It was the first visit for Mrs. Neal and me, who served as Grey Ladies, and for Mrs. Harman, a member of the Ambulance Corps, who spent the day helping in the library. The three Taneytown ladies expect to go again the 24th of Sept. and October 1st. We arrived at Fort Howard at eleven and were on at Fort Howard at eleven and were on duty until three in the afternoon. Miss O'Neal, the Educational Director, met us in the class room and for an hour explained the work of the Grey Ladies, and showed us through the buildings. It is a very large hospital, four stories and basement. There is a lovely chapel, a library, a movie room, and sports for the patients, both white and negro, all ex-service men. We were shown the blood bank.

Patients are the usual cases in hospitals, along with the blind, the amputees and the mentally sick. Miss O'Neal told of the duties of the Grey Ladies, in short they are: escort patients; feed patients; linen and sup-plies; water pitchers and nourish-ment; answer call signals and ascertain need and report to nurse; assist in keeping unit clean; care for flowers, etc.; rehabilitation. We were told how to talk to the deaf; how to feed and work with the blind, and work with the amputee.

Any lady wishing to do Red Cross Grey Lady work contact me. Those living in Uniontown, Harney, Keysville, and near Taneytown, would go in on Taneytown's quota. Miss O'Neal brought out the importance of the work of the Grey Ladies, how they can help to keep up the high standard of efficiency and usefulness of the hospital. #### GRASS ROOTS OPINION

MILBANK, S. D., HERALD AD-WANCE: "On his 77th birthday August 10, Herbert Hoover found himself in the midst of a resurgence for integrity of office and independence of the American citizen. Herbert Hoover went down nineteen years ago, with him the concept that government should serve men to find their own way. A new concept was developed that stood 180 degrees from that position: Government should rule the lives of its citizens. There are government regulations, government bureaucracy, government loans, government borrowing, government spending, deficit financing, and heavy baxing."

cooking with Electricity

The electric range is the "last word" in stoves. It is the result of years of searching for a better way to cook. Just as obsolete methods of lighting have given way to modern electric lighting, so old fashioned cooking methods are being replaced by modern electric ranges.

Sooner or later you too will switch to electric cooking. You just won't continue to put up with old-fashioned inconvenience.

But why wait? There is a modern electric range built for your particular needs and for your purse and it's available right now. Don't deny yourself the pleasure of cooking with electricity any longer.

a 2,000 died - who could have lived

In the bloody battle of New Orleans, 1815, 2,000 soldiers died in vain. Tragedy had marched in step with victory for General Jackson, for the war had been ended two weeks previously by the Treaty of Ghent. A telephone, or any other fast means of communication, could have spared this waste of lives. As it is, rural telephone service today is getting bigger and better, getting more done faster. That's especially important in times like these, when speed means defense pro-

The Pony Express goes galloping on 📦

First, the American Indians relayed messages with smoke signals. Then came the Pony Express galloping mail across the land. Today, tall towers flash Long Distance calls across those same spaces by radio waves. It's a far cry from thundering hooves, but the principle is the same. And the modern method is invaluable in these times of national preparedness - with the Long Distance lines playing such a major role in history's big-

Plenty of work-and pressed for time. That's often the case on the farm. And the rural telephone helps get things done faster. You save both time and money when you put a real hard worker like your telephone to work. You get really excellent service, too, when you co-operate with your party-line neighbors. For instance, when you space out your calls, you enable others to reach you quickly with calls you wouldn't want to miss.

For the past several years housewives have been fussing about the price of pepper and wondering just why it was scarce. During the last war Indonesia's pepper vines were destroyed and our source of the pro-duct was cut off making pepper hard to get. Today India profits by the fact that she controls the world's pepper trade, and she speculates on that product much the same way as grain operators in this country speculates on wheat. While it costs the Indian planter about $19.60 to grow pepper the sale price for export is about $840 per 600 hundred weight. Housewives can expect pepper to remain at its present price for two more years. By that time pepper estates of Indonesia will be back in full production and competition will bring the price down. It takes 5 years to raise a pepper plant from a seedling to the roduction stage. Black and white pepper comes from the vine; black pepper from the dried fruit and white pepper from the same fruit when it is ripe. Pepper and the cost of pepper has been the cause of empires rising and falling. Years ago pepper was used to preserve food much more than it is today. The discovery of our own America was due to the lowly pepper plant for it was through search for new trade routes to the spice lands of the East that led Columbus across the Atlantic Ocean and on to the mainland of our Continent. So when you pick up the pepper shaker the next time, know that in that small container lies the secret of our being here on the land of these United States of America. Upon such a small thing does one's destiny depend.

The annual Hoke-Roelke reunion was held Sunday, Sept. 16 in Pipe Creek Park, Taneytown. There were about 125 members and friends of the families present. Maybe I shouldn't write about this for I am sure to be "put on the car-pet" by everyone but I must. The other evening we were watching a TV program when Ethel Waters came on and sang some of her old songs which had made her famous. When she had finished and turned her friendly, smiling face toward the audience, a friend of ours stood up and applauded. "A great lady" he said, "A great American." It was at that moment that I was proud of the whole human race and knew for a certainty that in the not too distant future there will be no barrier between any race.

Again this year we have two German exchange students in our com-munity. One of them is living with Mr. and Mrs. Roger Roop and is a student at the Elmer Wolfe school The other one is with the Russell Quisenberry, Finwood and is attending New Windsor school. The exchange students adapt themselves very easily to American ways and so far have been well liked by the students and families they live with. This is one of the best ways for people everywhere to get to understand each other better. Children have always proved to be gooh Ambassadors for they adjust easily and are tolerant. It would be worthwhile if we could send two of our students to

World Citizens

Lesson for September 23, 1951

DO YOU belong to the human race? It isn't as large as you might think.

Hendrik Willem Van Loon once figured out that you could make one box, half a mile long, half a mile wide and half a mile deep, and you could put into that box every man, woman and child in the entire world, packed in like sardines of course, and then you could nail that box up and tip it over into the

Dr. Foreman Grand Canyon. With the human race no bigger than that, isn't it stupid for us not to get together? If you ever read Mark Twain's fascinating tale, "Captain Stormfield's Visit to Heaven," you will remember how that mariner got lost on his way to heaven and arrived at the wrong gate. Since no one at that gate had ever heard of "the earth," the captain finally identified himself as from the Solar System.

Still no one had heard of it. Finally some one discovered it, a tiny dot on an enormous map. The Captain was considerably taken down when he learned how small the earth is in the immense starry universe; and so might we all be. * * *

Passengers on the Same Planet

IN THE EYES of God and his angels, this earth and the people on it do not fill up the big place they fill in the eyes of us mortals. This does not mean that we are unimportant to ourselves, or of no concern to God.

Saint Paul gave us the Christian reason-always the best of reasons — why human beings ought to realize how close together we really are. Speaking to the university crowd at Athens, he quoted from a Greek poet to prove his point: "We belong to His race." (Acts 17:28, Moffatt's translation.)

God made all peoples "from a common origin." In him we live and move and have our being. Remember that Paul was not speaking in a Christian church. Of course Christians are brothers in an even warmer and more living sense; but Paul could say, even to men who were not Christians as he was, that he and they were alike offspring of God, that they all had their being in the same Creator and Father.

The Importance of Being Human

IF WE would only just stop pinning our little tags on people! We call them "foreigners" or "farmers" or "Canadians" or "college boys" or "Chinese." So they are; but the most important fact about Chinese, or fishermen, or farmers or any other class of mankind, is that they are human beings.

What we have in common, as human beings, is infinitely more important than the variations which set us off into different races, classes and groups. The Christian will be a loyal citizen of his own land; but he will also remember that he is a world-citizen too. And as a world-citizen, he will always remember certain truths about all his fellow human beings.

One is that since we all have a common humanity, we all stand in need of God. It is not much exaggeration, if any, to say that to be human is to be helpless.

Scholars write books with titles like "The Human Predicament," which is a short way of saying that if you are human you are in a mess. You need God, whoever you are. But if you know that, then also remember that all other members of the human race need him too, quite as much as you do.

. . . Our Lost Brothers

REMEMBER, too, that while all are summoned to the same destiny (as Paul said: "God commands all men to repent"-not just some of them!), many and many a man (must we say, alas, most men?) misses that destiny.

There is a broad road leading to destruction, Jesus said, and many are traveling that road. How can a Christian be indifferent about a thing like that? Every man on the dark road is man who might be a Christian.

From the dead-end road of selfishness, hatred and pride he might come over to the highway of God ... if some one took the trouble to go after him. But we shall not bother ourselves much, we shall not bother ourselves enough, about our lost brothers, unless we have world-citizen's eye and the world-Christian's heart.
