I'm still in Italy and the Italians really treat us swell. We have plenty of nice times in the evenings in the little town nearby. Last evening I was invited out to eat up town and was suprprised at the delicions food served. The meal started with the famous Italian spaghetti, altogether different from the way we prepare it. It was in two inch squares and was like our noodles and was served in like our noodles and was served in fried rabbit gravy. The fried rabbit, very tasty, and boiled ham followed. The meal was rounded off with cantaloupe, peaches and grapes. After that a cup of coffee. Wine is served with the meal and the women drink about half wine and water. Their bread is hard brown and unsweetened, different but good. They brought out their new linens silverware and china which were very beautiful. The people in this part of the country more like the people in the States. They are neat and particular and there's a world of difference between them and the southern Italians. AL SMITH DIES

Noted Politician and Business Man Passes at N. Y.

Alfred Emmanuel Smith, commonly known as Al Smith, the "Happy Warrior" of American politics, died on Wednesday of this week at the age of 70 years. His death was attributed to lung congestion and heart disease. Smith was one of the most prominent Catholic laymen in America, but had the respect of a vast number of people without regard to church af-

His body will lie in state in St. Patrick's Cathedral today (Friday) at 2 P. M., with requiem high mass on Saturday at 11 A. M. with burial following.

Smith was an outstanding Democrat. He began his political career at the age of 22 in the year 1895 and rose rapidly until he was the com-manding figure in New York. He was four times governor of New York. In 1928 was the Democratic nominee for president, but was defeated by Herbert Hoover, and then retired from politics but was still outstanding in his business career. In 1936 and again in 1940 he refused to support Roosevelt and voted for the Republican candidates. He was an ardent foe of the New Deal to the end.

Tributes to Mr. Smith were paid this week by a vast number of periodicals and individuals including former President Hoover and President Roosevelt. There will be many who will feel that his failure to reach the White House was a misfortune for the United States.

Mr. Smith died five months to the day after the death of his wife.

SUGAR FOR SMALL "JAM SELLERS"

Sugar for making home-made fruit butters, jams, jellies and other pro-cessed foods for sale—even though these products are ration-free—may be obtained by farm families, housewives and others to the extent that they used sugar for this purpose in 1941 or to the extent of 250 pounds, whichever is greater, OPA says. Prior to September 27, sugar was not authorized for home-processing non-ra-tioned or point-free foods for sale. Application for sugar for this purpose should be made to the local Price and Rationing Board, OPA says

DETROIT LETTER

Baseball, Politics, Etc. are Covered in This Letter

The 1944 baseball season is a thing of the past, and after one of the most hotly contests in baseball history, our Tigers have to be contented with second place. And strange to say, it was your Washington club that put the finishing touches on their aspira-tions for a seventh pennant. And, according to reports, while they were doing this, they were secretly hoping that the Tigers would nose the St. Louis Browns out, as if ever two base ball teams hated each other, the win-ners of the pennant and the tail-end-ers were the two, on account of the sneers that have been cast at the Cubans on the roster of the latter

But now the fever, which in Detroit had reached to a degree not equalled since 1940, the year the last pennant was won by Detroit, can subside, and our lovers of the game can side, and our lovers of the game can go back to the ordinary things of life, which on account of the strikes and labor troubles that are constant-ly occurring here, may be called ordi-nary, but in your part of the country would be called most extraordinary.

would be called most extraordinary. Every day we hear of a strike being settled, and a new one or more breaking out, thus about even things in this line.

But going back to the result of the base ball fight, there is one bright side to the ending, and that is that the hotel proprietors need not worry. hotel proprietors need not worry about finding room for persons who about finding room for persons who expected to come to see the expected World's Series played in Detroit—that is, part of it. We noticed in one of last week's paper that they were almost praying that the result would be what it is, as some of them said that many would have to sleep on billiard tables or the floor to sleep on billiard tables or the floor, so crowded are these hotels, should the result have been that for which the majority of folks out here were hoping. And the officials of the war plants, are greatly relieved, too, as they were fearing that the many absences from work would slow up their output. So, we suppose everytheir output. So, we suppose every-thing has come out all right, and I think that everybody who is interested, is hoping that the American League winners will take the National League winners will take the National League Club in an impressive number of games, but that is something that will be mighty hard to do, as the latter is about the only team that has not been hit hard by the war—in the matter of taking players in the draft. The CIO leaders are mighty busy these days, as is shown by the establishment of registration offices in every meeting ball, in order to get every meeting hall, in order to get the names of their members on the registration books, feeling that they can influence all their members so that they can carry this state for their idol, the great Commander-in-chief, and "Indispendable man," real-izing that their chances of stirring up trouble would be greatly lessened if he should be defeated. They may think that, after attempting to collect a dollar, from each member, his vote goods and chattels.

The sale of real estate, filed by Sterling S. Snader, adminstrator d. h. n. c. t.a. of the estate of Emma vote as they please, and do not want any one to dictate to them as what they shall do when they enter the polling booths. Indeed, I have talked with quite a few who say that they even refused to contribute the dollar. The central Election board is divided on the legality of this proceeding, as the law requires the registration to be done at the City Hall. But aping the attitude of the New Deal, toward the Constitution of the United States, they are going ahead anyhow, feeling that nothing will be done to stop-them, and their diligence in this line, coupled with the hordes of grafters, and other undesirable sorts of citizens that infest our city, and who are working hand and glove with the CIO in their efforts, they may obtain their goal.

(Since writing the above, we notice that the Election Commission has named quite a number of places for registration of voters, thus legalizing the action of the CIO. Anything may happen in a large city, and of all the queer election laws that I have ever heard of, our Michlaw is the queerest, starting with the Primary law, which in itself is something never heard of before.)
It is said that Fall is the most beautiful and delightful season of the year, and in a measure this is so, but to me, with winter just around the corner, it does not look so good. For the past 5 or 6 years, winters have aways played havoc with my health, and in the state it the prospect is not so inviting. But we will have to take it as it comes, even if we are promised a shortage of coal, and some othervelt had studied the Wilson catalog of dangers, but instead of heeding the warning he has seemed to defy the warning and by his acts seemed anxious to see how close he could come to these dangers and yet avaoid them. Sometimes he has been successful, at other times he has miserably failed. He has deserted the Deomcratic party that gave him his chance and made him, and has gone over soul and body to the alien unAmerican gang of crack-pot theorists who are determined to undo all the good our founding fathers created and our 150 years of experience has developed, and to launch instead the alien ideas of a Stalin and his stooge in America half Browder and Hillman and Bridges and the three million office holders with whom he has surrounded himself.

He has attempted to change our form of government by purging the Supreme Court, and sarcastically designating them 'nine tired old men.' How terrible is fate. Now a few years later Roosevelt himself finds himself also a tired old man, given much lately to quarrelsomeness and name calling. He has opposed business and arrayed class against class, and sneeringly called those who were successful "Princes of Privilege," and "Economic Royalists". He has had good ghost writers and has coined a lot of phrases that will live for a

We believe he has his match in the upstanding and outstanding Tom Dewey. One will search in vain to find any real constructive thing that Roosevelt ever did before becoming president; on the other hand one can scarcely find a day or season after his maturity that Dewey has not done great things. As a young district attorney he cleared New York of its thugs and crooks and broke the back of entranched greed in his realm.

As Governor has accumulated millions in surplus which he insist be earmarked for the care for returning veteran of the present war.

Roosevelt found us saddled with about 30 billions debt which he attention is there any suggestion of solemnly (campaign promise) promised to reduce. He has increased that debt until now at close of third term it amounts to 250 billion dollars-almost the total value of all tangible property in these United States.

We believe Dewey is right when he asserts that it is time for a change for reversal of the policies discussed and I shall so vote.

AMERICA MUST CHOOSE

America must choose and it must choose on November 7th.

The choice it makes in that fateful election will not be primarily a choice between Democratic and Republican parties. Even less will it be a choice between Franklin D. Roosevelt and Thomas E. Dewey.

It will be, in fact, a choice between free Democratic America, an America with the destiny of human liberty, and an America in which neither free political nor free economic institutions can long survive.

In the record of the Roosevelt Administration from March 4, 1933, to this date will be found nothing to support the thesis that, in the event of his re-election in November, Presdent Roosevelt would reverse the course of the last dozen years, would take steps and adopt policies designed frankly to encourage private initiative and promote private investment, or would in any wise turn away from the policies which have made government an active participant in employer-employe differences instead of an impartial umpire.

One will sea ch the records of the last dozen years in vain for evidence to support a belief that at the earliest possible time after the end of the war President Roosevelt, if reelected, would move to demobilize by servants now on the pay rolls, and resentative. to deflate a Federal bureaucracy, largely Leftist in philosophy, which would perpetuate itself if it were able Nor will the search of the Democratic platform or of President Roosevelt's papers and speeches give any tope to those who are persuaded that far-reaching revision of the Federal tax and revenue system is an indispensable condition of post-war recovery within the framework of the free enterprise system.

Neither in the record of the Roosevelt Administration before the war nor in such of its plans for the postwar period as have come to public a course of action which would put the nation's finances in order by economy in government and restoration of a sound fiscal and monetary sys-

It is the Plain Dealer's firm conviction that the nation's only hope in the paragraphs above lies in a change of Administration at Washington.

The issue is not of changing horses in the middle of the stream. It is rather of drifting with the tides of disintegration to certain disaster, or by dint of clear vision and earnest effort working our way to the safe port of a greater America than our forefathers envisioned. - Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CASHING THE BONDS

On the heels of the announcement that war bonds are to be cashed at any bank by the simple expedient of the holder endorsing them and presenting them to the paying teller and being identified, the Treasury is trying to emphasize the point that this is not to encourage the cashing of the bonds. Its position remains unchanged-that the bonds should be held until maturity except in cases of emergency.

That the pressure of sales may not be long in coming, however, is indicated by the fact that American corporations now have $43,000,000,000 of net working capital, nearly half of it in war bonds. These government securities held by corporations represent most of the working capital gains during the war. If extensive retooling or plant expansion is undertaken by the corperations during the reconversion period they will cash in huge amounts of bonds. Thus selling pressure may be put upon the government bond market before the war ends and its consequences have been completely financed. This is one of the possibilities the Treasury will be compelled to consider in devising its fiscal policies for the future.-The Frederick Post.

Our thanks to a Country Editor

YOU get a pretty good view of the world from a small-town newspaper office. Sometimes you see things that other folks overlook. For instance, this frank statement by the editor of The Dierks (Arkansas) Banner:

> The Banner is one of the last papers in the country to raise its subscription price, many over the U.S. having done so a year or more ago. The cost of practically everything that goes into the production of a newspaper has advanced, except electricity used in running the machinery and lighting the plant. In normal times there was little if any profit in subscriptions at $1.00 a year. If the information contained in even a 4-page country newspaper published weekly, 52 times a year, isn't worth $1.50 to the subscriber, it has no valid reason for existence.

We're grateful to the editor for pointing out a fact more and more people are realizing - that at a time when most things are scarce and expensive, electricity is still plentiful and cheap.

Hundreds of thousands of our soldiers, who went away little more than boys, will come back mature men with fine mechanical training, glad to turn their new skills to the running of the farm.

But they're never going to be satisfied with worn-out equipment, or out-of-date machinery. They're going to want the best. And after handling our tanks and planes and guns, they're ' going to know what the best is!

While your son is away, are you really preparing for his return? You're buying War Bonds, yes-because it's the duty of all of us to help meet the expense of this war for our Freedom. But are you buying enough to lay the foundation for a prosperous postwar farm as well?

CAP CADETS ENCAMP AT AAF INSTALLATIONS

Nine thousand youths between the ages of 15 and 17 were the guests this summer at Army air forces installa-tions in the United States, the War Department announced recently.

A broad program, sponsored jointly by the AAF Assistant Chief of Air Staff, Training, and the Civil Air Patrol, has made this summer encampment possible. Each youth is a Civil Air Patrol Cadet and has been chosen for this opportunity from the entire CAP Cadet Corps on the basis of merit. These air-minded youths started this training in July and it continued until September 15, In addition to absorbing all the routine functions of the AAF bases they visit, the CAP Cadets experience the same GI living Miss Blanche Shriner, Mrs. Preston as the AAF soldier. They attend Myers, Mrs. Edward Gilbert, Mrs. classes in pre-flight aeronautics, military courtesy and discipline and receive some indoctrination and military

Each Cadet must have parental or guardian consent to take this training and wears the standard CAP Cadet uniform which consists of regulation Army garments with special insignia. The Cadets also are given the usual medical attention that is given each soldier. Housing, bedding and existing facilities are provided the Cadets. A slight charge is made for ute of the encampment is occupied. The Cadets are shown every phase of flying and ground activity at the bases. They observe AAF line work, including the servicing, overhauling and inspection of different types of aircraft. Cockpit inspections are included and also control tower visits. Operation of the Link trainer is also on the program.

The use, care and packing of parachutes is covered and a course in protection against gas and in protective concealment is included.

Special attention is paid to the physical education of the Cadets. Fifteen minutes a day is spent on calisthenics, with further periods being set aside for games and military drill. All Cadets participate in the retreat ceremony each evening.
The encampment of these 9,000

Cadets this summer is part of a program, now going on in every State, to expand greatly the Civil Air Patrol Cadet organization by the end of 1944. The Cadet program first was undertaken by Civil Air Patrol in October, 1942, ten months after the establishment of the parent organization, as one phase in the broad Civil Air Patrol program of assembling civilian personnel who were interested in aviation and anxious to equip themselves for service in the war ef-fort by undertaking volunteer training along military and aviation lines. As a result of such training, CAP units have performed many useful missions, including antisubmarine patrol, the operation, the operation of extensive courier systems, the performance of tracking and tow-target assignment and searches for lost

During the summer, many new CAP units are being formed and instructors are being trained with a view to large-scale expansion of the program in the fall.

FARM FIRES

Besides producing food, feed, fiber and oil crops, there is another neverending battle the farmers must win to prevent a breakdown on the farm front, says L. C. Burns, County Agricultural Agent. That is the fight to eliminate the frightful yearly loss in lives, and preparty caused by delives and property caused by destructive farm fires.

According to the National Fire Protection Association there was an alarming increase in fires last year over 1942 and present indications are that by the end of 1944, the total will climb even higher. "Annually more than 3500 lives have been lost in farm fires truly a tragic story of horrible and unnecessary death," states Mr.

Fire Prevention Week, proclaimed by President Roosevelt for October 8 to 14, and sponsored by National Fire Protection Association, U. S. Department of Agriculture and the University of Maryland Extension Service, is the ideal time for everyone farmers and their wives and children -to learn the causes of those fires and how to prevent them, according to the county agent.

There are eight major fire hazards and these can be stamped out, says Mr. Burns. Some of the major steps to be taken or at least planned during Fire Prevention Week include: thorough cleaning and repairing of the heating system, including the chimney, recovering flammable roofing on the farm homes, barns and other production buildings with fire-resistant roofing materials, when reroofing is necessary; cleaning out all flammable rubbish from the attic, basement and outbuildings installation and adequate lightning rods; repair and replacement of worn-out electrical equipment; inspection and recharging of fire extinguishers.

The new "A" Rations will be mailed out, and no books will be issued except by mail.

We miss you no less as the time passes on Than we did on the day of your going. For absence can never close the door of our hearts. And the lamp of our love is still glowing.

We do not forget, nor do we intend,
We think of you often and will to the end

THE INDISPENSABLE MAN!

There is much said these days about the indispensable man. They usually refer to the man in the White House. To me there is only one indispensable man, and that is your family physician. If I were marooned on a tropical island it isn't Betty Grabill I would most crave as my companion, although she might come in handy, but it would be none other than good old "Doc" with his bag full of pills. You don't believe it? Well, perhaps you don't believe it now when you are good and healthy, but at the first sign of a cold, or the summer grippe, you believe it. They tell me that malarial fever is far worse than a cold and tropical diseases play havoc with your constitution. So I want a doc-tor instead of Betty Grabill. He is my indispensable man. Q. E. D.

The other evening I met Doc on the street of Taneytown. He wore a huge street of Taneytown. He wore a huge snap dragon in his coat lapel.

I said, "Hello Doc!"
He said, "Hya Ezra!"
"Where did you get that beautiful bouquet for your lapel?"
"Gn-f, I got that as a reward."
"A reward for doing what?"
"Umpiring a baseball game."
"For the athletics and Detroit, or for the St. Louis Browns?"
"No. But the teams were just as good. The Kiwanians asked me to umpire a game between two teams

"And for that you got the bouton-

"Yes. If that is what you call it. They called me a second Van Grafian and present me with a prize and this

'I am sure you deserved it."

That shows with what esteem the whole town holds Doc. He is indispensable, even in a ball bame.

But let us not take too much for granted. Although Doc is practically a super man, and can stay up all hours of the night to wait on his patients, he needs some time for relaxation. Umpire all the baseball games you like Doc, relax, rest your mind and eye, then I can feel confident that your split-second decision and your eagle eye will not fail you when you diagnose that next ailment of mine.

TREATING SEED WHEAT

Carroll county farmers are becoming interested in treating their seed wheat to control stinking smut, reports L. C. Burns, County Agent, this week. Reports received by the county agent from the University of Maryland Extension Service indicate that stinking smut infection is on the increase again.

Stinking smut on wheat can be controlled by applying one-half ounce of New Improved seresam per bushel of seed. The grain and the dust must be mixed thoroughly, explains the county agent. This can be done with any home-made equipment such as an old concrete mixer, churn, or barrel adapted to rotate on a shaft. Also, a Minnesota grain mixer and a Also, a Minnesota grain mixer and a community grain treater have been found satisfactory. The dust, which usually costs about three cents per bushel of seed treated, may be purchased at most seed stores, feed mills, and elevators.

Dr. E. A. Walker, Extension pathologist at the University, warns farmers that the dust is a poison and should not be inhaled. He says that treated grain should be sacked and left for 24 hours or longer before seeding for best results. County Agent Burns explains that the stinking smut attacks the young plants as the seed erminates and grows inside the stalk as a parasite, filling the head with smut balls before the head emerges. These smut balls then break open as the wheat is threshed, liberating thousands of spores to infect the grain for the next year's crop. Treating the seed wheat with the New Improved Seresan will kill the smut spores and insure a healthy crop. The smut will reduce wheat yields and also cause millers to deduct farmers several cents per bushel when the grain is infected.

LOOKING BY GEORGE S. BENSON President-Harding College Searcy, Arkansas Moral Courage

Only three dangers seem big enough to threaten America's direct course to post-war prosperity. They are (1) scarcity of capital, (2) loss of foreign markets and (3) government bungling in matters of business. Two previous chapters of "Looking Ahead" discussed the first two obstacles. Either of them could wreck America's hope of world leadership; both can be avoided.

The courage of our people to brave the first two hazards depends on knowing what government means to do about the third. By investing the cost of six months of war, industry can create the 7 to 10 million new jobs needed. Competent American workers can make these jobs pay good wages and returns on the investment. Industry and labor can succeed together with favorable government regulations.

Pays to be Ready

Stalling and delaying at the war's end may, in three ways, stop all progress of labor and industry back toward prosperity. Indeed one obstruction can keep recovery from even starting, might wreck Private Enterprise before it starts. Taxation is the deadly tool. No new laws are necessary. Many a small industrial plant will never turn a wheel after the emergency until present tax laws are changed.

A factory in Texas works 150 men. I know the owner. His taxes ran $1,000 a day last year, about the same as his pay-roll. He manages today because the government takes his complete output; no risks to run, no selling to do. After the war it will be different: Uncertain demands, sure selling costs, competition to meet. Without tax relief he does not see how he can afford to take such risks.

Time Has Value The case is typical. Most manufacturers believe tax revisions will come, but they fear delay. If work starts on a new tax bill after V-Day, it will be a year in the making and a serious business depression can get under way in that time. If employers might know today how peace-time taxes will be figured, they could estimate prices and shift into post-war production and employment without a shut-down.

Something else business men can't wait for too long: News about government competition. The U.S. owns outright 25 per cent of the nation's manufacturing plants and equipment. Will these be sold into private ownership, or what? If supported by taxes, such plants could make anything from foot-valves to lightning rods and leave the employees of bankrupt competitors weeping in the

Sedition is Unlawful

Sabotage is government's third fear to remove. Alien agitators unmuzzled in this country can be expected to start promoting revolution as soon as hostilities have ceased. Many new-made Americans still hold slave-land notions and believe anything that injures their employer helps them. Arson, violence and vandalism should be restrained in years when life and liberty depend on efficiency.

The world's only free people must stay free. Independence must be retained by the world's only nation not reduced to beggary. No sane baseball player would go to bat with two strikes on him, and, by the same token, America's rational business men deserve an open statement of government policy on three things: (1) taxation, (2) sedition and (3) government competition. If government will clear the track, industry will come through. .

DEFEATISM

The philosophy of defeatism is rearing its doleful head in the sheet recently issued by the Department of Agriculture entitled, "Shall I Be a Farmer." M ADELINE saw the soldier while she was some distance up the highway and impulsively she started to slow down. But as the car stopped beside him she was a trifle uneasy. She had never before picked up a hitchhiker. She scanned his face as he tugged at the door handle and a measure of confidence returned. He was lean and brown and hard and reminded her of her brother; he wore overseas ribbons, too.

The lieutenant brought into the comfortable coupe the not unpleasant odor of a mild soap and good tobacco and also, to Madeline's astonishment, a casual intimacy that did nothing to improve her

He sat half-facing her, with one arm thrown over the back of the seat and his fingers played gently with the collar of her polo coat. She turned toward him reprovingly and saw that his eyes had missed nothing — from the tight roll of chestnut hair clear down to her slender ankles.

"You'll do," he decided, catching her glance.

Madeline blushed. "Thanks. I was expecting a whistle," she said tartly. "You'd rate a whistle if you'd take off those shell-rimmed cheaters, fluff out that hair-do into something modern and slip into a jersey that should be more becoming than that

LESSON TEXT-Matthew 4:1-4; 6:31-34;

Luke 4:16-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that pro-ceedeth out of the mouth of God.—Mat-

Problems, sorrows, needs, anxieties-how they press in on mankind from every direction. What is he to do about them? He cannot meet them in his own strength. They worry him almost to the point of distraction. What shall he do?

There is just one answer, and it is blessedly simple and completely satisfying. Take your burdens to the Lord and leave them there! Cast all your care upon Him, for He careth for you (I Pet. 5:7).

From the teachings of Jesus our lesson tells us why and how we may do this. Let us not miss its glorious -and convicting-message.

I. We Can Overcome Temptation Through Christ Matt. (4:1-4). Temptation is the common lot of all mankind (I Cor. 10:13). The strongest and most noble of men are subject to it. Angels were tempted, and our scripture reveals that even Jesus was tempted. We recognize that Jesus was tempted as the Messiah (vv. 3, 6) and as one without sin (Heb. 4:15), but it is also true that He was tempted in all points as we are, apart from sin, and that we may learn from His temptation how we may meet and be the victors over temptation.

We learn of our Lord that temptations may be victoriously over-

1. By the right use of Scripture. If Jesus needed that weapon, how can we do without it? But how can we use Scripture if we do not study it and hide it in our hearts?

2. By dependence on God. Every Scripture used by Jesus honored God. We cannot fight Satan in our own strength. To attempt to do so is to fail utterly. The real victory for the Christian is to bring Satan back to the cross where Christ won a decisive victory over him.

3. By denouncing Satan. Jesus sent him on his way. We may do the same in Jesus' name. It is always a serious error to try to argue with Satan or to engage in any discussion with him. Let us meet him with Scripture and say "Get thee hence."

II. We Can Learn to Trust God for our Daily Needs (Matt. 6:31-34). Some want to be rich. Their folly is made clear in verses 19-24. But then there are some who while not wanting to be rich, are in constant anxiety about food and raiment for the morrow.

What is the answer of the Lord

Jesus? Consider the birds. They are not able to work, nor are they able pray, but God feeds them. Consider the glory of the flowers of the fields, for not even a king can dress himself in such beauty. "Are ye not much better than they?" (v. 26).

"As far as known, no bird ever tried to build more nests than its neighbors; no fox ever fretted because it had only one hole in which to hide; no squirrel ever died of anxiety lest he should not lay up enough nuts for two winters instead of one; and no dog ever lost any sleep over the fact that he did not have enough bones laid aside for his declining years" (Public Health service).

Proper forethought is good and right, for we are intelligent beings, but anxiety about our daily needs is always dishonoring to God.

Yes, says someone that's all very well, but how about the future? Well, why should we fret about that? It is in God's hands, and even if it were in our hands, what could we do about it? Even tomorrow, with its needs and its blessings, with its joy and its sorrows, is not yet here, and when it does come, there will be God's gracious provision for each passing hour.

III. We Can Follow Christ in Sacrificial Service (Luke 4:16-21).

Let us be clear at once that we cannot do what Christ did, for He is the Son of God. He had a special ministry to perform as the Messiah. But we may learn much from this Jesus began His ministry among His own people even though He knew of their unbelief. He used the Word of God as the background for His calling. He recognized the special need of the poor and the suffering, and especially of those who were bruised and broken by sin.

In all these things we may follow His example. Let us declare the truth to those nearest to us, even if they do reject it. Let us look to God's Word for our call and our commission-different from that of Jesus, but nevertheless from God and for His glory.

Then, too, let us learn of Him that we are to serve those who are most needy and possibly neglected, serving their physical needs, but above all bringing to them the light of God's redeeming grace.

Here is light from the Lord on our problems of sin, sorrow, supply and service.

A telegram from Rear Admiral D. C. Ramsey, chief of the U. S. Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, called on the Western Electric Company to produce more of the Mirrophones, and added: "This recording device is considered so valuable that it has been installed on all our aircraft carriers. Splitsecond communications are vital to the success of combat operations and your Mirrophone helps to attain such precision by developing the best voice technique for transmitting messages.

The recording machine, which will "play back" a 60-second conversation spoken into a transmitter, also is being used extensively in the Army Specialized Training Program at Yale University, to help the trainees capture elusive pronunciations in their study of Japanese, Burmese, Russian and other foreign languages. Connecticut telephone operators loaned their Mirrophone to the Yale unit for the duration.

Introduced in March, 1941, the Mirrophone was originally designed to aid in speech training for Bell System operators and others whose jobs require good diction. It was also adopted by educational institutions, and was seized upon by radio announcers and actors as a rapid and efficient means of checking their diction before going on the air. Today it has been installed in most naval training stations here and abroad.

DEWEY LASHES AT FDR IN FIGHTING SPEECH

Following are highlights of Governor Thomas E. Dewey's address delivered in the Municipal Auditorium in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, on September 25 and broadcast coast-to-coast.

Governor Dewey said in part.

Last Saturday night September 23
the man who wants to be President for sixteen years made his first speech of this campaign. It was a speech of mud-slinging, ridicule and wise-cracks. It plumbed the depths wise-cracks. It plumbed the depths plements of war."

Rut war came just two years lat-Governor Dewey said in part: wise-cracks. It plumbed the depths of demagogy by dragging into this campaign names of Hitler and Goeb-campaign names of Hitler and Goebbels; it descended to quoting from "Mein Kampf" and to reckless charges of "fraud" and "falsehood." I shall not use the tactics of our enemies by quoting from "Mein Kampf." I will never divide America. Those tactics also I leave to my opponent my opponent.

I shall never make a speech to one group of American people inciting them to hatred and distrust of perately high. any other group.

My opponent, however, has chosen to wage his campaign on the record of the past and has indulged in charges of fraud and falsehood.

My opponent describes as, and I quote him, a "fantastic charge," the statement that his administration plans to keep men in the army when the war is over and that it intends to keep them there because it fears there will be no jobs for them in civil life. Well, who brought

Here is the statement of a high official of the administration as reported on Aug. 23, 1944, in the publication of the United States army, the Stars and Stripes. He said:

"We can keep people in the army about as cheaply as we could create an agency for them when they are in office.

Now, who said that? It was the national director of selective service appointed by Mr. Roosevelt and still in office.

But, says Mr. Roosevelt, the war department thereafter issued a plan for what he called "speedy discharges." You can read that plan from now until doomsday and you cannot find one word about "speedy discharges." It is, in fact, a statement of the priority in which men will be discharged after the war. It does not say whether they are to be retained in service a month or years after victory. The present administration, with its record of peacetime failure, is afraid to bring men home after victory. home after victory.

In March, 1940, Mr. Roosevelt had been in office seven years. Yet the depression was still with us. We still had ten million Americans unemployed. Those are not my figures—those are the figures of the American Federation of Labor.

Now I had not intended in this campaign to rake over my oppocampaign to rake over my opponent's sad record of failing to prepare the defenses of this country for war. It's all in the past—a very tragic past. It has cost countless American lives; it has caused untold misery

But my opponent has now brought that subject up. He seized violently upon the statement that we were not prepared for war when it came. In his speech of Saturday night he called that a falsehood which not even Goebbels would have invented. Now, were we prepared for war, or were we not?

In 1940, the year after the war began in Europe, the United States was in such a tragic condition that it couldn't put into the field as a at couldn't put into the field as a mobile force 75,000 men. The army was only "25 per cent ready." Now, Mr. Roosevelt, did those statements come from Goebbels? Was that fraud or falsification? Those are the words of Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army, under oath.

I quote again: "Dec. 7, 1941, found the army air forces equipped with plans but not with planes." Did that come from Goebbels? That statement was made in an official report on Jan. 4th of this year by H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the army air forces of the United States of America.

Four months before Pearl Harbor, there was a debate in the United States Senate. The chairman of a Senate committee described on the floor of the Senate the shocking state of our defense program. Senator Vandenberg asked the chairman where the blame should be laid, and the chairman replied "There is only one place where the responsibility can be put." Then Senator Vandenberg said, "Where is that—the White House?" And the chairman of that committee replied, "Yes, sir."

Who was that committee chairman? It was Harry Truman, the New Deal candidate for vice president of the United States.

Again, in a magazine article in November, 1942, this statement ap-peared: "The reasons for the waste and confusion, the committee found, were everywhere the same: The lack of courageous, unified leadership and centralized direction at the top." Again, on the floor of the Senate in May, 1943, these words were uttered: "After Pearl Harbor we found ourselves were the same of the same found ourselves woefully unprepared for war." Was that Dr. Goebbels on the floor of the Senate?

The very words my opponent calls a falsification came from the mouth of his running mate, Harry Truman, the Democratic nominee for vice

Now listen to this: "When the treachery of Pearl Harbor came we were not ready." Mr. Roosevelt, was that from Dr. Goebbels? The man who said that was Alben Barkley, your majority leader of the United States Senate. And where do you suppose Alben Barkley said, "When the treachery of Pearl Harbor came we were not ready"? Right in his speech nominating Mr. Bosse. in his speech nominating Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term.

Now, why is it we were not ready when we were attacked? In a message to congress in 1935, he said:
"There is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peace-

But war came just two years later. It was in January of 1940 that I publicly called for a two-ocean navy for the defense of America. It was that statement of mine which was processed as a statement of mine which was processed as a statement of mine which was the statement of mine which was processed to be statement of mine which was processed to be statement of mine which was a statement of mi Mr. Roosevelt called, and I quote his words: "Just plain dumb."

The simple truth is that my opponent's record is desperately bad. The price the American people have had to pay for that record is desperately bad.

My opponent now announces his desire to be President for sixteen years. He called it a "malicious falsehood" that he had ever represented himself to be "indispensable."

Let's look at these closely supervised words of his hand-picked candidate for vice president. Mr. Truman said of my opponent, and I am quoting him: "The very future of the peace and prosperity of the world depends upon his re-election in November."

Here are the words of Boss Kelly Here are the words of Boss Kelly of the Chicago machine, who was the manager of that fake third-term draft of 1940. You remember? He said: "The salvation of this nation rests in one man." Was that statement ever repudiated by my opponent? No. It was rewarded by increased White House favors. So it was repeated again by the same was repeated again by the same man at the same time in the same city and for the same purpose this year: "The salvation of this nation rests in one man.'

Now, was it a malicious falsehood that one of the first acts of my opponent's newly selected national chairman was to announce last May that he was for a fourth term and that he was looking forward to a fifth

Let's get this straight. The man who wants to be President for sixteen years is, indeed, indispensable. He is indispensable to Harry Hopkins, to Madam Perkins, to Harry Ropkins, to Madam Perkins, to Harold Ickes. He's indispensable to a host of other political job holders. He's indispensable to America's leading enemy of civil liberties—the mayor of Jersey City. He's indispensable to those infamous machines, in Chicago—in the Bronx—and all the oth-He's indispensable to Sidney Hillman and the Political Action Committee. He's indispensable to Earl Browder, the ex-convict and pardoned Communist leader.
