UTILITY CELEBRATES 100th BIRTHDAY

The Potomac Edison System, of which The Potomac Edison Company is a part, is celebrating its 100th birthday this month. From a start of "35 iron posts" in Frederick, Md., in 1853 the utility has grown into a service organization supplying electricity to over 137,000 customers in Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

One hundred years ago this month, the now extinct Isabella Gas Works was incorporated to manufacture gas and to distribute it throughout Frederick, Md. With this small beginning and its "35 iron posts, the cost and erection of which is not to exceed $19,000 each", The Potomac Edison System grew steadily each year as the demand for utility service expanded.

Small companies, many of which were originally formed to supply electricity for railroads, consolidated their facilities so as to secure the utmost economy and operating efficiency. The present PE System is a result of these mergers. Actually, there are 175 companies now consolidated in the Potomac Edison System; 109 were electric organizations, 24 were railroads, three were gas and three were water companies.

The right to use the name "Edison" in the utility company's title was secured from the Thomas A. Edison organization in 1884. It was formerly used in such ways as "The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Cumberland" but was first used and incorporated as "The Potomac Edison Company" in 1923.

From the original "35 iron posts", the PE System has grown to an organization able to supply 265 thousand kilowatts, an organization that pays over four million dollars in taxes each year, and an organization that offers appliance sales, bus transportation and the services of many electrical experts including specialists in the fields of farming, air conditioning, home and commercial lighting, home service and industrial power and heating.

EFFECTS OF TV ON SCHOOL CHILDREN

Principal Stahl Reports Survey in "The Maryland Teacher"

A recent commercial advertisement played upon the sympathies of parents, teachers, and pupils, by extolling the fact that if any child had to grow up without the benefit of television, he would not only face tremendous difficulties in school but would also become a social outcast. Since then, largely because of the efforts of various educational groups, this type of commercialism has been withdrawn.

However, the question posed by that theme still remains. Just what is the net effect, educationally and otherwise, of this new medium of the air waves? Is a pupil handicapped by being in a home with no set, or is he handicapped by extensive viewing?

Television is quite obviously no passing fancy. It is estimated that there are 80,000,000 TV watchers, using more than 17,000,000 sets. Interest in video continues to increase at a rapid rate as engineers continue to surprise us with color television, closed circuit TV, and a promise of three-dimensional reception.

To what extent is it necessary to change our curriculum to meet this new need? If practical learning is taking place, to what extent is it being utilized in the classroom? What can our schools do to meet the challenge of television?

In order to determine the answers to these and other questions and in order to satisfy local needs, it was

EIGHTEEN DON'TS FOR PARENTS

For fathers and mothers of young children we doubt whether anyone else has ever given so much sound advice in so small a space as these 18 don'ts by one of America's greatest psychiatrists, Dr. Karl A. Menninger:

- DON'T
- pamper your child
- make him feel inferior
- be too severe
- frighten him
- make him jealous
- worry him or worry over him
- talk about sickness
- boss him, too much
- say "don't" to him all the time
- compare him with others
- lie to him
- glorify his temper tantrums
- bribe him
- overexcite him
- get angry at him
- show favoritism
- exhibit authority for its own sake
- humiliate him.—The Progressive Farmer.

BLOODMOBILE UNIT

Will be at Taneytown High School, Friday, June 19th. 200 donors needed. Get a Donor Card from any of the following: Birnie Trust Co., First National Bank, Cambridge Rubber Co., Taneytown Manufacturing Co., Ernest W. Dunbar, Mrs. Bernard Arnold, Reindollar Co. Fill out cards, sign and leave with any of the above before June 10th.

This is part of a letter received by Mrs. Dorothy C. Crawford, of Baltimore from her son in Korea:

"I am certainly glad that you are giving blood as long as it doesn't injure health. I don't see how people back home can be so forgetful. Mother, they are so hard up for blood that they have a mobile until that travels around over here collecting blood from the boys. I'd like to be back in the States just long enough to shake some sense into all those people. All it takes is a half hour of their time to give years of living to a boy over here. It seems a shame that boys can't spare a half hour every few months. As soon as I got to Japan I gave my pint of blood and as soon as my time is up I'll give it again and keep on giving it as long as I'm over here."

Let's all do our part.

ERNEST W. DUNBAR,
Recruiting chairman.

"SPICE 'N EVERYTHING NICE"

(Your Chatty Column)

With all my heart, I wish you every morning a smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.

I wish you health—life's greatest wealth! I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer.

Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

Rains—rains—rains and many have planted gardens which will rot and that reminds me of that sensible farmer in Carroll County who always waited until a later time to plant and by his method—he always reaped the harvest!

The beautiful pink and white Peonies are now in full bloom which always means that June is just around the corner!

Well, Gentlemen—Your Observer did tune in for Rocca and Ray Thunder for that fast-moving tussle (like the gals do it) which lasted only 16 minutes. It was nice to see those two very gentlemanly men in the end shaking hands and all full of sincerity! Eh?

Thinking of T.V. Thank God for Arthur's recovery and I speak for many thousands! What a welcome back he will get! Be sure and watch for that one! Did you see and hear that nice Mayor D'Alesandro on T.V. last Tuesday night telling of the many things accomplished in the city since he has been in office? Baltimore surely is growing and improving in every way with its health projects, hospital buildings, slum clearances, new schools, recreation centers, police facilities, fire stations, street lighting, paving and bridges, markets, libraries and dozens of other projects of all descriptions. Betcha, he will be our next Governor!

Whatever you do don't miss the Movie called, Ezio Pinza in "TODAY WE SING!" If you love good music—you will love every bit of it and as for Ballet—Your Observer forgot it was a Movie and caught myself almost applauding! It is Technicolor and beyond describing, I won't write more but go to see it!

The Annual Flower Mart at the Washington Monument was again as all other years just chucked full of charm. There is always such a gay spirit throughout the day with the colorful booths and everyone smiling and so happy! This year, the crowning of the Mayor's wife was an additional event and which pleased everyone as in my opinion she is, indeed a very gracious lady!

Now—this was a big surprise—a lady from Carroll County buying the lovely farm next to the bungalow in Harford County. When I called her on the phone to explain about a broken fence and for fear the Bull would pay an unexpected visit—she introduced herself and from which County and reads my Columns weekly—How glad I am that fence was broken and as Imogene Coca says, "AIN'T IT A SMALL WORLD?"

Did you know that Queen Victoria was of the Hanover Family and that the street in Baltimore was named for that family name? She became Queen all through her Uncle and she reigned just 70 years! Am wondering about Hanover, Pa!

Now, Ladies have you really noticed how many men are having Permalents these days? Some will admit it but most of them will not. UGH!

Out on the Bel Air Road there is a huge red Flower Pot built with a white picket fence around. Am watching that one—no doubt to sell flowers right there.

That Coronation will be showing soon! What a hoard of money that will be taken in! Why not pay off some of the Billions owed to these grand United States? That is truly as it should be! Eh? But, Betcha that will never be! Here's something to think about and this is a Betcha, too! That Great Britain will desert the United States by recognizing Communist China if the present Korean conflict is not settled by an Armistice and the conflict has to be fought out!

If you have a damp cellar or the exterior or interior of your house is damp in any way immediately make inquiries at the Hardware store for "BONDEX"!

And don't forget while there ask for "EASY OFF" for the oven of your range. You will appreciate that one and the oven will appear like new.

The P.T.A. held a "PIE SOCIAL" —what fun it was and what a mob! Grand way to increase the treasury! Each wife is asked to bake a pie and place it in a box beautifully decorated without her name. The most beautifully done up affair wins a nice prize in the very beginning. Then the auction starts! Believe it or not pies sold for as high as $3.50!

Here is your answer to that one big important question! Do not worry or grieve about your husband not remembering holidays or special anniversaries. You remember them for him just as Your Observer does in this manner and with much enthusiasm, "Oh, do you remember what month this is, dear?" The answer is usually, "Yes, Mother's Day comes in May!" Then Your Observer says, "Oh, but another great big day soon after!" "Now, that one you won't let me forget for that is you won't let me always remind me of it months in advance!"

Don't let those little things worry you, M.W. as most men forget but they do not mean to do so and after all men are not sentimental as women are. Be tactful about it all and have a real sense of humor. What's the difference in a hundred years? We WON'T BE HERE! Right?

See you next week, D.V. Have a grand week-end. So long until then. I am,

Faithfully,
YOUR OBSERVER.

GOOD VALUE

No one doubts the value and the necessity of farm machinery. All agree that the machine has transformed agriculture almost completely, to the enormous benefit of producer and consumer alike.

But now and then it is argued that the machines cost too much—that their price tags are unreasonably high even in these days of the 50-cent dollar.

A few facts punch deep holes in that argument. Between 1939 and 1950, for instance, the factory prices of farm equipment went up 54 per cent—while the cost of iron and steel rose 76 per cent, and the wages paid labor in farm equipment plants jumped 104 per cent.

And this doesn't take into account the improvements that have been made in the equipment. The machines are far rugged and more efficient than they used to be. Important improvements have inevitably added to their manufacturing cost. Their life is longer. And they do the jobs they are designed for faster and with proportionately lower operating and maintenance expense.

Today's farm machines are cheap measured by their productive ability.—Industrial News Review.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

MARION, ILL., WEEKLY LEADER: "The great principle of democracy can be applied to the religious field—Respect for one's neighbors, whether or not he agrees with your strict beliefs, is an American principle too often abused".

SUNNYSLOPE, ARIZONA, JOURNAL: "The Russians—don't believe workingmen own automobiles. They would say it's a lie to see our High School boys and girls driving to school in their jalopies. Who has stopped them from getting what we have? Certainly not the United States. No—their leaders are too blame".

SPRINGHILL, LA., PRESS: "James A. Linen, publisher of Time magazine, speaking to the national radio audience from the Metropolitan Opera House on National Opera Day, said: 'Apparently one of the things we are going to keep with us in our new world is music. One of the most important things that has got to happen if the United States is to maintain its position of leadership in the world is for the rest of the world to give us credit for culture as well as bath-tubs.'"

ALMA, MICHIGAN, RECORD: "A wholly changed attitude toward the dollar is held by the Eisenhower administration compared with the attitude toward it since 1933. Now the dollar is beginning to assume some importance in its own right, instead of merely serving as a tool to accomplish some purpose of the government".

SENATE CLOAKROOM
 By J. Glenn Beall
 United States Senator from Maryland

Discussions of the budget for operating the United States are no more pleasant than the family talks about whether it can afford a new car, send a son to college, or scrape up enough to spend the summer vacation at a resort instead of going to see Aunt Mary again.

President Eisenhower's address to the American people was an excellent presentation of the financial affairs of this country. What he said in effect was "folks we're in debt up to our necks, things are tough without much hope of improving, but if we plan carefully things may balance out in the long run".

Like any big operation the government's financial structure is complex. Billions of dollars are coming in, in revenue, and billions are being paid out through far flung government agencies. In the past the attitude of the Administration was not to worry about balancing intake with output. President Eisenhower recognized this unpleasant task by saying, "such planning brings us to the bewildering realm of budgets and expenditures and appropriations and deficits and taxes". But he knew the answer could not be found in avoiding the problem, and the result is that for the first time in twenty years we have a sound fiscal policy.

The first problem was providing for our national security and the big change between the Eisenhower and the Truman approach was shown when the President said, "the plain truth is this: security is planned, not blindly bought".

Reorganizing our defense program made it possible to reduce the proposed Truman Budget by 5.4 billions of dollars. That was the largest single reduction, but by the time the new Administration was finished requests for new appropriations had been reduced by 8.5 billion of dollars.

Most of these reductions were in small amounts, but those small amounts total up to, as the President pointed out, $50 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

The Budget Bureau tightened its belt by $11,000; the Agriculture Department placed some employees on a per diem basis, thus paying them for the days they worked instead of an annual salary—result, a saving of $625,000; the Defense Department trimmed its payroll of 39,346 employees; the Mutual Security Agency scheduled a ten to twelve per cent reduction of staff in Europe.

Last year $3,500,000 was spent in interest payments to taxpayers because of the delay in refunding over-payments of income tax. This year the Bureau of Internal Revenue made a serious effort to complete tax refunds by April 15, thereby saving the interest charges and they were nearly 100 per cent successful.

The Administration has demonstrated that spending can be reduced, but it is equally aware that 65.6 per cent of the money in the national budget goes for defense.

As long as our security is threatened by Russian aggression defense spending will be the biggest, and most difficult to cut, item in our budget.

All of us should cooperate with the President in making our nation secure, our economy strong, and our dollar sound—then we can look forward to a balanced budget.

CAN YOU IMAGINE...?

If television wants a reliable rating on its programs, let it consult the Toledo, Ohio, waterworks. Back in 1951, the department began to have trouble with sudden large variations in water consumption in the evening. By 1952, it was acute. It was costly in wear and tear on equipment, and nerve-racking on the pumping station crews. Industrial plants were complaining of the erratic low pressure.

Armed with gauges, experts began testing mains throughout the city. The fluctuations were there—but they were everywhere, not in one place. Baffled, they continued to study their findings. Finally truth dawned. The ups and downs occurred regularly at intervals of a half-hour or hour. The culprit—television!

Families all over Toledo, would watch their sets while a good program was on. When it ended, and the commercials came on, they would get drinks, or finish the dishes, etc. At the Collins Park pumping station, a gauge shows the amount of water being pumped to keep the mains full. The needle shows with fascinating accuracy the public reaction to a program, right down to the commercials. On fight nights, for example, the needle records within moments the end of the boxing bouts!—Toledo Sunday Blade.

SLAP STICK

Evidence

The visiting pastor at the state prison approached a timid looking inmate and asked him how he came to be confined in such a place. "Well," said the prisoner, "they claimed I stole a ring. I had a good case and my lawyer worked hard to get me off, but they sentenced me just the same." "My poor fellow. How unfortunate," exclaimed the pastor, puzzled by the seeming injustice. "But tell me, how did they happen to sentence you?" "Oh, it was quite an accident," explained the prisoner. "Everything would have been all right if they hadn't found the ring in my pocket."

One At A Time

The man who rows a boat does not have the time to rock it.

NOT SO TOUGH

The conductor of a famous Philadelphia orchestra accepted with equanimity the announcement that his first violinist was giving solos on the radio, indorsing cigarettes and playing for weddings and funerals. But when he also heard that the violinist was opening a string of music schools throughout the state, he grew concerned and summoned the man for a conference.

"I like a man with ambition and initiative," he declared, "but it seems to me you're carrying things a bit far. When do you sleep?" The violinist looked him straight in the eye and answered, "During your rehearsals, Maestro."

All Too True!

Two drivers, from neighboring (and rival) states were having a bull session . . . each bragging about his own state. One of them, more wordy than the other, was getting the best of the argument. Finally, the loser, as a last shot, said: "Well, in my state we have the finest governor and the best legislature that money can buy!"

GOOD ARITHMETIC

The Korean campaign has revived stories of fantastic poker games in rest areas, with GI's risking a whole month's salary on a single hand.

Typical is the tale of the Missouri farm hand who professed to know nothing of the game. His buddies saw a chance for some easy pickings and enthusiastically urged him to participate.

He lost moderately and unspectacularly for some time. Then came the big hand of the evening.

One after another, the players raised the limit. The Missourian stayed each time. Finally came the showdown.

Player No. 1 had an ace-high straight. No. 2 had a heart flush. No. 3 triumphantly produced a king-high full house, and was about to rake in the pot when the boy from Missouri said quietly, "One minute, mister. I ain't quite sure, but I think I got you beat with these two pairs of sevens."

What, We Pray?

Don't you often wonder why it is that they always talk about a doctor practicing.

STOP SIGN

The passenger train had stopped at one of those cross-overs where an interlocking tower stood. The conductor courteously answered as many questions about the delay as he could but they finally got the better of his patience.

"Say, conductor, what's the matter?" came yet another query.

"Well, sir," explained the conductor slowly, "the leverman in the tower has red hair and keeps sticking his head out the window and we can't get the engineer to pass the tower!"

FEESERSBURG

It matters not at all where one lives, he is assured of having neighbors. Even if one moves to a remote region with the expressed desire to live to one's self, sometime or other a neighbor out of nowhere will appear to borrow or share the land with one enough to love our neighbors, but whether we do or don't depends a lot on our own outlook in living. First impressions are by no means lasting ones. A woman once complained to me that her neighbors were dull and stupid and weren't worth knowing and they in turn thought she was snobbish. An unhappy situation indeed until fire struck in the community and everyone joined in rebuilding the home of the fire victims. By the time the house was completed the dull neighbors and the snobbish woman had become real friends and neighbors. By working together they had come to find something fine and good in each other, to admire the beloved Will Rogers often said he had never met a person he didn't like. He was the sort of neighbor that looked for something good in the people he met and he was never disappointed. It was always there. If we can just remember that neighbors are people just like anyone else—wanting to be loved, admired and remembered, then we will be able to count any neighbor as a blessing and a friend as indeed they are.

A week-long series of services, with an evening of music Saturday, followed by dedication services on Sunday, focused the attention of our entire community on the newly built Brethren Church in Union Bridge. So much has already been written about the beauty of the church and most everyone in the community has visited it that there is little one can add to describe it. But Dr. Spicknall brought out a thought in his address Wednesday evening that is worth repeating. He said that it took great faith in the future for any congregation to build a new church in these revolutionary times. That the challenge to all religious faiths is greater today than at any period in the Christian era. For any congregation to accept this challenge and erect a new sanctuary to the teachings of Christ is an inspiring task. It is a symbol of faith in one's teachings, in one's self and in one's community.

The Mt. Union Lutheran Missionary Society will hold its annual covered-dish supper June 8th in the parish house at 7 p. m. It was formerly scheduled for June the first, but the date has been changed. There will be a short musical program following the supper.

The Samuel Keytons have just completed a new silo on their farm. The structure is made of finished cement blocks and makes a nice appearance. Jenny Dove has just hatched out.

Two in number and already they are peering out over the edge of the nest. Just three feet above them in another nest sits a blackbird waiting for her brood to emerge. Across the way a bluebird is fighting off the English sparrows until she has her house in order and further up the driveway a wren is singing defiance to the world. And all around the locusts are singing an out of tune symphony.

The graduating class of the Elmer Wolfe School held their class night program last Friday evening in the school auditorium. They honored two former teachers with rose corsages, which came as a surprise to Miss Pauline Fuss and Mrs. Arintha Marsh. The 1953 class was the first Mrs. Marsh taught when she came to Elmer Wolfe and it was the last that Miss Fuss taught before she retired. It was a nice kind thought on the part of the outgoing class to two teachers that gave the best years of their lives to teaching and serving the children of the community untiringly and devotedly.

The farmers are beginning to worry about their crops. Too much rain has turned the grain yellow; it's too damp to cut hay and very few farmers have any corn planted. Scientists insist that the atomic blasts in Nevada has nothing to do with all the rain and the thunder storms we have been having. But to many of us it doesn't seem possible that the blasts could not fail to have some effect, for we can remember how the dust one year in the dust bowl of Texas traveled this far and shut out the sun.

The torch of freedom is burning. For nations far and near. We shall hear the thanks of millions. When sounds the last "All Clear". These tyrants who caused us to suffer will learn when victory is here. That right is the symbol of might. When sounds the last "All Clear". God help us in this conflict. To banish every fear. Give us strength to work for freedom. Till sounds the last "All Clear". The soldiers who suffered in battle And died for their country dear Shall be honored down through the ages. When sounds the last "All Clear". —Leona D. Bane.

Cecil Rakes has taken possession of the farm he recently purchased from the Ardel Robertsons. This was formerly the Frank Bair farm. This coming Saturday will mark another Memorial Day. To honor the dead is a token of respect for those who have passed on and a tradition that no one would want to set aside. But it seems to me that honoring the living is even more necessary. Especially today as we honor the men and women who died fighting for their country should we pledge ourselves to the task of seeing that war is outlawed and that we make a determined effort to live at peace with those we disagree with though we must sacrifice some of our material gains to do so. This is not a popular idea but one that must be accepted if one wants to survive at all. "Only Yesterday" is just a phrase. But it may count a month, a year or only seven days.

It may span a life or just a minute toll. It depends on being young or slowly growing old.

THE SALT OF THE EARTH - These Cash Crops Have Plentiful Yields. (Special Bi-weekly Series for Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey)

Testing chemical weed control for lima beans. Two important processing crops which give the Tri-State grower more than their cash value are peas and lima beans. This is one reason why the Delaware-Maryland-New Jersey area ranks first among producing regions in the nation in total lima bean acreage and processed packs, and seventh in peas despite heavy competition elsewhere in the nation.

Forecasting Mildew Weather. Much progress against downy mildew on lima beans is coming out of coordinated research by these universities, the U.S.D.A. and processors. Weather forecasting to dustings is one of the new developments, and promises to effect savings in profit-eating dustings. It is already operating in Delaware, but Dr. Robert S. Cox, plant pathologist at the University of Delaware, says it is not yet ready for wide adaptation. He suggests keeping posted through your county agent, cannery field man or university technical men.

Soil Improvement. Furthermore, peas, being a legume, help build up organic matter levels and, properly fertilized, will leave the soil in good condition, as Dr. F. C. Stark, horticulture professor at the University of Maryland, points out. He recommends heavy fertilization, usually around 800-1000 pounds of 8-8-8 on sandy loams, with some nitrogen plowed down, or 500-800 of 5-10-5 on loams. Most efficient method has been to drift fertilizer 4" deep just before planting the seed 2" deep. For best results, he adds, the seeds should be inoculated, and planted as early as soil and weather conditions permit.

Break For Taxpayers: COUNTY TO GAIN THOUSANDS IF McKELDIN SIGNS BILL TO EQUALIZE SPIRITS TAX

Taxpayers in 21 of Maryland's 23 counties stand to profit through refunds of large sums of State collected tax money if Governor Theodore R. McKeldin will sign House Bill 687, which is now on his desk.
Carroll County, it is estimated on the basis of last year's figures, would receive a windfall of $9,757-.50 under provisions of the bill, passed by the recent session of the Maryland Legislature. Authority for this figure, who is among the long list of citizens and officials urging the Governor to sign the bill, is Representative Donald E. Six of Middleburg, Md.

Tell McKeldin! He and many other delegates and senators are calling upon the people of Maryland to write or wire the Governor immediately to present their views on this opportune measure which provides that funds be spread uniformly and made available for each county's own use. House Bill 687, it is pointed out, is completely within Maryland's far-seeing tradition and advanced thinking on alcohol beverage laws, which clearly state that their purpose is to "obtain respect and obedience to law and to foster and promote temperance."

The bill reserves the power to levy production or consumption taxes on alcoholic beverages exclusively to the State. It creates a uniform distilled spirits tax throughout the State of $1.50 a gallon.
Refunds Due It refunds .50 cents on each gallon of distilled spirits legally purchased by retail outlets in each county and in Baltimore City, to that county or to the city.
House Bill 687 further stops all local taxes on alcoholic beverages, and is the result of outstanding cooperation of officials of the State, members of the Alcoholic Beverages Committee, Mayor D'Alessandro of Baltimore, and of city and Baltimore County delegates.

Thinking legislators have held that the bill is a safeguard against unwise, unrealistic and oppressive taxation because it will prevent local revenue considerations from defeating the purpose of the alcoholic beverage laws.
Hodge-podge and patchwork county liquor laws would abet, it is made clear, the evil growth of the bootleg industry, which feeds upon the public, bringing gangsterism in its wake.

Righting a Wrong As is, House Bill 687 will wipe out the one terrible infringement of Maryland's long-standing principle of maintaining spirits tax collections as solely a State matter. This came about in 1947, when Baltimore City, on a plea of emergency, grasped special taxing power, and in 1948, when Baltimore County did the same thing.
This permitting of taxes at three levels in Baltimore City and County, that is, Federal, State and local, has proved a costly expedient, as is evidenced by the fact that the city and Baltimore county delegates, as well as other State leaders, have hurried to support the measure now awaiting Governor McKeldin's signature.

Certified records prove that the imposition of the special tax by Baltimore City, along with the overly-heavy Federal tax on spirits, resulted in social injury and economic loss to all communities in Maryland, including Baltimore itself.
Bootlegging Again? This county and others in the State will no longer tolerate the inequity of the special Baltimore City and Baltimore County tax. This was made clear in hearings of the Alcoholic Beverage Committee of the Legislature. Faced with the possibility that, if the State did not return to its customary policy, the evil outcropping of further selfish demands in various counties would wreck the high principles of Maryland's present beverage laws, legislators joined in passing the bill for the benefit of all Marylanders now and in years to come.

The chaos which would be created, the destruction of existing regulatory, administrative and enforcement structures, and the threat of illicit making of bootleg, with its racketeers and criminals, can be halted if Governor McKeldin will sign House Bill 687 now!
Write or wire Governor McKeldin today and tell him where you, as a resident of this county, stand on the matter.

ADVANCE PLANNING MAKES FOR GOOD VACATION, A.A.A. SAYS

Advance planning goes a long way toward a trouble free vacation, according to Mr. Robert Leese, Westminister Manager of the Automobile Club of Maryland who suggested today that motorists start preparing now for their annual summer trips.
'Two of the biggest considerations in pre-trip planning,' said the motor club official, 'are to set your budget and the distance you intend to cover. You may be guided by this daily budget outlined by the American Automobile Association for two persons: Car operation, $9; meals, $8; lodgings, $8; admissions, amusements and tolls, $2.
'This brings the over-all total for two persons to $27, but an extra 15 per cent is recommended to cover incidentals, souvenirs and emergencies. Thus, about $210 should be allowed for a one-week vacation and more than $400 for a two-week vacation.
'On the question of distance, 300 miles is recommended as a maximum daily total. Even at that, the motorist is liable to be weary at the end of the day. A leisurely pace, rather than maximum distance, goes a long way toward heightening safety, comfort and pleasure in a motor trip.
'In determining where to go this summer, add up your vacation time and money. Don't try to stretch them too far. Instead, shorten your distances if need be. There are many sights and worthy resorts to be found within easy access close to home as well as far away.'

I often tell my people that I don't want any fellow who has a job working for me; what I want is a fellow who a job has. I want the job to get hold of this young man so hard that no matter where he is the job has got him for keeps. I want that job to have him in its clutches when he goes to bed at night, and in the morning I want that same job to be sitting on the foot of his bed telling him it's time to get up and go to work. And when a job gets a fellow that way he'll amount to something.—Charles F. Kettering.

Growing Sweet Corn for Profit

Sweet corn grown for processing is profitable when it is well managed, according to crop specialists.
This is one of the crops with which high yield and high quality are generally synonymous. A good rotation plan, a helpful preceding crop and a high level of fertility are very important, both in cash return and in value to the overall farm cycle.

Agronomists underscore using adequate fertilizer. In Maryland, our fifth most important "sweet corn state" in acreage and production for processing, $5 worth of fertilizer has been shown to increase yield per acre up to 1 1/2 tons. A Delaware grower reports raising his yield from the 2.2 ton state average to 3.5 by using extra fertilizer.

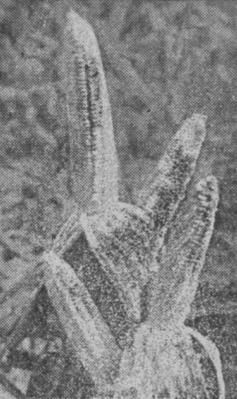

Nor should this cost be billed entirely to the harvested crop as Dr. Eugene P. Brasher, head of the horticulture department, University of Delaware, points out. Too many other farm interests gain from a sweet corn crop.

Sweet Corn Assets For one thing, sweet corn fits nicely into rotations, and because it matures so much earlier than field corn, there is time to start a good grain crop or a winter cover crop. It fits in well in pasture renovation and the land will be ready for pasture reseeding by September. A sweet corn crop also is less of a drain on soil fertility than field corn.

For the farm with livestock, the crop, if not treated for corn borer with poisonous compounds, means valuable feed and ensilage. Vegetable farms can return all the green tops to the soil right after harvest by plowing under.
Rotation permitting, a sweet corn crop may be preceded by an earlier cash crop, such as peas.

The University of Maryland also reports good yields of sweet corn the year after heavily fertilized tomatoes if organic matter levels are maintained.

Cutting Costs The grower's production costs are being cut by such developments as seed treatment, mechanical harvesting, and by chemical weed control—the 2, 4-D is almost a standard now in Delaware and Maryland.

Sweet corn hybrids have greatly improved crop yield and quality.

With planting season not far off, the University specialists advise growers to start corn borer control by plowing under last year's corn stalks as soon as you can get on the land. This may also help on other insect control. Your county agent or the cannery field man can advise on any such matters.

Growers are also reminded that the crop should be harvested at its prime—any subsequent gain in weight is offset by loss of moisture in the ears. This requirement of prime freshness is all-important for the canned or frozen product, as any housewife knows. Some Tri-State growers and canners have such treatment, mechanical harvesting, and by chemical weed control—the 2, 4-D so after it is pulled.

What Never Fails

Lesson for May 31, 1953

WHAT do you wish for, most of all? What do you pray for, most of all? You wish and pray for many things, and this is right; but what is above all? If you take your New Testament seriously, there can be no question about that. You will want above all the thing that is worth more than anything else; you will not be content to ask for less than the greatest thing in the world. You will ask God for love.

Better Than Miracles

Remember, when St. Paul or Jesus talked about love they were not thinking about the thing you hear about from the jukebox at the corner drugstore. They were not thinking about the sort of thing that comes and goes and leaves headaches and heartaches behind. They were not thinking of the kind of love that wants to get, but of the love that wants to give. They meant the kind of love God has and is: the kind of love that transforms the persons to whom it is given. The kind of love that Jesus lived out there in Galilee, the kind that can be lived on any street in the world. The kind of love the Cross stands for. This kind of love, Paul said, is better than miracles. Indeed, miracles are no account without it. When Paul talks of "speaking with the tongues of men and of angels" he is not meaning eloquence, oratory. He means (as you can see from I Cor. Chap. 12) the miraculous "gift" of tongues which the Corinthian church knew. Some of the members there could speak with tongues, some couldn't. Those that could, despised those that couldn't. That's not the point, Paul means to say. The measure of a Christian is not miracles, but love.

Dr. Foreman

Galilee, the kind that can be lived on any street in the world. The kind of love the Cross stands for. This kind of love, Paul said, is better than miracles. Indeed, miracles are no account without it. When Paul talks of "speaking with the tongues of men and of angels" he is not meaning eloquence, oratory. He means (as you can see from I Cor. Chap. 12) the miraculous "gift" of tongues which the Corinthian church knew. Some of the members there could speak with tongues, some couldn't. Those that could, despised those that couldn't. That's not the point, Paul means to say. The measure of a Christian is not miracles, but love.

Mightier Than the Mind

Love is also better than something else we all admire and would like to have as much of as possible. It is better and mightier than mental genius. The world around us is full of mysteries. A child can ask questions the wise cannot answer. If I only knew! is a thought that has occurred to every one. Each of us thinks he would be happier if he knew all the answers. We feel sure we could do more and be more if our minds were even just a little sharper than they are. But Paul reminds us that even if our prayers for insight and wisdom were all answered, even if we had such wisdom that not a single question would be left unanswered (not that any such thing is likely to happen soon!), we should still amount to precisely nothing, if we did not have love. Paul does not say that mental power is a bad thing; he did not say that miracles are no good. What he does say is that miracles minus love, or mind minus love, will not fulfill God's dreams, nor ours.

Nobler Than Martyrdom

The Christian church has always honored her martyrs, the men and women and children too who have died rather than give up their faith. We are inclined to put martyrs up in the highest bracket of the saints, partly because most of us are sadly aware that we are not the stuff of which martyrs are made. But Paul pulls us up short. Even to be burned at the stake for a righteous cause is still nothing at all, if there is no love behind and in the action.

Love Is the Miracle

Two hesitations cloud the mind. Is it not selfish to ask for the greatest thing in the world? Should we not rather be contented with lesser gifts? The answer to this hesitation is that this divine kind of love is precisely Unselfishness itself. To ask for the grace of unselfishness is surely no selfish prayer. Another hesitation is this: Is not this divine thing, this thing that outlives and outlasts wisdom and miracles and martyrdoms—is not this too high for us? Is it not a miracle itself, so rare we should not know what to do with it if we had it? Well, it is rare indeed, and with the exception of our Lord there was never a life that shone with it from beginning to end. Yet we who have known Christian homes and Christian people have lived in its light. It is a miracle indeed; but it is not one to lift us above the clouds, it is one to keep our feet on the ground.

SHORT STORY

Triangle

By L. MacDONALD

"MISTER, I'm gonna get married. Me, a guy of forty-two. I gotta tell someone. Want to hear about it?"

I was waiting for someone when this guy sits on the park bench beside me and starts talking. He'd singled me out from the others in the park and I didn't want to disappoint him. I nodded my head. After all, I had some time to kill and I don't like to wait alone.

"I'm listening," I told him. "Tell me about it."

"I got a radio shop," he began. "Buy, sell and repair. I'm getting married tonight. Forty-two years old and I'm getting married. She's forty, but she looks thirty. Real black hair and dark eyes. She's a wonderful cook; no food in L. A. like it."

I looked at his stocky form and the graying hairs of his round, bare head. I said something about love.

"Love, you say? How old are you?" About thirty, I bet. In ten years you won't be like that. Things change. She and I had plenty of love when we were young. But we didn't have much money. I got a job helping an electrician. I took me years to get a shop of my own. Now I got money, all kinds of business."

He was silent for a moment, squinting at his watch, trying to see the hands with his red eyes. They were tired and strained from delving into thousands of radios. I wondered what kind of woman would marry this little red eyed man who was fast losing his hair.

"During the war," he continued, "people had all kinds of radios to get fixed. I used to work night and day, saving my money to get married. I hired two kids; they had "SAM'S RADIOS" sewed on the backs of their coveralls. They used to make deliveries and stuff. Maybe you say them down on First street. Just off of Figueroa. I was always in the shop, working constantly because people couldn't get new radios. I never had time to come to the park."

HE PAUSED to look at his watch and I tried to remember where I had heard "Sam's Radios" before. It stuck in my mind. But I couldn't remember at the moment.

"While I'm busy fixing radios with no time to come to the park or anything a guy starts rushing Lena. Lena Raelio is her name, the woman I'm going to marry. We—"

The name struck me and I missed a few sentences. He went right on talking, "—and all the while he was taking her out. To the park, the movies, the beach and all the places I was too busy to take her. They met here in the park almost every day. He was swell to her."

He paused. I waited quietly. I wanted to know what he really had on his mind.

"His name was Harry. Lena liked him because he was so much fun. I never had the time to spare; Harry was good to her. She said, 'Yes, Sam, I'll marry you.' But she'd have to break the news to Harry first. She told me who he was and all about it. He was a pretty good guy and she wanted to break it to him easy."

I didn't look at him but focused on a woman coming across the park. He glanced at me and went on talking, as though he knew I was clutching at every word.

"She was supposed to meet him and tell him, this afternoon. I closed the shop, because tonight we get married, and came over to the park to find this guy. I had to tell someone about getting married and all. Lena said Harry is a nice guy." "He used to take her—", he broke off as he saw the woman I had been watching. She had seen us and halted. Her hair was black and even from a distance I could see her eyes glisten jet. Sam stood up and took a step, then he turned to me. "It's Lena," he said. "She didn't expect me here. I better go meet her; it's better that way. Thanks for listening to me."

I sighed in relief. I said, "So long. Congratulations."

He glanced over his shoulder. "Thanks," he said. "Goodbye, Harry."

ATLANTIC STATES FARM FACTS

"Mountaintop" Eggs Tops for High Hatchability

MICAVILLE, N. C.—Poultry raising is hard to beat in the small mountain farms in this area, Carl Silver, local poultryman, believes.

"When it comes to producing hatching eggs," he said, "our cool Carolina climate has it over most areas. We are producing eggs with an 85% hatchability, the year round. That means our eggs are in greater demand and at premium prices."

Carl Silver was one of the first men in this community to go into the hatching egg business. He raises birds without range in a 40x98-foot cement block gable-type house and since he built it on the side of a mountain, he has no drainage problems.

The proof that Silver's statement is no idle boast is seen in his record. He put 1,056 New Hampshire pullets on the nest at a cost ranging from 25c to 50c lower than the average in this area.

"In order to get top prices for hatching eggs," Silver stated, "they have to be handled right. I gather my eggs three times a day and store them in a damp, cool basement. I leave freshly gathered eggs in wire baskets in the basement overnight before they are graded. Buyers picked up eggs once a week. We clean eggs by buffing, but we never wash them."

"We also wet egg cases by dipping the empty case in water to insure plenty of moisture. We tilt eggs in a different direction each day by alternately putting a 2x4 under one end of the cage. This tilting keeps the air sac from sticking to the shell and helps get that high hatchability."

Silver says he expects to see more of his mountain neighbors go into the hatching egg business, for as long as The South produces broilers, there will be a good market for mountain-produced hatching eggs, especially with their high hatchability percentages.

Carl Silver believes proper egg care is just as important as following a good poultry program for getting top prices for hatching eggs.

Don't Neglect Those Pigs and Pullets

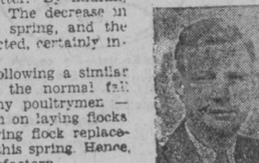

By H. L. Wilcke, Research Manager, Ralston Purina

They did following the short feed crop years of 1932, 1936 and 1947. In the fall of those years, just as in 1951, feeding ratios were poor. Nor did they improve very much throughout the winter and early spring. But, late in the spring, ratios began to get better. By midfall, growers were making good profits. The decrease in the number of pigs farrowed this spring, and the materially lower fall pig crop expected, certainly indicate good hog prices this fall.

Prospects for egg profits are following a similar path. Weak egg prices following the normal seasonal highs of 1951 made many poultrymen—especially "in and outers" cut down on laying flocks. As a result, chick numbers for laying flock replacements are expected to be off 10% this spring. Hence, egg prices this fall should be satisfactory.

Hog and poultry growers need to get maximum efficiency in growth and development from the pigs and pullets that they already have. This means that careful sanitation, sound management and good feeding must be used constantly.

Keep birds and animals free from roundworms and other internal or external parasites; make the best use of equipment, labor and pastures; feed high quality supplements balanced in all of the nutrients, vitamins, minerals and growth stimulants known to be necessary or beneficial in feeding poultry and hogs. Those who produce efficiently will be in position to cash in on the profit opportunities that seem to be coming this fall.

RE-VALUATION

New Report Cards Studied in School

For the past three years the Taneytown Elementary School has been searching, with the cooperation of parents, for a better method of reporting pupil progress to parents. During 1950-51, a faculty committee studied the various systems in use throughout Maryland and the U. S., making a comprehensive report to the entire faculty. In 1951-52, teachers were encouraged to experiment with the various methods to test parent and pupil reaction and to see the validity of the method. Nearly every room deviated from the system formerly in use in the school. Finally, this year, 1952-53, after much discussion and study, the narrative conference method was adopted on a trial basis. Written notes to parents, as needed, replaced the formal card, with opportunity provided for parents-teacher conferences.

In an attempt to evaluate what has been done, a study is being made of the system now in use, and changes are contemplated to meet any deficiencies found. Part of this study has included a questionnaire to all parents having pupils in the lower school (Levels 1, 2 and 3). The results, as listed below, prove rather conclusively that the system has been accepted, but is in need of some revision. Approximately 100 questionnaires were returned. It is assumed that parents not returning questionnaires either accept the present system or not interested in helping to work out a method best for their children.

No. of parents who like present system.....92
Do not like present system.....14
No comment.....4
Do not want system to go to fourth grade.....22
Think check list should be added.....46
Do not want check list.....3
Thought conferences were of value.....75
Conferences of no value.....5
Favor grouping according to achievement.....90
Do not favor grouping.....8

Among the changes and plans contemplated, at this time, are:

1. Use of a check list prepared by parents and teachers showing progress or need in the different phases of school work.
2. Re-scheduling of teacher time to allow for more parent-teacher conferences during school hours.
3. Use of the PTA programs to further acquaint parents with the school, through demonstrations, panel discussions, and conferences.
4. Further study by teachers and parents of other schools using a similar system and faculty meetings devoted to the area of democratic processes.
5. Extension of the plan to include next year's fourth level.
6. A more adequate standardized testing program to determine pupil progress and need.

PARTY GIVEN BY GRAY LADIES

On Tuesday the Gray Ladies of the Carroll County Red Cross Chapter assisted the Baltimore Gray Ladies in giving the patients of Springfield Hospital a party. Because of the recent rains the carnival or party was held in the spacious auditorium. There are over 3300 patients in the hospital, only those from certain buildings were able to attend. One of the men is quite musical, and at one o'clock, he went to the piano and played old familiar and popular music. A small group gathered around the piano and joined in the singing of the pieces. To the strains of the music small groups of men and women with their nurses poured into the room. Each was given a very bright and attractive favor. Games were played and gifts were given them. Their band furnished the music for dancing and the music enlivened the occasion. The refreshments were ice cream, cookies, large pretzel sticks, peanuts and coco cola. The coco cola was furnished by the Carroll County Chapter. There were twenty-one Carroll County ladies who helped. Among them were Mrs. Mervin Conover, Mrs. Claude Derr, Mrs. C. C. Hess, and Mrs. Margaret Nulton.

In the Baltimore morning Sun of Wednesday, 3rd, there was quite a good article about the Hospital. It is well worth reading.

PARENT-STUDY GROUP

The last meeting of the Parent-Study Group for the school year was held in the elementary school library Wednesday, 1:30 p. m. Mrs. Chas. Hopkins, chairman, outlined plans for the coming school year meetings. These plans include a complete program for each month's meeting to be arranged by the Program Committee, Mrs. Robert Rinehart, chairman.

The purpose of the Parent-Study Group is to promote a better understanding between home and school, and to lend a helping hand to the faculty, whenever help is needed. Some of the work accomplished this year includes "teaching" in the class room allowing the teacher to be free for conferences with parents; conducting the Pre-school registration, and entertaining the pre-school children, thus giving them their first introduction to school.

It is hoped many more parents will be present in the future meetings, and that still more will be accomplished during the coming school year.

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

(Your Chatty Column)

With all my heart, I wish you every morning a smile that shall last until the next day's dawning. I wish you health—life's greatest wealth! I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

GRADUATION DAYS!

My Precious Son: As I sit in my room writing this letter—you are so far away as to distance yet, very close in my thoughts—this night—the night of your Graduation from the Phoenix, Arizona State Teacher's College.

I am so disappointed not being right there with you but arrangements could not be made for such a long distance trip although I had really planned being right there. However, I congratulate you, my Son as deep down in my heart it is no more than I expected of you when you were a tiny boy and all through the years.

It is wonderful to look back and still retain all the beautiful memories with which you and I can share—those days of twenty years ago this August when we came into each other's lives! I'll always remember in the very beginning when I hesitated in marrying your Father, you so sweetly snuggled up to my side and whispered, "Won't you please marry my Father so as I can have you for my Mother!" That sort of clinched things if you know what I mean (and I think you do!).

There were many days full of anxiety and worry and yet there were more days full of happiness topped off by our love and understanding which drew us all so very close. I loved you, dear and your two smaller brothers the very first day we met!

I am so proud of you—first of all to have been your Mother—and now of your excellent marks in the years in College! We should thank God every day for our wonderful UNCLE SAM educating you all for free because you had been a G-I! You were one boy, dear in thousands who really appreciated it all and made use of every opportunity which were offered to you. You have never disappointed me and I always knew and felt that you would go to the top of the ladder. I am expecting big things in the future for you, my Son and I only wish that I could live long enough to see you President of these United States!

You were so sensible in turning to teaching instead of the Law which you had studied for two years—realizing there was such a shortage of teachers and you would be needed more so in that capacity. If you so desire you can turn back to Law some day which I know you have much talent in that line.

My heart missed several beats last Tuesday Mid-night when I heard your voice over the phone. It was just as if you were close to my heart as the days when you were a little boy whispering a secret!

I can really picture you this very night being handed your Diploma and I pray with all my heart that God will direct and guide you all through the coming years and add much wisdom in your life!

I am so positive that everything will come out just as you anticipate and for which you worked so hard all through your wonderful and untiring efforts.

My deep love and best wishes for you always and for your sweet wife and those two little Cherubs!

God Bless and Keep you! I'll always be,
Your loving Mother, IRENE.
Faithfully,
YOUR OBSERVER.

MY FRIEND THE FARMER

I first discovered the farmer in 1934. Others may claim to have discovered him at an even earlier date. I will not dispute with them. It may be so.

But this is the only concession I am able to make along this line, for when it comes to evaluating the general worthiness of farm and rural folk, once you have proven yourself worthy of their confidence, I yield to no man.

Farm folk wear well, which in itself is a basic test of character the world over. Double talk is foreign to their very nature. They say what they mean, and expect you to do the same. On such a plane friendly understanding is not too difficult to establish.

I entered the food business in 1933, knowing nothing of farm problems, and but little more of merchandising. I soon became cognizant of the strained relations which existed at that time between these two great economic groups.

Because of their mutuality of interests, and their interlocking objectives, the situation puzzled me. It seemed that they should be friendly co-operators, instead of painfully working at cross purposes.

Woefully short of practical experience in both fields, I nevertheless did know something about the fascinating subject of human relations. Deep down in both camps I knew there was a common chord of fellowship. I decided to reach out for it.

What came of that early pioneering is now a matter of history. On the spiritual side understanding and friendship replaced suspicion and hostility. The marketing plan benefited producer, distributor, and consumer, substantially and in continuing measure.

Former Secretary of Agriculture J. Hensell French years ago estimated that the income of a single segment of our farm population increased three million dollars, without any price increase to the consumer.

Of equal interest to me personally was the new vista of life that this work opened. The material side was good, but the spiritual side was so warm, and confidence inspiring, and so wholly satisfying, that the words common touch came to have a new and revitalized meaning for me.

To my astonishment I found that farm folk are literally loaded with sentiment. And to my further astonishment, I found that business men also have an abundance of the same wonderful quality. The vein is present in both, if one knows how to uncover and blend this precious attribute in human nature.

After eight years leadership of Pennsylvania Chain Store Council, I resigned that others might carry on the good work. But my deep personal attachment for farm folk is an inbred feeling that I never can relinquish.

Sentiment is one of the most powerful of our inner forces. It appeals to the better side of our natures. Community singing at farm gatherings always moves me, for more plainly than words, it tells me that I am in the house of my friends.—Fred W. Johnson.

MORE SCHOOL FOR LESS MONEY

We can reduce the cost of new school houses. And they can still be modern—provide up-to-minute teaching facilities and guard child health. Equally important, they can be buildings that will serve many school generations at low maintenance because of the materials used in construction.

One example of this new boon to over-burdened taxpayers and frantic school administrators was built at Eureka Springs, Ark. It cost $5.65 per square foot. The national average is $14.50 per square foot. Principal construction materials used were concrete, steel and glass block—sturdy, weather resistant materials. Architect T. Ewing Shelton, of Fayetteville, Ark., designed the Eureka Springs school. Since completion, similar buildings have been constructed in twenty other school districts in the South. The cost ranged from $5.47 to $8.79 per square foot.

Exteriors of these buildings compare favorably with far more expensive structures, and their efficiency is superior to most. Interior design provides maximum classroom area, all of which is daylighted by panels of light-directing glass block over clearvision window strips.

The Eureka Springs school is a continuing success story of mind-over-matter. A skillful and experienced architect has taken time to analyze the functions of a school house, and then employed his imagination, determination and sure knowledge of materials to provide what taxpayers and schoolmen alike have been waiting for.

We thought you'd like to know.—J. E. Jones.

TRADE NOT AID?

The State Department has "confirmed and elaborated on" the testimony revealed by Senator McCarthy's subcommittee charging that two British-owned ships carried Red Chinese troops during the Korean War. A letter to the subcommittee, signed by Assistant Secretary of State Thurston B. Morton, identified the vessels as the Miramar and the Perico, both of which were under Panamanian registry at the time of the alleged offense.

The letter, revealed by Senator Karl Mundt, acting chairman, stated that information in the Department indicated that the Perico was registered under the Panamanian flag by Walllem & Co. on December 10, 1949, and that "There is no indication that the vessel changed hands until it was sold for scrap in Hongkong in 1952. "Available information" showed that the Miramar was bought by Wheelock, Marden and Co. Ltd. from Walllem in early 1950, and "subsequent to June 1952 came into the hands of the Chinese Communists".

A general denial by Sir Roger Makins, British ambassador, was forthcoming almost immediately. In a luncheon speech, Sir Roger said: "No British ship, that is to say no ship under the British flag and subject to British law, has done any such thing."

At the time of the alleged services to the enemy, he said, "these two ships appear to have been under the control of the Chinese Communists".

But whether the facts can ever be established or not, we can not get too excited over hauling a couple of shiploads of troops—when we think of Britain's mounting trade in "non-strategic" goods that supports the enemy's economy—with the approval of our State Department.—National Industries News Service.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

NATIONAL CITY, CALIF., NEWS: "The issue is state's rights—Decentralization of government would mean its return to the grass roots where people can watch it and see it and know it".

VESTA, MINN., VISION: "The TVA area is practically all in the state of Tennessee. So a comparison of Tennessee with the other Southeast States is indicated. The figures—show that Tennessee's remarkable development has been matched in most of those states, and exceeded in others. In other words, Tennessee has been just about average. It is not easy to see much justification in the claim that TVA has done what private industry could not do".

ALBANY, OREGON, DEMOCRAT-HERALD: "As the law now stands, a citizen has a legal right to belong to any party he chooses, including the Communist party, which as of now is not outlawed. He has not, however, the right or privilege to use the classroom and the college as a place to promote the ideas of a group devoted to the overthrow of the government by force."

BOSTON, MASS., JEWISH ADVOCATE: "Mankind is in ferment. The sanctity of the individual is threatened and God on high denied by an atheistic philosophy and power which would enslave the human personality and crush man's religious spirit. The greater the show of belief in God, the more ominous the portent for His revilers."

Let's Think

by G. H. ENFIELD

A person void of humor is like a tree void of sap.

It is time that Americans be understood and that we first understand ourselves.

It is not uncommon for a little dog to bark furiously at a larger dog.

The old time gal eyed the man in the moon. The modern gal prefers less light when eyeing her man.

When the town's Scrooge was being embalmed, he raised himself for a moment and asked for his purse.

No one can hope to spend his entire life in a safety zone or on a bed of roses.

There are those who get happiness out of finding 'wrong' where it doesn't exist.

They who fail to honor the dead cannot truly honor the living.

When you come to truly believe, things that have been on the sidewalk of your life will start to shift to the main line.

She plans to teach in the Fall.

"Let there be light", is the perpetual demand of Truth and Love, changing chaos into order and discord into the music of the spheres.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Then there was the one about the man who entered a neighborhood pool hall with a piece of paper in his hand and said: "This is a list of all the men I can whip."

"Is my name on there?" asked a husky, broad-shouldered truck driver.

"Yes."

"Well, you can't whip me".

"Are you sure?"

"Damn right I'm sure".

"Very well", replied the man, "I'll take your name off the list".

Do you know what this car can do?

It can set you atingle with thrill.

It can move from zero to legal speed quicker and quieter than any Buick before it—and with the utter smoothness of a gull in glide—because this is a 1953 Buick with the spectacular getaway of Twin-Turbine Dynaflo.*

It can loaf easily up a long steep hill—swoop instantly ahead when there's safe passing to be done—or whispser along at highway pace with throttle barely open—because this is the Buick powered with the world's most advanced V8 engine, with record-high compression of 8.5 to 1.

It can surround you with comfort, luxury, restful ease.

It can velvet a rough road with its even softer all-coil-spring cushioning—track true on curves with its solid torque-tube steadiness—handle like a flyrod with its Power Steering*—gentle to a precise halt with its Power Brakes.†

And it can seat you in the superb comfort of true spaciousness—because this big and brawny beauty is the Buick SUPER Riviera Sedan—roomiest six-passenger sedan made in America.

Above all, this car can give you supreme value—more room, comfort, power and thrill for the money than you can find elsewhere.

Why not come in and see it, drive it, compare it? We'll be happy to arrange matters.

*Standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series. †Available at additional cost on Super and Roadmaster models only.

Serve By Sharing

Lesson for June 7, 1953

A FIELD of soy beans in North Carolina; 97 head of steers in Colorado; a calf and eggs in Blossom, Texas; 1500 boxes of apples in Washington, hogs in North Dakota and chickens in Wisconsin. What ties all these together? These and hundreds of other products grown on farms were "Lord's Acre" and "Lord's Livestock" projects last year. Thousands of people in every part of the nation have been joining in such plans for more than 22 years now. The idea is to dedicate to the Lord's service a field, some head of cattle, whatever the farmer or housewife owns or can grow. The projects are varied; they are generally successful; but the greatest success has been in the happiness and satisfaction of those who have worked on these things.

Themselves First

The innumerable people who shared in dedicating their work in this way to God and his cause, have simply turned into action and experience what St. Paul laid down long ago to the church at Corinth. The Corinthian Christians were city people, not country people; but they were poor, not rich. Paul is urging them to give what they could, as they could; and in doing so brings out at least four principles of right giving.

First and foremost is that the best givers had first of all given their own selves to the Lord. The church has learned long ago that St. Paul was right. You can't expect big contributions or hard work from those who are still essentially selfish. You have to convert a man's heart before you can convert his money. And even if you gave God everything but yourself, you would not yet have given the very thing He wants most of all.

Sharing the honor

"They simply begged us to accept their gifts and so let them share the honor of supporting their brothers in Christ." So Phillips translates II Cor. 8:4. Paul is describing the way in which the churches up in Macedonia had contributed to what we would call the benevolent funds. Christian giving is all in the way the giver looks at it. If it is thought of as a burden, if it is thought of as something only the wealthy can rightly do, if it is thought of as something the preacher keeps begging for, a kind of chore at best, then of course the giving won't be much. It will be only enough to keep from giving nothing at all. But giving in the cause of Christ, for the use and help of God's people, is an opportunity, not a chore. There is all the difference in the world between the giver who says (in effect), "Well, if you must have something..." and the one who says, "Do let me get in on this."

The Lord Loves

The Bible does not encourage any one to fancy that he can buy his way into God's favor. God's smile is not for sale. God loves a cheerful giver, even though He seldom turns away givers of any sort. A sour and selfish man might be high-pressure into gloomily squeezing a few dollars into the church budget, and those dollars will do some good; but the Bible does not suggest that God cares much for that sort of giving. Giving till it hurts may be good; but giving till it doesn't hurt is better! We remember Jesus' comment on the offering of the wealthy Pharisees and the poor widow. Is there any one who can think God loved her and them alike?

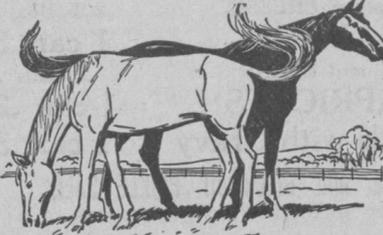

Carrying Through

So there are three principles of Christian giving: personal dedication, a sense of privilege in sharing God's work, and enthusiasm. As Paul puts it (again Phillip's translation): "Show that you can complete what you set out to do with as much efficiency as you showed readiness to begin." (II Cor. 8:11.) A good Lord's Acre project calls for more than enthusiasm in the springtime. It has to have hard work most of the summer. The work of the church, and indeed every undertaking for the welfare of mankind, is best carried on not by those who blow all their steam at once, but by those who keep up some steam for the long pull. Long mileage is worth more than a flashy start.

Good horse sense

One of the most interesting examples of horse sense in practice is the way two horses stand side by side flicking flies from each other. Another example is the friendly sharing of party lines. Consideration for others in keeping calls reasonably brief is a good way to make sure that the same consideration is shown to you. That's just plain good sense, too.

Holding the line

When it comes to fishing, waiting is part of the pleasure. But not so with your Long Distance calls! The faster they go through, the better you like it. And you can help speed up your Long Distance calls by giving the operator the number, not just the name and address, of the person you're calling. Here's something else that will help you to faster service: jot down frequently used Long Distance telephone numbers and keep them handy when you make your calls.
