THINGS WE DON'T UNDERSTAND—AND OUR HOPES

Wendell L. Willkie, Joseph Stalin and John Q. Public are clamoring for a second front. Winston Churchill is trying to satisfy his people with the promise that the second front will be opened just as soon as the right time to open this front arrives.

We do not hear much from our leaders as to the opening of a second front although some that appear to be in a position to know, says that the second front has been opened. What is the correct answer? Has the second front been opened? If not, why not? If a second front is to be opened when and where will it open?

Our boys are in Alaska, Ireland, England, Africa, Australia and other places. Will the second front be opened in France, Norway, Turkey, or Russia? Do we have enough material and manpower to open a formidable second front in addition to the present occupation of our many war fronts?

This second front question supercedes all other of our mental problems. We try to find a solution to our gas, oil and rubber shortage. We try to find a remedy for the scarcity of sugar and meat.

These things, we, the people, may be unable to solve but we still have the hope that the people we elect to administer our governmental affairs, have their fingers on the pulse of the world and will eventually, and we hope speedily, help bring the patient, the sick world, to "health" as a free, happy and prosperous people.

SCRAP FROM THE HOME

As American newspapers enter the drive to obtain more scrap metal for the Nation's unprecedented steel production, citizens can expect to be made increasingly aware of their duty to clear attics, cellars, garages, and yards of obsolescent waste metal. As the drive progresses, it may be expected that more attention will be given to the factor of convenience in collecting. Army trucks are to be made available in some sections. In New York, Boston, and some other large cities, door-to-door collection by volunteer workers is projected. The newspapers will have ample reports of all this.

The importance of the scrap drive is not to be minimized. The best grade of steel requires a high percentage of scrap metal in its composition. Last year 30,000,000 tons, out of the total of 54,000,000 tons, of scrap thus used was from junked or outmoded consumer's goods that had passed through the homes.

The homes are by far the greatest of the three main sources of scrap, the others being industry and farms, auto wreckers and demolition jobs—the latter three combined supplying what is generally called dealer scrap. Since home scrap is concentrated in the densest population areas, it is easiest to collect and transport.

The American Iron and Steel Institute estimates that if only 1 per cent of the gross iron and steel, including material no longer used, were to be turned in, the scrap problem would be solved. Knowing this, few citizens will neglect getting in their share.—Christian Science Monitor.

FARM HELP

We expect to hear some interesting stories from the plan of sending boys and girls from high school and students from colleges and seminaries out to help farmers harvest corn, pick apples, and do other pressing work for which the ordinary help is lacking.

Just last week we read that Dr. Wentz and other members of the faculty of the Gettysburg Seminary will go out into the orchards. We noted too that some students, we do not recall where, who began late in the afternoon, insisted on quitting at the regular hours. They evidently were very loyal to labor regulations.

Having been brought up on a farm, we were accustomed at this time of the year to begin in the fields about sun-rise and to work until sun-down, or even as long as we could see to work. Eight-hour days had no place in the program, and we predict that if this war continues long there will be plenty of that kind of experience again.

Well, boys, go to it. From the time the writer was eleven years old there was no school for him in the fall until the corn was in the crib, and sometimes that was late, but we believe we picked up as much education as the present day student with a nine months term.

It would do us good to see some of our friends from the faculties in overalls. Go to it, boys, and when you feel tired, "go on," "go on," "go on." That is the order of the day for the farmer. L. B. H.

ARE WE AWAKE?

We are at war but for some unaccountable reason, do not seem to realize the seriousness of the situation, or that we might lose.

We are in danger of being invaded both on the Atlantic and the Pacific sides. We have tolerated German U-boats in our water (on side of the Atlantic) for a long time, and these U-boats have sunk about 500 of our merchant vessels, and those holding our destiny in their keeping seem unable to check the menace. Why? Who is to blame? How long will this condition be allowed to continue?

We are now training a large army of young men for over-sea service. These boys are the cream of American manhood. Are we going to send them out on the Atlantic and Pacific, to be drowned like rats? God forbid! Our leadership needs changing if we have not yet found ways and means for checking this menace. I have friends in the service and about ready to go. I don't want to see such boys sacrificed on the altar of stupidity.

They want to get across. They want to fight. Why not give them a chance by first sweeping the seas clean of these German submarines! They have sunk 500 of our vessels. We have sunk not more than five of these submarines. Why? Why not more of them? Is it because our leaders are helping everybody else everywhere in the world while they let us suffer because of lack of protection.

Would any of our Allies, if circumstances were reversed, neglect their own to help us?

We want to see all the help possible extended to all our friends, but we want our leaders to know that we want them to see to it that our own boys are amply protected.

PROHIBITION GAINS

All over the country there are signs that prohibition is on its way back.

In Kentucky, Lee County, which voted wet six years ago, voted dry in May. This makes half the counties of the state dry, comprising 30 per cent of the state's population and 56 per cent of its area.

Elections are planned in 27 more counties. C. M. C. Porter, a member of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, told the beer and liquor retailers in Franklin county in a scolding lecture that they were to blame for the success of the dries. Citing the progress of the dries, Mr. Porter said:

"The dries did not win these elections, they were won by liberal, fair-minded citizens who were outraged by the disgraceful nuisances operated by some beer and liquor dealers." Cardinal Dennis Dougherty, archbishop, of Philadelphia, warned today that "alcohol causes national degeneracy" and against "the evil of drink."

In a letter to the Rev. John W. Keogh, president of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, Cardinal Dougherty said: "The evil of drink is spreading and warfare against it should be waged relentlessly. It is hoped that all priests will take up arms against the evil of drink; that life pledges against drink will be given to youth, particularly in our schools, academies, colleges and seminaries."

A MODERN PAUL BUNYAN

Henry J. Kaiser may not be a wonder man, but he is the nearest thing to a Paul Bunyan we have in America today. He is a man who succeeds in doing the impossible. Give him a job to do and it is done regardless of the obstacles to be overcome. He has been setting a record in ship building in his yards at Portland, Oregon. Now he is preparing to put into effect his plan for providing the government with monster air freighters to fly over the seas and so to escape the threat of the lurking and deadly submarine. Like Paul Bunyan of old, there is no such word as "can't" in his vocabulary. There's a job to do, and he is doing it. He is the kind of a man America needs.

How different is his attitude from that of some of the bureaucrats of the government who sit around trying to hold back production. A bureaucrat can always find a good reason for not getting things done. Red tape is his religion. The "proper channels" of his devising become the endless labyrinth from which little emerges.

The Baruch rubber report is an indictment of the general muddling that has done so much to hinder war efforts. Muddling and delay and red tape must be overcome if America is to win the war. Men like Kaiser, if given the chance, can overcome them.—The Union News, Towson.

AGAINST LEWIS

Agricultural publications, dairy-minded and otherwise, have been bitter in their condemnations of Mr. Lewis's attempt to organize dairy farmers. Recently, the publication of the Pennsylvania Threshermen and Farmers' Protective Association has followed the example of other leading farm magazines. In its bi-monthly magazine, the "Right of Way," the association claims that Lewis "having upset a huge bowl of financial*gravy when he broke with the CIO, is now seeking to replenish his depleted income at the expense of the milk producers of Pennsylvania and adjoining States." It is a plot to "make himself the world's supreme dictator of foods."

"There is no question about it," the magazine said. "John L. Lewis is a champion milker. He milked the mine workers to build his own personal fortune and gigantic income. He milked them to elect favorites to office. He milked them to organize the CIO, and now he is preparing to milk the miners in order to put himself in position to milk the milkmen."

"Does Mr. Lewis suppose that milk can be produced on a five-day, 40-hour week basis?" it continued. "Can he persuade, or intimidate cows to stop producing milk on Saturdays and Sunday, in order that union hour rules can be upheld?"

"We do not believe the movement will succeed. We have abiding faith in the sound common sense of the Pennsylvania farmers, once they understand the principles of any controversy in which they may become involved. Certainly they would be signing away their liberties and large portions of their income to John L. Lewis if they listen to the blather-skite promises of this labor boss."—Maryland Farm Bureau News Letter.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

At Midway, in the Coral Sea and from General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia, the Navy patrol bombers are searching out enemy bases, ships and transports and "completing their mission." The Navy Patrol Bomber costs about $750,000.

Our factories are turning out hundreds of these bombing ships. Yet it is only through your investment in War Bonds and Stamps you can do your share to help provide patrol bombers for our rapidly increasing air force. Invest at least ten percent of your income every payday in these Government securities and do your bit to win and shorten the war. Our airmen are depending on your help.

Revenge Now Sole Aim of Hawaiians

Now Best Guarded Outpost of United States.

HONOLULU.—If you remember Hawaii as the carefree land of ukuleles, surf boards, flowered leis, you had better hang on to that precious memory, brother—because Hawaii has become the most war-girded, gun-bristling defense outpost of the United States.

And if you think "Remember Pearl Harbor" is a battle cry on the mainland, you should see and feel the grim revenge-spirit that saturates these once-glamorous Pacific playlands.

Scars of the Japanese back-stab of December 7 have not since been eradicated from the fertile green islands. Pearl Harbor is a bustling port which leaves you slightly awed when you see it for the first time, and watch huge cranes swing in the tropical sunlight to the time of whistles and shouts of working men.

You realize: "Here Is War!" And it is unlike any war preparedness you saw in the States.

Pearl Harbor today is a mightier base than it has ever been. It is the wounds in the hearts of the people that have not healed. Revenge is the only antidote.

That is why this Paradise of the Pacific, once a tourist Eden, has become the most war-conscious of any United States soil.

Through the processes of actual war—the sting of enemy bombs, the sight of enemy aircraft, the loss of gallant American lives—Honolulu has become a sinewy fighting machine. It is lean and hard and tough.

Escaped Mental Subject

Wins Fortune on Races

VICHY.—The story reached here of the inmate of a mental institution who escaped and while at liberty picked up 300,000 francs playing the horses at Longchamps track.

He was found after curfew one night, winnings in pocket. Before being returned to the asylum he gave the police a tip on the races.

The tip proved a winner. But the policeman had failed to play it.

SEE THE CORN YOU BUY

With hybrid corn, the important thing is NOT where the seed was grown, but how it performs where you plant it. The best way to compare varieties and decide which ones suit you the best is to see them growing side by side in a soil and climate similar to yours. That's why DeKalb has more than 3300 proving grounds or demonstration fields, scattered throughout the corn-growing areas.

Another reason why you should visit your DeKalb proving ground is to keep acquainted with the newest varieties that DeKalb is continually perfecting.

Be sure to visit the DeKalb proving ground in your neighborhood. Your DeKalb dealer will be glad to show you the varieties that you are interested in and what they will do for you on YOUR FARM.

Bomb 'em with JUNK

Let's blast Japan—and Germany—and Italy—with the chain lightning of destruction that can be built from the scrap in our cellars, attics and garages, on our farms and in our places of business.

Scrap iron and steel, other metals, rubber and waste materials. It will all be used to make tanks, ships, planes and the fighting weapons our boys must have. It is needed at once.

Sell it to a Junk dealer—give it to a charity or collection agency—take it yourself to the nearest collection point—or consult the Local Salvage Committee... If you live on a farm, and have found no means of disposing of your Junk, get in touch with the County War Board or your farm implement dealer.

Throw YOUR scrap into the fight!

CHICAGO, ILL. — The Western Electric Company has put goldfish to work in its big telephone manufacturing plant in Chicago.

The company, long an advocate of "the right man for the right job" philosophy, believes that it has in Sadie Reuben and Oscar three employees eminently suited to their assignment. The three members of the carassius auratus family work in the department concerned with the production of telephone switchboard lamp s.

Their job: to eat the minute plants (algae) which might otherwise cloud the windows of the tank used for testing sample solutions of the cellulose acetate that goes into switchboard lamp filament supports.

Before Sadie, Reuben and Oscar were called into service, the test tank clouded so frequently that ready observation was impeded. Each week the tank had to be drained, cleaned and refilled.

Sadie, Reuben and Oscar go for algae like Lucius Beebe for caviar. Consequently the three little fishes were offered employment as window cleaners, their services to be compensated by board and lodging.

Humor aside, the goldfish are actually performing a time-saving service for the men and women who make the telephone.

The Navy's Bureau of Ordnance designs, manufactures, procures and maintains all offensive and defensive arms and armament.

IN MEMORIAM

A tribute of love to the memory of our dear sister SARAH I. ANGELL, who departed this life five years ago, October 6th., 1937

Sweet to remember her who once was here, And who though absent is just as dear; Sleep sweetly sister and take your rest. We loved you dearly, but God knows best.

She had a nature you could not help loving A heart that was purer than gold; And to those who knew her and loved her, Her memory will never grow cold.

We have only your memory dear sister. To remember our whole life through. But the sweetest will linger forever. As we treasure the image of you. By her SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

ODDS AND ENDS

Shelling the big, fat limas from my garden, I could not help wondering what it would be like to live in a country where no food could be grown, because of the war. How different are our lives, here in America, in spite of war.

Even when a plane drones lazily overhead, I do not rush frantically for my children, to whisk them to a bomb shelter. I am not even afraid, although when the formidable bomber goes across I often wonder if I ought not be afraid. Where else but in America do the children run out to watch the planes go through the air with the greatest of ease?

How fortunate, how very fortunate we are—and well may we continue in our good fortune, even though my heart is heavy, thinking of our finest young men and women fighting so bravely and gallantly that we may be safe.

And it makes me angry and ashamed of our people when I hear reports such as I heard today. A man who works in one of the country's most outstanding defense plants says that the man who produces too much loses his job. He says the men to produce to the fullest extent—and this report from one who works in such a plant makes one wonder how we can win a war quickly and with the least possible loss of life and property. And why should this be tolerated when from all quarters comes the cry, speed and still more speed, for a speedy end of this terrible slaughter of human life. With men at the wheel of industry who think only of filling their purses, at the cost of human lives and suffering, how can wars be ended for all time?

It might be that the solution lies in the refusal of women to bear sons and daughters for slaughter at the very threshold of life, just as if they were prime calves or sheep or hogs. When women rise up in their just anger at such evidences of barbarism, women of all countries and station of life, then we may be able to write a lasting peace and assure every man his natural right, that to live his years and die naturally.

I think, looking out across the garden, how old and weary it has become, so suddenly. The woods looks old and tired too, and the leaves, so fragile, fall softly at the faintest whisper of a breeze. And there is no hint of the new life already beginning its long climb upward, so that it will be ready to burst forth in only a few short months.

And here in America, even though my garden was a failure, I can still buy the food we shall need. Can we even imagine how horrible it is to have not even a crumb of moldy black bread in our house? How awful to have one's children whimper, half starved, and be unable to feed them—to see them die slowly and be unable to help them. I think it is beyond anyone's imagination, but unless we buckle down to business some of us who bask in smugness may feel the pangs of hunger, may even watch with breaking heart while his children cry out for bread, and be unable to give him even a crust. This is no time to say it can't happen here—it can, and with amazing suddenness, but we can, by concerted effort, prevent it. A. J. S.

2 Couples Vanish In Deep Mystery

Seven Years' Investigation Proves Futile.

CHICAGO.—After seven years of futile search and investigation, the sudden disappearance of two middle aged Illinois couples somewhere in the barren stretches of western New Mexico appears destined for the files of unsolved mysteries. Some time after May 22, 1935, the four vacation autoists, George M. Lorus, 50 years old, of East St. Louis, Ill., a coal dealer; Mrs. Lorus; Albert Heberer, 52 years old, of DuQuoin, Ill., proprietor of a barber shop; and Mrs. Heberer, simply vanished. Under Illinois law a person may be declared legally dead after an absence of seven years.

If they were murdered, no one has been able to establish exactly when, or where, or why, or by whom.

The case is a mess of useless clues, of crank revelations, of bizarre explanations, of scores of suspects arrested and released.

The two couples were touring in the Lorus automobile. They planned a sightseeing tour into Mexico. On the morning of May 22 they drove from Vaughan, N. M., toward Albuquerque. The last word received from them was a postcard dated May 22, from Albuquerque. But the travelers never reached there. Who mailed the card is not known.

Evidence but Poor Clues.
On May 28 the Lorus car was found abandoned in Dallas, Texas. Early in June, 1935, the charred remains of luggage and a card bearing the name of Mrs. Heberer were found in a canyon near Albuquerque. Then came the discovery that 20 traveler's checks, totaling $240 and issued to Lorus, had been cashed on his forged signature along the El Paso-Dallas highways.

The skeleton of a woman was found in the Rio Grande river near Belen Bridge, N. M., in 1939. Texas officials expressed belief the four were murdered south of Albuquerque and thrown into the Rio Grande.

In vain Gov. Clyde Tingley led 1,000 searchers through the rough country. Lakes were dragged, bodies exhumed and deathbed statements investigated.

BLACK-OUT RULES

Col. Henry S. Barrett, State Director of air-raid precautions, announced a series of regulations which will be in effect during daytime airraid alerts. The rules announced by Colonel Barrett will govern daytime alerts only. Blackout regulations remain the same.

The following regulations will be in effect for street and highway traffic: 1. Immediately upon the sounding of the air-raid alarm, drivers of all automobiles, trackless trolleys and other free-wheeling vehicles shall immediately pull over to the curb or roadside, turn off the engines or motors and wait until the all-clear signal is given. Readily identifiable emergency vehicles such as fire engines, ambulances and vehicles of the armed forces of the United States, public utilities operated trucks, police cars, and physicians' automobiles and other vehicles carrying approved insignia shall not be required to stop when engaged in emergency operations.

2. Do not park in front of a fire exit, fire plug, fire engine house, hospital entrance or street intersection.

Do not block the entrance of any street or stop opposite to or so close to a street car as to impede free flow of traffic engaged in emergency operations.

4. The operations of a street car and such railroad trains or locomotives (other than through railroad service) as are being operated upon or along the streets or one highways or any town or city in the State, shall immediately bring them to a stop and shall not proceed until the all-clear signal is given.

5. Passengers on street cars, buses and in private automobiles should get out and get to the nearest place of shelter on the same side of the street or highway, if possible.

Rules for public buildings and theatres are as follows: 1. Upon the sounding of the air-raid alarm, the owners of all public buildings, theatres, department stores etc., should immediately sound their alarm for having the air-raid warden service in their buildings take their posts to direct the people in these buildings according to their instructions.

2. Banks that are not being used as air-raid shelters should close their doors immediately upon the sounding of the alarm. Those banks having air-raid shelters will close their doors as soon as they have filled their shelters with the allotted number of people.

3. In general, the owners and operators of all public buildings will carry out the instructions that have been issued to them from time to time by the authorities.

4. Schools throughout the State will be taken care of under the rules and regulations issued by the State Board of Education and other State authorities.

Only one rule was issued for people to follow who are in their homes when the warning signal sounds:

1. During a daytime alert or air raid the same precautions should be taken in your home as in air raids during a nighttime blackout, the only difference being that you do not have to blackout. Stay off the street.

The following five general rules were included in Colonel Barrett's list of regulations:

1. When the air-raid alarm is sounded, do not get excited. Keep calm, cool and be an example to others. Wherever you may be, obey your air-raid warden.

2. Get off the streets. If downtown seek shelter in an air-raid shelter or in some building. Walk. Do not run. Haste may cause accidents and incite panic.

3. If in a public building or shelter, obey the instructions of the air-raid warden.

4. Wherever you seek cover keep away from windows and under no circumstances stand in the line of doors.

5. Do not use the telephone. The telephone is to be used by emergency services only. Needless telephone calls will delay vital messages and may threaten your safety.

In commenting on the regulations, Colonel Barrett said: "During these alerts the people should just use good common horse sense. The regulations were designed for their safety and must be followed."

A Chance To Complain

By STANLEY CORDELL
Associated Newspapers—WNU Features.

FOLKS who attended the wedding of Perry Rowe and Nita Goodwin predicted for the young couple a lifetime of happiness and serenity. The wedding guests, or most of them, had been acquainted with the youthful couple for years. No two people, said they, were ever more fittingly matched or better equipped for complete matrimonial harmony.

For a time—almost a year—it seemed that the prophecies of the wedding guests were correct. Perry and Nita succeeded gloriously in being happy and serene. The prophets were satisfied and smugly flattered because of what they regarded as their uncanny foresight.

And right at this point the wedding guests cease to become important characters in our tale, for as far as they are concerned the Perry Rowes continued in a perfectly harmonious fashion, until their dying days.

There was a ripple, however, in the serenity of the Rowe's married life. Let it be known at the start that Perry's and Nita's personalities were not completely suited to perfect harmony.

Nita, for example, was not the world's best housekeeper, nor was she particularly fond of the details which her new duties entailed. On the other hand Perry had been reared in an atmosphere of order and routine, and order and routine had become an accepted part of his existence.

However, the young Rowes were intelligent and because they were very much in love, each was willing to overlook traits in the other that, under different circumstances, would have proved annoying. For example, Perry had been used to having his dinner served at 6:30, and he saw no reason why it shouldn't always be served at 6:30. Which fact appeared not to disturb Nita in the least, for she was apt to serve her husband's dinner at 5:30, 5:45, 6:15, 6:45, 7:00 as she was at 6:30.

And then suddenly she was in his arms, and they were laughing together.

And then, serving dinner at irregular hours was only a small part of the dizzy things that took place in the Rowe household. Wash day came sometimes on Monday, sometimes on Thursday or Friday or Wednesday. And sometimes Nita skipped a week for good measure. There was no baking day, and cleaning took place whenever the housewife decided the dust was getting too thick on the living-room table. The variety of food served at all meals was astounding. Nita had a flair for making new things, experimenting on her husband; and even though she proved a good cook, Perry sometimes was alarmed at sight of a squash pie simmering in the oven just prior to breakfast.

These things were, in reality, only a small part of the distorted routine under which the Rowes existed. And for a time Perry, because this was all new to him, uttered no word or suggestion. But habit and order make a deep impression on the human character. And even though Perry so desired, it would have been quite impossible for him to shake off all traces of his pre-married life. Occasionally upon arriving home after a hard day at the office he would say: "Good lord! Dinner not ready yet? In heaven's name, Nita, can't you serve at least one meal a day at a designated time?" Or, "Did it ever occur to you to flick a dust cloth around this room? The Allens are coming over tonight, you know."

And then Nita would bounce into the kitchen and begin rattling pots and pans, or rush off in search of a dust cloth. Her face would be grave and her eyes filled with an over-abundance of remorse, and, watching her flitting about the room Perry would burst forth in a roar of laughter. Thus would family quarrels be averted before they got underway. There would be a good deal of billing and cooing and fun making, and things would be harmonious and serene once more.

That's the way things were for quite awhile—almost a year. Then abruptly Perry's business took a tumble. Things looked bad for a time, and it was only natural that the condition of affairs began to affect his disposition. He spoke more often and more irritably about the lack of routine in his household, about Nita's disorderly manner of doing things.

And so Nita changed. Abruptly. It wasn't what Perry said or the manner in which he said it that bothered her. She wasn't the kind to be disturbed because someone—even her husband—disapproved of her methods. It was simply because she analyzed the situation and decided routine—regular meals and such—would contribute to Perry's peace of mind. And with business the way it was his peace of mind was an important factor.

And so the household of Rowe became orderly. Monday became washing day; Tuesday, cleaning day; Wednesday, ironing day; etc. Meals were served at 8 a. m. and 6:30 p. m., and the food was ordinary and nourishing.

At first Perry didn't seem to notice. He was too preoccupied with business affairs to notice anything. But after a while it occurred to him that there was no longer reason to complain.

Sometimes he would come home all set to explode because his dinner wasn't ready, only to discover that his dinner was ready, and that it was composed of dishes which he liked.

And so, because there was nothing to complain about, and because Perry had never believed women possessed intellects capable of discussing business problems, the house of Rowe fell silent. It was a brooding silence—Perry brooding over his business, and Nita brooding over Perry.

His condition worried her. And after a while she began to wonder whether there was not some way she could help him. . . . It was fully a month after routine had begun to play an important part in the lives of the young Rowes that Perry came home one evening to find Nita lying on the studio couch reading a novel. Dinner wasn't ready and there was dust on the living-room table. Newspapers were scattered over the floor and a picture hung askew on the wall.

Perry flung off his hat and coat, stood in the center of the floor and roared. He wanted his dinner; what was the idea of leaving the newspapers strewn all about? And just look at that table! Nita looked at him comically, screwed up her nose and scampered into the kitchen. Perry heard the rattle of pots and pans. But he wasn't through complaining, so he strode to the kitchen door and looked in. Nita was standing near the sink, a pan in one hand, a knife in the other. She was rattling the two together, producing a very homesound and one suggestive of a forthcoming meal, but otherwise quite useless.

Perry began to laugh. She turned on him smiling. And then suddenly she was in his arms, and they were laughing together. Perry's mind was no longer confused or troubled with business problems. He felt suddenly relieved and calm and contented.

In that moment the thing that Nita had done flashed across his mind in startling vividness. He tilted up her chin, looked down into her eyes and grinned. "Darling," he said, "if it's all the same to you I'd rather have my meals less regular and see dust on the living-room table—and be allowed the chance to complain, if it's all the same to you."

Nita nodded and said it was all the same with her. She understood.

Protect Your Life and Others—Drive Slowly

Suppose you have a car that will do a mile a minute, but one or more tires on it have become well worn, perhaps the treads even destroyed by wear.

Don't drive that mile-a-minute clip, under any circumstances, advise tire engineers.

Take it slow and easy, and protect your life, as well as others, in addition to the tires, they warn.

The reason: Those tires were engineered to be safe for the high speeds developed by the modern automobile unless something unpredictable like a puncture occurred.

But as the rolling miles wore them down beyond a certain point, the factor of safety at higher speeds declined. With the car driven slowly they might still give the owners many miles of travel. Driven at high speeds they become a hazard, might go flat any minute, and thus put the car out of service.

Engineers, to illustrate the point, tell of one of the company's drivers rolling along on a test mission when a car containing two men sped past. Hardly had the passing car straightened out when there was the loud report of a blowout, the car turned over three times, the two men were taken to a hospital critically injured.

The test driver examined the blown-out tire. It had been worn through the breaker strip and two fabric layers, was hardly thicker than half a dozen pages of paper.

The driver had been racing at a speed which was too much for the old casing!

If that happens to a motorist today, his car may be laid up even though he escapes injury, because he cannot get another tire.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

It is imperative that the ship lanes be kept free of ice. With American troops occupying Iceland and the Navy using the northern route for transportation of supplies to Russia, ice breakers are essential to Naval operations. The ice breaker is a specially constructed ship with heavily armored bows and powerful engines that crush the ice floes rather than ram through them.

Ice breakers of the Kickapoo class operating in the North Atlantic cost approximately $10,000,000. You can help our Navy build these ships by investing at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every payday. Enroll in the payroll savings plan or apply at the nearest bank or postoffice. U. THE WEEK OF WAR REPORTS.

Departments' and Boards' Activities.

Rubber Administrator Jeffers, acting on two important recommendations of the Baruch Rubber Committee, directed the Office of Defense Transportation to limit driving speeds to 35 miles an hour and told the Office of Price Administration to prepare to ration gasoline throughout the nation on the same basis that it is now rationed in the East.

The limitation on speed will go into effect October 1 for all vehicles except those operated by common carriers. Common carriers—trucks and buses operated on regular schedules over regular routes—will be given until October 15 to adjust their schedules to the new top speed. Enforcement of the new speed limit will be left up to the States for the present, ODT announced.

Nation-wide gasoline rationing—designed to reduce mileage so as to save rubber rather than gasoline—will become effective about November 22, Price Administration Henderson reported. By that time ration books will have been distributed to approximately 20 million motorists in the un-rationed area. The present tire rationing program will be integrated with the new gasoline rationing program and tires on all cars will have to be submitted to OPA for "on-wheel inspection every 60 days to insure proper care."

The OPA said fuel oil consumers in the 30 rationed East and mid-West States will have to get along this winter with one-third less oil than usual because the originally announced cut of one-fourth would not be sufficient. On the basis of last winter, however—which was about 10 percent warmer than usual—the cut will only be about 26 percent, the office said.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Australia reported September 28 that U. S. Army Flying Fortresses hit and probably sank a 15,000-ton merchant man in an attack on the enemy base at Rabaul. It was the fourth straight day of attack by the Fortresses on the biggest enemy base in the Australian zone. In the previous raids the bombers probably sank an 8,000-ton ship, and scored direct hits on three medium-sized ships. Australian forces supported by new artillery were reported driving the Japanese from their outposts in the Owen Stanley mountains, 32 air miles from the Allied base of Port Moresby. Heavy rains complicated the Japanese supply problem.

The U. S. Marines in the Solomons, sometimes outnumbered 10 to 1 by the enemy, have beaten off all attacks and their positions remain secure, Marine headquarters in the Islands announced. Reinforcements and supplies have reached the Marines. U. S. Army Bomber Commander Eaker in London stated U. S. and British airmen will work together in day and night raids to give Germany a long winter of bombing. He said "I believe it is possible to destroy the enemy from the air. There is hardly a corner of Germany we can not reach."

War Production Chairman Nelson said "Right now approximately 40 percent of our entire production is going for war. By the middle of next year that proportion has got to be around 60 percent." WPB Vice-Chairman Knowlson said at present war production is three and one-half times that of 10 months ago.

WPB Chairman Nelson directed the Office of Defense Transportation to set up a priorities system governing movements and use of all tank cars, with priorities to be given, first, to shipments of materials for the Army, Navy, Maritime Commission and the Lend-Lease Administration; second, to 390 specifically listed chemicals, foods and other essential products; and third, to petroleum and petroleum products into the Eastern shortage area.

The ODT said congestion on rail and bus lines over the week-end is still growing. Weekly passenger travel must be shifted from the week-end to the middle of the week by at least another 8 percent, the office said.

Agriculture Secretary Wickard said that unless the nation acts promptly and with energy "our food situation will become serious. Our supply is rapidly diminishing." He outlined a six-point program to help alleviate the farm labor shortage. Included were proposals to retain on farms as many as possible of the experienced managers who understand year-round farm operation, to transport workers to farms, and to use greater numbers of women and young people on farms. He estimated agriculture would lose 1,000,000 workers between July 1, 1942, and July 1, 1943, if an 8,000,000-man Army is mobilized by the latter date.

The OPA set ceiling prices for the sales of 175 printed products, as well as for the printing services used in producing them. The regulation covers services for and sales of such articles as greeting cards, loose-leaf binders and fillers, tablets, pads, composition books, etc. The articles and services listed by the regulation are exempt from all price control, however, when sold by printers whose total gross sales in 1941 of printing and printed paper products were $20,000 or less. The regulation covers about 25 percent of the industry's $2,500,000,000 volume of business.

A rubber company has developed a new auxiliary gas tank for bombers which is carried on the outside of the plane. The pilot may drop it after using its fuel or entering combat, thus removing any impediment to his ship's maneuverability.

The U. S. Navy was the last navy in the world to establish the rank of admiral.

SERVICE PRICES TO BE FILED
----------------------------	--	--	--	--

"All establishments handling any type of service should check Regulation No. 165 to see if they are required to file a price list of their services," Dr. Fred G. Holloway, Chairman of the Westminster War Price and Rationing Board, said today.

Automobile service stations, radio repair shops, banks having safe deposit boxes, laundries, etc., are included in the wide range of services covered by this regulation which not only requires them to hold their prices at specified levels, but to file a list of their prices with their local War Price and Rationing Board.

Copies of this regulation are available at the boards and can be obtained upon request.

Dr. Holloway stated no attempt is being made to mail these out to the trade as there is no available mailing list at present and the regulation had received nation-wide publicity through the press.

If any vendor of services has any questions regarding this regulation he should submit them in writing to his local War Price and Rationing Board where the answer will be obtained for him.

Since the deadline for filing was September 10 and this has passed, Dr. Holloway urges all service establishments in Carroll County to act immediately.

CHANGING TO COAL

Lucien E. D. Gaudreau, Area Rent Director, announces a special provision to aid landlords in changing heating equipment from oil to coal burners.

The plan is that if the tenant agrees the cost of such change may be divided between landlord and tenant, by the tenant paying installments in addition to rent over a period of several months.

Regulations forbid any agreement between landlord and tenant to increase rents, but this exception is made to induce landlords to make the change.

Such agreements must be submitted to Rent Director who may approve or disapprove within five days. If the Director does not disapprove within five days, the landlord may go ahead and make the change.

Deputy Administrator Paul M. O'Leary, of the OPA urges landlords and tenants to take advantage of this permission immediately.

The latest in blackout and air raid equipment is a blanket made of cattle hair, reinforced with a wire mesh center. Hung over a door or window, it blacks out the light and provides protection against flying glass. According to the manufacturer the blanket will char but won't burn.

When a Naval officer passed a senior going in the same direction he says, "By your leave, sir."

The skill that made typewriters must now make small arms. More metal, more man-hours, and more machine-hours go into one typewriter than into one Garand rifle.

USE A
RED BARN PAINT

A good dependable Barn Red made of really high grade materials is a rare thing. Most barn Paints are made down to a price. Not how good but how cheap!

Your painter charges just as much to apply a cheap paint that will soon get dark and go to pieces as for a fine, satisfactory paint.

Our C & D. Barn Paint is a bright red and will not disappoint you. It is made of pure Linseed Oil and Red Oxide. A splendid paint and only costs $1.75 A GALLON in 5-gallon cans.

Hats Off TO AMERICAN LABOR

Labor's answer to the Axis is ever-mounting production—a flood of war weapons from the arsenal of democracy that must inevitably spell disaster for our foes. The record is one of which both American labor and the "democratic way" can be proud.
