The Republicans presented no candidate.

For Associate Judge the incumbent James E. Boylan, Jr., was renominated over John Wood. The Republican candidate, Theodore F. Brown, had no contest.

For Congress the Democratic choice is H. Street Baldwin and the Republican is George R. Norris, both of Baltimore County.

Of course it is well known that Governor will be the Democratic candidate for Governor, and Theodore R. McKeldin will be the Republican candidate.

The vote will not be complete until next Tuesday, when the soldier vote will be received and tabulated, but this will not change the result in any case.

JOHN J. REID VISITS TANEYTOWN

Writes an Interesting Letter About Many Things.

I am now back again, among the many friends of my boyhood and early manhood, and I want to say that I am as much surprised to be here as they seem to be. Ever since I was here, four years ago, I have been on the sick list, so that I could not give you the news of Detroit as often as I would have liked to. But through the kindness of my son, I am here, and am enjoying every minute of my time. I cannot, in the very beginning of this letter, help paying the very highest compliment to the fine appearance that the old town must make to any one who is fortunate enough to make it a visit, especially one who has been away as long as I have been.

So I want to thank all of you for the kind welcome you have given me, and assure you that it has been fully appreciated. My letters from Detroit have been necessarily somewhat of a repetition of each other, and I have sometimes thought that maybe you are tiring of them. But since arriving here, a week ago, I have received so many wishes for more of them, and as the Editor says, they make a good "filler" I am endeavoring to fill in some of my time in giving you one more, especially as he has requested me to do so.

Any one who has visited Detroit will agree with me that it is "war-mind" to the last degree. Personally, I have no knowledge of any plant, and I know thousands of them, that is not working, day and night, doing something to aid in winning the war. I do not say that those who work in the plants are still doing their best in this line, for we still have a lot of people who believe that the war was brought on for the express purpose of giving them the high wages they are now getting, and are yelling for still more. Of course, as I said many times before, the leaders of the Unions are, in a great measure, responsible for this feeling, and I firmly believe that if the men who do the work were left alone, there would be no more strikes. But the more money their members make, the more "rake-off" these leaders have, so we still have an average of four strikes a day, the greater part of them for very trivial excuses.

People who visit Detroit are amazed at the activity going on, especially those who lived there once, and have been away for a number of years. Plants that have been closed for years, are now being added, and not small ones either, while hundreds are being constructed where no one ever expected to see even a shed. Such a place is the immense plant constructed by Henry Ford, at Willow Run, where the building is one and a quarter miles long, and the runway one and three-quarters long. And as I have said before, there are dozens of such new plants, while every automobile repair shop, no matter how small, is now converted into parts-work shops.

We, as well as you, are having our air-raid blackouts, and are waiting for a surprise one, which they say cannot be until the Chrysler people complete the building of the sirens they have contracted to produce. As human nature is the same everywhere there are at every announced blackout, quite a few who do not pay attention to the alarms, and the city officials are pretty hard on these, levying stiff fines on such carelessness or deliberate violations of the law. If the time ever comes for the need of such an alarm—and I sincerely hope that it never does—either here or in our city, those who do not co-operate in this preparation, will certainly regret their actions now.

I hear a great deal about the excessive wet weather in the Taneytown section. Well, we have had quite a lot of such weather in Detroit, but nothing compared to what I have heard since coming here. For the past few weeks we have had no rains of any account, and even before it has not been so bad. Out in the country, 25 or more miles, farmers and truckers are complaining, a little, but are not hurt much, only on ground crops, such as tomatoes, etc.

In closing, I want to refer to the many of my old friends who have passed on. No one knows how much I miss them. I cannot mention all their names, as I may have mentioned them in former letters. But I want to assure you that their absence has a very depressing effect on me, and it will be a long time until I can walk up street and not think of the time I spent in their company, either when I lived among them, or on former visits. Especially is this true of my former co-worker in the Record office. While I wish the present management of the Record every success in the world, I cannot help wishing that I could walk into the office and grasp his hand, and talk over old times, as well as these times which surely try men's souls. But I surely want to say how much I enjoy meeting and greeting those who are still here, and are still able to enjoy life. May they still have many more years before them, and when I go back home to Detroit, I shall carry with me many happy memories of the time I spent with my boy, and in the company of all my old and new friends in Taneytown and other places in this vicinity.

JOHN J. REID.

SERVICE MEN LETTERS

Containing Thanks for Kits Given Them.

To whom it May Concern:

I received my service kit and appreciate it very very much, thanking all who had a part in it. I have found every article to be very useful here in the Navy. Thanking each and everyone again, I remain sincerely yours,

JOSEPH L. MYERS, A. S.
Battalion 20 Co. 730
U. S. Naval Trn Sta.
Great Lakes, Ill.

To Whom it May Concern:

May I take this means to express my most sincere thanks for the service kit that I have received. I have never seen a kit so complete with a soldier's necessities before. It is certainly heart-warming to know that the folks back home are standing back of the boys 100 percent and I feel sure that none of us will let you down. Again may I say many, many thanks, and until I return, I remain, another Taneytown soldier.

WILLIAM R. SELL,
U. S. Army Air Forces.

Dear Miss Annan:

I want to thank you and the other interested workers in the community project for the nice kit. The differing gifts will be useful, and I do appreciate it. Respectfully yours,

JOHN MOTTER CRAPSTER.

Dear Sirs:

Just a few lines to tell you I am in Camp Crowder, Missouri. I am cooking for the 208th Signal Depot Co. It is a very nice camp out here but it is very hot now. I have four other men under me that are learning to cook so I have a very nice job. Thanking you very much for sending me the paper as long as you have. Sincerely yours,

PVT. GUY M. DAYHOFF.

Before I enlisted in the service I heard a good bit about the soldier's kit being distributed to the boys from Taneytown and vicinity. I considered it a worthy project which showed thoughtfulness and patriotism. Now that I am the proud owner of one of these kits, I can fully realize the value of all of the articles included and the true significance it carries. It gives the soldier not only confidence in the folks back home but also arouses a spirit within himself and a loyalty to the cause for which he is preparing to fight. I extend my heartfelt appreciation to all who have devoted their time and resources to provide this gift. Sincerely,

PVT. FRANCIS T. ELLIOT, JR.
Co. E, 1302 Service Unit
Fort Geo. G. Meade, Md.

TANEYTOWN MAN NOW AN ENSIGN

Miami, Fla.—Cleveland L. Null son of the Rev. T. W. Null, Taneytown, Md., has successfully completed his advanced aircraft carrier flight training at the Naval Air Station here and has been appointed Ensign in the U. S. Naval Reserve.

Ensign Null now wears the Navy's coveted Wings of Gold which he was presented by Captain G. F. Bogan, USN, commanding officer, at impressive graduating exercises.

Null attended Indiana Tech., Fort Wayne, Indiana, graduating in 1941 with B. S. degree.

He was introduced to naval aviation at the Naval Reserve Aviation Base, Anacostia, D. C., and after advanced training at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., was selected for special instruction in takeoffs and landings from aircraft carriers here.

Three years ago, U. S. aircraft makers, employing 30,000 workers and producing at the rate of 3,000 planes a year, needed 10 men to make each plane. Now, employing more than 400,000 workers and producing at the rate of 58,000 planes a year, they need only 8.3 men per plane—and the planes are far bigger and more complicated.

Since the war began, nearly 100 new chemical and powder plants have been built in America.

THE BLUE RIDGE RUBBER COMPANY TO REBUILD FACTORY AT TANEYTOWN.

The War Production Board Committee Approves the Construction of New Building.

One of the best items of news received by this office was the authoritative information from the Vice-President and General manager of the Blue Ridge Rubber Company, Mr. E. W. Dunbar, conveyed to us by the office manager, Mr. W. Rein Motter, that "the WPB Committee at Washington, D. C., unanimously approved the rebuilding of the Blue Ridge Rubber Factory" at Taneytown.

Since the destruction by fire, on Saturday, April 25, 1942, the Factory with offices operated in Littlestown, Pa.

We have no further particulars as to the plans for the future but we feel sure, that, under the direction of Mr. Dunbar, who has worked wholeheartedly and untiringly for his Company, always expressing his appreciation and admiration for Taneytown, that this project will be carried through to a satisfactory reality.

SALVATION ARMY HEAD Will Tour American Cities and Canada

General George L. Carpenter, who succeeded General Evangeline Booth as International Leader of the Salvation Army just before the outbreak of war between England and Germany, is in America and will address meetings in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Toronto and Winnipeg in Canada, and from October 9 to 13 at Atlanta, Ga.

The General is an Australian by birth. He became a Salvation Army officer at Raymond Terrace, Australia in 1892, and rose steadily until he reached the top of the ladder.

General Carpenter, accompanied by Mrs. Carpenter, by special arrangement was brought to America via Trans-Atlantic Clipper, and arrived in New York early in September where he was enthusiastically greeted by leaders of the American forces of the Salvation Army.

A great public civic reception is to be tendered the General Sunday afternoon, October 11th, at the City auditorium, Atlanta, seating 7,000 people. It is probable also that the General may be heard over a radio hook-up during his visit in the United States.

Random Thoughts

(This is a reprint of an article formerly published. Owing to the popularity of these Random Thoughts we will for a time reproduce others of the same type.)

WHEN CANES WERE IN FASHION

As late as thirty-five years ago, or thereabouts, it was common fashion for men to use canes, not for aid in walking, but because it was considered a proper thing to do.

These canes, or walking sticks, were part of the stock of many stores, as commonly as umbrellas, especially in the cities and larger towns. They were commonly used as Christmas gifts, and could be had gold or silver headed, carved or plain, or with knob or hook hand-hold.

The substantial ones were stout hickory sticks with a ferrule on lower end, and sold at about fifty cents. There were all sorts and styles. It was about this time when the word "dude" was invented, and there were reed, bamboo, rattan or other light weight models for purely ornamental uses.

There was also the Cane with a loaded head, made something on the order of the buggy whip—another old-time necessity that has disappeared from stocks in trade. We do not recall that these were largely used, but they were a "billy" that could have been very effective in a fracas.

In those days, silk "toppers" and "Prince Albert" coats were in style, as well as white vests elaborate silk handkerchiefs and glossy starched shirt fronts.

"Cutting a cane" was frequently connected with making a visit, and many were experts in using keen bladed pocket knives in cutting initials, dates and various emblems through the outer bark into the tough wood, or perhaps in taking all of the bark off and coloring the stick to suit individual artistic genius.

The writer has the cane used by "Jim" Nickum, once a well known cattle dealer in Taneytown, who used his cane as a "horse" and found it quite a necessity in his latter days.

MARRIED MEN, OR YOUTH?

General Hershey's warning to married men without children to get ready for military service by Christmas brought the war suddenly closer to millions of additional Americans. So did Manpower Commissioner McNutt's reminder to college boys that they are destined for the armed services.

While such blunt statements may not be welcomed, while they may not be borne out completely by developments in many individual cases, they serve a useful purpose. The services will require more men soon. The "pooling" order, calling up all single men, emphasizes the fact that the reservoir of those without dependents is running low.

This leaves two alternatives: (1) starting taking men with dependents, or (2) lowering the selective service age to include boys 18 and 19. Such is the harsh situation. It is only fair that it be understood by the people during the discussions leading to a decision by Congress on the proper course.

As the law now stands, it will be the married men who are called. Congress has already voted allowances for their dependents. However, it is known that the Army would prefer to have the youths, and business men fear a disruption of staffs if many more older men go. It is asserted that drafting youths is delayed only because Congress dare not act before the elections.

Actually, this question looms so large, and is so close to the hearts of the people, and the need for expediting the war is so paramount, that political consideration seem inconsequential.

It's a hard question that must be answered, but since we must win the war, the governing issue, the nub, is simply which group of men, those with dependents, or those in their teens, will contribute most to victory. Such points as the claimed physical resiliency and recklessness of youth, contrasted with the supposed mental steadiness of family men, will weigh above questions of sentiment.

The country would benefit from having this question decided. If only one group is to go, the others should not be unsettled and in doubt. Delay is inexcusable. The Christian Science Monitor.

AMAZING ACCUSATIONS

It is a fortunate thing that in America we still have a large measure of liberty of expression. Democracy would not be possible without it. Under Hitler and his Allies it would not be so, but then in those countries there is nothing bearing the semblance of liberty.

This freedom of speech results, it is true, in humiliations, but the humiliations are not half so shameful as without the truth, however disagreeable the truth, may be.

We are moved to these observations by the article of Frank R. Kent on The Basic Trouble, copyrighted by The Baltimore Sun, Sept. 4—last Friday. Some of the assertions are nothing less than amazing. If they are true, we have a situation in Washington that is disgraceful, and if they are not true they should be answered, not by mere denials that mean nothing, but by evidence that would stand testing. Our own feeling is that if they were not true they would be answered quickly by the production of proof to the contrary as well as by calling the commentator to account.

Take this statement, for instance: No one in the Administration, except for purely propaganda purposes, contends that the war management is nearly as competent as it should be. Those in position to have a detached view know that its inefficiency is almost incredible; that the confusion is beyond description and that, compared to its size and effort, the results are shockingly small.

And in assigning reasons for the situation, these are cited: One is that in this war we have failed to profit by the experience of the last one. We have disregarded its lessons and repeated its blunders. Another is that we have not, as in the last war, enlisted the best available brains in the country, irrespective of party. Some of the most capable of our citizens, anxious to make their full contribution, are barred from the war effort because of White House personal or political distaste.

But, there is another reason even more basic. It consists of the really absurd, not to say terrifying, over-manning of the war machine. The extent to which this has been done is unprecedented and indefensible.

We believe the last reason is one of the most serious. The constant multiplication of the number of government employees creates a machine that is simply unworkable. It is one of the great factors in the enormous increase of the public debt. It is utterly destructive of confidence and morale. Sooner or later it will bring ever lasting disgrace upon those who are responsible for it. L. B. H.

THE FOUR FREEDOMS EVERYWHERE

I am not convinced that the idea is entirely a good one for all the world. They are good for America because we have earned them all the hard way. We fought for and gained our liberty, and by hard work have gained the prosperity we enjoy. Other peoples have had our example to pattern by, and if they have not succeeded, the fault is theirs and not ours. It is not our province to say to others how they shall be governed. That is their own concern. We may and do sympathize with those who are oppressed, but that does not give us the right to step in and say how they are to govern themselves.

We hate Hitlerism and since Hitler has attacked us, and up to now is doing us more harm than we seem able yet to mete out to him, and if reports that we read in the daily press are as stated, it looks now as thou we have a long, costly, bloody war ahead before we can hope to win. We will win if we keep the will to win. We have the wealth, the material, the man power needed to win, and we believe we have the leadership necessary to win. In a war minded, war torn world, we refused to prepare and considered threats of quarantining would stave off war, we were wrong while we talked, Hitler trained and armed his soldiers, we have not yet caught up but are doing so. The splendid battles, the losing ones, that Russia has been waging have given us time to prepare. Germany can be softened up by devastating bombings daily administered.

It may not be necessary to send land armies, but likely will be before it is all over, Germany has never been invaded, Germany has managed to fight on alien soil. A devastating war war carried into Germany would teach them a lasting lesson, and when over, insure a lasting peace. If Germany is not invaded and made to feel the kind of destruction meted out to others Germany will surrender, and immediately begin preparation for another war to be fought by the next generation twenty-five years hence. We must win this war, no matter what the cost, or all will be slaves. That must not happen, for America was not born to be a slave.

OIL WANTED

An authority says: "About 26 per cent of American people contract monthly or yearly obligations larger than their incomes." Then asks the question: "Is it better to be without some of the things we want or think we want or be in debt?"

As had nothing else to do, or rather our breathing mechanism would let us do, spent a few minutes thinking how, if we were asked would we answer the question. Decided there were too many "if and buts" to the question for any one answer to apply.

If the things we want, or think we want, are essential for our comfort, pleasure and happiness and for others dependent upon us do not have the cash to pay but have an income that will enable us to pay the debt or installments when due without hardship or privation, our answer would be, go ahead and incur the debt.

But if the future income is uncertain or our position or job doubtful would be better to do without some of the things we want than contract a debt you may not be able to pay when due. Even with present ability to pay before contracting debts we should give careful thought to the future, when our days of earnings are passed, our income gone or decreasing, should realize how important it is to have some savings for a rainy day.

How would you answer the question. Is it better to do without some of the things you want or go in debt for them?

One thing we want just now, either cash or credit is about 3,000 gallons of fuel oil regardless of whether Ickes, Henderson or Nelson might confiscate. If could get the oil would pay cash if had, if not try our credit standing and if that failed would beg, borrow or steal enough to pay for the oil.—Editor, The Times, Westminster.

FEEDING THE SOLDIERS

The following is from The Frederick Post of September 4. We give it to show the style of thinking that many people have been doing for quite a long time, and now maybe it is to be put into practice. Frankly, however, we prefer the good old-fashioned meals; hot from the kitchen range. But read this and take your choice.

An army is said to march on its stomach. If it does not come somewhere near getting its regular eats, you can't expect great fighting out of hungry men.

Modern war is a terrible chaos of diving bombers, roaring and death-dealing tanks, crashing cannon, and the terrific rain of machine gun fire. How can men eat and get any good out of their food in that awful hell?

In old time war the supply services could operate without any aviators overhead pouring lead into them, or armored tanks ploughing into their midst. One answer to the problem is found by modern scientists in concentrated foods, containing enough calories and vitamins to keep a soldier in good condition.

A newspaper writer remarks, after living on these foods for a day, that they do the job, and feed the fighter better than the average civilian worker who has to snatch his meals. It will be some comfort to our brave soldiers, as they maneuver their tanks and fly their planes, to feel in their pockets the concentrated grub that is loaded with vigor and power.

AMERICA'S NATURAL RESOURCES

In the laboratories of America, miracles are in the process of being wrought. New frontiers of science are being explored. And old and commonplace materials are being turned to new and marvelous uses.

Coal and oil are cases in point. We think primarily of coal as a substance which provides motive power for industry and which heats home. We think primarily of oils as a variety of liquids which propel our engines and lubricate our machinery. But coal and oil are the basis of new materials which serve a thousand other vital purposes.

The loss of our nature rubber is leading to the creation of a vast new synthetic rubber industry. Some kinds of synthetic rubber are made from oil derivatives. Other kinds are made of derivatives of coal. All the various synthetic rubbers have special and important uses. And the chemists are certain that, in time, we will have an abundant supply of artificial rubber which will be superior in all ways to the natural product.

We are just on the verge of what might be termed the plastic age. Again, coal and oil enter prominently into the picture. They are the basis of a long list of plastics which will be used for an astonishing variety of purposes in the future. Plastic autos, plastic airplanes, plastic window glass, plastic furniture, plastic home utensils—these are but a few of the revolutionary chemical developments of the time.

America is singularly blessed in the magnitude of its natural resources. And it is equally blessed in the efficiency and progressiveness of the great private industries which develop them. Natural resources give us strength in time of war. They will give us a higher standard of living than we have ever known, when peace comes again.

IT ALL DEPENDS ON ME!

The other day a friend who had just returned from England showed me a poster he had brought back. The background is a stormy sky, through which the sun has broken to illuminate the figure of a woman standing with outstretched arms, her hands grasping the hands of others on each side. The other figures are not shown—just the hands. Beneath is a strong chain of single links, emphasizing the feeling of uncountable thousands holding hands. Across the poster is the line "It All Depends on Me."

I have felt very humble ever since I saw that poster. This was no challenging "It's Your Job. It's up to You. This is Your War." This was a confession of personal faith, a recognition of personal responsibility, and it has made me think.

Am I facing the fact that this is my war? It is my way of life that is at stake. I would not want to live in a world that denied those simple virtues in which I believe, freedom of conscience and speech, the right to worship my God according to my own belief, the sanctity of the home, the freedom of the individual, the honor of the pledged word, the governing of action by right rather than might. This is my way of life. If it is to be retained, it all depends on me.

Am I working where I can be most useful in this, my war? Am I shirking the job that I should do because it is tedious, or because it will interfere with my accustomed routine? Am I serving in the place where I can be of most good? I must make the most out of my working strength and time, for—it all depends on me!

Am I mobilized for this, my war? Or am I clinging to nonessentials? Over and above my job, have I assumed my proper responsibility as a citizen in my own community? Have I streamlined my life, made wise use of my time, and conserved by health? Am I putting all my resources to work? Am I taking care to conserve that which I have, to give up that which can be used for war-effort and am I buying no more than is absolutely necessary, in order that my dollars may help fight the battle. Money and goods are needed. This is a total war—and it all depends on me!

Am I keeping a soldierly self-control? Am I seeing to it that the whispered rumor stops when it reaches me? That I do not pass on any divisive thought? Am I living my faith? Am I, who talk of the glory of democracy, holding out a friendly hand to my neighbor, keeping from my heart and mind all prejudice and hatred toward any one, regardless of class, creed, or color? Am I putting into daily practice the ideals to which I give lip allegiance? Only in this way can democracy endure—it all depends on me.

I cannot close this self-searching with a moral—but only with the prayer, in the words of the Psalmist, "Hold up my goings in thy paths, that my footsteps slip not." It all depends on me.—By Ruth Taylor.

Help Clear The Lines For War Calls

Such great quantities of critical materials are needed for ships and weapons with which to fight and win the war that we can no longer continue to expand telephone facilities as we have in the past.

As Long Distance calls continue to grow it becomes imperative to make more careful and efficient use of the present telephone facilities we have.

Won't you please...

★ Make fewer and briefer long distance calls.

★ Try to call in the less busy hours—noon to 2 p.m.—5 to 7 p.m.—after 10 p.m.

Thank you. We knew you'd be glad to cooperate in saving calls—so Uncle Sam can make 'em.

LOOK Lady

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

When the American Institute of Laundering says an article is washable it means that, under normal conditions in the average laundry, the article can be safely reconditioned. And, in laundry language, safely reconditioned means preserving the appearance of the article as well as removing soil.

For instance: If a housedress fades, or trimmings pull loose, or a hemline twists out of shape, or the pockets fade a lighter shade than the main part of the dress—the appearance of that dress definitely is ruined. It might be as clean as the proverbial whistle but its value to you is practically nil.

If this happened in the professional laundry, that dress would not be considered launderable because you wouldn't call it wearable when it was returned to you.

That's why the American Institute of Laundering says, "pure cotton and pure linen fabrics, whether in sheets, pillow cases, towels and other household linens or wearing apparel, are washable only when, under normal or average conditions prevailing in the professional laundry, they can be washed without fading, without shrinking beyond the 2 per cent provided by government and other reliable testing agencies, or when they can be washed without the material becoming sleazy."

MINE IS LAUNDRY-TESTED AND APPROVED

"Pretty is as pretty does" might be what Sorry Sue is thinking as she compares her own shrunken dress with the spic and span appearance of Happy Hannah's laundry-tested and approved-for-launderability dress.

In giving its laundry tested and approved seal, the American Institute of Laundering goes a step farther and includes threads tested and approved as non-fadeable and buttons as non-breakable.

And, if any of these things occur to your articles at the laundry, you may be sure they would happen in home laundering, too, for such faults lie in the construction of the article itself rather than in the laundering method.

Pointed Paragraphs

Moth Is Sneak Thief

For a big, husky man to let a frail little moth steal the overcoat right off his back seems pretty silly until we learn mama moth doesn't just walk up and snatch the coat. Instead, she sneaks quietly under coat lapels, deep into pockets, or up under the lining to concealed seams. Utterly unaware he's harboring a thief in the dark, the poor man hangs his coat in a far corner of the closet and, more than likely, forgets it until the chill of autumn jogs his memory. Too late, he then discovers mama moth's young have fed on his overcoat all summer. All of which could have been prevented by having the coat thoroughly cleaned and then stored in that attractive cedar chest the little woman has been hinting for ever since she discovered modern cedar chests are handsome pieces of functional furniture, styled and veneered to fit into any room in the house.

Trailerites Solid Citizens

Now that trailer coaches have settled down to war service, they're strictly substantial family affairs. More than 65 per cent of the families living in them have one or more children, which means increased attendance at local schools and Sunday schools.

'Only Congress Has Power'

"If the laboring man is to be required to join an organized group in order to work, because of some over-riding social policy, the compulsion must take the form of new legislation. . . . It can be brought into existence only by Congress; it cannot be created by executive or administrative fiat."—From an Inland Steel Company brief questioning the power of the War Labor Board to impose the closed shop on war industry.

War Intensifies Schooling

Presidents and faculty members are co-operating with the Board of Education of the Methodist Church to intensify the war-time programs of the 125 Methodist colleges and universities throughout the country. Dr. Harry Wright McPherson, secretary of the Board in Nashville, said their slogan, "Methodist Schools Excel," will have even greater meaning in providing education with a Christian basis.

"Only by accelerating the school curriculum," Dr. McPherson said, "can we hope to continue to fit our young people before entering the war effort with the necessary background of Christian education to prepare them for war and post-war world conditions."

Silk and Nylon Hosiery Out

Rayons will be used in 90% of women's full fashioned hose by August 1. The remaining 10% of women's full fashioned hose will be made of cotton, according to John Sherman, chief of the knit goods section of the WPB in addressing the American Federation of Hosiery Workers in Philadelphia.

Heroic Farm Boy Flier's Dream Is Almost Realized

Accident During Practice Deprives Army of an Outstanding Hero.

KUNMING, CHINA.—Here is a war story of an American farm boy. His name was Tom Jones.

He died in an accident near the American volunteer group air field and the United Nations lost an important bit of that courage which pushed the American frontier from the original colonies across a continent to Tom Jones' home state of Washington.

That courage saw Tom through a vital mission in which he helped destroy a Japanese invasion column and through a spectacular raid on Japanese-held Hanoi which he thought up and supervised.

Tom had three main ambitions—to shoot down a dozen Japanese planes in aerial combat; to return to America to his wife and their two-months-old baby whom he had never seen, and to study law at Harvard.

Full of Fight.

When I first met him at an AVG hostel in southwest China, he was still thin from malaria caught on a tiger hunt in Burma, but he was full of fight.

He married a few weeks before coming out to China a year ago. He said that when he got his dozen Japs he would return to his wife and baby, "and nothing will take me from America again."

He grew restless in the hospital, hearing how the AVG was winning fame while he lay helpless in bed. Weeks before he had recovered fully he wanted to fly.

In April Tom was allowed to do combat flying. In his first dog fight he shot down two Japanese.

"I was scared as hell, but I enjoyed that fight," he said.

In his next dog fight he got two more Japs.

In May he said he wanted to raid Hanoi. He knew this would be one of the most dangerous missions ever undertaken by the Flying Tigers, and that the odds were that he would never return from this flight 400 miles into enemy territory.

His friends tried to talk him out of it and his squadron leader told him outright the plan was crazy. But when Tom asked for volunteers for the mission, more than six of his friends offered to go.

Wipes Out Jap Column.

On May 8 Tom and his friends were ready. But shortly before they were ready to take off, General Chennault asked Tom to take a flight to the Salween river gorge and strafe a Japanese column which was attempting to cross the river and attack Kunming. Tom agreed.

In the most successful AVG strafing and bombing of ground troops, Tom and his friends swooped down on the Japanese column and practically wiped it out.

On May 12 Tom and his friends set out for Hanoi, despite weather that might have stopped anybody except the Flying Tigers. In their small P-40's, Tom and his men navigated 400 miles over enemy mountain territory, flying through thunderstorms.

At Hanoi, their bombs and bullets destroyed at least 15 grounded Japanese planes.

Tom said he was going home soon. He said he wanted to study law at Harvard and become a politician in the state of Washington.

"Just one more strafing, and then for home," he said.

But his plane crashed while he was practicing near the air field. He never got his 12 Japs, but he proved himself one of the best of those American boys whose courage has made possible the incredible victories of the AVG.

Wounded Bird Rescues

Hunter on Goose Chase

REYKJAVIK, ICELAND.—Second Lieut. Alexis M. Gagarine of Rockville, Md., is an inquisitive Russian-Frenchman who's a sadder but wiser man today.

Lieutenant Gagarine went exploring, spotted a wild goose and shot it. Then his troubles began. The wounded goose plunged into a swirling river and the officer plunged in after it. Man and bird were swept into a whirlpool, and, though the goose bit him and escaped, Lieutenant Gagarine claims it saved his life by pulling him from the raging current.

The officer tossed away his equipment and swam to a nearby island. The tide rose and Lieutenant Gagarine was stranded. He was rescued the following morning.

Squirrels Blamed for

Setting Church on Fire

REMSON, N. J.—An industrious family of squirrels was blamed by Fire Commissioner Robert Gilsey for a fire which destroyed the interior of the Goodwill Methodist church.

The squirrels were building a home between the walls in the rear of the church, Gilsey said, and had amassed a quantity of hay which caught fire, probably from spontaneous combustion.

FEESERSBURG.

Labor Day, and a gray sky. Clouds all over and a mist of rain coming down. Now that's hard on parades and outdoor picnics. Too bad for a holiday of freedom but we heard one man say he expected to spend it in their basement doing some woodwork for their home, so the weather won't interfere with him.

Before entering Seminary of Mt. Saint Mary's College at Emmitsburg last week David Shum, his mother Mrs. Francis C. Shum and Mrs. Emanuel Overholzer, of Taneytown, called on friends in our town, was an honor graduate of the College last April, when he received the Bishop Allen memorial prize for the highest scholastic average maintained throughout four years of the college course, and other medals. He helped with the musical activities in school and at home. Youth is radiant with earnestness and hope.

Sunday School and Christian Endeavor at Mt. Union on Sunday morning was fairly well attended—with Roger Sentz conducting. Another temperance lesson for S. S., and "Hobbies"—or how to spend our leisure time for C. E. were the subjects freely discussed; but did you know the President of the U. S. collects stamps and engravings of sailing ships.

On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Ganse, of Cleveland, Ohio, arrived at the home vacated by the La Forge family are getting settled in our town.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Bohn and children, of Union Bridge, visited their cousins the Roger Sentz family, at Mt. Union, on Friday evening, and all enjoyed a wienie roast and other good things out in the meadow.

A group of our folks drove to Brendle Manor, near Ellicott City on Saturday afternoon to hear "Happy Johnnie" and his gang; and watch the sports. Many people were present.

Joseph Garber, son of Mrs. Lela Repp Garber, in the employ of Clarence Buffington, at Mt. Union, has been indisposed lately with some stomach trouble; but there's been a change for the better only he must go carefully now.

Benjamin Fleagle, of Middleburg, continues at Maryland General Hospital, Baltimore, where his friends have recently been called to give transfusions of blood.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Haugh, of New Windsor, spent Sunday afternoon with the Birely's and indulged in the three leading subjects of conversation at present: Gas rationing—we can't go places, how will we heat our homes this winter, and our boys in military service—and there's plenty to say.

A card just received from Paul Spurrier, Camp Wallace, Texas, says we had a talk from the Chaplain—Rev. Hartman of the Lutheran Church. He is in basic training and have got a lot out of the training—and likes it. "Bless the Boys."

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Brooks, with two orphans—who are under their care, Jimmy and Mary Fields, and a girl friend, all from Baltimore, called to see the former's cousin, Miss Grace Sullivan at the home of J. H. Stuffle, on Saturday.

After working with his brother, Joseph Bostian's garage since early youth, Charles, youngest son of Horace and Lottie Bostian, left our town last Thursday for employment with the Glenn Martin Co., where his wife also works.

There were representatives from our town at the sale of Emory Bohn in Union Bridge, on Saturday afternoon of household goods and barber supplies, and things brought good prices. Do not know whether any of our women will open a tonsorial parlor here, or not.

The house wives are not done with peaches yet if they can get them; but all at once the gardens seem to have played out, and not producing what was considered the late growth of vegetables; but we are grateful for what we could gather and enjoy.

We had an impromptu camp meeting at Grove Dale on Thursday evening of last week where Mrs. Katie O'Connor spent the evening, and when her friends, Mr. and Mrs. Orion Hess called for her we all indulged in the open air singing of well known revival hymns, many of them, Mrs. Hess (nee Mary Six) is a good leader, and no one remembers the words and tunes better than Katie Delphely O'Connor, well, we enjoyed it and so did the neighbors.

If inclined to wakefulness at night try repeating mentally the words of some familiar hymns "Rock of Ages," "Just As I Am," "The Ninety and Nine"—and see how far you get before sleep over takes you. It strengthens the memory and takes ones wandering thoughts off the work and worries of everyday life.

Our sportsmen have been giving attention to fishing and looking forward to hunting in the near future and we hope the partridges, squirrels and rabbits will be on their guard. The men and boys seem to enjoy tramping thro the fields and woods, so let them go ahead and have a good time, but there's enough loss of life just now without destroying the little creatures.

Tuesday morning—there goes the school bus on its first trip for another season—to encounter heat and cold, rain and mud, snow and blizzards—but like the circus—"the show must go on." Good luck to all.

LITTLESTOWN.

The schools opened on Tuesday which means that the High School must give up that job of keeping children which is going to face a shortage in various factories. The heads of the factories have appealed to the Service Clubs for assistance in solving the problem. A meeting was held in the social room of the Redeemer Reformed church with Wilbur A. Bankert in charge, to find out how many women must give up their jobs. Plans were discussed as to what could be done; it looks like nothing could be done, as all women who can work or take care of children are working in factories. Help is hard to get and if you can get anyone they are factory wages which you cannot blame them for, as some children are harder to handle and more worry than working in a factory.

Mrs. James Herring, N. Queen St., and Miss Dorothy Deardorff, Bigler, have returned home after spending a week in Jacksonville, Fla., with their brother, Cadet Earl Deardorff. He is confined to the Naval Hospital. He is recovering from serious injuries received in an airplane crash.

FAIR CANCELLED

Managers at Frederick Make Final Decision.

The Board of Managers of the Frederick County Agricultural Society Tuesday night made a final decision to cancel the annual Frederick Fair scheduled to be held October 6, 7, 8 and 9.

The decision came after the managers succeeded in obtaining releases from commitments to exhibitors and concessionaires.

It is the first time that the Fair has been postponed since 1918 when the prevalence of influenza caused cancellation of all crowd gathering activities.

Members of the Board virtually decided at a meeting last Friday night to abandon plans for the Fair. This year in view of experiences of other fair associations in this section. The results at Taneytown and a Timonium were said to have led most members of the Board to conclude that postponement would be advisable.

DU PONT

"One Hundred and Forty Years" by Wm. S. Dutton

The story of Du Pont's one hundred and forty years is not, as one would be apt to think, a record of cold business facts and figures. Rather it is a story brimful of human interest, of grim tragedy, near despair, but always there was that dogged determination to fight on—never say die—such a spirit must succeed.

Then too as one reads the story you soon sense the intensely human relationship between employer and employee—not a relationship as would exist between master and servant—in the DuPont organization every man is a master, an individual and potential asset, who is encouraged and given every aid and opportunity to bring out the best that is in him.

This story leads you thru a chemical wonderland from blasting powder to ladies synthetic sheer hose.

A good story, would make a wonderful motion picture, attention Hollywood!

LOANS NOW AVAILABLE

Milton J. Ryan, Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor, Farm Security Administration, 410 York Road, Towson, Md., today announced that he is now considering applications for loans from farmers in Baltimore, Howard, Harford and Carroll counties who are unable to secure satisfactory credit from local sources.

Farm Security loans are based upon farm and home plans prepared with the borrower and take into consideration all expenses and income involved in the farm operation for the succeeding year. These loans are designed to permit farmers in this territory, who are in need of supervised farm financing, to participate to the utmost in their contribution to the war effort through the medium of increased food production.

Loans to eligible farm families may include funds for the purchase of seed, feed, fertilizer, work stock, dairy stock, and poultry in addition to necessary machinery to carry out the farm plan submitted to Mr. Ryan by the borrower. These loans are repaid in periods ranging from one to five years and bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum.

Eligible applicants, in this territory, who are in need of Farm Security Administration's financial and supervisory assistance are urged by Mr. Ryan to make their applications as early as possible in order that they may receive definite action in time to secure the necessary funds to purchase seed and fertilizer for this fall's small grain. In view of the limited use of automobiles Mr. Ryan further advises both applicants and clients of the Farm Security Administration to travel with others, whenever possible, when visits are necessary made by the farmer to his office.

In order to assure rapid consideration, applicants for Farm Security loans are advised by Mr. Ryan to bring with them all detailed information pertaining to their proposed farm operations at the time application is made. For example, Mr. Ryan states that several weeks can be saved in processing a loan if the applicant will supply him with information concerning the size of his farm, number of tillable acres, number of cows owned, and a complete list of machinery on hand at the time the application is made. In order to explain in detail the entire procedure concerning Rural Rehabilitation loans Mr. Ryan has arranged to interview applicants in the County Agents office in Westminster, Md. the second Tuesday of each month, beginning October 13th.

BESIDES THE WEEPING WILLOW TREE

And when I die, just bury me
Besides the weeping willow tree.
The willow tree will weep no doubt
While others smile or laugh or shout;
The willow tree will friendly be
And let the rain drops drip on me
Long after rain-storms has passed by
And rainbow spans the clear blue sky;
The willow tree with head bowed low
Will let the seasons come and go
While still it keeps guard o'er the spot
Where I shall lie, like it or not,
From planting till the final day
When I shall be wafted away
To meet my doom on Judgment Day.
There let me rest from toil and pain
Where I may hear the sweet refrain
Of breezes as they onward blow
While passing thru weeping willow.

THE INCOME TAX

The Senate Finance Committee is still struggling with the various propositions for raising money through the income tax. Secretary Morgenthau's proposal to levy a ten percent tax on spending, in addition to all other levies, was thrown out without a friend to defend in the committee.

A late proposition asks for a five percent gross income tax applied at the source on all persons making more than $12 a week was laid before Democratic members of the Senate Finance committee by Chairman George (D-Ga.).

The George proposal, calculated to raise $2,500,000,000 annually, would be superimposed on present taxes and those proposed in the pending House revenue bill. Under his proposition, persons with annual income of more than $624 would pay 5 percent tax on all of their gross earnings above that amount. This would be in addition to proposed income tax rates of 19 percent in the lowest taxable brackets of the House bill, which gives single persons an exemption of $500 and married earners $1,200 with other deductions for dependents.

Senator Connolly (D-Tex.), who left while the meeting still was in progress, said there appeared to be a general favorable reception of the George plan by the Democrats who took part in the conference. No Republican members were present.

THE WEEK OF WAR REPORTS.

Departments' and Boards' Activities.

President Roosevelt asked Congress to enact by Oct. 1 legislation under which he would be "specifically authorized to stabilize the cost of living, including the price of all farm commodities." In a special message to the legislators, the President said "Inaction on your part by that date will leave me an inescapable responsibility to the people of this country to see to it that the war effort is no longer imperiled by threat of economic chaos. In the event that the Congress should fail to act, and act adequately, I shall accept the responsibility, and I will act."

Mr. Roosevelt said the purpose of the legislation "should be to hold farm prices at parity, or at levels of a recent date, whichever is higher." He said "At the same time that farm prices are stabilized, wages can and will be stabilized also. This I will do."

The President recalled that two points of his original 7-point anti-inflation program required legislation—"an adequate tax program, and a law permitting the fixing of price ceilings on farm products at parity prices." He said delay in enacting this legislation "has now reached the point of danger to our whole economy. We cannot hold the actual cost of food and clothing down to approximately the present level beyond Oct. 1. But no one can give any assurance that the cost of living can be held down after that date." He renewed his request of last April for an individual net income limitation of $25,000.

After 10 straight raids without a loss, two U. S. Flying Fortress bombers were reported as missing Sept. 7 following the greatest American aerial attack of the war on Nazi-occupied France. Three squadrons of the big bombers attacked the airframe factory at Meaulte, near Albert, for the second time, while a fourth squadron bombed the St. Omer airfield. In the raids the Fortresses destroyed five enemy fighters and probably destroyed 25 more, and damaged another 25. The bombers were escorted by 400 Allied fighters, three of which were shot down.

Gen. MacArthur's Australian headquarters reported Sept. 7 that heavy Allied bombing planes attacked a Japanese cargo ship southeast of New Guinea which was believed to have been attempting to supply the trapped enemy forces in the Milne Bay area. Australians were mopping up the remnants of Japanese forces in this area. U. S. Army Air Forces in China, continuing their offensive, scored a direct hit on Japanese military headquarters in Nanchang, sank at least seven steamers, blasted a railway station and a warehouse and strafed a troop train.

Two Navy vessels, the destroyer Blue and auxiliary transport Colhoun, have been lost in action in the south Pacific in the past two weeks, the Navy announced. There were few casualties. The Navy also announced the sinking of nine more United Nations merchant vessels by enemy submarines in the Atlantic.

Assistant Secretary of War McCloy said that between February 1 and August 30, U. S. Army planes destroyed 234 Japanese planes in the air, compared with American losses of 109. This record, together with the "Flying Tigers" record of 218 Japanese planes destroyed as against losses of 84, is due mainly to the performance of the P-40 fighters, he said. The Army said it has developed a system of technical inspection and maintenance supervision of aircraft that is undoubtedly the finest in the world. The War Department sent 36,000 dependents' allowance checks totaling $4,500,000 to relatives and dependents of enlisted men in the four lower grades of the service. Selective Service Headquarters instructed State SS boards to place their calls so that most men right now will come from local boards with the most single men or men with dependents other than wives and children.

Navy Secretary Knox said the submarine menace "is not by any means solved," but there has been a "steady diminution of ship sink off our own shores." A shipbuilding compilation for Labor Day showed 174 launchings and 49 keel layings during the day for many kinds and sizes of the day and cargo ships. The Maritime Commission reported 68 new vessels were put into service in August and there is "every indication" the goal of three completed ships a day will be reached in September.

The War Production Board released 50,000 of the refrigerators which have been frozen in the hands of dealers and distributors since February 14 for sale to the general public after finding that they were not needed for "essential" purposes. Another 50,000 will be released by authorization of WPB to dealers and transfer to ultimate consumers. The WPB Food Requirements Committee recommended to the Board the following meat conservation program: (1) limitation of the amounts of meat packers may sell to the civilian trade so that each civilian will be able to buy 2½ lbs. a week; (2) direct consumer rationing to be started as soon as possible—in about four months; (3) an interim voluntary conservation program.

The Treasury Department announced sales of War Bonds in August totaled $697,255,000 compared with a quota of $815,000,000. In August 19,000,000 persons bought $225,000,000 in Bonds through the 10 percent payroll savings plan, compared with 18,000,000 persons and $200,000,000 in July. Treasury Secretary Morgenthau announced State War Bond quotas for September, totaling $775,000,000 for the country.

The Treasury Department recommended to Congress a reduction in individual income tax exemptions to $500 for single persons, $1,000 for married couples and $250 for each dependent. The Treasury also proposed a 10 percent tax on consumer spending and high penalty rates for luxury spending. At the request of Congress, the Treasury outlined a sales tax levied against the retailer who would pass it on to the consumer. War expenditures in August were $4,900 million, more than three times greater than the amount spent for national defense a year ago. Income payments to individuals in July were 21 percent more than July 1941 and were at the record annual rate of $114 billion a year, the Commerce Department said.

York Inter-State Fair has never before offered so many new features as are included in its Victory Fair program. One of the most outstanding attractions will be an exhibit of the new war weapons with which American forces are right now carrying the battle to the enemy. The fair's entertainment program includes a mammoth midway, daily harness and running races, stellar stage specialties, and a nightly presentation of Frank Wirth's brand-new spectacular revue "Let's Go, America."

KEEP RECORD OF GAS

Defense workers should keep a careful record of gasoline used in connection with their work. They may deduct its cost when computing their Federal income tax. Judge Robert Francis, Executive Director of the Maryland Council of Defense, revealed recently.

The ruling as issued by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, however, does not permit any deduction for depreciation of a vehicle. Judge Francis pointed out that although the ruling specifically refers to those in the United States Citizens' Defense Corps, it is also applicable to members of the Aircraft Warning Service, the Civil Air Patrol and others, "actually appointed by or acting under supervision of a Federal State of local government agency."

Records must be kept to prove the amount of gas used and the fact that it was used for civilian defense work.

Save 10%... to Save 100%

All over the nation, patriotic Americans are spending less and saving more—putting at least 10% of their incomes into War Bonds and Stamps. So our boys can have the planes and tanks and guns they need to fight and attack and WIN for us!

So the Nazis and Japs will wish they hadn't tried to enslave America, too—and won't ever try it again!

And it's going to take 10% in War Bonds to do it!

So, if you've been postponing buckling down, remember, it's "Everybody 10%" or "Nobody (except our Axis masters) having a cent."

Insects Create Fire Hazards
 Insect outbreaks in forests are sometimes of more importance because of the fire menace they create than because of the value of the timber killed, says the U. S. department of agriculture. When destructive outbreaks of insects develop in forest types composed chiefly of one species of tree, a high percentage of the stand may be destroyed. These standing dead trees go down in the course of a few years making an almost impenetrable tangle of logs and tops. Under proper conditions, says the forest service, a flash of lightning may set off the mass, resulting in a widespread conflagration almost impossible to fight. Past experience has shown that epidemics of the mountain pine beetle in lodgepole often have been followed by destructive fires.

Tree Forecasts Monsoon
 In lower Burma, the natives place great faith in the "forecaster" tree—the Padauk, which blossoms three times in as many weeks. With the first sudden golden yellow blossoms, the natives begin to "think" of finding palm leaves to re-inforce the roofs of their huts against the coming torrents. With the second blossoming, they make certain there is an available supply. But with the third flowering, there is a frenzied rush of every native to his roof with his arms full of palm leaves. Strangely, and almost invariably, within two days after the third warning blossoming, thunderstorms, hailstones, and a great rush of rain whips inland from the sea. Rivers rise within a few hours and much of lower Burma becomes a steaming swampland.

Wooden 'Sawbucks'
 Wooden scrip money has been used in different sections of the United States from time to time for short emergency periods. For example, the chamber of commerce at Tenino, Wash., in 1932 issued wooden scrip in denominations of $10, $5, $1, 50 and 25 cents. The business people of the town agreed to accept the scrip at face value. This money was issued in order to thaw out frozen assets held in insolvent banks. The United States government has never issued wooden money.

Against Women

By
RICHARD H. WILKINSON
 Released by Western Newspaper Union.

DOWN at the Alton Club the other day we were talking about pacts. The conversation and opinions were becoming rather tiresome when Emerson Libby interrupted Rus Flint as Rus paused for breath.

"That reminds me," Emerson said, "of a pact I entered into with two others, once when I was young. This pact was a strange sort of thing. It was a pact against women."

Emerson chuckled at the memory and settled more comfortably in his chair.

This pact (Emerson went on) was drawn up in a barn on my father's farm. I was sixteen then. Ray Sawyer was a year older and Duncan Talbot somewhere in between. Ray had had an affair of the heart—one of those childish, puppy-love things—and his failure to win the girl had an ill effect. He took defeat hard, as a youth of 17 is apt to do, and Duncan and I worried a good deal about what might happen to him.

However, six months later the girl—Christine Benson her name was—moved away with her folks and Ray began returning to normal. Complete recovery came rapidly and with it came a determination on Ray's part to protect himself against the possibility of a similar experience in the future, and to protect his closest friends, too.

It was Ray who called the meeting in the barn. There were three of us present: Ray, Duncan and I. And because Ray was the oldest and had suffered by experience, he did the talking. And because Duncan and I possessed the gullibility of youth and a fondness for Ray, we listened open-mouthed and believing, while he expounded for a half hour on the pitfalls and dangers of women. By the time he had finished we were convinced that no worse fate could befall us than to be ensnared by some gorgeous vampire.

Ray proposed an agreement, or pact, to be drawn up and signed by the three of us, denouncing all unmarried females and promising never to let one of them share the feeling of comradeship which we agreed should be kept for each other. The remaining terms of the agreement were pretty harsh. We were never to marry. No woman was to be trusted. Our association with them was to be platonic, aloof, contemptuous.

Duncan and I were only too willing to sign. We had witnessed the grave effects of Ray's affair with Christine Benson, and this looked like a good opportunity to safeguard our futures.

Hence we signed, and felt pretty important about it, too, because Ray wrote out an impressive-sounding document and struck a lawyer seal on the bottom near our signatures. He also recited a sort of oath which we all repeated together and then shook hands, making the pact binding.

Thereafter the three of us felt comparatively safe. We met, of course, and associated with the girls with whom we were already acquainted, but our attitude toward them was different. We made no effort whatever to attract their attention or win their admiration. We remained aloof and haughty. And because our pact was secret, we experienced a certain satisfaction and importance through its existence, often meeting in the old barn and congratulating each other on our success.

Things went on like this for a year or two, all three of us adhering to the terms of the pact, chiefly because there weren't any girls in the town in whom we would have been interested anyhow.

Then one day the Hustons moved to town. The Hustons had a daughter, Eileen. Eileen was 17 years old at the time. She had ash blonde hair and blue eyes. Her features were perfectly molded and her skin the most delicate texture imaginable. She was wholly unassuming, lovable in every respect. Folks liked Eileen Huston for no better reason than because she was Eileen Huston.

I tell you it was hard. During the next two years Ray and Duncan and I held meetings in the old barn about every other day. Their purpose was to read carefully the terms of our pact and to bolster up each other's courage—and to pass judgment.

It was necessary to pass judgment quite frequently, for one or another of us would occasionally be seen walking home with Eileen Huston, or sitting in the hammock on her porch, or meeting her at the post office. During these judgment-passing interludes it was sometimes difficult for the guilty party to convince the other two pact members that his interests were nothing more than platonic.

Duncan Talbot and I, secretly (this was revealed later) didn't blame Ray when he announced one day, while under an emotional strain, that he didn't care two hoots about anything—he was going to take Eileen Huston to a dance.

Duncan and I shook our heads sadly, but waited until after the dance to pass judgment.

The meeting was held the morning following the dance. Duncan read the pact aloud, and his voice sounded very impressive in the silence of the barn's carriage room. After he finished and had restored the document to its secret hiding place, we turned toward Ray with condemnation and accusation in our faces.

We reminded him that it was he who had suggested the pact. We warned him against what might happen if he allowed his association with Eileen to become anything more than platonic. He had been blinded by a pretty face once before, we told him; and if he succumbed he could expect no pity from us.

Ray listened with bowed head. And when we had finished he looked at us and we knew he could see the light. He stood up and shook our hands and thanked us for warning him in time. He would, he promised, adhere strictly to the terms of our agreement. It was the best way. The only way. Thank heaven we had all had the foresight to draw up such a pact. It was at such times as these that it served a useful purpose. We had saved him from a cruel fate. He was grateful. From this time forth he would regard Eileen Huston as he regarded all other unmarried females.

Emerson paused, chuckling to himself over the memory. "That," he said, "was a pact that was a pact."

"It served its purpose then?" someone asked. "It proved a successful venture?"

"That depends," said Emerson, "on how you look at it."

"I suppose," said the questioner, "it does. But tell us, who finally married Eileen Huston? It doesn't seem likely that a girl as beautiful and good as she would continue long unmarried."

Emerson shifted in his seat. "As a matter of fact," he said, "she didn't. The next week Duncan Talbot proposed to her." He grinned boyishly, "but she married me. Ray was best man at our wedding and Duncan head usher."

Noted Artists 'Pull'

Many 'Boners' in Art

Errors or rather "boners" have occasionally crept into the works of the most famous designers and engravers throughout history. Whether it is due to ignorance or careless impatience, it is true that many of the greatest writers and painters of history have been guilty of the most surprising mistakes. Thus, Shakespeare introduces cannon into his play "Hamlet," and in "Julius Caesar," he refers to the striking of the clock, though such timepieces were not invented until 1,400 years after Caesar's death. Schiller, in his "Piccolomini" refers to lightning conductors—at least 150 years before they were invented. Instances of these boners might be added almost indefinitely.

A famous painting shows Nero fiddling while Rome burned, hundreds of years before the violin was invented. Another well-known canvas portrays George Washington crossing the ice-jammed Delaware on Christmas to attack the British with Old Glory fluttering from the bow of the boat. But this was six months before the Stars and Stripes were adopted.

Tintoretto, the Italian artist, in a picture of the Children of Israel gathering manna, has taken the precaution to arm them with the modern invention of guns.

In a picture by Verrio of Christ healing the sick, the onlookers are represented with periwigs on their heads. To match, or rather to exceed this ludicrous representation, Durer has painted the expulsion of Adam and Eve from the Garden of Eden by an angel in a dress fashionably trimmed with flourishes. Another artist, a Flemish picture of Abraham offering up his son in sacrifice, instead of the patriarch's "stretching forth his hand and taking the knife," as the Scriptures inform us, he is represented as using a more effective and modern instrument. He is pointing a blunderbuss at Isaac's head. The painter Berlin depicts in a mural the Virgin and Child listening to a very modern-looking violin and in another work he has drawn King David playing the harp at the spiritual marriage of Christ and St. Catherine. King David lived 1,000 years before Christ.

CARROLL CO. 4-H CLUB MEETS

Carroll County 4-H Club girls claimed a large share of the premiums paid at the State Fair at Timonium for 4-H Club competitive exhibits, according to the report of Miss Adeline M. Hoffman, Carroll county Home Demonstration Agent. The grand total of their winnings was $120.50, with Maude Myers, of the Taneytown Club, as the high winner. This amount represents almost half of the total premium money paid by the State Fair Board for 4-H Club exhibits. Maude, who is just 13 years old, entered a Victory Garden exhibit besides all exhibits in the regular 4-H classes, and her exhibit placed sixth, which carried a premium of $10.00.

Over half of the 4-H clothing exhibits at the Fair came from Carroll county and all of the 4-H exhibits in the flower section, including arrangements, annuals, and perennials came from Carroll county, and all the 4-H exhibits in the home furnishing sections came from Carroll county. The clothing exhibits from Carroll county included play clothes, 4-H uniforms, cotton school dresses, sport dresses, best dresses, and party dresses, and of the total number of garments exhibited 14 were blue ribbon and eight were given red ribbons. Other sections in which the Carroll county girls exhibited were: canned fruits and vegetables and meats, jelly, preserves, pickles and cakes.

The State Fair provides the girls with one more opportunity to exhibit to the public, the high standards of workmanship they achieve thru 4-H Club project work, and is also an opportunity for Carroll county girls to match their standards against those of 4-H Club girls from all over the State. For the past three or four years, Carroll county girls 4-H Club exhibits have won much praise and admiration from State Fair officials.

Those who exhibited this year are: Thelma Six, Martha Messier, Maude Myers, Shirley Welk, Mary Frances Six, Mary Angela Arnold, Janet Royer, Betty Lou Royer and Alice Hitchcock of the Taneytown 4-H Clubs; Betty Green, Jeanne Engel, Winifred Roop and Edna Crammer, of the Sams Creek 4-H Club; Mary Hull and Elizabeth Roop, of the Union Bridge 4-H Club; Thelma Young, Anna Englar, Dorothy Hoff and Nellie Getty, of the New Windsor 4-H Club; Elizabeth Miller and Eloise Miller, of the Westminster 4-H Club, and Catherine Myers and Belva Koons, leaders of the Baust and Taneytown 4-H Clubs.

DECREASE IN DRIVING

The war has changed "for the duration" leisure habits and use of the automobile throughout the nation, according to a survey by the Automobile Club of Maryland.

"Automobile travel along the nation's highways has declined tremendously both within and outside the gasoline rationed area," said Percy M. Burke, Manager of the Westminster Branch of the Club, in a report released Wednesday. "While speeds have decreased from 2 to 8 miles per hour. Local travel has dropped to a lesser degree, while the number of passengers carried has increased from less than one per car in the urban areas, to larger numbers for more distant travel."

Gas rationing can be blamed for some of the decrease but much of it is voluntary reduction by motorists outside the rationed area. This report, based on routings handled by AAA motor clubs, and counts of toll bridges traffic, national park visitation, official highway clocking, motor court business, and other travel indicators, showed that during the month of June recreational highway travel was down more than 50 percent for the nation as a whole, and general highway traffic was down more than 30 percent. In the national area recreational travel during June decreased more than 70 percent, in the unrationed area approximately 50 percent.

The Potomac river toll bridge in Southern Maryland showed 20 percent reduction in the number of passenger cars while the Susquehanna River bridge decrease reached almost 40 percent, the same figure that was reached by the Annapolis-Matapeake ferry.

"Despite tire shortages, fewer than 2 percent of Maryland's private automobiles have been put in dead storage, the survey revealed. Motor motorists, however, are driving less and conserving their cars."
