The Health for Victory Club met Thursday afternoon in the Home Service room of the Potomac Edison building with a very good attendance. Just one year ago Miss Meehan started the class. Those present showed their appreciation of her splendid talks and demonstrations by presenting her with a small gift of money and a cake with one lighted candle. One year ago the weather was terrific with snow and slush, and Thursday was like a real Spring day January surely is a fickle month Eighteen ladies braved the snow storm to attend the first class meeting. The auditorium of Eichelberger High School was filled by a most appreciative audience. The boy, who is only ϑ years old, looks like a cherub and plays marvelously. He was very generous with encores and most unconcerned and modest as he autographed the programs of the children and some grownups who crowded around him. The program, the same that he recently gave in Town Hall, New York, was brilliantly executed yet with charming expression.

SERVICE MEN LETTERS Many and Varied are their Experiences

> Somewhere in New Guinea, January 16, 1944

Dear Mr. Stonesifer: I was going to write you another letter on the natural life of New Guinea tonight, but at the present moment, I am not quite in the mood for it. And for that, you can blame a foxhole. Innocent looking things, but quite dangerous, especially if there's no moon, and the night is as dark as black ink.

I was coming back from seeing a movie tonight, minding my own business and whistling as I walked through the trees. Just as I reached a high note of "You Must have been a Beautiful Baby," the ground dropped out from beneath me. Yes, you guessed it! I fell into one of the many for holes a just numishment. many fox-holes, a just punishment for one who doesn't use the walks that are provided. To make matters worse, we had quite a bit of rain to-day, and the hole was pretty well filled with water and mud. But it is just such incidents as this that makes life interesting here on the island. Of course, we have other things that keep us on the alert, but if I should mention any of them, I'm afraid they wouldn't get by the cen-

The war is going very well for us down here. I'll admit it's a slow process, but driving the Japs out of the jungles is no easy task. Our bombing is becoming the main weapon of offense, and we are daily building up our air strength. Losses are comparatively few when compared to those of other theaters, partly because of the fact that we have knocked the Japs out of the air, and partly because he refuses to fight. I know of numerous occasions where Jap fighter planes flew along with us to the target and part way back, keeping just out of gun range They follow along, hoping our pilots will break formation, so they can pounce an a single bomber, for it is disaster for them if they try to attack a formation with all its firepower. Fortunately our pilots are well trained and disciplined, and do not break their formations. I have had many inquiries as to the food we get to eat. Let me state now that our meals here are just as good, and more often better just as good, and more often better than the ones we got back in the states. We had a delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings for Thanksgiving and Christmas. We have steak frequently, and still more frequently, ham. But the main meat is mutton, as our supply comes from Australia, and as you know, that is

PORK FROM FARM SLAUGHTERERS

Twelve red stamps in Book Four, which are numbered "8" and lettered from "A" through "M", may be used sit down and read all about your good for buying pork and other rationed meats from farm slaughterers. I can't say much about the place These stamps will not be used by where I am, but I am somewhere in consumers in general until February These stamps will not be used by 27. They will have the same expiration dates for purchases from farmers as in city markets. The stamps are worth 10 points each, making a total value of 120 points. This does not give the individual who buys from a farm slaughterer a larger ration than anyone else. It merely allows him to buy a fairly large amount at one time. In addition, brown stamps in Book Three may be used ahead of their regular validity dates when used in buying

EASE RESTRICTIONS ON PLUMBING

Consumers who wish to buy pumbing, cooking, and heating equipment in most cases no longer need authorization from WPB. Some of the items which need no priority rating are. Bathtubs, lavatories toilets, laundry trays, sinks, showers, shower stalls, condensation pumps, chemical toilets, drinking fountain, septic tanks, grease interceptors, flush tanks, scullery sinks, and wash fountains. Unrationed cooking heating stoves also may be purchased without WPB authorization.

EXTEND SALE OF RATION-FREE SHOES

Sales of certain (chiefly novelty) types of women's shoes ration-free, at three dollars or less a pair, have through February 5, OPA has announced.

The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, Governor Herbert R. O'Conor, Honorary Chairman, says: DO YOU KNOW?

"The driver of a vehicle emerging from an alley, priv ate driveway, or building shall come to a full stop immediately prior to driving onto a sidewalk or into the sidewalk area extending across any alleyway or private driveway.

TYDINGS BROADCAST

Tells of Government Way of Financing

Today I propose to discuss these remedies. Not many people know it but when the National Congress appropriates money it does not have to have the money in the Treasury. If it wants to appropriate five hundred million dollars for some purpose, even though it does not have the money available, it goes ahead and appropriates it enyhow. When it becomes necessary for the Governor to get the cash to make this appropriation good, the Secretary of Treasury simply asks the banks, the insurance companies and the individuals of America, even in times of peace, to lend the Government that much of their money. This practice has been followed without exception for every year since 1929. The result has been that every year huge sums of money have been borrowed by the Government. The debt grew larger and larger even in times of peace Ever since 1929 we have been living on the future, borrowing enough money each year to pay the bills of our National Government.

OUR DETROIT COR-RESPONDENT WRITES

Of General Conditions in That

Many events take place in a large city that never could occur in a rural community, especially in one so far distant from Detroit as is Taneytown and which we do not think important enough to mention in these letters, enough to mention in these letters, but every now and then one occurs that concerns, not only our city, but the whole nation. There is one such event going on now. We refer to the trial of the spy ring that has been uncovered by the FBI recently, and which has been linked up with that one we think we mentioned in one of our former letters. one of our former letters.

Detroit seems to be a favorite place for these agents of Germany to operate, and on account of the vast number of plants engaged in defense work they seem to think their opportunities for espionage are more abundant that elsewhere. Maybe they are right in their thinking, but every now and then a gang gets caught, which, however, does not seem to discourse on other form. seem to discourage other from playing the same game. One would think that, with all its other troubles the city ought not to be plagued with these people, whose trade has been one of the most despicable, and looked down upon with horror ever since the days of Benedict Arnold

and Aaron Burr

Usually the desire to make what they call "easy money" leads them into this desire to sell out their country, but in this case it seems that a love for German ideals seems to have been the incentive that led them on. The leader, a Canadian born woman, but as we understand, naturalized American citizens, has turned complete state's evidence, and the tale which she tells on the witness stand, at the trial of a prominent doctor, is mighty good reading to any one who would like to know how these spies work. She is telling how she was sent to Germany, put through one of their spy schools, given books containing the names of prominent so-called Americans who would help her, (and it was in this way she became acquainted with the doctor who is on trial) and told to find out all she could about defense work in all its phases, asd transmit to German headquarters, and indeed, there is nothing that a spy should do that she has not touched on in her testimony.

The doctor, one of the most prominent in the city is accused of furnishing her with a formula and chemicals for making invisible ink, and who she says, told her that he would do anything for "dear old Germany" seems to be in a pretty hot spot. Why he should do what he is being accused of, we cannot figure out, as he is American—born, and has the 1942–43 surplus. a big practice, along special lines. But the "Countess" seems to be determined to make a clean breast, and does not seem to care who she exposes. It is said that a few years ago she apparently repented of her activities for the benefit of Hitler, of par and worked for the FBI, but we have stand not heard that this statement has been verified by the organization, and ing name, number of account, amount we will have to wait and see what of tax for 1942 and the amount paid other developments will take place in on the same before the 1943 estithis case.

The half-dozen or more strikes a day in the defense plants do not cause much excitement now, as they are usually called for some little socalled grievance, and are settled in a few hours, usually over night after the hot heads who are concerned in them are cooled off. But here is one that is unusual (or rather two). The one which was called out here, was that of 650 to 1,000 Foreman of the Chrysler Company. When we were employed in a shop, we always thought that foremen were part of the Executive force, and had no thought that they would ever find any thing to strike about. times have changed, and since the Unions have been coddled so much by their "dear, beloved" leader, for whom they are raising that three to five million slush fund, in order to secure his re-election, it seems that it takes very little to make a bunch of men walk out, despite his strike" order.

The other strike referred to above was that of the girl clerks in the main OPA office—about the last place one would look for a strike. If the government cannot keep its direct employees from striking, how in the world can it expect to keep men in factories from doing the same thing.

Well, the railroads have been handed back to their owners, by the Government, or rather the Army which was to have operated them in case the strikers did not get what they demanded. But they were satsfied, for the time being, anyhow. Maybe the government remembers what happened after the last war, when it cost hundreds of millions of dollars to put the railroads in condition after government control, which had about wrecked them, was ended.

The boys who cannot get along without their regular shots of liquor, as they call them, are now complaining that the saloon keepers are taking advantage of them by either watering the liquor, are giving them short shots, and want the Liquor Commission to do something about This body certainly has its work cut out away in advance, as some-

THE SPIRITUALS

Marian Anderson has achieved an enviable position in the field of music. She has done it largely by riding the shoulders of the Negro spirituals. Before her, in that field, was Roland Hayes.

Those spirituals! They are nothing to be despised. They are the most remarkable achievement in the history of the universe. They were improvised by unlettered persons, by those who had no knowledge of any rules of art to follow. They are more characteristically the soul of the Negro than anything that is re-

For the Negro has traversed successfully the Valley of Despair. His faith was in God and his star was the ger where the Christ Child lay. The spirituals are to him as the Psalms were to the Hebrews. - Chicago

Severance Taxes Help

Preserve States' Resources Few marked changes in severance tax legislation resulted from 1943 state legislative sessions, nor were the laws actually passed indicative of a uniform trend. One state—Tennessee-enacted a new crude oil production tax and another state, Texas, repealed its severance tax on ores, including marble and cinna-

The Tennessee oil production tax is a privilege tax of five cents for each 50-gallon barrel of crude oil processed or sold, and of 5 per cent of the sales price of any gas sold. Monthly reports and payments are to be made, and a fee of $10 per 1,000 feet, or fraction thereof, must be paid. A state oil and gas board was established to administer the

Though severance tax revenues have accounted for less than 2 per cent of all state tax revenues, the marked increase in severance tax yields from 62 to 75 million dollars between fiscal years 1942 and 1943 is significant for the importance of this form of taxation, especially in the war economy.

It is pointed out that severance taxes as a means of protecting or preserving natural raw materials against uneconomical exploitation have an importance for the state and for the national economy as a whole which actually is much great er than the relatively small revenue figures would imply.

Water Sprouting Soybeans

Cover in Dark Place The first requisite for sprouting soybeans is to select a variety that will germinate readily. Soak the bean's overnight, then put them into a flower pot, a sink strainer or colander, or any utensil that has holes in it for drainage and that can be covered. Be sure the container is sufficient in size, for the beans swell to at least six times their original bulk as they sprout. Cover the container and leave them in a warm, dark place. Light seems to make them develop an undesirable color.

At least four or five times each day during the sprouting period, flood or sprinkle the beans with lukewarm water. In four to six days the sprouts should be from two to three inches long and ready to use.

Some authorities recommend the use of chlorinated lime (calcium hypochlorite) during the sprouting period to discourage the growth of mold and bacteria. The amounts suggested range from one-half to one teaspoonful per gallon of water. This chlorinated water should be used for the last sprinkling each day and plain water used at all other times.

Crown Mikado

November 10, 1928, a ceremony took place in the ancient Japanese city of Kyoto which made one Hirohito a divine emperor supposed to be the "ruler of all nations." Yoshihito, the previous Mikado, had died of a mental disease which had rendered him unfit for state affairs for many years. Young Hirohito was making a grand tour of Europe in 1921 when he was recalled to assume the responsibilities of government as regent at the age of 20. The death of the old Mikado in 1926 Big Pipe Creek, on left the young man in actual occupation of the throne, but the ceremony of enthronement was not performed till two years later.

Hirohito's inheritance included the "three sacred treasures" consisting of a sword, a mirror, and a stone necklace, said to have been handed down from the first legendary emperor of Japan. The possession of these treasures transformed the young Mikado, in the eyes of his 70 million subjects, into a divine personage, a lineal descendant and living representative of the sun-goddess, Amaterasu-Omikami.

Food Waste

One of the first steps in preventing waste of cooked food is proper storage. "Cold and covered" is the rule for keeping most leftovers attractive and palatable. Refrigerator space can be saved by storing foods that are good companions in the same containers. For instance, potatoes, peas and carrots can all logo into the same covered jar or erish, for more than likely they will breast chains, 3 milk buckets, 4 five be used together.

parwo jars for liquids is another good idea—one for fruit juices and of tools, new wedges, oats, wheat the other for the cooking liquid from and corn by bushel, 250 bundles of egetables. Fruit juices can go into fodder. childed fruit drink, a gelatin salad faces ent, or a sauce for cake or including yegetable liquors can give

This is the last week in Januaryand it has passed quickly. The snow covered ground for one week but disappeared on Sunday when the weather had moderated; but we had some glorious scenes during the week -with sleet over everything and frozen mist twice; when we think of our friends in the South who miss the beauty of winter-but of course they have other good things

Some of the recent visitors to Florida were not too delighted with the country under present conditions and among a crowd of soldiers they felt lonely and unsafe. Altho we do not have oranges cocoanuts and pineapples growing here, it's a good place to come back to—for "there's no place

Staff Sgt. Wilbur Miller, Jr. and wife (nee Virginia Dahoff), who are stationed in California, was granted three days leave of absence and they visited Los Angeles and Hollywoodwhere they saw a number of screen stars; and wished for some of their friends from home to enjoy the sight seeing with them.

Donald Black, son of Roland Black, Linwood, who worked with Jean John on the farm the past year, left Tuesday to join the Navy. One by one they are drifting away from home for their country's service.

Miss Grace Sullivan was indisposed with a cold and asthma last week, and missed S. S. on Sunday after perfect attendance for months; but many were absent because of minor ailments which can be bad enough.

Mns. Roger Sentz (nee Lucille Sellers) was taken to the Maryland University Hospital, Baltimore, last week and operated on for appendicitis and is doing as well as possible, Mrs. Myrtle Sentz is with the family, in New Windsor, where the little daughter is covered with measles at this time. So sorry for these aches and pains and operations, but what can we do to prevent them?

On January 27, 1904 Elmer Buffington and Lillie May Harris were married by her father, Rev George C. Harris, at Thurmont, where he was pastor of the Methodist Church—40 years ago. Mr. Buffington's family had planned to give them a surprise party, but on account of Mr. B. being quite ill it had to be called off. Mrs. Moss, their daughter who has been employed at DuPonts, N. Y., working on torpedoes for the Navy, had a piece of steel taken out of her eye, the result of working on high explosives. The report of S. S. at Mt. Union for the 4th quarter gave an average attendance of 54; number present lingering illness. He was a member every Sunday 5; number missing once 16; offering of Men's class $22.50; and young Ladies Class $13.04; two young boys have won Bibles, and two others story books for perfect attendance of 54; number present lingering illness. He was a member of St. Mary's Lutheran Church. Surviving are his wife and three children. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon with services conducted at his late home. His tendance; 9 persons were present every Sunday in the year

Some of us have settled down to rug making, which is fascinating enough when one can't get out; and there's all the new books received at Christmas—to be read—when we aren't cooking or sleeping and letters to write to our boys and shut-in

In 1848 there came rumors of gold mines in California. James Marshall a carpenter by trade had been employed by Capt. John A. Sutter—a Swiss settler in the Sacremento valley, to erect a saw mill at Coloma While working on the tail-race on Jan 24, 1848 Marshall discovered glittering particles of gold in the gravel. Crembling with excitement he hurried to his employer—and told his story. His discovery of gold spread like wild fire and there was sudden emigration from all parts of the Union; and in the very first year the miners yielded 4 million dollars worth of gold. The name of California is supposed to have been taken from an old Spanish romance in which the given to an imaginary island filled with gold, and the early explorer Cortes, when he visited the western coast of the continent applied that name to the whole region long before gold was found

Last week was indoor painting week—and such a tear up! but now we look better and most of our house cleaning is finished—for the present. Tis a little too soon to make garden. but seed catalogs are popular study

Some of our women are making sociable New Year calls on their neighbors-which was once an established custom; anyway some time during the winter they would take their sewing or knitting and spend a day with each neighbor—their annual visit.

We will not study the almanac to know the days are growing longer; from 9 hours, 20 minutes a month ago to 10 hours this week and many of the Sunsets have been marvelous in coloring and beauty. We dislike the change of time as much as ever, and getting out of bed at 8 A. M. and it isn't daylight—but time to get ready for church, or the days work continues to irritate methodical persons.

If all is true that the city papers says about the office of Price Administration, we will not need so many points. Rationing came along sooner than they expected and ration point value based on general estimates were set so high that the speculation buyers now find themselves with from two to three years ration supply of vegetables in the ware-houses. The major food chains at present do not expect to need any canned vegetables from the 1944 crop which would leave the canners in the position of selling to the government only. If true this means that the total supply of canned goods cover than is justified by the is greater than is justified by the present high ration values an OPA spokeman said. Shampoo Frees Soldier

On Trial for Murder PINEVILLE, KY.—Private Paris Kelly was a free man today because a court-ordered shampoo proved he was not a murderer.

The brown-haired soldier from Forge Ridge, Tenn., won a directed verdict of acquittal in the shooting of Jack Campbell in a Middlesboro, Ky., bar last December 18, after Judge J. S. Forester ordered him shampooed to determine if his hair had been dyed.

A vigorous scrubbing left his hair still brown-not blond or sandyhaired as witnesses had described Campbell's slayer.

He will return to his post at Fort Eustis, Va.

250 Italian Criminals Rounded Up After Revel

NAPLES.-More than 250 Italian criminals recently overpowered their jailers on San Stefano island, 35 miles off Naples, and caroused for 10 days under outlaw rule before they were suppressed by an expedition of British Commandos and Italian Carabinieri, it was learned.

The convicts locked up the wardens, jailers and trusties and took their women to themselves, then made a bonfire of all records, dossiers and fingerprints and broke the locks on all cells except those holding the authorities.

Maj. Ross McDonald, public director of the Allied municipal government for Naples province, announced the break and its suppression in a brief battle between the convicts and the Allied expedition under Capt. John Whyte, a former British police officer.

Capitalizing on the recent evacuation of the German garrison from San Stefano and the fact that the Allies visited the island only rarely, the prisoners overcame their Italian guards without firing a stat.

mands its attention-if not the irregularities in its State stores, then it's something like the above that demands its attention. That's one job that we do not see how anybody would want, but we guess some one is required to try to keep it straight. Maybe the old saloon system, with its "brass rail" was the best thing after all, as then women did not crowd the men away from the bar, and it was a rare thing for a minor to be seen under the effects of liquor, while now it is a common sight.

We see that they are employing a corps of full-blooded Indians in the fight against the Japs in the Southwest Pacific, and that these Red Men are five juncle fighters. Well if are fine jungle fighters. they have any of the blood in them of their ancestors, we are not surprised. When we think of the huge numbers of Indians who used to roam this country, and who have been pushed back until their descendants are found only in the far West or on Government reservations, we sometimes wish we had more of them to send away to engage in their favorite sport-fighting, and then maybe we would not have to take fathers away from their families, as draft boards out here are doing right along And here is a story about a boy that spent 12 or more hours at night in an old ice box, into which he had crawled in play. It so happened that it stood on a back porch, and a hole had rusted in the back, which supplied him with air. He was rescued in the morning, after being imprisoned so long, his only complaint being that he was hungry. JOHN J. REID.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Love" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Jan. 30th

The Golden Text will be from I John 4:7—"Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God; and everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God."

Among the citations comprising the Lesson-Sermon will be the fol-lowing from the Bible—Acts 28:2— "And the barberous people showed us no little kindness; for they kindled a fire, and received us everyone, because of the present rain, and be-cause of the cold."

The Lesson-Sermon also will include passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, among which is the following page 365—"The poor suffering heart needs, its rightful suffering heart needs its rightful nutriment such as peace, patience in tribulation, and a priceless sense of the dear Father's loving kindness"

Will you have something laid away?
We're all hoping there'll be jobs aplenty, jobs which mean making something for somebody's happiness and not for somebody's sorrow. That's where your War Bonds come into the picture. Sure, Americans own billions of dollars of War Bonds now; and before this 4th War Bonds now; and before this 4th War Loan ends they will have put away billions more. But how about you? You're the one that counts. The bigger the pile of War Bonds you have when peace comes, the big-ger chance you'll have to slip right into the post-war world you're dreaming about tonight.

Of course, during the war the expenses of the National Government have been greater than could be met by current taxation. Every nation has to borrow in wartime. It cannot hope to meet its bills otherwise. But the cost of this war is so great that our war borrowings have run the debt up to such a high figure that it is important now to make sure that the banks, the insurance companies and the individuals get back money which they have loaned to the Government during the war. Otherwise the banks could not repay the savings accounts to their depositors. The insurance companies could not repay the policies to the people when they come due.

Therefore we must find ways, and means of getting the nation on a pay-as-you-go basis when the war is over so that government credit will remain good and those who have loaned government money will get it back.

It has been suggested that one way to accomplish this, a least in part, would be to improve the budget law, that is, to pass a law which would 290 make Congress raise the money in peacetimes which it needed to meet its expenses. Some good can be accomplished by the passage of such a law, but it will not be the remedy we are seeking, for the following reasons The very Congress which passed such a law could repeal it, amend it, or make exceptions to it. There would be no way of compelling the Congress to follow such a law after it was pass-300 ed. If Congress wanted to borrow money in excess of its revenues, it would simply by some future law, say notwithstanding the provisions of the budget law, we are appropriating blank dollars which the Treasury shall borrow. Thus, we can see at a glance that while some good may be achieved through an improved budget aw, that it will not bind the Congress to run the country in peacetime on a 1532 pay-as-you-go basis.

I believe that if anyone will dig deeper into this subject, he will find there is only one way in peacetime which will compel Congress to live within its means and that is by a con-stitutional amendment requiring Congress so to do.

For, while Congress can repeal or amend a budget law, it cannot repeal or amend a provision of the Constitution. Having this thought in mind, I have introduced in the Senate a proposed amendment to our National Constitution. Now what does this amendment do?

First, it requires the President at the beginning of each year to tell Con-gress how much money the Govern-ment will have in the Treasury from the taxes then in existence. Second, it requires him to recommend how this money shall be spent. Third, the Congress cannot spend more than it isgoing to take in unless it raises the new taxes to provide for such extra money. However, if during some period of stress, like 1932 and 33, when Congress feels it is advisable to borrow rather than to tax, Congress can do so provided that three-fifths of the members of each House of Congress, by yea and nay record, vote yea to borrow rather than to tax. The constitutional amendment does not require the Congress to go on a pay-as-you-go basis in wartime nor for a period of one year following any war. At every other time Congress must raise the money it appropriates unless three-fifths of the members of both Houses by a record vote deem it wise to borrow rather than to tax to raise the money. Now, considering he huge national debt of two hundred fifty billion dollars and the fact that the Government has borrowed most of the money represented by forty-five millon savings passbook accounts in all our banks, and a large proportion of the assets of our insurance companies, plus the fact that there will be large unemployment immediately following the war, is it not wise now to look ahead and make sure that the stress will be reduced to a minimum in the post-war period?

Besides, of a constitutional amend-ment compels this to be done, there will be complete confidence throughout the country in the financial integrity of our government. Credit will be easier to business concerns which in many cases will need credit in order to change over from war production to peace production. The easier business concerns can accomplish this dfficult task, the more opportunity there will be for work for the everyday man and woman in the country. The alternative, of course, is to keep on living on the future the war is over. It takes no stretch of the imagination to see that such a policy may lead to widespread distress in

Fourth War Loan Drive Shows Gain

Jackson Asks Emphasis On Individual Sales

Howard W. Jackson, State Chairman of the Maryland War Finance Committee has just announced Maryland's total individual War Bond purchases from January 1 to January 17. The amount as released by the Federal Reserve Bank totals $7,700,000. Chairman Jackson made it clear that these figures represented only individual purchases which include E, F and G Bonds. "E" Bonds are the people's Bonds and I should like to see Maryland's total "E" Bond sale reach $50,000,000 or more in this Fourth War Loan drive," he said.

County and City schools have already started their "Buy a Plane" Campaign, with the Catonsville High School deciding on the $75,000 Mustang pursuit plane. Catonsville won the Schools at War Flag for a 96% participation in the purchase of war bonds and stamps in December. The Kensington Elm School, Kensington, Md., is buying a $15,000 PT-19B Fairchild "Cornell" training plane. Planes bought by schools are privileged to have both the name and address of the school placed on a panel of the plane, and there is a strong possibility that the school may hear from the crew of the plane it has financed.

The "shopping list" of planes include the Fairchild "Cornell" training plane, $15,000; the Douglas ambulance plane, $110,000; Mustang pursuit plane, $75,000; Mitchell medium bomber, $175,000. Liberator heavy bomber, $300,000 and the Flying Fortress, $450,000.

The Glenn L. Martin Maryland plant has just announced a $3,000,000 purchase of Fourth War Loan Bonds, with $2,500,000 allotted to Baltimore City and $500,000 to Baltimore County. The Cambridge Shipbuilding Company reports it has achieved 110% of its quota in the first two days of the Campaign.

Kick-off Events

One of the features of the Fourth War Loan "kick-off" day in Baltimore was the "command" luncheon given by the Baltimore Advertising Club. Mark Watson, Sunpapers military Correspondent and Brig. Gen. Philip Hayes, commanding general of the Third Service Command spoke. Gen. Hayes urged the people of Maryland to "Invest in Victory and save for land War Finance Committee of which Mrs. Sydney M. Cone is Chairman, had as their principle speaker at a luncheon State Chairman Jack-Mr. Jackson declared that the thought of losing the war when it is so far won should spur Marylanders to lead the nation in the Fourth War Loan Drive. Mr. Jackson said, further, that he hoped cessation of hostilities would prevent the slaughter that an invasion would entail, but that in any case we must back our fighting men to the limit. "If buying hurts us, let us think selfishly of what would happen if Hitler wins and of how much greater the cost would be," he said.

Mrs. Cone reminded her women workers at the luncheon that they had sold $20,000,000 worth of Bonds in the Third Lar Loan Drive and that their slogan this time would be, "WE DID IT BEFORE AND WE CAN DO IT AGAIN!" The Women's Division has gone all-out for the Hospital Equipment Plan, through which Bond purchasers can "pay for" needed Army and Navy hospital equipment. Mrs. Berney Katzenberg, who sold a million dollars worth of Bonds in the Third War Loan Drive and who has three sons in the armed services, was awarded the first citation of the Surgeon General of the United States Army which is in recognition of the individual who sells $5,000 worth of War Bonds for Hospital Equipment. Mrs. Katzenberg has solicited pledges for the current drive totalling to date, $200,000.

Industrial plants, retail and trade organizations, foreign groups, neighborhood associations, civic and traternal organizations are working hard on the newly launched drive so that they can meet their quotas long before the February 15 deadline.

Baltimore's Honor Block Campaign is under way with the Junior Citizens Service Corps of the Civilian Mobilization Committee on duty to spot the first block to show a Fourth War Loan sticker in every window. When the block is full, the youthful spotters will deliver a large Honor Block Bonner to fly at the head of the block.

Nazi Plane on Tour The Messerschmitt fighter plane which was brought down in the Naples-Salerno area is already on the first leg of its itinerary through the regions of Maryland. The Nazifighter was on exhibition at the Baltime Court House Plaza on the opening day of the Campaign, January 18. It visited the various industrial plants and schools in Baltimore before beginning its tour of the State.

Mess Sergt. Jay Carter of Pink Hill, N. C., who is credited with shooting down two Japanese dive bombers and serving up a batch of hot corn bread all within an hour's time.

Mess Sergeant Carter literally 'doubles in brass' by taking charge of a galley and by serving as a gunner on the machine gun which is placed just a few steps from his kitchen door.

"I was just baking a batch of corn bread when the signal for the raid came," the slightly built, 26-year-old marine explains. "I quickly shut off the stove and ran to the gun. There were five Jap planes diving down on us. I just opened up and let them have it."

Asked what he did then, Mess Sergeant Carter replied: "I went back into the galley, lit the stove again, and finished making my corn bread." Mess Sergeant Carter would be willing to overlook the whole incident, except for one thing. He feels that it is an unforgivable error to interrupt a North Carolina man while he's baking corn bread.

Bandit Bait

By VIC YARDMAN Associated Newspapers. WNU Features.

M IDWAY on the trail between Silver City and Mount Tom, Sheriff Mac Cooper fell in with a tall, fair-haired youth with steel blue eyes, wearing a pearl gray sombre-ro, blue and white checkered shirt and corduroy trousers tucked into high-heeled boots. A bone-handled six-shooter was strapped about the youth's waist and the butt of a Winchester rifle protruded from a saddle scabbard. He rode a coal black

"How far to Mount Tom?" the stranger asked. "Ten mile. Maybe more. Strang-

"Slim." Mac's eyes went out and across a flat open space, interspersed with sagebrush and cactus. Beyond, etched against a slope of sage grass, cattle grazed. To the left and more in their line of travel the slope became a rocky incline, through which the trail was notched. "Me," he went on, "I usta be a cat-

"How do folks get along?" the youth asked, looking at him curiously. "Ain't no other kind o' work to be had, is there? What might your business be? I'd sort of like to get a line on the kind of job to look for."

Mac hesitated the fraction of a second. "Me? I work at the mines

"Ain't had none-yet. So far, thank goodness, he's only legend hereabouts. Been operating farther north, in a different state, though they do say he's come over the line an' is working down thisaway.

"That's right, mister. Clip Kane did come over the line, an' he's right here this minute!" The first thing that Mac noticed was that something hard and round was pressing into his ribs.

"Get your hands up high, mister, an' don't try any tricks. I got half a mind to plug yuh anyhow. Guys as dumb as you shouldn't be let live."

"But it's a problem how to dispose o' you. I can't leave yuh here to follow me an' spread an alarm, and-danged if I can shoot such a dumb wit down in cold blood! But, by jingo, I gotta do something with you." Hardly had the words left the stranger's lips before something smote Mac just back of his right ear. And in the instant before nothingness claimed him he heard, far away, the sharp report of a rifle, a shout, a curse-then the curtain of blackness closed about him . . When he opened his eyes he was half sitting and half lying with his back to the canyon. Objects in front of him gradually lost their blurred aspect and took definite shape. And the first thing that registered itself clearly on his brain was the grinning countenance of Deputy Sheriff

Mac struggled to a more comfortable posture, looked beyond Red and saw the glowering face of Clip Kane, noted that the bandit was securely trussed and that his shoulder was swathed in a bandage.

"Durn your miserable hide," said Mac, addressing Red, "what was 'the idea of waitin' fer that jigger to tap me on the haid before yuh drilled him?"

"A little tap now an' then won't hurt yuh none," Red grinned. "Maybe take some o' the swellin' outter your bean:' Mac rubbed his head and swore He knew that Red had waited purposely in the hope that Clip Kane would tap him, as he called it, but in spite of everything he grinned. "The next time," he said, "we plan to frame a jigger, you're gonna be the goat. Why, that bloke actually told me I was dumb! Now if it had been you-"But I reckon," said he amusedly, "Mr. Kane is the guy as is dumb, else he would a knowed I was lyin' about them cattle, what with a thousand of 'em grazin' in plain view on that slope.

Adjusting Carburetor, Plugs, Saves Gasoline

Tractor Engines Should Run at Top Efficiency

With the gasoline situation becoming increasingly serious due to demands for gas for combat uses, farmers are being asked by the War Food administration to cut their use of tractor fuel to a minimum.

While this request may seem extreme to farmers who have had their tractors stranded now and then by dried-up fuel tanks, W. C. Krueger, extension agricultural engineer at Rutgers university, points out that many tractors could be operated on 15 to 25 per cent less fuel through correct carburetor adjustment, lubrication, and proper setting of spark plugs and magneto.

He emphasizes that when it takes 100 to 180 gallons of fuel to plow a 40-acre field, 40 to 80 gallons to disc that field, 60 to 80 to haul a grain drill over it and 30 to 50 gallons to harrow it, a 25 per cent reduction in fuel becomes important.

Krueger offers the following suggestions for improving tractor effi-

1. It is a common error to believe that the leaner the mixture the less the fuel used. Too lean a mixture wastes fuel, causes over-heating, invites valve trouble. Best fuel economy results from setting carburetor at a compromise between too lean a mixture for idling and a slightly rich mixture representing maximum power adjustment. This setting can only be determined by trial under

2. Magneto timing is often responsible for over-heating and uneconomical operation. Since the method of setting varies with the tractor, follow the instruction book closely.

3. Set spark plug and magneto point gaps to recommended clearance occasionally. Put in new plugs when electrodes become worn. 4. Check valve tappets two or three times a season. Improper clearance ruins more valves than all other causes put together. 5. Never shut off a tractor immediately after running at full load. Valve warping is often caused by not letting the engine idle a short time before stopping so that the valves may cool gradually.

6. Operate the tractor at full load as much of the time as possible. It costs nearly as much to operate a tractor at half load as it does at full load. Maximum draw-bar efficiency occurs when the load is heavy enough to cause wheel slippage in field operations approximately 10 per cent.

Corrugated Siding Is Made Of Felt Composition

A wartime substitute for corrugated sheet steel is a newly developed composite material that may be used in practically all construction where steel was formerly employed. This siding, which is corrugated like steel sheets, is made of two sheets of heavy felt, each saturated with a resino - bituminous compound, and laminated together with a high melting point adhesive. Its light weight is an advantage for farm buildings. Under tests conducted by the Celotex corporation, manufacturers, this product has proved satisfactory in withstanding heat, cold and moisture. The corrugations do not flatten out under effects of weathering.

A non-critical, emergency material, this corrugated siding is available in any quantity now, and can be used for building or remodeling.

Wasps Defeat Moths

Oriental fruit moths, a serious scourge to Michigan peaches, are being combatted effectively by a species of small wasp, called Macrocentrus. These wasps are being released in the orchards at the rate of 50,000 a year. The Michigan State college and the department of agriculture collaborated to find this insect enemy of the moths, and to breed it in large numbers. The fruit moths are a recent pest, having come in about 10 years ago.

Homespun Philosophy By Ezra

THE PARTY LINE

The party line is an American institution without which our rural communities would really suffer. It is a real news giving-out agency. beats the radio, newspaper, telegraphy, and cablegram. Ring any number that comes to your mind on a party line and right away about me dozen and one receivers click and you've got your audience. I know a feller that is so used to answering the phone whenever it rings he has long ago forgotten his own number. News you get over the radio or in the newspaper is all alike. You hear one commentator and you hear them all. You read one newspaper and you've got all the news there is. But, boy, oh boy, just take the receiver off the hook and listen to a telephone conversation. That's where you get variety. You hear sad news and you hear glad news; you listen to spicy stories and you listen to strict-ly business transactions; you get the low down on the health conditions of your community and you get weather prognostications; in a few words-you get it all.

As a rule women are the best news giver outers. You see, they are not pressed for time. They will rush through their morning's work like a moth through a new serge suit, then, when they are all finished they will set by the telephone and leisurely call a number. When they get an answer they proceed with the news. It goes something like this: "Hello!"

"Hello!" "Why hello. Maggie. (That's just a name I picked out). I just took a few minutes, after I had hung up the wash, to call you to find out how the rheumatism in your toes was getting along. I imagine this rainy weather is terribly hard on it."

"Why sure, I pity you something awful. Why don't you use turpentine mixed with a little vinegar and some gasoline. That is great for rheumatism."

"Yes, of course. Oh, say, did you hear Bessie and Cal had a baby—that is, Bessie really had it. It weighed nine pounds. Some baby!" And so on for the next thirty, or forty five, or sixty minutes, all de-

Manpower Problem Is Easily Solved

Hires His Patients to Fill Hospital Vacancies.

NORMAN, OKLA. — What man-power problem? asks Dr. D. W. Griffin, superintendent of Central State hospital for the mentally ill.

He simply hires his patients. And both the institution and its inmates benefit, he acknowledges with pardonable pride.

Fifty-four men and women described as marginal cases are going about their full-time duties at the hospital, filling with credit positions vacated when normal employees were attracted by higher salaries at two nearby naval bases. In addition to saving the institu-tion, Dr. Griffin reports, the plan has given a tremendous lift to the morale of the employed patients, many of whom are drawing the first pay checks they ever received. The superintendent said that there had not been a single instance of trouble resulting from employment of the patients and that only three have been relieved of their duties.

"They are sympathetic with the patients and have a greater understanding of the problems than someone brought in green from the outside," he explained. "They also know all the tricks that patients sometimes try on attendants."

The attendants see that patients keep clean, are fed properly and get their medicines at the proper time. They are paid from $30 to $70 monthly and their sleeping rooms and meals are furnished.

The only catch to the whole program, Dr. Griffin said, is that when a patient reaches the point at which he can hold down a job without medical supervision somebody offers him more money on the outside, and then there's another vacancy at the O You may not have a sheep-skin from an alma mater but you can prove yourself to be a dean of learning by simply answering the seven questions in today's Guess Again Quiz. So students mark the correct answers and then check below for your semester reports.

1. A person who attempts to influence the passage of a legislative measure is called (a) a log-roller, (b) a lobbyist, (c) a gerrymander, (d) a pork-barreler.

2. This man was once premier of Poland and a very famous pianist. He is (a) Nicolo Paganini, (b) Jose Iturbi, (c) Ignace Jan Paderewski, (d) Petr Ilich [Tchaikovsky.

3. Pick out the name of the hardest fuel in the following list: (a) peat, (b) bituminous coal, (c) anthracite coal, [(d) lignite. 4. Which of the following scientists is connected indirectly with the modern milk industry? (a) Louis Pasteur, (b) Robert Koch, (c) Joseph Lister, (d) Edward Jenner. 5. On looking at a bark one sees: three masts-the foremast, mainmast and the (a) aftmast, (b) halfmast, (c) bowmast, (d) mizzenmast. 6. Bauxite is the mineral from which we get (a) tin, (b) aluminum, (c) tellurium,

(d) radium. 7. In golf one under par is called (a) a bogie, (b) a dub, (c) an eagle, (d) a birdie.

"GUESS AGAIN" ANSWERS RATINGS: 90-100, on the honor roll; 80-90, TOTAL the dean's list for you; 70-80, you'll never get a scholarship unless you play football; 60-70, go sit in the corner.

Buckwheat Harvesting Some methods of harvesting buckwheat result in loss of grain by shattering. If the binder is used, binding should be done when the plants are tough with dew. Small bundles facilitate curing. Buckwheat shocks should not be capped because the moisture in the succulent stems must escape.

UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL CUNDAY CHOOL LESSON

JESUS USES HIS POWER TO HELP

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:35-41; 5:35-43. GOLDEN TEXT—Why are ye so fearful? How is it that ye have no faith?—Mark 4:40.

Help—that is what man needs, and nothing but the power of Christ will suffice to meet his fears and sorrows. Christ appears in Mark as not only the matchless Teacher of the parables we have just studied, but the mighty Worker.

This is the Gospel in which Christ is presented as the Servant of Jehovan, who came to use His infinite grace and power for our deliverance.

Two great fears gnaw at the vitals of man's existence. Life is full of awful dangers, and death is so dreadfully final and sorrowful. He is afraid to live, and afraid to die—apart from his faith in Jesus Christ. We find the answer to both these fears as we here see-

Jesus' Power Overcomes I. Fear of Life's Dangers (Mark 4:35-41).

The long day of teaching had ended (v. 35), and the disciples carried out His request that they go to the other side of the lake to rest. Just "as he was" they departed, and before long the tired Jesus was asleep. We know how He felt, and what is even more blessed, He knows how we feel when we are tired.

As He slept, a sudden storm (common on the Lake of Galilee) brought deathly fear to the hearts of His disciples. For the moment they saw only the angry waves, the smallness of their boat, and the hopelessness of their situation.

Had they forgotten Jesus? With Him in the boat, they had no reason to fear. They called on Him, and in His majestic and authoritative "Peace be still" the wind and waves recognized their Master's voice.

Should we not learn that in this day of fears and alarms, we may (if we are Christians) count on His presence and His power. If we look at the overwhelming waves of circumstances and think how frail we are, surely our hearts shall fail us for fear. But if Christ is with us, we are in no danger.

Now they were struck with awe at His power. "Sometimes the deliverances wrought by our Lord so reveal His presence and power that His followers are more deeply moved than they were by the perils which threatened. Whether mastering the storm, or standing unseen in our midst today, He appears to the eye of faith, clothed in divine energy and power" (Erdman).

II. Fear of Death's Deep Sorrow

Trouble is a visitor in every home, it does not matter how securely that home may be founded upon wealth or social position. Frequently, death chooses a shining mark in taking a dearly beloved child. Children strike their roots deep into our hearts and when they are torn from us our whole beings are rent and convulsed. Such was the great storm of sorrow which had come upon the home of Jairus, leading him to make the brave step of faith and hope which brought him to Jesus.

Then as Jesus turned to go with Jairus a woman touched Him. He stopped to seek her out and commend her for her faith. The seeming delay must have greatly troubled Jairus, particularly when the servants came and informed him that he need no longer trouble the Master since his daughter was dead. Not infrequently we have similar experiences, where it seems that while God has promised to help us, He has been turned aside and has forgotten The psalmist in Psalm 42:3 cries out, "My tears have been my meat day and night, while they continually say unto me, Where is thy God?"

Our Lord was not troubled at all by the message of the servants of Jairus, but He showed His thoughtful consideration of the father by reassuring him with the words, "Fear not, only believe." Everywhere fear blocks the way of human peace and progress. Divine wisdom offers a remedy for it all-only believe. We excuse our lack of faith by the conditions which confront us, but none of us face conditions worse than those which confronted Jairus. His daughter was dead and he was told to believe! He obeyed and his faith was rewarded.

When He said, "The child is not dead, but sleepeth," our Lord did not mean that actual death had not taken place, but He meant that in the sight of God death is like a sleep. In the eyes of Christ spiritual death was undoubtedly far more terrible than physical death. A man may be physically alive and yet being spiritually dead be worse off than a man who, though physically dead, is spiritually alive.

After putting forth the mourning scorners, the Lord performed a miracle by simply speaking to the child and saying, "Little girl, arise." Here then is the Lord who can overcome every fear, in both life and death. Is He not the one we

FBI 'Crime Laboratory'

Aids All Police Agencies The FBI technical laboratory has entered its 12th year of service to the nation's law enforcement system. Representing the highest development of the scientific approach to crime detection, the laboratory has grown in 11 years from a lone technician and a single microscope to a staff of 355 with equipment valued at more than $1,000,000. During the last fiscal year alone the laboratory completed almost 200,000 examinations to aid in the apprehension of criminals of all types, from petty check flashers to Nazi espionage agents.

The present laboratory is the fulfillment of the original plan of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover who, at its establishment in 1932, envisioned it as a national clearing house to which all law enforcement agencies could come with their toughest technical problems. Today it is used by virtually every state and local police agency in the United States as well, upon occasion, as those of foreign countries. The services of the laboratory are free and its technicians are available to testify as expert witnesses.

Many of the tools of science used by the FBI technicians were developed in the laboratory. In numerous instances these experts have been confronted with problems never before solved and they have developed their own techniques.

Turin Industrial Hub In Northern Italy

Turin (Torino) is at the foot of the Alps near the French border. It was peacetime Italy's Detroit. Fiat automotive factories, among Europe's largest, turned out sleek pleasure cars and sturdy motor Aircraft production also ranked high among its manufactures. Other important prewar products were chemicals, high explosives, railway cars, shoes and uniforms. Axis war lords had converted all the factories to war production, just as Detroit has been made an arsenal of de-

Turin's position at "head of navigation" on the Po river means little in its industrial rise. The Po admits only small river vessels as far inland as Turin. No American industrial city of comparable size (600,000) is on commercially unnavigable water. Waterpower, however, is available from many nearby

Railroads and roads, converging on Turin in greater numbers than on any other Italian city except Milan, take the place of water trans-portation facilities. Passes through the Alps allow connection with France's systems, while a skein of road and rail arteries covers the rich farm and factory area of the Po valley to the east.

Swine

Although a fine record has been chalked up in the fight on contagious abortion, or brucellosis, in cattle, many producers seem unaware of the losses being caused by contagious abortion in swine. There are a few easy practices owners can take to control this disease in their swine.

Sows which have aborted or given birth to dead pigs, even though they fail to react to a blood test, should be segregated. Boars should also be tested because they are believed to be a major source of infection. Pigs should be removed to clean premises and kept isolated from adult animals. It is necessary to exercise extreme care in securing clean replacement animals when purchasing from outside sources.

Since the swine brucellosis organism is infectious to man, farmers who have cuts or cracks on their hands will need to use care in handling animals at farrowing time.

Meat Trimmings

Don't throw away meat trim-nings. Trim the excess fat from mings. uncooked beef, lamb, and fresh and cured pork for rendering.

Keep in the refrigerator until ready to render. Then chop fine or grind and render the fat from different kinds of meat together or separately. Render them slowly over a simmer burner or in a double boiler, and strain the rendered fat through a cloth. Cool at room temperature. Cover closely and store in a refrigerator. Use the fat for baking, drying, or seasoning.

Grind or crush "cracklings" (the crisp, brown pieces left after fat is rendered) and use in quick breads, especially corn breads or in meat loaves and patties.

Glistening Dessert

A glistening dessert you can make way ahead of time is riced lime gelatine made just a little stiff. Run it through a food mill or a potato ricer at the last minute for the icy effect. Make a color scheme with a pan of red and one of green and tumble the two colors in the bowl. Better insert a cardboard partition to divide the bowl while filling it. It's delicious when one side is piled with cherry or strawberry and the other is filled with drifts of lime. A pretty and easy garnish is orange slices with a walnut atop. When you spoon out the dessert at the table, pass chilled custard sauce. Circle the bowl with your prettiest cutout Christmas cookies and cool twigs snipped from the Christmas tree.

Answer: To start with, a black floor is next to impossible to keep the asphalt tile should not have been a tile in an obscure corner and try alcohol, you will have to use a slowscrubbing the floor with scouring

shellac. When polishing asphalt tile

Keep Bomber Noses Shiny While cosmetics have long been used to take "shine" from human noses, the reverse treatment is essential for the transparent noses of bomber planes. The accuracy of aim of the bombardiers and gun-ners requires that the nose "blisters" or "greenhouses" of the planes be as clearly transparent as it is possible to make them-free from even such tiny nicks or scratches s might be caused by abrasion by buttons or buckles on the clothing of workers or by hoses or portable light cables in the bomber factories, says

Automotive War Production. The big problem of keeping the bombers' noses shiny during assembly of the planes was first dealt with by masking the noses with paper and adhesive tape, but this required too much time. Besides it darkened the interior of the plane. Eventual solution of the problem was effected by the perfection and use of an amber colored fluid resin which hardens into a tough film on contact with air. This protective coating can be applied by dipping, spraying or brushing. At the end of the assembly line, just before final inspection, the film is softened with water and stripped off in sheets, which carry away with them all dirt, grime and other blemishes acquired during the manufac-turing operations. It is stated that in accordance with the automotive industry's practice of sharing knowhow with all U. S. industries working for Allied victory, full details of preparation and application of the film have been made available to all companies who have need.

Precious Stones Prevent Slipping on Warships

Bluejackets of the United States navy, manning the thundering guns of battleships and cruisers, take their stands on carpets of semi-precious stones. Naval planes, zooming from the flight decks of carriers with their deadly loads of bombs and torpedoes, take off from runways of the same sort.

Garnets are being used by the navy today to cover decks and gun emplacements of our ships, the gems, pulverized into coarse grains, forming part of a new deck covering manufactured for the navy.

The new covering, known as "Dektred," is made by mixing the ground garnets with a special fireresistant plastic or synthetic resin binder that has the ability to stick to the smooth steel surface of a battleship deck or similar structure.

The chief purpose of Dektred is to prevent slipping, a problem that is of the utmost seriousness in naval operations. Slippery decks can cause accidents, even death. They can lose battles. The problem is particularly acute in rough weather or on small ships whose low decks are normally washed by the waves at high speeds.

Blast Road

A stretch of 51/2 miles over the Western Cordillera on the 83-mile national highway being constructed between Cali and Buenaventura is the toughest road construction job now going on in Colombia-if not in South America. The road must be blasted through solid rock nearly all

According to information received by the United States department of commerce, it will probably take all of the year 1944 before a motor highway can be cut through this mountainous terrain. The gap is about 57 miles to the west of Cali.

This gap is one of four on which Colombia is centering her road-building efforts. Until a roadway can be smashed through the rock, shipments of coffee and other products destined for the seaport of Buenaventura from the interior will have to be transported over the Pacific railroad line.

Sea Animal

The bannacle, in its youth, is a sea animal smaller than a man's thumb, with six pairs of active legs and described by a British scientist as "a crustacean fixed by its head and kicking the food into its mouth with its legs." In youth, the barnacle has a pair of eyes and swims about in the water, but later it attaches itself to the hull of a ship or other hard surface, loses its eyes, and permanently armors and anchors itself for the remainder of its existence. The barnacle combines the male and female sexes and is named from an ancient myth about an island where the eggs of a "barnacle goose" grew and were hatched on trees. Unless protected with antifouling paint as much as 30 tons of barnacles can accumulate on a single 10,000-ton ship, reducing its speed and increasing fuel consumption.

Wear Glasses

Army tests of vision have revealed many shortcomings in sight of inductees who in civilian life had not suspected that they could not see as well as other people. About one out of every seven men in our military forces wears glasses, which are provided without cost to soldiers. Army requirements for spectacles are calling for a larger proportion of minus lenses than had been dispensed in civilian life. About 10 per cent of all spectacles dispensed to the armed forces are designed to correct mixed astigmawith this condition until after the

Plane Naming Is Old Custom

Weird Monikers of Bombers Just Reflection of Old American Habit.

WASHINGTON.—It must puzzle the methodical German to have Wabbit Twacks dropping the bomb on him one day, Lady Halitosis the next, Thunder Mug the next and Mister Five-by-Five on Sunday.

All he can know of the matter, for all the pioneering in German universities in obscure corners of psychology, is that some healthy and imaginative young Americans are up there pouring bombs on him and just itching to get one of those new super-Flying Fortresses and paint a name on it. For it seems that the American can't lay a hand on a piece of fighting machinery, particularly an airplane, without making it a part of him and his crew and naturally giving it a name.

The habit, as far as can be determined from the corn belt, is strictly American, although there are indications that the Australians who have learned from the Americans to appreciate Bourbon and pinup girls, are picking it up. With Commander J. R. Ratten, the first Australian to command a Spitfire wing in England, is shown in a photograph in a British aviation magazine standing beside his plane. On the side is the name Tikkie and a little doodle figure of a man with a ing from Australia report that the Australians in the main run to naming their ships for the dominion's states and painting pictures of kangaroos and koala bears on the sides.

The British in general do not go for such things. Even in squadron insignia, where the Americans run to anything Walt Disney or an exbeer-sign painter can devise, the British go heraldic. They paint an elaborate crest, with mottoes like "CCXVI Dona Ferens," which means (squadron) "216 bearing gifts," or "Usquam," meaning anywhere," or "Tenax proposition"-"firm of purpose."

The American pilot and his crew, however, are earthy. If their leader, Gen. H. H. Arnold, hadn't put his foot down in a formal order, there is little telling how many figures of bar-room mirror art would be flitting over Europe and the Pacific.
It is known that one crew had to put a sweater on what was not a sweater girl on the side of its big

It's an Old Custom.

This American habit goes back a long way, from or before the day Davy Crockett chased the Indians out of Kentucky with his rifle Betsy, and Mike Fink, the king of the keelboat men, terrorized innocent folk from Pittsburgh to New Orleans and back when the Ohio and Mississippi rivers were no place for peaceable

Early locomotives in this country bore such names as Tom Thumb, De Witt Clinton, The Best Friend of John Bull and Old Ironsides and people called them collectively "iron horses" and "puffing billies."

Civil war gunners named their favorite cannon, and when the covered wagons started for the great West, Oklahoma or Bust and California Here We Come were painted on the flapping canvas. During the years preceding the attack on Pearl Harbor, when war was a far thought, American boys were chalking Rambling Wreck and Hit Me Easy I'm Growing Old on the sides of their tin Lizzies. Those same boys are taking a brand-new bomber today and gathering around their pilot to decide: "What'll we name it?"

Small Apple Maggots

Lay Eggs in Fruit The adults of the apple maggot are small, black and white flies which may be seen in the orchard on both leaves and fruit, beginning about mid-July. These flies, a little smaller than houseflies, can be recognized by their color and by their close resemblance to small spiders. The latter effect is caused by the markings and movement of their wings which are often mistaken for the jaws of a spider. For about one week the flies fly about and feed on materials they find on both leaves and fruit before any eggs are laid.

Egg laying is accomplished by inserting the needle-like ovipositor beneath the skin of an apple, causing a puncture which can be found only after a knowing search. If the fruit is green, the maggot hatching from an egg may develop slowly at first, the only sign of its presence being a tiny brown streak in the fruit. this time infested fruit may be picked and sold without there being any reason to suspect the maggot inside. Later, as the apple ripens, the maggot grows rapidly and crawls from the fruit after it has been in storage or has fallen to the ground. Maggots from fallen apples tunnel into the soil to a depth of one or two inches and soon become encased in a yellowish capsule where they overwinter. The transformation from maggot to fly takes place within this capsule and about the middle of July the flies emerge.

Tiny Match-Shaped Lamp Lights Powerful Searchlight

A new type of high-intensity searchlight providing more than 7,500,000 candlepower, its tiny match-shaped mercury lamp cooled by compressed air, has been developed in a wide variety of mountings suitable for shipboard or land use. With its 900-watt mercury lamp, this 12-inch searchlight is four times as powerful as the conventional incandescent searchlight of the same size.

Such heat is created by the mer-cury arc inside the lamp that it must be constantly air cooled. The air is forced through a rubber hose into the top of the searchlight drum by an air compressor, and blows over the lamp through twin nozzles. Twenty-five pounds of pressure is used. Warm air escapes through small ventholes in the bottom. With air cooling, the searchlight can be operated in all types of weather.

The light beam, pale bluish-green in color, is flat and narrow, making it suitable for many specialized applications such as lighting of distant horizontal surfaces from a low mounting height. Three circular louvers prevent the escape of stray

Mixed With Flours

Used in baked products-cakes, breads, biscuits, pastries and souffles-small amounts of soya flour should be mixed with wheat or corn flour, whichever is being used. Mixtures of soya and wheat flours can also be used in cream soups or sauces.

Changing Economy

In 1910, only 1.2 per cent of all the families had incomes of over $5,000 a year. Another 29.4 per cent had incomes in what might be called the middle area, from $1,000 to $5,000. This left 69.4 per cent of the families with incomes under $1,000.

Pay Increases

The average pay envelope of the worker in industry in 1910 was $11.53 per week. By the end of 1942 it had risen to $42.49. This was an increase of approximately 250 per cent in the average weekly pay envelope during this generation.

Poultry Pullorum

Pullorum disease is a bloodstream infection, and frequently causes serious losses in poults during the first few weeks of brooding. In almost every respect, a pullorum-infected brood of poults resembles a pullorum-infected brood of chicks. The feathers appear rough, the wings droop, and there may be evidence of "pasting" at the vent. Infected poults remain apart from the brood, frequently with eyes closed, or re-main huddled close to the source of heat. They may die as early as the second or third day of brooding. Losses often continue for 10 days or more, reaching a peak about five to seven days after the first fatality. A laboratory examination is essential to an accurate diagnosis.

Not all infected poults die, and if ceeding years as breeders, they may produce infected eggs which transmit the disease to the next genera-

Baked Squash

Winter squash is at its best when baked and steamed, some say. For baking it is only necessary to cut it into sections and remove the seeds and fibrous material. When squash is to be steamed it should also be peeled.

Steamed squash is more moist than baked and lends itself better to mashing for casserole dishes of various sorts and for pies, puddings and custards. Interesting flavor combinations with squash for main course dishes include pork of almost any kind-fresh or smokedand vegetable flavors such as green the suc- | pepper, onion, celery and chives.
