Miss Reifsnider and Miss Dunlap expressed their appreciation of the work of the Gray Ladies and stressed the importance of increasing the number of volunteers because of their wanting to expand the work into new buildings. They asked that six or eight spend their time at the New Medical Hospital. For the patients in this hospital they need games and a radio or two. PRESBYTERIAN BROTHERHOOD LADIES' NIGHT

The minister of the Presbyterian Church of Taneytown returned from Evanston, Ill., where he attended the Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches. The Presbyterian Brotherhood invited the ladies to their September meeting. President Albrecht and secretary Archie Conner conducted the brief business meeting.

Rev. Galambos was asked by President Albrecht to speak about his trip and experiences from the Evanston Assembly. "In Evanston more questions were asked than in any other meeting since the founding of the Christian Church. But we have to remember—said Pastor Galambos—that the 12 fellows whom Jesus picked up after His return from the wilderness, who became His disciples, who took a three-year journey with Christ up and down the Holy Land, these 12 men never ceased asking questions. And the Lord answered them. It is good to know that we, Protestant Christians, may think, ask, and discuss things freely that we were not born into a church of dictates, rules, and man-made holiness. Those who returned from Evanston into the four corners of the world have a unique experience: they met each other in Christ, not outside of Him. One could find the 1600 delegates to this Great Assembly as penitent as Peter, as steadfast as Paul, and as humble as Jesus. None, indeed none of these Christians went home with the thought: My religion, and my Church is the only one bestowed with the power of salvation.

Where a church-body respects the other church-body, where freedom prevails, where the church serves and not "rules", there maybe material, economical, moral and spiritual prosperity, for the seed of faith is planted into the hearts of men not by the authority of certain churches but by the power of the One Holy Spirit of God. It was a glorious meeting," Mr. Galambos spoke about his trip and the major achievements of the Evanston meeting.

Large reception took place in the Presbyterian Manse after the meeting. Hosts were: the pastor, Mr. Albrecht, Mr. Tracey, and Mr. Connor.

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

(Your Chatty Column)

With all my heart, I wish you every morning a smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.

I wish you health—life's greatest wealth! I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer.

Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

The logs are burning brightly and cracking as fire crackers in the fire place. The rain is coming down plentiful which we needed badly. The very last Gladiola has been cut—a bright Salmon color and now in the vase beside me as I type this column.

Don't forget to leave the bulbs right in the ground this year and you will moist all the work of picking them up storing them and planting again next Spring.

Folks, have you seen that wonderful new "Nash Rambler" styled by Pinin Farina which is truly the most compact and exciting new model as to a Station Wagon. It presents a brand new note in Motoring Luxury and versatility. If you are in the market for a car better see that one first!

Hope you did not miss last Saturday night when Miss America was selected and crowned in Convention Hall in Atlantic City. It was truly thrilling and the first time that was ever accomplished on T.V. It seems that the one always selected has high hope of going on the stage and continuing studying dramatics. Miss California desires to be an Actress. She cried so much with joy on being selected that her Mother was brought forward only to say, "Stop sniffing!"

Ladies, if you have a brass pair of Androns, you can now make them like new by using the new "Copper Brite" regardless of age of the Androns.

That Fashion Expert seems to be leading again—(although with much opposition from the American Ladies) Dior with his flat chested creations. He states it will do something for Milady especially the ones without figures but I notice very few American women these days are without figures regardless of age. Eh? As to Hair—do much longer this Fall and Winter!

The other night, Gentleman thought I would turn to "Wrestling" on T. V. which I have not seen for some months. There it was again only appearing worse that Danny McShain (imitating Gorgeous George strutting) and Great Scot! It was truly brutal and I am really ashamed of the State of Maryland to allow this to continue. That is not Wrestling and to think the Governor does not take a hand with these Commissioners!

Mrs. Housewife, if there is anything as to furniture that must be mended—you can "do it yourself" by purchasing "WELDWOOD" which is Plastic glue and it surely does fix about everything of wood.

Now, that Housecleaning days are upon us, try cleaning one room thoroughly at a time instead of having the entire house upset. If you are going to have the rooms papered or painted, engage the man right now before the rush is on. Try cleaning on dismal days and the room will appear even more cheery when finished.

A Gentleman writes me—"I can't imagine you getting angry! Have you ever?" Well, Sir you flatter me! Of course, I can get angry just as everyone else but especially for this reason—when anyone takes or borrows the little tool chest of mine in which (I have just one of everything that a Carpenter possesses) and uses the tools and does not put them back in place! If it had a lock and key, I would surely keep it locked at all times as I am very proud of it as I have collected each tool all down through the years buying many of the tools from the five and dime. I am one of these handy women, mechanically minded and like to do things about the house as many men should do but don't! I also get angry when anything is broken deliberately thru carelessness! Yes, I could name a few more reasons when I get angry without having a temper for the latter everyone must control. No intelligent person should boast of a temper. It is childish and is a person usually spoilt when a child.

Here is the "Virgo" sign for which J D H asked. These people are very independent and do not like to be asked questions. This is from August 20 to September 20 (inclusive). They are usually most refined and cultured especially those who are educated. They are most dainty with what they eat and desire a table set just to their liking. Many women are widows. The more distant one treats the "Virgo" the better "Virgo" will like that individual. They do not like to be made over as to affection. They have very fine skin and any powder will bring out blemishes. Many ministers are "Virgo" and are very good people.

The women, too, love to attend church regularly. They must be careful of being sarcastic. The enlightened or educated of this sign are truly wonderful people. They always have a beautiful expression on their faces.

So long until next week when I hope to be seeing you "Around The Town" D. V. I am,

Faithfully,

TEACHER SHORTAGE EASILY EXPLAINED; JUST PICTURE YOURSELF IN THE JOB

State Superintendent of Education Charles F. Carroll had an excellent point when he told the North Carolina Teachers Association that he did not approve of the practice of requiring teachers to raise funds for school equipment.

"It is particularly disturbing to me," he said, "to hear occasionally that a teacher has been told by her principal that she must raise a specified amount with which to help defray the cost of curtains for the auditorium, an amplifying system, motion picture projector, band uniforms, and the like."

As Dr. Carroll said, all such equipment is desirable, but it is not a part of the teacher's job to raise the money to buy them, especially if the fund-raising campaign takes time away from classroom work, as it too often does.

Dr. Carroll made a good start, but we believe he could have gone much farther in discussing this matter of the extracurricular jobs that are loaded on a teacher's back in such merciless profusion that they become the bane of her life. We are convinced that this extra work, for which the teacher is not paid, together with working conditions to which few people in private employment would submit, are the chief causes of our shortage of teachers.

Beginning teachers now get fairly good salaries which compare favorably with the earnings of girls who take jobs in business. But the business girl has all the advantage. She does her eight hours of work a day and is through. Her boss has no further call on her unless he pays for the extra time. She has a lunch hour all her own, a morning or afternoon coffee break, and the privilege of going to the ladies' room at any time.

The teacher—especially the primary teacher—has none of these. She cannot leave the children a minute from the time they arrive in the morning until they go home in the afternoon. She must take care of their lunch money and their classroom supplies money and account for every penny of it. She must keep on hand some extra money to lend to those who forget to bring theirs and account for that, too. She must bind up their playground wounds, dry their tears, and umpire their fights. She must, in fact, do everything except change diapers, and sometimes she has to do the equivalent of that.

After school come those innumerable extracurricular jobs. If we could make an inventory of all these extras, you would wonder when the teacher ever finds time to teach, for these extras alone are enough for a full-time job.

What wonder that college graduates prefer to go into business! If some concerted effort were made to give the teacher working conditions comparable to those enjoyed by the business girl, our teacher shortage problem would be more than half solved.—The Charlotte (N. C.) Observer.

THE OLD COUNTRY STORE

We all like to talk about the "good old days," but how many of us would turn the clock back if we could? Probably no better illustration of the "good old days" could be cited than the country grocery store. One could patronize such a store year after year and find the cracker barrel, the pickles, and the wheel of cheese in the same place. The old store exuded an aroma of salt meat, bananas, apples and other delicacies that one never forgot.

The lack of change gave it an air of permanence and made it seem like an old friend. But today no one would buy crackers that had to be handled by a clerk. You wouldn't buy cheese where flies were walking over the cloth that covered it—neither would you accept wormy apples. You want to pick your vegetables from under a spray of water or out of a frozen food chest. Instead of buying fruit in season, you want almost every kind of fruit or fruit juice at all seasons. You wouldn't think of getting your milk or meat except from refrigerated counters. You wouldn't want your potatoes or other heavy vegetables setting on the floor in boxes or sacks where old Rover could nose along enjoying himself. That is one reason why your cost of living has gone up—the spread in price between the farmer and the consumer is in large measure the result of the demand of the consumer for expensively processed products. So when you talk about prices today and compare the cost of living with that of a generation ago, just remember all you're getting—fancy packages, refrigeration, air conditioning, sanitation and scores of things your grandmother never heard of.

The "good old days" are nice to talk about, especially when you want to complain, but you would let a "good old store" starve to death for lack of patronage.—E. Hofer.

A TOTAL REVOLUTION

The farm wife may never operate a tractor or any other piece of farm equipment, and she may have no knowledge at all of what makes these mechanical marvels work. But, nonetheless, she owes a considerable debt to farm equipment.

The grain-threshing seasons of only a comparatively few years back provide a fine example. It took eight or a dozen men working from dawn to dusk to load the shocks on wagons and haul them to the threshing machine. Other men kept the machine running and hauled the grain away. Every one of these workers had a huge appetite that had to be satisfied three times a day—and the farm wife toiled early and late in a hot kitchen to provide the food.

Now one man, driving a modern machine, can do the whole job—and do it quickly, efficiently, economically, and with a minimum of human effort. The time the farm wife used to have to devote to a gargantuan feast of cooking is available for other duties or pleasure.

As every schoolboy is taught, the internal combustion engine totally revolutionized industry. And that engine, powering farm equipment, has revolutionized agriculture just as thoroughly. In colonial days, 85 farm workers could produce just enough food for themselves and 15 other people. Now the equation has been reversed—15 farmers raise enough for themselves and 85 others. That means that vast armies of people are able to work in factories which produce cars, radios, kitchen appliances and so on—the thousand and one things that make life better for all of us.—Industrial News Review.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

WINDOM, MINN., REPORTER: "You can't spend more than you have and remain solvent. The longer such a system is followed, the more impossible it becomes to keep afloat. Know anyone who trades in a mortgaged car on a new one and has both a newer car and a bigger mortgage? The woods are full of such people. It is bad economics. It's somewhat like drug addiction. This applies equally to a person, a business, or a government."

INDIO, CALIF., NEWS: "Democratic Senator Byrd of Virginia and Republican Chairman Styles Bridges of the Senate Finance Committee are joint sponsors of a proposed Constitutional Amendment which, in the interests of America, should be submitted and adopted in jig time. In brief, this amendment would prohibit deficit spending. We think there would be a very little difference of opinion among those Americans who honor simple arithmetic above socialist theories."

MOUNT DORA, FLA., TOPIC: "The safe-guard against the 'thinking' of communists, and their effort to worm their way into labor organizations, is best obtained through education of adults and youth on just what communism is, and permit its disavowal under a system of free discussion."

ODESSA, TEX., AMERICAN: "There was once a young showgirl who came bustling into the dressing room breathlessly exclaiming, 'I've just met the loveliest richest man. He owes $800,000.' In that philosophy the United States is surely 'the loveliest, richest' country in the world since the federal debt is now moving past the $275-billion mark, compared to $207 billions owned by all the other countries in the world."

SHORT STORY

Meter Reader
 By Ona F. Lathrop

3-Minute Fiction

ED FENTON was whistling his usual merry tune as he turned into Maple Avenue that forenoon. Ed liked this job. It seemed sort of honorable to be working for the city after all the measly little jobs he'd had in his forty-odd years. You got to chat with a lot of nice folks and see how the women kept their basements and help people out occasionally.

The only catch was that Water-Commissioner Thorpe was a hard man to work for. He caught you up on every little thing. Just that morning he had landed on Ed.

"Fenton, seems as if it takes you a mighty long time to make the rounds on this meter-reading. What in tunket do you do all that time?" His big form creaked the swivel chair as he pushed the book at Ed, and his frown deepened.

"Well, I hustle along," Ed hastened to reply. "Seems as if all the women like to chat, especially if they are washing or ironing in their basements, and I just don't get along so fast."

And now he was late again. Could he help it if old Granny Mercer had asked him to get her washing-machine going when it stopped in the middle of her laundry? You couldn't turn an old lady down. And that new little bride up the street had trouble with her steam iron.

Just as he started down the basement steps at the Claytons he heard the hubbub.

But he'd make up for it now. He glanced nervously at the big brick house at the end of the block. That was Commissioner Thorpe's own house and he hoped to make it before noon when Thorpe came home for lunch.

But (just as he started down the basement steps at the Claytons he heard the hubbub.) Five-year-old Bobby was shrieking frantically and his mother was crying too. "He's caught his hand in the wringer," she screamed. "Look at it! It's mashed flat. Oh, Ed, I'm so glad you came. How do I work this thing anyway?"

Ed strode across and hit the release and picked up the little kid. "You'd better get him to the doctor," he said.

"Yes, put him in the car and I'll get the keys," she yelled, tearing up the steps and back to the car by the time Ed got him in. "And you watch the baby, Eddie. She's in her play-pen."

Ed ran his hand through his tousled hair dazedly. "Watch the baby" indeed. Didn't the woman know he had work to do? But of course everybody knew Ed Fenton was an old easy-mark.

He went inside and found the baby clamoring to get out of her pen. He picked her up and tried to quiet her, but it was no use. She wanted her mother, and no mere man would do. He took her to the door to divert her attention and there he saw her little cart.

"Baby go bye-bye!" He wasn't up on baby-talk much but he'd helped some with his sister's kids. He'd take her to some neighbor. After all you couldn't expect a man to lose his job for baby-sitting. He installed her in the go-cart and wheeled her down the front walk.

And there around the corner came Thorpe in his big black car! "Well Fenton, no wonder you never get your meters read. Takin' the baby for a stroll in working hours, eh? I guess that does it. You can turn in your book."

"Now Commish, it's this way—" and Ed proceeded to explain how he happened to be wheeling the Clayton baby at this time of day. "So you see I was stuck with her. I'll find some neighbor woman—"

But by that time the news had spread through the neighborhood and the women were converging from all the houses in the block.

"Eddie, give me the little darling." "Here Eddie, I'll take her. Good thing you came along just when you did."

"Oh, Eddie always saves the day," another one called. "He helped me with my clothes-line the last time."

"And he helped me move the junk out of my basement. Mr. Thorpe, you sure picked a good man for meter-reading. He makes more friends for the city than all the policemen."

The tomato russet mite has appeared in Maryland's neighboring State of Virginia for the first time. Specimens were found in a home garden in Arlington Co. This mite is quite a pest on the West Coast, and it appears periodically in the East.

CURRENT EVENTS FIFTY YEARS AGO

Corn in this section, is remarkably good, which means there will be plenty for feed and a large surplus for market. Last winter, many of our farmers were compelled to buy feed—this year they will sell it.

Even the shellbark crop will be a big one this year.

The first frost came on Wednesday night—a heavy one for a starter. Dr. F. H. Seiss and wife left on Tuesday for the St. Louis Exposition, to be gone for about two weeks.

The Mite Society of the Lutheran church held a social at the home of Mrs. Henry C. Wilt, on Thursday night. Twenty-eight were present and a very enjoyable evening was spent. J. T. Shriner conveyed the Taneytown contingent in a big farm wagon, the party enjoying the experience as a reminder of the "straw rides" of their more youthful days.

John A. Yingling and Miss Flora Kemp, both of Taneytown, were quietly married, on Thursday afternoon, and left on the afternoon train, north, for a trip, on their return from which, they will reside in Taneytown. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. J. Wolf, of the Reformed church, at the parsonage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kemp, of Taneytown, and a sister of Dr. Luther Kemp, of Uniontown. The groom is Carrier on Rural Route No. 20 and is one of our most respected citizens.

Middleburg—Harvest Home service will be held in Walden's Hall, Sunday evening October 2nd.—Our schools opened last Monday with a goodly number of little folks in attendance. Miss Carrie Harbaugh principal, and Miss Janette Engle, assistant.

Clear Ridge—Pipe Creek school opened on Monday, with Charles Ecker as teacher.—Miss Bessie Merring returned to Reese to resume her school of last year.—Mrs. J. W. Reck and Mrs. G. W. Shriner, of Harney, visited Charles F. Reindollar's on Tuesday.

York Road—The Bruceville school opened last Monday with 25 pupils enrolled, and Miss Lillian Herrera, of Baltimore county, teacher.

Copperville—Miss Effie Hess, an experienced teacher, has taken charge of Oregon School. She taught this school several years ago, and some of her former scholars have children starting in school this fall. Miss Laura Garner of Mt. Union, is teacher at Otter Dale. We wish these worthy ladies success in their labors.

FEESERSBURG

The Lutheran Christian Endeavor League held a convention last week at Goucher College, Baltimore. The climax to the three day meeting was the banquet held Saturday evening. Those attending from the Mt. Union Christian Endeavor Society were: Mrs. Claude Bohn, Bobby Royer, Tommy Lambert, Deanne Crouse, Mary Royer and Ronnie Keyton.

Dr. Legg entertained a group of prominent local Democrats and the County Democratic candidates at his Mt. Union bungalow Friday evening.

Mrs. Carrie Fleagle's sale in Middleburg on Saturday attracted a large crowd of people. It would be difficult to say whether some of them came to buy or to eat. The food stand at the sale attracted as many buyers as did the household articles and it wasn't too difficult to understand the reason. For the women from the Middleburg Methodist Church outdid each other in turning out taste-tempting food. From observation there is a group of people who follow every sale to sample each community's cooking and one can gain a pretty good knowledge of where the best cooks dwell just by sampling the food on the food stand at public sales. Middleburg cooks rate among the best.

The best advice we have received so far about curing our kicking cow from a Taneytown farmer. He promises a cure and this is the advice: "Send her to the Westminster Live Stock auction where she will wind up as hamburgers." This is a drastic cure but no cows live is worth more than a human's and she has already endangered one person. Right now she is serving as wet nurse to two orphan calves, but when its time to wean them and she hasn't reformed the Taneytown farmer's advice will be followed to the letter.

A friend of ours who is touring the West tells us in a letter that she spotted the following in front of a Church in one of the states beyond the Rockies: "Bring Her to Church. The Wife you Save May Be Your Own." We know they do things differently in the West because here in the East the sign would have to read: "Bring Him to Church. The Husband you save may be Your Own".

Have you visited Keymar since the hump back bridge has been replaced with a modern one and the road through the village widened? Its a real pleasure to drive over the new road but the small town looks like a boy with a flat-top hair cut. It was necessary to remove some of the trees, move the pavements back until they practically sit on some of the front porches, and remove some lawns entirely. Keymar has a naked look right now but come spring again and the energetic citizens of the small town will have it looking spic and span like it always did before the bull-dozer and steam-shovels came through.

There is a glimmer of hope for farmers in general as the nine farmers from Carroll County get ready to wage battle in court against the suit of the Government against them for violating the Wheat Program Act. The farmers defending their action declare that the Wheat Act violates the Fourth and Fifth Amendment to the Constitution. Here is a chance for all farmers to offer their moral and financial support to these nine men who have the courage to fight for their rights. It takes money for lawyers and a contribution no matter how small will help not only materially but more important it will give them the moral uplift necessary to carry on a battle. This is not only their battle but every small farmer's battle too, for make no mistake unless the farmers can find a way to unite and fight against the strangling policies of the present Administration, there will be more "For Sale" signs out in the future than one has seen in the last twenty years.

Union Bridge is trying to raise funds to buy a new ambulance. No one will question the fact that an ambulance is needed in every community for emergencies, but not all trips made by the ambulance are emergency calls. Many times a private car could be used just as easily, but because the ambulance is there they call for it. This service has been free, but it might be a good policy to set a reasonable fee for its use, using common sense in cases where it would be a hardship for the person using the ambulance to pay. A reasonable fee would put an end to the non-emergency calls and it would insure an income to replace the ambulance when it is worn out. There may be a good reason why no fee has been charged in the past, but if there is one, the public, has never been told. More people might be willing to contribute toward the new ambulance if they understood this angle better.

Mrs. Millard Roelke attended a board meeting of the Carroll County Tuberculosis Association Monday evening held in the Memorial Medical Building in Westminster. The aim of the Association this year is to acquaint the public with the services offered to them by this organization and to find the means of getting more persons to make use of the Christmas Seals.

The movie "Gone With the Wind" is being shown all this week in Westminster and every person who has never seen it before should do so now. In many person's opinion it is the best movie ever produced. It is a chance to get a true glimpse of the South during the Civil War and the days following the Reconstruction period. But probably more important it is entertainment at its best.

If you would convert someone to your religion, don't preach it, just live it.

Kindness Pays

You can win your way by kindness
Better than you can by force;
For a gentle, loving spirit
Wins more friends than one that's coarse.

If you smile, a smile will answer,
If a frown, a frown you'll see;
If you give a blow, a bludgeon
Very soon your fate will be.
Being gentle saves you trouble
And will make you happy to;
If your life is ruled by kindness
You will ne'er have aught to rue.

One task at a time without worry or fear;
One day at a time though the morrow draws near;
One deed well accomplished suffices the day—
Start not many missions, take time out to play.

You can't borrow sunlight from night's open door;
One task and one day is enough to explore.

Make every hour count in the moments you spread;
Tomorrow's a stranger, today is a friend.

DIED

WILBUR E. STOUT

One of Frederick County's best-known and liked amateur baseball players, Wilbur Edwin (Pete) Stout, Woodboro, died Friday morning, at 10 o'clock at Frederick Memorial Hospital, aged 39 years.

Seriously ill only since June when he was forced to stop playing and managing the Union Bridge club of the Pen-Mar League, Stout was not hospitalized here until Wednesday when his malignant ailment became critical.

He was born in Nazareth, Pa., a son of Charles and the late Georgia Shank Stout. When a small boy, his mother died and he came to live at Woodboro with her brother. He continued to make his home in that community until his death.

Prior to being bed-ridden by illness in July, he was employed as a clerk in Nicholson's Grocery and had been approved for an appointment as a post-office clerk in Woodsboro. He was married to Mrs. Alice Pittinger Stout. The couple have one daughter, Linda Lou.

From earliest boyhood, Stout engaged in baseball and it was his lifetime favorite entertainment. He has played with most of the better semipro teams of this area, distinguishing himself as a shortstop. For a number of years he was a star and one of the most popular members of the local Frederick Hustlers, for fans and fellow-players. He turned down opportunities to play professional ball, rather than leave home.

At Woodsboro he was a member of the Lutheran Church and of the Volunteer Fire Company.

Surviving besides his widow, daughter and father, are his stepmother in Nazareth, a brother, Donald Stout, Stockertown, Pa.; several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held Sunday in the Woodsboro Lutheran church at 2:30 in charge of Rev. Raymond C. Myers. Interment in Mt. Hope cemetery, Woodsboro G. C. Barton, funeral director.

EXPLORERS HOLD CAMP; ENTERTAIN PARENTS

A memorable occasion for the explorer older section was a 3-day overnight trip to the Cunningham Falls corner of Catocin State Park above Thurmont on September 4 to 6, a camping spot new to many of those attending. Adviser Stanley F. Frock was in charge, aided by assistants Robert L. Bowers and Wilbur O. Thomas, and present were Explorers George Abrecht, Wilmer Barnes, Jr., Rodney Barnhart, Charles Becker, Philip Garrett, George Shriver, Jr., and Harold Slaybaugh.

After removing scrap paper from the new parish house building of Trinity Lutheran Church, the automobile caravan headed for the shady trout streams near the campsite. After erecting their tent village of some seven canvases, employing the Army pup, T-pole trail, and forester types, gathering wood, arranging campfire circle, and munching lunches, the mountain stream beckoned irresistibly to the avid angler or the eager explorer, and the falls trail echoed often to their cries.

Chief object of the week-end was the visit of parents who the following day were served a meal of hunter's stew, lettuce and tomato salad, and ice cream, topped off with delicious cake donated by the visiting mothers. Horseshoes attracted some, the waterfall, a group, and dusk found everybody seated in the campfire ring where Adviser Frock and Assistant Bowers presented as fine a program as ever given under troop auspices. Singing a capella in the blazing firelight, hearing the inimitable Bowers get off his jokes, and wondering what stunt by the explorers would turn up next, a rapt audience thrilled to a true tall story with surprise ending from the legends of the troop perfectly rendered by James H. Fair, Cub Scout committeeman and alumnus of Scout Troop 348 and then drifted off to their respective lodgings on humming taps, the boys to tents, the parents to their homes.

The tents were momentarily emptied in favor of hamburgers, tinfoil-covered, cooked at midnight in the blowing embers of the fire—an idea of Mr. Bowers that brought back Broad Creek days—while Abrecht and Slaybaugh stirred up a pot of cocoa, and Barnes, Barnhart, and Garrett, put out the remaining fire. Next day camp was broken right after breakfast, and the Scout hall soon littered with tents spread to dry and equipment waiting to be stored by quartermasters Larry Martin and William Pittinger who had been unable to participate.

Surviving are a step-daughter, Mrs. William K. Flickinger, Union Bridge R. D., and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Mary Lemmon, Baltimore; Mrs. Harry Flickinger and Oliver Erb, Littlestown; Cleason Erb, Taneytown, and Robert Erb, Westminster.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 10 a. m. at the C. O. Fuss and Son Funeral Home, Taneytown, with his pastor, the Rev. Miles S. Reifsnnyder, officiating. Burial will be in Baust church cemetery. Friends may call at the Fuss funeral home this (Thursday) evening.

Gehr, Bond St., Westminster, with whom he had been residing. He was a son of the late George R. and Alice Shriver Gehr and was a lifelong member of St. Paul's Reformed church, Westminster.

Never absent from your post, never off guard, never ill-humored, never unready to work for God,—is obedience; being "faithful over a few things."—Mary Baker Eddy.

An easier way to give—do you work where there is a "pay-roll deduction plan?" Then, when the Red Feather Chest appeal contacts you, representing seven agencies one call—be ready to help make this a 100% success.

A POEM
 The following poem was written by Francis McNair in honor of his mother, Mrs. Wm G. McNair and sent to her while he was enroute from Sasebo, Japan to Long Beach, California.

LITTLE WOMAN
 To the best little woman in the land I step forward and raise my hand, I'll do my most, and my best So this little woman can get some rest. She's worked for me, for many a year And when I'd get hurt, she would shed a tear When I would cry, she would take me on her knee She'd take me, and kiss me, and comfort me.

When I was unhappy, she was blue But when I was happy, then she was too, She was waiting when I came in, no matter what time of night. Then she could rest, she knew I was alright.

The little woman in my opinion, is number one She felt as though her work was never done, She looked after me through night and day It was this little woman who taught me to pray.

She is the best and this I'll say The things she has done for me, I can't possibly repay, I can remember, when I would lay my head on her breast, I knew that I was safe, that's when I slept best.

Who is this little woman? Why she is none other Than the most wonderful little woman in the world, She is my Mother.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR
 Sept. 19, 1954
 Dear Mr. Stonesifer:
 I received a paper from the Carroll Record Company yesterday. I would like to thank you and any one else whom it concerns. It sure is nice to know what is going on around Taneytown.

How is the Key Club coming along? I hope they will do as good this year as they did last year. I think the Key Club is one of the nicest clubs any boy could join to get along with older people and to think for yourself.

Well I will have to quit for now. I will try to write again if I ever get time. They keep us plenty busy during basic training. Thanks again for the paper.

Truly yours,
 DONALD LAWYER.

For the health and well-being of our county—your once-a-year united campaign is your chance to be a neighborly giver—and a wise giver.

This united campaign means a fair division of funds among many fine causes—a saving everybody's time and money—an honest report to the public of every penny raised. Support the Community Chest.

In the days of Robin Hood—so the story goes—a red feather was awarded to each of his Merry Men for a good deed performed. Today the Red Feather is the emblem of your Community Chest.

The Red Feather today has come to be a three-way symbol. You may wear it in your hat or lapel or on your handbag, as a sign of achievement, or of your generous contribution to the Red Feather campaign.

The Red Feather Appeal: makes your dollar go further, because it reduces the expense of seven appeals into one. Back it with US.

The Red Feather—in Carroll county is the symbol of the Community Chest, with seven agencies making one appeal instead of seven appeals. Back it.

SHORT STORY

The Invitation
By Inez Locke

"GOLLY, I'M excited," Eleanor's blue eyes were dancing. "You've been to lots of Mrs. Curtin's affairs, Frank, but remember this is my first. For years I've read about her home, her parties, her gowns, and to think I'm to be one of that inner circle at last. Perhaps being engaged to you has a few consolations after all."

3-Minute Fiction

Before Frank could retort, the blonde girl suddenly cried, "Look! Isn't that the road?" The sign says, "Pine Tree Hills."

"See how you take my mind off my work?" mocked the long-limbed young man. But his brown eyes glowed as he smiled down at his pretty fiancée before backing up and maneuvering the black Packard onto the tree lined drive.

The night was cold and black. As the car stopped in the spacious circular driveway, Eleanor could distinguish only a vague outline of the huge white colonial mansion a short distance away. The giant pines surrounding them moaned with the sharp wind.

Frank looked questioningly at his shivering companion. "It's creepy, isn't it? Well, you stay in the car

"I'd be scared here alone," she said. "I'm going with you."

while I see what this is all about." "Gosh no, Frank. I'd be scared here alone. I'm going with you."

Again and again the dark haired young man pounded the heavy brass knocker. Not a sound came from the house. Walking around the ghostly building, he was alarmed to observe that all windows were dark and tightly shuttered. Nearing the front again, Frank grinned at the sight of approaching headlights. But the newly arrived car contained four more equally surprised guests. In rapid succession, other cars sped up the hill and the long dark porch was soon crowded with groups of whispering, wondering couples.

Deciding to try the door once more, Frank vigorously turned the knob, pitted his muscular frame against the ornately carved oak, and fell inside the silent house. The whispering stopped. He swiftly regained his feet and flicked several light switches. Nothing happened. Fortified with flashlights, Frank, Eleanor and about a dozen others started through the house. There was a loud gasp as they reached the usually sumptuous living room. It was stripped bare. By the time the inspection was finished, they were a thoroughly bewildered group. The house was completely empty.

"Where is Mrs. Curtin and her family, the servants, the furniture?" mumbled Eleanor, teetering along in her spiked heeled sandals, still shivering with cold. "Uncanny that a family and all their belongings could have disappeared so suddenly, particularly when, according to the invitations, this was to have been the most elaborate ball of the year. To quote, 'an occasion long remembered'. Let's go home, Frank. Please. This place has me scared. Anyhow, it's too dark to do anything tonight. Golly, this is all so crazy that..."

"Ladies and gentlemen..." the startlingly loud voice seemed to come from the nearby trees. It tinkered and choked off.

"That's Mrs. Curtin!" Frank exploded. "And..."

"Ladies and gentlemen," the voice repeated, laughter temporarily suppressed. "May I wish you a slightly premature April Fool? And now that you've had your fun snooping, how about proceeding with our festivities? Incidentally, I'm having the house completely redecorated while I'm in Europe. It was cleaned out this morning as my Colonial furnishings are being replaced with Chinese Modern. Give you a start? Marvelous!"

Lights flashed on outside and, instructed by their hostess, the elegantly clad guests wended their way down the hill to the massive barn which was suddenly aglow with colored lights. Instead of the formal ball expected and dressed for, however, they found themselves in the middle of an old fashioned barn dance.

MEETING OF CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

The Board of Managers of the Carroll County Children's Aid Society met on Monday afternoon, September 13 with Mrs. David J. Reedy, president, presiding. 12 members of the Board were present, one Honorary Member and the Executive Director of the Maryland Children's Aid Society, and the Executive of the local agency.

After routine business Mrs. Reedy presented an evaluation of the agency which included management, staff and services. This evaluation covered the period from July 1953 to June 1954, which was prepared by Miss Elizabeth Glover, the Executive Director of the Maryland Children's Aid Society of which the local agency is a branch.

Following this presentation, the report of the Adoption Committee was read and discussed. This report was accepted unanimously. Mrs. Brooks, the County Executive of the Carroll County Children's Aid Society gave a case study of a child in a pre-adoption home.

The meetings this year will be devoted in part to case studies of each of the services which the agency offers. These services are: Boarding Foster Home Care, Adoption Study, Adoption Placement, and Protective Service.

The next meeting of the Society will be held on Monday, October 11, at 2 p. m., at the Parish House of the Westminster Methodist church.

WITH OUR ARMED FORCES

The USS Tarawa returned here Sept. 7th completing a tour of duty in the Far East and a "round-the-world" cruise.

Returning aboard the attack aircraft carrier was Hugh T. Taylor, Jr., seaman, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh T. Taylor of Route 1, Westminster, Md.

The Tarawa left Norfolk, Va., in November 1953 to engage in training exercises in the Mediterranean with the U. S. Sixth Fleet.

Two months later she was enroute to Japan for duty with the fast carrier Task Force 77 patrolling off the Korean coast. She took part in the fair weather operations off the Philippines.

Time out was taken from operations to visit New Zealand and Australia for a good will tour and ceremonies commemorating the battle of Coral Sea.

Pfc. Daniel J. Donnelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Donnelly of Westminster, is serving in Japan with the 2nd Battalion, 3d Marine Regiment, which completed a series of joint exercises with the army's 6th Tank Battalion in August.

The Leathernecks, reinforcing a company of Army tanks, drove an aggressor force from the maneuver area on the slopes of Fujiyama.

The maneuver was held to test the combat efficiency of the 6th Tank Battalion in operating with infantry troops under conditions resembling a typical combat mission.

The 6th Tank Battalion and the 2nd Battalion, 3d Marines, are stationed at North Camp Fuji, Japan.

WHY A COMMUNITY CHEST?

The Community Chest is formed to raise funds through ONE campaign for the member organizations in Carroll County, which have formerly made requests separately. It will:

Make ONE drive out of SEVEN drives.

Bring economy to fund raising.

Distribute funds in keeping with budget needs.

Give donors a chance to budget their giving by making only gift each year.

Devote more dollars to the purpose for which they were given.

HARNEY GANG

The Harney Gang consisting of Vesta Null, Marguerite Poole, Dianna Salley and Nancy Stambaugh, leader Mrs. Helen Null, Robert Rock, Jack Mooney, Walter Plank, visitors of whose home the Gang gathered was Mrs. E. Stambaugh.

The girls gathered first. The President Margaret Poole opened meeting by conducting the 4-H Pledge, followed by the secretary's and Treasurer's report.

At the picnic held in August was a gayest evening of swimming, boating, softball, group gatherings and delicious refreshments were served by 4-H club members.

After the girls met, the boys joined them in the interesting upcoming subject of a square dance sponsored by the Harney Gang. Further information will be published in a later edition. Meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were served by Nancy and Dianna, at 10:15 p. m.

Maryland's portion of the Federal funds allotted for the 1954-55 National School Lunch Program is $864,020.

The Red Feather tells you exactly how your money is used to support 7 welfare agencies in Carroll county.

The July output of nonfat dry milk solids is in the news because it did not set a new record. Figures just released show that for the first time in 19 months the current monthly production of total nonfat dry milk solids has failed to make a new high record for the month.

Let us have faith that right makes might, and in that faith let us, to the end, dare to do our duty as we understand it.—Lincoln

It is easier to give systematically and intelligently to an all around program of services through a single gift to your Carroll County Community Chest.

The Red Feather. Make it grow. Carroll county now has the Red Feather supporting 7 agencies of health and welfare.

Every duty which we omit, obscures some truth which we should have known.—John Ruskin.

We like the idea of ONE appeal instead of SEVEN. The Red Feather does just that. Will YOU back it, also.

DRAMATIC SERIES ON STATION WTTR

A new dramatic radio series, "The Constant Invader", sponsored by the Carroll County Tuberculosis Association, can be heard over Station WTTR Westminster, Md., at 5:45 P. M. each Saturday. The series is presented as a public service in cooperation with the station's management, Mrs. Kathryn Diffendal, Executive Secretary of the association, announced.

Lionel Barrymore, distinguished stage and screen actor, is featured as narrator of the dramas based on true stories of people who have fought personal battles against tuberculosis.

This is the seventh series of "The Constant Invader" produced by the National Tuberculosis Association in New York with professional casts including stars of radio, movies and the Broadway stage. The 15 minute transcribed dramas have been heard in past years on radio stations throughout the country.

The series combines stirring dramatic entertainment with information to help us all protect ourselves against TB. Some of these stories could come right out of our communities. And most of the problems they illustrate so forcefully are problems right here in Carroll County," Mrs. Diffendal said.

The fight to control TB dramatized in "The Constant Invader" is carried on in this area by the Carroll County Tuberculosis Association through projects such as Health Education, Case Finding and Rehabilitation. Presentation of The Constant Invader is part of the association's program to help people of this county to protect themselves against TB.

Living Witness

Lesson for September 26, 1954

"AGAINST the Stream" is the title of a recent book by Karl Barth. The title means to suggest that Christian living has to be against the stream of a great deal of what the world thinks and admires. Many people think that Christian faith simply helps a man to do better what everybody in the world wants to do. Men want success, money, power, prestige, and "being a Christian" helps one to get these things faster. No, that is not it. When Christ comes into a life, that life will not have the same aims as before. The Christian does not swim with the world-stream, only faster. He has to swim upstream.

Dr. Foreman

Redeeming the World

What a Christian is and does, is determined both by the kind of world we see around us, and the kind of God we have above us and in us. If it were a different world, or a different God, our tasks would no doubt be different. As we look at the world, we can see two facts about it which are pretty unpleasant, but true. Poets and policemen know these things are true, even if a lot of us try to dodge the facts. One is: the world is flat and tasteless, especially (strange as it may seem) to the very persons who try their hardest to "get a kick" out of life. The other is: the world is decadent, which is a polite word for rotten. (The Bible word is corrupt, which means the same thing.) In such a world Christians are called on to be different. Jesus' words about salt and light will always be remembered by Christians. They are expected to give taste and zest to a stale world; to keep a rotting world from decaying entirely. As light, they are to bring to the world what sunlight does to dark cold places. Christians are to share in God's work of redeeming the world, just by being different from the world, not merely different, like sand in the soup, but savingly different, like salt.

'God's Attack on Man'

A crank-sided philosopher once called Christianity God's "attack on man." That is both a long way from the truth, and close to it, depending on how you take it. It is a long way from the truth that God so loved the world that he gave his only Son; a long way from the prophet's saying that God desires not the death of the wicked, but rather that he shall turn from his way and live (Ezekiel 33:11). Christianity is all that happens when God comes to the rescue of man. On the other hand, there is something in man that God does have to attack. When a swimmer starts to drown, and the life-saver goes in after him, one of the first things the life-saver may have to do is to knock the fellow out. A drowning man will fight his rescuer and sometimes only a knock-out will save him. Now the world, that is to say the world outside of God, is a hostile world. It carries on a kind of war against God. It does not ask for help, it is proud, self-satisfied. It always associates God with what is unpleasant or cruel, such as death or disaster. God does have to attack man's pride, his self-satisfaction, his mental slandering of God himself. God does not need to be reconciled to man, but man does need to be reconciled to God. So the business of the Christian is to give testimony to this. As Paul puts it, the Christian is an ambassador for Christ, a messenger of reconciliation.

When Love Controls

So the Christian is expected to be a living witness, both in what he is and in what he says. Could a real Christian be perfectly content with being "saved" himself, without worrying over other people in the least? If ever there had been a generation of such self-centered "Christians," our religion would have died out. One thing is certain: as a witness, no one is convincing if his attitude to his lost contemporaries is one of scorn. The effective witness, in word or in life, comes from the heart moved by the same compassion that only Jesus fully had, and only he can inspire. The growing Christians, the contagious Christians, the witnessing Christians, have always been those who could say as Paul did: The love of Christ controls us.

Let's Think

by G. H. ENFIELD

THE WRANGLING GOES ON

The controversy over report cards continues. When you read the Collier's article, the issue of September 17, by Howard Whitman, you should conclude that the task of grading pupils' report cards is really a task. Only those who have tried it know. No system of marking, yet discovered, tells the entire story, or proves satisfactory. The most satisfactory system still seems to be that which shows, in some measure, how a child ranks, with himself, in scholarship. Therefore, many school systems are going back to the old-fashioned method of grading by A, B, C, D, F. Even this high and dry method has many imperfections as do all the others, but perhaps it does give the most satisfactory information which most parents desire about their children.

Parents, read this Collier's article! Then, perhaps, you may be more charitable toward the teachers of your children. You will observe that principals, teachers, superintendents, parents, educators, professors of teachers, and various types of experts, all combined, have not been able to devise a system of grading satisfactory to all or even to a majority. Teachers are more successful in instructing than in measuring the results of their instruction. Those who think most about this matter are the ones most disturbed.

Probably, if all were agreed as to the primary purpose of education, a better system of grading could be devised. It is somewhat difficult to anticipate the most propitious journey without knowing the destination. In other words do we know what we want to do in our public schools? Are we agreed as to the aims and purpose of public school education? Are we training boys and girls for a life, in which the greatest happiness and joy may be realized, or are we preparing them primarily for making a living? Whichever you emphasize will determine the course you take and pursue. If the chief aim is to train youth to use their hands and to produce "things," then it seems to me that our entire school system needs to be changed, for the shop, the mill, and the factory, are the proper places to learn this art. No girl can wash dishes as well as she who puts her hands in the dishpan. The man riding a tractor in the field plows a better furrow than the man sitting on the porch reading a book on how to plow. In short, let us know what we want to do, and then do it.

If parents and patrons are perturbed over report cards and their meaning, how much more are teachers themselves! Still, education must go on, schools must be kept, information must be imparted, and knowledge must be acquired, even though learning is difficult to measure accurately. The character that has been developed, discipline that has been mastered, skills that have been acquired, and facts that have been learned, will manifest themselves in the type of citizen the boy or girl becomes in his or her respective community after public school days are past.

The problem of a satisfactory method of grading report cards is as difficult as is the problem at what age should successful teachers or workers of any type be compelled to retire. Is the basis of that requirement to be solely the chronological age? Is all their education, training, experience, discipline, to go with the wind simply because they have reached a certain age in years and months? If that is to be the sole measuring stick, then as far as possible, each individual may do well to get into a business of his own when younger.

It is pleasing and interesting to observe that some who have been most critical of schools, school systems, and teachers, are becoming more friendly, and considerate, and are endeavoring to co-operate to bring about the best results for the boys and girls in their schools.

SHORT STORY

Holy Cow

By Sally S. Eads

THE SUMMER sunshine beamed down so mercilessly on top of Jean Langley's blond head, that she wore Grandma's wide-brimmed straw garden hat to the Post Office. The older men who stood around, waiting for their mail, smiled when they saw the wide hat brim touching Jean's shoulders. And some younger men smiled at her, too.

Fred Graham, the one man in town she wanted to meet was there and didn't even look at her, and to meet Fred was the real reason she had come to Lentville to teach. Jean had seen Fred lots of times when she had come to visit Grandpa and Grandma Grady, and he used to look at her as though he wanted to know her.

She had thought surely if she came to Lentville to teach, she would soon meet Fred, and—well, the rest would come easy. But, now, a month of school was gone, and he did not seem to know she was in town. He never attended the young people's social functions any more, some one told her.

"Well, darn that Isabella woman," she said to herself.

Yesterday evening, she had asked a man why Fred wasn't on the hayride with the others to Renfro Valley.

"Oh, Fred couldn't leave Isabella." The men had laughed, but Jean felt herself grow cold.

"Isabella!" So that was it. A girl named Isabella. Jean had thought Fred was spending his time on his cow farm. And, how she had come to hate cows! "Well, darn that Isabella woman," she said to herself.

Jean turned onto a side street that led out past the Fairgrounds, at the edge of town. The long walk might help her feelings. She passed a group of men standing on the sidewalk, and heard one of them call Fred Graham's name. She stopped and pretended she had found a four-leaf clover.

"Fred Graham's simply crazy about his Isabella," the man said and Jean rushed on.

"Isabella! Isabella!" Jean snapped. "I hate that Isabella."

Tears stung her eyelids. She loosened the chin strap of Grandma's hat, and when the hat fell back it covered the back of her head and shoulders. The straw scratched her shoulders.

Suddenly she felt a punch at the back of her head, and turned around and looked right into the face of a big Jersey cow. "Moo," the cow said, right into Jean's face.

"Oh! Mercy! Help!" Jean called and ran as fast as she could. The dreadful cow trotted right at her heels, mouth open, grabbing at the back of Jean's head. When they reached the Fairground entrance, Jean fairly ran up a peach tree and perched on a limb, just out of reach of the cow. The cow stood under the tree.

"Moo!" the cow said to Jean. "Go away, please," Jean begged. "If I fall out of this tree, you will eat me up alive. But maybe then, Fred Graham would be sorry he had treated me so coldly."

Then she saw Fred coming along the road to the Fairgrounds. "Help! Help!" she called and he came running.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "That dreadful cow tried to eat me alive," Jean said.

He looked from Jean to the cow and back to Jean, then he laughed, and slapped the cow on the side. The cow trotted away, and Fred held up a helping hand as Jean scrambled down from the tree. He was so nice. Just like Jean knew he would be.

"What a happy ending to a dreadful experience," she wanted to say.

"Jean, I've wanted for ages to meet you," Fred told her, "and now that we've been formally introduced, I'll never let you get away from me."

"Formally introduced?" Jean said, hoping he wasn't joking.

"Yes, by Isabella, my new cow. She thought your hat was a shock of oats and tried to get it. Didn't you know I had bought Isabella?"

Jean felt happy through and through. "Isabella!" she whispered. "That holy cow."

COMMUNITY CHEST

Campaign Will Begin Sept. 27 and Extend Through Nov. 11

The first Carroll County Community Chest Campaign will get under way next Monday, September 27 and will extend through November 11. The fund appeal will begin with employee solicitation next Monday, and the following Monday, October 4, the county-wide solicitation will begin. The campaign chairman, Scott S. Bair, has announced that special arrangements have been made for those Carroll Countians who work in manufacturing plants in Baltimore City or County to mark their contributions for the Carroll County Campaign.

The Red Feather Joint Appeal has been called Carroll County's Number One Job, because the need for a unit fund appeal is so acute. All of the money collected in this campaign will be used in the county by the following member organizations: Boy Scouts, Children's Aid Society, Cancer Fund, Humane Society, Heart Fund, and Salvation Army.

The various manufacturing plants of the county will be asked to appoint a company chairman and a campaign committee. Some of the plants will initiate payroll deduction plans for executives and employees.

The following is a break-down of the goal of $37,000: house-to-house solicitation, $10,000; industrial, $10,000; construction industry, $1,500; retail merchants, $7,000; special gifts $3,000; men's organizations, $1,000; educational, $1,500; church organizations, $500; the medical profession, $1,200; legal, $500; finance group, $1,200; utilities, $2,000; and women's organizations, $1,000.

The funds collected in the Red Feather Community Chest Campaign will provide the following operating funds for 1955 for these organizations: Boy Scouts, $5,500; Cancer Fund, $4,200; Children's Aid Society, $15,000; Girl Scouts, $4,750; Heart Fund, $250; Humane Society, $1,500; Salvation Army, $120; plus an emergency reserve of $3,200.

SOCIAL SECURITY FOR FARMERS

The Amendments to the Social Security Act which President Eisenhower signed into law on September 1st, 1954, are of particular importance to farmers in Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil, and Harford Counties, Franklin M. Barnes, both farm operators and farm work-manager of Social Security District Office located at 3107 Greenmount Avenue, Baltimore 18, said today.

The new law extends social security protection to almost all farm families after this year, Nationwide, about 3,600,000 self-employed farm operators will be covered for the first time in much the same way as other self-employed persons already under the program. Approximately 2,100,000 more hired farm workers will start building old-age and survivors insurance protection for themselves and their families on January 1, 1955.

This means that by the time they have worked through two more crop years, elderly farm people may be insured, so that they can receive monthly social security checks after age 65. A farmer's family will be protected, too, so that if he should die, at any age, the widow and young children would receive monthly payments. For a retired farmer and his wife, the payments will be from $45 to almost $163 a month, depending upon his earnings, while the family of an insured worker who dies will receive from $45 to $200 a month.

The amended law does away with the complicated "regularly employed" test whereby a worker had to be continuously employed by a farm operator before his work started to count toward social security. Also eliminated is the provision that he must then be employed by the same farm operator on a full-time basis for at least sixty days during the following quarter. The amended law replaces this test with the requirement that, beginning January 1, 1955, an agricultural employee will be covered by social security in any calendar year in which he is paid as much as $100 in cash by one farm employer.

While this amendment to the Social Security Act will bring coverage to many more farm workers, the new law does not cover the most intermittent or short-time workers, and does not impose on the farm employer the burden of reporting small amounts of wages. However, the farm operator who employs farm help will have an obligation to report the employee's covered wages and remit the social security tax (two percent deducted from the worker's cash wages; two percent contributed by the farm operator.) The farmer will send the report and the taxes for his employees to the District Director of Internal Revenue.

Mr. Barnes pointed out that the farm operator will earn social security credits in the same way as all other self-employed people who are under the program with one notable exception. For farm operators whose gross income is less than $1,800 in a year, there is a special simplified reporting procedure. The farm operator will report his income for social security and pay his first social security self-employment tax on his 1955 earnings. The social security tax is a three percent tax which is due, with the social security income report, at the same time the farmer pays his income tax. This date is April 15, 1956.

Farm operators and workers who have never been in employment or self-employment covered by social security and have never had a social security account card, or have lost their card, should get in touch with the nearest Social Security District Office. The social security office servicing Baltimore, Carroll, Cecil and Harford Counties is located at 3107 Greenmount Avenue, Baltimore 18.

For the convenience of the residents of Carroll, Cecil and Harford counties representatives from the 3107 Greenmount Avenue office visit Itinerant Stations in these counties on a regular schedule. The location of the station closest to you and the dates will be furnished upon request.
