WILL MAKE A TOUR

Box Supper Will Be Held at Taneytown Memorial Park

The fourth annual summer tour of the Historical Society of Carroll County, July 28, 1954, has been plan-ned as part of the Bicentennial celebration of Taneytown. After traversing historic spots in the district it will end in the Memorial Recreation Park in time to allow for the visiting of antique exhibits before attending the pageant "Here on the Monocacy" to be given at 8:15 in the evening.

The tour will start from Bruceville at 2:30 p. m. If possible, an arrival of one hour in advance is advised. This will afford ample time to place the car in an advantageous position and will also give opportunity to visit the wery interesting old village with its attractive homes. Members of the tour committee will be on hand to answer questions. The village bears the name of Normand Bruce who came from Scotland in 1762 and took up grants of land in Frederick (now Carroll) county, totalling 14,089½ acres. He was sheriff of Frederick county, an officer in the Revolution, and one of the first Justices of the Peace who formed the county court. Myrtle Hill, His home, still stands but is dilapidated with age. Nearby, in a better state of preservation, stands the home of Bruce's daughter, Elizabeth Key who married John Scott. The tour will include this large field stone house built about 1812 at the cost of $10,000.

From there the cars will proceed to the Forest and Stream Club, founded in 1874, the oldest sporting club in the United States. Here Mrs. Ethel Close Buckey will give a talk on Mumma's Ford, the projection of the John Diggs Copper Mine Road, the earliest crossing of the Monocacy. After leaving the Club, the caravan will pass two of the historic Biggs properties and by-pass the third. and by-pass the third.

Other points of interest will be the Brawner House, built in 1812 by Jacob Sheets who operated a flour mill there; Starners Mill; and Piney Creek Presbyterian church. Mrs. Charles Brawner and Mr. Norman Hess will tell the stories connected with these spots.

On arrival at the Recreation Park On arrival at the Recreation Park in Taneytown there will be a box supper. If there are those who do not wish to pack their own lunches, they may buy them in the park. At this time Miss Sandra Welker will give her prize-winning talk on Crapster Inn and its successor, better known to this generation as Sauble's known to this generation as Sauble's

The tour has been arranged by Dr. Arthur G. Tracey, Miss Amelia Annan, and Mrs. Edgar G. Barnes.

Timothy 1:5 was read by Mrs. Feeser. She also offered prayer. The topic "The Christian Family" was introduced by Mrs. Devilbiss. Those taking ed by Mrs. Devilbiss. Those taking part in the discussion were the leaders also Mrs. Harry Clabaugh, Mrs. Cluts, Mrs. R Baumgardner, Mrs. G. Kiser, Mrs. Virgie Ohler and Mrs. C. Fleming. GETTING THINGS DONE

Have you found it hard to budge the wheels of progress in your town? Perhaps you're trying to turn them with the brakes set-the brakes of fellow-citizens disinterst. It's that way in many communities, according to an article in the magazine, "National Business". Too frequently, a small, high-powered group of do'ers in a community attempt to get the rest of the people to "rubber stamp" their ideas of progress-the proposed school building, a new traffic plan, a sewage disposal plant. Because the other folks, who have to share the bills, haven't been sold on the project, it often falls flat. Even if it does succeed, part of the community may not be very happy about it. An eager civic spirit that could have been developed is lost.

Take a different tack, the article recommends. Instead of trying to pull the town along, outline what might be done, encourage thinking and planning, but let the community itself figure out just where it wants to go. "Let the town lead."

A study of 2,000 communities has shown that this is the best way to get things done .- The Caroline (Ridgely, Md.) Sun.

A BIG ORDER

It has recently been pointed out by National Association of Manufacturers that Maryland industry must invest about $5 billion in the next 21 years in order to provide needed jobs for a labor force which will increase by nearly half a million.

While these figures are based on what is known as "projection" they may be considered fairly accurate. Industry has for years studied trends to determine how business will be months and years ahead. On the basis of consequent findings plans are laid to obtain raw materials, new machinery, etc., and discuss the possibility of increased plant facilities.

It is equally important that people understand that their future depends on the summaries derived from these studies which are interpreted by economists.

Every community, small and large, must have an economic source. Families must have an income and their money is spent with local merchants who in turn obtain merchandise from suppliers and manufacturers.

In the final analysis it is the success of local business and industry, multiplied by all the communities in the country, that determines the economic condition of the nation.

Equally as important as the purchase of manufactured goods is the investment in industry. Millions of people own stock today, paying market prices with money they have saved. Savings, insurance and bond payments of others increase individual ownership and responsibility even more.

NAM points out that it is most important that the federal government act to provide a healthy atmosphere for investors. This would include, NAM says, a balanced budget, reduced taxes and a cut in unnecessary government expenditures.

With $5 billion to raise in 21 years, careful planning and complete understanding are most necessary-NAM.

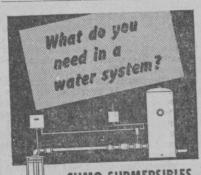

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, MINN. DAILY JOURNAL: "There's no denying that the money from Washington comes in handy for the state agencies and subdivisions of government facing ever-increasing demands for service and improvements. The fact remains, however, that eventually all of the money for government functions comes from the taxpayers. There's no magical factor in government financing. No agency of government has access to funds other than those which are paid by or levied against the credit of the American public.

ST. FRANCISVILLE, LA., DEMO-CRAT: "Jail, Socialism Communism. The welfare state. They're all the same obligations, same rewards', same payments Keep on throwing bricksat the profit-and-loss system and you'll smash it; then you'll get your security'. But you won't like it."

BEDFORD, VA., BULLETIN: "Congress has enacted a law vastly increasing Federal aid in the construction of highways and President Eisenhower has signed the measure. There are always handling charges in Washington and never as much comes back as is sent in. We have no information on how this additional Federal aid is going to be financed, but in some way the states are going to have to dig in their pockets to foot the bill."

CURRENT EVENTS FIFTY YEARS AGO

The farmers have had a hard time of it during the past ten days, trying to make hay and get their wheat un-der cover. Daily showers are very discouraging at this season, especially when heavy and dashing, and usu-ally result in doing damage which cannot be repaired.

The 37th annual convention of the Maryland State Teachers Association, met in Ocean City, Wednesday evening and will continue until Friday. On Thursday evening Governor War-field talked to the teachers informally calling attention to recent laws passed by the legislature giving increased compensation, and emphasized the fact that the best service is required.

MARGARET ENGLAR AND EDWARD WEANT APPOINTED TO WELFARE BOARD

gage.

The Carroll County Welfare Board has been reorganized with two new members being appointed by County Commissioners to fill the expired terms of Edwin Carr, Manchester, and Charles Fisher, of Westminster. New members appointed on the recommendation of the State Board of Public dation of the State Board of Public Welfare are Mrs. Margaret Englar of New Windsor, and Edward Weant of Westminster. Emory Berwager will serve during the coming year as the County Commissioner member

Members of the Board serve for a term of six years. The Board is one of the means of assuring proper administration of the Welfare Program and has the major duties of selecting a Director, advising the assisting of public agency problems and evaluat-ing the work of the agency. The Board also sets up local policies which apply only to special problems in Carroll county. Each member of the Board considers how much money is spent and what it is being used for. Beginning in June of this year any meet. ing of the Board except executive session is open to the public. During the June meeting the Board reviewed the expenditures for May 1954. The total cost of the program for that month was $16,822. money was used to help 304 families and individuals and to pay salaries and expenses. At the end of May there were seven cases awaiting as sistance but because of a shortage of State funds no help could be given Since that time more money has been made available and all eligible persons have received help.

Present Corn King Consistent Winner Offers Six-Point Recipe for Success

The Corn King of North America, Floyd Hiner, gives a six-point recipe for growing championship

Hiner's 10-ear sample of Indiana Hybrid WF9x38-11 earned him the corn growing crown at the International Hay and Grain show of the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. He shared the crown in 1941 with Ed Doubet of Hannah City, Illinois, placed second in 1937.

With his son Bryon, Hiner farms 483 acres near Lewisville, in Rush County Indiana. Here's how he achieves full-filled, cylinder shaped ears with superior finish and luster: 1-good seed; 2-plenty of lime and fertilizer; 3-good tilth; 4—a soil well stocked with organic matter; 5-careful tillage; 6hard work.

The title "Corn King of North America" is only an additional honor for Floyd Hiner, whose cornraising Indiana family has been winning or sharing national honors for many years.

Hiner puts back into the soil plant nutrients removed by crops. He limes regularly and applies generous amounts of a balanced fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphate and potash. He follows a rotation that regularly provides a soil-building legume such as The prize-winning corn came from a 25-acre field that had been in alfalfa two years. Hiner limed and fertilized this field. Manure from 300 hogs pastured on the field helped condition the soil. Hiner didn't cut hay. He allowed the full legume growth to replenish the soil's organic matter.

New Switch Designed To Stop Accidents

The number of serious accidents of turned-over tractors on hilly terrain can be reduced by a gadget the size of an acorn.

The new switch has been developed to stop a tractor before it reaches an unsafe "tilting angle," automatically cuts motor power until the driver can cautiously bring the machine back to a safe position. The switch, connected to the magneto or distributor through a device called a Rol-Gard, has a small glass bulb about the size of an acorn. A drop of mercury rests in the bottom of the switch bulb when the switch is level, permitting action similar to the liquid in a carpenter's level. Two electrodes run along the bottom of the bulb.

When the switch is tilted past a "safety angle," the mercury is dislodged from its well. When the mercury makes contact with the electrodes, the tractor automatically is stopped. To restart the motor, while the tractor is still at a danger angle, the driver holds down a button which disengages the Rol-Gard, allowing the motor to be

1954 Resolution

Safety on the farm should be a major goal in 1954, since figures compiled by the National Safety Council show that farming has the third highest death rate among major industries in the nation. In 1952 motor vehicles killed 6,000 and injured 210,000 farm people. Of these, farm tractors caused 700 fatal and 25,000 non-fatal accidents.

Fiction

6 L OOK Doc," Mary We've "look at it this way. We've had a lot of fun together. Some things didn't exactly go right but we had a lot of good times Doc. Think of those." Doc Turner looked across the front room at his wife. A small kindly person; the sort of a girl a man wanted to protect. Doc thought of the time they'd first met. It had been on the beach of a small resort town. The day had been sunny - Minute and they had started talking and soon found that they got along well. After that they became sort of a habit with each other and they were seldom apart. He remembered all the good things they had done together and all the fine places they had visited. Sure, it was fun, in fact it was the best part of living for Doc: the very best. Yet, it had to come to an end:

Doc was a gambler; not the Saturday night variety, but a gambler who made his living with cards. Just cards.

It wasn't because he didn't love Mary enough. Their relationship had been one of those easy sort of contacts without strain or argument. They had just slipped into a way of companionship and

"Mary" Doc asked. "Don't you think it's going to be better if we go it alone?"

love that some people never reach for years. When Mary suggested marriage Doc's feelings about responsibility kept him from completely agreeing with her. They had been married in Reno, six months ago, and now the marriage was about to dissolve because of Doc's doubts.

He turned to look at his wife again. She was tiny and soft and had unbelievably brown eyes. He'd never find another girl as loyal and patient as Mary. Perhaps this is why he felt unworthy

"Mary," Doc asked. "Don't you think it's going to be better if we go it alone?" He shifted his eyes away from her face. "You could easily find some one else who could offer you much more than I can. I'm just not the kind of person you ought to have. You should have some one who is stable.' "But Doc," Mary pleaded, "you're what I want. I didn't ask for stability when I married you. I wanted you as you were and I have no objections to our way of living: can't you under-stand that Doc?"

"But it isn't easy any more Mary. I've lost the simple thrill of playing a game. It's too serious now and I know it's not your fault."

"If you feel that way Doc, why don't you take that job Gene Ross offered you managing his downtown club. It's steady and it would mean being in a business you like."

"It also would mean that I'd be obligated as far as my time is concerned. Maybe I couldn't stand that," Doc retorted.

"You do the same thing anyhow," Mary added, "your time is accounted for this way too. You spend a lot of time at the tables each day. Same thing. Try the job, Doc. It might work.

"It might Mary, it might," Doc admitted. "Gene is an easy-going person and I've always liked him." Doc looked back at Mary's face. "But I'm not positive." "OK Doc," Mary smiled, "you're a gambler. I'll give you a choice. I'll flip this coin and if it's tails we'll split up and go our separate ways. If it's heads you can try the manager's job at Gene's place and we'll work things out. OK?" "Sure Mary," Doc acquiesced, "go ahead, flip it."

Mary flipped the coin with her thumb; it tumbled over and over in the air; the light flashed on it a second and then it fell to the rug and bounced. Doc stooped to inspect it: heads. He kissed Mary softly and whispered, "You win

Mary, we'll make it work somehow. I'll go see Gene right now." After Doc had left, Mary caressed the silver coin in her hand then held it up and gazed at the head-side. She slowly turned it over and smiled at the identical head that appeared there.

SENATE CLOAKROOM by J. Glenn Beall United States Senator from Maryland

For the first time since the Republican 80th Congress all appropriation bills have been passed before the beginning of the fiscal year.

The Congress cut about $1.5 billion from the budget requested by the President. He had asked for $44.1 billion and the final tally showed that the Congress had appropriated about $42.6 billion;

There have been occasions when agencies were unable to meet their pay rolls due to failure by Democratic Congresses to act in time, and some employees of the Post Office remember very well when their pay checks were late in arriving because the Development late in arriving because the Depart ment had no money.

The 80th Congress was the first Repubican one since the New Deal and it made an outstanding record in good government housekeeping, despite the campaign claims of the opposition. You will also recall that it was the only time we had a balanced budget. The present 83rd Congress demonstrates again that the Republican Party looks upon the opposition of your Party looks upon the operation of your Government as a job that demands conscientious work and that sloppy handling of huge appropriation wills can set a bad example which leads to careless handling of funds by Executive agencies.

The Congress is working toward an adjournment date of July 31 and the Republican members realize that it is not good government to leave all important legislation will the hectic closing hours—as was the practice in closing hours—as was the practice in previous Congresses—when much bad legislation can pass because no one has had ample time to study it.

With a Republican majority the Congress has kept to a scheduled program which has permitted complete and full debate on all important measures. ures and I am confident that at adjournment we will have compiled an impressive record of legislative action which will be in the best interest of individual citizens and of their confidence. individual citizens and of their gov-

The 875 page tax revision bill acted on last week is merely another example of Republican orderliness. It is the first complete revision of our internal revenue laws since the 16th Amendment to the Constitution legalized the income tax.

Book to Grow By

Lesson for July 18, 1954

EVERY living thing needs food, whether it's a speck of a creature too small to see without a microscope, swimming around in ditch - water, or an elephant. Plants need it; animals need it. Man's body needs it; but man is more than a body. If all you feed is your stomach, all you will ever be is an animal. Man has a character, he has Dr. Foreman a mind and spirit. Man needs food for his character, his mind and spirit, just as much as he needs it for bone and muscle. Now the Bible is food for the growing Christian, we have been told that a hundred times by preachers, and it is true. But no food does you the slightest good if you leave it on the pantry shelf or in the freezer. Some people's Bibles are so to speak in a deep-freeze, and stay there. No wonder some people's souls are thin.

'From Childhood Acquainted---' Most people, when they are grown up, like the foods they learned to eat when children. If you never learned to eat rhubarb, or hominy, or squash, or oysters, when you were little, you aren't going to be very fond of them, probably, after you are grown. It is exactly the same way with the Bible. As a rule (there are exceptions, of course), the Christians who get the most out of the Bible are those who, like Timothy, were "from childhood acquainted with the sacred writings." The first and best start toward knowing the Bible and loving it and getting the most out of it, all your life, is to hear it and memorize it when you are small. (By the way, it is never too late to begin committing Bible passages to memory. The best thing Christian parents can do for their children is to see that they are as familiar as possible with God's book, the book to grow by.

A child will not understand all he memorizes, of course; but he will be laying the foundation for understanding in later years. Then a child can learn, and Juniors in the church school are usually taught, how to find things in the Bible. They learn the books in order; they know what is poetry and what is history and what is Gospel, and so on. They can learn to find their way around in the Bible, so to speak, and this is a tremendous Study Is Hard Work Growing calls for effort. Maturity never comes without struggle. So with the Bible. Food for the soul, food for the character it is; but it cannot be simply absorbed like salt in hot water. If we are to grow by this book of God, we have to study it, not just read it. A few verses read at the sleepiest time of day are better than no verses at all; but real Bible study calls for more serious effort. If the reader is interested, he should ask his pastor to recommend some books that his denomination would approve, to help the serious student to get a more thorough understanding of Scripture. A Bible dictionary, a Bible atlas, and if possible a one-volume commentary on the Bible, are basic helps. Many churches publish day-by-day booklets with Bible passages for every day, and these are useful for devotional hours; but they are often hop-skip-and-jump in the use of Scripture and do not always give the kind of help needed (for example) in studying some particular book like Job or Romans. Certainly every Sunday school ought to make it possible for every teacher to own or at least to borrow the helps needed for a real study of the Sunday school lessons. The reason why so many Christians get so little out of the Bible is simply that they won't put enough time

'Live Wires in an Old House' One of the most helpful translators of the Bible in our times, J. B. Phillips, whose "Letters to Young Churches" has helped so many to understand Paul's letters, says that in his work as a translator he has often felt like an electrician installing fixtures in an old house and finding live wires everywhere. The Bible is an ancient book; but it is a living book. The writer to the Hebrews thinks of it not as bread but as a sword. The Bible does more than comfort and strengthen us; it challenges, rebukes, startles us by its divine insight into our darkest hearts. We never grow by the Bible if we are never made ashamed by it. (Based on outlines copyrighted by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christin the U. S. A. Released by Community Press Service.)

Let's Think

G. H. ENFIELD OUR DAILY BREAD

Psalm One
Like the Sermon on the Mount, this Psalm begins with a benediction. The benediction, which means good word, applies only to the righteous. However, it is not unusual for the property of the proper the unrighteous to expect a like bless

The Psalm depicts two ways of life. The righteous pursue one path, the wicked another. The outcome of their lives are different. They arrive at different goals. The steps of digression for the wicked are "walk", "stand", "sit". The steps of progression for for the wicked are "walk", "stand", "sit." Only the direction and the path pursued are different. The steps of a good man are inward, the steps of a good man are inward, the steps of good man are upward, the steps of the wicked are downward. Therefore they arrive at different goals in this life, and attain different destinies in the life to come. The ungodly man has his counsel, the sinner has his way, and the scorner has his seat.

The righteous is like a tree Not a wild tree, different from the wild, knotty crab-apple tree, growing in knotty crab-apple tree, growing in some out-of-the-way place; and unlike the faulty-cherry tree. He is a tree chosen, planted, cultivated, esteemed worthy to bring forth choice fruit. He is planted in fertile soil, and by streams of water. When one stream fails, there are others to sustain life. His roots are fixed.

stream tails, there are others to sustain life. His roots are fixed.

The wicked person is like chaff. There is no substance in him for the soul to feed upon. Chaff has no power to sustain life. It is worthless in itself. It is tossed to and fro by every wind that blows. wind that blows.

wind that blows.

The righteous yield fruit in season. His is not belated fruit. He brings faith in the midst of doubt, patience in time of suffering, sympathy to the troubled, goodwill to the despicable, and love for the unfortunate. A good tree CANNOT bring forth evil fruit. His leaf also shall not wither. The little things he does shall not fade from memory. They are remembered. The pilgrim finds rest in the shade of the leaves, and strength from the the leaves, and strength from the fruit. The righteous shall lose neither his beauty nor his fruitfulness.

The activity of the wicked is concerned primarily with himself. The ungodly shall not stand in the judgment. He shall stand there to be judged but not to be acquitted. Nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous shall be able to stand. Fear will take hold of them; they will flee. They will not stand in their own defence.

One needs not to confine oneself to the things of the world to have a good time. The good man of the Psalm had a good time. He had delightful time. His delight was in the law of the Lord. And his delight was so satisfactory that he meditated therein day and night. There is no mention of his having to resort to the wine glass or to the stein to find pleasure. When a man stoops he stoops to his own level.

You are not overlooked when you do good. "For the Lord knows the way of the righteous." That is, He approves it. "But the way of the wicked will perish." The way of the wicked God does not countenance. The way of of the ungodly shall perish as the furrow in the ocean plowed by the keel of the ship disappears forever by the on-flowing-waters. The way of the wicked will perish in oblivion.

As the righteous man meditated upon the law of the Lord, why not emulate his example!

For only Christlike love, lived daily, can heal the ills and distresses, the hatreds and wars, of men. Only a spiritual understanding of God and of man in His likeness can truly bind us together for mutual good. As the flowers in a garden need constant care and plenty of good soil in which to thrive, so we need to watch and tend our mental gardens, continually enriching and refreshing them with purer, more unselfed expressions of divine Love. Two bopsters were sitting at a table in a night-club located near a railroad track. A freight car jumped the track, crashed through the building and knocked the bopsters into the street the street.

"Man", said the first cat, "did you dig that crazy floor show?"

"Yeah", said the other, "but that bouncer was the end".

When the defender's name was called in court, to everyone's amazement, he stood up in the jury box. "What are you doing there?" barked the clerk.

"I was called to serve on the jury", came the meek reply. "But you must

PROCLAMA FION

Whereas, the Almighty God and Heavenly Father of us all has so richly blessed and preserved us, and

The faith of our Lord Jesus Christ has played such a vital role in the establishment and growth of the neighborhood life of our citizenry, and

Whereas the industry of agricultural pursuit has especially progressed and prospered in this very fertile and rich soil-area of America, and Our community is the oldest village in Carroll County, and

Our forefathers who originally settled in this area sacrificed greatly and we have merely entered upon the fruits of their labors, and Whereas General Meade did at his headquarters in our community make his plans to head off Lee's Army, which plans were the final ones to fight the battle of Gettysburg, and Our community has in the past two centuries contributed its share of men and women to fight the wars of time, many of whom never returned to their native town, and Whereas our citizenry has kept apace with the mechanical progress and the material advancement of times, and The inhabitants of our town have faithfully borne their responsibilities in all the humanitarian and benevolent causes, and Whereas we can go forward only by correcting the errors and mistakes of the past, and

Whereas the present generation and the future descendants must build upon the firm foundation laid by the ancestory of the

Therefore, I Raymond J. Perry, Mayor of Taneytown, do hereby proclaim the period of July 25 to July 31 as Bi-centennial Celebration Week in Taneytown and urge every individual citizen and establishment of business and corporation of industry to co-operate in this demonstration of our memory and respect of those who have blazed the trail and of our loyalty and allegiance to our neighborly community, that we may be possessed with a strong heart and a fearless hope in a disrupted world.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of Taneytown to be affixed this 13th day of July in the year of our Lord, 1954.

RAYMOND J. PERRY, Mayor.

"America will continue to progress in social and economic freedom and in strength as long as our young people are taught to cherish and defend their heritage."—Charles R. Sligh, Jr.

One of the things we have to be thankful for is that we don't get as much government as we pay for.—
Charles F. Kettering.

Doctor: "Young man, you owe your remarkable recovery from that traffic accident to your wife's tender care". Patient: "It's kind of you to tell me, Doc. I'll make out the check to her."

Wife to Husband: "I scratched the front fender a little, dear. If you want to look at it, it's in the back seat."
