FATHER-SON NIGHT HELD BY LIONS CLUB

Charlie Keller, of Baseball Fame, was the Guest Speaker

The Taneytown Lions and their sons had a most enjoyable meeting on Tuesday evening at Taney Inn with Lion President Harry Dougherty presiding.

After the dinner, President Dougherty made a few brief announcements. First, he expressed his appreciation and thanks on behalf of the Lions for the members who participated in supporting the Red Cross Blood Mobile, which was in Taneytown on Monday. It was ascertained that more than a dozen Lions contributed to this worthy cause. Secondly, Wilbur Thomas would be program chairman for the next regular meeting on January 22nd.

The meeting was then turned over to Lion Murray Baumgardner, who introduced the special guests for the evening, namely, Charley Keller and his sons, Charley Jr. and Donald.

Charley, who is no stranger to the Taneytown Lions or to anyone who has followed his illustrious career in big League Baseball, spoke briefly as follows: At the present time, due to a few unfortunate instances, there has been a de-emphasis on sports in general. This fact is particularly true with regards to sports in the college and high school level. Mr. Keller noted that nowhere today do boys and girls get co-operation, co-ordination, learn co-operation, co-ordination, good sportsmanship than in athletics. Now more than ever before there should be a well developed sports program for all.

Basketball scandals in the past year have been unfortunate instances; however, compared with the story that because someone circulates a few counterfeit dollars, we do not call in all the money to be burned; so it is with sports, in that protective measures should be taken to correct faults while at the same time promote a new and better sports program.

Following Charley's remarks, the Lions were given an opportunity to ask questions with regards to baseball and particularly with regards to some of the high lights in his career. Two movies were shown by Lion Merle Ohler and they were well received, especially by the young sons present.

Appreciation was extended to Lion Murray Baumgardner for arranging a most enjoyable program.

On behalf of the Lions Club further credit was extended to the members of the committee who had charge of preparing and delivering Christmas baskets and toys. From all reports this was one of the most worthy projects sponsored by the Taneytown Lions Club.

DUAL AMPUTEE AMONG BLOOD DONORS

The fourth visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile to Carroll County occurred last Monday. The stand was made at the American Legion House in Taneytown. Donors generally came from the Union Bridge, New Windsor and Taneytown areas. This was the most successful day in the county's blood program when 179 pledged donors showed up (27 failed to appear). A total of 149 pints of blood were collected for the Armed forces, it was announced by Mrs. Charles Morrow of New Windsor, chapter blood program chairman. This record exceeds the amount taken at each of the three preceding bloodmobile visits to Carroll County when 126 pints of blood were collected in the Westminster area, 74 pints in the Manchester area and 136 pints in the Sykesville area. All individuals and organizations participating are congratulated on a difficult job well done. Especial credit and appreciation are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dunbar of the Cambridge Rubber Company for their fine performance as recruitment chairman and to the company which provided time off with pay and company transportation to its employee donors. Legion made a splendid cooperative contribution in lending the facilities of its home for the stand. Fern Hitchcock gave of his time unstintingly to prepare the home for the bloodmobile crew and to put it back in original condition. Especial thanks there, too. It is very interesting to note that among the donors was Paul E. Harris, Rt. 1, Manchester, a veteran of World War II. Just seven years ago this month, while a platoon sergeant with Company H, 115th Infantry, Paul Harris was severely wounded by a mortar shell exploding a few feet from him. The damage to his feet and legs was so great that it was necessary to amputate both legs above the knee. He learned the hard way about the value of blood and plasma as a means of saving life. He has not forgotten. This week he laid some of his on the line to help save somebody else! The next visit to Carroll County of the bloodmobile from the Baltimore Regional Blood Defense Center occurs Feb. 11, at Westminster. The citizens of this area have a challenge to meet in the record set by the Taneytown area. We think they will meet it. Will they surpass it? Remember, all healthy persons between the ages of 18 and 59 are eligible to give of their blood for the Armed Services. Call Westminster 212 and sign a pledge card today.

By this means we were better informed of the mission fields and their opportunities in South America.

HARNEY BROTHERHOOD MEETS

On Jan. 4th the Brotherhood of St. Paul's Lutheran held their annual Father and Son banquet in the Parish House. A number of ladies of the Aid Society prepared the meal and served it and the "Menu" was baked ham, fried oysters, vegetables, cranberry relish, pickles, etc. The dessert was cherry pie and ice cream. About 100 were served.

The president of the Brotherhood, John H. Harner was in charge of the program. Rev. Paul Reaser was the guest speaker, he is now in York as pastor of one of the Lutheran churches there. Well the audience was well pleased with his address. Several songs were sung with Elmer Shildt as leader and quartet from Taneytown composed of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bowers and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Naylor, with Mrs. John S. Harner, as pianist.

Well all in all an evening full of harmony and good fellowship. The president of Piney Creek Presbyterian Brotherhood was there Mr. George Crouse, St. Paul's Lutheran and Redeemed Reformed church, Littlestown also from Two Taverns Lutheran, Mervin Eyer, Jr., a Sr. of Seminary Gettysburg, his brother, Raymond, of Carlisle. So they came from far and near regardless of weather which was anything but pleasant.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Chas. H. Held and another high light of the evening was singing "Happy Birthday" to Samuel D. Snider who celebrated his 78th anniversary. He is a "mute" and has not heard since he was 11 months old. Well he was more pleased than you may know, a hand shake means a lot to him and he really got his ears pulled.

The committee who worked so hard to make this a success was Rev. Chas. Held, Chas. M. A. Shildt and Walter Clingan.

THIS 'N' THAT

(Your Chatty Column)

With all my heart, I wish you every morning
A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.
I wish you health—life's greatest wealth!
I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer
Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

Things that happened during the holidays! So many lovely cards coming my way from Carroll county and many of them written and sent to me from those I have never met. (Often wish I could clasp your hands)

The big number of men in uniform home for the holidays and many sitting in the Pews for the special church services.

My heart giving an extra beat sitting in the Pew looking at the two men who took the collection to the Altar—one in the Navy uniform and one in the Army!

The many mothers who sat right there with Stars in their eyes shining just because they could hold their sons close to their breast again!

The Mother telling me in a whisper after the church service, "This time last year, my son was in Korea where he had served three years!" She lowered her head so as I could not see the tears and quickly walked away to the car to that son who was driving her home after the Services!

The soldier on the Ken Murray show who stated that this time last year—the men—his Buddies and he were trimming their Christmas tree with the empty tin Ration cans—just for fun!

Pat Rooney (73 years young) on the T.V. dancing to (one of my favorites) the tune of "SHE'S THE DAUGHTER OF ROSY O' GRADY" and singing just as always of yesterday when on the Stage of the Keith Circuit!

Going sledding on the ice with my daughter! Try it, Mothers for it will deduct ten years off your age! Such hills just as there are in Carroll County!

The lovely letters from Carroll County from those who did not know that there is "No Loves' Retreat" anymore!

Those nice "LIONS" getting together money to build a house again on the ground in Dublin (right near the Parsonage) which had burned down to the ground while the family were visiting the aged sick grandfather!

The original treat by that famous Philadelphia Company... BREYER'S "OLD FASHIONED FRUIT PUD-DING ICE CREAM" Mmmmmmmmm good! (Hope you did not miss that one) It was truly Christmasy!

The big dinner announcing my youngest son's engagement on Xmas Day to that good looking who is the daughter of a former owner of the Drug store around the town.

And here's to that "Capricorn" in individual both men and women. Children who are born in this sign from December the 20th to January 20th always desire to be "THE BOSS" of all the kids and don't discourage that. Parents for they are truly born leaders and will lead in anything they may undertake as the years go on. Usually great singers and actors and actresses come out of this sign and many leading noted and famous people. They are very jealous of the one they really love and the men of this sign are great lovers of the opposite sex. The women like to hold the reins on the partnership of marriage and many times have the bank account in her name exclusively. They have excellent business ability and can assume frightful responsibility. The women are quite good looking and many in this sign have much singing ability. They are about the most fascinating listeners in the entire Zodiac and a great admirer of Personality—plus vim, vigor and vitality. When these people love, it is all depth and not on the surface. Many people in this sign are selfish which they can overcome if they try. They always want to be on the top rung of the ladder. They are usually heads of great organizations and meet with much success in life when nothing interrupts their procedure as they dislike to be told what to do and how to do it!

So long, folks. Next week D. V. Have a grand week and be good for then I know you will be careful when driving. You can express your good feeling and good will towards your fellowman through careful driving habits not just this time of the year but every day in the year of 1952.

I am, Faithfully,
Your Observer.

ON THE OTHER SHORE

When we grow old as all must do we find that most of our friends have gone before and are now on the other shore awaiting our arrival.

Life, with all its trials and tribulations has after all been a pleasant adventure.

With the late Theodore Roosevelt I can truly say I have had a bully time and strange to say tho in the 80's I feel little different from other years except that the step is feeble and a cane, once a toy now is a necessity. W. J. H.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

SOMERSET, PA., DAILY AMERICAN: "It is surprising how many people there are who imagine that the government has a means for obtaining money that makes its gifts to the people real benefits. The fact is that the government has no means for obtaining money except taxes and loans to be repaid from taxes."

POLEY, ALA., ONLOOKER: "Because we believe the people of this nation are now being taxed to just about the limit of their endurance, we of The Onlooker are prone to oppose any measure which will add to our tax load. When we consider the great amount of tax money which is now being used to support a great portion of our population in idleness, we think our people will do well to frown on any measure which will tend to increase the tax burden."

GATESVILLE, N. C., INDEX: "It isn't that we are advocating inflexible rules, practices, and laws governing the farming industry. We still put some credence in the old law that 'changing times demand changing laws', and we fully expect and look for old practices and laws to be improved as time moves along. Yet, too many changes, too much politics, fattening subsidies, and a superabundance of 'spokesmen' for the farmer could so weaken the whole structure that it will either topple or grow into disfavor somewhat as organized labor did when it formed the Roosevelt partnership and then outgrew its bristles because of the false notion that the country would stand for most anything."

CANADIAN, TEXAS, RECORD: "Yes, it is possible that if we continue to relinquish our personal dignity and our individualism to government we will one day wake up and find we have relinquished our country without a struggle."

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W. VA., REPUBLICAN: "Politicians have strained their ingenuity to discover new sources of public revenue. They have doubled the indirect taxes, such as customs due on imports and exports. They have continued the extraordinary taxes of wartime into peace times. They have broadened perilously the field of the income taxes as well as the property tax. . . . The foregoing was said not last month when our income taxes were increased but more than 2,300 years ago by Socrates, an Athenian orator. And just a few years after the speech was made mighty Athens fell like an overripe apple."

ST. MARIES, IDAHO, GAZETTE-RECORD: "Fulton Lewis, the well known commentator, gives us the startling figures, and claims them authoritative, that this nation has spent 15 billions more money since Truman took over as President in 1945 than the nation has spent in all its previous history, from Washington down to and including Roosevelt."

CARSON, N. D., PRESS: "Recently a woman won a divorce from her husband because she failed to get the fur coat he had promised her while he was courting her. Suppose something like that ever happens to politicians."

MORRIS, MINN., SUN: "There may be or may have been a better method of meeting the problem of the communist menace, but that better method can never be found until we face the stark reality that communism is absorbing peoples and territory more rapidly than any conqueror in history."

WILMINGTON, CALIF., PRESS-JOURNAL: "We are not the first peoples to travel along the road toward complete subjugation by a government's bureaucratic hierarchy, but we at least have the advantage of knowing what has gone before and thus are able to recognize the symptoms that already are beginning to come to the surface."

Right Human Relations

CHRIST JESUS outlined the foundation of all right human relations when he said (Luke 10:27), "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself."

He taught a way of life harmonious for all men and nations, based on an understanding of God and man as Father and son. He illustrated his love for God by his love for mankind. He exemplified his divine sonship by healing the sickness and sin of those who sought his aid and by overcoming all material limitations. When he fed the multitudes confronted by a scarcity of food, he proved Spirit to be the ever-available source of supply and demonstrated his understanding that God, divine Love, meets every need.

But Jesus sternly rebuked the materialism which indulged in money changing in the temple, and he routed the offenders. Thus he clearly indicated that men should not make material acquisition the primary motive of life. He said on another occasion (Matthew 6:33), "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." In all that he said and did he revealed unmistakably that his reason for existing was to show forth the perfect man of God's creating, who eternally reflects God's ever-present love and power.

Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, discussing the two great Scriptural commandments which Jesus emphasized, writes, in the textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 467): "It should be thoroughly understood that all men have one Mind, one God and Father, one Life, Truth, and Love. Mankind will become perfect in proportion as this fact becomes apparent, war will cease and the true brotherhood of man will be established. Having no other gods, turning to no other but the one perfect Mind to guide him, man is the likeness of God, pure and eternal, having that Mind which was also in Christ."

In order truly to love God and man, as Jesus did, it is necessary to understand that God is Life, Truth, Love, the divine Principle of all being, and that man is God's reflection. As God's reflection, man is perfect, complete, and forever harmonious. He is incapable of discord, disease, and death and is never subject to lack. He has neither material origin nor mortal existence, nor is he dependent upon matter for life or subsistence. Man is entirely spiritual, forever supplied with all good by reason of his eternal unity with the divine Mind, God. These are fundamental spiritual facts which repudiate the actuality of matter and mortality. To the extent that we understand and apply them, we find them reflected in more harmonious human relations.

The chief stumbling block for men in all ages has been the belief in the reality and substantiality of matter. In the belief that material gain brings happiness, promotes health, and sustains life, men become greedy, selfish, envious, material-minded, dishonest in business, and unjust to their fellow men. . . .

The right basis of all friendly human relations is the understanding of God as Father, the divine Mind and intelligence of the universe, and of man as His son or infinite reflection. This true relationship does not concede the existence of minds many, nor does it function on a material basis for personal gain. On the contrary, it acknowledges and expresses the omnipresence and omnipotence of God, publicizes good, promotes justice and harmony, and supplies all with abundance.

Thus understood and functioning in individual, national, and international life, the spiritual idea of life and substance expresses the divine relationship of God and man and demonstrates the brotherhood of man in human experience. . . . The Christian Science Monitor.

Vancouver Island Indians Were Superstitious People

A weird supernatural world was that of the Nootkan Indians of Vancouver Island.

A monograph on the history, ways of life, and superstitions of these people by Dr. Philip Drucker, of the Bureau of American Ethnology, has just been published by the Smithsonian Institution. It deals with the tribes of these Indian fishermen before the adoption of the white man's culture.

They believed in an Undersea World where the Salmon-people and the Herring-people lived, each tribe occupying half of a great house. These beings lived there "just like people," in human form when they doffed their fish guises, which they put on or took off like robes. Another important race of spirits was called the ya'ai. They were similar in form to men with tufts of feathers projecting from each side of the head.

According to other Nootkan superstitious beliefs, several races of anthropomorphic beings inhabited the woods. There were the teimath, for example—tall, shaggy-haired, red-skinned beings who pursued people with spears. In the same forests dwelt the "maloh," a race of peaceful giants whose women had long hair that dragged the ground when loosened.

Far more feared than either of these by the superstitious Nootkans were the lost human souls, called pugmis. When a person nearly drowned and then made his way ashore, he might see flickering fires inviting him into the woods. Should he try to go to them to warm himself they led him, like will-o'-the-wisps, on and on until he turned into a pugmis. He became an ugly white color with protruding eyes that looked like icicles. The nails of his hands and feet became long claws, and he could run with incredible speed. Such a mythical being was supposed to be thoroughly malevolent.

World Peace Has Eluded Man Since Prehistoric Times

A peaceful world has been the dream of man for more than fifty-thousand years, ever since Early Stone Age man struggled against the forces of nature in the prehistoric wilderness.

The "book house" for children tells how the idealistic young Pharaoh, Akhnaton, tried to wipe out warfare about 1360 B.C., during the Eighteenth Dynasty in Egypt. He fought with words while others fought with swords, sending messages of good-will to his enemies on all sides and making countless efforts for reconciliation. But, the barbaric tribes around Egypt, were not ready for peace tables and peace talks. They continued to live by the laws of the jungle, raiding his lands and ignoring his pleas.

In 545 B.C., a minister of the State of Sung in Ancient China was instrumental in organizing a league to preserve peace among the warring feudal lords of the Chou Dynasty. However, within less than a decade, the fourteen states that had joined the league to end war, abandoned the plan as "hopeless," and hostilities were resumed.

"To maintain the frontiers as they were, to keep peace by diplomacy, and never to wage war save in the interests of peace" became the chief aims of the great Emperor Augustus who ruled the Early Roman Empire between 27 B.C., and 14 A.D. During his reign, the Roman senate erected a great altar of peace to glorify his achievements. For two centuries afterward the Empire enjoyed an unbroken period of prosperity which became famous throughout the world as the "pax Romana" or Roman peace.

Swiss Resources

Switzerland has no oil resources and very little coal, but rushing mountain streams and waterfalls are plentiful. A harnessing of these waterways with the construction of some six thousand power stations in the 20th century gave the country an abundance of cheap hydroelectric power. Electricity now runs her railroads; supplies her industrial plants, which absorb almost half the nation's workers, and lights nearly every Swiss home, regardless of how remote. The paucity of good farming land poses for Switzerland a perennial problem of how to feed her four and a half million people. By yeoman efforts during World War II the nation managed to bring more than a thousand square miles of previously unfarmed land into cultivation, but two-fifths of her people still depend on imported food. The most prosperous farms lie on the fertile plains east of the Jura mountains, which serve as boundary between France and Switzerland.

Dreaming Time

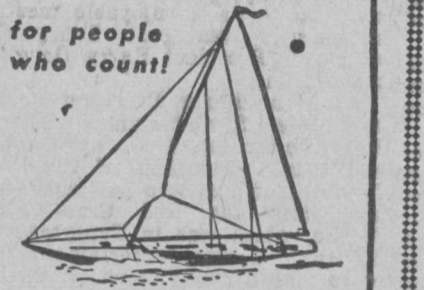

Though it is known that one dreams with considerable rapidity, psychologists cannot say how long a dream lasts. Some experiments with a hypnotized subject have shown that in a hypnotic trance a person can, in a few seconds, go through experiences which would take ten minutes when awake. It seems certain that under hypnosis one can arrive at judgments in a time which is inconceivably fast compared with normal time. In the case of hypnosis, as with dreams during normal sleep, we are dealing with a commonly called 'hyp-

RED CROSS SETS $85,000,000 GOAL FOR MARCH DRIVE

To carry on its greatly expanded services to the armed forces, its blood program, its disaster services and its other activities, the American Red Cross has set an "absolute minimum" goal of $85,000,000 for its 1952 Fund campaign, E. Roland Harriman, Red Cross president announced today.

"The campaign will be an appeal to all Americans to join in answering the plea of suffering humanity—of human beings in need or distress across the street or across the nation" Mr. Harriman said. The theme will be "Answer the Call". "The Red Cross is an organization made up of the people themselves," Mr. Harriman stated. "When it acts anywhere it is the people acting in behalf of those in need—doing what each individual would do if he were at the scene of disaster or at a soldier's side in Korea. And it is the people who make Red Cross work possible through their volunteer efforts and contributions."

The fund campaign will be held March 1-31 with John S. Sinclair of New York City, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, as national chairman. The goal was set by the Red Cross Board of Governors after exhaustive study of the agency's program.

"At no time other than in the midst of a world wide war has there been greater or more impelling human need for the people to meet through their Red Cross," Mr. Harriman stated. "For our armed forces alone, it has been necessary to double the Red Cross field staff serving military installations. Cases handled by our personnel at camps and hospitals increased 50 per cent last year over the year before and our armed forces continue to grow."

"The Red Cross Blood program also will continue to meet emergency needs," Mr. Harriman said. During the last year the American people through the Red Cross provided more than a half million pints of blood for wounded fighting men and 1,228,500 pints for sick and injured civilians. The organization is now operating 43 regional blood centers and 11 defense centers.

"In disaster relief the Red Cross spent $13,768,000 to help victims of the midwestern floods of last summer," Mr. Harriman stated. "While approximately $5,000,000 was received through a special disaster appeal, the Red Cross had to spend an additional $8,768,000 from its funds available for national emergencies."

"The ability of the organization to meet an other emergency comparable to the devastating Kansas floods and to carry on its other vital programs will depend on the public's response to the March 1952 Fund appeal," Mr. Harriman said.

"Therefore, the $85,000,000 goal must not merely be reached but generously oversubscribed. To carry out this work of mercy the Red Cross must have the funds to meet the needs of our men and women in uniform, of disaster victims, and of the sick and wounded who must have blood. Filling these needs is worthy of our maximum efforts and of the full participation and generosity of our people."

The Board of Directors of the Carroll County Chapter, American Red Cross, appointed a Fund Planning committee to set up a quota for the county an organization to procure the quota and other administrative details. This Fund Planning Committee has made an exhaustive study of the problem and has set the minimum quota for the county that it considers will carry on the work of the chapter. The committee consists of Mrs. A. J. Lamme, Jr., chairman, Lawrence Card, Mr. and Mrs. James Shriver, John A. Bankert, John Eckard, Scott Bair, Kale Mathias, Howard Koontz and Col. S. S. MacLaughlin. Mrs. Lamme states that shortly an announcement will be forthcoming for the complete organization of the fund drive in this county.

Carroll County's quota of the national goal has been set at $14,000. Of this amount approximately 50% goes to National Headquarters and the balance remains with the County Chapter where it will be used in Home Service work, blood program, water safety, first aid, gray lady service, and many other kindred activities.

Increases in the strength of the armed services and rising costs of material and equipment make it necessary that more funds be made available for the work undertaken. Each of us who gave a dollar last year should plan to make it two dollars this year. Double last year's donation. Remember, it is the calamitous emergency which calls for immediate action and funds are needed to provide that action. Emergencies are always arising and they must be met as well as the day to day help the Red Cross gives within the scope of the organization's charter.

FEESERSBURG

Two items of news this week kept the whole world agog. One was the story of Captain Kurt Carlsen and his crippled ship the Flying Enterprise, which gave the people a chance to catch a breath of sweet salty sea air plus a glimpse of a man's faith in himself and in fate. It was a great relief to be able to turn one's attention from the sordid and the realistic news of daily living to something come alive out of a 18th century setting of daring and courage, in each person's breast there dwells a desire to play just once in a hero's part before the world. Few of us ever are given the opportunity. And so when a Captain Carlsen comes along we applaud for him on one hand and for ourselves on the other. He represents to each of us the kind of person we dream of being.

The other item of news was one which many of us have been hoping for. The one in which General Eisenhower makes himself available for the presidency. It is a relief to a great majority of us that he has consented to permit his supporters to work for his nomination at the Republican Convention. And here I would like to make a very naive political suggestion—that both the republicans and Democrats nominate General Ike and that we American voters elect him by acclamation. I can just hear some of the politicians say: "Just how stupid can a woman get?"

The Missionary Society of the Mt. Union Lutheran church met Monday night for its regular monthly meeting. Mrs. Ruth Bair, president was in charge and led the discussion on Missionary work in the South American countries, especially Argentina. There were twelve members present. The Society voted to give five dollars to the "Polio" drive. On Feb. 4th the Society will sponsor a Stanley Party at the Parish House.

Many people like myself will throw up their hands in horror at the suggestion of the Washington Post that the White House upon completion be opened to the public for inspection before the President and his family move in. If this suggestion is carried out they will have to build a new White House after the public gets through clawing its way through, fingering the furnishings and writing their names over the walls. This may be a cynical view to take about my fellow countrymen, but who can deny that any building opened to the public doesn't bear the imprint of bad usage. President Jackson once tried to keep open house at the White House with horrifying results. If it was impossible in the era of Jackson, think what it would be like today.

For the great American indoor sport come to be known as hunting had not come into being when Jackson was President.

Sign posts some of our citizens have passed during the last week: Birthdays, Mrs. Emmett Miller, Mrs. Roland Forney, Miss Nancy Roelke, Cleon Wolfe, Paul Roelke. Wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Millard Roelke, their 21st.

Mrs. Maurice Grider and Mrs. Addie Crumacker continue to improve from their recent illness.

Mrs. Frank Martin spent Tuesday with her parents, the Raymond Buffingtons.

The first basketball game of the season was played at the Elmer Wolfe school Tuesday evening, between Union Bridge and Taneytown. Union Bridge won both games. The Junior varsity score was 27 to 60; the Senior 33 to 52. The auditorium was crowded with sport fans from both towns.

Last week one of our former neighbors came down stairs one morning in a hurry to get breakfast. She grabbed her apron off the ironing board where she had put it the night before, slipped it over her head and started to tie the strings, when she looked down. There sitting complacently in her pocket was a mouse. Like any normal woman she gave a scream which jarred the poor mouse right down to the tip of his tail and he scrambled out of the pocket and made for his favorite hole.

Why women are scared of mice is one of those unexplained mysteries about women. Twenty years ago I met a mouse in a taxicab on my way to a new job. Like any other female meeting a mouse unexpectedly I screamed. The driver stopped the cab with a screech of brakes and demanded to know what was wrong. When I said "a mouse", he gave me a disgusted look and also a lecture. "Listen lady," he said "You are on your way to—Sanatorium. If you are scared of a mouse you had better go back where you came from, for that hospital is located between the State Penitentiary and the Insane Asylum and they are always finding inmates from both places hiding in that hospital." He wasn't lying. We often found patients from the hospital for the mentally ill working in our hospital laundry and once a man committed to the State prison for killing his wife was working in one of the wards as an orderly.

The farmers who raise minks are complaining that the scandals in Washington have hurt the sale of their pelts. The public shouldn't take it out on the poor innocent mink. Blame it on the guilty person wrapped up in mink. Most women have a secret desire to own and wear a mink coat. Anyone having a mink coat and a guilty conscience and wants to get rid of their coat will find plenty of women to take it off their hands, who have no guilty conscience. Is that clear? No? Well, it's not clear to me either.

The belief that youth is the happiest time of life is founded on a fallacy. The happiest person is the person who thinks the most interesting thoughts, and we grow happier as we grow older.

Survey of Dental Manpower Recommended by Editorial

A reexamination of the traditional manpower ratio of two dentists for each 1,000 men in the armed forces in order to protect the dental health of the nation has been recommended in The Journal of the American Dental Association.

Citing anticipated increased demands on dental manpower to meet military, civil defense and civilian population requirements, a Journal editorial quoted a report of the Health Resources Advisory Committee of the National Security Resources Board which warned of "a serious threat to the health and welfare of our people."

The report also questioned the ratio of two dentists for each 1,000 military personnel as "a permanent minimum necessity" and further questioned "that there are sufficient dentists available to supply these needs without serious disruption of other essential categories."

"Whether this is an equitable ratio no one, including experienced military officials, now knows," the editorial said.

"Perhaps an unbiased study will disclose that by limiting dental officers' assignments to professional duties, curtailing their service to military dependents and relieving them of administrative responsibilities not connected with their professional calling, the dental manpower requirements of the military services could be reduced without lowering the quality or quantity of service." The editorial added:

"Certainly the dental needs of the military must be thoroughly met. So, too, must the dental needs of those on the home front. To accomplish this dual purpose with the limited dental manpower available will require the closest cooperation between federal authorities and Association leaders."

Be Prepared

"Why?" is the question that drives most parents to distraction—but, according to child guidance experts of Childcraft books, you can be prepared for what's to come. Results from a survey of children's interests indicate the leading interests of children from kindergarten to sixth grade are topics of nature such as animals, plants, weather and the sky.

Small Ratio

Finding a needle in a haystack is the daily task of workers in the South African diamond sorting centers, according to the World Book Encyclopedia. Of all the ore that is dug from the mines, only one part in thirty-five million is diamond.

FEATHER DUSTER

Duster Factory Main Industry In Iowa Town

MONTICELLO, Iowa—Should you need 14,000 feather dusters in one year, there is only one place you could get them—the little town of Monticello.

For the past 20 years the Hoag Duster company, the chief industry of the community of 2,500, has been the world's largest manufacturer of feather dusters. Last year it used 150,000 pounds of turkey feathers.

Perhaps the 47 employees of the company have a good idea how many feathers there are in 150,000 pounds. Much of the work must be done by hand, and most of the machines must be fed by hand.

There are no other feather duster manufacturers west of the Mississippi, and Hoag has only two competitors in the United States. The eastern Iowa factory turns out more than half of the dusters made anywhere, each year.

Nearly 100 Years Old The Hoag family got into the feather duster business just after the Civil War when Monticello was a tiny village. William Hoag had a small broom shop, which was one of the gathering places for men about town. One day the conversation turned to turkeys, of which farmers nearby had plenty, and turkey feathers, of which there were a lot going to waste. One thrifty farmer thought turkey feathers might work into a broom, just for fun.

Turkey feathers tied to a broomstick did a good job of scattering the dust, they discovered. But Hoag kept tinkering with the feathers and the idea. Eventually he split the quills and scraped out the pith, making the feathers more flexible. Then he bound them on a head which gave the feathers room to spread. This time he had something which would really pick up dust.

In 1872 he packed his samples and went to Chicago. In the big city, he learned others had invented the duster before him, but he found buyers. His family has been in the feather business ever since, with the company playing an active and important part in the growth of Monticello.

Feathers for Hats By 1879 Hoag had built his output to $200 worth of dusters a week, and was now employing 11 persons. He then built a two-story factory, with the impressive dimensions of 20x80 feet.

In the nineties the business fell to a son, Elmer E. Hoag. During the period fashions kept the little factory humming. Feather trimming for hats and dresses was in such demand it was shipped by express to Chicago each evening.

Today the company still sells feathers to millinery houses and to makers of archery goods. Its biggest item is feather dusters, however.

Feather dusters moved out of the average household about the time mother bobbed her hair, but they fell into the arms of office-building janitors with more and more desks to dust each evening. Last year the Monticello factory produced 18 different types of dusters.

Small Town Business Helped by Bumper Crop

VIDALIA, Ga.—If you want to hear the cash register ring in a small town, just visit this little Georgia village this fall. So says J. Q. Cobb, who declares Toomb county farmers have gone all out on the agriculture department's cotton project for 1951.

Mr. Cobb, cotton merchant and fertilizer dealer with 40 years experience as a crop observer, has completed a survey with special reference to the crop conditions. He finds the best July condition he has ever witnessed in this section.

He also points out that one farmer has a 100 acre crop field from which he expects to pick two bales per acre. Throughout the county there are several fields showing prospects for more than a bale per acre which is an unusual crop for the Vidalia area.

It was noted at the county agent's office that 14,000 acres of cotton are growing in the county as compared with around 9,000 in 1950.

Besides this, other cash crops, such as cucumbers, water melons, vegetables, poultry and cattle have been good during the year. Many farmers of the area are getting ready cash from diversified farming and using their cotton crop for a sideline.

Wisconsin Town Gives Scholarships to Graduates

OCONOMOWOC, Wis.—Four years ago the people of Oconomowoc organized a scholarship fund for students graduating from the local high school. Since the unique fund was established, one of the few in the country supported on a community basis, 13 scholarships have been awarded. Six four-year scholarships were granted to graduates this year.

The scholarship program was started by the Oconomowoc Enterprise, the local newspaper, but funds have never been solicited. Over $3,000 was donated during the past year.

Our Busy Teachers'

The average classroom teacher in the nation's schools works a 48-hour week, according to a study released by the National Education Association. The report, entitled "Teaching Load in 1950," is a breakdown on how the classroom teacher uses his time and how he thinks the teaching load situation can be improved. The study, conducted by the NEA Research Division, shows that a teacher's workday is not over when the dismissal bell rings at the end of the school day. The average teacher spends a little more than half of his working time in actual class instruction of pupils. Correcting papers, class preparation, supervising study halls, monitoring, making out records and sponsoring school activities take up the remainder of his working hours.

Besting the Borer

European corn borer, the pest that has been costing Middlewestern corn growers millions of dollars annually, may meet its match in a new organic phosphorus insecticide tested this past year by Illinois Natural History Survey, working in cooperation with Illinois canners. The new weapon against the borers, EPN-300 Insecticide, developed through DuPont research work, was tested during 1950 and showed considerable promise over other new insecticides. It was reported, for example, to give an average of twice the residual protection of one of the newer organic phosphates in use for controlling the corn borer during the past two years.

On The Serious Side

The Parents' Consultation Service has found that certain mothers and fathers seem to think it is "cute" to let their little ones join in the merriment of the cocktail hour. When some Mommies say, "Take a sip," they don't mean from a glass of milk. They're talking about the cocktail shaker which has become enshrined in the family hearth as a sort of household God. "It's difficult to believe that any parent would let a child even taste an alcoholic beverage, after observing its undesirable effects, even to adults. Yet, some parents are doing it," the Service observes, adding: "Perhaps their judgment is dulled momentarily by liquor. Whatever the reason, there is no excuse for their morally irresponsible behavior. At best, a cocktail party presents a questionable environment for a child. He should not be there."

A 'Yes' to Christ

Lesson for January 13, 1952

JESUS knew some distinguished people. But his first and most intimate friends were not of that kind. Christianity started at the grassroots of humanity. It did not start in the top branches. It is a good thing, too.

It is quite true that Christianity has depths and heights to which most Christians do not attain. A St. Paul has not only mystic raptures but intellectual penetration which comparatively few Christians have shared or can share; he was a genius, and most of us are not geniuses.

But in Jesus' first group of companions there was no St. Paul. They were the plainest of plain people. The first of them were fishermen. They were not used to lectures; it is extremely doubtful whether any one of them would have understood the Epistle to the Ephesians if it had been read to them. But they understood Jesus... at least they understood what he said. He said, "Follow me," and they followed him. It was as simple as that.

Surrender

THAT is what Christianity is, at its heart: saying Yes to Jesus. When those fishermen said their "Yes" it meant three things, and those three are always involved whenever any one sincerely begins the Christian life. For this was only the beginning, of course. There was a long road ahead, much they would have to learn and do and suffer; but even the longest road has its beginning. And the Christian's road begins with this first "Yes."

First of all, it means surrender. They took him for their leader, they absorbed his teaching, they obeyed his orders. There is a Christian hymn, "My Jesus, as Thou Wilt"; one hears it most often at funerals, but it is not intended as a funeral hymn. It could well be the hymn sung when young people are confirmed or join the church; it could well be the every-morning song of every real Christian.

What do I want most? is not a Christian question. Rather it should be, What does Christ want most?

Separation

AGAIN, those fishermen's "Yes" meant separation. They left their nets, their old occupation. We must not read too much into this, as if in order to be a Christian one must leave his wage-earning business, whatever it is. On the contrary, the best place to be a Christian may be right where we are.

However, no matter what we may do for a living, it is still true that saying "Yes" to Jesus means saying "No" and "Good-bye" to many other things. It means separation from all that is out of tune with him; separation from selfishness, from sin, from trash and trifles. It means separation from habits that enslave us, from "recreations" that do not re-create but tear down, from places and opportunities of temptation, from hatred and prejudice and pride.

If a man really means "Yes" to Jesus, he cannot mean "Yes" to what is opposite to Jesus. The Christian life is a separated life. It is not that he is separated from people. Isn't it likely that the fishermen who followed Christ had a far wider circle of friends as they went with him than they had ever had before? But they were being shaken loose from what had before seemed to them most important,—yes, even from themselves.

Service

BUT that is the negative side of it. The Christian life is not only "from" but it is "for." That is, just as these first fishermen followed Jesus in order to become fishers of men, so the Christian's yes-saying always means enlistment for service.

A Christian's sincerity cannot be measured in what he says, nor even in what he does not do; it is to be measured in what he does.

It is a serious and solemn question: Suppose this is your last day in life, and all the accounts are in. Looking back on what you have been and what you have done, has your life actually helped what Jesus Christ is undertaking in this world, or have you hindered him?

The Christian life is a surrendered, a separated life, but also a life of service. "Yes" can be said with the lips alone—that was Judas; a "Yes" to Christ can truly be said only with life itself.

Progress

From Village to City

PATERSON, N.J.—The potentialities for industrial development at Paterson was first recognized in 1792 by Alexander Hamilton, secretary of the treasury. It wasn't until 1851, however, that the village was incorporated.

Now, 100 years later, one of the oldest industrial centers in the United States is celebrating its 100th anniversary.

Paterson frequently has been referred to as "the cradle of American industry." It is the home of 722 industrial plants producing everything from pipe organs to chemicals. A recent survey disclosed that 27,700 employees take home annual wages amounting to $81,500,000 and that the city's 2,582 retail outlets do an annual business of $180,000,000.

Small Kentucky Towns Seek New Industries As Economy Balance

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The rural areas of Kentucky have awakened from the doldrums and negligence of the past and are luring small industries to the lesser cities of the Blue Grass region.

The town of Berea moved into the spotlight last January when the Parker Appliance company announced construction of a $550,000 rubber molding plant that would employ from 150 to 200 people. The Elgo Shutter company expects to employ a like number at Owensboro. Danville is to be the site of a $7,000,000 plant already under construction by Corning Glass Works of Corning, New York. About 550 people will be employed in the plant to produce bulbs and tubing for electric lights.

The Baxter Laboratories of Morton Grove, Illinois, selected Greenville as the site for a pharmaceutical plant which would eventually employ up to 450 people. Printz-Biederman of Cleveland has announced operations to begin manufacture of nationally known garments in a new $150,000 plant at Bardstown equipped with nearly $75,000 worth of new equipment and employing 150 persons.

The Air Reduction Company of New York has purchased 1,000 shares of land near Calvert City for a $10,000,000 plant to be operated by their National Carbide Division. Owensboro, a thriving location, has two plants in sight—the Elgo Shutter construction mentioned above, and a $10,000,000 Green River Steel Corporation outlay that will employ 1,000 men as soon as completed and may eventually hire 3,000.

A valuable part of the program for enticing small industries is the services provided by the Kentucky Agricultural and Industrial Development Board, located in the state Capitol. The Board is a source of information for possible industries and keeps pertinent data regarding the advantages of various locations throughout the state. Classified as such would be the practice of taking aerial photographs of small towns and marking off practical industrial sites to prospective companies.

The strength and determination of the citizens of Kentucky's small towns to weld themselves into the growth of American industry does not mark a strong shift from agriculture to industry—but a good balance of the two. Industry is growing, and the small towns are prepared to furnish the growing room.

Junk Yards Anger Town; Council Gets an Earful

LAKE, Wis.—Civic pride cropped up all over Lake recently when irate citizens embarked upon a hot crusade to do something about unlicensed junk yards that suddenly began "springing up all over town."

The townspeople let loose plenty of verbal steam at the town board during a heated session. After the board had taken considerable oral punishment, Chairman Vernon G. Howard decided it was time to adjourn the meeting at about 10 p.m. "Nobody was getting any place and it looked as if it might go on for hours," he explained later.

Citizens had argued that it was the fault of the board members that empty lots were being converted into automobile salvage and junk yards without town permits. "The city had the power for such licenses, Howard agreed, but it was possible, he pointed out, for a junk dealer to 'buy a lot, start operating, and then it is a while before we hear about it.'"

The citizens got action, however. Alvin Lampe, building inspector, was told to check up on all junk yards, order those without permits to cease operations and take any operator to court who refused to close down an unlicensed operation. The exact number of unlicensed yards was unknown but Howard said, "From the way people are talking, there must be a couple dozen."

Citizens were promised prompt and complete action by the board. Most of the townspeople apologized after the meeting with the board for the loss of tempers and, with the junk yards on the way out, peace and calm began to return to the peaceful community of Lake.

Let's Think

by G. H. ENFIELD

SO LONG!

So Long! This is a short phrase but significant. There is a meaning hidden therein which cannot be articulately expressed. The soul animates the phrase that it lives in memory.

So long, usually signifies a going away, a departure, a separation of some kind, a goodbye, and there frequently follows in its wake a sense of loneliness, a heartache.

When one hears this phrase from the lips of another, who is not a member of that person's family the whole part of one's family may live again. The panorama of the family setting silently glides by, and the relationships and associations of former years, broken by time, careers, and the demands of life, once more appear intact.

Many times has the expression, So Long, passed between parents and sons as the latter picked up their luggage, to enter the ranks, to fight for their country.

Again, as the Mother stands, watching her son or daughter going across the lawn, on the way to college she sees very clearly the wave of the hand and hears distinctly, So Long, Mom. And this parting scene will hang on the walls of memory for years to come.

A brother recently received a letter from a sister, which she had tried to write for several days, but which she had to delay because of intense bodily suffering, whose letter closed with the words, So Long! Yes these words are significant. They are lingering words.

It must have been the intention of the Creator to produce a terrestrial heaven when He endowed mankind with capacities and virtues which bind human hearts into kinships, and associations of family and home. Let not the benignity, sweetness and glory of these ties ever be lost or glossed by selfishness and greed, or the face turned only toward the accumulation of things.

What is so valuable as a noble spirit, more consoling than precious memories, more rewarding than to live this day and always in the lives of others, and to inspire your children to observe the better ways of life!

So Long, may be a term of finality here, but also a suggestion of hope for the hereafter. A life is the only monument whose tower reaches Heaven. Add daily to such a memorial. The pure in heart shall see God.

SO LONG!

FANCY THAT!
One evening when my husband and I were playing miniature golf, we got behind a young couple with a small baby. They kept handling the baby back and forth after each shot, and it made a slow game. Quite a little group collected behind them, but no one seemed to mind waiting. No one except one impatient young thing who finally turned to her partner and said, sarcastically, "It's really a shame some people can't hire a baby sitter."

At that the young man swung around, bowed from the waist and retorted, "Lady, we are the baby sitters."

Miscalculation
One month not long ago a wife made a real effort to balance her checkbook. Instead of throwing away her canceled checks as she usually did, she matched them with her stubs. After one whole Sunday morning she handed four sheets of typewritten figures with items and costs sitting neatly in their respective columns to her husband. He checked her total with the bank statement—and it balanced! Then, out of curiosity, he went over her list of items: Milkman—$11.25; Cleaner's—$4.60; and so forth. Everything was clear except for one item reading E.S.P.—$24.56.

"What does E.S.P. mean?" he asked warily.

"Error Some Place," she answered.
