LETTER TO THE EDITOR

First I want to compliment you on the article appearing on the front page of your August 28, 1953, issue headed "The Sewer Question."

On this same date, and before having seen your paper, I talked with Dr. Neil Gordon, Health Officer for Carroll County, at Westminster, Md. urging that he make a personal inspection of the stream crossing Highway 71 south of Taneytown, and in making the inspection I suggested it might be advisable to take along a gas mask.

I hope by now Dr. Gordon has made his inspection. Also, I would suggest that the citizens of Taneytown not already familiar with this condition

Many of the citizens of Taneytown, including several or more of the present town officials, know by firsthand experience that I have been endeavor-ing for three years (it may be four) to have the dumping of all manners of waste material into the stream passing through my property stopped and without much success to date

I am, therefore, again demanding that the Health Department take action to correct this condition and it is my hope that you will find a spot in your paper for this in order that all concerned may be informed.

Yours very truly
A. H. CARPENTER AHC:McG.

Older children may speak of teacher as a combination of ogre and policeman and exaggerate the difficulty of school work. If the damage has already been done, all members of the family will have to work together to repair it. An older child can take Junior

Mother will be wise to hide her feelings and not tell the youngster how much she will miss him while he is in school. With many children adjustment takes a few weeks, and parents will have to be patient and understanding. It will only distress and perplex the child to be asked endless questions about what he learns or what he does in his first school

Parents are in an important position to make the first days of school a happy adventure that will lead to a emotional adjustment to school

SMART WEED

"Lie, Steal, Drink and Swear!" was a motto used 50 years ago by the weekly Wiarton (Ontario) Echo. Under the motto was the editor's explanation:

'When you lie, let it be down to pleasant dreams; when you steal, let it be away from immoral companions; when you drink, let it be pure water; when you swear, let it be that you will support your hometown paper, pay your subscription and have your printing done locally."

SOMETHING NEW MAY BE ADDED

In case you are ever so slightly confused by the fiscal situation in Washington-in which the Administration has cut billions off the budget but is bumping its head against the debt ceiling-in which the excess profits tax comes to an end the first of the year, and we are promised income tax reductions, and there is loud talk of paring those obnoxious excise taxes on "luxuries"—and in which it is considered unlikely that Congress will be called back to boost the borrowing limit:

The answer is simplicity itself.

All we need to do is increase tax revenues-and not necessarily from the same old taxes. We can let the excess profits tax expire, cut income taxes and any other taxes, so long as winter rains are usually gentle, and we invent some new ones! It is "entirely possible", says Treasury Sec'y George M. Humphrey, to keep the cate erosion may budget balanced by this method, even 25 tons of top soil per acre each year if "defense requires a lot more mon-

"The budget can and should be balanced at any level of spending," Mr. Humphrey told a television audience. His department, he said, is now looking for new sources of revenue-such as a national sales tax.

Thus, whether you like it or not, you can expect this new tax to be a major issue in the next session of Congress. Actually, we think it is the soundest kind of taxation that can be devised. The idea has been kicked around for years, but politicians have always been afraid of it. Under a straight-forward sales tax, everyone would be aware (as he is not today) of just how much he was paying in taxes. And truly, everyone would be paying according to his means, and without equivocation or dodging or fixing. The only logical outcome of such a tax is really economical government.

But do not expect all this overnight. To accomplish its proper purpose, a national sales tax would have to replace a myriad maze of "hidden" taxes, to say nothing of the tricky and bewildering income tax.—U. S. Press

SOCIAL SECURITY

Monday, September 7, is Labor Day—a day set aside to honor the working man. Our nation respects the dignity and the worth of those who work for a living. No law or caste system denies the working man the opportunity to get ahead; the working man has the right to worship as he wishes, speak his own mind, work where he desires, and plan his own life.

At this time there are more than 60 million persons gainfully employed in America. This number includes those who are self-employed and those who work for someone else. Most of those who work for someone else and many of the self-employed are covered by Federal old-age and survivors insurance. Approximately 48 million persons are in work covered by social security in any given week. Since it began January 1, 1937, more than 88 million persons have worked under it at some time or an-other. Four out of five mothers and children in the nation can count on monthly survivors insurance if the family breadwinner dies. Nearly 51/2 million persons are now receiving monthly benefits.

What do these statistics mean to What do these statistics mean to you and your family on Labor Day 1953? If you work for a living, you and your family are probably assured of some income when you retire after age 65, or in case of your death at any age. These monthly benefits are not designed to replace the traditional methods of providing agents. itional methods of providing security (such as private life insurance, annuities, savings, or investments); nor are they made in the spirit of a "charity, hand-out" based on the financial need of the family unit. They are earned benefit payments, based on the worker's earning record, which guarantee a partial replacement of the regular family income if it is lost through the worker's retirement or

SOIL LOSS

Rains during the five month period of May through September account for more than 90 per cent of the annual soil loss in Carroll county, according to data gathered by the Committee for Conservation now.

Evidence of the summer soil loss can be found throughout the county whenever fields are cultivated up and wherever fields are cultivated up and down slopes. The percentage of slope in cultivated rows determines the rate Soil is not likely to erode on less than 1 per cent slope, but the loss can increase as much as four tons per acre for each 1 per cent increase in High intensity, thunder storm rains during the cultivating and growing season are the cause for heavy spring and summer soil loss. Winter erosion is relatively insignificant because frost and snow prevent soil loss.

The committee reported that research studies on sloping land indi-Nine out of every 10 tons are lost during spring and summer months.

An acre of top soil six inches deep weighs approximately 1.000 tons, the committee explained. This means an acre of top soil can be lost in from 6 to 14 years and the entire six inches in from 40 to 100 years.

Top soil washed away is usually the best, since erosion is a selective process. It removes the finer, more fertile material in geater proportion than coarser material. Besides removes moving soil, erosion also removes fertilizer.

The committee added that fall months are a good time to p'an erosion control practices for the next year cropping season, Assistance can be secured on conservation planning from soil conservation districts.

Last year quite a large number of farmers advertised against hunting and trespassing on their farms, and this year we have had requests for the same plan to be adopted by the Record as that of last year, viz, a charge of 25c to cover the entire per-iod from September to December 24.

CLEANLINESS FIGHTS POLIO

POLIO CAN ENTER THE BODY THROUGH THE MOUTH OR nose, so that the face and hands are obvious danger spots. Before your child eats anything-even an ice-cream cone or a sandwichand-milk snack-see that his hands have been scrubbed to spotless measures against polio, during warm weather when the danger is greatest, are to keep children from getting overtired or chilled, to keep them away from new groups, and to keep them clean.

Good hygiene, based on soap-and-water cleanliness, is a major protection against polio, according to the experts. Since the virus can enter the body through the mouth, children should be taught to always scrub their hands before eating.

This advice from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis makes good sense. Over-fatigue and chills lower resistance—an obvious come-on to disease. New groups of people from other localities bring added danger of infection. And since any virus' thrives on dirt, extra attention to cleanliness is a wise precaution.

Do You Find You Can't Afford A New Fall Dress?

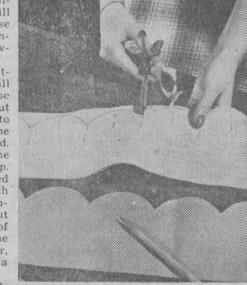

IF THAT BASIC DRESS OR SUIT has to see you through another season, take these tips from Singer sewing experts to erase that "last year" look

The feminine ripple of a scalloped trim at neckline or sleeve will add new sparkle to an old dress. Even if you are beginner at home sewing, you can achieve professional scallop effects if you follow these instructions from your local sewing center.

To make a faced scallop hemline, you will need a length of coarse net to give body without bulk to your sewing. In any scallop treatment, even spacing will be insured by the use of a paper pattern. Cut a strip of paper to measurement of the edge to be finished. Pleat this into folds the widths of one scallop. Next draw a curved scallop the exact depth you want for the finished scallop. Now cut through all layers of folded paper at one time. Unfold the paper, and each fold has a perfect scallop.

Now trace your scallop on wrong side of facing. Place right sides of facing and dress fabric together and baste. Machine stitch around the line of scalloping. Then cut around scallop 1/8" from stitching line, and clip to points between scallops. Turn facing under to wrong side, press and hem in place.

Picot edges for scallops are also good for most lightweight fabrics. To make a picot edge, use the hemstitcher attachment for. your sewing machine to hemstitch around scallop outline. Cut through the center of the hemstitching, and you have a picot edge. If you do not wish to do this hemstitching on your sewing machine, this finishing can be done at your local sewing center. Bound scallops may be used to achieve unusual color effects. Commercial binding may be used on cotton fabrics. However, for sheers, silks and rayons, you should make your own French fold binding. To do this, cut bias binding about six times as wide as desired finished width. Fold double right side out so raw edges meet. Baste binding to right side of fabric so that raw edges of binding meet raw edges of scallop. Press. Stitch on sewing machine with bias side up so you can control fullness. Clip seam at intersection of scallops, turn folded edge to wrong side of garment and baste in place. Press. Final stitching is done on right side as close to turned edge as possible so stitching is almost invisible.

have lived in the community enough to see the farms surrounding that one ours change hands at least once and some of them three times. We are old enough now to dislike change even a change in neighbors, especially the kind that contributes much toward the serenity of the neighborhood. No doubt the most disturbing thing about friends and neighbors moving away is that it emphasizes the fact that nothing is permanent and all of us do want at least one thing to remain the same. It all adds up to stability or rather the desire for stability. But maybe that is a dead word, confusion

This bit of information is not going to help any one, only make them a bit unhappy: In 1903 a home of seven rooms could be had for $1700 and a hot-air furnace for $90. Of course hot air furnaces are out of date, but what bride and groom couldn't use a seven room house at that price?
We motored through Virginia several weeks ago and was impressed with the lack of signs (advertising) filling stations and road side garbag dumps along the scenic routes. They say a person sees what he is look ing for, but not always. Maryland has many beautiful spots and I wouldn't trade Carroll County for any other piece of real estate in the world, but no matter where one goes one is sure to stumble over a heap of discarded tin cans. Personally I think its a disgrace to our beautiful county and a demerit mark against the Women's Clubs that they don't do something about it. A cleanup campaign for a month would do wonders plus some law enforcement against garbage tossers.

SEPTEMBER—SIGHTSAVING MONTH

Almost as many American will go blind this year as the total number of our soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines who lost their lives in three full years of fighting in Korea according to the Maryland Society for Prevention of Blindness. Moreover, two-thirds of the blindness will be unnecessary. The Society, along with other prevention of blindness societies, is celebrating the month of September as sight-saving month.

More than 23,000 American men, women and children will become blind in the next year, the Society estimates, with neglect, disease and injury as the principle causes. This number could be sharply reduced by following a few simple rules:

1. Keep sharp toys, darts, guns and fireworks out of the hands of children

2. Have periodic eye examina-tions. Early detection of an eye disease may halt blindness. 3. Consult your eye specialist promptly if your child's eyes do not appear straight.

4. If you work with machinery or near moving parts, wear protective eye goggles.

The Maryland Society, now in its forty-fifth year, is a Red Feather Agency of the Community Chest.

THIRTY DAYS HATH SEPTEMBER BUT IT ONCE HAD THIRTY ONE

If the Roman Emperor Augustus hadn't been so vain, the rhyme about September would have read thirty-one instead of thirty. But Augustus wanted a month named after him, so he snipped a day off September, added it to the previous month, and christened it August. The patched month has lasted to this very day.

Cool Desserts Are Welcome Fare

Desserts during warm weather are notably different from those of other seasons, and pleasingly so! Take advantage of the berries and fruits available and use them in pleasing contrast to the staple ingredients which make desserts nutritious as well as tasty.

Eggs and milk are wonderful basic foods to put into desserts to fortify the family's diet, just in case they don't get enough of them in their natural form. Tapioca, gelatin and other ingredients help you concoct the delectable desserts that are so appealing, such

Using Money

Lesson for September 6, 1953

CAN you use $500?" is the way a loan company begins its circular inviting you to borrow from them at a ruinous rate of interest. Yes, indeed, I can use money, everybody thinks. What a man means by that is: I can think of ways to spend it. Give me a hundred dollars and I can guarantee to get rid of it before night. Give me a million and it may take me longer but I can use it, I can make it vanish, I can swap it in for something else. But that is not using money. That may be using it, but maybe not. Money can be spent in wise ways or foolish; it can be exchanged for something good or something bad or

Root Of All Evil

Money is not a bad thing in itself as some have thought. But it can be the root of many bad things. Or to speak more correctly, not money but the love of money is a root of all evils. (Paul does not in the original Greek say THE root; he does say A root.) For example, when a murder is committed and the police are trying to solve the mystery, one of the first questions asked is: Who stands to benefit by this murder?—meaning, who is going to strike it rich by this crime? Love of money can be a root of murder, theft, adultery, all the sins on the calendar. We could not abolish crime by abolishing money, to be sure. We could not abolish crime by seeing that every man, woman and child had exactly the same amount of money. The sinful heart has many outlets. But love of money, or in other words greed, selfishness, is one of the easiest and most frequent ways by which man's inner meanness comes out in the open.

Rich Toward God

On the other hand, money makes much good possible. If a man is going to be a "good father," he can't be that if he is a pauper. He doesn't have to be rich, but he does have to have money for groceries and education and all that it takes to bring up children. If a man is going to be a good citizen he will pay his taxes, and if the state is a good state those taxes will be wisely used for the benefit of all. A poverty-stricken state is not a good state to live in. A poverty-stricken home is not the kind of home you want your children to grow up in. Or consider all the good done by the church. Much of it is made possible by the contributions of the members. An orphanage, a hospital, an old folks' home, an evangelistic campaignevery part of the church's activity is something that uses money and transforms it into service and happiness. In Jesus' parable of the rich farmer whom God called a fool, no doubt the neighbors (some of them) admired the man for his wealth and his thrift. "He takes good care of what he's got," they would say. But Jesus did not think well of the man. His trouble was not that he was well-to-do. Jesus never condemned a man simply for owning property, money or anything else. The rich fool's trouble was that he thought of no one but himself, built his barns for no one but himself. To be "rich toward God" he would have to think about using his wealth for the benefit of some one besides himself.

Bull's Eye Everybody aims at something in life—everybody, that is, but the aimless, who don't count. We all take aim-but at what? When you pull back the bowstring, or cock the trigger, and look toward the target, what do you see in the bull's eye? What is the very center, the principal aim of living? Some see nothing but the dollar mark. It is a mark that can be hit, and a man's aim can be absolutely accurate. But the trouble with money as a central aim in life, is that the more successful a man is in hitting it, the less satisfied he is likely to be. There are rich people who are happy; but it is not true that a man grows happier with every dollar he adds to his pile; it is not true that the happiest persons in town are the wealthiest. It is generally a fact that if a person is both rich and happy, his happiness comes from other source than his bank account.

THOUGHTS FOR THOUGHT

Excerpts from an article by Syngman Rhee, President of South Korea, "WHY I STOOD ALONE."

"I am convinced that Korea's stiff attitude will serve historically to turn the tide against the tyranny of Com-munist imperialism even as Churchill's own decision in 1940 to fight on alone against Hitler meant the begin-ning of the end of Nazism and black

Q. What's an easy way to control poultry lice?

The best way I know A.is, use Dr. Salsbury's Vapo-Roost. All you have to do is spread it on the perches and see that all birds go to roost. Vapo-Roost doesn't stain the feathers or taint flesh or eggs, because it contains benzene hexachloride. Use Vapo-Roost regularly to delouse your flock -- it pays! Ask for Vapo-Roost this week.

When you've finished your telephone call,

please take care to hang up properly. A receiver off the hook ties up an entire line. That means that no one on that line will be able to make or receive calls until the receiver has been replaced. Think of the calls you may be missing—calls that could be important. And you're being considerate of the others on your line when you take care in hanging up.

♠ You're the winner in this league!

Telephone people compete among themselves to give you the best possible service. And they keep score on their work just as carefully as the big leagues tally a season's games. Rivalry for top ratings in the telephone "league" is keen among exchanges, departments, and even entire companies. Of course, you are the real winner - for this kind of competition means better telephone service!

"Well, now, Miss", (giving me another glance as I held onto my hat) "do you really think you are going to like the country?" I looked in that honest face covered with a thick beard and a rather long one and said. "I know I am going to love it!" That must have surprised the farmer to such an extent that neither one of us snot again the entire five mile drive to the farm from the station. I was drinking in all the beauty of God's Paintings all along the way and I wished right then that my precious wished right then that my precious Dad had been a farmer. The wheels of the buggy were click-. ing against the hard mud surface and Charlie had a special trot as he must have known it was the road home. Very soon, we stopped at a stone house with a picket fence that had been there many years shielding the large front well kept lawn. A rather small front porch came into view then between the massive trees and I could see the white pillers of the could see the white pillars of the porch. It is always the immaculate condition of every farm home in Pennsylvania which is known the world over. world over.

There was Mrs. Snyder hurrying down the front porch steps to meet me at the gate. She wore gold rimmed glasses and had a big thick knot of hair on the top of her head which adorned a face quite rugged and wrinkled from hard work and eyes just like my own Mother's so kind. We were studying each other as she still held my hand, leading me into

We were studying each other as she still held my hand, leading me into the old fashioned parlor which was spotless with the ragged rug from one end of the room to the other.

'Right here on this very spot where we are standing, we were married just thirty years ago but I would not let the Preacher tell me that I had to obey my husband to be, so I made him omit that awful word from the marriage ceremony!" We both laughed heartily. From that time on, Folks that little farmer's wife and I were the very best of friends as she wrapped herself right around my heart.

One part of Couse was built during the Revolutionary War—the stone part and that is where I was given a choice room which pleased me greatly. The other half was a few years after the Civil War as an addition of Clapboard. "I hope you will like it with us but it may be lonely as the last boarder leaves in onely as the last hoarder leaves in two more days. Our room is right next to yours!" As Mrs. Snyder closed the door behind her as she left me to unpack and change to a housedress, I quickly ran from one window to the other (there were five) all down to the floor and as I gazed out into God's Country, I found myself saying, "Thank you, God!" The telephone upon the wall in the kitchen kept right busy all the rest of the day and that evening after a great day and that evening after a grand Pennsylvania dinner of sour beef and dumplings (plus all the trimmings) was served there were quite a few young callers whom Mrs. Snyder had invited over to meet me.

I not alone remained the one which my Dad predicted, but I remained two, and then three and loved every minute of it and a big lump came into my throat when it was the end of August and the return of school days when we said "Goodbye!" That is where I met the Gentleman Farmer's son who was too bashful to pro-pose! Instead of the Preacher's wife I might have been THE FARMER'S WIFE! So that, dear Readers, is my very first visit to the country in any state and I have loved it ever since

So long, until next week D. V. Have a grand week end and as you drive along—you may think if you want to—that all the farm homes you see do not necessarily mean there is a "farm girl" who is the wife for there are dozens just like me!

Faithfully, YOUR OBSERVER.
