PARENT STUDY GROUP

Considered Parent's Responsibilities at Meeting

The Parent Study Group of Taneytown Elementary School met on Wednesday afternoon, April 7, in the school library with the President, Mrs. Charles Hopkins, presiding. A splendid number of guests representing Parent Study groups from Union Bridge and Charles Carroll schools were in attendance.

After greetings from Miss Evelyn Maus, Dr. Ira S. Gordon, speaker of the afternoon, was introduced by Miss Dorothy Shires of the State Department of Education.

Dr. Gordon of the Child Study Center of Baltimore spoke informally on the general theme of parent's responsibilities to their children. "Children," he said, "are born to want to be adults." This desire is expressed through their spirit of exploration, adventure and questioning. They can be guided and helped toward that maturity but they cannot be pushed into it.

Parents must be consistent in setting the standards and limitations of their children's activity. Children come to appreciate the security and sense of relaxed living in a home that has fair standards of "yes" and "no."

Practice in making intelligent decisions produces fine adults. This process may begin early moving from small decisions of lesser importance to graver decisions of greater importance.

Life to a child is full of mystery. They want to know how their bodies grow and are often troubled about their physical and social development. These questions must be answered by the parents with the same simplicity and naturalness with which the children ask them.

Above all else parents must inspire their children to want to become adults by the power of their own example.

The group discussion which followed Dr. Gordon's presentation indicated parental interest in the subject.

Light refreshments were served by the social committee, Mrs. Kenneth Nusbauer, Chairman.

CARROLL GARDEN CLUB VISIT

Tuesday, April 13th, dawned fair and beautiful and the members of the Carroll Garden Club, and others, were glad because on that day they knew a great treat was in store for them. It was the day for the looked forward to visit to the "Reese Home" to see their flowers. This home, owned by the David Reese home, is now, once by Mrs. Paul Morelock and Miss Margaret and Miss Agnes Reese.

Mr. and Mrs. Morelock and the Misses Reese are lovers of flowers and give a great deal of time to their care and cultivation with the result that there surely is no more lovely spot in Carroll Co.

The visitors, who were from Union Bridge, Uniontown, New Windsor and Taneytown were thrilled at the beauty that met their eyes. There were masses of daffodils and narcissus of many varieties, ranging in color from all white to deep yellow with orange centers, and varying in size from small to those much larger than usually seen. There were beds of dwarf iris and purple hyacinths. The original hyacinth bulbs had been brought from Philadelphia by their father at the time of the Civil war. Japonica bushes, Japanese cherry trees, magnolia trees, of different shades—all in bloom—added to the beauty of the scene making it seem to the visitors a regular fairy land.

But the warm hospitality of the Reeses was not confined to the out of doors. Their home was open to all and visitors roamed about enjoying the fine antique furniture and the beautiful old glass and china. Among the family treasures is a rare subscription Bible. This was of much interest.

Following the enjoyment of garden and house the guests were given another special treat. Not so long ago the Baltimore Sun wrote of this interesting home and showed a picture of the ladies drinking sassafras tea from heirloom cups. Those present were served sassafras tea, with or without sugar and cream, and delicious home-made cookies.

Finally, following the tradition that no guest go away without gift of flowers, as each person departed she was presented with flowers from the garden, thus making a perfect ending to a delightful visit.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET

Monday night, 56 fathers and sons and guests of Grace E. & R. Churchmen's Brotherhood met in the dining room of the Parish House for their annual Father and Son banquet. Mr. Neal Powell, who served as toastmaster, called the gathering to order at the appointed hour, after which Rev. Morgan Andreas, minister of the church, delivered the invocation.

A tasty meal prepared and served by the Women's Guild with Mrs. Ellsworth Lambert and Mrs. Lloyd Lambert, co-chairman, was heartily partaken of and enjoyed by all those present.

Mr. George Motter, president of the Churchmen's Brotherhood, led the group in the singing of several fellowship songs after which he officially welcomed the members and guests assembled. Mr. Motter then introduced Mr. Stanley King and Mr. Ellsworth Feeser, presidents of the Brotherhoods of the local Lutheran and United Brethren churches, respectively. They arose and expressed themselves in behalf of the groups they represented.

Mr. Motter also announced that the host Brotherhood will be guests of the Lutheran Brotherhood at their regular meeting on May 19.

The men then introduced their sons and guests after which it was announced that the oldest father present was Mr. Louis Reifsnider and the youngest father present was Mr. Delmont Koons, Jr., Mr. David Reifsnider, Mr. Leonard Reifsnider and Mr. David Reifsnider, II, comprised a group of 3 generations of grandfather, father and son.

Allen Baumgardner favored the group with the splendid rendition of a piano solo after which the "kitchen and dining room crew" of the Women's Guild was accorded a rising vote of thanks for their most acceptable service and hospitality.

The minister of the church was then called upon to introduce the speaker of the evening, who has been a personal friend of his for the past 20 years.

Rev. Paul Helm, minister of St. Paul's E. & R. Church, Westminster, dwelt upon the sacred relationship which should exist between a father and son. He traced the relationship which there was between Saul and Jonathan and also between David and Absalom. He emphasized that the most outstanding opportunity of parenthood was to rear children in the right way, even though this is at times a very trying experience, it is nevertheless worthwhile.

Mr. Helm brought out a very real truth as he declared that we as parents usually expect more from our children than what we do for ourselves. If we will have the children stand upon their father's shoulders, the fathers should stand behind their sons to encourage and support them. He sought to impress his listeners with the fact that the Church of Jesus Christ is the one institution which stands behind both fathers and sons because the church has so much to give to both father and son.

The fathers were challenged not to make their sons orphans but that they should live with them so that they might be able to know their sons and the sons their fathers. The rich treasure which every father has to give to his son is a knowledge of and a faith in Jesus Christ to make him the son he ought to become.

The speaker was given a ringing applause for his remarks after which the men united in praying the Lord's Prayer, which concluded the evening which was most worthwhile in every aspect.

HISTORY OF TANEYTOWN

As It Appears in the 1894 Files of the Record

CATHOLIC CHURCH

I have gotten most of the facts for this account of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, from a book entitled "Conewago—a collection of catholic local history", by Rev. John T. Reily, of Martinsburg, W. Va., 1885, and lent me by Rev. Theodore D. Mead, now priest of the parish. The Jesuit community at Conewago, York county, Pa., is probably the place from which the early Catholic settlers in the neighborhood of Taneytown were supplied with religious services. I believe it is not known at exactly what time it was formed, but it must have been some time before the Revolution. They obtained a grant of about 500 acres of land from the Carrolls, the Digges and Patrick McSherry.

Before the survey of Mason and Dixons line the Conewago settlement was supposed to be in the province of Maryland. The proprietaries of Maryland and Pennsylvania both

Each future day and in some way—help

Remember, folks when the little eighty year old Deaconess came to visit "Loves Retreat" and as soon as she stepped off the bus from Baltimore in Taneytown she liked the little place immediately? She resides in Elkton not so very far from the Parsonage.

She is now eighty-five years of age and the last visit to her home, I noticed that she still was the same as to her health only that her sight was failing. Her name is Amanda Ford and she was retired a number of years ago living on a small pension.

She kept on with the various duties until the age of seventy—calling on the sick, teaching a Sunday School class, giving my Minister much information about the community which aided him greatly. She also taught a kindergarten of thirty children from all denominations in one of the rooms of the Methodist Church where my husband was the Pastor.

Her eyes began to fail but even when the deep snows came there was that little mite, a tiny lady just 5 ft. tall, clad in the usual black garment and bonnet, rushing across the street to light the oil burner at 7 a. m., each day so that the room would be warm for her pupils. She speaks five languages fluently. I do not know any minister in any denomination who could top her in education, culture and background. One could imagine this little lady to be narrow in her views; yet never have I met anyone so broadminded. She has always been most alert and nicknamed herself "a Ford" or "The Ford Runabout". She can still converse with anyone on any subject in or out of the church. She is truly one of the best friends I have ever had. She was always a joy to have in our parsonage and I looked regularly for her.

The day came when she went through her personal possessions in the closet of that church room where she held kindergarten. I sat there and watched her sort the toys she was going to distribute among the children in the neighborhood. Then she asked me to drive her to the home she was going to live in till that winter was over. I sat at the wheel in front of the church steps with a lump in my throat. This was the hardest thing for me to do—to take this dear little mite away from her life's work. At last she came out and I went to aid her down the church steps to the car. She was holding a colorful book in her arms. When she was seated in the car beside me, she suddenly said, "Oh, please just wait a minute longer, I have a book of Robinson Crusoe I want to lay on the basement window-sill for some little boy who might come along." Before leaving the church, the members presented her with a radio which she enjoys a great deal. In the spring of each year since the day she left her life's work in that community, the church has held a "Miss Ford Day." Miss Ford resides with two other sisters and when I visited her last as I held her close to my heart, I prayed that God would bestow upon me some of her fine qualities.

God bless all these "Ladies in Black"—and the Deaconesses.

So long, folks until next week. D. V. Have a grand week end. Go to church. Any denomination will make you happier and always remember that you must not feel that your denomination is superior to any other.

"So simple is the earth we tread, so quick with love and life her frame; Ten thousand years have dawned and fled, and still her magic is the same".

THURSDAY, APRIL 15, 1954

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., TIMES: "Whole sections of the United States are getting electric power for less than it costs to make it—with the government paying the difference."

NEW EGYPT, N. J. PRESS: "The other day I read what J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, states is his creed of life. It is so good, honest, and so definitely what all Americans should follow that we give it here: 'Believe in God and the inherent dignity of man. Trust in our democratic principles, and be confident that truth will overcome the menace of dictatorship which today seeks to destroy our freedoms. Strive always to do your best. Make your life purposeful. If each of us in a spirit of self-dedication, will do his share, we can create a better world. That must be the spirit of 1954—the spirit of love, humility and justice.'"

HARDIN, MONTANA, TRIBUNE-HERALD: "We're not trying to prove there isn't unemployment at the present time, or that it is not serious problem, but it does seem that some groups—for obvious reasons—are over-emphasizing the situation. These same groups often are the first to advocate more government spending as a means of curbing unemployment and assuring prosperity. The federal government cannot forever operate with a deficit, increase spending, and then cut taxes. It isn't in the cards."

SENATE CLOAKROOM

by J. Glenn Beall

United States Senator from Maryland

President Eisenhower last week took the American people into his confidence and the reaction has demonstrated the enormous respect which he enjoys.

Experts in assessing a speaker's television personality give the President top rating, and those of us who lack the technical knowledge were equally impressed with the President's easy informality and the manner in which he talked with the people about this nation's "strength", its problems, its apprehensions and its future.

President Eisenhower covered the entire range of problems from domestic difficulties, such as our economy and internal security, to Indo-China, to the potential for peace in the H-Bomb.

The American people heard their President discuss with them the problems of the world today—he didn't belittle these problems, but rather pointed out their complexity and seeming insolubility. "Sometimes you feel, almost," he said, "that we can be excused for getting a little bit hysterical, because these dangers come from so many angles, and they are of such different kinds, and no matter what we do they still seem to exist."

But hysteria, he said was on the way to overcome our present day difficulties. "Now, the greater any of these apprehensions", President Eisenhower explained, "the greater is the need that we look at them clearly, face to face, without fear, like honest straightforward Americans, so we do not develop the jitters or any other kind of panic, that we do not fall prey to hysterical thinking."

Believing that even the President of the United States may at times enjoy receiving an approving letter, I wrote to him as follows:

"Dear Mr. President: Your address last Monday evening was an example of eloquent, logical reasoning with the American people. I am confident that it did much to calm unwarranted fears and apprehensions, and to replace these irrational emotions with the resolute understanding so necessary if we are to succeed in maintaining a prosperous United States in a world at peace.

Unfortunately, there are some who have sought to exploit the risks and dangers of the world we live in, and, therefore, aroused and confused the people of our great nation. Your talk—taking the entire nation into your confidence—has made it clear to all that there are risks and dangers, necessary and unavoidable ones, but our problems cannot be overcome by hysteria or panic.

As I reviewed your remarks I took great pleasure in the knowledge that I am a member of your team, and especially in reflecting on my voting record during the 83rd Congress to know that I have actively supported your program.

It would be mere repetition for me to comment on your message in any detail—suffice to say I was pleased with, and endorse every word of it. However, I was particularly happy with your reference to faith in our traditions and beliefs. As you so magnificently phrased it, "there must be something in the heart as well as in the head."

Mr. President, this nation is fortunate and justly proud to have as the head of our State a man with your capabilities, and above all with your rare perception and insight into the spirit of America.

Despite the problems and difficulties facing this nation and its leaders, I am convinced that we shall not despair but meet the challenges of today and tomorrow with the faith of our forefathers and the wisdom which comes from unfeared reasoning.

I join you in your confidence and determination, and pledge my continued support to your program for a stronger America in a free prosperous world.

Respectfully yours,

J. Glenn Beall.

Critical problems face the President and his Administration. He has the ability to meet them if he has the support of the people—in order to preserve our freedom and our democratic way of life that is a small contribution for each of us to make.

STATE INCOME TAX DUE

APRIL 15th

With the dead-line for filing Income Tax returns to the State of Maryland fast approaching, J. Millard Tawes, Comptroller of the Treasury, has issued a final reminder in order that all persons may be aware of the requirements for filing and their responsibilities under the law.

The Maryland return which is due on or before April 15, 1954 covers income received by the taxpayer during the calendar year 1953.

For the benefit of those not familiar with the requirements, Mr. Tawes stated that every resident of Maryland who during 1953 had a gross income of more than $1,000 if single, or more than $2,000 if married, is required to file. The tax is due on the date fixed for filing the return.

Mr. Tawes pointed out that married persons must use the combined income of both husband and wife to determine their liability for filing a State return.

The Maryland form which is similar to last year's form provides two methods of computation. The optional method is used by more than half of Maryland's taxpayers is designed for simplification in filing. The optional method can be used by taxpayers having a gross income of not more than $10,000 from salaries and wages and not more than $500 from dividends, interest and annuities. Under this method the taxpayer finds his tax from the tables. In developing the tables allowance has been made for personal exemption and deductions approximating 10% of the gross income to a maximum amount of $500.

The regular method goes into greater detail and involves schedules which the taxpayer must complete. However, under the regular method the taxpayer may use a standard deduction of 10% of his gross income to a maximum of $500 for each taxpayer.

Maryland has, Mr. Tawes stated, what is known as a classified Income Tax law under which income is segregated into categories of ordinary income and investment income. Ordinary income which includes salaries and wages and income from trades or professions, is taxed at the rate of 2%. Investment income which includes dividends, interest, and annuities, is taxed at the rate of 5%.

The taxpayer, however, may include in his return investment income up to $500 on which the tax is computed at the 2% rate.

This feature, Mr. Tawes stated, is beneficial to all taxpayers and it eliminates from the 5% tax bracket small amounts of investment income. Non-residents too, have a liability to Maryland, Mr. Tawes emphasized, for they must file with this State if they received salary or wages for services performed within Maryland or from any trade or business carried on here.

Mr. Tawes stated that the Income Tax Division makes every effort to assist the taxpayers in the filing of returns. Representatives have visited during the present filing period more than fifty cities and towns of Maryland and have prepared returns and given information to thousands of taxpayers. The Income Tax Division maintains permanent offices in Baltimore, Dundalk, Cumberland, Easton and Salisbury, and in Washington, D. C., where the taxpayers may call at any time for assistance. In addition to these branches temporary offices have been set up in the Court House at Hagerstown and Frederick where agents will be present to give assistance to taxpayers until the April 15 deadline.

The State Income Tax brought in nearly 41 million dollars last year of which more than 9 million went back to the counties and incorporated cities and town of Maryland. The imposition is, therefore, of great importance to the subdivisions in meeting governmental costs at the local level. As a final word, Comptroller Tawes called attention to the fact that no deduction from total tax is permitted in returns for the year 1953. As a result of surplus revenues the State was able to provide the taxpayer a 15% deduction in returns for the years 1951 and 1952. Such a surplus does not now exist and the State this year must exact the full tax as developed under the rates of taxation as shown in the return.

BAILEY GOSS—ips ON SPORTS

by BAILEY GOSS

EN ROUTE HOME—Now they count! Yes, fans, this is it . . . our big league Baltimore Orioles are making their American League debut this week, following a long, but highly productive training season.

Following the pair of games in Detroit, our Birds will come home to the roaring welcome of a baseball hungry and happy populace. Most encouraging news as the training season came to a close was the improved pitching of DON LARSEN, DUANE PILLETTE and the continued fine chucking of JOE COLEMAN.

Skipper JIMMY DYKES is keeping his fingers crossed! Particularly pleased was Manager James over the resurgence of the giant Larsen. Developing slowly last season after being discharged from service, the rookie right-hander suddenly blossomed during the last two months of the 1953 campaign. Much was expected of him this year.

When he reported late and was ineffective, the usually cheerful Dykes reportedly told his promising hurler the facts of baseball life. Don has been a mighty effective pitcher since then. And he's been getting more than his share of base hits when he's in the game or being used as a pinch hitter.

Actually Don is farther along in experience and know-how than his highly-touted pitching partner, Bob Turley. Bob may be a mite faster, but he isn't as mature a hurler as Larsen at this point.

You've seen the kids scramble for a ball hit foul into the stands. But do you have any idea how many baseballs are used each year by every major league club. The figures vary depending upon the construction of the parks, but the average is close to 900 dozen per team, or around 10,000 baseballs per club. And that's just one item in the tremendously expensive operation of big league ball today.

While baseball naturally is dominating the Baltimore area sports scene these days, quite a bit of interest is developing in the big Eastern Open Invitational Golf Tournament to be held again this year at the Mount Pleasant Golf Course, from May 20 to 23. Invitations have been sent to all of the leading golfers in the country.

Dr. Cary Middlecoff and colorful Marty Furgol, both among the top money winners this last year, were the first two to send word to the local sponsoring group that they would be on hand to bid for the new $20,000 prize money being offered this year.

NOTES OFF A SOILED CUFF (that Mom's going to have laundered as soon as I get home): After a recent exhibition with the Cubs, I told you over the air that Dykes had ordered a batting drill after our side had lost an 8-2 verdict. Well, I was wrong. I learned later that Jim had nothing to do with the extra hitting. It was requested by a group of players including BILL HUNTER, EDDIE WAITKUS and LES MOSS. Eager, eh? . . . There were so many spring training injuries this spring that THE SPORTING NEWS, baseball's bible, established a "Casualty" department . . . See you at Memorial Stadium this week-end. S'long.

CHANNEL CATFISH (Ictalurus punctatus.)

RANGE: Introduced many decades ago in Maryland. Found principally in Potomac and Susquehanna Rivers, and tributaries. A native of the Mississippi Valley from Ontario to Gulf of Mexico.

DESCRIPTION: Usually gray, but in some waters light olive; forked tail, spots; no scales, average size 20 inches; eight barbels or whiskers on upper and under sides of mouth are very long and sensitive; very small dorsal fin.

BREEDING: They spawn in spring at which time there is a definite upstream migration.

HABITS: Feed during day, but most feeding is done at night; strike hook much like the black bass.

MANAGEMENT: Omnivorous; eats worms, frogs, crayfish, insects—a scavenger eating dead fish, mammal and aquatic life. Slow moving, prefers clean, clear, swift water like the waters below Conowingo Dam on Susquehanna River. Much of their feeding is done at night when they leave deeper parts of lakes and streams and move into shallows and along shore lines.

VALUE: Important as food; flesh is white, flaky, of a delicate texture and fine flavor; preferred to trout by many anglers.

Organisms Make Productive Soil

Unpaid Laborers Work for the Farmer

What is the difference between a gram of productive soil and a gram of non-productive soil? Scientists estimate that the difference may be more than 1-billion little organisms. A sheet of paper from the ordinary school tablet weighs about three grams.

University of Wisconsin scientists estimate that there are more than 1,012,000,000 living organisms in one gram of productive soil. Predominant are bacteria, next are molds, then come the fungi, protozoa, algae, yeasts and finally, worms and insects. A further estimate is that there are between Scientists say that the difference between productive and non-productive soil may be as much as 1 billion minute organisms per gram of soil. The wise farmer makes these organisms work for him.

3,800 and 6,100 pounds of living organisms in one acre of productive soil to the 1-foot depth. Fungi, which is one of the more important elements, makes up nearly a ton of this total weight.

All these minute organisms are unpaid laborers for the farmer, ever busy converting crop residues, the stems, leaves and roots of other raw organic materials into forms which can be used by growing crops. These "little friends" must be well fed and must receive sufficient air if they are to continue to do their necessary conversion job; if they die off in large numbers, crops will suffer and yields decline. It's the wise farmer who encourages their activity as much as possible.

Turning under large quantities of well inoculated legumes, grasses, crop and livestock residue will keep these organisms happy and thriving, while over irrigation or poor irrigation may drown or suffocate them.

New Testing Equipment For Soybean Industry

New testing equipment expected to be put into general use in 1954 should prove helpful to the soybean industry, the farmer and the consumers. The new equipment is designed to make it possible to measure both the quality and the quantity of oil in a load of soybeans much quicker than in the past.

Farmers sell their soybeans to processors who extract the oil for use in margarine, shortening, other edibles and for use in industry. Most of the remainder of the soybean becomes oil meal for livestock and poultry feed and flour for bakery and other edible products.

Farm Equipment

Retail sales of new tractors and farm equipment in 1953 were approximately two billion dollars, which compares with a high of $2.8 billion in 1951 and $2.6 billion in 1952. Manufacturers believe investment in replacement equipment will hold to present levels through 1954, barring any secondary reaction caused by a general business reaction. Through November, 1953, a yearly total of 38,018 wheel and crawler type tractors had been turned out for farm use, with production for the year slightly below figures for 1952.

FEESERSBURG

The Elmer Wolfe P.-T. A. held its regular monthly meeting Monday evening in the school auditorium. The president, Carroll Wilhide, presided. A short business meeting preceded the program, at which the candidates for the various P.-T. A. offices were read and as there were no nominations from the floor, the names submitted by the nominating committee were approved. The program for the evening was in the form of a spring musical under the direction of Mrs. Hall, music teacher at Elmer Wolfe. The senior and junior chorus sang a variety of numbers and all but one was presented with interest and understanding. But Faust proved too much for the chorus to handle and too heavy for the audience to understand. Indeed this opera has often been too much for experts and so Mrs. Hall proved her bravery in trying it out on amateur musicians. Gordon Cheeks sang a solo and so did Eleanor Baker, which the audience enjoyed very much. The sextette; the quartette, and an accordion solo by Tommy Winebrenner gave special interest to the program. The accompanists were: Mrs. Hall, Miss Hazel Hess of Taneytown, Miss Gretchen Reese and Miss Pat Rupp. During the intermission, Mr. Jenness, county school superintendent, spoke on a timely subject—the future of education in Carroll County. He pointed out that the enrollment each year in the county schools increases about 500 pupils. This in turn means more teachers and more class rooms. The problem of securing teachers is acute. Here in our county alone 75 new teachers are needed and where are they coming from? The State of Maryland needs 2000 for next year's class rooms and only 400 will be graduated this spring from colleges. The cost of building new class rooms increases each year as every thing else increases and the problem arises once more on the means of paying for all this. Mr. Jenness asked the question—Is it worth educating our youth? He, like all of us, agrees one hundred percent that it is. That the future freedom of our people depends entirely upon the education of our boys and girls, no matter what the cost. Note: It is difficult to report exactly what a speaker says at a public meeting, even though one tries to set the full meaning on paper. Speakers often complain that they have been misquoted and often the complaint is justified. We hope that we have given a factual review of Mr. Jenness' talk for we feel that he said very important and the facts he stated should be digested by all parents and taxpayers. The time is not too far distant when a new way will have to be found to pay for our school system, because taxes on real estate can no longer do the work alone. (These are my own words). The fairest way to meet the educational costs of the future is a sales tax equally distributed among all people, for the responsibility rests not with a few citizens but with all. (I am glad I am not running for public office.)

For rent: On Chinese Elm Lane two new homes. White-frame ranch type cottages with free access to school buses and worms. Swimming pool close with congenial neighbors of robins, sparrows, blue birds and sap suckers. These homes are open for inspection now by any member of the Wren family. Rent reasonable—can be had for a song. Mrs. Cleon Wolfe is able to be out again and to enjoy visitors. Those who called to see her Palm Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Lee Fink and daughters Lena, Cissy and Bobbie; Mr. and Mrs. Luther Utermahlen and Madalene, brother John; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dayhoff and Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Toms of Legore.

According to a report out by the American Cancer Society lung cancer has increased 500 per cent in the last 20 years. The Society refuses to go on record in saying what the cause is for this tremendous increase. Smoking is suspected but insufficient evidence so far cannot back up this suspicion. The tests are continuing so that in the future the question can be answered whether smoking is or is not a contributing factor in lung cancer. The eighth graders are giving a play April 27 in the school auditorium for the benefit of the Babe Ruth League and the Girls' Soft Ball team. The play is original, written by a member of the 8th grade and is a comedy. It should be highly entertaining. The mission is reasonable and the proceeds will be used toward youth recreation. Make a date to be there on the 27th, at 8 p. m. Are you still drinking coffee? That is the question people are asking each other. At our house we drink one cup at breakfast and that is all. When the price climbs to above the present one of $1.20 even the lonely breakfast cup will vanish from our table. We must admit this will be a blow with us, for we never get awake in the morning until we drink a cup of coffee strong enough to remove the paint from a table. No doubt we will have to walk around part of the day half awake, or try to raise our own coffee beans. I wonder if Mr. Benson will allow us to do that. By the time this is published the Orioles will be back in Baltimore and the fans will have had a good look at their ball team. The head of the house says he is still a Dodger fan and the teen-ager says there will be no traitors in our house so war has already been declared. It looks like an interesting season at Merry Knoll. From Washington: "If Patrick Henry had known what taxation with representation was like he would have kept his mouth shut." Sunday is Easter. A day symbolic of faith and hope. The heart of living is faith in tomorrow and the hope that each new generation will bring the human race one step closer to the dream of a friendly and cooperative world.—Ruth Roelke.

FAIRVIEW

It seems sad to think the Easter lilies will be over before Easter. They were so pretty, wherever you go you could see the beautiful mass of yellow. Easter is such a wonderful time to remember not by wearing new clothes or new hats, but to remember the Resurrection of our Lord and Saviour who is the only one who can save us from sin.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Baker and sons, Daniel and Raymond and daughter, Anna; Mr. and Mrs. Scott Carr, spent Sunday with Mrs. Baker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Houck, near Keysville. They also called on Mr. and Mrs. Levi Frock and daughter in the evening.

We are so sorry to learn so many of the children are ill with measles. We wish them a speedy recovery. The Rev. and Mrs. Paul E. Freeman and daughter, Rebecca, Cindy Lescalette, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Adkins and daughter, Mary Catherine; Mr. and Mrs. Levi Frock and daughter, Mary, called on Mr. and Mrs. Homer Legroft, near Kingsdale. The Legrofts are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, Charles Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Smith and family entertained in their home on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Merton Smith and family, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Selby. Mrs. Charles and John Carbaugh and Donald Massimore, arrived home over the week-end to spend a week and Easter with their home folks. We are always glad to see the boys get home.

The Seamless Coat What did you do with the seamless coat That protected him from the cold? You who won it when lots were cast A soldier cruel and bold!

It was said long ago in the Prophecy, that lots would be cast one day for the seamless coat that the Savior wore. And you helped fulfill it that day!

Perhaps it was woven by Mary's hands for the dear Christ, your Savior and mine; then what did you think as she stood by his cross.

And gazed on his form divine? It should become a dear treasure to you on the path way of life; The Crucified Savior who wore it, He alone could free you from strife.

I hope its possession led you to think Of the awful thing you helped do; I hope it led you at last to repent, And believe that Christ died for you.

This was composed by Jane Cover Crispin. A happy Easter to the Editor, his staff and all the readers.

On Easter morning. They whisper, "Look at her old clothes! Oh, really, aren't they funny?" They haven't stopped to figure out where she has spent her money.

A woman, who supported five, by scrubbing, was quite ill, and begging for a doctor's care but none could pay the bill. Her half-starved babies cried, so helpless, weak and cold; a crippled man sought just a roof to shield him—frail and old.

Indeed, her costume's out of style; for when these needs arose she gave her money to the poor. That's why she wears old clothes!—Lyla Myers.

claimed the ground near the border line; the Maryland proprietor claimed the country some distance north of Hanover and the border was the scene of frequent riot and bloodshed. Chas. Mason and Jeremiah Dixon were sent from England and arrived at Philadelphia Nov. 15th, 1763; they began their work in December. The line they surveyed begins at the N. E. corner of Maryland and follows the parallel of 39 degrees 43' 26.3" for 300 miles. They finished their work and were discharged Dec. 26th 1767; this line was accepted by all parties and threw Taneytown into Maryland and Conewago into Pennsylvania, but the Catholics in Taneytown were for the most part still in charge of the Conewago community.

Prominent among the early Catholic settlers here were the Taney's, Coskery, Brookes, Hughes, Spalding, Boyles, Elders, Adelspergers, Duffields, Gougers, Toppers, Riffles and others. As far back as 1790, there are records of mass having been celebrated in private houses by Fathers Frambaugh, Pellentz, Brosius and Cerfoumont, S. J. from Conewago. The Prince Gallitzin, although a Sulpician, was for the time resident with the Jesuit Community at Conewago and attended this mission, as well as Hagerstown and Cumberland in Maryland and Chambersburg, Path Valley, and Huntingdon, in Pennsylvania, from 1796 to 1799. He was the first pastor of this church.

Demetrius Augustine Gallitzin, the son of Prince Demetri Alexeyevitch Gallitzin, was born at the Hauge, Dec. 22nd, 1770. His father was a Prince of the Russian Empire, and he, as the oldest son, inherited the estate and titles, but forfeited them by becoming an American citizen and a missionary priest. He came to Baltimore in 1795, and in March, 1796, was ordained by Bishop Carroll. He exercised his priestly functions in Baltimore and at Conewago, until 1799, when he was sent at his own request to Meekins' settlement, or Clearfield, Cambria Co., Pa. He purchased in the immediate neighborhood, a large tract of land, which was then a wilderness but is now filled with thrifty settlements, one of which is named after him. In 1802 he became a naturalized citizen of the United States under the name of Smith, but in 1809 an act of the Pennsylvania legislature authorized him to resume his original name of Gallitzin; in 1803 he gave the name of Loretto to a hamlet which had sprung up around his church. It is now a Catholic settlement and the seat of a convent. He died and was buried there May 6th, 1840; his remains now lie in a vault in front of the church over which is a monument to his memory.

From 1799 to 1804 Taneytown was again attended by priests from Conewago. About 1795, Mr. Brookes built the first Catholic church here at his own expense. It was built of bricks made in the neighborhood and stood until 1876. There is a tradition that Prince Gallitzin built a frame church here sometime in the latter part of the last century. I do not know Mr. Reily's authority for his statement but it is likely correct, at least he states it positively.

Rev. Nicholas Zocchi, a secular priest, born in Rome, Italy, in 1773, was the next pastor of the church. He came to this country and was appointed priest here in 1804. In addition to his labors here he had visited Westminster, Martinsburg, W. Va., and other places equally distant. It certainly involved a great deal of labor to go 100 miles or more to attend a sick call. There are now 12 priests employed in the region to which he ministered, and when it is remembered that he had to go on horseback or in some rough conveyance, it will give an idea of how arduous his duties were. In 1805 he built a neat brick church in Westminster, called Christ's church. The first Catholic church in Westminster was a frame building erected in 1785, John Logston having given the Catholics there four acres of ground after the Revolutionary War. The church Father Zocchi built stood until 1866 when it was replaced by the present church, built by Rev. John Gloyd.

The Rev. Mr. Zocchi died at Taneytown, Dec. 17th, 1845, after a pastorate of 41 years. He was buried here Dec. 20th; the funeral was said to have been one of the largest ever seen here, Catholics and Protestants coming in their sleighs from all parts of the surrounding county. The Rev. Dr. McCaffrey, then president of Mount St. Mary's college, preached the sermon. His body lies in the cemetery connected with the church. A plain marble monument 5 feet high stands at the head of his grave and has this inscription: "Sacred to the memory of Rev. Nicholas Zocchi, late pastor of Taneytown Catholic church, who departed this life Dec. 17th, 1845 in the 72nd year of his age. Christian say 'May God have mercy on his soul.'"

The church records kept by Father Zocchi from 1804-1845 are still at the parochial residence, and are quite a curiosity. They are kept in a crabbled Italian hand-writing, and as the ink is somewhat faded, are in some cases hard to read, but are well worth looking over for any one who is fond of old records. For instance one is: "Jan 7th, 1806, Roger Taney married Ann Key, witness Michael Taney" (the name of the second witness is illegible). This is the record of the marriage of Chief Justice Taney to the sister of the author of the "Star Spangled Banner", although both had middle names they are omitted in the record. Another record is: "Feb. 24, 1805, Jos. Taney married Henrietta Hughes, witnesses, Michael Hughes and Elizabeth Taney". Mr. Joseph Taney was Chief Justice Taney's uncle, and I believe he was grandfather of Mr. Edward Taney, of Emmitsburg. The Taney's at that time were quite prominent here, indeed Mr. Frederick Taney, who laid out the town was a member of the same family. It is said by some old people in the neighborhood that Chief Justice Taney gave the priest $100 as a fee. There are many other names on the record of old Taneytown families, some of which are still represented by living descendants, some have moved away and others have become extinct.

The record of the marriages of slaves is unique, and shows that the Rev. Father was not at that time very adept in the use of the English. For instance, "Roger Brook's nic (Nick) married Taney's Mary, witnesses Pamela and Nathan", and Oct. 1808 "O'Hara's Richard married Adams' Sarah", only the first name is given and they are designated as belonging to some particular white person. Later on, in 1851, (I think) there is a record of slaves being married signed by Father Flaunt, with this addition "Both having lines from their masters."

(Note—An error occurred in last week's installment. Daniel C. S. Mehring, should have been Daniel E. L.—and son of Daniel, not David.)

The graveyard belonging to the Catholic church has some quite old tombstones. Some of the oldest are of slate and the inscriptions are illegible. The Rev. Father Mead tells me that in cleaning up the graveyard some time ago, they discovered one of Miss Jameson dated Dec. 11th, 1792; another one is remarkable, not for the antiquity of the grave, but for the age of the person buried there. It is Mrs. Margaret Adams, died Jan. 2nd, 1826, 104 years old. The inscription on her tombstone says she departed this life loaded with years and virtue.

The organ in the church is a very old one; it was made in England in 1801 and has been in use in the church ever since. It is not a very large one, but has been very good and some of the stops are still sweet and clear.

Reily (the author of Conewago & C.) following I suppose, Scharff's history of Western Maryland says that from 1845, when Mr. Zocchi died until 1851, there was no regular pastor in Taneytown, but the church was served by the secular priests Flaunt, McCaffery, D. D., Elder of St. Mary's College and Rev. Messrs. Stelzig, Tapput, and Krutel, Redemptorists of Baltimore, and Father Dietz, S. J. Rev. John T. Delaney, former pastor of this church says "This is a mistake, the Rev. John D. Parsons, was pastor for 3 months in 1847. He was transferred to Baltimore on account of his health." In Dec. 1851 Rev. Thomas O'Neill was appointed pastor. During his pastorate the present parsonage was built. He also attended Westminster and New Windsor and built St. Thomas' church in the latter place in 1861.

Leaving here in 1862, Mr. O'Neill became pastor of St. Paul's church, Ellicott City, where he remained for several years faithfully discharging his duty. He then retired to St. Mary's College, where he died Nov. 21st, 1874, aged about 72 years. A tall marble monument of beautiful design marks his grave; it was placed there by his friends and executor, Rev. John Gloyd.

In November 1862, Father Gloyd succeeded to the pastorate, and in 1869, removed to Westminster which became the headquarters of the parish. This was done by order of Arch Bishop Spalding, Westminster, being the county seat. In May 1871 Rev. W. Hazeland, was appointed assistant to Father Gloyd; they attended Taneytown, New Windsor, Deer Park Chapel, and St. Mary's at Union Mills, in addition to Westminster. Mr. Hazeland left for the West in 1873 and was succeeded by Rev. Caspar Schmitt, of Baltimore.

In November 1873, the Rev. John T. Delaney, was appointed assistant to Father Gloyd, and in 1876, St. Bartholomew's, Manchester, was added to the missions. This church was built by the Redemptorists, and served by them until placed under the care of the priestess at Westminster. In Jan. 1879, the mission was divided—Mr. Gloyd retaining charge of Westminster and St. Martholomew's Manchester, while Mr. Delaney took charge of St. Joseph's Taneytown and St. Thomas, New Windsor. Father Delaney remained in charge of the church until he was succeeded by the present pastor Rev. Theodore D. Mead.

The present church at Taneytown was built in 1876 by Father Gloyd and Delaney; at that time the old church built by Mr. Brookes was torn down it stood a few feet back from the street and the entrance was from the graveyard. The sum necessary for its completion was raised before the work was begun. Rev. A. A. Lambing in his "History of the Catholic church in West Pennsylvania" says Father Gallitzin left Taneytown, because he was opposed to the pew rent system. This is inaccurate, for pews were first used in this church in 1876 when the present St. Joseph's was built. Previous to that time money for the support of the church was collected by the trustees.

Rev. Henry B. Coskery V. G. D. D., was born here in the house next the parochial residence, July 19th, 1808. He was ordained in Baltimore in 1834. He was assigned to Belair, Md., in 1834 and to Ellicott City in 1837; while there he built St. Paul's church. In 1839, he was called to the Cathedral in Baltimore by Bishop Eccleston and labored there for 32 years. He died Feb. 27th, 1872, and was buried in Bonnie Brae cemetery. A sister of his, Matilda Coskery, became a Sister of Charity and died some years ago at St. Joseph's, Emmitsburg. She was a sister for more than 50 years and was born here March 25th, 1805. Sister Helen Josephine (Swope), a daughter of the late Dr. John Swope, was born here April 11th, 1826, she is now a St. Joseph's Sister Elizabeth (Case) was born near Taneytown, Oct. 13th, 1842 and died at New Orleans. Josephine Baumgartner born near Taneytown in 1830, became a Sister of Mercy in 1849. Matilda Sullivan also a member of this church became a Sister of Mercy. The Rev. Pius Hemler now priest at New Oxford, Pa., was also a member of this church. During Mr. Delaney's pastorate a parochial school house was built, and within the last year many of the members have built sheds for their horses on a lot adjoining the church.

The pastors of St. Joseph's church have been: 1795-1799, Rev. Demetrius A. Gallitzin; 1799-1801, supplies; 1801-1845, Rev. Nicholas Zocchi; 1845-1847, supplies; 1847, Rev. John D. Parsons; 1847 to December 1851, supplies; December 1851-1862, Rev. Thomas O'Neill; 1862-1879, Rev. John Gloyd; 1879-1890, Rev. John T. Delaney.

The membership of St. Joseph's Church is now 225. The pastor is Rev. Theodore D. Mead. The trustees are Tobias Eckenrode, Edward Smith, William Fink, Sylvester Fink, Louis Hemler and Albert Clabaugh.

BEGINNINGS OF R.F.D. IN CARROLL COUNTY: THE POST OFFICE ON WHEELS

Compiled by Howard Lawton Knight for the Historical Society of Carroll County.

The most spectacular feature of the experiments in Rural Free Delivery, in Carroll County was the traveling post Office Wagon or "Post Office on Wheels". Though Wagon A did not begin to operate for more than two years after the first rural carriers were sent out and all the wagons were discarded after about five years of trial, they were the central figures in the public mind and attracted early and wide spread attention.

Three months before the wheels began to turn, a note appeared in the Youth's Companion announcing that the first real "traveling post-office" was expected to start on its rounds in Maryland with the aim of bringing the farmer and the outside world together. A few weeks later the American Agriculturalist printed an account with the "facts and fetching pictures", and suggested that every effort be put forward to get the traveling post-office as "an even better thing than the free delivery of service".

Actually of course the wagons were merely one phase of R.F.D., the only essential difference between the service here and elsewhere being their use as a central of distribution of mail to the rural carriers and functioning as post-offices traveling daily. The rural carriers, however, supplied their own equipment, whereas the wagons were built and operated for the Government itself.

Wagon A has already been described in this series of articles. Conceived by Edwin W. Shriver, a resident of Westminster, it was built by Herr Brothers, local wagon and carriage builders, specifically for rural postal service. Its first trip was made Easter Monday, April 3, 1899. It proved so popular that in August Mr. Shriver was diverted from his duties as postal clerk on the wagon to plan for three additional wagons and about thirty more rural carriers for the county-wide system which was instituted on December 20, 1899.

The wagons delivered mail to patrons along their routes, but in addition were equipped to handle all postal business, carrying a postal clerk as well as the driver. They also collected mail from boxes for public use located at about half mile intervals.

As originally planned, all four wagons operated from Westminster postoffice leaving at 6:30 each week-day morning returning in time to dispatch their collections and sorted mail East and West. Their average length of route was 27 miles compared with about 20 miles for carrier routes.

Wagon A went by way of Taylorsville and Gist; Wagon B via Gamber and Pinksburg; Wagon C via Manchester, Bachman's Valley and Union Mills; and Wagon D via Silver Run, Mayberry, Tyrone and Frizzellburg. All made connections with carriers, and several of these received their mail in this way while others were supplied directly from Westminster or outlying post-offices. Subsequently many changes were made in the assignments.

It seems likely that the wagons, as distinguished from the carriers were projected with two main objectives in mind. One of these was the mechanical advantage of extending the range of service. The other may have been psychological in intent. The full scale coverage of the county was accompanied by the closing of about sixty fourth-class post-offices, nearly all with this rating not located on railroads. These offices were deeply rooted and had strong commercial and sentimental associations. It may have been thought that the traveling post-office would be more a acceptable substitute than the limited service carriers could offer. There is some evidence that it did help to soften the inevitable repercussions. Numerous correspondence of both the American Sentinel and the Democratic Advocate went on record as liking the wagon service very much.

Some fears were expressed as to the dependability of the service, and this was soon tested by severe storms. One of the worst of these was on Feb. 16, 1900. Wagon A put on an extra pair of horses and arranged for relays. In some places it had to leave the road for open fields, but it was not delayed over four hours, whereas the previous year "several days lapsed before the star route carrier could make it."

A storm in January, 1901 proved serious. Although teams were doubled and relays of men and horses set up, Wagon A tied up at Winfield. Two of the others made only parts of the route, carriers finishing for them on horseback or in sleighs. However, this was a real storm. Trains between Taneytown and Frederick were almost buried, one drifted cut near Bruceville being filled five feet deep for nearly a quarter of a mile.

Reliability was more easily established than convenience. Unlike the familiar office in the country store, the wagons were available for only the moment of passing. A correspondent of the Advocate noted that "to those who live along the road it is an advantage to have their mail brought to their door, but not to those who live from a quarter to half mile from the road and wish to mail a registered letter, or get a postal order, and have to sit on the fence with the thermometer near zero and wait for the wagon, which at that time of year is likely to be one hour behind time owing to the roads." Similarly a letter in the Sentinel said, "they may argue with logic that even with the fortification of umbrella, storm collar, and gum boots a situation for executing money orders, etc., as the stationary and hospitable post-office that did the waiting and watershedding instead of the sovereign subject citizen.

In the beginning the Post-Office Department expressed itself as well satisfied with the wagons. A report for 1899 says, "From the first the service proved remarkably successful. Its cost to the Government to operate is $1,375 per annum, including pay of postal clerk and driver and care of horse and wagon. It performs the service heretofore rendered by eight fourth-class post-offices and four star route carriers, the cost of which to the United States was about $1,800 per annum. The progress of the experiment has been watched with great eagerness by agricultural communities all over the United States, and within a few months of its initiation 133 applications for the establishment of similar postal wagon service were received from 21 different States."

However as the years went on the Department became less enthusiastic. In the spring of 1904 inspectors spent a week in the county, following which they recommended that the wagons be replaced by carriers. This action was taken at a time when economies were also made in the Westminster city delivery service, including the abolition of substitute carriers and the curtailment of collections and deliveries. Collectively these changes brought strong protests from the Advocate, which stated that if "The recommendations of the P. O. inspector recently here to abolish the wagon service are carried out, the whole R.F.D. system in Carroll county may as well be abolished, and the old system of private carriers, paid by the people, and the old star route be re-established.

Nevertheless the recommendations were adopted and the four wagons made their last trip on June 30, 1904. Rather surprisingly, no further adverse comment appeared in either the Advocate or the Sentinel.

Our Living Lord

Lesson for April 18, 1954

TO SPEAK about Jesus as if he were simply a historical character is a mistake, said William Adams Brown. When other men die, their obituaries can be written. There is nothing to add to the tale of their life. Even in the case of the great and famous men about whom new books appear every so often, each biographer merely edits newly discovered material at the most. If he adds a chapter to other biographies, it is simply the record of a chapter hitherto unknown—but it adds nothing new to the facts, only to men's knowledge of the facts. With Jesus, as Dr. Brown points out, the case is altogether different. You could not write a "definitive," a lastword, biography about him even today, because he still lives and is active in the world. Jesus is not someone who was; that is not the whole truth. Jesus is. The message of Easter is not only that Jesus did not die forever; it is more that he lives forever, that he lives now.

Dr. Foreman

In the Church

The Church is called in the New Testament the "body of Christ." In a very real way, that is true. One contemporary theologian has put this in a startling way. He says that Christ and the church are the complete Christ, just as a man and his body together are the complete man. This may be putting it too strongly. But no thoughtful Christian will deny that without the church, without some church, Christ would be bodiless in this earth. Without the church he would be a "houseless wraith of deity," but with the church he has eyes, ears, hands and feet. This is not to say that any church is perfect; in the best of churches Christ walks lame and speaks in a murmur often hard to understand. Just as any musician would be hampered by a broken arm, so Christ is hampered by broken and self-seeking churches. Yet taking it all in all, Christ does live and speak and work through his church today. He is there in the sacraments, there in the message of truth and grace, there in the life and service of every church that ministers to men in his name.

In Men and Women

But the church does not exist apart from the men and women who are its members. (We mean real members, not just people whose names appear on the membership lists.) Christ lives again in every individual who loves him, is devoted to him and (to use St. Paul's memorable words) is "growing up in all things into Him." When St. Paul said, "I live, yet not I, but Christ liveth in me," he was saying only what countless Christians have said because they had discovered it was true. Christians less famous than Paul have known him in their lives. A man who had had a great deal of trouble with a certain temptation was asked one day by his pastor how he was getting along. "You know," the man replied, "I used to have a lot of bother from the devil and I didn't always get the best of him. But now when Satan rings, I just say, 'Lord Jesus, won't you answer the door?'"

At the Right Hand of God

The Apostles' Creed, which Christians in all lands know by heart, declares that Christ "sitteth at the right hand of God." By this the church has never meant that Jesus is spending eternity sitting down on a throne somewhere. What we mean is that Christ is not only alive on this small planet but that he lives and works with God. Just as in ancient times when a king held royal court, the seat on his right was reserved for his most trusted and most active personal representative, so Christ lives on in the presence of Eternal Power today, in ways that the heavenly glory hides from our sight. We dare not guess at all what he plans and does; but the Church is certain of one thing: he is praying for his people. "He ever liveth to make intercession for us." If it is a comfort to know of the prayers of any friend, how much more to know that the living Lord is praying for us! So on Easter Sunday the church sings—how can she help it? The flowers and the music are not to keep alive the memory of one who once upon a time rose again, but are in honor of one who lives now, in and above the church and the world.

Let's Think

by G. H. ENFIELD

Before the time of Christ the stately dogwood tree proudly reached toward heaven. Its trunk stood as straight as a sentinel. Because of this the dogwood tree was chosen as the timber from which the cross of Christ was fashioned.

So great was the tree's shame that it grew twisted in agony and gnarled with disgrace. Its true grain was stained by Christ's blood.

On Easter morning the tree caught the radiance of new life. Its lowly branches burst forth in an array of soft white splendor. Four delicate petals in each bloom formed a cross—each edged with brown nail prints. A crown of thorns formed the center of each bloom.

And down through the years the dogwood tree has reminded man of Christ and the first Easter.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

Everybody seems to be talking or writing about juveniles—pro or con—whether they have any hand knowledge or not. Each generation has its own environment, social and economic conditions, and problems to meet. Therefore, each succeeding generation is and will be somewhat different from the preceding generation. For one to say that youth is no different from what it was a generation or two ago is either downright ignorance or else an unwillingness to face facts. Unless people are willing to face facts they may find themselves in the same embarrassing position in reference to juvenile delinquency as we find ourselves today in reference to communism when a few years ago many sneered and would not believe what they were told. You have no more right to say that young people today aren't hand because young people yesterday were good than to expect that a husband is going to be saved merely because his wife is a good woman. Face facts, read, study, observe, work with the young, go where youth congregates. By no means think all of them are going to the dogs. There are many who are intelligent, ambitious, courageous, clean, pure, wholesome. Let those who are not qualified to speak for or against Teeners keep silent. Let those who know speak out—even though those who do not know may not want to listen.

There is an adage where there is smoke there must be some fire. While the fire is burning, thousands and thousands are slumbering and failing to see the smoke. There is plenty of smoke whether any has gotten in your eyes or not. No evil is stamped out, no wrong is corrected, no trend is checked by shutting one's eyes to the facts, or by refraining from doing anything for fear of gaining the ill-will of somebody, or merely for the sake of shunning responsibility.

On Sunday, March 28, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegram began a series of articles on the subject: What's wrong with Teeners? What follows here is the introduction to the first article.

(The average American teenager is an intelligent law-abiding citizen, but many parents, teachers and law enforcement officials are worried by the activities of the small and vicious hoodlum fringe to be found in almost any school.)

(This group seems to be trying to set a pattern of violence.)

(If uncontrolled by special measures, will these young hellions cause a greater increase in juvenile delinquency? The increase shows in crime records. The Pittsburgh district has had some horrible examples of its seriousness.)

(Not necessarily to place the blame for this community problem, but rather to show its dangers and analyze it, the Sun-Telegram herewith presents the first of a series of articles, the details of which have had more than one old police reporter wonder "what has been happening to our kids?")

(Additional articles will appear daily in the Sun-Telegram.)

LOWER EXCISE TAX AFFECTS TELEPHONE BILL

The effect of Federal excise tax reductions on Taneytown telephone users was explained today by C. L. Stem, local C. and P. manager.

"The lower excise tax rates go into effect for both local and long distance service on April 1," Stem said, "which means that Taneytown subscribers will see the first reductions on their April 19 bills."

The Federal excise tax rate was formerly 15% on local service and long distance calls up to 25c. On calls 25c and over a 25% tax applied. The flat 10% rate now applies on monthly service charges as well as local and long distance calls.

It was explained that the change does not apply to the operating taxes paid by the company from its revenues. These taxes amounted to $25.97 per Maryland customer in 1953.

According to Stem the reductions "will mean, for example, an immediate saving of about $20.00 a year for a businessman in Taneytown who has individual line service and averages $10.00 per month for out of town calls." Residence users will benefit proportionately.

As a result, he said, general business activity in the community will tend to increase as telephone usage increases, especially on long distance calls.
