CONCERNING WILD RABBITS

"Enjoy the wild rabbits, but be careful," Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, advises all who handle the animals. "Meat rationing makes rabbit more welcome than ever as an addition to restricted wartime menus, and it can help provide some essentials of an adequate diet. Do not forget, however, that tularemia, also called rabbit fever, is usually given to human beings through contact with infected animals or with the infected insects that transmit the disease from one rabbit to another.

"A few precautions can make your enjoyment safe. First of all, take only the lively rabbits with energy to scomper away as you approach. After the rabbit has been caught handle the animal and the uncooked meat carefully. Use gloves rather than bare hands, particularly if you have even a small cut or scratch on your hand. Keep your hands away from your face mouth and eyes and wash your hands thoroughly as soon as you finish preparing the meat. Burn all refuse, fur and paper that has touched the rabbit. Finally, cook thoroughly, including at least twenty minutes at boiling tempera-

the way of life under which we are now forced to live. But the bureaucrats are not to take the whole weight of the blame. We need to get back of the bureaucrats and find the men in Congress and in places of executive authority who create the bureaus. They are the fellows, along with the bureaucrats who continually beg for more authority and power, who deserve a good solid kick in the pants, or several of them. And when we start trying to find the fellows responsible it will be well to take a good look in the mirror. That is often made plain by speakers who know, and Taneytown had a real example of it two weeks ago when Congressmman Karl E. Mundt of South Dakota addressed the Chamber of Commerce at its annual banquet.

As long as we want paternalistic government, handing out favors and doing for us the things we should do for ourselves, of course we will have bureaus multiplied and that means bureaucrats.

The government at Washington is meddling with thousands of things that are not, and never were, the business of government.

What we need to do is to get some common sense into our heads about ourselves to correcting troubles at and extraordinary opportunities. the theory of government, and set find ourselves in the front line to be istic of the period we are about to the bureaucrat is destined to feel his the source. So, if there is no turkey in Rome and no Christmas at home, a sense of disappointment and war fatigue might ensue, to German advantage M. ROSS FAIR in wangling something better than unconditional surrender.

Another type of war is the one which blinds Americans to the fact of the acute precariousness of their anti-inflation effort.

A Senate subcommittee is about to recommend that 1,100,000 nonoperating rail employees be given increases of eight cents an hour. If approved, this will mean the Little land. Steel formula is breached for this important working group by Congressional order. And if it is broken for the coal miners and railroaders, how can it fairly be held against the rest? And if wages are not held, how can prices be kept under ceilings?

And if prices are not held, what is to shield the great mass of the unorganized who have low, fixed wages or incomes? And what is left to keep the whole national economy lean and healthy, so it can exchange goods and services with other nations of the post-war world without the protective tariffs that inflated We frequently print editorials in economies require, and which are a which bureaucrats are lambasted for constant source of friction, an ani- old age insurance, etc. He is worried war maker.

A man in a far Western city who owns his home and has a family, is now earning approximately $92.00 weekly. His is not a temporary war job. He works in the communications industry. He is an almost invisible speck in what is so popularly called middle class America. He is a good citizen—the best type that this country can produce.

But the middle class American is worried. Every other week when he receives his check, he finds that $45 has been deducted—taxes, bonds, mator of nationalism and a prime because he is thrifty and that $45 deduction virtually eliminates the possibility of gradually accumulating savings, that is, savings over which he can exercise his individual judgment. The $45 taken from him every two weeks is subtracted from his check by the company for which At a Forum on Current Problems | he works. He never sees it. # Yule Wreaths Easy to Make

This year, the home wreath maker can use a bit of ingenuity and concoct perhaps handsomer wreaths than ever.

Wire is scarce, so unless last year's wire frame was saved, a substitute will be needed. Some people twist two or more small, tough switches from hazel, maple or dogwood. They use this, bound with moss, as a base for the holly or evergreen wreath.

A wire coat hanger, bent to circular shape, is good for a wreath, and has the merit of being universally obtainable.

The evergreens or holly to be used for making the wreath should be cut into short lengths, longer for a large wreath, shorter for one of small diameter, but about six inches the general length.

The short sections are gathered into little bunches and wired onto the wire foundation. Strong green cord can be used to fasten them on, too, wrapping it over and over around the frame. Small wire is better if obtainable.

Another way of making a wreath is to wire each small bunch of the greens onto a toothpick, then stick these into the moss-covered framework. But for this method there must be a framework an inch or two broad instead of a single wire

Holly, spruce, Douglas fir, cedar and many of the ornamental nursery varieties of evergreens may be used to make the wreath.

Pleasant Work

There's no shirking on this job. Each of the willing helpers knows that in a few days a brightly wrapped package will be waiting under the gaily lighted tree. And nothing could be fairer than that.

Shepherd's Pie Best Meal in Single Dish

A shepherd's pie is a one-piece dish. It originated in the Balkans. The Balkan shepherds probably learned of the dish from a still old er land because it is known that shepherds have lived among their flocks since the dim ages. They ate their meals far from their homes or villages, cooking them on the spot. There was only a crude fire and generally but one dish in which to cook the entire meal.

Although it is primitive and simple, a shepherd's pie is a wholesome and delicious meal in one dish. In his kettle, the shepherd boils his rice and saves what he does not eat immediately. For a later meal, he first takes bits of lamb and with slices of onion, places this upon a skewer and browns the meat and onion over a bed of coals.

Then he greases the inside of his dish and covers the bottom with a half-inch layer of left-over rice. Over the rice he slices a tomato. If he has a green pepper, thin slices of pepper are added. Some of the meat and onion are added for another layer. Then salt and pepper, more rice and the rest of the meat and tomatoes and peppers. And finally a top layer of rice.

Last of all, he pours over the mixture enough broth, or hot water if there is no broth, to about reach the top of the pie. Bake for threequarters of an hour in a medium oven. When the top is browned, the pie is leady to eat.

The modern housewife can follow the same recipe, only she can cook the meat and the onion in a frying pan and use canned tomatoes if she prefers. The pie will bake even better in a good oven at about 450 degrees. The family casserole is a handy dish in which to make the pie. With a pound of left-over lamb as the base, here is a good meal

Christmas in Spring

Quartodecimans, a small sect of early Christians, observed Christmas on the 25th of March, just after the vernal equinox. Their assumption of the date of Christ's birth was based on Pilate's words and acts Threatened with excommunication they finally gave in at the Council

Baffling Problem

The proper celebration of Christmas has been improved, but there still is the problem of getting a sixfoot Christmas tree home in an overcoat pocket.

Guard Duty

No-this sailor isn't gunning for Santa Claus. In fact, he's on friendly terms with the old gentleman. He is merely standing guard at the Administration building of the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

Poinsettia, Christmas Flower

That Thrives in Warm Clime The poinsettia is a native of Mexico and South America and thrives in the southern United States.

The true flower of the poinsettia is not the brilliant red. The flower is the small and inconspicuous center of delicate green buds. Examination will show that the colorful 'flower'' consists of a few topmost bracts that have turned from green to red, like autumn leaves.

Poinsettia is a four-syllable word.
The correct pronunciation being poin-SET-i-uh.

Set Date for Christ's Birth in Fourth Century

Strangely, no one knows the exact date of the birth of Christ. Until some time in the Fourth century, Christmas (Christ's Mass) was vari ously celebrated on January 6, February 2, March 25, April 19, May 20 and November 17. In 1644, the English parliament passed an act forbidding the observance of Christmas. Later Charles II revived the Feast, as Christmas then was called.

'Silent Night' 'Silent Night, Holy Night! All is calm, all is bright: Round you Virgin, Mother and Child

The Christmas carol which has stirred the world by the depth of its understanding, the strength of its emo-tional appeal and its simplicity of diction, was given to the world by a priest and the teacher in his parish.

Written for a Christmas festival in 1818 by Joseph Mohr and put to music by Franz Gruber, "Stille Nacht" was finished in a little village in Austria. Received with delight by enthusiastic parishioners, this carol found its way around a world that seemed to be lis tening for just this echo of the angel

Christmas Gifts Unknown In Most European Nations

Outside of England and the Teutonic countries, Christmas gifts are unknown in the Old World. In Latin countries, including France, gifts are exchanged on New Year's day.

In England, usually on the first weekday after Christmas, "Boxing day" is observed. Packages, small gifts, and gratuities are given to postmen, errand boys, tradesmen, porters, charwomen, etc.

Good Example

Proving that Santa Claus is patriotic as well as generous, he places a pair of war bonds in this well-filled stocking. More and more people are giving war bonds as Christmas presents, thus aiding their country's war efforts as well as simplifying their yule shopping.

Night Before Christmas Now I lay me down to rest, Angels guard my little nest. Like the wee birds in the tree, Heavenly Father, care for me.

St. Nicholas Fiorida, Minnesota and Pennsylvania have towns named after St. Nicholas, the Christmas saint.

"YoumeanIdon't need any coupons for ELECTRICITY even now?

No points, no coupons-no rationing of electricity.

Not that it's any less important than food, or fuel, or shoes. In fact, electric power has rightly been called the life-blood of war production.

But our government does ask all of us to use electricity wisely. Even though there's no shortage in sight, the making of electricity requires manpower, fuel, transportation and critical materials -things on which war has first call today.

So, be as careful with electricity as with coupons. Use all you need—but need all you use.

FEESERSBURG

Monday, Nov. 29—a bright frosty morning, at 10:30 the fields still are white with frost—looking like a light snow, and of course there's a cold snappy air; but on the eve of December what else can we expect. Do you remember when we trudged to school all bundled up on such mornings and tried to skate by the wayside? Now people wear little clothing and skate all summer on rollers. Yes there's been some changes.

This coming Sunday at 7:30 P. M. there will be the annual Thank-of-fering service at Mt. Union, with the pastor, Rev. Bowersox in charge. Mrs. Charles D. Schaffer of Westminster will give an illustrated talk —which you'll enjoy, and there'll be music and plenty of singing; the of-fering of thanks for the Blessings of another will be counted. Will be pleased to have you present.

Wasn't that a beautiful Thanksgiving Day? So sorry to miss church but was told they had a good service in Union Bridge, Rev.
O. Osteen of the Methodist Church spoke well on "Thinks we have to be thankful for and some things we don't have for which to give thanks. This Union Service was in the Lutheran Church. Mrs. Vernon Glardhill organist, and the Junior Choir sang a thanksgiving prayer for an offering anthem. The offering as usual was given to the Red Cross Asso.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lesight, after ten days at home left on Sunday morning for Camp Elkins, W. Va after home and familiar friends, and freedom-it is hard to return to strict discipline and heavy training but as A. Lincoln reported "This too will pass.'

|Cletus (Pete) Grinder left early Friday morning for a camp in Tenn., after two weeks at home, where he was treated royally—which he thoroughly enjoyed; but "there's a thorn for every rose" tis said.

Our friend Master Sgt. Frederick R. Crouse, son of Wilfred and Carrie Bowman Crouse, who is with the Allied Force Headquarters in Northern Africa, on Oct. 26, 1943, was honored with a special ceremony and awarded the Legion of Merit, which few of our boys have won. He has been in service nearly 3 years, and overseas 18 months; 6 months in England, and one year in Africa.
Sgt. Crouse, 24 years of age, is a graduate of the Elmer A. Wolfe
High School, Class of 1937; and in June 1941 married Miss Ruth Minor, shortly before leaving the U.S. She shortly before leaving the U.S. She too is employed at Camp Holabird, Baltimore, but is at home 2013 Dukeland St., Baltimore. Fred is a fine young man, and evidently was stood in favor with his officers from the first. We are proud of him, and congratulate him, and his parents. His brother Charley Crouse is serving in the Navy but still in U. S. territory. God biess our boys.

The Roger Sentz family were all sick last week. Mrs. Sentz with a bealing in her head, sinus trouble and sore throat—any one is bad enough, the small son Stewart suffering from an attack of pyelitis; the little daughter Sharon had the grippe, and Roger a heavy cold that sticks and they are planning to move to New Windsor this week.

Miss Mary Bostian who is employed at the Woman's Hospital, Balti-more, was home two days at the end of the week. She is well and likes her work.

A nice bed-time surprise on Friday evening was 1½ cords of good wood hauled to us at 9 o'clock. So glad to have wood to burn in kitchen range; and sometimes we do believe that "all things cometh to him that waits-long enough."

Then on Saturday night there was another surprise in our town when about 15 friends of Miss Arlene Grinder gathered at her home while she was away, then brought back and she was sent into turn on the light in the parlor, and they began singing "Happy Birthday to You." Of course they had a jolly evening, and she received pretty cards, beautiful gifts--wearing apparel, and toiletries, including a handsome bureau set of crystal and ivory. The refreshments were bounteous including a splendid three-tiered cake with white and pink icing in fancy design supporting 18 candles. The real birthday was on Monday 29th—and may she enjoy more.

Once a fellow and his girl were out walking in town and when passing a restaurant she remarked— "oh don't those oysters smell good" and he replied "yes they do; lets stand her and smell 'em awhile"; so we were invited to Thanksgiving dinner -where the spread table looked so good. We proposed standing and looking at it—but did our part when seated. Only thinking of the many who lacked America's Blessings, make us humbly grateful.

Several neighbors have big butcherings this week 5 to 8 hogs—while those of last week have finished and had fine weather for the out-door work, and cold enough to keep the meat safely. #### DETROIT LETTER

We wrote you last week about the difficulties the OPA was having with the army of deer hunters, in the matter of so-called wasting of gaso-line to make the trip to the Northwoods, the great grounds for these animals. The fight is still going on, or rather was until last Sunday, when the new gas coupons became valid. I do not know which crowd is the victor, but itors over the week-end. Pfc. Robert this is certain-13 and maybe more men have paid for their desire of this sport with their lives. An outsider can surely find it hard to be-lieve that any man could mistake a hunter in red for a deer or bear, but we read of just such things hap-pening. We wonder if it pays to run the risk of losing a man's life for the sport and a few red stamps, that would be sayed in the matter of securing a supply of vension or

Not all are included in this class, but here is an example of what I am trying to get at. Formerly they went to work whenever they pleased, and did what they felt like doing. when they hire in at this particular plant, all this is changed, and they resent being "shoved around," as they call being under the orders of a foreman. And they do not like the living conditions either, as desirable homes are hard to find, and the quarters provided for them at Willow Lodge do not look very inviting. low Lodge do not look very inviting. And the food does not suit them, as one of them said, "It's not like that which Mamny cooks." So often they take one look around, and maybe work one day, and then head back home. Sometimes they take a second training active but not often as ond try and return, but not often as agricultural pursuits are more suited to their fixed habits, and where For every pound of fat a houseife turns in to her meat dealer or

10. "Put the salvager of the sal the large war-working plants, this sometimes badly upsets the programs laid cut, and you can readily see why specially trained men are needed, and why the Ford organizaes do not always see it that way, and then there is trouble.

We read an amusing story the other day which illustrates the difference—even in the money line— hetween their lives in the Sunny South and this so-called dynamic city. A lanky, tall Southerner was standing near the corner of a build-ing, holding a $50.00 bill in his hand. He had just been paid off, and this was part of his pay, and something seemed to bother him. He saw a fellow worker whom he knew, and crooking his finger, he beckoned to him, and holding out the Bill, said, "Is this all right?" Even after being assured that it was, he was not satisfied until he had it changed into smaller denominations, which looked more familiar to him But we do not think that many of those who worked with him would have had any doubt as to the genuineness of a Bill twice that size in amount, as the merchants, especially those who handle expensive clothing—sealskin coats, etc., can testify. But not all those who are getting used to such big money, are so wasteful. We have a friend who told us that he had already accumulated $3,000 in War Bonds, which he intended putting into a farm down in his native state of Tennessee, after the war is over, and we have no doubt that there are thousands just like him. But it is a temptation to thousands who have experienced the privations of the past 12 years, to spend the large sums that are now being handed out to them, and they are surely doing just what was done in World War No. 1, and we are afraid that when the end of this prosperous era comes, they will have to pass through the same experience as did the silk-shirted, sealskin spenders then.

I hope you will excuse the absence of news in this letter, and I hope to do better the next time JOHN J. REID.

Treat Like Glass

The fine enameled surface of a cast iron enameled fixture, whether it is in white or color, in regular enamel or acid-resisting enamel, should be treated like glass. Actually it is glass. It is made from the same material and will scratch like glass. Don't cut vegetables, shred greens, slice fruits or melons on the enameled drainboards. Use a wooden cutting board. Don't drag or scrape pots, pans, dishes, canning covers, and jars across the drainboards or sink basin.

THIS 'peace on earth, good will toward men' stuff gives me a pain," Darl said. He laughed cynically, looking down into the girl's troubled eyes. "It gets me how you got hooked into it, Pam. Why don't you look the thing squarely in the face and realize it's the bunk!"

"You must be blind!" Pamela cried. "There are thousands and thousands of people who give things."

"O.K., honey." He smiled. "We look at it differently. The way I figure it, a man never does something for nothing. If he isn't rewarded with material gain, then he's rewarded by having his vanity salved. There's always a selfish motive behind a so-called act of kindness, no matter which way you figure it. But it isn't important. What is important is that it's Christmas and you and I are in love and we ought to think of celebrating."

"It is important, Darl." Her voice was suddenly vibrant. "It's important to me to show you that you're wrong. I couldn't be happy with a man who had those ideas." And then, seeing the expression on his face, her tone softened. "Oh, I know it seems silly to you—quarreling about something so trite. But to me it isn't trite. Oh, Darl, let me show you how wrong you are!"

The streets were festive. Colored lights and greenery showed in every window. Lighted trees were on every street corner. Pam stopped the car while a group of carol singers trooped by. A girl with a tambourine thrust a smiling face against the coupe window. She dropped coins into it and smiled and said, "Merry Christmas."

They left the gaily lighted streets Pam turned into a side street. She stopped before a house and sounded her horn. A moment later a small, middle-aged lady came bustling out. She carried a basket. Pam opened the door for her, and introduced Darl. Her name was Kimball.

"Well!" said the little lady. "This is nice. I suppose you're the young man to whom Miss Tripp is engaged."

'Yes, we're engaged," Darl said. He wondered what she had in the basket. She was so poorly dressed, so frail and appeared so undernourished. But there was a sparkle in her eyes. But instead of driving back to the city, Pam drove across the railroad tracks and into the desolate, illlighted thoroughfares of Jaytown.

At last they stopped before a dilapidated tenement house. They entered a dark, cold hall, mounted stairs and rapped on a door. A weak voice bade them enter.

The room was warmer than the hall outside, lighted with a kerosene lamp. A woman lay in bed, a child cradled in her arms. Mrs. Kimball matter-of-factly stirred up the fire, produced candles and lighted them. Pamela straightened things in the room with surprising efficiency. The woman in the bed watched from hollow eyes while Mrs. Kimball unpacked her basket, set out a pitifully small supply of foodstuffs, some strings of popcorn, the green bough of a pine tree, an orange, two apples, a bottle of milk.

The sick woman's eyes were eager, grateful as the things appeared. In no time at all the pine bough was arranged on the table, the strings of popcorn draped over it, oranges placed at its base, two candles on either side.

Darl's forehead wrinkled. He saw the glow on Mrs. Kimball's face, the sparkle in her eyes. She was poor. She was doing all she could, and the woman in the bed knew this. She was giving back gratitude and warmth of feeling and love.

They left Mrs. Kimball and drove back to the city. They stopped near the park to listen to the carol singers. Pam looked at him. "Did it mean anything to you, Darl? Do you see what I mean?"

Darl thought of the woman in the bed and Mrs. Kimball. "It's a self-ish motive," he thought. And aloud he said: "I never thought about it this way before, but isn't it nice we have such-selfish people as Mrs. Kimball and Pamela Tripp?"

Pamela nestled against his shoulder. "And Darl Holloway," she added. Associated Newspapers-WNU Features.

Even Santa Claus is smiling at the general hilarity occasioned by his visit to a naval training station. The recruits in front of the barracks may be many miles from home, but they're still celebrating Christmas with as much enthusiasm as ever.

Family Reunions Are Yule Custom

Christmas is a homey time. Family dinner parties and reunions are a traditional part of the holiday sea-son in America, and this year more than ever we will be celebrating Christmas at home.

You can add a festive note to these family get-togethers by turning them into Christmas parties. Don't plan anything elaborate-just think up some simple invitations and a game or two. Your regular Christmas decorations will provide the set-

For the invitations cut out paper snow balls, Santa Clauses or Christmas trees and write or print the invitation in ink of a contrasting color. Or buy small candy canes and attach a red paper tag with the invitation in white ink. If you're ambitious you might try writing a verse for these invitations.

From ordinary paper bags you can make party hats and head bands for the guests. Turn the top edge of the bag back in a roll until the, "hat" is the right height. Paint or paste a Christmas design on these hats and they will be ready and waiting for the party. For the headbands cut strips of paper bag 21/2 inches wide and decorate with gold stars, paper Christmas trees, holly, poinsettias, or cotton snowmen.

Games.

Christmas Toy Introductions. When the members of the group are not acquainted with each other, this game will work out very nicely. Give each person a small tag on which has been written the name of some toy or object or subject of Christmas. On the back of each of these tags are written commands such as "Introduce yourself to Teddy Bear." "See that the train meets the wag-"Discuss the price of eggs with the top." These cards must be prepared beforehand and arranged so that everyone keeps moving about introducing and being introduced to

"Tip."-An English Game used at Christmas Time. Have nuts, candies, pop corn balls, etc., piled in center of table. One player leaves the room and the others select an object as "Tip." The absent player is called into the room and selects an object. He must avoid "Tip" and may have anything he gets. If "Tip" is chosen he loses his turn and must forfeit anything he has already won. A new "Tip" is chosen each time a player leaves.

A Pop Corn Relay-This is lots of fun. Divide contestants into two groups. At one end of the room are fastened the ends of two long strings of very strong linen thread with a needle on each of the other ends, stuck in a stationary cork lying on a table beside two bowls of popcorn with exactly the same number of kernels in each. Each player threads a kernel of corn on the string and runs with it to the other end of the room. The contest continues until one bowl is emptied by a team. Greeting Contest. Write out the well-known poem, "The Night Before Christmas," on slips of paper, one line to a slip. Separate the odd lines from the even lines, and give the odd slips to the men and the even ones to the women. Read the poem and announce that each player is to find the person holding the line that rhymes with his. The partners are then given pencil and paper and told to write as many forms of Christmas greetings as they can in five minutes. The winning couple receives a peppermint candy cane.

Some of these suggestions for Christmas fun have been taken from The Christmas Book, by Marguerite Ickis, a compilation of background materials and suggestions for celebrating Christmas. The material includes interesting facts about Christmas customs in other lands, ideas for parties and social activities, music, drama, decorations, and refreshments. The book is available for 50 cents from the National Recreation Association, 315 Fourth Avenue, New

Simple Life

By KARL GRAYSON Associated Newspapers. WNU Features.

MAN can't kidnap his own wife And yet Gilbert Hynes felt as though he were. He was forcing Serena to take this trip against her will. And he was going to force her to do things during the next six months that might be considered brutal, if you didn't know the circumstances.

The canoe in which they had been riding since early morning swung around a bend and Gilbert drove its bow into a little sandy beach. There was a clearing beyond, and a grove of spruce and fir. A cabin was visible among the trees.

Gil flung open the door and motioned Serena inside. There was a fireplace directly opposite the entrance; a bunk at one end; two roughly constructed tables and a half dozen chairs. A door to the left of the fireplace opened into a bedroom, one on the right led to a lean-to

"That's all there is," Gil said. "It's quite a lot different from the nine-room apartment we left back there, isn't it?" He gestured vague-ly toward the river. "Just the bare necessities and nothing more. You'll have to work up here to keep alive. Work with your hands till you're so tired that that straw mattress in there will feel more comfortable than any innerspring you ever

"Winter will set in in a week's time, now. We'll be prisoners here, for six months or longer. We-you'll appreciate things like keeping warm and eating simple food and lying down to sleep. It will be new and strange and hard."

"It's cozy," she said at length and there was on her lips a faint smile. "I rather like it—and the prospect

Gilbert Hynes sneered. To him-self he said: "You little liar. You hate it. You hate me for bringing you here, even worse than you hated me back there because I couldn't give you more and more and more. You're selfish and insensible to the fine things of life, the things worth working for and having. Well, you're going to learn."

Five days later it began to snow. The storm lasted almost a week. Great drifts were piled about the cabin. Gilbert tunneled a passageway through the piled-up snow about the cabin's door.

Gil tunneled a passageway through the piled-up snow about the cabin's

For a month Gilbert Hynes and his wife lived in their wilderness home. Their relationship remained unchanged. Despite the fact that Serena adapted herself nobly to this new existence, despite her obvious growing appreciation of the simple things, her attempts to appear resigned to the long months ahead, her efforts to be cheerful and companionable, Gilbert would not yield to the impulses which beset him. Her attitude, he knew, was all part of the game with which she was so familiar. Once out of this wilderness their life thereafter would be but a repetition of what had gone on be-

Gil fought against her. He fought her with silence and reserve and lack of appreciation for her willingness to co-operate. He accepted the things she did matter-of-factly. But most of all he fought against his love for this woman.

Gil made his decision one day when he was alone in the woods. And making it he knew a great sense of relief.

"Tomorrow," he said tonelessly, "we'll go-back."

And Gilbert went on: "I pretended we were snowbound up here, but less than five miles due south there is a settlement. You can get transportation there to the railroad. The river which we followed in swings in a great circle. We came that way because I knew it would fool you." He paused. "You might as well know it all. You've beaten me. I can't go through with it—I still love If I didn't I'd never have brought you here."

She placed a hand on his "Gil!" arm. "Gil, do you think I would have stayed here if I didn't love you, too. I-I wanted you to know thatback there I thought you wanted me to live that way, to keep up appearances. I-I've loved it here, having you all to myself."

He looked up at her, startled. And Serena went on: "Silly. I knew about that settlement all the time. I-I discovered it the day after we arrived!"

But her arms were about his neck and warm lips were crushing against

THE minute Tommy woke he remembered that it was the day before Christmas. And that meant —his breath escaped in a quick, white plume across his bed-Santa would soon arrive! The thought shot sudden warmth through his small body as he climbed out of bed and reached for a stocking. After supper he would hang one up . . . and, if it should have a hole in the toe like this one, that wouldn't matter. Santa, of course, understood why he had not had anything new for a long time.

'Tommy!" his mother's voice called. "Dress quickly, dear. It's very cold. That's why I let you sleep late."

Tommy turned and saw her watching him from the doorway. Her blue eyes looked tired, as if she had been up a long time.

"Mommy, will it be long before

"I'll tell you about that later," she said. "Let's bring your things into the kitchen by the stove."

"I'm sorry there's no milk, dear-est," Mommy said. "Maybe I shall hear from the agency today and get a job and—"

He didn't want to talk about milk, or Mommy getting a defense job, or even ask why his Dad did not come home any more. "Mommy, what about Santa Claus?" he asked.

So then she told him. He listened quietly, hot little tears burning his eyelids. She had told him the most dreadful thing he had ever heard in all his life. No wonder she cried,

"But, darling," Mommy said, wiping his eyes with her apron. have something nice for you. I was saving it for tomorrow but I'll let red apple. Yes, he thought, if Santa had only had a mother who knew everything that was good for him, he wouldn't be so sick now that he couldn't go out with his presents tonight. And he would not be in the hospital. Then a bright thought came to Tommy and he began to run. When he reached his destination he was out of breath. He hurried into the wide corridor, his small feet making silent steps on the heavily piled carpet which led to the reception desk. The white-uniformed nurse didn't see him as he stood there.

Tommy found his voice then. "Look," he said, "I've brought a present for Santa Claus. Will you please give it to him?"

"Oh-er-is Santa Claus here?" the nurse asked. "Yes," said Tommy, nodding.

"My mother told me. He's awfully sick with a cold and can't come out tonight."

Then the doctor spoke up. "Yes, darling. Santa is here and he's very ill." He leaned over and covered her hand with his. Looking straight at Tommy he said, "Sonny, you bet we'll give him your apple. I'll see that the rascal eats every bite of it!"

"And tell him to eat it slowly and chew up the skin. Then he'll get big and strong like my Dad."

The nurse put her arm around Tommy then. "Just wait here a minute, little boy. Sit here in my chair and we'll be right back and tell you what goes on in Santa's room when he gets your gift."

He was looking at the tree when he saw the nurse and doctor appear from behind it. Their arms were loaded with Christmas packages and they were smiling and hurrying over to him. There was even a huge stocking, running over with toys and

"Santa ate your apple, sonny," the doctor said. "'Thanks a lot'; he said to tell you it made him feel so strong that he got right out of bed and went over to his closet where he had all these presents."

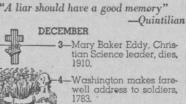

"He asked us to give them to you for him," the nurse said, "because he has a lot of business to do tonight at the soldiers' camps. He said you'd understand."

"Oh!" cried Tommy. "Gee!" All those wonderful presents when he hadn't expected anything. Wouldn't Mommy be s'prised! McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

Like many Scotch cities, Dundee, third largest, had textile mills, mostly linen. Jute fiber had not found favor; it lacked natural moisture, was too dry to spin well.

Dundee was a whaling center.

During a hemp shotrage in 1832 it was discovered that whale oil made jute suitable for spinning by power machinery. Whale oil greased the industrial progress of "the Cinderella of the fibers."

By 1835 Dundee mills were turning out pure jute yarns. In 1838 they were making burlap. Two years later a clipper ship docked at Dundee with the first cargo of more than a thousand bales of jute direct from Calcutta. Today, the burlap industry has moved to India, and > much of Dundee's equipment has been shipped to its factories.

THE SIN OF COVETOUSNESS

LESSON TEXT-Exodus 20:17; Luke 12: GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt not covet
. . . anything that is thy neighbor's.—
Exodus 20:17.

The Ten Commandments (the last one of which we study today) are characterized by their brevity, their comprehensive touch with all of life, and fidelity to the right. But they are also unique and different from all other laws in that they reach into the inner recesses of a man's heart, a realm where only God can judge and act.

This last commandment (against covetousness) emphasizes that point, for it does not expressly require or forbid any act, but deals with the motive of man's action. Man can judge another man's acts, but he cannot judge his motives, desires, or thoughts. God must do that.

But man can, by the grace of God, control his motives; and hence we have this commandment and its interpretation.

I. The Sin-Covetousness (Ex. 20:17).

It may be a surprise to many to learn that coveting—or desiring what belongs to another—is a sin. It has become one of the "respectable sins" accepted in the best circles and practiced by many church peo-

As a matter of fact, this sin underlies all the other sins against which the commandments speak. He who has a love for money and an evil desire to have his neighbor's possessions will hate, lie, steal, cheat, kill, in fact, as Dr. Morgan says, "The whole realm of human interrelations is disorganized and broken up by the dishonoring of the tenth commandment."

If you have become a lover of money, or one who longs to have what your friends own, beware. You are in real danger.

II. The Result - A Ruined Life (Luke 12: 13-21).

To have such a spirit makes a man greedy (v. 13), callous and selfish (vv. 17-19), and foolish (v. 20), both regarding this life and that which is to come.

The yardstick of success in the world-for an individual, an organization, or a nation; yes, even for many a church—is the possession of wealth, or property, or other "things." Write it in large letters on the hearts and minds of our boys and girls, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (v. 15).

The one who was known to his friends (and to himself) as "a rich man" (v. 16), but whom God knew as a "fool" (v. 20), had more than he could use for himself. He had to build new and bigger barns, and could not see the "barns" that were already prepared, for, as Ambrose says, "Thou hast barns—the bosoms of the needy, the houses of widows, the mouths of orphans and infants."

He was a fool who loved money for himself. One wonders what he had to say for himself when that very night he was called into the presence of God to give an account of his stewardship (v. 20). If you are similarly situated and have the same attitude what will you say in same attitude, what will you say in that day?

An important point which we must note is that Jesus expressly repudiated the connecting of His name with the so-called "social gospel" in His reply (v. 14).

III. The Cure-Trust in God (Luke 12:22-25).

Because covetousness destroys the best in life, we ought to shun it like poison. The best antidote (or cure) if we have been poisoned by it is to go all-out in our trust and confidence in God.

We who are children of God are to take no anxious thought for the morrow. This does not forbid proper preparation and forethought, but it does rule out fretful anxiety. The reasons are very clear and cogent.

First of all, while food and clothing are important, they are not of first importance. The vital thing is that one have life. Otherwise things are useless (v. 23). We must keep our sense of proportion, of relative

Then too, God is the One who must care for every one of us. And He does care for us! Why not trust Him? He cares for all creation; can He not care for you? If then you trust the all-powerful One, what occasion is there for worry, or covetousness?

And finally comes the devastating argument. Worry never accomplished anything. Anxiety does not help anyone, anytime, anywhere. So why be anxious?

It is clear then that a desire for that which belongs to others is a sin which destroys man's happiness and usefulness. It is needless—as is all anxiety—because only God can provide, and He will provide if we trust Him.

Life becomes simple, pleasant, useful, confident, yes, really Christian, when we get our eyes off things and on the Lord.

NO EXAGGERATION

The old man loved to spin a yarn around the general store stove.
"Well, sir," he was saying this time, "so there I was-pinned to the tree by fifteen Injun arrers. And

"Uh-huh," put in a young fellow, winking at the others, "but didn't the arrows hurt you?"

The old man fixed him with a baleful eye. "Nope, son, only when I laughed."

The warrant grade of pay clerk and commissioned warrant grades of chief marine gunner, chief quartermaster clerk and chief pay clerk were established by the act of June 10, 1926.

Article 266 of navy regulations provides that salutes shall be exchanged between officers and enlisted men on every occasion of their meeting, passing near or being addressed. The word "officers" in this connection includes officers of all grades, commissioned, commissioned warrant and warrant. This custom is very old and has been in effect in the naval service at least since 1804. It affected warrant officers from the time their grades were established.

It would be as unthinkable to deny food to our fighting allies as it would to fail to cooperate with them in battle. All United Nations suffer if any fighting men become weakened by lack of food. Our space and soil enable Americans to provide what other nations can't. Join the Crusade to produce MORE food for Victory!

Food depends on feed . . . and feed is short! There is an estimated 2 million ton shortage of protein ingredients. Estimated feed grain crops will not feed present poultry and livestock populations. It is every farmer's patriotic duty to produce MORE by wasting LESS.

When a truckload of American food was unloaded before its gates, a French garrison in North Africa surrendered without a shot fired and without a life lost. American Soldiers of the Soil are helping to win the war by producing more Food for Victory.

Develop More

The use of airplanes in transportation has had an even greater development in South America than it has had in the United States. Lines have been extended to the isolated towns and cities in every country, and regular schedules are maintained. Many planes carry freight only, and it has been made a profitable business. In transporting cargo by aircraft, progress in Latin America has been much greater than it has been here in the United States. and this development will continue at an increasingly rapid rate with the end of the war.

'Aerial Cop' at Berlin

Led Raiders to Target LONDON.—The swarms of British and Canadian four-engined bombers which raided Berlin were directed over the German capital by an "aerial traffic cop" who called their shots blow by blow over a radiophone, Colin Bednall, aviation expert of the Daily Mail, said.

The director circled over the target and gave the raiders directions as they arrived. He called his orders verbally in open hearing of the enemy, Bednall said.

Thanksgiving Day has come again— The world, the while, is marching on What have we to be thankful for While engaged in a global war? Can we not stop and pause a while And screw up courage for a smile That we are free and mean to be As we hold fast to Liberty? The bounteous crops one soil has

No hunger here need mar our life
While we engage in world wide

We are free to do just as we please— To work real hard, or take our ease; But we have duties we must do If to ourselves we would be true, Our enemies are strong and brave He who thinks else is but a knave. Our sacrifices great must be If we would hold our liberty We must not falter in the fight Until the world is safe and right. We did not seek this horried war We will not shirk it, that is sure Until the enemy is brought low And pledges no longer to be our foe No vile traitors—Hitler kind Can see the end because they're blind Considered of significance is the President's official silence during this growing uproar. He has said only that the cost of living depends largely on "our wives, our stomachs, and places of abode."

But that end soon the world will find.

machinery in 1944 is forseen by the War Food Administration. Raw lifted all its restrictions on the War Food Administration. Raw materials authorized by WPB to make planting, tillage, and harvest-liver to persons living off his farm, make planting, tillage, and harvesting equipment during the year provide for about twice the quantity produced in 1943, or almost 80 per cent of the production in 1940—a year in which manufacture was relatively large. The manufacture of repair parts will be unrestricted.
