PROGRAM MOVING AHEAD

The program for returning to the states the powers usurped by the Federal government during the past 20 years is moving ahead.

President Eisenhower told the recent meeting of governors in Seattle that his "indestructible conviction" is that state governments must hold their traditional place in our country or "we are not going to have America as we have known it." Already the President has re-established a concept of Federal-state relations that was largely discarded during the New Deal and the Fair Deal.

Former President Hoover has agreed to head the commission which will recommend curtailments of Federal powers. He can be expected to do a thorough job.

But Federal-state relationships are in such a tangle that cutting a path through them is slow-going. The important thing is to keep going.

MORE SCHOOLING IMPORTANT

For their own good and the good of the nation, the 3,000,000 teenagers who worked during the summer should think twice before deciding to quit school.

Last year one-fifth of the 16 and 17-year-olds failed to return to school after taking summer jobs. As a general thing, the failure to get more education dims their future, because statistics show that a boy who finishes high school will earn during the next 40 years $14,700 more than his fellow-student who quit after junior year. For girls, the differential is nearly $20,000.

But more important—the nation needs educated men and women to operate our complex economic machine. We can't match the Communist hordes in manpower. Only through brainpower can we keep ahead of them. We must look to the schools for most of the trained technicians and professional men and women who furnish that brainpower.—Industrial Press Service.

CHALLENGE TO ADVENTURE

Will tomorrow's stenographers be recruited from the ranks of six- and seven-year-olds?

They might if little Marsha Howard had her way.

Five-year old Marsha, reports the Associated Press from Springfield, Ill., came home from kindergarten after only one hour of it to pour forth her disillusion to her mother:

"Mom, they don't teach any shorthand or typing there. They just have things for little kids, like blocks and sand."

While Marsha's attitude could hardly be called typical, neither is it unique. A young lad of our acquaintance returned from his first day at school to report to his mother he didn't care about going back because after a whole day there "I haven't even learned to read yet."

But despite this zeal for learning which triggers some youngsters of the atomic age to expect more than any school system yet devised can quite deliver, many more young Americans are walking into school rooms this September than are walking out on them.

The nation's schools are bulging with some 30,000,000 children, reported to be the largest enrollment on record. Elementary schools alone are short some 70,000 teachers.

Yet can this era offer a single adventure more challenging than teaching these young learners—the indispensable rudiments they must master before they can face an unlimited future?—Christian Science Monitor.

OPENING GUN

Harry Truman is politically consistent if not completely logical. He has always contended that the "interests" own the Republican Party; now he says the Eisenhower administration has "sold out" to "big business." In his Detroit speech the former President raised the ancient battle cry and fired the opening gun of the 1954 campaign.

The Truman "line" was simple and sharp. He avoided personal attacks on Mr. Eisenhower—attacks which boomeranged in last year's campaign. He gave support to the bipartisan foreign policy—which is natural but also commendable. This left only domestic issues for a battleground—issues on which Mr. Truman tried to oversimplify the choice as if it were only between his "Fair Deal" and what he called a new "Stacked Deal."

He charged that legislation awarding offshore oil lands inside the three-mile limit to the states was a "steal" which made "Teapot Dome look like petty larceny." This seems to overlook the fact that private industry had been developing the oil and was expected to continue if the land remained under federal control.

He charged that higher interest rates were benefiting only the "moneylenders"—forgetting apparently, that everyone with an insurance policy or a savings bond falls in that category. Also that tighter credit tends to check inflation and help every consumer's dollar to buy more.

He particularly sought to align the farmer and the worker against the Republicans. He did not mention that the decline in farm prices started two years ago, and that the present administration is continuing virtually all the Truman aids to farmers and some new ones.

Mr. Truman was pounding the old line. How much of it will the Democrats accept when they meet in a few days in Chicago to shape future strategy? We suspect that many of them will be looking for somewhat newer ideas—and that Adlai Stevenson will offer several. Even the attack on defense cuts needs a fresher form.—Christian Science Monitor.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

BEDFORD, IND., DAILY TIMES-MAIL: "There is no substitute for individual effort. Neither is there a substitute for individual reward. That's why all the socialist schemes fall down. They are unhuman. They fail to recognize the basic urge of man to build and create, and to gain the recognition and reward of his own effort."

BELLINGHAM, WASH., HERALD: "Jobholders in the United States in July numbered 63,120,000, about 1,000,000 more than a year ago. Henry Wallace's goal of 60,000,000 jobs—which he seemed to think was the ultimate in American prosperity—was passed years ago, and still the millennium eludes us."

MARSHFIELD, MO., MAIL: "Many people have the idea that when anyone opposes the closed shop or the union shop (which is the closed shop in disguise), he is opposing unionism. Such a conclusion is not true at all. There is as wide a gulf between unionism and compulsory unionism, as there is between freedom and slavery."

GREEK DISASTER RELIEF

Mr. William Lefteris, co-owner of the Lefteris Food Market, has agreed to act as chairman for Greek Disaster Relief. Some money has been donated at Red Cross Headquarters for this worthy cause. Containers will be placed at: Lefteris Food Market, Coney Island, Harry's lunch, American Restaurant, The Centre, The Towne House, Green Gable Bowling Alley, Benny's Kitchen, Bixler and Guild Drug Store, and Dr. Schmitt—The Rexall. If you are unable to bring or send your donation to the Red Cross office at 192 E. Main Street, you may leave it at one of the above business houses.

Meteor experts were baffled by a black, porous substance until one of them showed it to his wife—who correctly identified it as burned toast.

One government contract covering veterans' training at an institution in Buffalo had to be signed or initiated no less than 1500 times, according to the New York Times.

America is great because she is good, and if America ever ceases to be good, America will cease to be great.—President Eisenhower.

The best way to keep down the bills of the Federal government is to get the bigness out of the government—back to the home-state capitals and home-town halls, where it can be held down to size and kept down in costs. —"How To Save Time, Trouble, and Taxes."

CURRENT EVENTS FIFTY YEARS AGO

Young men who will become of age before the approaching election will have the right to register this fall. It is the duty of a good citizen to vote.

The candidates and platforms are now before the voters of Maryland as both the Democratic and Republican State conventions were held this week in Baltimore, and the nominations made for state officers.

President Roosevelt (Teddy) was greeted on Sept. 17, 1903 in Hagerstown by a crowd of 500 persons when the special train on which he travelled to Antietam Battlefield arrived in this city on the Cumberland Valley railroad.

Percy H. Shriver, of Trevanion, has erected a large silo, and was engaged in filling it this week.

A hot-water heating plant is to be installed in the Reformed Church, to be ready for use this winter.

Miss Alice Craster entered upon her duties this week as teacher of Elocution at New Windsor College.

Invitations have been issued to the first dance of the season this Friday evening in the Opera House, Taneytown. The Committee is Walter A. Bower, Geo. C. Fissel and Norman R. Reindollar.

J. Wm. Hull has bought the stock of Mrs. M. H. Reindollar, and will continue the Millinery and Notion business on a large scale. He will also remove his stock of jewelry and watches to the Reindollar room.

A Republican Campaign Club was organized in Taneytown, on Thursday night with the following officers: President, Charles E. H. Shriver; Vice President, Harry L. Feaser; Secretary, John J. Reid; Treasurer, David M. Mehring, Sergeant-at-Arms, Artie B. Angell.

The lost purse advertised in the Record last Friday evening, was returned to the owner, Matthew H. Galt, by the finder Joshua D. Clingan. This not only demonstrates that advertising pays, but that there are honest people who return even hard cash.

Harney—The public school opened on Monday with the same teachers as last year, Miss Mabel Lambert, principal and Miss Beulah Englar, assistant.

Union Bridge—Public school opened on Monday with four teachers and 132 pupils. The Principal, E. Lee Erb, and teachers Miss Lula Clarkson, Miss Annie Eppley and Miss Edna Wilson.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF CARROLL COUNTY COUNCIL OF CHURCHES MET

The Executive Committee of the Carroll County Council of Churches met Tuesday evening at the Emmanuel Reformed church, Westminster. The Rev. Ray Abbott, president, presided over the meeting at which time plans were laid for the annual Fall meeting of the Council of Churches. It will be held at the Brethren Service Center, New Windsor, on Tuesday evening, October 6. Registration will be at 6:15 followed by a supper served at 6:45. The speaker for the occasion will be announced later. Election of officers will be held and reports on the various commissions will be given. The Rev. Harold Bomberger is chairman of the nominating committee. The following were named to meet and complete plans for the Fall meeting: Rev. Bomberger, Rev. Abbott, Mrs. Richard Bollinger, Mrs. John McCormick and Mrs. Howard Reichard.

A new doctor was the only one available when Bud's wife was taken ill. Called to Bud's home, he went upstairs to the sick room, but came down in a few minutes to inquire, "Have you got a corkscrew?" He took the instrument and went upstairs for the second time.

Several minutes later he was back, "Got a screwdriver?" he asked the anxious Bud. Instrument in hand, he went upstairs again.

Almost immediately, he was back. "A chisel and mallet, quickly," he demanded.

Bud could stand it no longer, "For heaven's sake, doctor," he begged, "what's the matter with my wife?"

"Don't know, yet," was the reply, "can't get my medicine bag open."

"I understand your husband has been ill. What's he doing for his condition?"

"Well, his doctor prescribed a shot of rye whiskey and two aspirins every four hours."

"Really, how is he?"

"Ten weeks behind on the aspirin and two years ahead on the rye."

"You're going hunting?"

"Yes."

"But where are your pants?"

"That's what I'm hunting for."

Two kinds of electricity...

Do you know the difference?

They seem very much alike. They do the same things. They are produced in the same ways. One is the electricity the federal government produces and distributes. The other, electricity you get from a business-managed electric company. There are big differences between them—differences that directly or indirectly affect you and your family. Here's what they boil down to...

Table comparing Company Electricity and Government Electricity. Company Electricity: Its rates are strictly regulated by people chosen to represent you. It is available to everyone in the company area without discrimination. It pays taxes (about 23c out of every dollar you pay for electric service). It plays a key role in America's free enterprise system. Government Electricity: Its rates are exempt from normal regulation. It goes first to certain favored groups. It pays little or no taxes. It is a step toward a government power monopoly—and socialism.

Tax-paying, business-managed electric companies can provide the electric power America needs. Isn't it extravagant for the federal government to spend your tax money to provide it?

The answer to that question is important to every taxpayer. That's why these facts are presented to you.

SHORT STORY
Comeback
By John Davis

THREE hours earlier the stadium lights had blinked out, the crowds had surged for their cars and driven off. Lefty and Anne had hung around the dressing rooms, visiting with managers and handlers and rubbers—all the gang Lefty hadn't seen since before the war. Now, autumn midnight had settled over the neighborhood and finding their car in the nearly deserted lot was easy.

3-Minute Fiction

Preoccupied with starting the car, Lefty didn't notice a vague stirring in the shadows across the lot. The starter snarled and the motor rattled into life, just as Anne's fingers clutched his shoulder.

She was pointing through the windshield, and he clicked the headlights on. Barely visible in the edge of the glare, a man was walking in their direction.

Something about the approaching form caught Lefty's attention and he let the car coast to a stop, staring through the darkness.

The man approached steadily,

"Okay," the voice was grating, "this is a stick up! Get out—and get out reaching!"

screened in the gloom. There was something jerky and irregular in his walk. He somehow seemed familiar, even in the poor light. Lefty twisted in his seat, ready to talk through the rolled down window.

A pencil of light from the dash stabbed under a wide, turned-down hat brim, glowing on a meaty, battle-scarred face. Recognition swept over Lefty and the tight smile around his lips faded. It was Mike Watkins, the last man Lefty had fought before the war!

Without warning, Watkins whipped a heavy revolver from his pocket, rapped the barrel harshly on the door frame. "Okay," the voice was grating, "this is a stick up! Get out—and get out reaching!"

Lefty turned slowly from behind the wheel, his elbow hooking on the door handle. "Get that cannon out of my face, stumblebum," he said, "I knocked hell out of you six years ago and I can do it again."

The fog in the pale eyes deepened, swirled and then cleared for a second. "Lefty! Lefty Martin!" It was hard to tell whether surprise or hate was dominant in the tone. The gun barrel flashed out, cracking Lefty over the eye and sent a wave of pain spreading across his skull. Lefty jammed an elbow down on the handle and pumped his shoulder against the door panel with everything he had. The door flung wide, caught Mike in the stomach and sent him reeling back, gasping for breath.

A downward snap of Lefty's arm caught Mike off guard, knocked the gun free. It clattered on the pavement and he kicked it spinning across the lot. From the corner of his eye he saw Anne start from the car.

"Get back of the wheel!" he cried. "Keep it in gear! If I lose this round, blow out of here and get help!"

Still gasping for wind, the surprised Watkins regained his balance and charged like a bulldozer. Lefty stepped to the right and sent in a high, looping punch. It landed, and he felt the shock clear to his toes. The bigger man stopped in his tracks and arched backward, a silly, blank look on his face. Lefty backed his knuckles off eight inches, dug in and let go with everything he had. Anne's clenched fists were pounding the steering wheel, as she had pounded the ringside in the days before the war. "Kill him, baby!" She was screaming in her excitement. "Kill the bum!"

His left started a long uppercut, jolted home, sending a flash of pain along Lefty's arm. He saw him melt and sag forward, slowly. He wouldn't be up for at least an hour; Lefty had seen men fall forward before.

Anne was out of the car as swiftly as she had slipped through the ropes in the old days. Always, she had been the first to reach him in the ring, barely after the referee finished counting.

The couple smiled proudly at each other in the gloom of the deserted lot, forgetting their years of loneliness and trouble. Remembering an old habit, Anne reached around her husband's muscular body and raised his right sleeve—the empty one—toward the sky.

Come in and see... value check... and test drive a Ford today!

No doubt about it...
Ford's the one fine car
in the low-price field!

*Feature after feature... part after part...
Ford is as fine as the finest...
yet it's priced with the lowest.*

No car ever built has won such enthusiastic and growing preference as the '53 Ford... and no wonder. For no other car with such a wealth of fine-car features costs so little as Ford.

Yes, Ford, with all its fine-car quality, is offered at a price that's easy to pay.

You can have a Ford with a V-8 engine—the same type of engine that powers America's most expensive cars—for hundreds less than many Six-cylinder cars. And a Ford powered with the high-compression Mileage Maker Six costs even less.

Then, too, Ford's body is built like the best, with steel body panels of the same quality and thickness as in the most expensive cars.

Ford also proves that a car doesn't need to carry gas-thirsty extra weight to "gentle" you over the bumpiest roads! For Ford's smooth, level ride blots out the bumps... cuts front end road shock alone up to 80%!

Also, you can have your Ford V-8 with Master-Guide, the last word in power steering. Master-Guide cuts up to 75% of turning effort yet it leaves you with the natural "feel" of steering on the straightaway.

There are many other fine-car features, too! Ford Full-Circle Visibility... foam-rubber cushioned seats front and rear on all models... finishes that are baked on over a complete rust-proofing treatment... to mention a few.

It takes all these features to make a fine car truly fine... worth more when you buy it... and in resale, too! A survey of used car lots proves that people are willing to pay a larger percentage of the original cost for year-old Fords than for any other used cars. No doubt about it, Ford's your best buy!

Worth more when you buy it... worth more when you sell it!

If you're interested in A-1 used cars, be sure to see our selections!

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

The Christian Line

Lesson for Sept. 20, 1953

EVERYBODY knows the phrase, "party line," meaning a kind of ideas, arguments, plans and policies which are approved by a central authority. We hear the phrase most often in Communist connections; but there are also such things as the Republican line, or the Democratic line, and many others. Is there such a thing as the Christian line? In particular, is there a Christian line of behavior, a Christian way of life which is distinct, an ideal for all Christians everywhere? Or is Christian living a more or less do-as-you-please affair?

Christianity Is Respectable

The letter to Titus in the New Testament comes right to this point. Titus was a fairly young missionary in a very tough area, the island of Crete. Titus may have wished he were in an easier field. "Liars, evil beasts, lazy gluttons"—that was the reputation of Cretans. Even when such Dr. Foreman people become Christians there is a lot they have to learn. They do not become complete saints overnight. (Did you?) Paul, writing to his young former assistant Titus, advises him, as an advisor of new Christians, what line to take in teaching and preaching to these unpromising Cretan converts. Through Titus the Apostle speaks to parents, ministers, Sunday school teachers, of today. The first thing the modern reader notices is that the Christian line sounds "respectable," like advice from Polonius or Lord Chesterfield. Old men should be temperate, orthodox; old women ought not to gossip; young women should love their husbands and children; young men must exercise self-control; employees (slaves, in Titus' parish) must be honest and give satisfaction to their employers. Citizens must be law-abiding. Everybody should have a decent job and save his money for special needs. Really, the reader may ask, what is so special about all this? Is the Christian line just to be a "decent citizen?" Well, of course that is a part of it. Christianity is certainly not DISrespectability!

Propriety Without Pride

So the Christian line does not go off in some other direction than respectability; but it is by no means the same thing. There are two vital points in which the Christian's way of life is distinctly unique. One is the Christian's attitude to his own respectable conduct. He must never do good in order to show off, neither to man nor to God. He must never be good or do good simply in order to get good in return. He must never think of his own good deeds as a kind of coin by which he pays his way into heaven. Years before "Titus" was written, when Jesus was telling his disciples that they must live above the level of the Pharisees, this demand must have surprised and puzzled his listeners. How could anybody on earth be more respectable than a Pharisee? Well, nobody could. What Jesus was pleading for was (in part) just the difference in attitude toward one's own goodness. The Pharisee was proud of being good; he thought God owed him something. He wanted merit-badges; Jesus called for humility. The Christian's goodness is a response to God, not a demand on God. It is an expression of what we owe to God.

Mercy and Renewal

This brings us to the other point at which the Christian line is on a different plane from ordinary respectability. It is the effect of a new birth inside. There is great difference between lifting ourselves by our own efforts and being lifted by the Holy Spirit, between goodness home-made and heaven-made. Being respectable enough for a good name in society is some distance short of growing into the likeness of Christ. There is an immense gap between respectability like a topcoat, and the goodness which is in the blood, beating through a changed heart. There is a clear difference between the respectability of a man who looks no further ahead than his own obituary, and the deep-reaching spiritual renewal of the man who lives as an "heir in hope of eternal life."

OUR FIRST FLIVVER

The following write-up appeared in The Cleveland Plain Dealer and brings back both pleasant and unpleasant memories to the older group. Read it:

"A fascinating volume describing Ford's first 50 years in business has come to our attention, and fills us with nostalgia for the days that were. The streamlined beauties manufactured by all automobile companies today almost think for themselves. Driving has been reduced to its utmost simplicity. Comfort is assured in all weather. Power has been increased in almost terrifying fashion. Contours are beautiful and colors are gay. One may start a 3,000-mile journey with every expectation that he will arrive on schedule.

Perhaps it is a mark of age, but we find ourselves looking back on our first flivver with mixed emotions. It wasn't beautiful, as modern cars are beautiful, it didn't think for itself, it required cranking, it rattled and clanked and banged, but it got there.

If memory serves correctly, it was a 1925 coupe. It possessed a certain dignity, possibly because it stood so high by the air. One climbed and kept on climbing to reach the seat, from which one surveyed the world as from a throne. The gasoline tank was under the seat—there was only one seat—and one, perforce, was required to stretch his legs while gassing up.

Three pedals were on the floor. The one to the left was the clutch, the one in the center, set slightly back from its fellows, was the reverse, the one to the right was the brake. There was also a hand brake which served several purposes. When it was pulled back, it disengaged the clutch, a position in which it had to be when the car was being cranked. It also served as an emergency brake. But if the brakes weren't working it made no particular difference. One could always come to a dandy stop by using the reverse pedal.

On the wheel were the spark and gas levers. One decreased the spark when starting, and one pulled up on the crank—always up, lest a wrist be fractured. A priming gadget was handy, and quite useful at times. When the motor was running, one ascended to the seat of the vehicle, placed his left foot on the clutch, released the brake, altered the position of his spark and gas levers, and pushed down. With a rumble and a clatter, the car moved. It was in first speed. When he let the clutch pedal clear up he was in high. That was all there was to it—two speeds forward, one in reverse.

One governed his speed by moving the gas lever. It was a dandy car, all right, but it did have a few peculiarities. One was that it was necessary to back up steep hills, since this was the only position in which gas would flow unless you had a tank full. Another was that it was very prone to tip completely over if one took a corner too fast; this was occasionally a blessing, for the car to which we refer did just that, rubbed off its top against a mountainside, and was available for purchase by a poor reporter for $15 cash.

Cranking the vehicle, as the Ford book points out, was quite an experience. Lee Strout White summed it up when he wrote in his "Farewell to Model T": "If the emergency brake hadn't been pulled all the way back, the car advanced on you and you would hold it back by leaning your weight against it. I can still feel my old Ford nuzzling me at the curb, as though looking for an apple in my pocket."

It was tough in cold weather—there was no heater. It was tough in snow and heavy rains—the windshield wiper was operated by hand. But millions of Americans swore by their flivvers—in the 19 years of Model T manufacture Ford turned out more than 15,000,000 cars. One can still see them on the road, chugging merrily along, relics of a happier age. And when we swoop by them in our modern automobiles, complete with everything from electric eye to power steering, we take off our hats—and bow."

THE HOSPITALITY THAT COMES IN CANS

There was a time when the words "gracious living" suggested candlelight on mahogany tables and long hours for Mother in the kitchen getting ready for "company."

Today, with a simple twist of the wrist, Mother can serve company or unexpected guests table-ready canned foods of a freshness and variety that were beyond the dreams of anyone only 50 years ago . . . from lobster bisque and whole pheasant to quick, easy-to-fix "one-dish" meals.

And today's canned foods are less costly, keep indefinitely on your pantry shelves or in your refrigerator without losing vitamins and other nutritional values.

Also, today the party is liable to center in the kitchen or on the patio instead of the dining room. And, whether he is the party chef or simply whipping up the family meal, you'll often find Dad enjoying a can of cold beer and broiling the canned franks over charcoal in the fireplace.

The 35,000 people of Canco are proud of their contribution to modern living in America. Around the clock and around the calendar, we strive to give you increased leisure, informality and freedom.

The "housekeeping revolution" that began when Canco developed the modern food container is just one of the big changes in our everyday lives that have made the United States such a satisfying place in which to live and work and play.

AMERICAN CAN COMPANY CANCO

CONTAINERS . . . to help people live better

This demonstration was worth many hundreds of dollars to me!

I thought only a higher-priced car would suit me. But then I found out how much more Chevrolet offered for how much less!

You're "sitting pretty" behind the wheel

Take this Bel Air model. First thing you'll notice is the quality of the interior. Rich-looking appointments. Roomy seats with foam rubber cushions. Turn the key to start the engine and you're ready to go.

You can see all around

You look out and down through a wide, curved, one-piece windshield. The panoramic rear window and big side windows provide a clear view in all directions.

You get more power on less gas

That's because Chevrolet's two great valve-in-head engines are high-compression engines. In Powerglide* models, you get the most powerful engine in Chevrolet's field—the new 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame." Gearshift models offer the advanced 108-h.p. "Thrifty-King" engine.

rolet. One reason is that, model for model, Chevrolet will weigh up to 200 pounds more than the other low-priced cars.

You get greater getaway with the new Powerglide*

A lot finer performance on a lot less gas. That's what you get with the new Powerglide automatic transmission. There's no more advanced automatic transmission at any price.

And it's the lowest-priced line

A demonstration will show you that Chevrolet offers just about everything you could want. Yet it's the lowest-priced line in the low-price field.

*Combination of Powerglide automatic transmission and 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame" engine optional on "Two-Ten" and Bel Air models at extra cost.
