OUR DETROIT LETTER

In looking over my scrap book, in which I have pasted a copy of every letter I have written to the Record the past year, I find that they number just 17, which figure I consider a pretty fair one for a man who, a less than a year ago, was so sick that no one, not even his doctor himself, thought he would ever be able to get around again, but who, besides writing little Miss Dorothy Sell, of town, is spending several weeks with her brother, Pvt W.lliam Sell, of Scott these letters, was able to pay a very enjoyable visit back to the old town, which he always thought the finest in ing to other places he never expected to see again, and generally has enjoy-ed life as well as any old man can.

As I never liked odd numbers very much, especially as both the wars that has troubled this fair country of ours were started in odd years, and which has struck our family so hard, I am going to try to get another letter into the columns of the Record. I do not really know what I want to write about, but will make the start and let the balance of the letter take care of itself, with a little help, as we go along.

Not that there is not plenty to write about, but whether it will interest your readers is another matter. 1942 was not, so far, no uninteresting year, but when there are so many daily papers giving all the news, some times some that prove to be just the imagination of the writers, and the contradictions that are made daily. It is difficult to pick out any news that we are sure would be of interest.

But we noticed, a good many times that you folks in there, certain-ly get the first trial of anything the New Dealers want to try out. You had the first gas rationing, and now, at present, we see that you are cut off from any gas at all, as far as passenger cars are concerned. I do not say that this is not necessary, as I, having two sons and two grandsons in the service, want to see them have all the supplies necessary. So, while you are the advance guard, in there, we are looking for the same thing to happen out here, even if we are only making a start in this gas rationing business.

We are running short in many things, in the way of eatables, particularly meats. Seven of the large meat packing houses have closed down, on account of having reached down, on account of having reached the quota set by the Government, which evidently has not taken into consideration the fact that the pop-ulation of Detroit; on account of the influx of war-workers, has increased over 330,000 the past year, and which quota has been set at 70 per Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Stonesifer, daughter, Mae; Mr. and Mrs. Ardel Stonesifer, Miss Bessie Yingling, of Exited the stonesifer, Miss Bessie Yingling, of And there is the very apparent un-fairness of some of the draft boards,

Thanks!--and 1943

On this, the first day of the year 1943, we wish to take the opportunity of thanking everyone that had a part in making The Carroll Record what it is. We especially thank L. B. H., J. J. R. and W. J. H., for their contributions. Our loyal correspondents are deserving high praise and thanks, too. With our shortage of labor and many other new problems with which to cope, we found 1942 difficult at times but with the loyal cooperation of our patrons, we managed to get through the year, we feel satisfactorily, considering conditions.

For 1943, we make no promises that we cannot keep. We plan to give our readers a better newspaper and to do this werespectfully ask our friends to give us the news. The Carroll Record is not our paper-it is the newspaper for Taneytown and vicinity. It is your paper-help make it a paper of which to be proud. We are sending The Carroll Record, free, to all our local boys in the service who request or ask for it, without raising our subscription rate and we intend to continue this policy as long as we can do so financially. We admit that this is quite an item of expense to us but we feel that this is our contribution to our boys who are making the greater sacrifice.

Our job printing and advertising business has beeen very good in the past. We have no knowledge of dissatisfaction and very few disappointments in this service to our customers, our patrons always being very considerate and we hope to continue this service in 1943.

> TO ALL OUR FRIENDS WE WISH A HAPPY, AND VICTORIOUS NEW YEAR.

Report on the Christmas party and treat was made by C. G. Bowers, chairman of the treat committee. He reported that about 400 treats had been distributed. At the party, held in the High School auditorium, Prest-dent Fuss presided. The invocation was offered by Rev. Guy P. Bready, greetings were extended by Mayor Norville P. Shoemaker, and the ad-dress was given by Rev. A. W. Garvin The Jr. I. O. O. F. Band, with Robert Menchey as leader furnished the mus-ic. Santa Claus was present in a cheerful mood to distribute the gifts. Treasurer Arnold reported on the progress of the Rubber Factory building, which is moving along and expected to be occupied about February 15th.

L. B. Hafer, chairman of the Area Projects committee gave a report of the meetings of that committee, which was followed by an extended discus-sion. Participating in the discussion were N. O. Terpening, W. E. Ritter, M. C. Fuss. Samuel E. Breth and oth-

FUEL OIL STOVES

OPA officials advise that the supply of fuel oil has become, in the supply of fuel oil has become, in the past few weeks, dangerously low. At the beginning of fuel oil ration-ing, the East Coast supply situation was running from 200,000 to 300,000 beareds new day short of read. This barrels per day short of need. This barrels per day short of need. This shortage was occasioned by lack of transportation facilities and only by this lack. Today, the situation is this transportation is a part of the shortage factor, the rest of the shortage factor is in the product itself." OPC states that for several months there has been a need for five times as much kerosene as there is supply. There is now a need for every drop of residual oil refined the area east of the Rocky Mountains. Railroads, west of the Mississippi, will buy all they can get. One leading road in this most important and essential service was down to a two day supply of fuel oil at the end of October. People are urged to convert to the use of coal or wood. O. C. Reynolds, Jr. Executive Sec-retary of the local War Price and Ra-tioning Board, received word recently that the period 3 coupons will be valid on and after December 28, 1942. People who use kerosene for cooking will be receiving their allotment before the first of the year. No further applica-tions will be necessary and the books will be mailed to them. He urges that anyone wishing kerosene for this purpose just wait until they receive them and not to come to the Board office as this only hinders their work.

formed Church and Sunday School. Days heretofore have appeared rather dark and dreary; the lights of happiness seemed to have gone out. Just a day or two ago, the candle of life seemed to flicker, and then there was light all around, because the folks from the home Sunday School have not forgotten the boys that have not forgotten the boys that have been called from the life of free-dom. The present from you has crowded out all dreary thoughts and crowded out all dreary thoughts and a new life is born. Since this is Thanksgiving Day, I consider myself more than thankful for that very useful present from you. If you con-tinue to think of the boys in service, I'm sure the harvest you will reap will be great dividends of good. May I thank you again for your present

This Fall and Winter has started in just about the same as the one of 1917-18. We have had snow for almost every day for weeks, and the Lake is frozen over so hard as to make ice-fishing possible. It is par-ticularly hard on the writer, as this disease I am afflicted with-cardiac asthma-requires lots of fresh air, and with the temperature down so low I am unable to get out much, it appears so much worse than it did last Summer, when I was not confined to the house, on account of the weather. So, I am anxiously waiting for the return of mild weather.

I could write about the strikesfour or five of which are occurring here daily—some lasting only a few hours-others much longer, but all of which are very damaging to the war effort, but that would be an old story, and maybe the New Deal crowd would not like it if said anything against their pets—the Labor. Union leaders. So I'll let that go. I want to say, however how much admire the articles of Mr. Kent, which are read by me every day. I'll venture to say that the Raw Deal crowd in Washington wishes he would be somewhere else than at the head of such an influential paper as the Baltimore Sun, and I don't wonder that it is the most popular daily in the South. More power to him. say, and may he continue to be a scourge to them for a long time.

By the time this letter gets into I still have in mind, in spite of my long absence from them—a hearty wish for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and many of them. JOHN J. REID.

COMMUNITY INTEREST

FRIDAY, JANUARY 1, 1943.

The Taneytown Chamber of Commerce has been setting an example for similar organizations by the way in which the group is taking up the study of a wide number of matters of community interest.

Several months ago a special committee was appointed to survey the may help all classes or groups of people in the neighborhood.

this it is too soon to predict, but it at least shows a desire on the part of the more active members to be helpful so that the Chamber may be more than a name, and the word 'commerce' has a wider meaning than we often give to it.

At the last meeting of the Chamber a large part of the time was devoted to a discussion of a partial report of the special committee, and while no ation, and less on regimentation. action has taken definite shape, it was decided to continue the survey at a forces when definitely located, but do further meeting of the special com- not waste substance in random firing. mittee and of the executive committee. THE NEW YEAR

Today we begin the use of our new calendars. It is New Year's Day, and 1943 is here. We enter it with a feeling of humility, not with the boastful pride that has often characterized us in the past, for our manner of life has been wonderfully changed, and we have little idea of what may be necessary in the coming year.

We have submitted readily to retrictions and handicaps which we believed were necessary, but whether we believed in the necessity of reguulations or not, still there has been nothing to do but submit.

And things have not all been going our way. Often dire events have about it, or have learned the truth long after the happening of the more for propaganda purposes than to register a real fear, but all these things fill us with a sense of humility and make us assume an attitude of caution.

But we enter the new year with a feeling of hopefulness too. The last weeks or months have brought brighter scenes than before. With the Nazi forces driven back in Russia, never rationed and seldom lost. field and to recommend action that with North Africa practically under control of the United Nations, with Italy comparatively inactive, with Just what may be the outcome of Japan checked in the Pacific, we are hopeful that 1943 will have a different story to tell

Here are some ways by which we may make 1943 a better year:

1. Tell the people the truth whether pleasant or unpleasant, and tell them promptly.

2. Reduce limitations regimentation and rationing to the minimum, and depend more on voluntary coop-

3. Strike effectively at enemy 4. Put business sense into war, and

5. Do more sane thinking about

PRIVATE ENTERPRISE IN PLANNING

The business community of the Nabankers gouging, and lets do away tion, if it should want to avoid grave with all this discriminating tariffs, and and insurmountable difficulties, will do well to give the subject of postwar planning its most earnest consideration.

The so-called Government planners place a major emphasis upon Government control and direction of our national economy during the transition or reconstruction period. They propose permanent programs of Government spending and credits in order to supply the necessary purchasing power and provide employment. They are aided and abetted in this by a large number of men in every walk of life who have lost faith in private enterprise and are seeking succor in the hands of the Government.

We are of the opinion that the regenerative forces of a dynamic private enterprise will have to be depended upon and fully utilized in the transition from war to peace. Postwar planning that assumes as its central theme the premises that Government occurred and we have known nothing controlled and Government-planned economy can be a substitute for an intelligent private enterprise economy, events. > STANDARD U. S. EQUIPMENT

It's standard equipment in all branches of the service. It involves no problem of transportation. It's We refer to the American sense of humor. It's really tremendously important, especially now. It's as much a part of the "war effort" as food or ammunition, and it bobs up in the oddest places. In mid-Atlantic, for instance, when an American merchantman went down under a submarine attack, the U-boat promptly surfaced to learn the identiy of its prey. "What's the name of your ship?" the German captain demanded of the lifeboat crews.

"She's the S. S. Bunchabananas.. shouted a sailor quick as a flash. It's not just bravado, this wisecracking habit of Americans. It's not because they're scared. Rather, it's a sure sign that in spite of the tough spot they may be in, regardless of their fear, they're still on top. It's an important weapon, this sense of humor, and one with which the enemy cannot cope-for it's beyond his comprehnsion. May it always be standard quipment for every American.-Christian Science Monitor

Sportsmen's Tax Fund Used for Wildlife Aid

Only about one gunner in a hundred can tell you what has hap-pened to the $9,000,000 that has been collected from sportsmen through the federal excise tax on ammuni-

marked for conservation and propa-gation since the Pittman-Robertson act was passed in 1937. The job that is being done for conservation with this fund represents the most important forward step in conser-vation since the Migratory Bird Treaty act of 1918.

Wildlife conservation and restoration in the United States is bound to continue during the war in spite of some curtailment of state funds due to the failure of hunters to purchase hunting licenses. From two to three million dollars should be available annually under the terms of the Pittman-Robertson act of 1937. Every penny of it is earmarked for distribution to 46 of the 48 states to further the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration program. This is money that has been raised by a 10 per cent tax on the purchase price of sporting arms and ammunition and there is a considerable balance on hand to tide over the period while consumer interest in sporting weapons, shells and cartridges is impaired by war interests, activities and restrictions.

Tens of thousands of acres now belong to the public that would otherwise be in private hands and legally closed to hunters were it not for this program.

Army Tries Out Latest Plastic Training Plane

The Fairchild AT-13, two-engined crew trainer built entirely of Duramold, except for certain members supporting the bombing, machine gun, camera and other equipment, has been successfully test flown at Hagerstown, Md., the war department announced. Vance Breese, test flight engineer, handled the ship on its first flight. Armand Theibolt, who designed the plane, watched the flight.

The plane is one of the largest and fastest designed and built for training. The AT-13 was designed to meet the necessity of training bombing crews as a unit. It provides places for bombardier, pilot, o-pilot, navigator-radio man, machine gunner, and camera man. The ship is equipped with all of the instruments needed to enable a training crew to simulate all of the conditions of a long-range bombing attack.

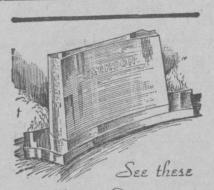

The army air forces ordered the AT-13 in quantity from the design on the drawing board and production will proceed after completion of flight testing. The principal characteristic of the new plane is tenings of any sort.

Nearly 75 per cent of the prospective crop of wild ducks on their great breeding grounds in Canada's prairie provinces is destroyed by natural and man-made catastrophies.

The destruction, principally of eggs and newly hatched ducklings, is estimated at as high as 80,000,000 during a single nesting season, the nationally known conservation writer reports.

The principal cause of mortality is drying up of marshes before the young are able to fly. Drouth and faster evaporation of surface water due to increasingly higher summer temperatures in recent years have made countless prairie ponds death traps for the wildfowl.

Describing an exodus of drouthstricken ducklings, an investigator related: "Across the prairie started the broods, putting one webbed foot in front of the other in a brave trek for that element which ducks must have or perish.

"The food they had to have wasn't available on the way. Small bones and muscles weakened. Cactus spines penetrated tender throats. bellies and feet, and took hold to stay. In the end a distracted hen lay down and died beside the last of her offspring."

In addition to drouth, voracious pike, or jackfish, are estimated to eat some 9,000,000 ducklings, other predators take 8,000,000, marsh fires destroy 13,000,000 and other factors including farming operations almost the same number.

List Made of Important Rivers That Flow North

The Red river of the North, forming the boundary between Minnesota and North Dakota, flows north for part of its course; the Monongahela flows north from West Virginia to Pennsylvania; the Niagara river, the Tennessee river, the Snake river (where it forms the boundary between Oregon and Idaho), the Missouri river and the Salmon river in Idaho all flow north in part of their courses. The John Day, Deschutes and Willamette rivers, tributaries to the Columbia river in Oregon, flow north.

Others with courses between north and northwest are the San Joaquin and Eel rivers in California, Kootenai river in Idaho, Mouse river in North Dakota, Kentucky and Licking rivers in Kentucky and Kanawha river in West Virginia.

New Year's Quiz ------

These questions were devised to test your alertness in the New Year. They aren't easy, so if your score is high you can start 1943 with a good I. Q. Each question, by the way. relates to some significant date in American history that occurred on New Year's day. Try your hand!

THE QUESTIONS

1-How does New Year's day figure in the beginning of America? 2-What American immortalized by Longfellow was born on January 1? 3-What historic decree of Abraham Lincoln's went into effect New Year's day?

4-What famous Revolutionary war hero was born on January 1? /5-What event of the War of 1812 took place on New Year's day? 6-To what woman, born on January 1, 1752, is the United States indebted for its flag?

THE ANSWERS 1-Americus Vespucci discovered the Bay of Rio Janeiro in South America on January 1, 1502.

2-Paul Revere, born on January 1, 1835. 3--The Emancipation Proclamation freeing the slaves became effective January 1, 1863. 4 - General ("Mad Anthony") tions of seeing Nature has evolved some curious creatures. One of the most remarkable of the deep sea animals is a type of angler fish that lives about a mile below the surface. Floating about in the darkness of the deep where sunlight does not penetrate, it is apparent that a mature woman angler fish would have a hard time in finding a mate. deep-sea angler fish.

The difficulty of courtship in the darkness of the under-ocean has been solved by the angler fish in a novel way. The male fish are very, very small, and soon after they are born swim about in the dark. If a female swishes by, the male hooks on. He hangs on for his life, both figuratively and literally. He becomes a parasitic gigolo of the deep, permanently attached to his mate, Apparently many males perish while waiting.

And '30'

The phrase means, "the end," and there are various theories on its origin. The best known is that the first message sent by a telegraph operator to the first press association in this country, which was organized during the Civil war, contained 30 words. This figure, the words "good-night" and the operator's name were placed at the bottom of the sheet. Some other versions are: When newspapers were handwritten, "x" designated the end of a sentence, "xx" the end of a paragraph and "xxx" (Roman numerals for 30) the end of a story; linotype machines cast type slugs of 30 ems maximum length, hence "30" means the end of a line; when the Associated Press was established each member paper was entitled to 30 telegrams per day. Last of the day's quota was labeled "30."

Adobe House Refinished

An old adobe house in California has been decorated by two decorators for their own living quarters. Painting the adobe wall and wood paneling white, the adobe floor green, and slipcovering the couch and fireside chair in bright red and white cotton gave a smart effect to the living room. A pale green rug beautifies the floor. On the mantle is a frill of red and white chintz Draperies of heavy white crash are edged in red and white fringe.

The poem "H," by Kipling was read by Miss Lola Binkley. The presentation of the flag was beautifully given by Miss Jane Etzler bringing to our minds the sacrifice, loyalty and devo-tion of our young ment knowing what tion of our young men; knowing what ever their task may be they will do it well. When we think of the hardship they endure and the comforts we enjoy in the home land it is time for us to put away our selfishness. Assuring them that as they go down the pathway of duty we cannot be with them in person but will be with them in thought and pray that God may bless them and bray that God may bless them and keep them wherever they are. Pail Saves Life of

Boy in Long Fall

NEW YORK. — A neighbor's pail saved the life of four-year-old Robert Reed.

While his mother was asleep, Robert went to the roof of the apartment building. Attempting to cross to a nearby building, he fell five stories to an alley. A pail hanging outside a first floor window broke his fall.

Mazie Quits Job: Bums on Own Now

Famous Bowery Character Plans to Write Book.

NEW YORK .- The burns of the Bowery have lost their platinum blonde shepherdess, Mazie Phillips of the Venice theater, who used to demand (and pay for) baths for her customers before she'd let them in. Mazie is writing a book and she's quit her job because, she says, "I wanna do good." The evangelical tone of her cigarette-husky voice would break the heart of any of the down-and-outers to whom she once barked: "The world is all smitched up, but I'm not goin' to have you bums lousin' up the theater. Here's a quarter,

Go take a bath and come back." But she insists that "all the money I make on the book is goin' on them poor bums. I ain't had a chance to tell them yet."

And her new spirit hasn't carried her to the point of believing in organized charity-yet.

"I'm not out to knock missions or such," she said, in her apartment under the shadow of the Brooklyn bridge. "But you ain't goin' to get a bum in a mission if there's a gutter to sleep in."

Her book is based on the experience of 30 years of brisk friendship with drifters, and she intends to give her observations on dirt, among other things.

"Dirt's healthy," says Mazie. "That's why them old bums live so long."

Survey Shows Professor

Is Not Absent-Minded NEW ORLEANS .- The old saw about the absent-minded professor is out of date.

Dr. Logan Wilson, Tulane sociology professor who has just completed rsox, preaching the a study of the typical professor, says he is neither absent-minded, old fashioned nor crochety. He's a relatively alert family man with one or two children. He is more self-critical than most folks and leans over backwards to avoid conformance to a stereotype. Nor is he particularly inclined toward political or social radicalism, Dr. Wilson found in opposition to another popular belief.

NEW TEST FOR LIVER

When we think of the work done by the liver most of us are likely to think of the manufacture of bile. The statement that life (and health) depends upon the liver has behind it the thought of the value of bile in breaking up fats, in keeping the liver itself active and healthy and in the prevention of constipation.

The fact also that the liver can store sugar and proteinsmeat, eggs, fish products—for future Dr. Barton use may also be in mind as we think about the liver and its work.

However, one of the most important jobs done by the liver is the filtering out from the blood substances that would be harmful to the body, allowing only helpful products of the food to remain in the blood. Thus it can be seen how important to health is this filtering power of the liver.

The testing of the ability of the liver to filter out or remove substances from the blood has been done for a number of years by injecting a dye into the veins or taking the dye by mouth and finding how long it takes the liver to remove all this dye from the blood. Ever since the dye method has been used there has been a controversy as to whether dye taken by mouth or dye injected into the veins, is the more accurate method.

It is gratifying to know that a new test for liver function (ability) is reported from Cuba by Drs. A. Castellanos and J. Beato-Nunez, Havana, in the Bulletin of the Cu-ban Society of Pediatrics.

The patient takes fruits or fruit juices instead of breakfast. A small quantity of blood is withdrawn. Then an injection of colloidal carotene is injected into the veins, the amount injected depending on the weight of the individual. Five minutes later blood is again withdrawn. The blood is separately determined in the two different blood specimens. If the specimen of blood withdrawn five minutes after the carotene is taken is the same as the blood withdrawn before the carotene was taken, it shows that the liver is normal, doing ts work properly. Any increase of the carotene in the blood five minutes after the injection into the veins of the carotene shows that the liver is not doing its work properly.

These physicians found that this simple test is as reliable and better than the "classic" tests now in use.

Postwoman Finds Task Is No Cinch

But Is All Right for Woman In Wartime.

VICTORIA, B. C.—Yes, folks, the job of postman is all right for a woman in wartime but high-heeled shoes are neither standard nor comfortable equipment.

This is the view of Mrs. Florence Blanchard, British Columbia's first woman mail carrier, who says she enjoys the work and hopes to be placed on the permanent staff in due course. An attractive woman in her 30s, she stands about five feet, seven inches; weighs 140 pounds, has gray eyes and brown hair. Her postman's cap becomes her.

"I always liked walking and meeting people," she says. "I wore highheeled shoes and blistered my feet the first day, however. The second day I put on flat-heeled shoes with crepe soles and found it much eas-

Mrs. Blanchard admitted the first 10 days were pretty hard, with two bundles of magazines and a bag of letters a common load on her route. It got better as she went along. She was bantered by the men but the women said they were proud of her and "made it pleasant going." She had invitations to stop for tea but had to express her regrets and keep on. She encountered only one dog

Born in England, Florence Blanchard was brought to Canada when she was three years old and lived in Winnipeg for 12 years. Her husband, a shell-shocked veteran from the first great war, died some months ago and she has a 17 yearold son graduating from high school amount of total carotenoids in the this year. She has two brothers serving in the present war.

After you teach them the old tricks, it's a problem to find wagons -and if you get the wagons you have to manufacture your own gear. Horse blankets, harness and

Courting

In courting this is ever true For no one but a drummer Would have the nerve to spin up to The girl b d last summer.

There is a disease of children that destroys seven times as many children as infantile paralysis, and it seems only fair that we should know about these children and what public and private help be given them. I am referring to rheumatic heart disease

Dr. Alexander T. Martin, New York city, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, says:

"In one sense the child stricken with infantile paralysis is more fortunate than the child stricken by rheumatism, because the child with rheumatic heart disease may have more attacks which may further cripple his activities or even cause death. In fact, each fresh attack means the likelihood of further attacks. On the other hand, infantile paralysis, as dread a disease as it is, usually causes no further attacks and the afflicted child may expect some improvement. Many children who contract infantile paralysis recover completely. Very few children who contract rheumatic fever escape without some damage to the heart."

How can these crippled hearts be helped? Dr. Martin reports his investigation over a period of 20 years (1921-41) of 1,398 children with rheumatic heart disease who were given after care in three country homes. The average age of the first attack was from six to eight years.

Of this 1,398 children 431 were dead after 20 years. Of the 967 living Dr. Martin was able to follow about 90 per cent.

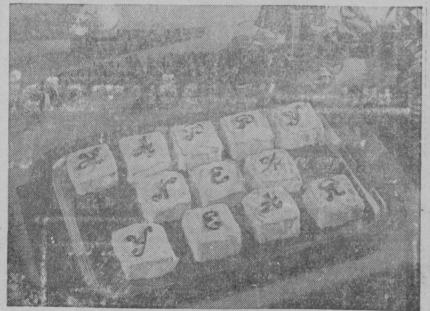

To show what watchful care in an institution or in a foster home can accomplish for these heart cripples the report states that 357 are regularly employed at gainful occupations, 10 have irregular employment, 260 are in a regular or public. school, 83 are in a special class in school for heart patients and 14 have a visiting teacher.

QUESTION BOX

Q .-- Please give me some information regarding the extract used in cases of hard of hearing.

A .- Extract of ovary is being used by physicians to relieve symptoms of menopause. Some physicians have found this extract helpful in sinus disease. Still others have found it helped some cases of hard of hearing. Your physician can prescribe it by injection or taken by mouth. Ask him about it. It must be prescribed by a physician.

F ALL the idiots," said Uncle Andy, "that I've ever had the misfortune to encounter, this bird De Trego is the biggest." Uncle Andy threw his hands into the air in a gesture of utter disgust, and continued to stalk from one end of the porch to the other. Brenda Deering, Uncle Andy's nièce, sat in the big arm chair and watched Uncle Andy with a hint of amusement in her wide, brown eyes. She had seen Uncle Andy like this before. And she knew her role was to wait patiently for the fit of anger to subside; then to ruffle his sparse gray hair, kiss his shiny forehead and tweak his chin. This treatment usually produced satisfactory results.

Yet as Brenda watched her uncle, she had a queer feeling that he was not going to succumb to her hairruffling and chin-tweaking. Somehow today he seemed a little more violent than usual, a little more intent upon his purpose.

Suddenly Unclustended a dead halt before the big armchair. "Look here, Brenda. You're not going to marry this De Trego. Not if I can prevent it. And prevent it I have every intention of doing. He's nothing but a mollycoddle, and will never be anything else. He isn't worthy of a Deering, and that," he added emphatically, "is that." Still Brenda remained silent. She knew that Uncle Andy had more to say, and she thought it best to hear him out.

Uncle Andy's voice suddenly softened. "Listen, Brenda, I want you to go away for a while. I want you to visit my ranch down in Texas. You'll like it there. There are horses to ride and mountains to climb and rivers to fish in. The change will do you good. And perhe went on hopefully find time to analyze this Henry de Trego bloke and discover I'm correct in my estimation of him." Brenda looked steadily into Uncle Andy's eyes and waited. "Do that much for me, Brenda. Go down there for a month. After that, after you've had time to think it all over seriously-if you still want to marry De Trego-I'll give my consent." Brenda leaned forward. "That's a promise?'

ble R housekeeper for years, made Brenda feel instantiy at home.

Brenda was delighted with the spot. It was all that Uncle Andy had pictured. The air was cool and invigorating; the landscape was unequalled for beauty and grandeur.

Brenda, already an adept horsewoman, took long rides into the upland country. And with her rode Jack Fremont. He was, Brenda discovered, an excellent guide, a splen-did companion. Far from being uncouth, as an eastern girl might have pictured a Texas cowboy, he talked freely of things that only a person having a fine background could discuss.

As the weeks slipped by, Brenda came more and more to look forward to her rides with Fremont. He was different than most men she'd known. He was gentle and kind and fine. Occasionally she thought of Henry de Trego, and at these times she wondered whether Uncle Andy hadn't been right in judging Brenda wondered, too, how it was she had ever loved, or thought she loved, that man.

The month of Brenda's exile had almost come to an end when Fremont spoke for the first time of those things that Brenda knew were inevitable. And despite herself her heart quickened its beat when the cowboy leaned forward and looked into her eyes.

"Brenda," he said simply, "I love you. And I believe you love me. I-we-that is-" he floundered. Brenda looked at him questioningly. There was a sudden coldness in her eyes.

And Jack said: "I must tell you something first. I—it wouldn't be fair to ask you to marry me until I do.

"Yes?" said Brenda coolly. But Jack failed to notice her lack of response. He rushed on. "I'm not a cowboy, Brenda. Two months ago I was employed in your uncle's office in Boston. He sent me down here to get browned up. Said he wanted his niece to come down later, and he wanted someone to look after her. He-he-wanted me to act as a sort of—gigolo." Jack hesitated. "He told me about De Trego, and he offered me a sum of money I couldn't refuse if I'd make you forget the man. I-I-Brenda, I know you can't love me now. But believe me when I say-I wouldn't take a million times that amount of money if I could have you.

The cold look had left Brenda's eyes. And in its stead was a warm, soft glow. She leaned forward almost abruptly and kissed Jack on the lips.

"I'm glad you told me, Jack. I never could have married you if you hadn't.

Jack looked at her aghast. "Then you knew?"

Brenda nodded. "I happened to see the letter you wrote to Uncle, telling him that you were browned up enough to look like a Westerner, and were ready for your victim." Her eyes twinkled. "You enclosed your picture in that letter-to prove how brown you were. I saw the picture, too. That's why I didn't offer any objection when Uncle Andy suggested I come down here for a Uncle Andy bowed his head. And Brenda said at once: "Then I'll go, Uncle Andy. I'll start tomorrow.'

Brenda swung from the Limited at Devil's Gap, and the hot blasts of the desert smote her in the face. Involuntarily she recoiled, as if repulsed by the sight of the bleak, desolate-looking crackerbox station, the barren wastes of desert behind it, the hot furnace-like air.

A man came around a corner of the station, espied her standing there, and approached, sombrero in hand.

"I'm Jack Fremont," he said. "Foreman at the Double R. I reckon you're Miss Brenda."

Brenda looked up into the sunbronzed face and the friendly, gray eyes of this Adonis-like Westerner who confronted her. "You're - you're Jack Fremont?" Then suddenly she laughed as a picture of the Jack Fremont Uncle Andy had painted for her conjured itself in her mind. Dear old Uncle Andy.

The tall cowboy seemed embarrassed and not a little puzzled at her demeanor, and Brenda's face sobered. "I'm sorry, Mr. Fremont. You see, Uncle Andy hadn't warned me.'

Fremont still seemed puzzled, but he led the way silently to a smartlooking roadster parked on the opposite side of the station. If Brenda was surprised at sight of the car, she made no comment. They left the station behind. Hot blasts from the desert struck her in the face. She sank into the deep cushions of the roadster, and felt as though she was being burned to a crisp.

At length they left the desert behind and entered the hills, long, rolling hills, grassy hills dotted with cattle, with a background of purple mountains on the dim horizon. Later, hours later it seemed to Brenda, they reached the ranch. Mrs. Borden, a motherly sort of person, who had served as the Dou-

Dieppe Channel Helpful, Hazardous to All Invaders

The French coast, near Dieppewhere the first American forces landed—presents both favorable and unfavorable physical conditions to the United Nations invaders.

Out of the English channel rise the sheer, white cliffs of Normandy, here and there cut by river valleys. Before the war, stretches of beaches at their bases were thronged with vacationists at this time of the year. A rocky shelf, dry at low tide, extends all along the Dieppe coast. This shelf is generally not more than 200 yards wide.

To invasion forces, one disadvantage is that the beach shores on which landings may be made from small boats are often in the shadow of commanding bluffs, from which the enemy could launch counterattacks.

The whole northern coast of France is considered dangerous for normal shipping because of its many offshore rocks and shallows, its unequal depths, and its tricky currents. On the other hand, hazards which are known may turn out to be advantages in military operations where special craft may be evolved to meet the necessities. The prevalent fogs of the area, too, though feared by peacetime mariners, are today valuable for protective cover. Toward the eastern end of the English channel, where Dieppe is situated, the fogs are so common, especially in summer, that the land in some sections is almost never clear of mist.

Pictures in Human Eye

Pictures formed on the retina of the human eye often are incredibly tiny; for small objects the retinal images may be less than one-thou-sandth of an inch in diameter, according to the Better Vision institute. The size of an image on the retina is determined by the angle of the light rays reflected to the eye by an object. The farther away an object, the smaller is the angle of its reflected light rays, and the smaller is the image on the retina. This explains why persons look no bigger than ants when viewed from a height. The smallest angle in which an object can be recognized by the human eye is about one

IMPROVED Milk Quota Can Be Eaten In Many Delicious Forms UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Milk is a cheap food at any cost, considering the food value it gives. Grownups as well as children need esson it; and from a pint to a quart a day should be allowed for each cago member of the family. The fact that milk is the sole food of the new-born infant and that it continues to be a main influence in his diet throughout childhood shows its importance to growth. A young child can get the material he needs for building strong bones and teeth only through milk.

Milk is rich in the minerals calcium and phosphorus. In addition, whole milk has a high place among foods because of the quality of its protein (ranking with meat, eggs and fish), the value, abundance and variety of its vitamins, and the energy which its fat and sugar yield. The daily quota of milk can be eaten through other forms than fresh whole milk, as in cheese, milk soups, or creamed dishes, but substitution of cheese for all of the daily milk quota is not recommended. It is better for adults to use part milk and part cheese.

The following are about equal in the food values for which milk is primarily important: 1 quart of fluid whole milk; 17 ounces of evaporated milk, 1 quart of skim milk plus 1½ ounces of butter; 5 ounces of American (Cheddar) cheese; 4½ ounces of dried whole milk; and $3\frac{1}{2}$ ounces of dried skim milk plus 11/2 ounces of butter.

"We went to work betimes." This laconic entry in a pioneer American's journal is the sole record of the o' ance of New Year's in 1621 by the Pilgrims in the New world.

Many a good Puritan minister regarded the celebration or even thought of New Year's day as an irreverent and impious observance honoring the Roman God Janus, from whom the year's first month derives its name.

Yet the Pilgrims and Puritans came from a land where New Year's eve and New Year's day were second in importance only to Christmas. Throughout every English county New Year's eve was always celebrated. In many districts it was called by the name of "Singing E'en," from the custom which obtained of singing the last of the Christmas carols at that time.

Important Day

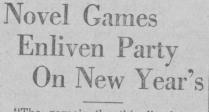

New Year's is the biggest festival of the year in China. All the people -rich and poor alike-have to dress up and go out in the streets and

To Be Winter Toughened The chukar partridge, first introduced in Minnesota four and a half years ago, when 200 birds were re-leased in five counties, shows promise of becoming an important addi-tion to the state's upland game species, according to the department of conservation. A state-wide survey late last winter resulted in actual observation of 461 covies totaling 8,790 chukars, mainly in the eastern part of the state. If, as has been estimated for pheasants in Minnesota, only 10 per cent of the birds present are actually seen, this would mean more than 50,000 chukars now present. In addition, approximately 15,000 of these birds will be released this spring from the Carlos Avery game farm. The chukar has proved unusually hardy under winter conditions. Following 1940's Armistice day storm, it was observed that birds "pecked their way out of ice-covered snow drifts in about the same way chicks emerge from the egg shell."

"The game's the thing" when a group gathers to celebrate New Year's. A few novel ideas help promote a spirit of informality and bridge any dull period until all the guests get well acquainted.

Since New Year's day is traditionally the time for people to make resolutions, a game centering around this topic will make an instant hit. There is one called "Mixed Resolutions" that will fill the bill for fun-making in any crowd.

Just seat the group in a circle and give each person a paper and pencil. Then tell everybody to put down the name of the hostess and the resolution they think she should make for the ensuing year. Then the name of each guest's right and left hand neighbor, with appropri-ate resolutions until the entire crowd is covered. No names are signed, so the sky is the limit as far as resolutions go.

Week's Confession.

When all the names have been accounted for, the hostess collects the sheets of paper, reading all the resolutions for herself and each guest. While your guests are still in a circle, have pencils in their hands, there is another slight variation of an old game that applies admirably to a New Year's party and that will create plenty of hilarity. Just furnish your guests with sheets of paper marked into seven divisions to resemble a week's page from a diary.

Direct each person to sign his name at the top and then pass the slip to the right. Players are then asked to write on the first line an account of what they did on Monday. The slips are then passed along until the entire week is accounted for.

The climax comes when each player rises in turn and reads the name at the top of the page and then the confession which follows below. the confession

'Time' Identified.

And while we are on the subject of slips of paper, there is still another game that will serve to while away some merry moments. The subject of this game may be "Time." That being the case, prepare the slips of paper, writing on each a different variety of time, such as Killing Time, Beating Time, Saving Time, Marking Time, Father Time, Losing Time, March of Time, Nick o' Time, Waltz Time, Night Time, Supper Time, Summer Time and so on. Make two copies of every slip. Give one to each girl and place the rest in a box.

Ask the men to form a single line and draw a slip from the box. After each man reads his slip to himself, he demonstrates in pantomime the kind of time he represents, so each girl can identify her partner for the next activity. The pantomime is continued until all the "times" are identified.

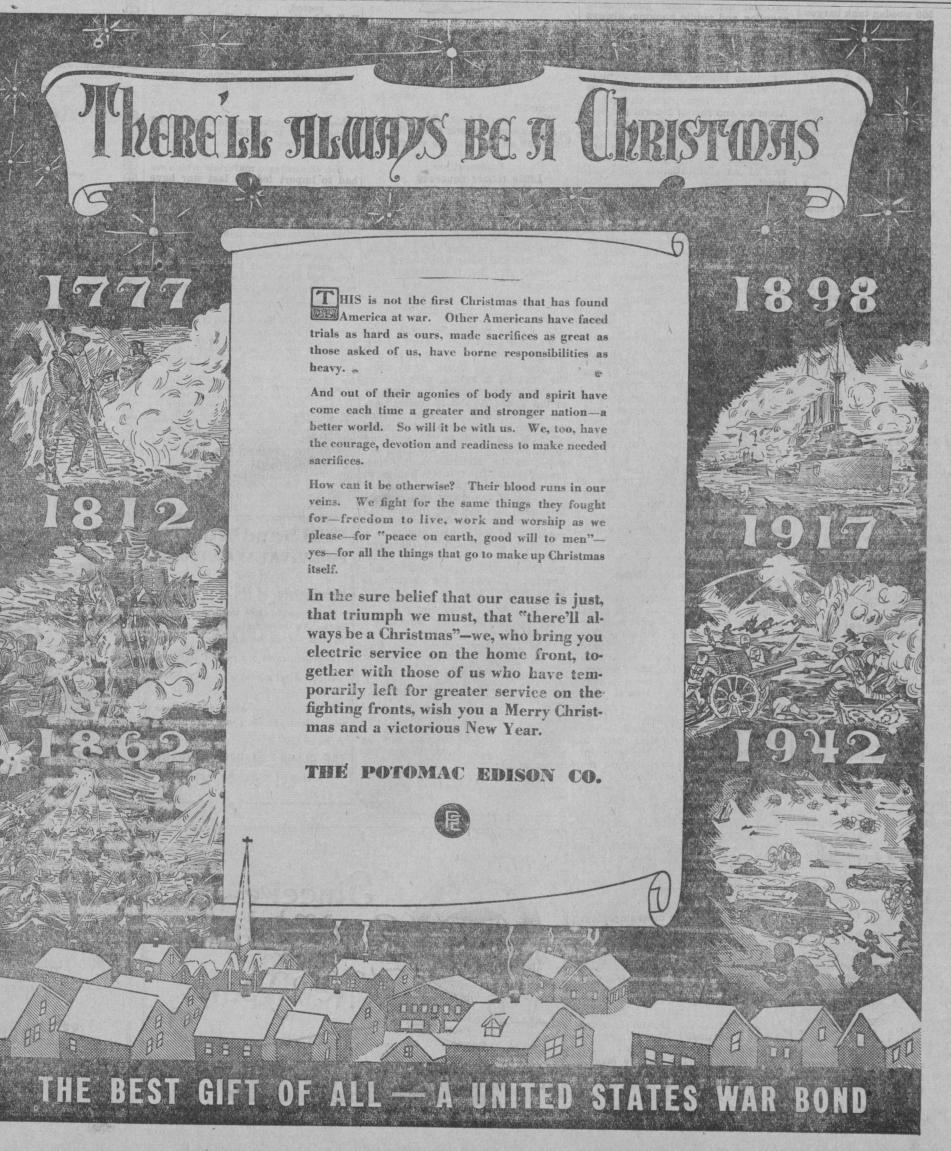

Richardson's Owl

Into the life of a bird-bander there comes now and then a special thrill, as it did to Herbert B. Southam, Toronto ornithologist, who was sum-moned to a near-by woodland and swamp by a small boy who had 'found an owl."

In this particular spot near Lake Ontario the snow does not lie deep; mice and rabbits appear in numbers, and owls arrive for food, writes Hugh M. Halliday in Nature magazine.

No net was needed to capture it. for all we had to do was to lift it from its branch. In contrast with the saw-whet owl it was gentle, and when we replaced it on its branch it rewarded us with a far-off liquid note like the voice of a fairy from some bubbling spring in a woodland dell.

In its home in the north the owl had learned no fear of man, and in 13 years there had been only three records of the appearance of this species in the Toronto area. Richardson's owl is a nocturnal bird, known to the Eskimos of Alaska as "the blind one."

timony in the coming months.

The profound depth of these verses is beyond the deepest thinker, but their glorious message of redemption is simple enough for the understanding of the youngest child. We may receive truth which we cannot fully understand and be blessed by it.

II. In the World-the True Light (vv. 4-11).

He is both the life and the light of men. In fact, His life was the light that shined (yes, and still shines) in the darkness of this world, revealing God's love. But the world did not receive the light. His own world knew Him not (v. 10). How tragic! Yet even deeper is the hurt of verse 11-His own people received Him not. And it is so today. Nations refuse His light upon world problems and try to fight them out. Class hatred; capital against labor; the "have" against the "have not"; yes, even the bitter fightings between professed Christians, all bespeak the fact that the shining of the "true light which lighteth every man" has not been permitted to penetrate very far into this dark world.

However, it has reached, by God's grace, into the hearts of believers. and there it has brought forth glorious results.

III. In the Believer-Power and Glory (vv. 12-14)

Those who receive Christ are born again. It is not a matter of "blood that is, of family or heredity. Nor is it "by the will of the flesh," that is, by natural instinct or development of an inherent divine spark. And it is not by "the will of man," for it does not come by human will power

It is "of God," a divine rebirth which gives power in the life, and authority to declare one's self to be the child of God (v. 12). This is all so clear and so altogether desirable for both time and eternity that one wonders why all do not at once turn to Christ as Saviour. Have you?

The believer also sees in the Word which "was made flesh and dwelt among us," the glory of "the only begotten of the Father." All that such an expression means we shall not know until we reach eternity, but that does not prevent the believer from beholding, by the eye of faith, his glorious Saviour, the One who is "full of grace and truth."

John, the "man sent from God" (v. 6), was a witness to the Light to the intent that men "might believe." We, too, are to be witnesses, and that includes every one of us who knows Jesus Christ as Redeemer and Lord.

If we will all thus fulfill the responsibility and privilege which is ours, we may see in 1943 a real revival of spiritual life and power. No need is greater than that, and we could render God and our fellow men no greater service. This New Year's Sunday is the right time to make a start. Shall we do it?

WEEK OF THE WAR

"There is no hope for any lessening of the restrictions upon the use of gasoline and fuel oil," OES Director Byrnes said after a conference with the officials in charge of the nation's petroleum program. Mr. Byrnes asked the administrators of the three agencies responsible-the OPA, the ORT, and the Petroleum Administration for War-to submit as soon as possible their suggestions on various phases of the problem, and in the meantime to take steps to increase supply and improve rationing meth-

The immediate problem of petrol-eum is the result of unanticipated demands for military purposes. And since 30 states are fuel-oil-rationed and all of the states gas-rationed, the problem is of vital interest to the entire nation. The suspension order on the sale of gasoline in the 17 Eastern States and the District of Columbia lasted only a day and a half, but when the order was lifted at 12:01 A. M. December 21, B and C coupons in the area had been reduced in value from four to three gallons and the issuance of these books had been suspended. OPA said that when issuance is resumed a "new and tougher" policy will go into effect, with local ration boards instructed to hold issuance of extra rations to the "absolute minimum." Meanwhile, a new drive has been launched against black market operations, with 800 investigators in the east coast rationed area working to prevent illegal distribution. This means increased emphasis on strict enforcement of all gasoline rationing rgulations, and special attention giv-en to suppliers of T or commercial vehicles. Gasoline dealers have been told that they will be held "strictly accountable" for violations. The ODT asked all truck, bus and taxicab owners whose Certificates of War Necessity do not provide sufficient mileage and fuel allotments to cient mileage and fuel allotments to estimate their requirements carefully and apply for the minimum amount of fuel necessary for essential oper-ations. Secretary Wickard called on farmers in the East to cooperate to the utmost in conserving fuels and to buy only enough for current needs. And Petroleum Administrator Ickes, to safeguard the Atlantic seaboard's limited stocks, issued an order controlling the amounts of gasoline and fuel oil which may be withdrawn from each coast refineries and terminal supply points.

WPB has approved the barge, tug boat building program recommended by the ODT, and construction will be-gin shortly on 500 wooden tank barges 21 steel hull towboats and 100 tugboats, to enable an additional daily Eastward barge movement of 50,000 barrels of residual fuel oil within five months and 100,000 barrels within ten months. Terminals will be built at Jacksonville and Panama City, Fla, and at Cairo Ill, OPA has issued an amendment, permitting oil brought into the 30-State rationed area in the supply tanks of locomotives, boats, trucks or other motor vehicies to be consumed without a ration, as the use of this fuel does not deplete the sup-ply of oil in the rationed area. Those home-owners who have exhausted their currently valid fuel oil rations can now us up to one-half their cou-pons for the next heating period, and office building, apartment houses and other commercial buildings which, because of a lack of labor or materials, have been unable to convert heating equipment to coal, may use temporary fuel oil rations after the January 26 deadline. Due to the recent protracted spell of abnormally cold weather the value of fuel oil coupons has been increased in the 13 rationed Middle Western States-Class I coupons (home owners) valued at 11 galloos instead of 10, and Class II coupons (apartment houses, office buildings, etc.) valued at 110 gallons instead of 100—and consumers in the Eastern area may use their third-period fuel oil roupons any time after December 28th. Secretary Hull, describing the assassination of Admiral Darlan as "an odious and cowardly act," said that the all important consideration now is not to be "diverted for a moment from the supreme objective" of gaining control of the African continent and the Mediterranean. The battle, he said, is still at a crucial and critical said, is still at a crucial and critical stage, and Gen. Eisenhower and his associates need the fullest measure of unified support. Earlier, Secretary of War Stimson told a press confer-ence that Allied forces on the offen-sive in Tunisia have a "fairly good margin" of superiority over the Axis formes defonding Tunis and Bizerte forces defending Tunis and Bizerte, and added that in the air our margin of destruction is holding at a rate of about two to one. Both sides are bringing reinforcements into Tunisia, but "our side is preparing for an of-fensive to take Tunis and Bizerte" the Axis has advantage in existing bases, but the Allies have the advant-age in the mounting size of their forces and the development of new bases Meanwhile, land activity has flared up in Tunisia, as Allied forces occu-pied a dominating position near Med-jez-el-Bab. Allied fighters continued their sweeps and patrols over the forward area, attacking Axis vehicles and destroying Axis planes. In the South Pacific on Christmas Day, a flight of Army Flying For-tresses took off from the airfield at Guadalcanal to bomb Japanese shipbritain Island. They scored three direct hits on a large transport or cargo ship and several near hits close to three smaller cargo vessels. The day before Christmas, U. S. planes from Guadalcanal bombed and strafed the Jananese airfield and shore installations at Munda on' New Georgia Island, downed 14 intercepting enemy planes and destroyed 10 more on the ground. All the U. S. planes returned undamaged.

Americans Not Singing Like in First World War

The complaint is heard today that Americans are not singing as they did during the preceding war; that spirit is lacking, that new songs do not hit the spot, and that a revival in singing old ballads and patriotic songs is needed in every neighborhood

An army officer is quoted as saying that besides munitions of war, four things are needed for the success of any army: Food, clothing, shelter, and music. Another officer is credited with saying: "A silent army never wins victories."

To do something about this, at least in rural areas of the state, a wartime recreation committee has been appointed at the colleges of agriculture and home economics at Cornell university. Their job is to decide how the extension service, which includes county agricultural, home demonstration, and 4-H club agents and farm and home leaders, can revive interest and enthusiasm for singing in rural neighborhoods throughout New York. It is felt that wars are dreary and tragic and that the inspiration of music is needed to help endure it.

Members of this committee are Prof. Dwight Sanderson, head of the department of rural sociology; Mary Eva Duthie, Earl A. Flansburgh, Eunice Heywood, William Smith Jr., Margaret Wylie, and Dorothy De-Lany, all college staff members.

Professor Says 'New Age' Will Follow Present War

"golden age" of American art will flourish in the postwar period, Prof. Emerson H. Swift of the Co-lumbia University fine arts depart-ment predicted at the university's summer session.

"History shows that all the great art periods developed immediately after important wars," Dr. Swift said. "This factor, as well as the encouragement of native-trained artistic and the great investigation artists and the great improvement in the public's artistic taste within the past 25 years will be responsible for this new era of art in the United States.

"Until recently America lacked the background to produce a great national art. Official government sanction and public backing, always necessary to the growth of a great artistic period, was lacking. Art was a luxury reserved for the wellto-do and mainly the product of European trained men and women. "Since the war has shifted the center of culture from Europe to America and recent federal projects have helped to popularize art and bring it to the public's attention, we can now look forward to the emergence of an important art period of our civilization in this country.'

functions. Dr. Robert F. Ridpath, of Temple university, Philadelphia, in a recent address to the American Medical association explained how we get our tenors and basses and also our coloratura sopranos.

"The character of the adult voice depends on the size, shape and length of the vocal cords and this again depends on the age of ado-lescence," he said. "Those whose voice assumes the tenor quality, for instance, mature early. The larynx, which up to the beginning of sexual life is infantile in character, grows more rapidly at this time, with resulting diminution in size of the anatomic members and shortness of the cords.

Not Great Ice Age Relics

Glaciers in the Sierra Nevada mountains are geologically recent in origin, not relics of the Great Ice age, as tourists are informed by guides. Both the glaciers and Owens lake are less than 4,000 years old, Dr. Francois Matthes, of the United States geological survey, says. And 4,000 years back is only yesterday in the geological time scale.

"From its salt content," Dr. Matthes says, "it is clear that Owens lake cannot possibly date back to the Great Ice age. The lake appears to be the same age as the small glaciers of the Sierra Nevadas. It is probable that these glaciers made their last great advance as recently as 1850. If the glaciers were older than 4,000 years they would have deposited much more material. They cannot possibly date back more than 10,000 years to the Ice age.'

India's Rice

CARLES / Minthew

Rice is by far the most important food crop of India. The diet of the bulk of the rural and urban population, except in wheat-producing areas consists mainly of rice. Rice occupies approximately 23 per cent of the cultivated area and from 31 to 33 per cent of the food crop area, but the rice acreage is not uniform-ly distributed, the greater part being concentrated in the eastern and northeastern part adjacent to Burma. India has the world's largest acreage under rice and is second only to China as a producer. In 1941 India's rice output from 72 million acres was 57 billion pounds.
