, 50 per cent intended. But whatever the case, Nate never failed to come up grinning, and pull some humorous antic that sent the stands into roars of laughter and perfunctory cheers.

"Peaslee was a hockey player and didn't go in much for nonsense. But he was also a business man and had invested his money in the Northerns because he expected profitable returns. And he saw at once that the paying guests were big for Nate Fuller. They liked him. It was a peculiar psychology.

"And so Old Man Peaslee began putting Nate into more and more games. Not because he had improved his technique, but because the crowd wanted to see him. Nate was good, you understand, else Peaslee never would have tolerated him, but he wasn't a top-notcher. However, what the kid lacked in ability he made up by rattling the opposing players with his crazy antics. So, in the final analysis, it was six of one, half dozen of the Peaslee never admitted to anyone, let alone Nate, that he approved of the kid's clowning. To do so wouldn't have become the reputation he'd built up about himself as a hard-shelled promoter. But Nate, knew it, knew that his sudden popularity and demand was because of his own originality. He was, however, quite satisfied and contented with the manner in which things were going. He had made himself indispenable to the Northerns. He was being given an opportunity to play in practically every game on the schedule.

"And so Nate continued with his play-acting, never failed to give the crowd a laugh, never overdid the thing and frequently introduced some new attraction to his repertoire. His grinning countenance and clowning ways became as much looked for as the hard, grim visage of Dick McBride, the Northerns' right defense and star player.

"The thing might have continued indefinitely had something not happened one night in Chicago. Northerns were playing the Easterns. It was an all-important game, because it meant the championship of the Middle West. A huge crowd filled the arena, a crowd eager for excitement and entertainment.

"Without hesitation Peaslee sent Nate Fuller out on the ice. He figured his team was going to collect an easy victory anyway, and he knew that the fans were in a mood

"Nate had thought up a new trick to inaugurate for the occasion. He went coasting along beneath the stands, grinning and bowing and laughing with the crowd. At a point just opposite the mid-ice boxes, he turned suddenly, spurted out into the rink, dropped his stick almost to the ice and completed a neat somersault. The crowd roared its approval. But Nate was only half way through his program. He twisted about, started back and made as if to repeat the stunt, but instead he dropped the stick and went sprawling face

"No one knew it, but the spill had been accidental. Nate had made a miscalculation, though its significance was lost on observers. A bellow of laughter rose from the stands -and died. For instead of picking himself up with his usual broad grin, Nate lay quite still.

"They carried him off the ice and sent for an ambulance. At a nearby hospital surgeons worked over his still form for hours. When they had completed their work they looked at each other sadly and shook their heads. There was no danger of the boy dying, but he'd never look the same again.

"And Nate didn't. A month later he walked out of the hospital with a new face, a face that wasn't his at all. It was rather a comic looking thing, with a peculiar scar running from the left side of his mouth almost to his ear. It gave him the appearance of wearing a perpetual

"Nate went back to Old Man Peaslee, and Old Man Peaslee looked at him and shook his head. However, he gave the boy a chance. He sent him into the first game he could-and that was all. At sight of Nate the crowd roared its delight. But after awhile they stopped roaring, because Nate seemed to be grinning at them, leering at them, and he wouldn't stop. Too much of a good thing was too much. Besides, Nate wasn't as funny as he used to be with his clowning.

"No, Nate went back to the bench. And he sat there for the rest of the winter. And the next fall he wasn't re-signed by Peaslee. The fans, Peaslee explained, didn't like a player to appear funny ALL the

Describe Need for Hospital Facilities

It is estimated that a 50-mile drive to a hospital, over good roads, is a maximum distance for patients to be carried. It would appear, therefore, that communities which are more than that distance from a well-equipped hospital would do well to consider building a hospital center for their own use. It may be urged, with justice, that if the population is scattering, it could not support a hospital sufficiently large and well equipped to give the needed service. This is true: In a sparsely settled community not more than four or five beds would be required at any time and the fees from so small a clientele would not be sufficient to maintain the required facilities. In such a situation, it is suggested that a small medical center be established with perhaps a half dozen beds, where local doctors can take care of non-surgical cases or others requiring hospitalization but not in need of highly specialized facilities. Such a center, it is pointed out, can usually make arrangements with a large and wellequipped hospital at some distance for ambulance service whereby patients can, if needful, be removed from the medical center to the larg-

ISAAC PRACTICES PEACE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 26:18-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the peace-makers: for they shall be called the children of God.—Matthew 5:9.

To talk peace in a warring world seems almost futile, and so it is, unless it be the peace of God. In a world largely dominated by the philosophy that might makes right, and in which men demand what they call their rights, taking them even by lawless and violent methods, it is increasingly difficult to proclaim the truth that patience and meekness are not weakness, but are

Christian virtues worth emulating. The story of Isaac is interesting from beginning to end. He was an ordinary man, one of the common people. He had come through varied experiences of victory and defeat before the time of our lesson. Fearing a famine, and apparently not trusting God at the moment, he had gone down from the promised land to the country of the Philistines, there redigging the wells which his father Abraham had dug. The result was that he prospered. Ere long, however, envy on the part of his enemies taught Isaac that-

I. Peace in This World Is Temporary (vv. 18-21).

Isaac had prospered, but he was still out of the promised land, and while he was in the land of Philistines he could expect no permanent peace.

We are in the world. We long for peace, and would throw all our influence and service into the cause of bringing a righteous peace to the troubled peoples of the world. But let us not be misled by that desire into the support of unscriptural and impossible peace programs. This world is a sinful world, and as long as that is true, there will be strife and war, that men (as James puts it) may have the gains thereof for their own pleasure.

Our business in such a world is to preach the gospel of grace, win-ning men to Christ, that they may become men of good-will. Isaac was such a man, willing to yield even what seemed to be his right, rather than cause contention.

Undoubtedly there are times when one must defend his name and his possessions, but all too often those who do "stand for their rights" have wrecked homes, churches, and nations, and have gained nothing but an empty victory.

The peace of this world is temporary. Is there then no real abiding peace and joy? II. Abiding Joy Is Found in Fellowship With God (vv. 22-25). When Isaac came up into Canaan, the land which God had promised to him, he found real peace and an abiding joy in renewed fellow-ship with God. Even so, the Christian man and woman who will step out of a spiritually destructive fellowship with the ungodly world and come over wholeheartedly into the spiritual Canaan of full consecration and separated living, will find true peace and satisfying communion with God. Our thought, however, has wider application—one much needed today. There is to come a time when this world will have true and abiding peace which shall cover the earth like the waters cover the sea. When the One who has the right to reign, the Lord Jesus Christ, returns to take His throne, then, and not before, will there be true peace. We await that day with longing which grows more intense as men grow more violent in their hatred. But is there nothing more we can do? Yes, we learn from Isaac's experience that-

III. A Godly Life Is a Testimony to Warring Men (vv. 26-31).

These men were wicked men, even speaking falsehood in their claim of friendship toward Isaac (v. 29). Now that they perceived that God was continually blessing Isaac in spite of their repeated injustice toward him, they decided that it would be well to make a covenant of friendship with him. Even those who follow the way of war and aggression cannot deny the effectiveness of true Christian testimony.

Observe also that by his patience and kindness Isaac ultimately made better to turn enemies into friends than to beat them, and have them enemies still." And so this man with the patient, self-sacrificing spirit brought peace not only to himself, but to those about him, because he believed and trusted God. "When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him" (Prov.

What can we do to bring peace today? We can pray that God will help America and her allied nations to turn to Him in repentance of sin, and in a desire to so honor His name that He may be able to give His blessing. When Hezekiah spread before the Lord the threat of his enemy, God undertook for him in a mighty way, because his heart was right toward God (Isa. 37:14-20).

Will he do less for us?

The WPB approved the proposal of Henry J. Kaiser, shipbuilder, to construct 500 70-ton cargo-carrying planes, patterned after the flying boat "Mars" built for the Navy. The program is contingent however "upboat "Mars" built for the Navy. The program is contingent, however, "upon our being able to do it without interfering with the present combat plane program, "WPB Chairman Nelson said Army Air Forces Commander Arnold said at present 21 per cent of all Army Air Forces multiengined plane production is being devoted to transport planes, and the program calls for this proportion to be raised to 30 percent in 1943.

The Office of Defense Transportation said approximately 4,000,000

President Roosevelt set up a three-man committee, headed by Bernard M. Baruch, to study the entire synthetic rubber program. The President said the committee's findings will "form a basis for future action not only with respect to synthetic rubber, but also such matters as nationwide gas rationing and motor transporta-tion." The OPA said it is planning a universal ration book to be put into hands of every American, as part of its machinery to handle rationing of many commodities which do not require rationing at present. The office said traveling salesmen will not be permitted more than a B ration book in addition to their A books.

Agriculture Secretary Wickard announced the Farm Scurity Administration and the U. S. Employment Service will recruit additional workers for farmers in areas where there are seasonal shortages of labor. The workers will be recruited only after the farmer and the Employment Ser-vice have been unable to obtain work-ers locally. The workers must be paid the prevailing wage, to be de-termined by the Farm Security Ad-ministration, but in no case less than 30 cents an hour. If the workers come from a distance, farmers must pay transportation costs up to 200 miles and the FSA will pay for additional mileage. The workers must be properly housed and work guar-anteed for at least three-fourths of the time they are in the area.

CARROLL COUNTY FAIR HANDI-CAPPED BY RAIN

(Continued from First Page.) The wedding postponed from Wednesday night, was held in spite of the weather, and was carried out according to plans as nearly as possible, but was held on the grandstand instead of on the platform as intended. The contracting parties were Ruth E. Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Fisher, of Graceham, and Raye E. Valentine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Valentine, of Rocky Ridge. Ridge

Soon after the wedding on Thursday evening the lights went off and ended the matters for the night. The people were escorted from the grandstand and to their cars by the police and Boy Scouts, using flash lights. Cars were parked off the grounds for fear of swamping. Rain did not prevent the presence of candidates for state and county offices. Governor O'Conor was scheduled to be present at one o'clock on Thursday but was delayed about an hour and a half by rain: The Minute Men of Taneytown and Baust Church, with a few from other places were out in uniform to greet the Governor. All were invited to the grandstand, where the Governor delivered an address, dwelling chiefly on the war.

As for candidates in general, one of the Minute Men who was asked by a reporter whether any were present, answered: "They were as thick as

Tells How Long War Will Last

All Over by End of 1943, Is Conclusion of Amateur Prognosticator.

BRONXVILLE, N. Y.-Ignatius Donnelly Taubeneck, a mild-man-nered school teacher by profession and a one-man Gallup poll and amateur prognosticator in his spare time, predicted:

1. The war will be over by the end of 1943, with the Axis soundly

2. There is a 50-50 chance of a world depression after the war which will make the 1929 debacle look like child's play.

"No tea leaves, no stars, just facts are the basis of my predictions,' Taubeneck, 50, said, rubbing his semi-bald head and setting aside a batch of history students' term pa-

"Anybody can do it," he said generously. "I just apply scientific methods to human variables. I use the doctor's method of diagnosis on contemporary facts."

Through the application of science to human variables, Taubeneck predicted the 1929 stockmarket crash in 1927, and the outcome of every presidential election since 1924 from four to ten months in advance.

Predicted Entry Into War. In October, 1939, he predicted America would come into the war through a military clash in the Taubeneck makes no charge for his predictions and he gets nothing out of them but satisfaction. He says he has been correct 89 per cent of the time.

On several occasions, including the 1940 election when he predicted the third term the previous January, he has written his prophecies, put them in a sealed envelope and had them deposited in a safe deposit box at the Bronxville Trust

Taubeneck said his prediction about the end of the war was not to be hailed with jubilation.

"We are in for some nasty military reverses," he said, "but the tide will turn our way in 60 days." The "global depression," he said, could be avoided by proper economic steps being taken now. He's not too hopeful that they will be taken. How He Got Started.

Taubeneck got interested in predicting to demonstrate to his history classes, high school and college, that any one who is informed can know what is going to happen in the world "even in such peculiar fields as American politics.'

He gets information from likely and unlikely sources. He reads seven newspapers a day, "for bal-ance," and talks to all sorts of peo-Although he has several college degrees he said he learned most "from people, and through the vicissitudes of war." He fought in France in 1918.

"And a lot depends on your point of view," he explained. "The trouble with most people is they are flat outlook."

Costs; Build Their Own LEXINGTON, MASS.—New England's early colonial project known as a road-laying bee has been revived by 25 residents of this historic village to remedy a 20-year agitation and save $24,000.

When home owners of a rocky section of the town learned it would cost $26,000 to have a road built through their district, they decided to do the work themselves. Children and women joined the men in digging the road on evenings and Sundays and finally the mile-long stone foundation was completed and paved with cinders. Total cost of the project was $2,000 and this cash was raised by assessing each neighborhood family $100.

When town officials noticed the community effort, they supplied an engineer, machinery, trucks and a bulldozer, so that the only cost to the household laborers was for building materials, dynamite and a skilled man to set off the dynamite.

Gas masks which came into use in warfare for the first time when the Germans used poison and mustard gas in World War I, are much improved today over those used then. The Chemical Warfare Branch of the War Department issues these gas masks to every man in the service. We are taking no chances.

The type pictured here is the and "elephant nose" mask and costs about $9.25 each. The headgear is transparent, made of material resembling cellophane and does not cloud with the breath. Included in this amplification of the original appeal are the colors of the Hohenzollern empire, but more especially those of the ma- tion. ligned Weimar Republic and the flags of the former Federated States.

As the flags no longer possess practical significance, says the ordinance, persons who have them are requested to contribute them to the drive for fresh textile reserves. An exception is made if flags possess historic value.
